Our spelling quite destroys the character of the word, which is a compound of mas acabado, "more perfect," i.e., carried a process further than when in a state of syrup. Muscovado is sheer nonsense, being Spanish musco vado, a chestnut-colour ford.

Muscovy, mūs'.kō.vy, of or from Moscow or Moskva, in Russia.

Muscovite, mūs'.kō.vite, a native of Moscow.

Mus'covy-duck (not mus.kō.vy...).

(. Mus'covy-glass, a variety of mī'ca.

Mūse (1 syl.), goddess of poetry and music. Mews, stables.

Muse, in classical mythology there are nine Muses, sisters, and daughters of Zeus (Jove).

(1) Calliope, kāl'.lī.ō.pē (not kal.lī'ō.pē), the epic Muse.

Greek kallīōpē (kallōs ops), Muse with the beautiful voice.

(2) Clio, kli'.ō, Muse of history. (Gk. kleio, from klēōs, rumour.)

(3) Erato, ēr'ā.to (not eray'.to), Muse of erotic poetry.

Greek ērāto, from ērātōs, beloved (ērōs, love).

(4) Euterpe, eu.ter'pe, Muse of music and melody.

Greek euterpē [mousa], delightful muse.

(5) Melpomene, mēl.pōm'.ē.nē, the Muse of tragedy.

Greek melpōmēnē [mousa], the singing muse (melpō, I sing).

(6) Polyhymnia, pōl'.ī.hīm''.nī.ah, Muse of sacred poetry.

Greek polū-hymnia (pōlūs humnos), muse of many hymns.

(7) Terpsichore, terp.sīk'.ō.rē, the Muse of dancing.

Greek terpsi chōrē, delighting in the dance (terpō, I delight).

(8) Thalia, thā.lī'.ah (not thā'.lī.ah), the Muse of comedy.

Greek thaleia [mousa], the blooming muse.

(. (9) Urania, u.rān'.ī.ah (not u.ray'.nī.ah), Muse of astronomy.

Latin form of the Greek ourānīa, the heavenly [muse].

- Muse, to meditate; mused (1 syl.), mūs'-ing (Rule xix.), mūsing-ly, mūs'-er, muse'-fully. (French muser.)
- Museum, mu.zee'ŭm, a building set apart for curiosities.
 Latin museum; Greek mouseion, temple of the muses.
 "Muse," Lat. musā; Gk. mousa. "Mews," Fr. mus, a cage [for hawks].
- Mush. Mash. Mesh.
- Mūsh, meal of maize boiled in water. (German mus.)
- Mash, barley meal, &c., mixed with hot water for horses and poultry. (German meischen, to mash.)
- Mesh, an interstice of a net, a net. (Welsh masg.)
- Mushroom, mush'room', an edible fungus; mushroom-spawn, mushroom seed in a mass; mushroom-ketchup, a sauce made from mushrooms. (Fr. mousseron, mousse, moss.)
- Music, mū'sik; musical, mū'sī.kāl; mu'sical-ly, mu'sical-ness.
- Musician, mu.zīsh'an; music-seller; music of the spheres, the supposed musical sounds made by the heavenly bodies as the result of their movements.
- Musical glasses, glasses of different tones sorted so as to be used for a musical instrument.
 (The five words, Arithmetic, logic, magic, music, and rhetoric, derived from the French, are sing., but all other words denoting a science with a similar termination are plu. Rule li.)
 "Music," Fr. musique; Lat. musica; Gk. moussicé. Our word means both the art, and the result obtained from musical instruments as exponents of that art. These being totally distinct ought not to be expressed by the same word.
- Musk, a plant, an animal perfume. Mosque, mosk (q.v.)
- Animal musk is obtained from a bag near the navel of the musk deer, a native of the Asiatic Alps.
- Musk cat, musk deer, musk duck, musk ox, musk rat.
- Musk apple, musk cherry, musk mallow, musk melon, musk orchis, musk rose, all so called from their odours.
 French musc; Latin moschus; Greek moschos, musk, the musk-cat.
- Musket, mūs'.kēt, a gun used at one time by soldiers of the line.
- Musket-eer, mūs.kē.teer', a soldier armed with a musket; musket-proof; mus'ketoon', a blunderbus.
- Musketry, mūs'.kē.try, the art and practice of gunnery.
 (The musket succeeded the arquebuse, and was itself succeeded, first by the fusil, and then by the rifle.)
 (It was a Spanish invention, a little prior to 1521. It was used in the English army in 1521. The Duke of Alva introduced it into the Low Countries in 1569, and Strozzi, an Italian, at the close of the century introduced it into France.)
 Germ. muskele, musketier, musketon, musketiere; Span. mosquete; Ital. moschetto; Fr. mosquet. The word is from mosca, a fly, and compared with the heavy arquebuse it was "light as a fly."
- Muslin, mūz'.līn, a fine delicate cotton cloth; muslin-et, mūz'.līn nēt, a coarse muslin; mousseline de laine, mooz'.līn dē lane, a wool muslin. (Moussul, Asiatic Turkey.)

Mussel. Muscle. Muschel-kalk. Mussulman (v. Mytilaceæ).

Mussel, müs'.sel, a bivalve shell-fish. (Latin musculus.)

Muscle, mus'.l, animal fibre. (Latin musculus.)

Muschel-kalk (Germ.), moo'.shël kalk, a shelly limestone.

Mussulman, plu. Mussulmans (not mussulmen), a moslem.

Mussulmanic; Mussulman-ly. (Turkish musslim.)

(The word means a "true believer." The termination (as in German, Roman) has no connection with our word "man.")

Must, new wine, an indeclinable verb implying "obligation."

Must is one of the verbs which stands in regimen with other verbs without the intervention of to: as I must go, You must obey (not "I must to go," "You must to obey").

"Must" (the verb), Old Eng. mōst. The verb is, ic mōt, thú mōst, he mōt, plu. mōton, past tense ic mōste, he mōste, we mōston.

"Must" (new wine), Old English must; Latin mustum.

Mustache, plu. mustaches, mus.tàsh', mus.tàsh'.ez, hair on the upper lip; mustached, müs.tàshd'. Also written mustachio, Spanish mostacho, Italian mostacchio, and French moustache (Gk. mustax, gen. mustākos; Lat. mustax-ācis).

The best of all these varieties of spelling is mustache.

Mustang, müs'.tāng, the wild prairie horse of Mexico, &c.

Mustard, müs'.tard, a plant, the mustard seed made into flour.

Welsh mowstardd (mws, a pungent flavour, tardd, issues).

Müs'ter, a gathering, to gather together; mustered, müs'.terd; muster-ing. To pass muster, to pass without censure.

Mustered, mus'.terd, assembled. Mustard, a condiment.

German mustern, n. musterung, muster-rolle.

Musty, müs'.ty, spoiled with damp, mouldiness, or age; must'i-ness (R. xi.), must'i-ly. (O. E. must; Lat. mustum, must.)

Mutable, mü'.tä.b'l, changeable; mu'table-ness, mu'tably.

Mutability, mü'.tä.b'il''.i.ty. Mutation, mü.tay'.shün.

Latin mutabilis, mutābilitas, mutatio, v. mutāre, to change.

Müte (1 syl.), one dumb, a hired attendant at a funeral, an instrument to deaden the sound of a violin, the letters k, p, t, silent, dung of birds.

Latin mūtus; French mutir, to void as a bird.

Mutilate, mü'.tī.late, to maim; mu'tilāt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), mu'tilāt-ing (Rule xix.), mu'tilāt-or (Rule xxxvii.)

Mutilation, mü'.tī.lay''.shün, curtailment, a maiming.

Latin mutilatio, mutilator, v. mutilāre, supine mutilatum (mutilus, maimed; Greek mitēlos, curtailed).

Mutiny, plu. mutinies (Rule xlv.), mü'.tī.niz, insubordination, to revolt; mutinies; mutinied mü'.tī.nēd; mu'tiny-ing.

Mutineer, mü'.tī.neer', one who mutinies;

Mutinous, mū'.tī.nūs; mu'tinous-ly, mu'tinous-ness.

Mutiny Act, an act of parliament respecting mutiny.

French mutiner, emeute; Latin emotus, aroused; German meute, &c.

Mutter, mūt'.ter, to mumble; muttered, mūt'.terd; mut'ter-ing, mut'ter-ing-ly, mut'ter-er. (Lat. mutto, v. mūtio, to mutter.)

Mutton, mūt'.t'n, the flesh of sheep. (French mouton.)

En Italien montone, dérivé lui-même de mont, parce que ces animaux aiment à paître sur les lieux élevés. (Bouillet.)

Mutual, mū'.tū.āl, reciprocal; mu'tual-ly, mutual'ity.

"Mutual" is never used except the parties referred to are two, actually or virtually: Thus, we cannot say, He is a mutual friend of A, B, and C, although we can say, He is a mutual friend of us both, because "both" is virtually one party and the friend the other. Latin mutuus (verb mutāre, to change). The word means a loan which belongs to one and is used by another.

Muzzle, mūz'.z'l, a snout, a fastening for the mouth, to put on a muzzle; muzzled, mūz'.z'ld; muzz'ling. (Fr. musclière.)

Muzzy, mūz'.zy, bewildered, stupid from drink. (Lat. musso.)

My, adj. pron., belonging to me, phu. our, belonging to us; mine, used for my before vowels (in poetry and the Bible): as mine ears hast thou opened. "Mine" is also used at the end of a clause when the noun is not repeated: as this is your hat but that is mine; myself, phu. ourselves.

Old English mīn. Thus: N. ic, G. mīn, D. me, Acc. mec.

Plu. N. we, G. üser, D. üs, Acc. üsic.

Mycelium, piu. mycelia, mī.sec'.lī.ām, mī.sec'.lī.ah, filament of a fungus, a rudimentary fungus.

Mycology, my.kōl'.ō.gy, a description of the fungi, study of fungi; mycologist, my.kōl'.ō.djīst; mycologic, my'.kō.lōdg''īk; mycological, my'.kō.lōdg''ī.kāl.

Greek mukēs, a fungus; mukēs lōgōs. (An ill-compounded word.)

Myelitis, my'.ē.lī''.tīs, inflammation of the spine.

Greek muēlōs, the [spinal] marrow (-itis denotes inflammation).

Myodon, my'.lō.dōn, a gigantic fossil animal noted for its huge grinders. (Gk. mulos ōdous, gen. ōdontōs, millstone-tooth.)

Mynheer, mine.heer' (Dutch), sir, my lord.

Myology, my.ōl'.ō.gy, treatise on the muscles, study of the muscles; myologist, my.ōl'.ō.djīst; myological, my'.ō.lōdg''ī.kāl. (Greek mūs, gen. muōs lōgōs.)

Myositis, my'.ō.sī''.tīs. Myosotis, my'.ō.sō''.tīs;

Myositis, inflammation of a muscle;

Myosōtis, the plant called mouse-ear.

"Myositis," Greek mūs, gen. muōs, a muscle (-itis, inflammation).

"Myosotis," Greek mūs, gen. muōs ōtos, mouse ear.

Myotomy, my.ōl'.ō.my, anatomy of the muscles, division of a muscle in a surgical operation.

Greek mūs, gen. muōs temno, I cut a muscle.

Myops, my'ops, a near-sighted person; myopic, my'öp'ik.

Greek mudops, near-sighted, (mud ops) close-eyed, shut-eyed.

Myosotis, my'osō'tis. Myositis, my'osī'tis;

Myosōtis, the plant called mouse-ear;

Myositis, inflammation of a muscle.

"Myosotis," mūs, gen. mūs otōs, mouse ear.

"Myositis," Greek mūs, gen. mūsos, a muscle (-itis, inflammation).

Myriad, mūr'ri.ād, ten thousand, a countless number.

Greek muriōs, numberless, as a definite number 10,000.

Myricaceæ, my'ri.kay'.sē.ē. Myrtaceæ, mir.tay'.sē.ē. Both natural orders of the genus myrtle with this difference:

Myricaceæ, natural order of the flowerless myrtle;

Myrtaceæ, natural order of the flowering myrtle.

Myrica, my'ri'.ka, the typical genus of the myrica'ceæ.

Myrtus, mur'tūs, the typical genus of the myrta'ceæ.

(-ca, in Botany, a genus of plants, -aceæ, a natural order).

Lat. mýrica; Gk. mýrikē [the tamarisk], being already appropriated, ought not to have been perverted to a totally different plant. If, however, myrica has been formed (as botanists say) from the Greek murōn, "sweet ointment," it is still more unpardonable. I apprehend the word is a corrupt form of the Lat. myrrha, Gk. murra, the "Arabian myrtle," and is, in fact, a series of blunders.

Myrmidon, mīr'mī.dōn (not myrma'don), a rough policeman, "bull-dog," or other employé under a merciless or desperate leader; myrmidonian, myr'mī.dō'nī.ān.

So called from the Murmidōnēs, a people of Thessaly, subjects of Achilles, and his chief soldiery in the Trojan war.

Myrrh, mer, a fragrant Arabian gum; myrrh-ic, mur'rik.

Myrrhine, mer'rīn. Murrhine, mur'rīne. Murrain, mūr'ren.

Myrrhine, mer'rīn, made of porphery or fluor spar;

Murrhine, mur'rīne (same meaning).

Murrain, mūr'ren, cattle plague. (Spanish morriña.)

Latin myrrha, myrrhīnus, made of myrrha (myrrha is either myrrh or porphery), murrhīnus (adj. of murrha or murra, a kind of porphery); Greek murra, murrīnos (v. muro, to trickle).

The words "myrrhine" and "murrhine" being synonymous, the former should be abolished, as it confounds the word with the drug.

Myrtle, mer'tl, an evergreen; myrtaceous (Rule lxvi.), adj.

Myrtaceæ, mer.tay'.sē.ē. Myricaceæ, mī'ri.kay'.sē.ē.

Myrtaceæ, natural order of the flowerless myrtle;

Myricaceæ, natural order of the flowering myrtle.

Latin myrtus, myrtāceus; Greek murtos. Myrtaceæ (q.v.)

Myself, plu. ourselves, my'self, our.selvz (a reflexive personal pronoun), the same, the identical; I myself.

Old Eng. N. ic selfa, G. mīn selfes, D. me selfum, Acc. mec selfnc.
Plu. We selfe, ge-edw selfe, &c. ic me self, I myself.

Mystery, plu. mysteries (Rule xliv.); mīs'.tē.rīz, something profoundly secret, something past understanding, a drama;

Mysterious (not mistereous, R. lxvi.), mīs'.tē'.rī.ūs, obscure; myste'rious-ly, myste'rious-ness.

Mystics, mīs'.īks, a religious sect; mystic, mīs'.īk, secret, involving a secret meaning; mystical, mīs'.tī.kāl; mystical-ly, mystical-ness.

Mysticism, mīs'.tī.sīzm, tenets of the mystics.

Mystify, mīs'.tī.fy, to render obscure, to obfuscate; mystifies, mīs'.tī.fize (R. xi.); mystified, mīs'.tī.fide; mys'tify-ing. Mystification, mīs'.tī.fī.kay''shūn.

Lat. mysterium, mysticus; Gk. musterion, mustikos (mustēs, one initiated). The mysteries were those things of the "secret societies" of Greece and Rome which were revealed only to the initiated. In the middle ages, the most delicate parts of many mechanical arts were kept profoundly secret, and hence the word came to be applied to anything reserved as a deep secret or past understanding.

Myth, mīth, a poetic fiction, a fabulous tale; mythic, mīth'.īk; mythical, mīth'.ī.kāl. (Greek mūthos, mūthikos.)

Mytho-, mī'.rtho- (Gk. prefix), myths. (Greek mūthos.)

Mythographer, mī.thōg'.rā.fer, a writer of myths.

Greek mūtho- [muthos] graphō, I write myths.

Mythology, plu. mythologies (Rule xlv.), mī.thōl'.ō.djīz, tales of gods and goddesses reduced to a system; mythologic, mī'.rtho.lōdg''.īk; mythological, mī'.rtho.lōdg''.ī.kāl; myth'ological-ly; mythologist, mī.thōl'.ō.djīst. Mythologise (Rule xxxi.), mī.thōl'.ō.djīze; mythol'ogised (4 syl.); mythol'ogis-ing (Rule xix).

Greek mūtholōgia (mūthos lōgia, mythic legends).

Mytho-poeio, mī'.rtho.pē'.īk, myth-making; mytho-poeist.

Greek mūtho- [muthos] poieō, I make myths.

Mytilacæ. Myrtacæ. Myricacæ.

Mytilacæ, mī'.tī.lay''.sē.ē (not mīt'.ī.lay''.sē.ē), the family of molluscs of the mussel type; mytilacean, mī'.tī.lay''.sē.ān, one of the mytilacæ; mytilidæ, mī.tīl'.ī.dē, the mussel group.

(Mytilidæ is a better word than mytilacæ, the termination -acæ being used in botany for a natural order of plants, and -idæ (a Greek patronymic) for a family or group of animals.)

Mytilite, mī'.tī.lite, a fossil mussel (-ite, a fossil).

Mytiloid, mī.tī.lōid, shells resembling the mussel.

Greek mūtīlō- [mūtīlōs] eidos, like a mussel.

Myrtacæ, mir.tay'.sē.ē, native order of the flowering myrtle.

Greek murtos, a myrtle. (-acæ denotes an "order" of plants.)

Myricacæ, mī'.rī.kay''.sē.e, natural order of the barren myrtle. (See Myrica.)

N- (native prefix), negative; as one, n-one.

Nāb, to catch with a snap; nabbed, nābd; nabb'-ing (Rule i.)

Danish nappe, to snap at, catch at, nap, a snatch.

Nabob, na'.bōb, a native Indian governor, a man of great wealth.

Hindustanee nawāb, a governor.

Nacre, na'y'.k'r, mother of pearl; nacreous, nā'.krē.ūs.

Nacrite, na'y'.krite, a sort of mica. (French nacre.)

Nadir, na'y'.der, that part of the heavens directly under our feet, the opposite point is the zenith, ze'nith.

Two Arabic words Nadhara or nazir means opposite [the zenith].

Nāg, a small horse, to scold constantly; nagged, nāgd; nagg'-ing (Rule i.), nagg'-ing-ly, nagg'-er, nagg-y.

"Nag" (horse), Danish negge, to whinny as a horse.

"Nag" (to find fault), Dan. nag, v. nage, to gnaw (a "nagging" pain).

Naiad, plu. naiads, na'y'.ādz, a water-nymph; naiades, na'y'.ādz (in Geol.), fresh-water mussels. (Greek nāīadēs.)

Nail, nāle (1 syl.), the horny substance on the back of our finger-tips, &c., a metal pin, to fasten with a nail; nailed, naīld; nail'-ing, nail'-er; nail'ery, a nail manufactory.

On the nail, immediately. To hit [it] on the nail, to strike home. To hit the nail on the head, to catch the exact meaning, to do the right thing at the right time.

Old English nægel, v. nægl[ian], past næglode, past part. næglod.

Naïve (French), nā'ef, ingenious; naïve-ly, nā'ef.ly.

Naïve-té, nā'ef.ty (French), artless simplicity.

Naked, na'y'.kēd, without clothing, nude; nā'ked-ly, nā'ked-ness; naked-eye, the eye unassisted by any optical instrument. (Old English næcud or naced.)

Namby-pamby, wishy-washy [literature].

Applied by Pope to the poetry of Ambrose Phillips. "Namby" is Ambrose, and "Pamby" a jingling corruption of the surname.

Nāme (1 syl.) noun and verb, nāmed (1 syl.), nām'ing (R. xix.), nām'-er, name'-less, name'less-ly; name'-sake, one bearing the same Christian name; name'-plate, a door-plate.

Christian name, krīs'.ti.an, a personal name.

Sur'name, a family name. Nickname, a sobriquet.

Prop'er name, the name of a man, place, &c.

In the name of, on the authority of, in behalf of.

To call names, to abuse. To take [God's] name in vain, to utter it lightly or profanely.

Old English nama, v. nam[an], nameleas. "Name-book" (nom-bōc), a "catalogue," might be reintroduced.

Nankeen, nān.keen', a buff-coloured cotton cloth (Nankin.)

Nāp. Nāpe (1 syl.), the back of the neck. Knap, nāp, to break,

Nāp, a short doze, the villous surface of cloth or hats, to take a doze; napped, nāpt; napp'ing (Rule i.), napp'-er, napp'-y. Nap'-less, threadbare; napp'i-ness.

"Nap" (doze), O. Eng. hnepp[ian], past hneppode, p. p. hneppod, n. hneppung, a napping or nap. "Nap" of cloth, O. E. noypa.

"Nape," Old English cnæp. "Knap," Old English hnip[an].

Nāpe (1 syl.), the back of the neck. (O. E. cnæp, Welsh cnap.)

Napery, nāp'ery, made-up linen, table-linen.

French nappe, cloth; Latin nappā, a table-cloth, a napkin.

Naphtha, nāf'.ṭhāh, rock-oil, &c.; naphthalic; nāf'.ṭhāl'ik.

Naphthaline, nāf'.ṭhāl'in, a substance which incrusts pipes employed in the rectification of coal-tar.

Latin naphtha; Greek naphtha, oleum Medææ, bitu'men.

Napkin, a cloth used at meals for wiping the fingers and lips.

Napkin-ring, a ring for holding a table napkin.

French nappe, a cloth, with kin an English dim.

Napoleon, nā.pō'.lē.ŏn, a French gold coin = 20 francs.

First issued by Napoleon I. to replace the Louis d'or.

Narcissus, plu. narcissus-es (not narcissi), a bulbous flower.

Fable says the boy Narcissus was changed into this flower.

Greek narksisis (narksisis, torpor), the odour being a narcotic.

Narcotic, nar.kōt'ik, inducing sleep, a medicine to produce sleep; narcotical-ly, nar.kōt'.ī.kāl.ly.

Narcotin, nar'.kō.tin; narcotism, nar'.kō.tizm.

Greek narkotikos (v. narkaō, to numb, to deaden).

Nard, an ointment prepared from the spikenard plant.

Old English nard; Latin nardus; Greek nardos, an Eastern word.

Narrate, nār.rāt', to tell as a story, to relate; narrāt'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), narrāt'-ing (Rule xix.), narrāt'-or (Rule xxxvii.)

Narration, nārray'.shūn. Narrative, nār.rā.tiv; nār'ra-tive-ly; narrable, nar'ra.b'l.

Latin narrābilis, narrātio, narrātor, v. narrare; French narration.

Narrow, nār'ro, not wide, to contract; narrowed, nār'rowd; nār'row-ing; (comp.) nār'row-er, (super.) nār'row-est, nār'row-ly, nār'row-ness.

Narrow cloth, cloth less than fifty-two inches wide.

Broad-cloth, cloth double of fifty-two inches in width.

Narrow gauge, -gage (of railways) 4 ft. 8½ in. wide.

Broad gauge, 7 feet between the two rails.

Narrow-mind, illiberal mind; narrow-minded, illiberal; narrow-minded-ness, having mean and contracted views.

Old English nearo, nearolice, narrowly, nearones, narrowness, v. nearow[ian], past nearode, past part. nearrod.

Narwhal, nar'wāl, the sea unicorn. Walrus, the sea-horse.

Danish nar-hval; German narwal (narr-walfisch), the foolish whale.

We have taken the Old English hwæl, a whale, for the last syl.

"Walrus," German wall-rosse, the whale-horse.

Nasal, nay'z'l, pertaining to the nose, through the nose.

French nasal, nasale; Latin nāsus, the nose (Greek naō, to flow).

Nascent, nās'sent, sprouting; nascency, nās'sen.sy.

Latin nascens, gen. nascentis, rising (v. nascor, to arise, to be born).

Nasturtium (Latin), nās.tur'shē'tim (not nas.tur'shūn), the tropæolum Great Indian cress, or nose-smart.

Nomen accipit a narium tormento (Plin. xix. 44).

Nasty, nās'ty, disagreeable, dirty; nas'ti-ly (R. xi.), nas'ti-ness.

A corrup. of nasky. O. E. n-asca, not dust, i.e. mud; Ger. nass, wet.

Natal, nay'tāl, native, pertaining to birth, anniversary of a birth-day. (Latin natālis, v. nascor, nātus, to be born.)

Natant, nay'tānt, swimming, floating; na'tant-ly.

Natation, na.tay'shūn. Natatores, nay'tū.tōr'rēz, web-footed birds; natatorial, nay'tū.tōr'rī.āl.

Natatory, nay'tā.tō.ry, adapted for swimming.

Lat. nātant, gen. nātantis, nātation, nātātōrius, v. nātāre, to swim.

Nathless, nāth.less, nevertheless. (Old English nātheles.)

Nation, nay'shūn; nation-al, nāsh'ōn.āl; national-ly.

Nationality, plu. nationalities, nāsh'ōn.āl'.ī.tēz.

Nationalise (Rule xxxi.), nāsh'ōn.āl.īze, to make national;

Naturalise, nāt'tchūr.āl.ize, to invest a foreigner with the civil rights of a native.

Nationalised (4 syl.), nationalis-ing (Rule xix.), nāsh'ōn.āl.īze'ing. National-ism, nāsh'ōn.āl.īzm.

National debt, nāsh'ōn.āl dēt, the government debt.

National guards, gardz, the militia of France.

National law or law of nations, international law.

(Except in "nation" the first syllable is always short. See Nature.)

French nation, national, nationaliser, naturaliser; Latin natio.

Native, nay'tiv, born in a place, indigenous; native-ly.

Nativity, plu. nativities (Rule xlv.), nay'tiv'.ī.tēz.

Latin nātivus, nativitas; French natif, nativité.

Natron, nay'trōn, a native carbonate of soda. Natrium, nay'trī.ūm, an early chemical term for sodium.

Natrolite, nay'trō.līte, a mineral containing a large quantity of natron or soda.

German natrum or natron; French natrum or natron, natrolithe.

"Natron" is the nitre of the ancients. Now "natron" is a native carbonate of soda, and "nitre" is a nitrate of potassa.

Natty, nāt.ty, spruce, prim and smart. (Dim. of neat, Welsh nith.)

Nature, nay'tchūr; natural, năt'tchūr.ăl; natural-ly, nat'ural-ness; natural-ism, năt'tchūr.ăl.izm.

Naturalise (R. xxxi.), năt'tchūr.ăl.ize, to invest a foreigner with the civil rights of a native, to acclimatise; natural-ised (4 syl.); naturalis-ing (R. xix.), năt'tchūr.ăl.ize''ing.

Naturalisation, năt'tchūr.ăl.izay''shün.

Nat'ural-ist, one who studies the productions of nature.

Originally this word meant, one who believes in "natural religion only, and not in "Revealed Religion."

Natural history, a scientific description of the productions of the earth (sometimes limited to the animal kingdom).

Natural philosophy, -fī.lōs'.ō.fy, the science of material bodies, their forces, combinations, motions, and effects.

Natural projections, -projēk'.shūnz, perspective drawings of surfaces on a given plane.

Natural religion, -rē.līdg'.ōn, religion so far as it is discoverable without revelation.

Natural scale, -skāle (in Mus.), without sharps and flats.

Natural selection, -sē.lēk'.shūnz, that process in nature by which the stronger supersede the weaker.

Good-nature, good-natured; ill-nature, ill-natured.

(As in "nation" (q.v.) the first syl. is always short, except in "nature.")
Latin nātūra, nātūrālis; French naturel (wrong), naturalisme, naturaliste, naturalisation, naturaliser, nature.

Naught, nawt, worthless. Nought, nawt, nothing.

It is naught, it is naught [worthless], says the buyer. (Prov. xx. 14.)

The city is pleasant, but the water is naught. (2 Kings ii. 19.)

Doth Job fear God for nought [nothing]. (Job i. 9.)

Ye have sold yourselves for nought. (Isa. lii. 3.)

Naughty, naw'ty, bad; naugh'ti-ness (R. xi.), naught'i-ly.

To set at naught (not nought), to treat as worthless.

"Naught," Old English nāht, i.e., n-āht, not aught [of value].

"Nought," Old Eng. nōht, i.e., n-ōht, not ought [not anything at all].

Naumachy, naw'.mā.ky, a spectacle representing a sea-fight.

Greek naumāchia, naus māché, ship battle.

Nausea, naw'.shē.ah, sickness, loathing; nauseous, naw'shē'ūs; nau'seous-ly, nau'seous-ness.

Nauseate, naw.shē.ate; nauseāt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), nauseāt-ing. (Latin nausea; Greek nausia, naus, a ship.)

Nautical, naw'.tī.kāl, relating to ships or sailors; nau'tical-ly.

Nautical Al'manac, an almanac for seamen, published by the Admiralty.

Nautical astron'omy, astronomy in its application to navigation. (Latin nauticus; Greek nautikōs, naus.)

Nautilus, plu. nautilus-es or nautili, naw' .tī.lūs, naw' .tī.lūs.ēz, naw' .tī.lī, a mollusc with its organs of motion placed round its head (a ceph' ālōpōd).

Nautilidae, naw' .tī.lī' .dē, a family of molluscs of which the nautilus is a type (-īdā, a Greek patronymic denoting a "family," "descendants").

Nautilite, naw' .tī.līte, a fossil nautilus (-ite denotes a fossil, Greek lithos). Nautiloid, naw' .tī.lōid, fossils resembling the nautilus (Greek eidos, like).

Greek nautilōs, nautilus or sailor, (naus, a ship); Latin nautilus.

Naval, nay' .v'l, pertaining to the navy. Na' vel [of the body].

Nāve (1 syl.) Knave, nave. Naīve, nī'ev, ingenuous.

Nave, the centre of a wheel, the main part of a church.

Navel, nay' .vel [of the human body]. Naval (q.v.)

Navel string, the umbilical cord.

Knave, a scoundrel. (Old English cnafa, a youth.)

Naīve, nī'ev, ingenuous. (French naīve.)

"Nave" (of a wheel), Old English nafu; nafela, the navel.

"Nave" (of a church), Fr. nef; Gk. nāos, the innermost part of a temple, where the "God" was placed (not Lat. nāvis, a ship).

Navigate, nāv' .i.gate, to traverse the sea; nav'igāt-ed (R. xxxvi.), nav'igāt-ing (R. xix.), nav'igāt-or (R. xxxvii.)

Navigation, nāv' .i.gay' .shūn. Navigable, nāv' .i.gā.b'l; nav'igable-ness, nav'igably, nav'igability.

Latin nāvigābilis, nāvigātio, nāvigātor, v. nāvigāre, nāvis, a ship.

Navvy, nāv' .vy. Navy, nay' .vy.

Navvy, plu. navvies, nāv' .vīz, workmen employed in the construction of railroads, canals, tunnels, &c.

Navy, a fleet. (Latin nāvis, a ship.)

In the north a canal is called a navvy, and men employed in constructing it navvies. Halliwell gives navy, "a canal," and navies, "excavators," in his Archaic Dict.

Navy, plu. navies, nay' .vīz, a fleet. Navvy, an excavator (v.s.)

Naval, nay' .v'l, pertaining to the navy. Navel [of the body].

Latin nāvalis, nāvis, a ship. "Navel," Old English nafela.

Nawab, nā.waw'b, an Indian governor, same as Na'bob.

Nay, No. Yea, Yes. Neigh, nay, to whinny.

The distinction between nay and no, yea and yes, is not now observed, but it was a very good one. It was this:

A question formed affirmatively, had Yea or Nay for its answer.

A question formed negatively, had No or Yes for its answer.

G.E.—Are you going to town to-night? Answer, Yea or Nay.

Are you not going to town? Answer, Yes or No.

A yea-nay [sort of a man], a shilly-shally.

Old English gea, yea, gese, yes, negatives ne-gea, contracted to na.

Nazarene. Nazarean. Nazarite.

Nazarene, naz'ă.reen', applied to Jesus Christ and his disciples, one of the sect of the Nazarenes.

Nazarean, naz'ă.rē'ăn, pertaining to Nazareth, pertaining to the Nazarenes.

Nazarite, naz'ă.rīte, a Jew bound by a vow of abstinence and purity of life; naz'aritim.

Nazareth, a city of Galilee, where Jesus Christ was brought up.

"Nazarite," Hebrew nazar, to separate, one set apart.

Nāze (1 syl.), a headland. (Germ. nase; Lat. nāsus, a nose.)

-nce, -ncy (Latin -nt[ia]) nouns, possessed of, result of, state of.

Fragrancy, possessed of fragrance; infancy, infant state.

-nd (Lat. -nd[us]) nouns, something to be [done].

Legend, something to be read; deodand, something to be given to God; stipend, something to be paid as wages.

Neap-tide, neep'-tīde, lowest tide. Spring-tide, highest tide.

Neap-tides occur during the quarter moons;

Spring-tides occur during new and full moons.

Old English nep, nep-floed, neap-flood or neap-tide.

Near, nē'r, close by. Ne'er, nūre, contraction of never.

Near, (comp.) near-er, (super.) near-est;

Near, to draw near; neared, ne'rd; near-ing.

Near-ly, almost; near'-ness, proximity, closeness of neighbourhood or relationship, parsimoniousness.

Near at hand, close by. Near-sighted, nē'r-sī'ted.

Old English neah, (comp.) nearra, (super.) neahst, neahlīce, nearly.

Neat, neet, tidy, black cattle; neat'-ly, neat-ness; neat-handed, clever and natty. Neat-herd, a cow-keeper; neat's-foot, neat's-tongue; neat-cattle, oxen, &c.

"Neat" (tidy). Welsh nith, pure; Latin nītīdus, neat.

"Neat" (cattle), Old English neat or neat, neat-hyrde, a neatherd.

Nebula, plu. nebulæ, nēb'bū.lah, plu. nēb'bū.lē, also written nebule, plu. nebules, nēb'bū.le, plu. nēb'bū.les, white spots in the starry heavens many of which have been resolved into groups of stars or planetary systems.

Nebular, nēb'bū.lar, pertaining to nebulæ.

Nebulous, nēb'bū.lūs, cloudy; neb'ulous-ness.

Nebulosity, plu. nebulosities (Rule xliv.), nēb'bū.lōs'ă.tiz; nebuly, nēb'bū.ly, covered with wavy lines.

Nebular hypothesis, -hī.pōth'ē.sīs, the theory which supposes that the sun was once a luminous mass out of which the planets and their satellites were gradually evolved. (Latin nēbūla, nēbūlōsus, nēbūlōsitas.)

Necessary, plu. necessities (Rule xlv.), nēs''.ēs.sēr' rīz, what is needful, essential; necessari-ly (R. xi.), nēs''.ēs.sēr' rī.ly; necessari-ness. Necessitude, nēs.sēs'.tūde.

Necessity, plu. necessities (R. xlv.), nēs.sēs'.tīz, indigence; necessitous, nēs.sēs'.tūs; neces'sitous-ness, neces'sitous-ly. Necessitate, nēs.sēs'.tāte, to compel; neces'sitāt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), neces'sitāt-ing (Rule xix.)

Necessitarian, nēs.sēs'.sītair''rī.ān, one who believes that whatever is (being foreordained) must of necessity be; necessitar'ian-ism, the tenets of a necessitarian.

Latin necessarius, necessitas, necessitudo (ne cedere, sup. cessum, not to be given up or parted with); French nécessité, nécessaire, &c.

Neck, that part of the body which joins the head to the trunk.

Neck of land, a narrow strip between two large portions; necked, nēkt, having a neck, as a large necked bottle.

Neck-band, neck-cloth, neckerchief, plu. neckerchieves (ought to be chiefs). Necklace, neck'lēs, a string of beads for the neck; neck'laced (2 syl.); neck-tie, nēk'.tī.

Neck and crop, head and heels. Stiff-necked, stubborn.

To harden the neck, to resist doggedly.

To break the neck of [something], to surmount introductory difficulties. Neck-verse, Psalm li. 1, the trial-verse which saved the neck of those who obtained "benefit of clergy."

Old English necca or hnecca. "Neckerchief" is Neck-kerchief, a wretched hybrid: neck Eng., kerchief Fr., couvre chef, a "neck head-cover"!! and the plural -chieves adds to the absurdity.

Nec'ro- (Greek prefix), a dead body, putrid (nekros, a corpse).

Nec'ro-lite (3 syl.), certain nodules in limestone, which give out (when struck) a putrid smell.

Greek nekro- [nekros] lithos, a dead-body stone.

Necrology, nē.krōl'.ō.gy, a register of deaths; nec'ro-logical, nēk'.ro-lōdg'.ā.kāl; necrologist, nē.krōl'.ō.djst.

Greek nekro- [nekros] lōgōn, a register of dead persons.

Nec'ro-mancy, plu. -mancies, -mān'.sīz, enchantment, divination by calling the dead from their graves to answer; necro-man'cer; necro-man'tic, necro-man'tic-ly.

Greek nekro- [nekros] manteia, divination by the dead.

Necrophagous, nē.krōf'.ā.gūs, eating carrion.

Greek nekro- [nekros] phago, I eat dead bodies.

Necropolis, nē.krōp'.ō.līs, a cemetery.

Greek nekro- [nekros] pōlis, city of the dead.

Necropsy, nek'.rōp.sy, examination of a dead body.

Greek nekro- [nekros] opsis, investigation of a dead body.

Necrosis, nē.krō'.sīs, mortification, gangrene.

Greek nekroōs, deadness, v. nekroō, nekroōs, a dead body.

Nectar, něk'tr, beverage of the gods, the sweet secretion of flowers, a sweet and pleasant drink; nectared, něk'trd, imbued with nectar. Nectareous (R. lxvi.), něk-tair'rě.űs, adj. of nectar; nectar'eous-ly, nectar'eous-ness.

Nectary, plu. nectaries, něk'.tű.rűz, that part of a flower which secretes nectar (honey); nectareal, něk.tair'rě.űl.

Nectariferous, něk'.tű.rű''ě.rűs, having a honey-like secretion. (Latin nectar ferens, bearing nectar.)

Nectarine, něk'.tű.rűn (not něk'trine), a fruit like nectar.

Nectarium, plu. nectaria, něk.tair'rě.űm, -rě.ah; a nectary; nectarous, něk'.tű.rűs, sweet as nectar.

Nectareous. Nectarous. Nectareal.

Nectareous, containing nectar, pertaining to nectar.

Nectarous, sweet as nectar.

Nectareal, pertaining to the nectary of a flower.

Latin nectār, nectāreus; Greek nektār, nektāreos.

Nee, nay (French), born: as Mrs. Smith něe Jones, that is Mrs. Smith whose birth or maiden name was Jones.

Need. Needs. Knead, need, to work up dough. (O. E. cnedan.)

Need (noun and verb trans. and intrans.), necessity, to require, to be necessary, it behoves (oportet me, te, &c.)

Needs, plu. of need, wants, (adv.), of necessity, necessarily (-es, native affix of adverbs), also requires, insists.

Must needs (adv.), must of necessity, must of right.

Will needs. Would needs, wood..., will or would of necessity, or by determination (that is, insists on being).

Need'-y, necessitous, poor; need'-er, need'-est (R. xi.)

Need'-ed, need'-ing. Need'-less, need'-less-ly, need'-less-ness. Need'-ful (R. viii.), need'-ful-ly, need'-ful-ness.

NEEDS (1) with will, would, must;

(2) when the word can be changed into requires.

NEED (1) with have (provided must does not precede);

(2) if not follows (provided the word requires cannot be substituted);

(3) when the word can be changed into behoves, it is requisite.

EXAMPLES.—

¶ This one fellow will needs be a judge (Gen. xix. 9) [insists on being].

He was a fool, for he would needs be virtuous (Hen. VIII. ii. 2).

The multitude must needs come together (Acts xxi. 22) [of certainty].

He needs must go [must of necessity].

He needs my help. He needs not my help [requires].

¶ He need have a giant's strength to move it [it behoves him to have].

He need not fear I shall forget it [it behoves him not to fear].

Old Eng. nedd, neastig or neftig, needy ("Nead-bread" might be reintroduced), v. nedd(an), past neddde or nedd[ian], p. p. neddode.

Needle, nee'.d'l, an instrument for sewing.

The Needles, detached masses of rock off the Isle of Wight.

Needle-ful (R. viii.), two, three...needlefuls (not needles-ful), two, three needle-fuls means a needleful repeated two or three times, but two, three needles-ful would mean two or three needles all full.

Need'ler, a needle-maker. Needle-book, a hussif.

Needle-fish, the pipe-fish. Needle-gun, a gun fired by the impact of a needle on detonating powder.

Needle-ore, a sulphuret of bismuth. Needle-pointed.

Needle-stone, a mineral. Needle-work, done by the needle.

Needle-woman, plu. needle-women, -wim'en, a woman who earns her livelihood by sewing, if she uses the "sewing-machine" she is called a machinist, mā.sheen'ist.

Old English nædel or nawdl. (Nædel is the older spelling.)

Ne'er, nare, contraction of never. Near, ne'r, close by. (See Near.)

Nefarious (Rule lxvi.), ně.fair'ri.ūs, wicked; nefa'rious-ly, nefa'rious-ness. (Latin něfūrius, něfas, wicked.)

"Fas" means what may be spoken (fari, to speak), ne-fas what may not be spoken; the allusion is to the "mysteries of secret societies."

Negative, něg'.ā.tiv, a word or sentence which denies, to deny; neg'ative-ly; negatived, něg'.ā.tivd; neg'ativ-ing (Rule xix.), neg'ative-ness. Neg'ative sign, -sine (thus —).

Negative quality, plu. -qualities, -kwol'ā.tiz, a quality preceded by not, as not good, &c.

Negative quantity, plu. -quantities, -kwon'.ā.tiz, a quantity with a negative sign before it, as —a.

Negation, ně.gay'.shūn, denial.

Latin negativus, negatio (negāre, to deny); French négation, &c.

Neglect, neg.lect', want of care, to omit to do, to slight, &c.; neglect'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), neglect'-ing, neglect'ing-ly, neglect'-er, neglect'-ful (R. viii.), neglect'ful-ly.

Negligent, něg'.li.djent; neg'ligent-ly. Negligence.

Negligee, něg'.lē.zha, a loose morning gown; en negligee, ah'n neg'.lē.zha, in undress (Eng.-Fr. for "en négligé," ah'n na'.glē.zha', in domestic or slouch dress).

Latin neglectus, negligens, gen. negligentis, negligentia, v. negligere, supine neglectum (i.e., ne [non] lego, not to choose).

Negotiate (not negociate), ně.gō.shě.ate, to trade, to bargain, to transact business; negotiāt-ed (R. xxxvi.), nego'tiāt-ing.

Negotiator, fem. negotiatress, ně.gō.shě.ā.trēs.

Negotiatory, ně.gō.shě.ā.t'ry, of a business character.

Negotiable, ně.gō.shě.ā.b'l, current in the money market.

Negotiability, ně.gō.shě.ā.bil'ī.ty, transferability.

Negotiation, ně.gō.shě.ā'shūn, business transaction.

Latin negōtiatio, negōtiator, negōtiatrix, negōtiātorius, v. negōtiari, negōtium, business. (In French spelt with a c.)

Negro, plu. negroes (Rule xlii.), fem. negress, plu. negresses, ně.gro, plu. ně.groze, fem. ně.grěs, plu. ně.grěs.ěz.

Sp. negro (negrillo, "a young negro," might be introduced); Lat. nġger.

Negus, ně.gūs, a mixture of wine and hot water spiced, &c.

A favourite drink of Col. Negus, in Queen Anne's reign. (See Grog.)

Neigh, nay, to whinny. Nay, no. Nee, nay, by birth. neighed, nayd; neigh'-ing, nay'.ing.

Old Eng. hnæg[an], hnægung, a neighing Latin hinnio, to neigh.

(It will be seen that neigh and whinny are varieties of the same word.)

Neighbour, nay'.b'r, one who lives close by, to live near; neighbour'd, nay'.b'rd; neighbour-ing, nay'.b'ring; neighbourhood (-hood, "condition" of locality). Neigh'-bour-ly, neigh'bourli-ness (Rule xi.)

Old English neagebūr or neðhbūr, i.e., neðh būr, a near dwelling.

(The o is introduced to compensate for the lost accent. The spelling of the first syl. is very much to be deplored. Why not neahbur?)

Neither, nee'.rġhěr, neg. of Either, ě.rġhěr. Nether, něrk'.er (q.v.)

Either and Neither are used in two ways:

- (1) When they head two or more co-ordinates, in which case or in one case, and nor in the other, must stand before the last of the terms: as Either John or James. Either John, Thomas, or James.

Neither John nor James. Neither John, Thomas, nor James.

- (2) When they stand without or, nor, they can refer to only two terms: as

Will you have tea or coffee? Neither (or) Either.

Neither of the Evangelists [Mark and Luke] was an Apostle.

Both may excite our wonder, but neither is entitled to our respect.

- (3) The verb or pronoun in regimen with either or neither must be singular not plural.

Errors of Speech.—

Of the few chairs .. neither of them was fit for use [none of them].

Nadab and Abihu .. took either of them his censor [each] (Lev. x. 1)

And two thieves with him, on either [each] side one (John xix. 18).

So parted they as either's way them [him] led (Shakespeare).

Injustice springs from only three causes. . . . neither [not one] of these causes can be found in a being all-wise, all-powerful, and all-good.

Neither of them thirst [thirsts] for Edward's blood (Marlow).

Thersites' body is as good as Ajax',

And neither are [is] alive (Cymb. iv. 2).

"Neither," Old English nāthor, ne, neg., ne-athor, not either.

"Nether" (lower), Old English, nithor, lower, comp. of nither.

Nem. con., něm kōn, abbreviation of the Latin nemine contradicente (něm'.i.ně kōn'.trā-di.sěn'.i.ě), unanimously.

Nemean, něm'.ě.ān, adj. of Něm'ča, a valley in Ar'gōlis of ancient Greece. Nemean lion, Nemean games.

As hardy as the Nemean lion's nerve (Ham. i. 4).

Prōdigia, ēt vāstūm, Nēmēæ sūb rūpē lēōnēm (Æn. viii. 295).

Nemesis, něm'.ě.sīs, retribution. (Greek nēmēsīs, vengeance.)

Nemesis was the goddess of retribution (v. nemō, to allot).

- Neó- (Greek prefix), new, fresh, young, recent. (Greek nēōs.)
Neology, ne.ōl'.ō.gy, rationalism, theology subjected to reason rather than faith; neologic, nē'.ō.lōdg''.īk; neological, nē'.ō.lōdg''.ī.kāl; neolog'ical-ly; neologist, ne.ōl'.ō.djīst. Neologise, ne.ōl'.ō.djīze; neol'ogised (4 syl.), neol'ogis-ing. Neol'ogism, ne.ōl'.ō.djīzm.
 Greek neō- [neos] lōgōs, new interpretation.
Ne'o-phyte, -fīte, a new convert, a proselyte.
 Greek nēophytōs (nēos phūtōn, a new plant).
Ne'o-teric, -tēr'rik, one of modern times, recent.
 Greek nēōtērīkōs, recent (nēōs, new, nēōtērōs, comp.)
Ne'o-zoic (not -zoik), -zō'īk. The whole geological period of organised life is divided into three groups: the palæo-zoic [pāl'.ē.o-zō'īk], meso-zoic, and neo-zoic. The palæo-zoic or archaic group begins with the Cam'brian period, the meso-zoic with the Trias, and the neo-zoic with the Tertiary rocks.
 Greek nēo- [nēōs] zōon, recent or modern animal-life.
Nepenthe, ne.pen'.rhe, a magic drug supposed to produce oblivion of grief. Nepenthes, ne.pen'.rhēz, the pitcher-plant.
 Greek nē-pēnthēs, freedom from sorrow, assuaging grief.
Nephew, fem. niece, nēv'vu, neece, son and daughter of a brother or sister. (Old Eng. nefa, nephew (nefe, niece); Fr. nièce.)
Ne plus ul'tra (Latin), nothing superior, superlative.
Nepotism, nēp'.ō.tīzm, state patronage handed over to relations.
 French nepotisme (Latin nepos, a nephew); Ital. nepotismo, church patronage unduly bestowed by popes on their nephews.
Neptune, nēp'tchune, the classic sea-god; neptunian, nēp.tū'.nī.ăn (not nēp.tchū-nī.ăn), adj. of Neptune;
Neptu'nian rocks, the stratified rocks or those which have been deposited in layers by the action of water.
Neptunian theory, the theory which attributes all the geologic "rocks" to the action and agency of water.
The Pluto'nian theory attributes them to the action and agency of fire or heat.
Neptunist, nēp'.tū.nīst, an advocate of the neptunian theory.
Plu'tonist, an advocate of the Plutonian theory.
Nereid, nē.rē.īd (not nē.rīd), a sea-nymph; nereites, nē.rē.ītes, fossil tracks of sea-worms (-ite denotes a fossil).
Nerita, ne.rī'.tah, a genus of univalvular shell-fish;
Nerit, nē.rīt, one of the nerita.
 Greek nēreis, gen. nēreidos, a nereid (daughter of Nereus, 2 syl.)
Nerve (1 syl.), a fibrous cord, an organ of sensation, to give vigour to; nerved (1 syl.), nerv'-ing (R. xix.), nerve-less.

Nervine, ner'vîn, a medicine to act on the nerves.

Nervous, ner'vûs, relating to the nerves, vigorous, oversensitive; nervous-ness, nervous-ly.

Nervure, ner'vûre, the vein of a leaf, nerve or muscle of an insect's wing. Nervation, ner.vay'shûn.

Nervous system, -sîs'têm. Nervous tem'perament.

Neural, nû'ral, pertaining to the nerves. (See Neural.)

Latin nervinus, nervôsus, nervus; Greek neuron, a nerve.

-ness (a native postfix), added to abstract nouns. Of the 1337 words with this termination about half a dozen are not abstract words: viz., fastness, harness, likeness (a picture), madness, witness, wilderness, and the fem. nouns lion-ess, govern-ess, marchion-ess, &c. (which end in -ess preceded by -n). Of the rest only about 25 have a plural, and these plurals signify repetitions:

The most common are illness-es, kindness-es, sickness-es, weakness-es. The others are: coarseness-es, craftiness-es, crudeness-es, faintness-es, fondness-es, forgiveness-es, giddiness-es, grossness-es, lewdness-es, littleness-es, obscenity-es, politeness-es, profaneness-es, quaintness-es, rudeness-es, sadness-es, waywardness-es, wildness-es, vileness-es, leaving about 1300 without a plural.

Ness, a headland, a cape, often used as a postfix: as Bowness, Shoebury-ness, Fife-ness. (Old English næs or nesse.)

Nest (not neest), a bird's seat for incubation; nest'-ed, recovered from the feebleness and slime of hatching.

Nest-egg, an egg left in a nest to induce a hen to return to it, something laid by as the beginning of a "saving."

Nestle, nës'l, to fondle, to cuddle; nestling, nës'ling, a young bird still in its nest-state, cuddling; nestled, nës'ld.

O. Eng. nestl, v. nestl[ian], to nestle, nestling, nisl[ian], to build a nest.

Net, a texture made with meshes, clear of all deductions (as net weight), to catch in a net, to spread a net over, to clear in trade as a profit; nett'-ed (R. xxxvi.), nett'-ing (R. i.), nett'-y, net-work.

Net proceeds, -pro'seeds, the sum cleared after every charge is paid. Net-weight, -wait, the exact weight after all deductions for casks, refuse, waste, &c. have been made. Net sum. Net profit, &c. Gross weight, gross sum, gross profits, gross proceeds, &c., before the proper deductions have been made.

"Net" (of thread, &c.), Old Eng. net or nett, net-râpas, rope-net.

"Net" (not gross), Ital. netto; Fr. net; our neat; Lat. nitidus.

Nether, nër'h'er, lower. Neither, nee'rhër, not either.

Neth'ermost; nether lip, the lower lip.

"Nether," Old Eng. nither, (comp.) nithor, niothemest or nithemest.

"Neither," Old English nithor or nawthor.

- Nethinim, něth' .i.nim, servants employed in the Jewish temple. The Gibeonites were condemned to this service by Joshua (Josh. ix. 27). The word means given to God.
- Nettle, nět'.t'l, a plant, to irritate; nettled, net.t'ld; nett'ling; nettle-rash, a skin eruption. Dead-nettle, ded net'.t'l, a nettle that does not sting. (O. E. neteale, nettle or nytle.)
- Neur- (before vowels), neuro-, nu'ro- (before conson.), Greek prefix, nerve. (Neuron, a nerve.)
- Neural, nū'.rāl, pertaining to the nerves or nervous system.
- Neurine, nū'.rīn, nervous substance or matter.
- Neur-algia, nū.rāl'.dji.ah, pain of a nerve; neuralgic, nū.rāl'.djik. (Greek neuron algos, nerve pain.)
- Neuro-logy, nū.rōl'.ō.dji, a scientific description of the nerves; neurological, nū'.rō.lōdg''.i.kāl; neuro'ogist. Greek neuro- [neuron] logos, a treatise on the nerves.
- Neuro-pathy, nū.rōp'.āth.y, affections of the nervous system. Greek neuro- [neuron] pathos, nerve suffering.
- Neuro-ptera, nū.rōp'.tē.rah, an order of insects; neuropter, nū.rōp'.ter, one of the neuroptera; neuropteran, nū.rōp'.tē.rān, same as neuropter; neuropteral, nū.rōp'.tē.rāl; neurop'terous, nū.rōp'.tē.rūs, adj. of neuroptera, &c. Greek neuro- [neuron] pteron, nerve wing, so called from the finely-reticulated nervures of their wings.
- Neuro-pteris, nū.rōp'.tē.ris, a genus of fossil ferns. Greek neuro- [neuron] pteris, nerve fern.
- Neurosis, nū.rō'.sis, nervous affection acting on the organs of sense and motion without any ostensible disease. Greek neuron, a nerve (-ōsis denotes a disease or affection of).
- Neuro-skeleton, nū'.ro skēl'.ē.tōn, the deep-seated bones of the vertebral skeleton connected with the nervous axis. Greek neuro- [neuron] skēlēōs, nerve skeleton.
- Neurotic, nū.rōt'.ik, seated in the nerves, a medicine for disease of the nerves. (Greek neurōtikōs.)
- Neuro-tomy, nū.rōt'.ō.my, dissection of a nerve; neuro-tomical, nū'.ro.tōm''.i.kāl; neurot'omist. Greek neuro- [neuron] tōmē, nerve cut or dissection.
- Nerve (1 syl.); nervous, ner'.vūs; nervous-ness. (v. Nerve.)
- Neuter, nū'.ter, taking no part with disputants, indifferent, an intransitive [verb]; without sex (like a working bee), without stamen or pistil; neutral, nū'.trāl; neu'tral-ly.
- Neutrality, nū.trāl'.i.ty. Neutralise (R. xxxi.), nū'.trāl.ize, to render void, to counteract; neu'tralised (3 syl.), neu'tralis-ing (R. xix.), neu'tralis-er. Neutralisation, nū'.trāl'.i.zay''.shūn. Neutral tint, a grey pigment composed of blue, red, and yellow in certain proportions. Latin neuter, neither, neutalis; French neutralisation.

Neuvaines, nū'vainz, prayers of the same kind offered up for nine successive days. (French neuvaine, neuf, nine.)

Never, nēv'er [n-ever], "not ever," at no time, not at all.

Never-the-less, notwithstanding. (Old Eng. nō thý leas.)

The following Scriptural uses of never are not to be imitated:

- (1) Ask me never so much dowry.... I will give [it] (Gen. xxxiv. 12).'
- (2) [It] refuseth to hear the voice of the charmer, charm he never so wisely (Ps. lviii. 5, Pray. Bk. V.), that is, however wisely he charms.
- (3) He answered him to never a word (Matt. xxvii. 14).

Here to is the obsolete adverb meaning over-and-above, altogether. Thus, Tyndale says, "If the podesch be burned to [wholly]...." Mercutio's icy hand had alto frozen mine (Rom. & Jul., 1562), i.e., altogether. The phrase "never a word" is a mistranslation of οὐδὲ ἓν ῥῆμα, where οὐδὲ ἓν is simply οὐδ-ἓν resolved, (οὐδ-εἰς [οὐδὲ εἰς] οὐδε-μία, οὐδ-ἓν [οὐδὲ ἓν] not one [single] word. The whole sentence is "He answered [to] him over-and-above not one [single] word." ἀπεκρίθη αὐτῷ πρὸς οὐδὲ ἓν ῥῆμα.

Old Eng. nafre, i.e. n-afre or ne-afer. "Nevertheless," nō thý leas.

New. Knew. Gnu. News. Gnus. Noose. Noes. Nose.

New, nū, recent; new'-ish (-ish added to adj. is dim., added to nouns it means "like"); new'-er, new'-est, new'-ly, new'-ness. Renew, to make new; &c.

Knew, nū, did know. (Old Eng. cnāw[an], past cneōw.)

Gnu, nū, plu. Gnus, nūze, South African ox. (S. African.)

News, nūze, intelligence, tidings; news-boy; news-man, plu. news-men; news-monger, a tittle-tattle; news-agent, news-seller, news-vendor; news-galley, a metallic frame used by printers for containing columns in type for proofs in slips. News-paper. News-room, a room where newspapers are provided for subscribers.

The Daily News, a newspaper; 2, 3... Daily News(not newses).

Noose, noo's, a running knot. (Latin nōdus, a knot.)

Nose, noze, a feature of the face. (Old Eng. nosu or nasu.)

Noes, those who vote no to a question. (Old Eng. no, ná.)

News, singular or plural?

When Shakespeare lived, News was used indifferently with a singular or plural construction: thus

SING. The news which is called true (Winter's Tale v. 2).

This news hath made thee a most ugly man (Kg. John iii. 1).

This news, I think, hath turned your weapons' edge (2 Hen. VI. ii. 1).

PLU. You breathe these dreadful news in [a] dead.... ear (Kg. John v. 7).

These news... have in some measure made me well (2 Hen. VI. i. 1).

Ten days ago I drowned these news in tears (3 Hen. VI. ii. 1).

¶ Modern custom gives it only a singular construction.

Old Eng. neowe or niwe, v. niwian, past niwode, past part. niwod, niwlic, newly, niwnes, newness, niwe-cuma, a new-comer.

Newt, nūte, an eft or efet. (O. E. efete, sim. "ant" from amete.)

Newtonian system, nū.tō'.nū.ăn sīs'.tēm, the Coper'nican system developed by Sir Isaac Newton.

Newtonian philosophy, -fī.lōs'.ō.fy, the laws, &c., laid down by Sir Isaac Newton in explanation of celestial phenomena. A Newto'nian, one who accepts the Newtonian system and believes in it.

Next. Near, (comp.) near'-er, (super.) near'-est or next.

Old Eng. neah, comp. neah-ra or nyr, super. neah-st, nehst or necst.

Nexus, nex'-us, a tie, an annexation. (Latin nexus, v. nector.)

Nib, the point of a pen; nibbed (R. i.), nib'd. (Old Eng. nib.)

Nibble, nib'b'l, a little bite, to gnaw; nibbled, nib'b'ld; nib'bling, nibbling-ly; nibbler, nib'bler.

German knarpeln, to crunch. Norse knibe, to nip, &c.

Nibelungen lied, nib'.ël.ün''.gën leed, the lay of the nibelungen hoard. This hoard was taken from the Nibelungs by Siegfried (Sege-freed), and given to his wife; the second part of the epic is called the Nibelungen nôt.

Nice (1 syl.), pleasant, squeamish. Niece, neece (a relative).

Nice-ly, comme il faut; nice'-ness, minute exactness, &c.

Nicety, plu. niceties, nī'sī.tiz, a dainty food, a minute distinction. More nice than wise, more concerned to observe minutiae than practically wise.

Old Eng. hnesc, tender, delicate, hnesclice, nicely, hnescnys, delicacy.

Nicene Creed, nī.seen'..., the summary of religious doctrines drawn up by the council held at Nice in A.D. 325.

Niche, nitch, a recess in a wall [for a statue, &c.]; niched, nitch'd, having a niche. (French niche; Italian nicchia.)

Nick, a notch, a score, the exact moment, the devil, to cut a nick, to hit the exact moment; nicked, nikt; nick'-ing.

Nick-nack, plu. nick-nacks, small articles of vertu.

Nick of time, the exact moment required.

"Nick" (a notch), Ital. nicchia; Fr. niche (or) Dan. snit, a cut.

"Nick" (the devil), in Scandinavian myth. a kelpie or water-wraith.

Nickel, nik'.ël, a white metal; nickel-ic, nik'.ël.ik.

Nickeline, nik'.ël.ën, native arsenate of nickel.

Nickel [silver], German silver made of nickel and tin.

German nickel, a contraction of kupfern-nickel, strumpet copper, so called by German miners, who thought it base copper-ore.

Nickname, nik'.name, a sobriquet, to give one a sobriquet; nicknamed (2 syl.), nicknām-ing (R. xix.), nicknām-er.

Either an eke name, an additional name; an ag-nomen, or French nom de nique, a name of derision.

Nicotin, nik'.ō.tin. Nicotian-in, nī.kō'.shē.än.n.

Nicotin, a poisonous liquid extracted from tobacco;

Nicotianin, the volatile oil of tobacco.

Nicotiana, nī.kō'.shē.ah''.nah, a genus of plants of which the tobacco plant is the type. Nicotian, nī.kō'.shē.än.

So named from Jean Nicot, lord of Villemain, who introduced the plant into France, in 1560, while he was ambassador at Lisbon.

Nictate, nĭk'tate. Nictitate, nĭk'ti.tate.

Nictate, to wink; nĭctāt'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), nĭctāt'-ing; nictation, nĭk.tay'.shŭn. (Latin nictāre, to wink.)

Nictitate, to sweep the lid over the eye in order to clean it; nĭc'titāt-ed, nĭc'titāt-ing (Rule xix.); nictita'tion, -shŭn, a sweeping of the eye, a nervous flickering of the eye-lid.

Nictitāting membrane, a membrane which birds can draw over their eyes to protect them from injury in flying.

Nidification, nĭd'fĭ.kay''.shŭn, the act of building a nest.

Latin nidificatio, v. nidificāre (nĭdus, a nest).

Nidus, nĭ'dŭs, the place where parasites, worms, insects, &c. lay their eggs and breed. (Latin nĭdus, a nest.)

Niece, fem. of nephew, neece, nĕv'.vu. Nice (1 syl.), agreeable.

Niece, nephew, daughter and son of a brother or sister.

Fr. nĕce; O. E. nefa, a nephew, nefe, a niece. "Nice," O. E. lnesc.

Niggard, a sordid person; niggard-ly, nig'gardli-ness (R. xi.)

Welsh nig, straitened, v. nigiaw, nigiad. The termination -ard occurs in dot-ard, slugg-ard, lubb-ard, drunk-ard, dull-ard, poll-ard, &c., and means one of a species or kind.

Nigger, nig'.er, a negro. (Latin nĭger, black.)

Nigh, nĭ, (comp.) nigh'-er, (super.) nigh-est or next.

Old English nĭch or nĭh, comp. —, super. nĭhst.

This is a variety of neah, near. Similarly "high" from heah.

Night, nĭte, from sunset to sunrise. Knight, nĭte, a deg. of rank.

Night-ward; night-cap, a cap to wear in bed, a tumbler of hot grog at bed-time; night-dress, night-gown, night-shirt; night-fall, evening; night-fly, plu. -flies, flize, a moth that flies at night; night-glass, a telescope for night use; night-hawk; night-jar, the goat-sucker; night-man, plu. -men, one who empties cess-pools, &c. at night-time; night-ra'ven; night-season, -see'.zŏn; night-soil, the contents of cess-pools, &c., cleared at night; night-time; night-vision, -vĭzh'.un, a dream; night-walker, -wawk'.er, a somnambulist; night-watch, the guard set at night; night-watch'ing; night-work.

In the night, during the night, unexpectedly.

By-night, during the night, in the night-time.

To-night, this very night. A-nights, adv., nightly.

Nightshade (2 syl.), a plant, called deadly because it was used at one time to blacken the eyes in mourning.

Nightingale (3 syl.), a bird that sings by night.

Nightmare, nĭte'mare, an incubus. (Old Eng. nĭht mære.)

"Night," Old English nĭht, nĭhtlĕce, nightly, to-nĭhte, to-night, nĭht-hræfen, night-raven, nĭhtgale, nightingale, nĭht-scad, night-shade, nĭht waco, night watch, nĭht-weece, night-watching, nĭht-weorc, night-work. (It will be seen that the -g of night is interpolated.)

Nil (contraction of Latin nihil), a term in book-keeping meaning "cancelled," not to be counted-in, no effects, &c.

Nilly, in the phrase Willy-nilly, whether willing or not.

Old English will[an], n-ill[an] or nyll[an], i.e. ne-will[an].

Nilometer, nī.lōm'.ē.ter, an instrument for ascertaining the height of the periodical rising of the Nile; Nilōtic, adj.

Nimble, nīm'.b'l, brisk, expert, active; nimble-ness, nīm'bly, nimble-footed; nimble-fingered, -fīng gerd. (O.E. numol.)

Nimbus. Aureola. Glory. Halo.

Nimbus, nīm'.būs, a band of light painted by Christian artists round the top of the head, or a series of rays round the head and face of consecrated persons.

Aureola, au'.rē.ō.lah (not au.ree'.ō.lah, nor yet au.rē.ō'.lah), a mantle of rays encompassing the body of saints, &c.

Glory, glōr'ry, the nimbus and aureola combined, or more correctly a back-ground of clouds symbolising the Trinity. Sometimes the heavens are opened and the three persons of the Trinity are shown encompassed with angels.

Halo, hā'.lo, a luminous circle round the sun or moon.

Nimbus clouds, rain and storm clouds.

"Nimbus," Latin nimbus, a storm, a head-dress, a "nimbus."

"Aureola," Latin aurēōla, a golden nimbus, aurēōlus, golden.

"Glory," Lat. gloria. "Halo," Lat. hālo, a circle round the sun, &c.

Nincompoop, nīn'.kōm.poop, a poor creature almost an idiot.

A corruption of the Latin non compos [mentis], not of sound mind.

Nine (1 syl.), one less than ten; ninth (an ordinal); nine-teen', nine added to ten; nine-teenth (an ordinal); nine'-ty, nine multiplied by ten; ninetyeth (an ordinal); ninth-ly, nine-fold; nine-holes, a game; nine-pins, a game. The sacred Nine, the Muses.

Old English nigon, 9; nigontye, 19; nigotha, 9th; nigonteothe, 19th.

Ninny, nīn'.ny, a simpleton. (Spanish niño, Latin nānus.)

Nino means one no better than a child, nānus, a dwarf, hence

"Ninny" means a grown-up person with the mind of a child;

"Nincompoop" means one "not in his right senses;" "Idiot," one of imbecile mind. (Degrees of mental weakness.)

Niobe, nē'.ō.bē, a woman who wept herself into stone at the loss of her fourteen children; niobium, ne.ō'.bī.um, a metal.

Nip, a pinch, to pinch; nipped, nīpt; nipp'-ing (R. i.).

Nipp'-er, one who nips. Nippers, nīp'.perz, pincers.

(Articles made in pairs have no sing. when the two parts are joined together. If a pair consists of two perfect articles, each part can be referred to in the singular number: as a glove (gloves), a shoe (shoes); but nippers, pincers, tongs, nutcrackers, &c., have no sing. Dutch knippen, to nip, to pinch; Danish knibe, a nip, to nip.

Nipple, nīp'.p'l, a teat, part of the lock of a gun; nippled (2 syl.), nippy. (Old English nypell.)

Nisan, nī'.zan, in the Hebrew calendar, the first month of the year, called Abib before the captivity—about Easter.

Nisi prius, nī'.sī pri'.ūs, a law term applied to trials of local or county courts. The words mean unless before.

The writ runs that the cause shall be tried at the Westminster court, unless the circuit judges have previously disposed of it. "Nisi prius justiciarii domini regis ad assisas capiendas venerint." The hypothesis is, of course, a mere legal fiction.

Nit, the egg of a louse. Knit, nīt, to weave together.

Nitt'-y, nitt'i-ness. (Old English hnitu or hnit.)

"Knit," Old English cnytt[an], past cnytte, past part. ge-cnytt.

Nitre, nī'.tr, saltpetre, nitrate of potash; nitriary, nī'.trī.ǎ.ry, an artificial bed where nitre is formed.

Nitric acid, nī'.trik ǎs'sid, five parts oxygen to one hydrogen. (-ic, in chemistry, denotes an acid which contains the largest possible quantity of oxygen.)

Nitrous acid, nī'.trūs ǎs'sid, a similar combination to nitric acid but with less oxygen.

(-ous, in chemistry, denotes an acid with less oxygen than -ic.)

Nitrate, nī'.trate, a salt formed by the combination of nitric acid with a base, as nitrate of soda.

(-ate, in chemistry, denotes a salt from an acid in -ic.)

Nitrite, nī'.trite, a salt formed by the combination of nitrous acid with a base.

(-ite, in chemistry, denotes a salt from an acid in -ous.)

Nitrated, nī'.tra.ted, combined with nitre.

Nitriferous, nī.trīf'.ĕ.rūs, producing nitre. (Latin fero.)

Nitrify, nī'.trī.fy, to convert into nitre; nitrifies, nī'.trī.fize; nitrified, nī.trī.fide; nitrify-ing; nitrification, -kay''shūn.

Latin nitrum-ficio, to make nitre. In compounds, facio is ficio.

Nitrate of silver, silver dissolved in nitric acid.

Nitrate of soda, a compound of nitric acid and soda.

Nitrous oxide, nī'.trūs ox'.ide, laughing gas.

Nitro-, nī'.tro- (Latin nitrum, Greek nitron, prefix), formed by nitric acid, combined with nitric acid.

Nitro-benzole, -bĕn.zōle', artificial oil of bitter almonds.

Nitro-calcite, -kāl'site, nitrate of lime. (Latin calx.)

Nitro-glycerine, -glīs'sĕ.reen, a blasting oil, prepared by the action of nitric [or sulphuric] acid on glycerine.

Nitrogen, nī'.trō.djĕn, an elemental gas the basis of nitric acid. Nitrogenise, nī.trōdg'.ĕ.nize; nitrog'enised (4 syl.), nitrog'enis-ing (Rule xix.)

Nitrogenous, nī.trōdg'.ĕ.nūs, containing nitrogen.

"Nitrogen" was called at one time azote (āz'.ōte).

- Nitrometer, nī.trōm'.ē.ter, an instrument for testing the quality and value of nitre.
 Greek nītron; Latin nitrum; French nitre, a mineral alkali.
- Niveous (not nivious, Rule lxvi.), nīv'.ē.ūs, snowy, like snow.
 Latin nivēus (nīz, gen. nivis, snow; Greek nīphas, a snow-flake).
- Nizam, nī.zām', a native Ind. prince. Nī'san, a Hebrew month.
- No, not so, not any. Know, nōw (to rhyme with grow), verb.
- Noes. Nose. Knows. Noose. Gnus. News.
 Noes, nōze, those who vote "no." The noes have it, those who vote "no" are the more numerous.
- Nose, nōze, a feature of the face. (Old Eng. nasu or nosu.)
 Knows, nowz (to rhyme with grows), understands.
 Old English cndw[an], past cneōw, past part. cntwen.
- Noose, noo'z, a running knot. (Latin nōdus, a knot.)
- Gnus, nūze, a South African animal of the ox kind.
- News, nūze, tidings. (Old English neowe or nīwe, new.)
- No-where, -ware, in no place. (O. E. nā hwær or -hwār.)
- No-whit, -wit, not in the least. (Old English nā hwit.)
- No-whither, -with'er, to no place. (Old Eng. nā hwæthre.)
- No, nay. Aye, yea, yes.
 "No," "Yes," ought to be the answers of negative questions;
 "Nay," "Yea," ought to be the answers of affirmative questions;
 but the distinction has been dropped, and "nay," "yea," are very rarely used.
 Old Eng. nā or nó; "Yea" is Old Eng. gea; "Nay" is ne-gea (n'ea);
 "Yes" is Old Eng. gese, clearly. "Aye" is another form of gea.
- Noachian, nō.ā'.kī.ŷn, pertaining to Noah, as the Noachian flood.
- Nōb, the head. Snōb, a vulgar pretender. Knob, nōb.
 Nōb, a man of rank, and nōbb'-y, generous, grandiose, are not yet elevated from familiar slang (cont. of noble).
- Snob is nob with s- privative.
 Similarly, "scape" is s-capi, not to be taken, "sober" is s-ebrius, not tipsy. We have in Latin se-grego, se-paro, se-cerno, se-fungo, &c.
 So in Italian, calzare (to put on your shoes), s-calzare (to take them off); fornito, s-fornito; flotta, s-flottare, &c.
- Knob, nōb, a lump. (Old English cneap; German knopf.)
 "Nop," German knöbel, a nob, knopf, a knob; Danish knop, a nop.
- Noble, nō'.b'l, a nobleman, an ancient gold coin = 6s. 8d., illustrious, admirable; (comp.) nobler, nō'.bler; noblest, nō'.blēst; nobly, nō'.bly; nōble-man, plu. -men.
- Noble-ness, nō'.b'l-ness. Noblesse (Fr.), nō.blēs', the nobility.
 Noblesse oblige, -ō.bleej', noble birth demands noble conduct and principles.
- Nobility, nō.blī'.i.ty (a collective noun), titled families, noble birth, high-mindedness, excellence;

Noble metals, met'ls, those which can be separated from oxygen by heat only: as gold, silver, plat'inum, &c.

Enno'ble, to make noble; ennō'bled (3 syl.), ennō'bling.

Lat. nobilis, nōbilitas, v. nōbilitāre, to ennoble; Old Eng. nubelnes.

Nobody, plu. nobodies, no' bōd.lz, no one. (O. E. nā or nō bodig.)

Nocturnal, nōk.tūr'.nāl, nightly, during the night; nocturnal-ly.

Nocturn, nōk.turn, a midnight service in the Latin church.

Noctograph, nōk'.tō.grāf, a writing-frame for the blind, or for those who want to write in the dark.

A wretched hybrid meant for nūctograph, Gk. nukto-grapho, I write by night. Anyhow, nocto- is neither Greek nor Latin. The Latin prefix is nocti- and the Greek prefix nūcto-.

Lat. nocturnus (nox, gen. noctis, Gk. nuktos, prefix nocti-, nucto-).

Nōd. Bōw (to rhyme with nōw).

Nōd, a quick and slight inclination of the head in recognition of an equal.

Bōw, a slow formal inclination of the head and back in recognition of respect. Out of doors, a bow to ladies and superiors (recognized as friends) is performed by taking off the hat, but by servants, workmen, soldiers, &c., by touching the hat or cap.

Nōd, to give a nod, to doze; nodd'-ed (R. xxxvi.), nodd'-ing (R. i.), nodd'ing-ly, nodd'-er. (Lat. nūto, Gk. neutō.)

Noddle, nōd.d'l, the head (a pet expression, "the little nodder").

Noddy, nōd.dy, a simpleton, a sea-fowl noted for its silliness.

Neddy-noddy, a donkey. (Query Greek nōthēs, stupid.)

Nōde (1 syl.), the point where the orbits of two planets intersect each other, or where a planet intersects the ecliptic. (In Bot.) that part of a stem out of which the leaf grows; nodal, nō'.dāl. (Latin nōdus, a knot.)

Nodule, nōd'dūle, a little knot or irregular concretion: as the nodules of flint, &c.; nodular, nōd'dū.lar; nodduled, nōd'duled, having nodules (2 syl.); nodulous, nōd'dū.lūs.

Latin nōdulus (dim. of nōdus, a knot), nōdūlōsus.

Noes, nōze, those who vote "no" or against a measure. (See No.)

Noggen, Noggin, Nogging, nōg'n, nōg'in, nōg'ing.

Noggen, made of nogs or hemp, clumsy.

Noggin, an earthen mug bellied out towards the middle.

Nogging, the "stopping" (whether of brick or grout) between the panels of a house-wall made partly of wood. (If with brick it is called brick nogging).

Welsh nogio; to stop, nog, a stopping. Wooden bricks are nogs.

Noise, noyz, uproar, loud sounds; nois-y, noy'.zy; noisi-ly, noisi-ness (R. xi.), noise'-less, noiseless-ly, noiseless-ness.

It got noised abroad, it was rumoured, talked about.

French noise, a quarrel; the French for "noise" is bruit.

Noisome, noy'sŭm, injurious (-some, full of); noisome-ly, noisome-ness. (A hybrid, Norman noisife, Teutonic -some.)

Latin nŏcĕo, to hurt, nŏcĭvus, whence noisife (nois'-some).

Noli-me-tangere (Latin), nŏ'.lĭ me tǎn'jĕ.rĕ, "touch-me-not," plants of various sorts, as the squirting cucumber.

Nolle prosequi (Latin), nŏl'.le pro'sĕ.kwi (not prŏ.sĕ'.kwi), a notice from a plaintiff to stop proceedings in a suit.

Nomad or nomade, nŏm'.ăd, one who leads a wandering life; nomadic, no.măd'.ĭk; nomadism, nŏm'.ăd.ĭzm.

Nomadise, nŏm'.ăd.ĭze; nom'adised (3 syl.), nom'adis-ing.

Gk. nŏmas, gen. nŏmădŏs, roaming, v. nomeuŏ, to drive flocks afield.

Nomenclature, nŏ'.mĕn.klay''.tchŭr, the vocabulary of scientific terms; nomenclator, nŏ'.mĕn.klay''.tor.

Latin nŏmenclātor, nŏmenclātŭra; Greek ŏnŏma klĕŏ, I call names.

Nominal, nŏm'.ĭ.năl, not real, "vox et præterea nihil"; nom'inal-ly. Nom'inal-ism, the tenets of the Nominalists, which in the middle ages were opposed to the Re'alists.

The point in dispute was this: are abstract words the names of real existences, or merely words which require some real thing to be joined to them before they can be even thought about? For example: Is beauty a real thing or a mere word? The Nominalists maintained it to be nothing but a word, of varying meaning according to the object to which it is applied, as "beauty" of a nose, of a picture, of a face, of a star, &c., all quite different. The Realists maintained that "beauty" exists per se, and would exist even if we could form no idea of it.

Latin nŏmnĭālis (nŏmen, gen. nŏmnĭs, a name; Greek ŏnŏma).

Nominate, nŏm'.ĭ.nāte, to propose, to designate, to name; nom'ināt-ed (R. xxxi.), nom'ināting (R. xix.), nom'ināt-or (R. xxxvii.); nominee, nŏm'.ĭ.nĕ, one proposed or named for some office or vacant post. Nom'inal (q.v.)

Nomination, nŏm'.ĭ.nay''.shŭn; nom'inative-ly, -na.tĭv.ly.

Nominative case, nŏm'.ĭ.na.tĭv, the case which names the subject that the verb speaks about.

The Objective Case is that which reveals the object to which the verb leads. For example: I write books. "I" (the nominative case) is the subject to be spoken about, and "books" (the objective case) reveals what it is that "I" write.

Lat. nŏmnĭātio, nŏmnĭātivus, nŏmnĭātor, v. nŏmnĭāre, to nominate.

Nŏn- (Lat. prefix). Generally, but not always, united by a hyphen.

Nonage, nonchalance, nondescript, nonentity, nonparcill, nonplus, nonsense, and nonsuit are without a hyphen.

Nŏ'na- (Latin prefix), nine. In one example (nonillion) nŏn-.

No'na-genarian, -djĕ.nair''.rĭ.ăn, one who has passed his ninetieth birthday. (Lat. nŏnăgĕnārius, nŏnăgenĭ, ninety.)

No'na-gesimal, -djĕs'.ĭ.măl, the ninetieth [degree] or highest point of the ecliptic. (Latin nŏnagesĭmus, the ninetieth.)

Nona-gon, nŏn'.ă.gŏn, a plain figure with nine angles and nine sides. (A hybrid, -gon being Greek gŏnĭa, an angle.)

The Greek would be enneagon, en'.nĕ.ă.gŏn, nine angles.

Nones, nŏnz, in the Roman calendar the ninth day before the Ides (1 syl.) of the month. (Latin nŏnæ.)

Nonillion, the ninth power of a million. That is, one followed by fifty-four ciphers (non- [nono'] million).

A million is 1 followed by 6 ciphers, and $6 \times 9 = 54$ ciphers.

Nŏn- (Lat. prefix). Dis- (Gk. and Lat. prefix). Un- (native prefix).

Non- denotes failure in agents, but is simply privative where no agency is concerned.

Dis- denotes severance or active antagonism.

Un- denotes simply absence or being without.

In- is the Latin prefix equivalent to our un-.

Non-appear'ance, failure of putting in an expected appearance. Dis-appearance, withdrawing from view.

Non-appoint'ment, failure in receiving an expected appointment. Dis-appointment, frustration of hope.

"Non-appointment" refers to the office not obtained ;

"Dis-appointment" to the hope overthrown.

The non-appointment was a great dis-appointment.

Non-arri'val, failure of arriving as was expected.

Non-atten'dance, failure to attend as was expected ; non-attention. In-attention denotes a simple fact.

Non-bituminous, -bĭ.tŭ'.mĭ.nŭs, containing no bitu'men.

Non-chalance, no'[n].shă.la.unts, indifference ; non-chalant, no'[n].shă.lahn, supine, indifferent.

Non-cohesion, -kŏ.hĕ'.shŭn, absence of cohesion.

Non-commissioned officer, nŏn-kŏm.mĭsh'.ănd ŏf'.fĭ.ser, an officer below a commissioned officer.

In the army, any officer below an ensign.

In the navy, any officer below a lieutenant.

Non-committ'al (Rule iv.), not being pledged or committed.

Non-communion, -cŏm.mŭ'.nĭ.ŏn ; non-communion-ist, one who fails to come to the "Lord's supper."

Non-compli'ance, failure of expected compliance.

Non-condensing engine, a high-pressure engine.

Non-conduct'-or (Rule xxxvii.), a substance which does not conduct electricity, light, sound, heat, &c. ; non-conduct'-ing ; non-conduction, -kŏn.dŭk'.shŭn.

Non-conform'ist, one who does not conform to the church by law established ; non-conform'-ing ; non-confor'mity.

Non-contagious, -kŏn.tay'.djŭs, not communicated by touch ; non-conta'gious-ness, not of a contagious character.

Non-content', one who votes "No" in the House of Lords.

Dis-content, positive or active dissatisfaction.

Mal-content, a grumbler who shows his discontent by overt acts. (Latin māle contentus.)

Non-contributor, one who is not a contributor.

Non-deliv'ery, failure of an expected delivery.

Non-descript', abnormal, not easily described.

Non-devel'opment, failure of development.

Non-discovery, -dis.kūv'.ĕ.ry, failure of finding out.

Non-elas'tic, not possessed of elasticity.

Non-elect', not one of the elect; non-election, -e.lĕk'.shŭn, failure of obtaining an election.

Non-electric, -e.lĕk'.trĭk, a substance not an electric.

An electric can be made to exhibit electricity, but not to conduct it.

A non-electric can be made to conduct electricity, but not to exhibit it.

Non-entity, plu. non-entities, -en'.tĭ.tĭz, what has no existence, one of no influence.

Non-en'try, failure of making a due and proper entry.

Non-episcopal, -e.pĭs'.ko.pāl, not under the rule of a bishop. (Latin episcopus, a bishop.)

Non-essential, -ĕs.sĕn'.shāl, not indispensable.

Non-execution, -ex'.ĕ.kŭ'.shŭn, failure of performance.

Non-exis'tence, having no existence; non-exis'tent.

Non-fulfil'ment, failure of an expected fulfilment.

Non-ju'ror, one who refused to take the oath of allegiance to the successor of James II.; non-ju'ring.

Non-metal'lic, destitute of metallic properties.

Non-naturals, -năt'tchŭ.rălz, (in Med.) denotes all abnormal states of body or function.

Non-obedience, -o.bĕ'.dĭ.ence (not -o.bĕ'.djence), failure in expected obedience.

Non-obs'er'vance, failure of expected observance.

Non-pareil, -pă.rĕŭ, without an equal, an apple, a type.

Non-pay'ment, failure of expected payment.

Non-perfor'mance, failure of doing something expected.

Non-plus, to puzzle, to confound with perplexity; nonplussed, non'.plŭst; non'pluss-ing. ("Plus" is treated as a word of one syllable, Rule i.)

Non-production, -pro.dŭk'.shŭn, failure of producing something expected; non-productive-ness.

Non-professional, not belonging to the profession, not in a professional capacity: as a non-professional visit from a medical adviser. Un-professional, not according to the etiquette or practice of the profession.

Non-proficient, -pro.fish'.ent, not up to the mark of proficiency; non-proficiency, nŏn-pro.fish'en.sy.

Non-res'ident, one not residing where his property lies; non-res'idence, absenteeism.

Non-resis'tance, passive obedience; non-resis'tant, one who thinks it wrong to resist a law however much he disapproves of it; non-resist-ing, -re.zist'ing; -resis'tive.

Non-sense, not sense, absurdity; nonsensical, non.sĕn'.sĭ.kăl; nonsensical-ly, nonsensical-ness.

Non-sequitur, -sĕk'kwĭ.tur (in Log.), something that does not follow as a logical sequence from the premises stated.

As "matter is inert, therefore it could not be the author of the material world." This does not follow from the statement "matter is inert," although it may be true.

Non-sexual, -sĕx'.ŭ.ăl, having no sexual organs.

Non-sol'vent, not able to pay his debts; in-solvent, a declared bankrupt; non-sol'vency, insolvency.

Non-submission, -sŭb.mĭsh'ăn, failure of due submission; non-submissive, nŏn-sŭb.mĭs'sĭv.

Non-suit, -sŭte, the abandonment of a law-suit by the plaintiff (when actually in court) on the discovery of some error or omission; to determine that the plaintiff shall drop his suit; non-suit-ed, adjudged to have dropped his suit; non-suit-ing, adjudging that the plaintiff has abandoned his suit.

Nono, nun, not one. Nun, a female religious recluse.

"None," Old Eng. nan (n-an, n-one). "Nun," Old Eng. nunne.

Nones, nŏnz, in the Rom. caland. 9 days before the Ides (nŏnæ).

None-such, nŭn.sŭtch, an apple (without a peer).

Nonillion, nŏ.nĭl'.yŭn, a million raised to the ninth power.

It consists of 1 followed by 54 ciphers ($6 \times 9 = 54$).

Noodle, noo'.d'l, a dunce. Noddle, nŏd'.d'l, the head.

Welsh nwydol, whimsical, nwydo, a whim, nwydwyllt, harebrained.

"Noddle," dim. of nod, the "little thing that nods."

Nook (to rhyme with book not noo'k), a corner, a small recess.

oo before k is shorter than when a labial or liquid follows: Thus book (not boo'k), brook, cook, crook, hook, look, nook, rook, shook, took; but foo'l (long), roo'n, noo'n, poo'r, loo'p, &c.

Noon, noo'n, mid-day; noon-day, noon-tide; high-noon, exact mid-day; fore-noon, the morning up to noon; after-noon, between noon and sun-set. (O. Eng. nŏn, nŏn-tĭd.)

Noose. News. Gnu. Noes. Nose. Knows.

Noose, noo'z, a running knot, to catch in a noose, to tie a noose; noosed (1 syl.), noos'-ing, R. xix. (Latin nōdus.)

News, nūze, tidings. (Old English neowe or niwe, new.)

Gnu, nūze, plu. of gnu, a sort of ox, South Africa.

Noes, nōze, those who vote "no" to a measure. (O.E. ná.)

Nose, nōze, a feature of the face. (Old Eng. nosu or nasu.)

Knows, nōwz (to rhyme with grows), doth know.

Old English cnāw[an], past cnēow, past part. cnāwen.

Nor, correlative of neither or not: as neither James nor John.

It was not James who did it nor [yet] John. Gnaw, nūr, to bite, to nibble. ("Nor" is n-or, as "none" is n-one.)

"Gnaw," Old Eng. gnag[an], past gnōh, past part. gnagen.

Normal, nor'māl, according to rule. Ab-normal, not according to rule. Normal School, a school for training teachers intended for elementary schools.

Latin norma, a rule, a square to work by, a law, normālis, made to the square or by rule; normālis linea, a perpendicular line.

Norman, plu. Normans, a Norwegian or north-man, a colony of whom settled in France and called the part colonised by them Normandy, hence a native of Normandy.

Nornas, nor'nūz or Norns (in Scandinavian Mythol.), the three Fates: Past, Present, and Future.

Nör'roy, king-at-arms, the third of the three heralds, his jurisdiction lies north of the Trent (nor-roy, i.e., north-roy).

The other two are Garter and Clarencieux, kla.ren'.so.

Norse (1 syl.), the language of the ancient Scandinavians;

Norseman, plu. Norsemen, a native of Scandinavia.

Nörth, opposite the South. From North to East are seven points, and from North to West are seven points, called (1) N. by E., (2) NN.E., (3) N.E. by N., (4) N.E., (5) N.E. by E., (6) E.N.E., (7) E. by N. By substituting W. (West), we have the points in the opposite direction.

Nörth-wind, -wīnd. North-east, north-eastern, north-easterly. North-west, north-western, north-westerly.

Northern, nörk'.ern; northerly, nörk.er.ly.

Northern-most, nörh.ern-most. Nörth'ing, tending north, distance [of a planet] from the equator northwards. South'ing, its distance from the equator southwards.

Northward (adj.): as a northward direction.

Northwards (adv.), in a northern direction. (-s is our native adverbial suffix: as now-adays, anights, &c.)

North-star, the pole-star

Northern Lights, ...lites, the aurōra boreālis.

Northman, plu. Northmen, native of ancient Scandinavia.

North pole, the most northern extremity of the earth's axis.

North frigid zone, all the north of our globe up to the arctic circle. The opposite zone is the South frigid.

North temperate zone, between the arctic circle and the torrid zone. The opposite zone is the S. temperate.

North-west Passage, a passage for ships through the Boreal regions from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

(Discovered by Capt. M'Clure in 1850-1851.)

Northern hemisphere, -hēm'.i.sfeer, that half of the globe which lies north of the equator. That half which lies south of the equator is called the Southern hemisphere.

Northern Drift, the erratic boulder group brought by polar currents from the north.

Northern Signs, sines, those signs of the zo'diac which appear north of the equator. Those south of the equator are called The Southern Signs.

THE NORTHERN SIGNS are (1) Aries (3 syl.), (2) Taurus, (3) Gem'ini, (4) Cancer, (5) Leo, (6) Virgo.

THE SOUTHERN SIGNS are (1) Libra, (2) Scorpio, (3) Sagitta'rius, (4) Capricor'nus, (5) Aquar'ius, (6) Pisces.

Old Eng. north, northern, northan-west, north-weard, north-wearden.

Norwegian, nor.wē'.gǽn, a native of Norway, adj. of Norway.

Nose, nōze. Noes, nōze. Knows. Noose. News. Gnus.

Nōse, a feature of the face (Old English nosu or nasu.); nōsed (1 syl.), having a nose, suspecting, prying out;

nose-less; nose-bag, a bag with food attached to a horse's head; nose-band, part of a bridle; nose-gay, a bouquet.

Nosing, the edge of stairs.

Nostril, nōs'.tril, one of the cavities of the nose.

To lead by the nose, to lead unresistingly.

To thrust [one's] nose into..., to interfere with.

The length of [one's] nose, a very short way.

To turn up [one's] nose, to show contempt.

Under [one's] nose, quite near at hand.

§ Noes, nōze, those who vote "no" to a question.

Knows, nōwz (to rhyme with grows), understands.

Old English cndw[an], past cneðw, past part. cndwēn.

Noose, nōo'z, a running knot. (Latin nōdus.)

News, nūze, tidings. (Old English neowe or newe, new.)

Gnus, nūze, plu. of gnu, a sort of ox (South Africa).

"Nostril," Old English nosu thyrel, nose hole.

- Noso-, nös'.o- (Greek prefix), disease, diseases. (Greek nösös.)
Noso-graphy, nös.sög'.rä.fy, scientific description of diseases.
 Greek noso-[nösös]grapho, I describe diseases.
Noso-logy, nös.söl'.ög.y, systematic classification of diseases, doctrine of diseases; nosological, nös'.o.lödg''.ä.käl;
nosologist, nös.zöl'.ö.djíst, one skilled in diseases.
 Greek noso-[nösös]logton, treatise on diseases.
- Nostalgia, nös.täl'.djí.ah, home-sickness; nostal'gic.
 Greek nostos algos, distress to-return-home.
- Nostril, nös'tríl, one of the apertures of the nose. (See Noso.)
- Nostrum, nös'.trüm, a quack or patent medicine.
 Latin nostrum, our own [private patent medicine].
- Nöt. Knot, nöt. Knout (to rhyme with out). Newt.
Not, adv. of denial. (Old Eng. náht [n-óht], not ought.)
Knot, nöt, a tie, to tie a knot. (Old Eng. enott, v. cnytt[an].)
Knout, a whip for criminals in Russia. (Russian knüt.)
Newt, nüte, an eft or efet, (Corruption of an-est.)
- Notable, nöt'.ä.b'l, clever, nöte'.ä.b'l, remarkable.
Notably, nöt'.ä.bly, cleverly, nöte'.a.bly, especially.
Notable-ness, nöt'.ä.b'l-ness, nöte'.ä.b'l-ness.
Notability, nöt'.ä.bíl.ä.ty, nöte'.ä.bíl.ä.ty.
 Latin notābilis, notābilitas (nötäre, to distinguish, to note).
- Notary, plu. notaries, nö'.tä.ríz, an officer authorised to attest contracts, and to protest foreign bills of exchange, &c.
Notary Public, plu. Notaries Public (same meaning); notarial, nö.tair'ri.äl; notar'ial-ly. (Latin notārius.)
- Notation, nö.tay'.shün, record by symbols, the nomination of a line of figures, representation of musical signs by notes.
Notator, no.tay'.tor. (Latin notātio, nötātor.)
- Nöteh, a nick, to nick; notched (2 syl.), notch-ing, notch-er.
- Nöte (1 syl.), an observation in writing or printing upon something stated in the text, a short letter, a memorandum, a musical character, a bank-note, to make a note, to jot down, to observe; nöt'-ed (R. xxxvi.), nöt'-ing (R. xix.), nöt'-er; nöt'-ed, remarkable; nöt'-ed-ly, nöt'-ed-ness, note'-worthy, note'-less, note'-book, note'-paper.
 To note a bill, to record on the back its non-acceptance.
 French note, noter; Latin nota (nosco, supine notum, to know).
- Nothing, nüttl'ing, no-thing; noth'ing-ness, nothing less.
 To make nothing of it, not to understand it.
 Old English naht or náht, or rather nó or ná thing or thineg.

Notho-saurus, plu. notho-sauri, nŏth'.o-saw'.rŭs, -saw'.ri, or notho-sau'rian, plu. -sau'rians, a fossil saurian fish of the Devo'nian period (Gk. nŏthŏs saurŏs, bastard lizard.)

Notice, nŏ'.tĭs, information officially made, civility, attention, to observe, to pay attention to; noticed, nŏ'.tĭst; notic-ing (R. xix.), nŏ'.tĭs.ing. Notice-able (only -ce and -ge retain the -e before able); no'ticeably. (Fr. notice; Lat. notĭtia.)

Notify, nŏt'.ĭfy, to declare, to make known, to give notice; notifies (Rule xi.), nŏt'.ĭfĭze; notified, nŏt'.ĭfide; not'ifi-er, not'ify-ing. Notification, nŏt'.ĭfĭ.kay''.shŭn.

Latin nŏtĭficatio, nŏtĭficāre; French notification, v. notifier.

Notion, nŏ'.shŭn, opinion, sentiment, idea, knowledge; notional, nŏ'.shŭn.āl, existing in idea only, imaginary; notional-ly, no'tionist. (Latin nŏtio, nŏtum, known.)

Notorious, nŏ.tŏr'.rĭ.ŭs, publicly known [in a bad sense]; notor'iously, notor'ious-ness. Notoriety, nŏ.tŏrĭ'.ĕ.ty, disrepute. (Latin nŏtŏrius, nŏtŏria, an indictment.)

Nŏt'o- before cons., Not- before vowels (Gk. prefix), southern.

Not-ornis, nŏ.tor'.nĭs, a fossil bird of the coot kind found in New Zealand. (Greek nŏt-[nŏtŏs]ornis, south bird.)

Not'o-therium, -hĕ'.rĭ.ŭm, an extinct gigantic quadruped found in Australia. (Gk. nŏto-[nŏtŏs], thĕrĭŏn, a beast.)

Not-wheat, nŏt'.weet, unbearded wheat.

Old English hnot whĕte, smooth or shorn wheat.

Not-with-stand'ing, however, nevertheless, although, in spite of. Withstand means to resist, not-withstanding, "non obstante."

Nought, nawt, nothing. Naught, nawt, worthless.

Old English n-ŏht, not ought, n-dht, not aught.

Noun, a substantive. Common noun. Proper noun, a "proper name." (Latin nŏmen, Greek ŏnŏma.)

Nourish, nŭr'.rĭsh, to sustain, to feed, to cherish; nour'ished (2 syl.), nour'ish-ing, nour'ishing-ly, nour'ish-er, nour'ish-ment, nourish-able (Rule xxiii.) See Nutrimēt.

French nourrir, nourrice; Latin nutrĭre, supine nutritum.

Novel, nŏv'.l, a tale of human life, new; novelette, nŏv'.ĕl.ĕt'', a short novel (-ette, Fr. dim.); nov'el-ist, a writer of novels.

Novelty, plu. novelties (Rule xlv.), nŏv'.ĕl.tĭz.

Latin nŏvellitas, nŏvellus (nŏvus, Greek nĕŭs, new).

November, no.vĕn'.ber, the ninth month from March, the proper beginning of the year, as in this month the sun crosses the equator for his northern route.

The words September (7th month), October (8th month), November (9th month), and December (10th month), are relics of the calendar which began the year with March. We in England began the year in March from the 14th to the middle of the 18th century. The change was made in 1752.

Novice, nŏv'iss, a beginner, a female religious recluse who has not yet taken the vow, a proselyte; novice-ship.

Novitiate, no.vish'iate. (Fr. novice, noviciat; Lat. nŏvitiŭs.)

Nŏw, at this present time, very lately; now'-adays, in this age;

Now and then, occasionally. (Old Eng. nū, nū hwænne.)

"Now and then" is a corruption of nū-hwænne, sometimes.

Nowhere, no'ware, in no place. (Old English nŏ hwær.)

Nowise (not noways), no'wize, not at all; in nowise (not in noways), by no means. (Old English affix -wis with no.)

Noxious, nŏk'shŭs, baneful, hurtful; noxious-ly, noxious-ness.

Latin noxius (noxa, hurt, v. nŏcere, to hurt).

Noyau (Fr.), nŏ'yŏ', a cordial flavoured with bitter almonds.

Noyade, no'y.yard, destruction of many persons at once by sending them to sea in a boat and skuttling it. Devised by Carrier in the first Fr. Revolution. (Fr. noyer, to drown.)

Nozzle, nŏz'z'l, the snout, the air-tube of a pair of bellows, the thing that holds the wick of a lamp (diminutive of nose.)

Nucleus, plu. nuclei, nŭ'.klĕ.ŭs, nŭ.klĕ.ĭ, the germ, the basis, that round which an accumulation gathers; nucleated, nŭ'.klĕ.ate.ĕd, having a nucleus. (Lat. nŭclĕus, nux, a nut.)

Nŭde (1 syl.), naked; nude'-ly. Nudity, nŭ'.dĭ.ty, nakedness.

Latin nŭditas, nŭdus (Greek nĕ-duŏ, not to clothe).

Nudge, to jog one's arm to arrest attention; nudged, nudg'-ing.

Nugatory, nŭ'.ga.'ry, ineffectual. (Lat. nŭgatorĭus, nugæ, trifles.)

Nŭg'get, a piece of gold picked up in a "digging."

Bengalee nuggut pisa, "hard cash," from Persian nugud, cash (Notes and Queries). Generally derived from an ingot.

Nuisance, nŭ'.sŭnse, an annoyance. (Fr. nuisance [obsolete].)

Null (Rule v.), void. Nullity. Nullify, nŭl'.lĭ.fy, to render void; nullifies, nŭl'.lĭ.fize; nullified, nŭl'.lĭ.fide (Rule xi.), nullifi-er, nullify-ing. Nullification, nŭl'.lĭ.fĭ.kay''shŭn. (Latin nullitas, nullus, none.)

Numb, nŭm, torpid from cold, without sensation, to render numb; numbed, nŭmd; numb-ing, nŭm'.ing; numb-ness, nŭm.ness, torpor from cold, insensibility.

Old English num[an], to take away, past ndm, past part. numen.

Number, nŭm'ber, a figure, a good many, one part of a serial, to count, to affix a number to; numbered, nŭm'.b'rd; num'ber-ing, num'ber-er, number-less.

Book of Numbers, the fourth book of the Bible.

Cardinal number, one, two, three, &c.

Ordinal number, first, second, third, &c.

Golden number, the cycle of the moon.

Add 1 to the year, then divide by 19, the quotient will be the number of cycles since the birth of Christ, and the remainder will be the "Golden Number."

So called because in ancient almanacs it was displayed in gold.

Abstract number, a number per se, as five.

Concrete number, a number applied, as five men.

Prime number, a number not divisible (except by unity), as one, two, three, five (four is not prime).

Square number, the product of a number multiplied by itself, as 4 which is 2×2 , 9 which is 3×3 .

Cubic number, the product of a number multiplied twice by itself, 8 which is $2 \times 2 \times 2$, $27 = 3 \times 3 \times 3$.

Whole number, an unbroken number, i.e., not a fraction.

Noun of number, a noun which refers to a collection of persons or things, as people.

Nouns of number have this peculiarity, they may have either a sing. or plu. construction. The strict rule is: if the reference is to a mass considered as an indivisible whole the singular construction should be used, but if the reference is to a mass considered as a number of independent individuals the plural construction must be employed: thus "The band was playing in the park," "The clergy were in their robes." The "band" is no band at all except in unlon. "The clergy were in their robes" means each clergyman present wore his robe.

French nombre; Latin nūmerus, v. nūmērāre, to number.

Numeral, nū'mĕrāl. Numerical, nū'mĕr'āl.

Numeral, the symbol of a number, pertaining to a number.

Numerical or numeric, nu'mĕr'āl, consisting of figures, expressed by a number.

We say numeric difference, numeric algebra, &c., that is, the difference "expressed by a number," algebra with figures (not letters) for coefficients, as 2*b*, numerically greater or less, but we called X, V, L, C, D, &c., numeral (not numerical) letters.

("Numeral" is sometimes a noun, but "numerical" never.)

Numeral-ly, adv. of numeral. Numerical-ly, adv. of numerical, as it is expressed by figures.

Arabic numerals, the ordinary figures 1, 2, 3, 4, &c.

Roman numerals, the numeral letters, i, v, x, l, c, &c.

Numerate, nū'mĕ.rate. Enumerate, e.nū'mĕ.rate.

Numerate, to put numbers to. Enumerate, to count up.

We numerate houses, but enumerate a series of figures.

Nū'mĕrāt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), nū'mĕrāt-ing (Rule xix.)

Nū'mĕrator, one who numerates. (In Arith.) the upper part of a fraction, the lower part is the Denom'inator.

Thus, in $\frac{3}{2}$, "2" is the numerator, and "3" the denominator.

Nū'mĕrable, that may be numbered. Enū'mĕrable, countless.

Numeration, nū' mē.ray'' .shŭn, the art of reading off a series of figures or expressing their values in words.

Numerous, nū' mē.rŭs; numerous-ly; nu' merous-ness.

Num'ber, numbered (2 syl.), number-ing.

Super-nu' merary, extra, more than needful.

Latin nūmērālis, super-nūmērārlus, nūmērātio, nūmērātor, v. nūmērāre, nūmērōsus, nūmērŭs; French numération.

Numismatic, nū' mīz.mŭt'' .ik, pertaining to coins and medals.

Numismatic's, the science which explains coins and medals.

Numismatology, nū.mīz'.mŭ.tŏl'' .ō.gy. (Greek lŏgŏs.)

Numismatologist, nū.mīz'.mŭ.tŏl'' .ō.djŭst.

The following have the "m" doubled.

Nummery, nūm'.mŭ.ry, relating to money or coin.

Nummulite, nūm'.mŭ.līte, a fossil resembling a coin (-ite, a fossil); nummulitic, nūm'.mū.līt'' .ik.

Nummulitic Formation, limestone full of nummulites.

Latin numisma, Greek nomisma, legal coin (nomizo, nomos, law).

Latin nummus, Greek noummos, coin. Aristotle tells us there was a Tarentine coin so called = three obŏli, but nūméro, to count, seems the true derivation, and one "m" the correct spelling.

Numskull, nūm'.skŭl, a dunce. (Old English num[en] scol.)

The verb num[an], to take away, past nŭm, past part. numen.

Nūn, a female religious recluse. None, nŭn, not one.

Nunnery, plu. nunneries, nŭn'.nē.rīz; nunn'-ish (Rule i.)

"Nun," Old English nunne. "None," n-one, Old English n-an.

Nuncio, plu. nuncios (Rule xlii.), nŭn'.shē.ōze, an ambassador from the pope to a sovereign, a courier. Nunciature, nŭn'.shē.ā.tchŭr, office of a nuncio.

Spanish nuncio, Latin nuntius.

Nuncupative, nŭn.kŭ'.pŭ.līv, nominal, verbal, not written; nuncupatory, nŭn.kŭ'.pŭ.lry.

Lat. nuncŭpātivus, v. nuncŭpāre, i.e., nŏmen-cāpĕre, to take a name.

Nuptials, nŭp'.shŭlz, marriage ceremony; nup'tial (adj.), nup-tial-ly. (Latin nuptiālis, v. nŭbĕre, sup. nuptum.)

"Nuptials" regards the ceremony from the woman's side, nupta (a bride), but "marriage" regards the union from the man's side, maritus (a husband). Our native word "wed" regards the union as a contract, "wed" (a pledge, agreement, vow).

Hence "Nuptials" means the bridal ceremonies.

"Wedding," the vows made of mutual fidelity.

"Marriage," the taking of a husband.

Nurse, a woman who has the care of little children, to suckle, to cherish, to take care of the sick; nursed, nurst; nurs-ing; nurse'-ling (-ling, offspring, diminutive.)

Nursery, plu. nurseries, nŭr'.sĕ.rīz (not nŭs'.ĕ.rīz.)

Old Eng. norice (Lye, Dict. Saxon.); French nourrice; Lat. nutrix.

Nurture, nurt'yer (not nūr'.tchūr), erudition, bringing up, diet, to feed, to train up; nurtured, nurt'y'rd; nurtur-ing (Rule xix.), nurt'yēr-ing.

Fr. nourriture, v. nourrir (Lat. nūtrio; Gk. néōtēreo, I feed the young).

Nūt, a shell-fruit, a kernel, a screw, to gather nuts; nutt'ed (Rule xxxvi.), nutt'-ing (Rule i.), nutt'-y. Nut-brown, nut-gall, nut-shell; nut-crackers, an instrument for cracking nuts; nut-cracker, one who cracks nuts.

"Nut-crackers" has no sing. Pairs have a sing. only when each part of the pair is perfect and independent; as a shoe (shoes), &c. Nutcrackers, tongs, &c., united by a joint, have no sing.

Nutation, nu.tay'.shūn, a vibratory movement of the earth's axis.

Latin nūtatio, a nodding (v. nūtāre, to nod); French nutation.

Nutmeg, nūt'mēg, the fruit of an East Indian tree; nutmegged, nūt'megd, seasoned with nutmeg; nut'megg-y, tasting of or like nutmeg. (Treated as two words hyphenated, R. i.)

Latin nux moschata, the aromatic nut; French noix muscade.

Nutritious (not -cious), nū.trīsh'ūs, nourishing; nutritious-ly.

Nutritive, nū'.trī.tīv, nutritious; nutritive-ly.

Nutrition (Rule xxxiii.), nu.trīsh'un, nourishment.

Nutriment, nū'.trī.ment; nutriment'al.

Latin nūtrimentum, nūtrīlius, v. nūtrīre, supine nūtrītum.

Nux vomica (Latin), nūx vōm'ī.kah, the vomit nut, it yields strychnia and is the fruit of the East Indian strychnos.

Nymph, nīmḡ, a goddess who presided over some part of nature.

The nymphs are innumerable, but the chief are—

Dry'ad, plu. Dry'ads or Dryades, dri'.d.dēs, Wood-nymphs.

Greek drus, a forest tree, Druādēs.

Echo, ēk'kō, one of the Mountain-nymphs. (See Oread.)

Ham'a-dryad, plu. Ham'a-dryads or Hamadry'adēs, Tree-nymphs (Gk. hama drus, i.e., [they live and die] with the tree they preside over).

Hyad, hī'.ad, plu. Hyads or Hyades, hī'.a.dēs, Rain-nymphs.

Greek hudōr, water, numphai hudēs.

Lim'niad, plu. Lim'niads, Lake-nymphs (limnē, a lake).

Limō'niad, plu. Limō'niads, Meadow-nymphs (leimōn, a meadow).

Mē'liad, plu. Mē'liads or Meliades, mē'.li.d.dēs, nymphs of fruit-trees.

Nymphs of Mēlis, one of the Cyclādes (Latin mālum, fruit).

Naiad, nay'.ād, plu. Naiads or Naiades, nay'.a.dēs, Water-nymphs.

Greek naō, to flow. Naidēs.

Napēæ, na.pē'.ē (no sing.), Valley or glen nymphs (Gk. napē, a glen).

Nereid, nē'.rē'id, plu. Nereids, nymphs of the Mediterranean sea, daughters of Nereus (nē'.ruce), the Old Man of the Sea, nérēidēs.

Oceanid, ō'.sē.ān'id, plu. Oceanids or Oceanides, ō'.sē.ān.i.dēs, Ocean nymphs. (Greek ōkēānōs, the ocean.)

Oread, ōr'.rē.ād, plu. Oreads or Orsades, ōr'.rē.a.dēs, Mountain nymphs.

Greek ōrōs, a mountain. Orēadēs.

Petrēæ, pē'.trē'.ē (no sing.), Rock nymphs. (Greek petraiai, petrōs.)

Potameid, pot.a.mē'id, plu. Potameids or Potameides, pōt'.a.mē'.i.dēs, River nymphs. (Greek pōtāmōs, a river.)

Nympha, plu. nymphæ, nĭm'.fah, plu. nĭm'.fē, the third state of an insect. (Same as pūpa or chrysalis, kris'.ă.lis.)

(The 1st state is the egg; 2nd, the larva; 3rd, the pu'pa, chrysalis, or nympha; and 4th, the ima'go.)

Nymphæan, nĭm'.fē.ăn (not nĭm'.fē.ăn), adj. of nymph; nymph-like, nymph-ish. (-ish added to nouns means "like," added to adjectives it is diminutive.)

Latin nympha, nymphæus; Greek numphē, numphios.

O'- (Irish), son of, Welsh Ap-, Scotch Mac-, Eng. Fitz-. Like French de, German von, it often indicates aristocratic birth or one of the landed gentry. O'Neil.

O.S., Old Style, 11 days later than the New, so that the 1st Jan. O.S. is the 12th. Still retained in Russia and Greece.

O. Oh! Owe. Ho. Hoe. How.

O, sign of the vocative case: as O king, live for ever.

Oh! exclamation of pain, distress, excitement.

Owe (to rhyme with grōw), to be indebted to. (O. E. āg[an].)

Ho! a call to arrest attention. (Welsh ho!)

Hoe, hō, an instrument for hoeing. (French houe.)

Hōw, in what manner, to what a degree. (Old Eng. hū.)

Oaf, ōfe, an idiot, a changeling by the fairies; oaf-ish, stupid.

Corruption of ouph (elf). It was once thought that idiot children were changelings by the fairies, who carried off the good child.

Oak, oke, plu. oaks, a forest tree. Hoax, hōkes, a trick.

Oak-en, oke'n, made of oak (-en, made of: as wood-en, gold-en, &c.); oak'-ling, a young oak (-ling, diminutive, offspring). Oak-apple, oak'-bark', oak-galls, oak'-tan'.

Oak-paper, paper for walls in imitation of oak.

Old English dc or aac, dc-corn, an acorn, dc-en.

Oak'um, old rope pulled into loose fibres for calking ships.

Old English acumba or æcemba, oakum, the coarse part of flax.

Oar. O'er. Ore. Or. Hoar. Hors. Haw. Whore.

Oar, ō'r, a machine for rowing boats; oared, ō'rd, furnished with oars; oar-y, ō'r'ry; oars-man (not oar-man, so boats-man, i.e., "man-of-the-oar or boat," meaning skilled in its management).

To boat the oars, to lay the oars in the boat.

To feather the oar, to turn the blade horizontally with the top aft as it comes out of the water.

To lie on the oars (not lay), to cease from giving strokes and merely to dip the oars and raise them.

To muffle the oars, to wrap something round that part of the oars which works in the rowlocks, to deaden the sound.

To unship the oars, to take them out of the rowlocks.

§ O'er, contraction of over. (Old English ober or ofer.)

Ore (1 syl.), metal with some mineraliser. (Old Eng. ora.)

Or (conj.), a contraction of other. (Old English oththe.)

Hoar, hō'r, white with age or frost. (Old English hār.)

Hors, hor (French), disabled as hors de combat.

Haw, the berry of the hawthorn. (Old English hæg.)

Whore, hoo'r, a prostitute. (Old Eng. hōre, Welsh huren.)

"Oar," Old English dr, dr-blād, oar-blade, dr-locu, the rowlock.

Oasis, plu. oases, ō'ā.sis, ō'ā.sēz (not o.ā'.sis), a fertile spot in a desert. (A Coptic word, called auasis by Herodotus.)

Oats (1 syl.), a grain. An oat, one single grain; oat'-en (-en, made of or from). Oat-cake; oat-meal, ote-meel;

Wild-oats, the wild habits of young men.

To sow [your] wild oats, to live in youthful dissipation.

He has sown his wild oats, he has become steady.

(This is the only grain in the plural number: we say barley, millet, maize, rye, wheat, &c., all in the singular number.)

Old English dtan, oats, dtā, an oat-grain.

Oath, ōrh, a profane expression, an appeal to God in confirmation of what is said. False-oath, perjury. (O. E. āth.)

Ob- (Latin prefix), opposed to, reversed, against, drawn towards, for a purpose. (Sometimes emphatic.) It becomes Oc- before "c," except in ob-compressed, ob-conical, ob-cordate.

Of- before "f," except in ob-fusate.

O- before "m," except in ob-mutescence.

Op- before "p," as op-pose, op-press.

All words beginning with ob are from the Lat., except the following: obsidian (Greek), Obi (African), oboe (Italian), obeisance and oblique (Latin through the French).

Ob-durate, ob'.dū.rate, obstinate; ob'durate-ness, ob'durate-ly.

Obduracy, ob'.du.ra.sy, obstinacy. (Lat. obdurāre, ob emph.)

Obedient, o.bē.dī.ent (not o.bē'.djent), submissive; obe'dient-ly.

Obedience, o.bē'.dī.ense, submission; obediency, -be'.dī.en.sy.

Passive obedience (Eng. Hist.), that unqualified obedience which some think is due from a subject to a ruler.

Obey, o.bay'; obeyed, o.bayd'; obey'-ing, obey'-er.

Latin obēdiens, gen. obēdientis, obēdientia, obēdire (ob-audio.)

Obeisance, o.bay'.sance (not o.bē'.zance), a bow, a sign of obedience, a humble salute. (Fr. obéissance, Lat. obēdire.)

Obelisk, ōb'.ē.lisk, a spiral monument with four faces, a reference mark (†), also called a dagger. (Latin obēliscus.)

Obelus, ôb'êlus, a mark in printing. Ob'olus, a coin (an obol.) In the Septuagint the obelus (÷) indicates that the passage does not occur in the Hebrew text. The mark (—) in modern books indicates a break, as If thou didst ever thy dear father love — (Hamlet).

Lat. ôbelus, Gk. ôbêlos (a spit), a mark to indicate that something is amiss, or not finished. The word means "obolus," Gk. ôbêlôs.

Oberon, ô'bê.rôn, king of the fairies and husband of Titan'ia.

Corruption of Auberon (Alberon), Germ. Alberich, King of the elves.

Obese, ô.becé', fat; obese'-ness; obesity, ô.bê.sit.y, fatness.

Latin ôbêsitas, ôbêsus, v. ôbêso, to cram and make fat.

Obey, ô.bay'; obeys', obeyed' (2 syl.), obey'-ing. (See Obedient.)

Obfuscate, ôb.fûs'.kate, to bewilder, to obscure; obfus'cât-ed (R. xxxvi.), obfus'cât-ing; obfuscation, ôb.fûs.kay''shûn.

Latin obfuscare, supine obfuscatum (ob intens., fuscus, dusky).

Obi, ô'be, the witchcraft of the West Indian negroes; obi-man, obi-woman, plu. obi-men, obi-women, -wîm'n, the sorcerer and sorceress of the West Indian negroes.

Obit, ô'bit, funeral obsequies. Or'bit, the route of a planet.

Postôbit (not post or'bit), Latin "after death," a deed to come into force after the funeral; obit'ual, ô.bî't'û.âl.

Obituary, plu. obituaries (Rule xlv.), a register of deaths.

Latin obitus, death, dead, v. obire, supine obitum, to die (ob eo).

Object, (noun) ôb'.jekt, (verb) ôb.jekt', a thing seen, a ridiculous figure, to disapprove, to suggest objections;

Object-less; object-glass, a glass to form the image of the "object" looked for: as the object-glass of a telescope.

Object'-ed (R. xxxi.), object'-ing, object'ing-ly, object'or.

Objective, ôb.djêk'.tîv; object'ive-ly, object'ive-ness.

Objectivity, ôb.djêk.tîv''.i.ty, state of being objective.

Objection, ôb.djêk'.shûn; objection-able, objectionable-ly.

Lat. objectus, v. objectâre (ob-jicio [jâcio], to throw out in opposition).

Objurgate, ôb.djur'gate, to chide; objurgât-ed (Rule xxxvi.);

objurgât-ing (R. xix.); objurgation, ôb'.djur.gay''shûn;

objurgât-or (R. xxxvii.); objurgatory, ôb'.djur.ga.t'ry.

Latin objurgatio, objurgâtor, objurgâtôrius, objurgâre (ob jurgo).

Oblate, ôb.late', flattened at the poles; oblate spheroid, sfe'roid, a spheroid flattened at the poles.

The corresponding French word is aplâti (Greek piatus, 'flat, wide-spread'); our word is coined from the Latin lâtus, wide, but is objectionable because the word is used in another meaning.

Oblation, ôb.lay'.shun, an offering. (Latin oblâtio.)

Oblige, ô.blidge', to do a favour, to compel; obliged' (2 syl.), oblig'-ing (R. xix.); obliging-ly, civilly, kindly; oblig'-er.

Obligation, ob'.lĭ.gay''shŭn. Obligato, ob'.lĭ.gàh''to (in Music), the essential part as it contains the melody: thus a violin obligato is not an accompaniment of chords, but the main part which carries out the melody.

Obligatory, ob'.lĭ.gă'.t'ry (not ob.lig'.a.t'ry nor -găy'.t'ry).

Obligor, ob'.lĭ.djor, he who receives an obligation, a debtor;

Obligee, ob'.lĭ.djē, he who confers the obligation, a creditor.

Lat. obligatio, obligāre (ob ligo, to bind down, to bind by kindness).

Oblique, ob'.leek', aslant, not direct; oblique'-ly, oblique'-ness.

Obliquity, plu. obliquities, ob'.lĭk'.wĭ.tiz, irregularity.

Oblique angle, any angle except a right angle (90 deg.)

Oblique-angled triangle, a triangle without one right angle.

French oblique; Latin obliquus (Greek lix, oblique).

Obliterate, ob'.lĭt'.ĕ.rate, to efface; obliterāt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), obliterāt-ing (R. xix.) Obliteration, ob'.lĭt'.ĕ.ray''shŭn.

Latin obliteratio, obliterāre (ob lĭtera); French oblitération.

Oblivion, ob'.lĭv'.i.ŏn, forgetfulness, amnesty; oblivious, -lĭv'.i.ŭs; oblivious-ly, oblivious-ness. (Latin oblivio, oblivĭōsus.)

Oblong, a rectangular four-sided figure longer than it is broad.

A round fig. longer than it is broad is called an Oval, ō'.vāl.

"Oblong," Latin oblongus. "Oval," Latin ovālis, egg-shaped.

Obloquy, ob'.lō.kwĭ, reproach, ill repute. (Latin oblōquor.)

Obnoxious, ob'.nox'.shŭs, hateful, odious, exposed, liable; obnox'ious-ness, obnoxious-ly. (Latin obnoxĭus.)

Oboe, ō'.boy or Hautboy, hō'.boy, a wind instrument.

French haut bois, long stalk or mouth piece; Italian oboe.

Obolus, ob'.ō.lūs, an obol (coin). Ob'elus, a mark in printing.

"Obolus," Lat. obolus; Gk. obolōs. "Obelus," Lat. obelūs; Gk. obelōs.

Obovate, ob'.ō'.vate (in Bot.), ovate-reversed, that is with the smaller end downwards. (Lat. ob ovātus, ovum, an egg.)

Obscene, ob'.seen', indecent; obscene'-ly, obscene'-ness.

Obscenity, plu. obscenities, ob'.see'.nĭ.tĭz, indecency.

Latin obscenus, obscenitas; French obscène, obscénité.

Obscure, ob'.skŭre', indistinct, remote from observation, to darken;

obscŭred (2 syl.), obscŭr'-ing, obscure'-ly, obscu'rity;

obscuration, ob'.sku.ray''shŭn. (Lat. obscŭrus, obscŭritas.)

Obsequies, ob'.sĕ.kwĭz, funeral solemnities. (Latin obsequium.)

Obsequious, ob'.sĕ'.kwĭ.ŭs, fawning, meanly servile; obse'quious-

ly, obse'quious-ness. (Latin obsequium, obsequĭōsus.)

Observe, ob'.zer.v', notice; observed' (2 syl.), observ'-ing (R. xix.), observing-ly, observ'-er, observ'-able, observ'able-ness, observ'ably. Observ'ance, observ'ant, observ'ant-ly.

Observanda (Latin), ob'.zer.vān''.dah, things to be observed.

- Observation, ob'zer.vay''shŭn; observation-al.
Observatory, plu. -ries, ob.zer'.vŭ.t'riz, a building for astronomical observations. Obser'vator (Rule xxxvii.)
 Latin observābilis, observans, gen. observantis, observantia, observatio, observātor, observāre (ob servo, to keep for a purpose).
Obsidian, ob.sid'ŭ.ăn, volcanic glass. (Latin obsidiānus.)
 It was discovered in Ethiōpia, by Obsidiānus, a Roman.
Obsidional, ob.sid'ŭ.ō.nŭl, pertaining to a siege.
Obsidional crown. (Latin obsidionālis, ob-sedeo.)
Obsolete, ob'.so.leet, out of use; obsolescent, ob'.so.lēs''sent, growing more and more out of use. (-sc-, inceptive.)
Ob'solete-ly, ob'solete-ness, (in Zool.), want of development.
 Latin obsoletus, v. obsolescere, obsolescere, obsolescens, gen. -entis.
Obstacle, ob'.stŭ.k'l, a hinderance. (Latin obstacŭlum.)
Obstetrics, ob.stet'.rĭks (not ob.stet'ĭks), art of midwifery; obstetric, ob.stēt'.rĭk; obstetrician, ob'.stĕ.trĭsh''ăn.
 Except arithmetical, logic, magic, music, and rhetoric (which are from the French) all the sciences with this termination are plural.
 Latin obstetrĭx, a midwife, for obstitrix (obstisto, obstitum).
Obstinate, ob'.stĭ.nate, stubborn; obstinate-ly, obstinate-ness.
Obstinacy, ob'.stĭ.nŭ.cy. Obstination, ob'.stĭ.nay''shŭn.
Obstinacy is stubbornness in a bad sense;
Obstination is pertinacity in a good sense.
 Latin obstinālio, obstinax, gen. obstinācis.
Obstipation, ob'.stĭ.pay''shŭn, costiveness; ob'stipāt-ed, costive.
 Latin obstipatio, obstipātus, v. obstipāre, to stop chinks. That which is immovable, like a log-stuck-in-the-ground (stipes).
Obstreperous, ob.strep'.ĕ.rŭs, noisy; obstreperous-ly, -ness.
 Latin obstrepetus, obstreperē (ob strepo, to make a great noise).
Obstruct', to hinder; obstruct'-ed, obstruct'-ing, obstruct'-er.
Obstruction, ob.strŭk'.shŭn; obstructive, ob.strŭk'.tĭv; obstructive-ly. (Latin obstructio, obstructor, v. obstruo.)
Obtain, ob.tain', to gain; obtained', obtain'-ing, obtain'-er, obtain'-able (R. xxiii.), obtain'-ment. (Latin obtinēre.)
Obtrude, ob.trŭdĕ', to thrust oneself in unwelcome; obtrūd'-ed (R. xxxvi.), obtrūd'-ing (R. xix.), obtrŭding-ly, obtrūd-er.
Obtrusion, ob.trŭ'.shun. (Verbs ending in -de or -d, -se or -s, add -sion not -tion.) Obtrusive, ob.trŭ'.siv; obtrusive-ly, obtrusive-ness. (Lat. obtrŭdĕre, sup. obtrusum, ob trudo.)
Obtuse, ob.tucc', blunt, dull, stupid; obtuse'-ly, obtuse'-ness.
Obtuse-angle, an angle more than ninety degrees.
Acute angle, ŭ.kŭtĕ'..., an angle less than ninety degrees.
Right angle, rite..., an angle exactly ninety degrees.
Oblique angle, ob.leek'..., any angle except a right angle.

Obtuse-angled triangle, a triangle with one obtuse angle.

Right-angled triangle, a triangle with one right angle.

Acute-angled triangle, a triangle with three acute angles.

Oblique-angled triangle, any triangle except a right ang.

Latin obtusus, v. obtundo, supine obtusum, to make blunt.

Obverse, ob.verse'. Inverse. Reverse.

Obverse (of a coin), the side which shows the sovereign's head.

Reverse (of a coin), the other side, called the "tail."

Inverse, upside down, placed in contrary order.

Obverse, (in Bot.) having the base of a leaf narrower than the top, having the point of the radicle of the seed approaching the eye or hilum. Obverse-ly.

Inverse, (in Bot.) any unusual position or attachment.

Obvert', to face; obvert'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), obvert'-ing.

Latin obvertĕre, supine obversum, to turn towards the beholder;

revertĕre, supine reversum, to turn away from the beholder;

invertĕre, supine inversum, to turn the contrary way.

Obviate, ob'.vĭ.ate, to prevent, to intercept; ob'viāt-ed (R. xxxvi.), ob'viāt-ing. (Lat. obviare, sup. -viātum, ob via, on the way.)

Obvious, ob'.vĭ.ūs, evident; obvious-ly, obvious-ness.

Latin obvĭus (ob via, [meeting] on the way), face-to-face.

Oc-, the prefix ob before "c." (See Ob-.)

-oc (Welsh -og), nouns, full of, as havoc, haf-og.

-ock, a native diminutive, as hill-ock (hyll-ock).

All words beginning with oc- are from the Latin, except ocelot (Mexican), octroi (Fr.), ochlocracy (Gk.), and those beginning with octa-, with octopus, octopod, and octogynous, which are irregular.

Occasion, ok'.kay'.shŭn (not o.kay'.shŭn, a very common error), opportunity, to cause, to give rise to; occasioned, ok'.kay'.shŭnd; occasion-ing; occasion-er, causer.

Occasion-al, ok'.kay'.shŭn.āl, occurring sometimes; occasional-ly. Occa'sional-ism, the doctrine that God controls the will and is the cause of whatever is.

Latin occāsio (oc [ob] cado, to fall out, to happen).

Occident, ok'.sĭ.dent, the west; occident'-al. O'rient, the east.

Latin occĭdens, gen. occĭdentis, the west (oc [ob] cado, to fall down).

Occiput, ok'.sĭ.pŭt, the back of the head; occip'ital.

Lat. occĭput (oc [ob] căput, the head turned away from the beholder).

Occult, ok'.kŭl't, secret; occult'-ly, occult'-ness, occult'-ed.

Occultation, ok'.kŭl.tay''.shŭn, eclipse.

Occult sciences, -sĭ'.ĕn.sĕs, magic, witchcraft, astrology, alchemy, &c. (Lat. occultus, oc [ob] colo, to cover by tillage.)

Occupy, ók'.kũ.py, to employ, to keep possession of; occupies, ók'.kũ.pize; occupied, ók'.kũ.pide (Rule xi.); occupi-er, occupy-ing; occupant, one who has possession; occupancy, plu. occupancies, ók'.kũ.pãn.siz (Rule xlv.)

Occupation, ók'.ku.pay''shũn. Aucupation, aw'.ku...

Occupation, employment. Aucupation, bird-catching.

Occupation-bridge, a bridge over a railway to connect parts of fields, &c., severed by the "cutting."

Latin occūpātio; occūpans, gen. occupantis, v. occūpare (oc [ob] capio).

Occur, ók'.kũr (not o.kur'), to happen; occurred, ók'.kũrd'; occur-ring (R. iv.), occur-ence (not -ance), ók'.kũr'ẽnce.

Latin occurrẽns, gen. occurrentis, v. occurrẽre (oc [ob] curro).

Ocean, Main, Sea, o'.shun, māne, see.

Ocean, one of the great outward seas.

Sea, a large expanse of water land-locked. (Old Eng. sé.)

Main, one of the great oceans or seas. (Old Eng. mægen.)

Oceanic, o'.sě.ăn''ik (not o'.shě.ăn'ik).

Oceanides, o'.sě.ăn''i.dẽze, sea-nymphs. (Gk. ókeanidēs.)

Oceanus, o'.sě.ăn'us (not o.sě.ăn'us).

Greek ókēānōs; Latin oēlānus, oēlānicus. The "ocean," according to Homer, was the watery boundary of the earth, hence it means an outward or out-lying body of salt water.

Ocelot, o'.sě.lõt, a Mexican pard. (Mexican tlalocelot.)

Ochlocracy, ok.lok'.ra.sy, mobocracy.

Greek ochlos kratia, mob rule. (See Aristocracy.)

Ochre, o'.ker; a clay used as a pigment; ochraceous (R. lxiii.), o.kray'.shě.ūs, of the colour or quality of ochre.

Ochry, adj. of ochre. Ochroite, ók'.rõ.ite.

Latin ochra; Greek óchrōs, pale, wan; French ocre (wrong).

-ock (a native dim. postfix), as "hillock," hyll-ock, a little hill.

Octā- (Greek), Octo- (Latin prefix), eight. Oct- before vowels.

Care should be taken to use octa- with Greek words, and octo- with Latin ones. One example (octu-ple) has octu- for octo-.

Octa-gon, ók'.tũ.gõn, a figure with eight sides and angles; octagonal, ók'.tũg'.õ.nũl. (Greek octa-, gõnia, an angle.)

Octa-hed'ron, a solid contained by eight equal sides; octa-hed'ral; octa-hedrite, hẽd'.rite.

Greek octa-hedra, eight seats, foundations, sides.

Oct-andria, ók'.tũn'.drĩ.ah, plants with eight stamens.

Oct-ander, ók'.tũn'.der, one of the octandria.

Oct-andrian, ók'.tũn'.drĩ.an; octandrous, -tũn'.drũs.

Greek oct-[octa-] andria, eight [instruments of] manhood.

Linnæus termed "stamens" the manhood (andria), and "pistils" the womanhood (gynia) of plants.

Oct-angular, øk.tăn'.gũ.lar, having eight angles.

Latin oct- [octo-], angŭlus, an angle or corner.

Octant, Sextant, Quadrant, measuring arcs, the eighth, the sixth, and the fourth or quarter of a circle.

Octa-style, øk'.tũ.stile, a building with eight columns in front. (Greek octa-stulos, eight columns.)

Octave, øk'.tãve, (in Music) the longest interval in the diatonic scale, from C to C, D to D, &c., the eighth part of a pipe of wine, the eighth day from a church festival. Octavo, plu. octavos, øk.tũ.võze (Rule xlii.), a sheet folded into eight leaves, usually written 8vo., plu. 8vos.

Latin octāvus; Spanish octavo; French in-octavo; Italian ottavo.

Oct-ennial, øk.těn'.nũ.ăl, every eighth year, lasting eight years; octennial-ly.

Latin octenniālis, octennium (octo annus). In compounded words annus becomes ennus: thus bi-ennial, tri-ennial, sept-ennial, &c.

Octillion, øk.tĩl'.yun, a million raised to the eighth power, or 1 followed by forty-eight cyphers. A million contains six cyphers, and $6 \times 8 = 48$.

October, øk.tõ'.ber, the eighth month from March. At one time the year began with March. We changed from March to January in 1752.

Now that the year begins with January, the words September (7th month), October (8th month), November (9th month), December (10th month), are anomalous.

Octo-decimal, -dēs'.ĩ.măl, (in Crystallog.) a crystal is so called which is "8 and 10," that is having eight faces and two summits. The eight faces is "octo," and $8 + 2$ summits = 10 for "decimal." (Lat. octo-decem, eight, ten.)

Octo-decimo, plu. octo-decimos, -dēs'.ĩ.moze (R. xlii.), a sheet folded into eighteen leaves. Usually written 18mo, plu. 18mos., and called eighteen-mo. (Latin octo-decem.)

Octo-dentate, -dēn'.tate, having eight teeth.

Latin octo-dentātus (dens, gen. dentis, a tooth).

Octo-fid, øk'.to.fĩd, cleft into eight segments, as a callyx.

Latin octo-, fĩdo, perf. fĩdi, to cleave.

Octo-genarian, -djẽ.nair'ri.ăn, one who has attained his eightieth birthday. (Latin octogenārius.)

Octo-gynous (ought to be octa-gynous), øk.tõg'.ă.nũs, having eight pistils. (Greek octa-gunē, eight ladies.)

Octo-pod (ought to be either octo-ped or octa-pod), a crustacean or insect with eight feet and legs.

Latin octo-pes, gen. pēdis; Greek okta-pous, gen. pōdōs.

Octo-pus (ought to be octa-pus), ok'.tō.pūs (not ōk.tō'.pūs), a fish with eight arms. Plural octōpi or oc'topuses.

Greek okta-pous, 8 feet. We have also the Greek words okta-daktūlōs (8 fingered), okta-pōdēs (8 feet long), okta-tonos (with 8 feelers), &c. Octa- is the normal Greek prefix, and octo- the Latin.

Octo-syllable, -sil.la.b'l, a word of eight syllables; octo-syllabic, -sil.lāb'ik, consisting of eight syllables.

Latin octo-syllāba (Greek sul [sun] labē), a syllable or that which "holds together" to make one sound.

Octroi, ok'.troi, a toll on consumable things paid in France on entering a town. (Low Lat. auctorium, i.e., auctorilāte.)

Levied "by authority" of the sovereign on (1) drinks, (2) eatables, (3) fuel, (4) forage, (5) raw materials.

Octu-ple, ok'.tu.ple, eight-fold. (Latin octuplus, plūco, to fold.)

Ocular, (not occural), ōk'.ū.lar, pertaining to the eyes, with the eyes. Oc'ular demonstration, eye-sight proof. Ocular-ly, ōk'.u.lar.ly. Oculist, ōk'.ū.list, eye-doctor.

Latin ocūlus, the eye; Greek okkos, i.e. ophthalmōs, the eye.

Od, the way mesmerism acts. Odd, strange, not even.

Odilic, od'.il.ik, adj. of "od." (Greek hōdōs, the way.)

This barbarous word was introduced by Baron Reichenbach, and has been used to explain the "phenomena" of table-turning, &c.

Odd, strange, not even. Hōd, a brick dorsel. Ode (1 syl.), a poem.

Odd'-ly, odd'-ness. Oddity, plu. oddities (R. xlv.), ōd'.dī.tīz.

Odds, ōdz, an uneven wager, difference, inequality.

Odds and ends, stray articles, fragments. At odds, at variance.

"Odds and ends," ords and ends, beginnings and ends (Skeat, Chaucer).

Welsh odid, peculiarity, rarity. This explains the double d.

"Hod," German hotte. "Ode," Greek ōdē (oidē, aeidō, to sing).

The monosyllables (not ending in f, l, or s) with a double final consonant are add and odd, burrr and err, ebb and egg, buzz and fuzz, bitt, mitt, and butt, fizz, frizz, and whizz. (Add banns of marriage.)

-ode (Greek termination -odes), nouns. In Medicine.

-ode denotes disease in an unexcited state as tet'anode.

-ic denotes disease in an excited state as tet'anic.

Ode, ōde, a lyric poem. Owed, ōwd (to rhyme with mowed).

"Ode," Greek ōdē. "Owed," Old English āht, ag[an], to owe.

Odious, ō'.dī.ūs (not ō'.djūs), hateful; odious-ness, odious-ly.

Odium, ō'.dī.um, blame. Odium theologicum, ō'hē'.o.-lōdg''.ū.kūm, bitter hatred, hatred as intolerant as that excited by theological differences.

Latin odīōsus, odīum, v. odi, I hate.

Odometer, o.dōm'.ē.ter (should be hodometer), an instrument attached to a carriage wheel to measure the distance travelled over; odometrical, ō'.do.mēt'.rī.kūl.

Greek hodos metron, a way-metre, a measurer of the road.

Odont- before vowels, Odon'to- before consonants (Gk. prefix), a tooth. (Greek ōdous, gen. ōdontōs, a tooth.)

Odont-algia, o'.dōn.tāl''.dȳ.ah, tooth-ache; odontalgic, o'.dōn.tāl''.dȳ.ik, a remedy for tooth-ache, pertaining to tooth-ache. (Gk. odont- [odontos] algos, pain of the teeth.)

Odont-aspis, o'.dōn.tās''.pīs, a genus of shark-like fishes found in the "chalk." (Gk. odont- aspis, teeth [like] shields.)

Odonto, plu. odontos (R. xlii.), o.dōn'.tōze, a tooth powder.

Greek ōdous, gen. ōdontōs, the tooth.

Odont-oid, o.dōn'.toid, tooth-like. (Gk. odont-, eidōs, like.)

Odonto-graph, o.dōn'.tō.grāf, an instrument used in the construction of wheel-work. Odonto-graphy, o'.dōn.tōg''.ra.fy, a description of the teeth of different animals.

Greek odonto- graphō, I describe the teeth.

Odon'to-lite, -lite, a petrified tooth. (Greek lithos, stone.)

Odonto-logy, o'.dōn.tōl''.ō.gy, a treatise on teeth.

Greek odonto- lōgōs, a word about the teeth.

Odonto-pteris, o'.dōn.tōp''.tē.rīs, a genus of fossil ferns, the leaflets of which have tooth-like lobes.

Greek odonto- ptērīs, tooth[like] ferns.

Odonto-stomatous, -stōm'.ā.tūs, having mandibles.

Greek odonto-, stōma, gen. stōmātos, a mouth.

Odour, ō'.dōr, perfume; odorous, ō'.dō.rūs; o'dorous-ly.

Odoriferous, o.dō.rīf''.ē.rūs, sweet-smelling; odoriferous-ly, odoriferous-ness. Odour-less.

Latin odor, odoriferus (odor-fero, I carry perfume).

Odyle (should be hodyle), ō'.dīle, the acting power of animal magnetism. Odyle-force. Odylic, o.dīl'.īk, adj. of odyle. Od, the way mesmerism acts; od'ilic.

Greek hodos hule, the matter or that which constitutes "od."

Odyssey, ōd'.īs.sy, the wanderings of Odysseus, o.dīs'.suce (Latin Ulysses), one of Homer's epics.

Every word beginning with od- is Greek, except odious (Latin) and odd (Welsh).

-œcia, -ē'.sī.āh (Gk. postfix oikos, a house), adj. It denotes the arrangement of stamens and pistils in flowers.

Mon-œcia, one-house, the stamens and pistils "dwelling" on the same plant (Linnæus's Class xxi.)

Di-œcia, dī.ē'.sī.āh, two-houses, the stamens "dwelling" on one plant, and the pistils on another. (Lin. Class xxii.)

Edema, ē.dē'.mah, a mild form of dropsy; œdematous, ē.dē'.ma.tus, adj. (Greek oidēma, a swelling, a puffiness.)

Enanthic acid, e.nān'.thīk ās'sīd, the acid of fermented liquors or ænanthic ether mixed with sulphuric acid.

Enanthic ether, -ἔνθηρ, the fragrant principle of wine and other fermented drinks. (Greek oinanthē.)

The Greek word oinanthē has a different meaning. It is oinē-anthē, vine blossom, and refers to the young shoots and tendrils of the vine; but enanthic means oinos-anthē, the bouquet of wine.

Enothera, ἔ.νο.ρη'.rah (not ἔ.νόθη'.ἔ.rah), evening primrose.

Greek oinos thērāō, to catch a wine [flavour], because the dried leaves "catch" a wine-like flavour.

O'er, Ore. Oar. Or. Hoar. Hors. Whore.

O'er, o'r, contraction of over. (Old English ober or ofer.)

Ore (1 syl.), metal with some mineraliser. (Old Eng. ora.)

Oar, o'r, for rowing. (Old English ār.)

Or (conj.), contraction of other. (Old English oththe.)

Hoar, hō'r, white with age or frost. (Old English hār.)

Hors, hor (French), disabled, as hors de combat.

Whore, hoo'r, a prostitute. (Old Eng. hōre, Welsh huren.)

Of- (Latin ob [of] before -f) as of-fend. (See Ob-.)

Of-, off- (Teut. prefix), from, out-of, away, of'-fal, off'-spring.

Of, ov (prep.), stands between nouns in regimen: a glass of wine.

¶ Between two nouns it gives the latter an adjectival force, as a man of courage (i.e., a courageous man).

¶ "Of," followed by a [an], gives the noun preceding "of" an adjectival force, as a brute of-a-dog (a vile dog), a monster of-a-man, a monstrous man, a love of-a-bonnet, a lovely bonnet, a brute of-a-woman, a brutal woman.

¶ The "double genitive" is used in such elliptical sentences as these: a bust of Milton's, one which belonged to Milton; but a bust of Milton is one representing Milton.

In a few phrases "of" is written o', as Two o'clock, Jack o' lantern, Will o' the Wisp.

Errors of Speech.—

"Of" for on or with is a mere vulgarism: as

(1) You have not called of [on] us for a long time.

(2) What can he want of [with] these things?

(3) What can he want of these men? (is correct).

Sentence (2) means What can he want [to do with] these things.

Sentence (3) means What can he want [to get out of] these men.

In sentence (2) the word "want" reflects back to the subject: What can he want [for himself] with [i.e., having] these things.

In sentence (3) the word "want" passes on to the object: What of these men can he want? (i.e., what service).

Off, awf, begone!, distant, away, &c. (Old English of.)

Be off! begone! From off [the shelf] denotes removal.

Badly off, impecunious. Badly off for, ill-supplied with.

Off and on, changeable. To stand off and on (sea phrase).

Off-hand, impromptu. Off-scouring, refuse.

Off-side (in driving), to the right hand of the driver.

The off-horse, the horse on the right hand of the driver.

I must be off, I must go. To come off, to fare, to happen.

To get off, to alight, to escape.

To go off [as a gun], to get discharged, to desert, to depart.

To take off, to carry away. Well off, faring well.

Offal, ɔf.fəl, refuse (off-fall, German abfall).

Offence, ɔf.fence (not o.fence, a common error), an affront, a violation; offence-less, offenceless-ly. Offensive, ɔf.fen.siv (not o.fen.siv); offend-sive-ly, offend-sive-ness.

Offend, ɔf.fend (not o.fend); offend-ed (Rule xxxvi.), offend-ing, offend-ing-ly, offend-er (not o.fen.der).

("Offence" ought to be offense, we preserve the "s" in offensive. The blunder arises from confusing the word with fence.)

Latin offensio, offendere, supine offensum (of[ob]fendo, to provoke much); French offense, offensive.

Offer, ɔf.fer, proposal, bid, to make a proposal; offered, ɔf.ferd.

Offer-ing, proposing, a sacrifice, a gift; offer-er, offer-able.

Offertory, ɔf.fēr.tō.ry (not ɔf.frē.tō.ry, a common error), certain sentences in the Book of Common Prayer, alms.

Old Eng. offr[ic]ian], past offrode, past part. offrod, offrung, offering.

Lat. offere (of[ob]fere), to bring before [the gods], to offer.

Office, ɔf.fis, function, a place of trust, a room for transacting business; office-bearer, -bāre'-er, one who holds office.

Officer, ɔf.fī.zer, one holding a commission, a public servant; officered, ɔf.fī.z'rd, furnished with officers; officer-ing.

Official, ɔf.fish'āl, one vested with office, pertaining to office, authorised by authority; official-ly.

Officiate, ɔf.fish'ā.te, to perform the "service" [in church]; officiāt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), officiāt-ing (Rule xix.)

Officious, ɔf.fish'ūs, over com'plaisant; officious-ly, officious-ness. Office copy, an official copy.

Official manager, one appointed to wind up the affairs of a joint-stock company.

Latin officium, officiālis, officiōsus (of[ob]facio, to act for another).

Officinal, ɔf.fis'ā.nāl. "Officinals" are drugs directed in the pharmacopœia to be kept in stock by druggists.

Latin officīna, a warehouse; French [preparation] officināle.

Off- (Teutonic prefix of-), apart from, severed from.

Off-al, ɔf.fāl, refuse food for pigs, &c. (off-fall, Germ. abfall.)

Off-ing, ɔf.fing, at a distance from the shore, steering from land. (Old English of, -ung, off-ing.)

Off-scouring, awf.skōwr'-ing, dregs. (Old Eng. of-scōrung.)

Off-set, awf'-set, a young shoot or bulb separated from the parent root. Offset-staff, a measuring rod of ten links.

A set-off, one thing set against another to cancel both.

To set-off, to show to advantage, to start.

Old English ofsetlin, an offset; ofsettan, to set off.

Off-shoot, anything arising out of another.

To shoot off, to fire. (Old Eng. ofsceōtan, ofsceōtung.)

Off-spring, progeny. (Old English ofsprinc or ofspring.)

Off-ward, awf'.wūd, leaning off from shore. (O. E. of-weard.)

Oft, contraction of often, frequently. (Old English oft.)

Often, off'n (not off'ten), frequently; (comp.) oftener, off'n.er; (super.) oftenest, off'n-est.

Old English oft, comp ofstor, super, oftost.

Ogee, o.g (often written O.G), a moulding with a double curve, one concave and the other convex. (Should be ogeve.)

French ogive or angive, from the Latin angere, to augment, because the "O.G arch" raises the height of the crown by a second curve.

Ogham, og'.ām, a cipher used by the ancient Irish.

Ogle, ō'g'l, a side glance, to cast a coquetish glance towards one of the opposite sex, to look at a woman through an eye-glass; ogled, ō'.g'ld; o'gling, o'gling-ly, o'gler.

Spanish ojuelo, an eye-glass.

Oglio or olio, plu. olíos, ō'.lē.ōze, a medley, a hotch-potch.

A corruption of olla (Spanish olla podrida, a pot of all sorts of fragments boiled up together, similar to the French pot au feu).

Latin olla, a pot, ollāris, potted, ollārius, kept in a pot. Probably some confusion between olla (a pot) and ollejo (rind and peel) may have contributed to the manufacture of our word.

Ogre, fem. ogress, ō'.g'r, ō'.grēs, a bogey; ogre-ish.

Ogres (ō'.g'rz) were supposed to devour human beings.

Old Eng. oga, terror; French ogre. Supposed to be from the Ogurs, Oigours or Huns, said by the credulous historians of the middle ages to have drunk human blood and fed on human flesh.

Oh! O. Owe. Ho! Hoe. How.

Oh! exclamation of pain, distress, excitement.

O, sign of address: as O king, live for ever!

Owe (to rhyme with grōw), to be indebted to. (O. E. āg[an].)

Ho! a call to arrest attention. (Welsh ho!)

Hoe, hō, an instrument for hoeing. (French houe.)

Hōw, in what manner, to what a degree. (Old Eng. hū.)

-oid (Gk. termination [o]-eidos), nouns resembling: as spheroid, sphairo-eidos, like a sphere.

These terminations ought to be open: as sphero.id; in French the more correct form is employed sphéroïde, sphéroïdal.

Oil, a fatty liquid. Hoyle, a writer on games: as whist, &c.

Oiled (1 syl.), oil'-ing, oil'-y, oil'i-ness (Rule xi.)

Essential oils, oils which evaporate in boiling.

Drying oils, oils which dry and lose their greasy feeling: as linseed oil, poppy oil, nut oil.

Uctious oils, oils which do not dry: as olive oil, almond oil, rapeseed oil, whale oil.

Mineral oil, oil extracted from certain minerals: as lignite, bitu'men. Paraffin is a mineral oil.

Rock oil, oil which rises from wells or springs, and requires simply to be collected and packed: as petrôlëum.

Oil-cake, cakes made of flax-seed, rape-seed, &c., from which the oil has been extracted. It is a food for cattle.

Oil colour, a pigment mixed with oil. Pigments mixed with water are called water colours.

Oiled-paper, oiled-silk; oil-cloth, floor cloth; oil-skin, a sort of waterproof cloth; oil-cups, oil gas.

Oiling out, running a thin coat of drying oil over a part of a picture to be wiped out.

Oilman, plu. oilmen, one who sells oil.

Oil-mill, oil-nut, oil-painting; oil-stone, a hone.

Oil-spring, a spring from which oil issues; oil-well.

Oil of bricks, obtained by subjecting bricks soaked in oil to the process of distillation. Used by lapidaries.

Oil of vit'riol, sulphuric acid.

The liquid principle of oil is called oleine, ô'.lě.în.

The fatty or *suet*y part is stearine, stě'.ă.rîn.

Oleaginous, ô'.lě.adj''.î.nūs; oleaginous-ness.

Olefiant, ô'.lěf''.î.ant, a manufactured oil.

Oleic, ô'.lě.îk; oleiferous, ô'.lě.îf''.ě.rūs. (See Oleic.)

Oleom'eter (should be Eleometer), an oil gauge.

Latin oleum, oleāgnus; Greek elaiôn metron.

Oint'ment, a salve. (Latin unguentum, ungo, to anoint.)

Old, (comp.) old-er, (super.) old-est. Eld, eld-er, eld-est.

(1) Old, older, oldest, is applied to both persons and things.

Eld, elder, eldest, is applied to persons only.

(2) Older, oldest, denote duration of time.

Elder, eldest, denote priority of birth, and have no reference to length of age, as one's eldest son may have lived fewer years than the youngest.

This is my youngest son (forty years old to-day), his elder brother (my eldest son) died in infancy.

Old-ness, old-ish (-ish added to adj. is dim., added to nouns it means "like"); olden times, of yore.

Old-fashioned, antiquated. Old age.

Old-clothesman, -klōthz-man, one who buys old clothes.

Old bachelor, fem. old maid, an unmarried man or woman past the usual marrying age. Old Tom, strong gin.

Old school, having the manners and opinions of times gone by. New school, having modern manners, &c.

An old song, worthless. Old style, the Julian mode of reckoning. New style, the reformed method.

Old Red Sandstone, the series of strata between the coal measures and the Silurian system.

Old Testament, the Bible from Genesis to Malachi. From Matthew to Revelation is the New Testament.

Old Eng. eald, comp. ylðra, super. yldest, ealdor, an elder, ealdorman, an alderman. "Ealdfæder," aldfather, is a much better word than the hybrid grandfather, and so is aldalfather than the meaningless great grandfather.

There is no reason why we should not revive the verb eald[ian], past ealdode, past part. ealdod, to [grow] old.

Oleaginous, ō.lē.ădg''.ī.nūs, oily, unctious; oleag'inous-ness. See Oil. (Latin oleag'nius, oleum, oil.)

Oleander, ō.lē.ăn''.der, an evergreen shrub, the rose bay.

Oleaster, ō.lē.ăs''.ter, the wild-olive-tree. (Latin oleaster.)

Olefiant gas (not oli-), ō.lēf''.ī.ant gās, made by heating sulphuric acid and alcohol. (Latin oleum-ficio [fācio].)

So called because it forms with chlorine a compound resembling oil.

Oleic acid, ō.lē.īk ăs'sīd, an acid resulting from the action of certain oils upon potash during the formation of soap.

Oleate, ō.lē.ate, a salt of oleic acid (-ate denotes a salt formed from an acid in -ic with a base).

Oleiferous, ō.lē.īf''.ē.rūs (not ō.lēf''.ē.rūs), producing oil.

Oleine, ō.lē.īn, the liquid portion of oil and fat. The suet or fatty part is called stearine, stē.ār.īn.

As "stearine" is Greek (stēār, suet), "oleine" should be the Greek "elaine" [e.lay'.īn] also, and not the Latin "oleine."

Oleon, ō.lē.ōn, a liquid obtained from oleine and lime.

Oleometer, ō.lē.ōm''.ē.ter, an instrument for testing oils.

This hybrid should be elæometer, Greek elaiōn-mētron.

Oleo-phosphoric, -fos.fōr'rik, an acid found in brain, &c.

Oleo-resin, turpentine and vegetable balsam.

Oleo-saccharum, -săk'hă.rŭm, oil and sugar.

Latin oleum, oleum-fero, oleum with Greek metron.

Olfactory, pertaining to the sense of smelling. The olfactories, ōl.fāk'.tō.rīz, the organs of smelling, the nose.

Latin olfactus. An ill-formed word. The Latin olfactorium means a "nose-gay," already appropriated to another meaning.

Olibanum, ō.lib'.ā.nŭm, an aromatic gum resin. (Gk. libānos.)

"Libanos" is the tree, and libānōtos the gum resin, al Arab article.

Oligo- olig- before a (Greek prefix), a few, little (olīgōs, a few).

Olig-archy, plu. oligarchies, ōl'i.gar.kīz (Rule xlv.), the rule vested in "the few"; oligarch, ōl'i.gark, one of the rulers of an oligarchy; oligarchical, ōl'i.gar'.kī.kŭl; oligarchical-ly. (Greek olīgōs archē, rule of the few.)

Oligo-clase, ōl'i.go.klāz, soda-felspar.

Greek oligo- klāsis, little fracture, in allusion to its cleavago.

Olio, plu. olios, a medley, a hotch-potch.

A corruption of olla (Span. olla podrida), Lat. olla, a pot. The Fr. pot au feu into which all sorts of fragments are boiled together.

Olive, ōl'iv, a tree, the fruit of the tree, a brownish-green; olivaceous, ōl'i.vay'.shŭs, olive-green, olive-like; olive-brown, a colour; olive-crown, given at the Olympic games; olive branch, emblem of peace; olive-oil, olive-yard. (Latin ōlivum, ōlivāceus.)

Olla podrida (Spanish), ōl'.lah pōd.rē'.dah, a medley.

The tainted pot (Latin olla, a pot), being so often replenished and so rarely emptied and purified.

Olympiad, ō.līm'.pī.ād, a period of four years (the interval between the Olympic games of Greece), this period formed the Grecian standard of computation, like our A.D.

Olympic, ō.līm'.pīk, adj. [An] olympic, plu. olympics, the olympic festival. Olym'pian, living on Olympus.

(Zeus, the Muses, &c., are Olympian not Olympic. The games are Olympic not Olympian.)

Olum pia, a district of Elis, in Greece, where the games were held, Olum pia, the games, Olumpic ion, Olumpikos. Olumpōs, a hill in Olympia the fabled residence of the gods. Unhappily we Latinise the Greek u and k into y and c, whereby we lose the softness of the u and the characteristic value of k for the too common c.

Ombre, ōmē'.bray (not ōm'.ber), a game at cards for three.

Spanish hombre, the man [who plays for the pool against two adversaries]. Spadille (ace of spades), the best card. Manille (lowest card in trumps), the next best card. Basto (ace of clubs), the third best card. Ponto (the ace of hearts or spades if trumps), the fourth best card. All the tricks in one hand Vole. The victory against Ombre is termed Codille.

Ombrometer, ōm.brōm'.ē.ter, a rain-gauge. (Gk. ombros. rain.)

Omega, ō'.mē.gah (not ōm'.e.gah nor ō.mē'.gah), long o, and the last letter of the Greek alphabet; the end.

"I am alpha and omega, the beginning and the end" (Rev. 1. 8).

Omelet, om'.lēt (not om'.ē.lēt nor or'.mē.lēt), a sort of pancake made of beaten eggs. (French omelette [om.let].)

Omen, o'men, a presage, a prognostic; omened, o'mend, prognosticated; ominous, om'.ī.nūs, foreboding, inauspicious; om'inous-ly, om'inous-ness.

Latin omen, gen. omēnis, omēnōsus (Greek oiomai, to forebode).

Omicron, o.mi'.krōn (not om'.ī.krōn), short o in Greek.

Omission, o.mis'h'on, failure to do, neglect; omissive, -siv.

Omit, o.mīt', to leave out; omitt'-ed (R. xxxvi.), omitt'-ing, R. iv. (Latin omitto, supine omissum, omissio.)

Verbs in -t and -te sometimes take -tion and sometimes -sion. The rule is this: if the supine of the Latin verb is -sum, "-sion" is to be used, if not "-tion." Thus "omit" makes omission, and "dis-sent" dissension, but "inspect" makes inspection, &c.

Om'ni- (Latin prefix), nouns, all, entirely (omnīs, all).

Omnibus, plu. omnibuses (not omnibī), om'.nī.būs, means a conveyance for all [who choose to use it].

It is the dative case plural of "omnis" and not a nominative case.

Om'ni-farious, -fair'rī.ūs, of all varieties of form.

Latin omnifārius (omnibus modis est fari).

Om'ni-percipient, -per.sip'ī.ent, understanding all things, seeing all things. Omni-percipientce.

Latin omni-[omnia]percipiens, gen. percipientis.

Omni-potent, om.nīp'.ō.tent, all-powerful; omnipotent-ly.

Omnipotence, omnipotency.

Latin omnipotentia, omnipotens, gen. omnipotentis (omnis posse).

Om'ni-pres'ent, every-where present. Omnipres'ence.

Latin omni-præsens, gen. præsentis (præ sum).

Omniscient, om.nīs'ī.ent (not om.nīsh'ī.ent), knowing all things; omniscient-ly. Omniscience, om.nīs'ī.ence; omniscency, knowledge of everything.

Latin omni-[omnia]scientia, sciens, knowing all things.

Omnium gatherum, om'.nī.ūm gāth.ēr.ūm, a familiar dog.

Latin phrase for a miscellaneous collection, a gathering-together of all-sorts-of-things.

Omni-vorous, om.nīv'.ō.rūs, eating both vegetable and animal food. Omnivores, om.nīv'.ō.reez, an order of birds.

Latin omni-[omnia]vorans, eating all-things.

On- (a Teutonic prefix), upon, forwards: on-set, on-wards.

-on (Fr. term., Lat. -o), nouns. In Chem. a metalloid: as boron.

-one, -oon, -on (augmentative), nouns, large: as trom-bone (a large wind instrument), ball-oon (a large ball), million (a large thousand).

On. ŭp, ɔn'. There is no real difference between these two prepositions. We say:

It lies on the ground (or) upon the ground (rest).

Put this on the table (or) upon the table (motion).

He got on the coach (or) upon the coach (ascent).

It fell on the ground (or) upon the ground (descent).

On this hint I spake (or) upon this hint (as a consequence).

On better acquaintance (or) upon better acquaintance.

On-to for upon or up to is a vulgarism: as

The dog jumped on-to [upon] the table.

The horse went well on-to [up to] the second mile-stone.

But when on is part of a compound verb to may follow:
as hold-on to the ropes; laugh-on to your heart's content.

On dit (Fr.), ɔ'n dee, a flying rumour, a report.

Once, wŭnce (rhymes with dunce), a single time.

At once, all at one time, immediately. Once and again, repeatedly. ("Once" from one; as Germ. einst from ein.)

One, wŭn. Won, wŭn. On. Wan, wŏn.

One, an individual, a single specimen. Ones, wŭnz, persons; one-ness, wŭn'-ness, unity. At one, in accord.

One o'clock; one-eyed; one-sided; one-sided-ness.

One = the French on, someone, I myself.

"On" is a contraction of homme ('om, on), and "one" is our man, mon.

The Germans say wie man sagen möchte (as one might say), wie man es wünscht (as one would have it), hier man spricht deutsche.

Errors of Speech.

(I.) One is not to be changed into another pronoun in the same sentence.

Hence the following sentences are incorrect:

(1) In former days one went by coach,

But now he [one] goes by train.

(2) In such a scene one might forget his cares,

And dream himself [oneself], in poet's mood, away.

(3) One is apt to forget himself [oneself] in such a matter.

(4) One ought to take care of his [one's] health.

(5) One should do a thing himself [oneself], if he [one] wishes it to be well done.

(6) In correcting the faults of others one ought to be doubly careful to be correct himself [oneself].

(II.) One Another. One to Another.

To may precede "one another" or may be placed between the two words: as "be kind to one another" (or) "one to another," but the former is less pedantic. In the one case "one-another" is a compound pronoun, and in the other case it is the Latin alius alium, as alius alium diligebat.

(III.) A not an should precede one, because there is in reality a digamma before the o (w[one]). Hence "such an one," "many an one," should be "such a one," "many a one."

"One," O. E. æn or on. "On," O. E. on. "Wan," pale, O. E. won.

"Won," Old Eng. winn[an], past wan, past part. wunnen.

Onerary, ɔn'.ĕ.r.ă.ry. Honorary, ɔn'.ō.r.ă.ry.

Onerary, adapted for bearing burdens, weighty.

Honorary, conferring honour without emolument.

Onerous, ón'.ĕrŭs (not ō'.ně.rŭs), burthensome; onerous-ly.

Onus, ō'.nŭs, stigma, trouble, weight.

Lat. onus, gen. onēris, onērārius, onērōsus (Gk. ónōs, an ass).

Onion, ŭn'.yŭn (not on'.yŭn), a bulbous vegetable.

French oignon, Latin unio, gen. uniōnis. The connection between onion, pearl, and union (in Latin) is very curious. "Unio" means all three. Pearls were so called because two are never found alike in any shell, but each pearl is unique. Onion is so called from its pearly lustre, and union from its oneness.

Only, ōn.ly (to rhyme with lonely), one alone, merely.

Only-begotten [son], one [son] without any second.

(?) The position of only.

As a rough general rule Only should stand immediately before the word it qualifies, and Alone immediately after, but this rule in regard to only is very laxly followed: Thus we say

(1) "I only shot one bird all the day."

(2) "I shot only one bird all the day."

(3) "I shot one bird only all the day."

The first of these is the most usual, although grammarians dislike it. In example (1) "shooting-birds" is a compound word qualified by the number one, two, &c. (as it may be), and "only" expresses the fact that my success in "shooting-birds" was limited to only shooting-one-bird. This is really more definite than either example 2 or 3, where a supplemental clause seems to be required: as

"I shot only one bird [but several hares]." or

"I shot one bird only [but several hares]."

Old English āna, ānan or ēnlic (ān or ēn, one).

Onomatopœia, ō.nŏm'.ā.to-pē''.ah, an imitation word: as moo, caw, mewl, buzz, fizz, crack, bang, &c.

Onomatopoetic, ō.nŏm'.ā.to-pō.ēv'.ik.

Lat. ōnŏmātopŏia (Gk. ōnŏma poiēō, [the sound] makes the word).

This very long and difficult word might be shortened by omitting -to-, as in ὄνομα-κλήδην, ὄνομα-κλυτός, ὄνομα-κριτος, &c.

On'set, the first brunt, a violent attack. (Old Eng. onset[an].)

Onslaught, on'.slawt, a slaughterous attack. (Old Eng. onslæge.)

Ontology, ōn.tŏl'.ŏ.gy, the science of existence, its reality, and its object; ontologic, ōn'.tŏ.lŏdg''.ik; ontological, ōn'.tŏ.lŏdg''.ik.kəl; ontolog'ical-ly; ontologist, ōn.tŏl'.ŏ.gist.

Gk. [ton] logos, discourse about τὸ ὂν existence or being.

Onus, ō'.nus, the weight, the difficulty, the task: as

Onus probandi, the task of proof;

Onus importandi, the charge and risk of importing merchandise.

Onward (adj.), forward. Onwards (adv.), in advance.

Although onward is sometimes used adverbially, yet it must be remembered that it is the final s which gives the adverbial character to the word, -es being our native adverbial suffix: as nights, nightly (anights). Old English on-weard, on-weardes.

Onyx, ō'.nix, a streaky agate, an abscess in the corner of the eye.

Onycha, ón'í.kah, the shell of the onyx-fish. Onymancy, ón'í.măn.sý, divination by the nails.

Lat. onyx, gen. onychis; Gk. ónux, ónuchōs, the nail, an onyx or nail-stone. Any stone with white and other bands is an onyx, whether agate, jasper, chalcedony, &c. The white crescent at the base of our nails gave rise to the word.

Oolite, ō'.ō.līte (3 syl. not oo'.līte, 2 syl.), a variety of limestone.

Oolitic, ō'.ō.līt'ík. Oolithes, ō'.ō.līthz, fossil eggs.

Oology, ō.ōl'.o.gý, the science of eggs and nests.

Greek ōōn lōgōs; ōōn līthōs, egg-stone, so called because its small rounded grains resemble eggs.

-oon (Fr. and Ital. ending) nouns, large: ball-oon, a large ball.

Ooze. Whose. Hose. Hoes. Owes. (All one syl.).

Ooze, soft mud, percolation, liquid of a tan-vat; to percolate, oozed, oozd; ooz-ing, ooze'ing; ooz'ing-ly, ooz'-y.

Whose, hooze, poss. of Who. (Old English hwa, hwas.)

Hose, hōze, stockings. (Old English hose, plu. hosan.)

Hoes (to rhyme with grows), plu. of hoe. (French houe.)

Owes, ōwz (to rhyme with grows), 3 sing. of owe. (O. E. āg[an].)

"Ooze," O. E. wōds, wōsig, oozy. The loss of the w is to be regretted.

Opacity, o.pās'ítý, obscurity, want of transparency. (See Opaque.)

Op-, for ob- before -p (Latin prefix), See Ob-.

Opal, ō'.pāl (not ō.pawl), a precious stone very iridescent.

Opalise, ō'.pāl.ize. Opalesce, ō'.pāl.ěss'.

Opalise, to convert into a substance like opal.

Opalesce, to exhibit the iridescence of an opal.

Opalised, ō'.pāl.īzd; opalising (Rule xix.), ō'.pāl.ize.ing.

Opalesced, ō'.pāl.ěst'; opalesc-ing (R. xix.), ō'.pāl.ěss'.ing.

Opalescence, ō'.pāl.ěss''.sense; opales'cent, ō'.pāl.ěss''.sent.

Opaline, ō'.pāl.īne, adj. of opal (-ine, Lat., "pertaining to").

Lat. ōpālum (Gk. ōps, gen. ōpōs, the eye), a stone lustrous as the eye.

Opaque, ō.pāke', not transparent; opaque-ly, opaque'-ness.

French opaque: Latin ōpācus (ab ope, i.e., terrā, Scaliger).

The introduction of these French terminations in -que is much to be deplored. They do not in any way assist in the pronunciation, but quite the reverse, and the ordinary spelling opaque (Latin ōpācus) would be much better.

Ope (1 syl.), contraction of open. Hope (1 syl.) Hoop.

Open, ō'p'n, to disclose, free to all, artless, &c., to undo, to commence, &c.; opened, ō'p'nd; open-ing, ō'.p'ning; openings, apertures, vacancies; open-er, ō'p'n.er; open-ly, ō'p'n.ly; open-ness, ō'p'n-ness. Open-hearted, frank; open-mouthed, greedy. The open, the open sea, &c.

To open up, to lay open a mine, to make a trade.

Old Eng. open[ian], past openode, past part. openod, openlice, openly.

Opera, öp'.ě.raħ, a musical drama; operatic, öp'.ě.răt''ik; operatical, öp'.ě.răt''i.käl; operat'ical-ly. Opera-house, a theatre for operas. Opera-dancer, opera-singer.

Ital. opera; Lat. öpëra, work; operæ theaträles, actors of plays.

Opera-meter, öp'.ě.räm''ě.ter, an instrument for measuring the amount of work done, an instrument for measuring the number of revolutions made by a wheel or shaft.

A hybrid: Latin öpëra, Greek metron, a work measurer.

"Ergometer" would be good Gk., ergon metron (Mensor is the Lat.)

Operate, öp'.ě.rate, to work effectually; op'erät-ed (Rule xxxvi.), op'erät-ing (Rule xix.), op'erät-or (Rule xxxvii.)

Operation, öp'.ě.ray''shŭn; operative, öp'.ě.ra.tiv, a skilled workman, effective, working.

Lat. öpërätio, öpërätör, v. öpëräri (öpëra, works); Fr. opération.

Operculum, plu. opercula, o.per'.kü.lŭm, plu. o.per'.kü.lah (in Bot.), a lid or cover; (in Conch.), the horny substance with which snails and other molluscs close the aperture of their shell, the gill-cover of fishes. Oper'cular, adj.

Latin öperculum, a lid or cover; v. öperculäre (op[ob]pario).

Ophi-, öf'fi-, and ophio-, öf'fi.o- (Greek prefix) nouns, a serpent.

Ophi-cleide, -klide, the "serpent" improved (a wind inst.)

Greek ophi-[ophis]kleis, gen. kleidos, a key, the keyed serpent.

This word would be more regular if written ophio-cleide.

Ophidia, öf'id'.i.ah, the reptile order including serpents.

Ophidian, öf'id'.i.än, one of the ophidia, pertaining to serpents. Ophidion, öf'id'.i.ön, the eelpout; ophidions, öf'id'.i.üs, snake-like.

These words are all of them objectionable. Ophis makes ophis (Lat.) and opheós (Greek) in the gen., not ophidos. The Latin form "serpentina" would be less objectionable.

Ophio-logy, öf'fi.öl''.o.gy, that part of Natural History which treats of serpents; ophiologic, öf'fi.öl''.ö.djik; ophiological, öf'fi.ö.lödj''i.käl; ophiol'ogist, -djist.

Greek ophio-[ophis]-logos, treatise on serpents.

Ophio-mancy, öf'fi.ö.män''.sy, divination by serpents.

Greek ophio-[ophis]manteia, serpent divination.

Ophio-morphous, öf'fi.ö.mör.füs, snake-shaped.

Greek ophio-[ophis]morphé, snake shape.

Ophio-phagous, öf'fi.öf''fŭ.güs, feeding on snakes.

Greek ophio-[ophis]phägö, I eat serpents or snakes.

Ophites, öf'fites, a sect in the second century who maintained that the tempting-serpent in Paradise was Jesus.

Ophthalmo-, öf.ṛhăl'.mo- (Gk. pref.) nouns, the eye (ophthalmos).

Ophthalmia, öf.ṛhăl'.mŭ.ah, inflammation of the eye.

Ophthalmic, ôf.rhăl'.mĭk, pertaining to the eye.

Greek ophthalmia, disease of the eye (ophthalmos, the eye).

Ophthalmodynia, ôf.rhăl'.mo-dĭn''ĭ.ah, pain in the eye.

Greek ophthalmo-[ophthalmos] ôduné, pain in the eye.

Ophthalmodulia, ôf.rhăl'.mo-du.lĭ''ah, eye-service.

Greek ophthalmo-[ophthalmos] douleia, eye-service.

Ophthalmology, ôf.rhăl'.môl''.ô.gy, the science which treats of the eye; ophthalmologist, ôf'.rhăl'.môl''.ô.djĭst.

Greek ophthalmo-[ophthalmos] lôgôs, treatise on the eye.

Ophthalmoptosis, ôf.rhăl'.mop.tô''.sĭs, protrusion of the whole eye. (Greek ophthalmo-ptôsis, eye falling-out.)

Ophthalmoscope, ôf'.rhăl'.mô.skôpe, an instrument for inspecting the eye; ophthalmoscopy, ôf'.rhăl'.mô.skô.py.

Greek ophthalmo-[ophthalmos] skôpeô, I inspect the eye.

(Except in phantascope and telescope, the vowel preceding -scope is always -o-.)

Opiate, ô'.pĭ.âte, a narcotic. (See Opium.)

Opine, ô.pĭnê', to think, to suppose; opined (2 syl.), opin-ing (R. xix.), ô.pĭnê'.ĭng. (Lat. ôpinor, to think, to suppose.)

Opinion, ô.pĭn'.yŭn, belief, conviction, notion; opinionated, ô.pĭn'.ĭ.ô.nâte.ĕd, conceited, wedded to one's own opinions; opinionative, ô.pĭn'.ĭ.ô.nâ.tĭv; opinionative-ly, opinionative-ness; opinioned, ô.pĭn'.yŭnd; opinion-ist.

Latin ôpinio, gen. ôpinĭonis, v. ôpinâri; French opinion.

Opium, ô'.pĭ.ŭm, the juice of the white poppy (used as a medicine).

Opiate, ô'.pĭ.âte, a narcotic; opiated, ô'.pĭ.âte.ed, mixed with opium. (Lat. ôpĭum; Gk. ôpĭôn, from ôpôs, juice.)

Opodeldoc (not opidildock), ô'.po.dĕl''.dôc, a liniment.

A word coined by Paracelsus (du grec opos, suc, et d'un mot arabe).

Opossum, ô.pôs'.sŭm, an American and Australian animal, the females have an abdominal pouch in which they can carry their young, contracted to 'possum. (Indian opassom.)

Oppidan, ôp'.pĭ.dăn, an Eton student, not on the foundation, who boards in the town. Sometimes applied to university students who lodge in the town. (Latin oppidānus.)

Opponent, ôp.pô'.nent (not ô.pô'.nent), an adversary, a rival.

Opponency, ôp.pô'.nĕn.cy, a disputation in the schools, in which the student opposes the professor. If the professor opposes the student it is an Act.

Latin opponens, gen. -nentis (op[ob]pono, to place in opposition).

Opportunity, plu. opportunities (Rule xlv.), ôp'.por.tŭ''.nĭ.tĭz (not ô'.por.tŭ''.nĭ.ty), an occasion, a convenient time, &c.; opportune, ôp'.por.tŭne; opportune-ly, opportune-ness.

Lat. opportŭnitas, opportŭnus (op[ob]portus, over-against the haven). It means "timely as a port to a ship."

Oppose, õp.põze' (not õ'.põze), to confront, to resist; opposed' (2 syl.), oppõs'-ing (Rule xix.), oppõs'ing-ly, oppõs'-er, oppõs'-able. (Only -ce and -ge retain the -e before -able.)

Opposite, õp'.põ.zít (not õp'.põ.zíte), in front; opposite-ly, opposite-ness. Oppositive, õp'.põ.zí.tív.

Opposition, õp'.põ.zísh''.ǎn, hostility, contrariety; opposi-tion-ist, oppo'nent; oppo'nency, a school disputation.

Latin oppõstítio, oppõstítum (op[ob]põnẽre, 'supine' põsítum, 'to place in opposition'). (See Opponent.)

Oppress, õp.prẽss (not õ.press'), to treat harshly, to overtax; oppressed, õp.prẽst'; oppress'-ing, oppress'-or (R. xxxvii.)

Oppression, õp.prẽsh''.ǎn (not õ.presh'.on, a common error).

Oppressive, õp.prẽs'.sív (not õ.prẽs'.sív, a common error), oppressive-ly, oppressive-ness.

Lat. oppressio, oppressor, oppressus, v. opprĩmo (op[ob]prĩmo [prẽmol, to press down]; Fr. oppresser, oppression, oppressif, oppresseur.)

Opprobrious, õp.prõ'.brĩ.ǎs, abusive, offensive; oppo'brious-ness, oppo'brious-ly. Opprobrium, plu. opprobriums, -ǎmz.

Latin opprobrium, opprobriosus, v. opprobĩrẽ (op[ob]probrum.)

Oppugn, õp.pũne', to deny. Impugn, ĩm.pũne', to accuse. Oppũned (2 syl.), oppũn'-ing (Rule xix.), oppũn'-er.

Latin oppugno (op[ob]pũgno, to fight against).

Optative, õp.tay'.tív, a mood of verbs. (Latin optātívus.)

Optics, õp'.tĩks, the science of light and vision.

Optic, õp'.tĩk, relating to optics; optic lens, optic nerves.

Optician, õp.tĩsh''.ǎn, a maker of optical instruments.

Optical, õp'.tĩ.kǎl; opt'ical-ly, opt'ical in'struments, opt'ical delu'sion, a delusion of the sight; opt'ical par'allax, that of objects viewed by one eye alternately.

Optigraph, õp'.tĩ.grǎf, a telescope for copying landscapes.

Optometer, õp.tõm'.ẽ.ter, an instrument for determining the limits of distinct vision.

Greek [ta]optĩka or [he]optĩké [techné], optĩkõs, v. optõmai, to see. All the sciences derived from Greek words ending in -ka are plu., except the five borrowed from the French: arithmetic, logic, magic, music, and rhetoric. Latin optĩcus, optĩce, optics.

Optimates, õp'.tĩ.mǎtes, the magnates of ancient Rome.

Senior Optime, se'.nĩ.or or õp'.tĩ.me, one of the second class of the mathematical Tripos in the Camb. exam. for degrees.

Ju'nior optime, one of the third class of the mathematical Tripos... The first class are called Wranglers, and the first of the first class is called The Senior Wrangler.

Optimism, õp'.tĩ.mǎzm, the doctrine that "whatever is is best." Opt'imist, one who thinks that "whatever is is best," one who thinks man will go on improving as long as the world endures. A pes'simist thinks that nothing can be worse than the present order of things, and that the world goes on from worse to worse.

Lat. optimas, plu. optimātes, optimus (opto, to wish), all one can wish.

Option, öp'shün, choice; option-äl, op'tional-ly. (Lat. optio.)

Opulent (one -p-), öp'pū.lent, wealthy; op'ulent-ly. Op'ulence, öp'pū.lence. (Lat. opulentia, opulentus, from opes, wealth.)

Opuscle, o.pūs'.küle, a brochure. (Lat. opusculum, a little work.)

-or, frequently follows t- and s-, instead of -er (Latin -tor, -sor), an agent. It is a pity the rule is not universal.

-or (Latin suffix), abstract nouns: error, labor, terror; some of this class of words retain the Frenchified -our.

(No useful object is gained by retaining the French ending (1), because so many words have lost it, and (2) because so many have it which are not from the French.)

¶ During the present century it has been dropped in the following words: emperor, error, exterior, horror, inferior, interior, successor, superior. In many other words it had been dropped before.

¶ It is retained in the following words, none of which are French: arbour, behaviour, clangour, demeanour, endeavour, flavour, neighbour, tremour.

¶ In the following it quite misleads: armour (armure), harbour (havre), parlour (parloir), rancour (rancune).

Only nineteen words remain to keep up the delusion. (See -our.)

∴ Whence it follows that uniformity requires one of two things: either that every noun of this category should end in -or or -our, as every adjective ends in -ous; or else that all nouns from the French -eur should end in -our, and none besides, or the "trumpet gives an uncertain sound."

Or, gold (in Her.), (conj.) correlative of either.

(?) Or or Nor in negative sentences.

RULE (1) If the negation refers to both or all together "nor;" but

(2) If the negation refers to either one not both together "or."

(3) After neither or nor, the correlative must be "nor."

It is not for kings to drink wine nor for princes strong drink.

Whoever honoureth not his father or mother let him die the death.

Fight neither with small nor great (1 Kings xxii. 31).

Thou nor thy son, nor thy daughter, nor the stranger.. (Ex. xx. 10).

Or ever, before (a corruption of ere ever, before ever).

"Or," Old Eng. oththe or oththon: Tell us by what auctoritie thou doest these thynges, other [oththon] who is he that gave the thys auctoritie.—Tyndale, "New Testament."

Oracle, ör'rä.k'l. Auricle, aw'.rī.k'l, the external ear.

Oracle, a divine response, the temple where oracles were consulted, the deity or person who utters the response, &c.

Oracles, the communication of God to man.

Oracular, Auricular, Auricula, o.räk'kü.lar, aw'.rīk'kü.lah.

Oracular, pertaining to an oracle, of the nature of an oracle.

Auricular [confession], uttered in the ear, &c.

Auricula, the bear's ear. (Latin auris, an ear; -cula, dim.)

Orac'ular-ly; oraculous, o.răk'kŭ.lŭs; orac'ulous-ness.

"Oracle," Latin oracŭlum ("ore pronuntio" so the Greek lŏgŏn, an oracle, is from lŏgo, to say or speak. Cicero says: "quŏd inest in his [oracŭlis] deorum oratio").

"Auricular," Latin auriculăris, auriculărius (auris, an ear).

Oral, ō'.răl. Horal, hŏ'.răl. Aural, aw'.răl.

Oral, ō'.răl, by word of mouth; oral-ly. (Fr. oral; Lat. os ōris.)

Horal, hŏ'.răl, relating to hours. (Lat. hŏra; Gk. hŏra, the hour.)

Aural, aw'.răl, pertaining to the ear. (Latin auris, the ear.)

Orange, ō'r'ŋj, a fruit, a colour; orangery, ō'r'ŋj.ry (not ō'.ĕŋj.ĕr.y), a house where oranges are reared artificially.

Orange-man, plu. -men, one of the Irish protestant society organised, A.D. 1689, in support of William-of-Orange.

Orange-tawny, a brown yellow colour; orange-musk, a species of pear; china orange, tchĭ'.nah ō'r'ŋj.

Orange-ade (3 syl.), a drink made with orange-juice.

French orange (pomum aurantiŭm, the golden fruit, aurum, gold, the "golden fruit of the Hesperides," so famed in fable).

Orang outang, ō.răŋg' oo.tang', one of the ape tribe.

Malay orang houlan, the wild man [of the woods].

Oration, o.ray'.shŭn, a speech. Horatian, hŏ.ray''.shĕ'ăn, after the manner of Horace, the Roman poet.

Orator, ō'ră.tŏr (Rule xxxvii.); oratorical, ō'ră.tŏr'ŕĭ.kăl; oratorical-ly. Oratory, ō'ră.tŏ.ry, the art of an orator.

Oratory, plu. oratories, ō'ră.tŏ.rĭz, a private chapel.

(This comes from the Latin orāre, to pray, and it would have been much better if we had accepted the French oratoire.)

Oratorio, plu. oratorios, ō'ră.tŏr'ŕĭ.ŏze, a sacred musical drama without acting, scenery, or character costume.

(In the Latin the "ă" of all these words is long, as it is in "orătĭon.")

Orătĭo, orătŏr, orătŏriŭm; Italian oratorio; French oratorio.

Orb, a celestial sphere, a hollow globe; orb of day, the sun; orb of night, the moon; orb-like; orbbed (1 syl.)

Orbit, ō'.bĭt, the path of a heavenly body; orb'ital.

Orbicular, ō.bĭk'.ă.lar, spherical; orbic'ular-ly, orbicular-ness. Orbiculate, ō.bĭk'.ă.late, orbicular; orbic'ulăted.

Latin orbiculăris, orbiculătus, orbĭs, v. orbĭtare.

Orc, a species of whale, a man-eating sea-monster.

Old English orc, a goblin; Latin orca, a whale; Greek urca.

Orcadian, ō.kă'.dĭ.ăn, pertaining to the Orkney Islands, a native of the Orkneys. (Lat. orcădĕs (orca), the whale-islands.)

Orchard, ōrch'.rd, a fruit-garden; orch'ard-ist, one who cultivates an orchard as a trade; orch'ard-ing, making orchards.

Old English ortgeard or ortcerd a herb garden.

Orchestra, or'.kēs.trah (not ōk'.kēs.trah), a place assigned to musicians, the musicians assembled in an orchestra; orchestral, or.kēs'.trāl, suitable to an orchestra, &c.

Gk. orchēstra, the space where the chorus danced (orchēdōmai, to dance).

Orchis, or'.kīs [or orchid, or'.kīd], a plant; orchidaceous (Rule lxvi.), or'.kī.day''shūs; orchideous, or.kīd'.ē.ūs.

Orchidaceæ, or'.kī.day''sē.ē (-aceæ, an order of plants).

Greek orchēs, testicle, à cause de la forme des bulbes (Bouillet).

Latin orchis, gen. orchitis; French orchis or orchide.

Ord. Horde, hōrd. Hoard, hō'rd. Odd. Od. Hod. Ort.

Ord, an edge, a beginning: as ords and ends, corrupted into odds and ends. (Old Eng. ord, a point, a beginning.)

Horde, hōrd, a migratory tribe. (French horde.)

Hoard, hō'rd, a store. (Old English heord, a store.)

Odd, strange, not even. (Welsh odid, peculiarity, oddity.)

Od, the hypothetical agent of mesmeric phenomena.

Greek hōdōs, the way [mesmerism acts].

Hod, a dorsal for carrying bricks and mortar. (Fr. hotte.)

Ort, a fragment dropped from the mouth in eating. (O.E. oret.)

Ordain, or.dāne', to decree, to invest with ministerial office; ordained' (2 syl.), ordain'-ing, ordain'-er.

Ordination, or'.dī.nay''shūn. (Latin ordinatio, ordināre.)

Ordeal, or'.dē.āl (should be or.deel'), a scrutiny or severe test.

Fiery ordeal, a very severe trial, as when an accused person had to prove his innocence by holding red-hot iron in his hand or walking blindfold over red-hot plough-shares.

Water ordeal was performed by plunging the bare arm into boiling water or by being tossed into a river.

(The first was for the gentry. Both might be performed by deputy, and hence the phrase "passing through fire and water" to serve you.) Old English ōrdæl or ōrdāl, a judgment, an ordeal.

Or'der, arrangement, method, command, badge, to command; ordered, or'.derd; or'der-ing, order-er; order-ly, systematically; or'derli-ness, Rule xi. (Latin ordo, ordinis.)

Orderly, plu. orderlies, or'.der.līz, a soldier appointed to wait upon a commanding officer and to carry messages;

The orderly officer, the officer whose turn it is to superintend the cleanliness, food, and comforts of his regiment.

Orderly non-commissioned officer, the sergeant on duty for the week. His duty is to attend the orderly room for instructions and convey them to the proper quarters.

Orderly book, regimental orders entered by the captain.

Orders (in Arch.), the five styles of Greek architecture: viz., the Tuscan, Dor'ic, Iō'nic, Corinthian, and Composite.

- Holy Orders, the three offices of bishop, priest, and deacon.
In Holy Orders, belonging to any of these three orders.
To take Orders, to become an ordained minister.
- Order of the day, the business set down for consideration on the minutes. To move "for the order of the day," an artifice for burking a disagreeable motion by setting it aside for the routine business set down on the minutes.
- Orders in council, issued by the advice of the ministers.
- Order-book, a day-book in which orders are entered.
- Close orders, soldiers standing one pace off each other.
- Letters of Orders, a certificate given to one ordained to testify that he has been admitted into Holy Orders.
- Standing orders, regulations which must be observed by every member of parliament or of a club.
- Sailing orders, the final instructions given to ships of war.
- ¶ Ordinal, or' dī.nāl, the ordination service.
- Ordinal numbers, those which express order: as 1st, 2nd, 3rd, &c.; the numbers 1, 2, 3, are Cardinal Numbers.
 French ordinal, cardinal: Latin ordinālis, cardinālis.
- Ordinance, Ordinance, or' dī.nance, ord' nance.
- Ordinance, a law, a regulation. (Latin ordinans, -antis.)
- Ordinance, artillery (the word means "regulation guns").
- Ordinary, a table d'hôte, an established judge of an ecclesiastical court (usually the bishop of the diocese), the Newgate chaplain, customary, common; ordinary seamen.
- Ordinarily, or' dī.nā.rī.ly; in ordinary, in constant service, stately in attendance. (Latin ordinārius.)
- Ordination, or' dī.nay''shūn, consecration of the ministry.
 French ordination; Latin ordinatio, creation of governors.
- Ordinance, ord' nance. Ordinance, or' dī.nance, a law, a rule.
- Ordinance, artillery; ordnance-map, one of the maps under the authority of the Ordnance Department, from actual survey by the Royal Engineer corps.
- Both these words are from the Latin ordinans, gen. ordinantis, to settle by decree, to fix or establish by authority.
- Ordure, or' dū'r, dung. Orgeat, or' zhah, a beverage. Orgies (q.v.)
 "Ordure," Fr. ordure. "Orgeat," Fr. orgeat. "Orgies," Fr. orgies.
- Ore. Oar. O'er. Or. Hore. Hoar. Hors. Haw. Whore.
- Ore, ōr, metal (as it is extracted from a mine); ory, containing ore. (Old English ær or ār.)
- Oar, ōr, for rowing. (Old English ār or ær.)
- O'er, ōr, a contraction of over. (Old English ofer.)
- Or, conj. (Old English oththon, corrupted into other, o'r.)

- Hōre-, the first syl. of several plants. (Old English hara.)
- Hoar, hō'r, white with age or frost. (Old English hār.)
- Hors, hor, as hors de combat, disabled (French).
- Haw, the berry of the hawthorn. (O. E. hag, hagthorn.)
- Whore, hoo'r, a prostitute. (Old Eng. hóre, Welsh huren.)
- Oread, plu. oreads or oreades, ō.rē.ădz, ō.rē.ă.dez, mountain nymphs. (Gk. ōreiădēs (ōrōs, a mountain); Lat. ōrēădes.)
- Or'gan, a musical instrument, that by which any function of plants or animal bodies is carried on, a phrenological development, an exponent of news or opinions, an agent, &c.
- Organic, or.găn'ik, pertaining to an organ, having organs; organic analysis, -a.năl'is, that of organic compounds;
- Organic chemistry, that part of chemistry which treats of the composition and properties of organised bodies;
- In-organic chemistry treats of substances which are not organised: as metals, gases, minerals, water, &c.
- Organic remains, fossil remains of animals and vegetables.
- Organic disease, one affecting the structure of an organ.
- Functional disease, a derangement of the secretions.
- Organic laws, those which affect the constitution of a state.
- Organical, or.găn'ikăl; organ'ical-ly; organ'ical-ness.
- Organise, or'.gan.ise (Rule xxxi.); or'ganised (3 syl.), or'ganis-ing (Rule xix.), or'ganis-er; or'ganis-able.
- Organisation, or'.găn.izay''shŭn. Organism, or'.găn.izm.
- Organic structure. Organised bodies, those which possess organs: as animals and plants. Those which possess no organs, as metals and minerals, are Inorganised bodies.
- Organ-ist, one who plays the organ; organ-builder; organ-loft, the place where a church-organ stands.
- Organo-genesis, or.găn'.o-djĕn'.ĕ.sis, (in Bot.) the gradual development of an organ. (Greek gĕnĕsis, birth.)
- Organo-graphy, or'.gă.nŏg''.ră.fy, that part of Botany which treats of the structure of plants, and the functions of its several parts; organo-graphic, or'.găn.o.grăf''ik; organographical, or'.găn.o.grăf''ikăl. Organog'raphist, -fist. (Greek orgănon grapho, I describe the organs.)
- Organo-logy, or'.gă.nŏl''.ġ.djy, that branch of physiology which treats of the organs of animals; organological, or'.găn.o.lŏg''ikăl. Organologist, or'.ga.nŏl''.ġ.djist.
- Organon, or'.gă.nŏn, a body of rules and canons for regulating scientific investigations: as the Organon of Aristotle, the Novum Organon of Bacon.
- Old Eng. organe; Gk. orgănon (ergô, functional work); Lat. organista.

Orgeat, or'zhah. Orgies, or'djěz. Ordure, or.dū'r. Orgues, orgz.

Orgeat, a beverage made from barley and sweet almonds.

French orgeat (orge; Latin hordĕum, barley).

Orgies, or'djiz, debauch, revelry especially by night.

French orgies; Latin orgĭa, rites of Bacchus; Greek orgĭa.

Orgues, orgz (Fr.), pieces of timber shod with iron, hung over a gateway and let down in case of attack. (Gk. organon).

Orichalc, or'ri.kalk, the brass of the ancients resembling gold.

Lat. orichalcum; Gk. oreichalkos, mountain brass (oros chalkos).

Oriel, o'ri.ĕl. Oriole, o'ri.ole.

Oriel, a large bay window with front and sides, a recess.

(It has no connection with orient and does not mean eastern.)

Oriole, o'ri.ole, a genus of birds of a golden colour.

"Oriel," Old Fr. oriol; Lat. os, gen. ōris, a mouth, gap, opening, &c.

"Ingentem lato dedit ore fenestram" (Virgil, Æn. ii. 482).

"Oriole," Span. oriol, the golden thrush; Lat. aureōlus, golden.

Orient, o'ri.ent, the east, eastern; oriental, o'ri.en''.tāl; oriental-ly, oriental-ism; oriental-ist, a scholar of Asiatic languages. Oriency, o'ri.ĕn.cy, richness of colour.

Orientation, o'ri.ĕn.tay''.shŭn, the process of determining the exact east in taking "bearings."

Lat. ōriens, gen. ōrientis, place of sun-rise; ōrientālis, v. ōrior, to rise.

Orifice, or'ri.fis, an aperture, an opening.

Latin orificium (os, gen. ōris ficto [fūcto], I make a gap or opening).

Oriflamme, or'ri.flŭm, the sacred banner of France.

A crimson flag with five clefts like "tongues of fire," mounted on a gilt staff. It was originally the banner of St. Denis [Sahn Dnee].

Origanum, o.rig'.ă.nŭm, wild marjoram, mountain-joy.

Latin origānum; Greek origānōn (orei-[ōrōs]gānōs), mountain-joy.

So called because it delights in open hilly grounds.

Origin, or'ri.djŭn, beginning, source; original, o.ridg'.ă.nāl; original-ly. Originality, o.ridg'.ă.nāl''.ă.ty.

Originate, o.ridg'.ă.nate, to invent, to set going; origināt-ed (R. xxxvi.), origināt-ing (R. xix.), originat-or (R. xxxvii.)

Origination, o.ridg'.ă.nay''.shŭn.

Original sin, that "depravity" which is man's birth-right as a descendant of "disobedient Adam."

Latin origo, gen. origĭnis, originālis, originātio (ōrior, to arise).

Oriole, o'ri.ōle, a genus of yellow birds. O'riel, a bay window.

"Oriole," Span. oriol, the golden-thrush; Lat. aureōlus, golden.

"Oriel," Old Fr. oriol; Lat. os, gen. ōris, an opening, a mouth.

Orion, o.ri.ōn, an autumnal constellation. (Rises in October.)

According to Greek mythology, the giant Oriōn was a famous hunter, who was placed at death among the stars, where he appears with belt, sword, club, and lion's head. His "rising" is often followed by rough weather, and hence he is termed "Stormy Orion."

Orison, ör'ri.zôn, a prayer. (Fr. oraison; Lat. orāre, to pray.)

Orlean, in Fr. or.lū.ah'ng. In Eng. or'.lē.ăn. In Amer., or.leen'.

Orleans plum, in Eng. or'.lē.ănz. In America, or.leenz'.

New Orleans, nu or.leenz', one of the United States.

Orleans, in France, a corruption of Aurélian, the Roman emperor.

Orlop, or'.löp, the lower deck of a ship-of-the-line, that in which the cables are stowed. (Germ. überlauf, an over-deck.)

Überlaufen, to run over; the orlop is a platform "laid over" the beams in the hold. The deck "over" the hold.

Ormolu, or'.mo.lu', gilt bronze or copper, mosaic gold; ormolu varnish, imitation gold varnish; ormolu clocks.

French ormolu, or moulu, ground gold.

Ornament, or'.nä.mént, an embellishment, to embellish; or'na-ment-ed (R. xxxvi.), or'na-ment-ing, ornament-or;

Ornamental, or'.na.mën".täl; ornamental-ly.

Ornamentation, or'.nä.mën.tay".shün. (Lat. ornāmentum.)

Ornate, or.nāte', elaborately decorated; ornate'-ly, ornate'-ness.

Latin ornātus ornāre, to adorn (Greek hōra, beauty).

Ornith- (before vowels), ornitho- (before cons.), or'.nith.o (Greek prefix), bird, pertaining to birds (ornis, gen. ornithōs).

Ornith-ichnite, or'.nä.thäk".nīte, fossil footmarks of birds.

Greek ornith-ichnos, a bird's foot-print (-ite denotes a fossil).

Ornitho-copros, or'.nä.th.o.köp".rōs, birds' dung.

Greek ornitho- [ornis, gen. ornithos], koprōs, dung of birds.

Ornithoid-ichnites, or'.nä.thoid-ik'.nītes, bird-like foot-prints in mineral strata. (Same as ornith-ichnites, but a more modest term, as it merely states the marks to be like the foot-prints of a bird, and not that they are so.)

Gk. ornitho-eidos, ichnos, bird-like foot-prints (-ite denotes a fossil).

Ornitho-lites, or.näth'.ō.lītes, fossil remains of birds.

Greek ornitho- [ornis, gen. ornithos] lithos, stone birds.

Ornitho-logy, or'.nä.thöl".ō.djy, that part of Natural History which treats of birds; ornithological, or'.näth.ō.lodg".i.käl; ornithological-ly; ornithologist, or'.ni.thöl".ō.djist.

Greek ornitho- lōgōs, treatise on birds.

Ornitho-mancy, or'.näth.o.män".sy, divination by birds.

Greek ornitho- [ornis, gen. ornithos] manteia, divination by birds.

Ornitho-rhynchus, or'.näth.o.rin".kūs, the platypus.

Greek ornitho-rhynchos, bird-beaked mammal (like a duck's beak).

Orography, o.rōg'.rū.fy, a description of mountains; orographist.

Greek oros graphō, I describe mountains.

Orology, o.röl.o.djy, a treatise on mountains; orol'ogist, oro-logical. (Greek ōrōs lōgōs, a treatise on mountains.)

- Orphan. Often. (Orpin. Orpine. Orphean. See below.)
 Orphan, or'f'n, a child bereft of one or both parents; orphan-age, an asylum for orphans. (Greek orphānos.)
 Often, ōf'n, frequently. (Old English oft, comp. oftor.)
- Orphean, or'fē.ăn (not or'fē.an), pertaining to Orphēus (or'fūce);
Orphic, as Orphic legends, Orphic rites, Orphic hymns, &c.
Orpheon, or'fē.on, a musical instrument.
 Latin Orphēus and Orphicus, adj. of Orpheus (or'fuce).
- Orpin, or'.pin (contraction of or'piment), a yellow colour (Fr.)
Orpiment, or'.pī.ment, king's yellow.
 Corruption of Latin auri-pigmentum, gold-coloured pigment.
- Orpine, or'.pin, the rose-plant, the sedum. (French orpin.)
- Orrery, ōr'rē.ry. Horary, hō'.rā.ry, noting the hours. (Lat. hora.)
Orrery, an astronomical toy, named by Sir Richard Steel in honour of Charles Boyle, earl of Orrery.
- Or'ris (a corruption of iris), the flag-flower or fleur-de-lis;
Orris-root, the dried root of the Flor'entine iris.
- Ort, Ought, Aught, Nought, Naught, Orts, Ords, Odds,
Ort, a fragment, a bit dropped from the mouth in feeding.
Orts, fragments. Ords, beginnings. (One of these two words is corrupted in the phrase odds and ends.)
 "Ort," Old Eng. orett[an], to spoil. "Ord," O. E. ord, a beginning.
Ought, awt, anything. Nought, nawt, nothing.
Aught, awt, the least jot. Naught, something worthless.
 "Ought," Old English ōht, nōht. "Aught," Old English dht, nāht.
Odd, peculiar, not even. (Welsh odid.)
- Ortho- (Greek prefix), right, straight (orthos, erect, straight, &c.)
Ortho-can'thus, fossil fin-spines of the coal measures.
 Greek ortho- [orthos] akanthus, straight spines or thorns.
Ortho-ceras, or.ṛhōs'.ē.ras, a genus of shells tapering to a point like a horn. Ortho-ceratidæ, -se.rūt'.ē.dē.
 Greek ortho-keras, straight horn (-idæ, a group or family).
Ortho-clase, potash felspar, so called from its cleavage.
 Greek ortho- [orthos] klasis, straight fracture. (Orth'.ō.klās.)
Ortho-dox, opinions in accordance with the national church and national laws: In Turkey Mahometanism, in China
Buddism, in England accordance with the "Thirty-nine Articles" is religious orthodoxy. Ortho-doxy.
 Greek ortho- [orthos] doxa, right opinions.
- Ortho-dromics, or.ṛhōd'.ro.mīks, the art of sailing on the arc of a great circle, that is, straight sailing.
Orthodromy, or.ṛhōd'.rō.my; orthodromic, -mīk.
 Greek ortho- [orthos] drōmōs, [taking] the straight course.

Ortho-epy, or.θō'.ē.py (not or.θē'.o.py), correct pronunciation of words. (See Orthography.)

Orthoepic, or.θō.ēp''.īk; orthoep'ical, -kāl.

Orthoepist, or.θō'.ē.pist (not or.θē'.o.pist).

Greek ortho- [orthos] ēpōs, [speaking] words aright.

Ortho-graphy, or.θōg'.rā.fy, correct spelling; orthographic, or.θo.grāf''.īk; orthographical, -kāl; orthographical-ly; orthographer, or.θōg'.rā.fer; orthog'raphist.

Greek ortho- [orthos] graphō, I write correctly.

Ortho-nota, orth'.o.nō''.tah, a subgenus of shells with straight plaited backs. Orthonō'tus, one of the ortho-nota. (Greek ortho- [orthos] nōtōs, straight back.)

Ortho-podist (not orthopedist), or.θōp'.ō.dist, one who cures deformities of the feet. (Incorrectly spelt orthopedist.)

Greek ortho- pous, gen. pōdos, straight feet. -pedist would be Latin.

Ortho-pnoea, or.θōp'.nē''.ah, a diseased state in which a person can breathe easily only in an upright position.

(This word should be orthopnoa, or.θōp'.nō.ah, without the diphthong which makes it dialectic πνοή for πνοή, Dor. πνοά.)

Greek ortho- [orthos] pnēō, I breathe [only being] upright.

Ortho-pædia, or.θo.pē''.di.ah (should be -pē.dī'.ah), the cure of deformities of the human body, v. Orthopodist.

Greek ortho- [orthos] paideia, straight rearing.

Ortho-ptera, or.θōp'.tē.rah, an order of insects which have their two outer wings disposed in straight folds, as the grasshopper, house-cricket, &c.; orthop'ter or orthop'te-ran, one of the orthoptera; orthopterous, or.θōp'.tē.rūs.

Greek ortho- [orthos] ptēra, [having] straight wings.

Ortho-tropous, or.θōt'.rō.pūs (in Bot.), having the embryo in a seed lying straight towards the eye (or hilum), as in the bean. (Gk. ortho-trepo, I turn straight [to the eye]).

Ortolan, or'.tō.lān, a bird which frequents garden hedges in the south of Europe. (Ital. ortolano, a gardener or ortolan.)

-ory (Lat. -ori[us], -ori[um]), nouns. The place where, the thing which: dormitory, where persons sleep; alimony.

Oscillate, os'.sīl.ūte. Osculate, ōs'.kū.late, to come in contact.

Oscillate, to swing backwards and forwards; os'cillāt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), os'cillāt-ing (Rule xix.), os'cillāting-ly.

Oscillation, ōs'.sīl.lay''.shūn; oscillatory, ōs'.sīl.lā.t'ry.

Os'cillating engine, a marine engine with a vibrating cylinder. (Latin oscillāre, to swing; oscillatio.)

Osculate, os'.kū.late. Oscillate, os'.sīl.late (see above).

Osculate, to kiss, to come in contact with (as a curve with

- a circle, to adhere closely (as caterpillars, &c.); osculāt-ed (R. xxxvi.), os'culāt-ing (R. xix.); osculatory, os'ku.lū.try.
Oscula, os'.kū.lah, the large pores of sponges. Oscular, adj.
Osculation, os'.kū.lay''shūn; os'culant; oscule, os'.kūle, a small two-lipped aperture. (Latin oscūlare, oscūlum.)
-ose (Lat. os[us], adjectives, full of: verbose, full of words.
Osier, ō'.zher. Hosier, hō.zher. Hosea, hō.zē'.ah, the prophet.
Osier, a willow; osiered, ō'.zherd, covered with osiers; osier-holt, land where osiers are cultivated.
Hosier, a dealer in hose. (O. E. hose, covering for the legs.)
Fr. osier; Gk. oisūa. "Osier-holt" (holt, Old Eng. a wood, a grove.)
Osnaburg, os'.nā.burg, a coarse linen from Osnaburg, Hanover.
Ospray [or osprey], the great sea-eagle. (Corruption of osfray.)
 Latin ossifraga (os frangere, to break bones), the bone-breaker.
Osseous, os'.sē.ūs, bony, resembling bone. Osseous breccia, brecchia is a conglomerate of fragments, and osseous breccia is a conglomerate of bony fragments.
Osseter, os'.sē.ter, a species of sturgeon.
 Latin ossēus (os, gen. ossis; Greek ōstēōn, a bone).
Ossi- (Lat. prefix), bone, bony, made of bone. (See Osteo-.)
Ossi-cle, os'.sī.k'l, a little bone like the "bones" of encrinites.
 Latin ossi- [os, gen. ossis] with -cūlum, diminutive.
Ossi-ferous, os'.sīf'.ē.rūs, producing bone.
 Latin ossi- [os, gen. ossis] ferens, bone-producing.
Ossi-fy, os'.sī.fy, to convert into bone; ossifies, os'.sī.fize; ossified, os'.sī.fide (Rule xi.); os'sifi-er, ossify-ing; ossific, os'.sīf'.īk, having power to ossify.
Ossification, os'.sī.fī.kay''shūn, conversion to bone.
 Latin ossi-ficio [facio], to make bone; French ossification.
Ossi-vorous, os'.siv'.ō.rūs, bone-eating.
 Latin ossi- [os, gen. ossis] vorāre, to devour bones.
Ostitis, os'.tī.tis, inflammation of a bone. (Greek ōstion, a bone, with -itis, which denotes inflammation.)
Ostensible, os.tēn'.sī.b'l, apparent, avowed but not real; ostensibly, os.tēn'.sī.bly. Ostensibility, os.tēn'.sī.bīl''.ī.ty; ostensive, os.tēn'.siv; osten'sive-ly; ostent', appearance.
Ostentation, os'.tēn.tay''shūn, display, parade, show.
Ostentatious, os'.tēn.tay''shūs; ostentatiously; ostentatious-ness, vanity shown in obtrusive display.
 Latin ostentatio, ostentio, v. ostendo, supine ostentum or -sum (os [ob] tendo, to stretch out or display); French ostentation.
Osteo-, os'.tē.o- (Greek prefix, similar to the Latin ossi-, q.v.), bone, bony, pertaining to bones. (Greek ōstēōn, a bone.)

Osteo-colla, ös'.të.o.köl''.lah, a carbonate of lime precipitated by water on sticks, and other substances.

Greek osteo-[östëon] kolla, bone glue. From the notion that it has the power of uniting broken bones.

Osteo-dentine, ös'.të.o.dën''.tine, a modification of dentine or tooth-bone found in the centre of whales' teeth.

(The word should be ossi-dentine (Latin) or osco-dontine (Greek).

"Osteodentine," a hybrid, is partly Greek and partly Latin.

Greek osteo-[östëon]; Latin dens, gen. dentis, a tooth.

Osteo-geny, ös'.të.ödg''.ëny, formation of bone; osteogenesis, ös'.të.o.djën''.ësis (same meaning).

Greek osteo-[östëon] gennao or gënesis, genesis of bone.

Osteo-graphy, ös'.të.ög''.rä.fy, scientific description of the bones; osteographer, ös'.të.ög''.rä.fer.

Greek osteo-[östëon] grapho, I describe the bones.

Osteo-lepis, ös'.të.öl''.ë.pis, a fossil scaly fish found in the Old Red Sandstone. (Greek lēpis, a scale.)

Its scales have an enamelled bony appearance.

Osteo-logy, ös'.të.öl''.o.djy, that part of comparative anatomy which treats of the bony fabric of different animals; osteological, ös'.të.o.lodg''.i.käl; osteological-ly; osteologist, ös'.të.öl''.o.djist or osteol'oger.

Greek östëo-[östëon] logos, treatise about the bones.

Osteo-malakia, ös'.të.o-mäl.lük''.i.ah, a softening of the bones. (Greek osteo-mälükia, softness of bone.)

Ostler, öst'.ler (corrupt form of Höstler), one who has the care of the horses at an hotel; ostlery (corrupt. of hostlery).

Old Fr. hostelier, hostellerie now hôtellerie; Lat. hostis, a guest.

Ostraceous, ös.tray'.sč.üs, pertaining to the oyster family.

Ostracea, ös.tray'.sč.ah, the oyster family; ostracean, ös.tray'.sč.än, one of the ostracea; ostreose, ös'.tre.osë, full of oysters. (Lat. ostrea, ostracium, ostreösus; Gk. ostrëon.)

Ostracism, ös'.trä.sizm, banishment by the popular voice.

Ostracize (R. xxxii.), ös'.trä.size, to banish...; ostracised (3 syl.), ös'traciz ing, R. xix. (Gk. osträkizo, osträkismos.)

From ostrakon, a potsherd or earthen tablet (not ostrëon, an oyster).

At Athens the citizens had the right of banishing anyone whose power they thought likely to threaten the liberty of the state.

They recorded their votes on earthen tablets called osträka.

Ostracite, ös'.tra.site, a fossil oyster. (Lat. ostrea, -ite, a fossil.)

An ill-compounded word, as -ite is Greek, not Latin in this sense.

Ostrich, ös'trich, a bird. (Fr. autruche; Lat. avis-struthio.)

Greek strouthos, any bird, a sparrow, an eagle, or an ostrich. The French au- (avis, a bird) prefixed seems quite meaningless.

Ostrogoth, ös'tro.göth, an E. Goth. Visigoth, a W. Goth.

Ostro=Eastern, Visi=Western, Eastern and Western Goths.

-ot, a termination of nouns both native and Lat. Sometimes dim.

Other, ũrh'.er, someone else, something else, not the same; each-other; other-wise, ũrh'.er-wize, else, by other means, in other respects.

O. E. other. "Otherwise" is other wisa, other way, manner, reason, &c.

Otiose, ō'.shĩ.ōse (-ose, full of, -ōtium, leisure). Latin ōtĩōsus.

Ot-, Oto- (Gk. prefix), the ear, pertaining to the ear (ous, gen. ōtōs).

Otitis, ō.tĩ'.tĩs, inflammation of the ear. (See Ostitis.)

Greek ot- [ous, gen. ōtos], the ear (-itis, denotes inflammation).

Oto-lite, ō'.to.lite, the fossil ear of a mollusc (-ite, a fossil);

oto-lith, ō'.to.lith, the ear-stone, a small mass of chalk steeped in a liquid in the ear-vestibule of serpents, fishes, and molluscs. (Gk. ous, gen. ōtos lithos, stone of the ear.)

Oto-pteris, ō.tōp'.tē.rĩs, fossil ferns with ear-shaped projections. (Greek ous, gen. ōtos ptēris, ear ferns.)

Otorrhœa, ō'.to:ree''.ah, a discharge from the ear.

This compound is ill-formed, the Greek would be ōtorroia, where the second r compensates for the h which cannot be expressed in the middle of a Greek word, ōró[s] péw.

Oto-scope, ō'.to.skūpe, an instrument for inspecting the ear.

Greek ous, gen. ōtos skopéo, I inspect the ear.

(Except in phantascope, periscope, and telescope, the vowel before -scope is always -o-, Rule lxxiii.)

Ottava rima, ōt.tah'.vah rē'.mah, a stanza of eight lines, like Byron's Don Juan. (Italian eight [line] rhymes.)

Otter. Hotter. Otto or Ottar.

Otter, (male) dog otter, (fem.) bitch otter, ot'.ter, an amphibious animal. (Old English oter, an otter.)

Hotter, hōt'.ter, comp. of hot. (Old English hāt, hot.)

Ottar, Otto or Attar, oil of roses (Arabic).

Ottoman, ōt'.to.man, a kind of sofa, Turkish; Ottoman empire.

From Othman or Osman, a sultan who assumed the government in 1300.

Ouch, ōwch (to rhyme with couch), the collet or "setting" of a precious stone, a gold ornament (Exodus xxxix. 13.)

-ough. This termination is very irregular. It represents eight distinct sounds, and if final -t is added a ninth sound is required: the following are the examples:

(1) = awf: as cough.

(2) = ōff: as trough.

(3) = ũf: as chough, enough, hough (verb), rough, sough.

(4) = ō: as dough, though.

(5) = oo: as through.

(6) = ōw (to rhyme with "now"): as plough.

(7) = aw: as bought, brought, (?) drought, fought, nought, ought, sought, thought, wrought.

(8) = ōk: as hough (noun).

(9) = ũrrah: as thorough.

Ought, Aught (both awt). Nought, Naught (both nawt).

Ought, anything, to be in duty bound. Nought, nothing.

Aught, the smallest modicum. Naught, something worthless.

Old English ōht, ought; dht, aught; n-ōht, nought; n-dht, naught.

"Ought" (verb), Old Eng. ag[an], to owe; past dht, past part. āgen.

(It will be observed that the "-u-" represents the lost accent, and the "g" is interpolated to represent a guttural sound.)

Ounce, a long-tailed leopard, the 12th part of a lb (Troy), and the 16th part of an ordinary or avoirdupoise pound.

"Ounce" (the animal), Fr. once formé, selon Roquefort, de lynx.

"Ounce" (weight), Fr. once; Lat. uncia, i.e., una pars ex duodécim.

-our (Latin suffix -or), state, quality, agent. (See -or.)

The introduction of the -u- in words originally Latin, is because they come to us indirectly through the French.

In native words, as neighbour, it represents a lost accent.

Only nineteen words have retained this French form. They are—

Eng.	Fr.	Lat.	Eng.	Fr.	Lat.
Candour	candeur	candor	rigour	rigueur	rigor
clamour	clameur	clamor	rumour	rumeur	rumor colour	couleur	color	saviour	sauveur	salvator
favour	faveur	favor	splendour	splendeur	splendor
fervour	ferveur	fervor	tenour	teneur	tenor honour	honneur	honor	tumour	tumeur	tumor
humour	humeur	humor	valour	valeur	valor
labour	labeur	labor	vapour	vapeur	vapor
odour	odeur	odor	vigour	vigueur	vigor

Dolour is vacillating, Savour is not Latin, "Succour" is the French secours, and "Tambour" the French tambourin.

Our, ōwr, belonging to us. Hour, ōwr, time (sixty minutes).

ourself, plu. ourselves. "Ourself" is regal style, but "ourselves" is general. Ours, possessive case of us, plu. of I.

"Our" is a possessive adjective pronoun, and the final -r is the old plural adjectival ending ou-r, i.e., ow-re for ū-re. The same suffix appears in "you-r"=cow-er, "he-r"=ht-re, and "their."

Pronoun Sing. N. ic, G. min, D. me, Acc. mec.

Plu. N. we, G. ūser, D. ūs, Acc. ūsic.

Ouranography, a description of the heavens and its hosts.

Greek ourānōs grapho, I describe the heavens.

-ous (Latin -us and os[us]), adjectives. If from -osus, "full of." (In Chem.) -ous denotes an acid with less oxygen than -ic: thus sulphur-ic acid is an acid with the greatest possible amount of oxygen, but sulphur-ous acid is an acid with a smaller amount of oxygen.

Ousel, oo'.zēl, a blackbird, one of the thrush family. (O. E. osle.)

Oust, ōwst (to rhyme with soused, not with roost), to eject; oust'-ed, oust'-ing. (Fr. oster, now ôter, to remove.)

Out, ōwt, not in, not at home, aloud. (Old English ūt.)

Out- (prefix), beyond, exceeding, above (prefixed to words of any language, English, French, Italian, Latin, Greek, &c.)

Out-balance (one -l-), to exceed in weight. (Fr. balance.)

Out-bid', to exceed the bid of others; outbidd'-ing, outbidd'-en, outbidd'-er (Rule iv.)

Old English út bidd[an], past bæd, past part. beden.

Out'-bound [a ship] or Out'ward-bound, bound to a foreign country. (Old Eng. út-bunden, v. bind[an], p. band, &c.)

Out'-break, -bráke, an emeute, eruption. (O. E. út brece.)

Out'-building, an outhouse. (Old English út byldung.)

Out'-burst, an explosion, a breaking out. (O. E. út berst.)

Out'-cast, a vagabond, an outlaw. (Old Eng. út ceaster.)

Out'-come, the effect, the result. (Old English út cum.)

Out'-crop, the exposed edge of a stratum.

To crop out, to show itself, as a stratum thrust up to the earth's surface. (Old English út crop.)

Out'-cry, plu. outcries, -kríze, clamour, cry of distress or dissatisfaction. (Old English út; Welsh cri.)

Out-do', -doo, to surpass, to over-reach; out-does, -dŭz; out-doing, -dooing; out-done, -dŭn. (Old Eng. út do.)

Out'-door [relief], -re.leef', relief given to the poor without residence in a union. Out-of-doors, out of the house.

Out'-er, external, opposed to Inner, internal.

Outer-most, furthest out. Inner-most, furthest in.

"Outermost" and "Innermost" are not most outer and most inner, but corruptions of útemést, innemést, most without, most within.

Out'-fit, an equipment; out-fitt'ed, equipped; out-fitt'ing; out'fitt-er, a dealer in all things required by emigrants.

Out-flank', to extend a line of battle beyond that of an adversary; outflanked' (2 syl.), outflank'-ing. (Fr. flanc.)

Out'-flow, an efflux; out-flowed. (Old Eng. út flówe.)

Out-fly, to fly beyond; out-flies, -flize; out-flew, out-flown. To fly out, to fly abroad, to get into a passion.

Old English út fleoƿ[an], past fléah, past part. flogen.

Out-gen'eral, to out manœuvre; out-gen'eralled, -rald.

Out'-goings, expenses, opposed to Incomings.

Out-going tenant, the tenant on the point of leaving.

Incoming tenant, the new tenant. To go out, to go into the open air, to attend parties. (O. E. út gong or gang.)

Outgrow', to grow too large or too old for a thing; out-grew', out-grown', out-grow'ing.

To grow out of, to arise from.

Old English út grów[an], past grewow, past part. growen.

Out-guard, -gard, the guard furthest from the main army.

Outer-guard, the guard posted outside the door of a "lodge." Inner-guard, the guard posted within a "lodge." Terms of fence. (Old English út weard.)

Out-Herod, -hēr'rod, to hector and bounce about more than the actors of king Herod in the old Miracle plays; out-Herod-ed, -hēr'rōd-ed; out-Herod-ing.

To out-Herod Herod, to outrage by exaggeration.

Out-house, a building not attached to the dwelling.

Out-ing, a holiday, an excursion. (Old English út[ian].)

Out-land'ish, foreign, vulgar; outland'ish-ness.

Old English útlenda, a foreigner; útlende, foreign; útlendisc.

Out-last', to last longer than; outlast'-ed, outlast'-ing.

Out-law, one deprived of the benefit of law, to proscribe; out'lawed, -lawd; out'law-ing. Out'law-ry. (O.E. útlaga.)

Out'lay, expenditure. Lay out, to expend, to plan.

Outleap, -leap, to leap beyond; outleapt. (O.E. úthleap[an].)

Out'let, an egress. (Old English út lét, out let.)

Outlie', to lie outrageously; outlied', -lide; outly'ing.

Old English út lig[an] or leóg[an], past ledg, past part. logen.

Out'line (2 syl.), a contour, to delineate; out'lined (2 syl.), out'lin-ing, R. xix. (Old Eng. út, Lat. linea, v. lineo.)

Out-ly'ing, lying beyond, outside; outli'er. (O.E. út lig[an].)

Out'-most, most remote from the middle; out'ermost.

Ut'most, the most possible; uttermost. (O.E. útmést.)

Out-mancœuvre, -ma.nū'ver, to out-wit. (Fr. manœuvre.)

Out-march', to march faster than; outmarched (2 syl.), outmarch'-ing. To march out, to leave.

Old English út, French marcher.

Out-num'ber, to exceed in number; outnum'bered, -num'berd; outnum'ber-ing. (Old Eng. út, Fr. nombrer.)

Out'-pensioner, -pēn'shūn.er, a pensioner not required to reside in an almshouse. (Old Eng. út, Fr. pensionnaire.)

Out'-port, a port at some distance from the main port.

Out'-post, a station or company of soldiers in advance of the main body. (Old English út; French poste.)

Out'-pour, a stream, a torrent; out-pour'ing.

To pour out, to decant, to transfuse. (O.E. út, Welsh bwrrw.)

Out'-put, poot (in Mining), the quantity of metal or coal cut out by the miners ready to be carted away. To put out, to turn forth, to perplex. (O.E. út, Dutch pooten.)

Out'-rage, a wanton insult or violence, to treat with...; out'raged (2 syl.), out'rag-ing (Rule xix.), out'.rā.djing.

Outrageous, out.rū'.djūs, furious, excessive; outra'geous-ly, outrageous-ness, out.ray'.djūs.ness.

Fr. outrage, outrageux (Latin ultra agere, to act beyond propriety.)

Outré (French), oo.tray', extravagant, eccentric.

Out-reach', -reech, to extend beyond; outreached' (2 syl.), outreach'-ing. To reach out, to stretch forth.

Old English útræc[an], past -ræhte, past part. -ge-ræht.

Out-ride', to ride faster than; out-rōde, out-ridd'en; out'rid-er, one who rides on horseback to accompany others in a carriage. To ride out, to take a ride; rode-out, ridd'en out, rid-ing out (Rule xix.)

Old English út rid[an], past rad, past part. riden, út rídere.

Out-rig'ger, a spar rigged out to windward from the cross-trees to spread the breast-backstays to windward.

Old English wrig[an], to rig, with út.

Outright', -rite, utterly. (Old English út riht.)

Out-roar', to roar louder than; outroared' (2 syl.), out-roar'-ing. To roar out, to bellow aloud.

Old English út rār[ian], past út rārode, past part. út rārod.

Out-run', to excel in running; outran', outrunn'-ing, out'-runn-er. To run out, to run into the open air, to exhaust.

Old English út renn[an], past út ran.

Out-sail', to leave rival sails in the rear; out-sailed', -saild.

Old English út segel[ian], past segelode, past part. segelod.

Out-sell', to sell more or better than; outsold', out-sell'-ing. To sell out, to sell all; sold out, stock all sold.

Old English út syll[an], past sealde, past part. seald.

Out'-set, the starting. To set out, to start forth, to arrange.

Out-shine', to excel in lustre; out-shone. (O. E. út scīnan.)

Out-side', the external part, superficial. Out'sides (2 syl.), the outside quires of a ream of paper. (Old English út sīde.)

Out'skirts, border, suburb. (Old English út sceat.)

Outspoke' (in Poetry), spoke; outspōk'en, fearless of speech, frank. (Old English út sprēc[an], spræc, sprocen.)

Outspread', -sprēd, to expand, extend, diffuse; outspread'-ing. (Old English út spræd[an].)

Out'-standing [debts], not yet collected. Standing out.

Old English út and stand[an], standede, standing.

Out-step, to go beyond. To step out, to come forth, to walk or march vigorously. (Old English stepp[an].)

Out-stretch', to stretch beyond; outstretched' (2 syl.), outstretch'-ing. To stretch out, to reach forth.

Old English út strecc[an], past strēhte, past part. streht.

Out-strip', to outrun; outstripped' (2 syl.), outstripp'-ing, Rule iv. (Old English út bestrypp[an].)

Out-vie', -vī, to surpass in rivalry; out-vied', outvy'-ing.

Out-vote', to defeat by obtaining more votes; outvōt'-ed, defeated by votes; outvōt'-ing (Rule xix.); outvōt'-er. Old English út; French voter (Latin voceo, supine votum).¹

Out'ward, external, as outward appearances, opposed to inward. Outwards, adv., opposed to inwards.

Out'-ward-ly. Outward bound, bound to a foreign port, opposed to homeward bound.

Old English útweard, útweardes (-es, termination of adverbs).

Out-weigh', -way, to overbalance; out-weighed', -wāde; outweigh'-ing. To weigh out, to weigh into portions.

Old English út weg[an], past wæg, past part. ge-wegen.

Out-wit', to overreach; outwitt'-ed (R. xxxvi.), outwitt'-ing, R. iv. (Old Eng. út wit[an], past -wiste, past p. -witen.)

Out'work, out'.wurk, a work of defence between the enceinte and the glacis. (Old English út weorc or worc.)

Ouzel, oo'.zel, the "dipper," &c. Ou'sel, a blackbird.

The water ouzel is the "dipper" which resembles a kingfisher.

The spelling of these two words is not strictly observed. Thus 1594

"Housc-doves are white and oozels blackebirds be."

"Alas! a black ouzel, cousin Shallow." 2 Hen. IV. iii. 2.

"The ouzel-cock so black of hue." Midsummer Night's Dream, iii. 1.

Ova, plu., ō'.vah, eggs of insects, &c. Over, ō'.ver, above, past.

Oval, ō'.v'l, oblong like an egg; oval-ly.

Ovary, plu. ovaries, ō'.vǎ.riz (Rule xlv.), a hollow case in plants enclosing the young seeds. Ovarian, o.vair'rī.an.

Ovarious, o.vair'rī.ūs, consisting of eggs.

Ovarium, plu. ovaria, o.vair'rī.ah, an ovary.

Ovate, ō.vāte', in the form of an egg.

Ovate-lanceolate, -lan'.sč.ō.late (in Bot.), in shape between an egg and a spear-head.

Lat. ovum, plu. ova, ovālis, ovātus. "Over," Old Eng. ober, ofer.

Oven, ūv'n, a contrivance for baking. (Old English ōfen.)

Over, ō'.ver, above, past. Ova, ō'.vah, eggs of insects, &c.

Over again, once more; over against, opposite;

over and above, beside, extra; over and over, repeatedly.

To give over, to cease from, to consider hopeless.

To throw over, to desert; all over, in every place, finished, hopeless. To run over, to flow from the top.

"Over," Old Eng. ober, ofer. "Ova," Lat. ovum, plu. ova, an egg.

Over- (native prefix), above, beyond, too much, exceedingly.

Over-act', to exaggerate; over-acted, over-acting. (Lat. ago.)

O'ver-all, -awl, a loose over-dress. Over haul, to examine.

O'ver-alls, -awlz, loose leggings to keep the trousers dry or clean. (Old English ofer æl.)

Over-anxious, -ank'.shūs, too anxious; over-anx'ious-ly, over-anx'ious-ness; over-anxiety, anx xī'.ē.ty.

Old English ofer, Latin anxietas, anxius, anxiētudo.

Over-awe', -aw, to restrain by strength of mind; over-awed' (3 syl.), over-aw'-ing (R. xix.) (Old English ofer ōga.)

Over-bal'ance (one -b-), to exceed in weight, to weigh down; over-bal'anced (4 syl.), over-balanc-ing (Rule xix.), -bāl'.ān.sing (ofer and French balance.)

Over-bear, -bāre, to domineer over; over-bore', over-borne, over-bear'ing, over-bear'ing-ly.

Old English ofer bēran, past bēr, past part. bōren.

O'ver-board, -bōrd, into the water. To board over, to cover with boards. (Old English ofer bōrd.)

Over-boil', to boil too much; over-boiled (3 syl.), over-boil'ing. To boil over, to flow over in boiling.

Old English ofer, French bouiller, Latin bullio.

Over-build, -bild, to build beyond the demand; over-build'ing; over-built, -bilt. To build over, to build upon. (Old English byld[an].)

Over-bur'den, to oppress; over-burdened, -bur'.dend; over-bur'den-ing, over-bur'den-some, ...some-ness.

Old English ofer byrden or byrthen, v. byrdian.

Over-care'ful, too careful. (Old English ofer cārfull.)

Over-cast', clouded over, to sew over a rough edge; over-cast'-ing. To cast over, to throw over. (Norse kaste.)

Over-cautious, -kaw'.shūs, too cautious; over-cautious-ly, over-cautious-ness. (Latin cautus.)

Over-charge, (noun) ō'.ver.charge, (verb) o.ver.charge' (R. I.), charge beyond the just price, to charge too much, to exaggerate; over-charged' (3 syl.), over-charg'-ing (R. xix.), over-charg'-er. (French charger.)

O'ver-coat, -kōte, a top-coat. (Old Eng. ofer, Fr. cotte.)

Over-come', -kūm, to vanquish; over-came, -kāme; over-com-ing (Rule xix.), -kūm'.ing. To come over, to visit.

Old English ofercum[an], past ofercom, past part. ofercumen.

Over-credulous, -krēd'.u.lūs, too credulous. (Lat. crēdūlus.)

Over-del'icate, too fastidious. (O. E. ofer, Lat. dēlicātus.)

Over-do', -doo, to do too much, to exaggerate; over-does, -dūz; over-did; over-done, -dūn; over-do-ing, -doo'-ing.
Old English oferdōn, past oferdyde, past part. ofergedōn.

Over-dose, (noun) ō'.ver.dōse, (verb) ō'.ver.dōse'', too large a dose, to dose too much; over-dosed' (3 syl.), over-dōs'-ing (Rule xix.), overdōs'-er. (French dose.)

Over-draw', to take from the bank more than stands to your credit; over-drew, over-drawn, over-draw-ing.

To draw over, to allure, to drag across.

Old English ofer drag[an], past drog, past part. drægen.

Over-drive, to drive too fast or too far; over-drōve, over-drīv'en, over-drīv-ing (Rule xix.) To drive over, to drive from one place to another, to come on a visit.

Old English oferdrif[an], past oferdrif, past part. oferdrifen.

Over-due, -dū, past the time of payment. (O. E. ofer, Fr. dû.)

Over-estimate, -ēs'.tīm.ate, to overvalue; over-es'timāt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), over-es'timāt-ing (Rule xix.)

Old English ofer, Latin æstimāre, supine æstimātum.

Over-excite', -ex.sīte', to excite too much; over-excīt'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), over-excīt'-ing (Rule xix.), over-excīt'-er.

Old English ofer, Latin excitāre, supine excitātum.

O'verfall (not over'fal), a cataract, a fall of water. (O. E. fealle.)

Over-fatigue, -fa.teeg', great weariness, to weary out; over-fatigued, -fa.teegd'; over-fatigue-ing, -fa.teeg'-ing. (Verbs ending with any two vowels, except -ue, retain both before -ing.) (French fatigue, Latin fātīgo.)

It is a great pity we did not take the Latin fatigo (fatig) instead of the French perversion, which is quite un-English.

Over-flow, (noun) ō'.ver.flow, (verb) ō'.ver.flow'', inundation, superabundance, to run over, to inundate; over-flowed, -flowd (not overflown).

COMMON ERROR—The meadows were overflown (overflowed).

Old English oferflōw[an], past oferfleow, n. oferflōwe.

Over-grow', to grow beyond one's strength; over-grow, over-grown, over-grow'-ing, o'ver-growth.

To grow over, to mantle with foliage.

Old Eng. ofer grōw[an], past greow, past part. grōwen, n. grownes.

Over-hang', to project over; over-hung', over-hang'-ing.

Old English ofer hang[ian], hangode, hangod.

Over-haul' (not -haul), to inspect, to examine; over-hauled' (3 syl.), over-haul'-ing, over-haul'-er.

Over-all, a loose over-dress ("haul," French haler).

O'ver-head, -hēd, above, aloft. (Old English ofer heáfod.)

Over-hear', to hear by accident what was not intended; over-heard', hund; over-hear'-ing. (O. E. oferhēr[an].)

Over-issue, -ish'-shu, an issue in excess. (French issue.)

O'ver-joy, transport of joy; over-joyed, -joid, transported with delight. (Old English ofer, French joie.)

Over-lade, to over-burden. Over-laid, smothered; over-load'-ed, over-lād'en, over-load'-ing. (Old English ofer hlād[an], past hlōd, past part. hlāden.)

Old English ofer hlād[an], past hlōd, past part. hlāden.

O'ver-land [route], chiefly by land. (Old English land.)

Over-lap', to extend one edge over another; over-lapped, läpt; overlapp'-ing (R. i.) (O. E. lap[ian], lapede, laped.)

Over-lay', to smother, to cover a surface; over-laid, overlay'-ing. Over-lade, to over burden.

To lay over, to place over, to cover over.

Old English ofer leg[an], past ofer legede, past part ofer leged.

Over-load', -lōde, to oppress, to over-burden; over-load'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), over-load'-ing. (See Overlade.)

Old English ofer hlād[an], past hlōd, past part. hlāden.

O'ver-long, too long. (Old English ofer lang or long.)

Over-look' (to rhyme with cook, not loo'k), to pass by, not to see, to command a view; over-looked' (3 syl.), over-look'-ing; over-look'-er, a steward, a superintendent.

To look over, to inspect, to examine.

Old English ofer lōc[ian], past lōcode, past part. lōcod.

O'ver-loud, too loud. (Old English oferhlūd.)

O'ver-match, (noun) ō.ver.match, (verb) ō.ver.match', over-matched (3 syl.), over-match'-ing. (O. E. maca.)

O'ver-much, -mutch, more than enough. (O. E. ōfermicel.)

O'ver-nice'', too fastidious; over-nice'-ness. (O. E. nesc.)

O'ver-night'', -nīte, during the night, during the previous night. (Old English ofer niht.)

Over-pay, (noun) ō.ver.pay, (verb) ō.ver.pay'', pay for over-time, to pay too much; over-paid, over-pay'-ing.

Old English ofer, French payer (paid, laid, said, for payed, &c.)

Over-peopled, -pee'p'ld, over-populated. (French peuple.)

O'ver-plus, a remainder. (Old English ofer, Latin plus.)

O'ver-power (pōw to rhyme with nōw, not with grōw), to over-master; over-powered, -pōw.erd; over-pow'-ing, over-pow'-ing-ly. (Old English ofer, French pouvoir.)

Over-press', to oppress, to press too much; over-pressed, past part. over-prest. (Old English ofer, Latin pressus.)

O'ver-proud, too haughty. (Old English oferprut.)

O'ver-rate'', to estimate too highly; over-rāt'-ed (R. xxxvi.), over-rāt'-ing (R. xix.), over-rāt'-er. (Latin ratus.)

Over-reach', -reech, to swindle; over-reached', -reecht; over-reach'-ing, over-reach'-ing-ly, over-reach'-er.

To reach over, to stretch over or beyond.

Old English ofer ræc[an], past ofer ræhte, past part. ofergeræht.

Over-ride', to ride a horse beyond its strength; over-rode', over-ridd'en. To ride over, to traverse on horseback or in a vehicle. (Old English ōferrīd[an], -rād, -rīden.)

Over-ripe', too ripe. (Old English ōfer ripe, too mature.)

Over-rule', to supersede; over-ruled (3 syl.), over-rūl'-ing
 (Rule xix.), over-rūl'-er. To rule over, to govern.

Old English ofer regel, noun; Welsh rhcol, v. rheoli.

Over-run', to overspread; over-rān', over-runn'-ing.

To run over, to traverse, to spread over.

Old English ofer renn[an], past ofer ran.

Over-scrupulous, -skrū'-pu.lūs, too fastidious.

Old English ōfer, Latin scrupulosus, full of little stones (scrāpus).

O'ver-sea, -sec, beyond the sea, abroad. (O. E. ōfer sælic.)

Over-see', to superintend; oversee'-ing (a verb ending in any two vowels, except -ue, retains both before -ing); overseer, a superintendent, a parish officer; o'ver-sight.

To see over, to take a sight, to inspect.

Old English ōferscedw[ian] or ōfer seon, ōfer gesiht, oversight.

Over-set', to overturn; over-sett'-ing (Rule iv.)

To set over, to place in authority. (Old Eng. sett[an].)

Over-shad'ow, to protect, to cast a shade over; over- shad'owed (4 syl.), overshadow-ing.

Old English ōfer sceddew[ian], past sceddewode, past part. sceddewod.

Over-shoe, -shoo, a golosh, a shoe worn over another in wet weather. (Old English ōfer sceō, plu. sceōs.)

Over-shoot', to shoot beyond the mark; over-shōt', over- shoot'-ing. To shoot over, to shoot anywhere upon.

Old English ōfer scōt[ian], past scōtode, past part. scōtod.

Over-sight, -site, a mistake, an omission, superintendence.

Old English ōfer gesiht. (See Oversee.)

O'ver-soon', too early. (Old English ōfer sōna.)

Over-spread', -sprēd, to cover or scatter over; over-spread'-
ing. To spread over, to diffuse, to cover over.

Old English ōferspræd[an], past ōferspræde, ōferspræd.

O'ver-state', to exaggerate; over-stāt'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), over-stāt'-ing (Rule xix.), over-state'-ment. (Latin sto.)

O'ver-step', to exceed; o'ver-stepped' (3 syl.), o'ver-stepp'-
ing. To step over, to lift the feet over.

Old English ōferstepp[an], past steppede, past part. steppeth.

- O'ver-stock', to supply to excess; over-stocked, -stōkt; over-stock'-ing. (Old English ofer stoc.)
- O'ver-strain', to stretch too much; over-strained', -straind; over-strain'-ing. To strain over, to stretch over.
Old English ofer, Latin stringo, to tie hard, to bind tightly.
- O'ver-supply', a supply beyond the demand. (Lat. suppleo.)
- O'ver-take', to catch up, to take by surprise; over-took', over-ta'ken, over-tāk'-ing (Rule xix.)
To take over, to carry on or across, to transfer.
Old English ofer tæc[an], past tæhte, past part. tæht.
- Over-task', to task beyond one's power; overtasked', -taskt; over-task'-ing, over-task'-er. (Welsh tasgu.)
- Over-tax', to tax too heavily; over-taxed, -taxt; over-tax'-ing; over-taxation, -tax.ā.shūn.
Old English ofer, Latin tazo, taxatio (tago, that is, tango, to touch).
- Over-throw, (noun) ō.ver.throw, (verb) ō.ver.throw'' (R. l.), to vanquish, to demolish; over-threw', over-thrown', over-throw'-ing, over-throw'-er.
To throw over, to throw beyond or across, to throw down.
Old English ofer thrw[an], past threow, past part. thrdwen.
- O'ver-time, extra time, time beyond that required by contract. (Old English ofer tīma.)
- Over-top', to rise above; over-topped, -tōpt; over-topp'-ing, Rule i. (Old English ofer, Welsh tob, a summit.)
- Over-trade', to trade beyond one's capital; over-trād'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), over-trād'-ing, Rule xix. (Spanish trato.)
- Overture, ō.ver.tehure, a proposal, the instrumental music introductory to an opera. (French ouverture.)
The word is taken from ouvrir, to open [the performance].
- Over-turn', to subvert; over-turned' (3 syl.), over-turn'-ing. To turn over, to turn upside down.
Old English ofer turn[ian], past turnede, past part. turned.
- Over-ween'-ing, presumptuous; over-ween'ing-ly.
Old English oferwēnan, oferwēnung, over-presumptuous.
- O'ver-weigh'', -way, to exceed in weight; over-weighed', -wayd; over-weigh'-ing. O'ver-weight, -wāte.
Old English ofer weg[an], past wæg, past part. ge-wegen.
- O'ver-whelm'', -wel, to overpower, to submerge; over-whelmed', -welmd; over-whelm'-ing, -whelming-ly.
- Over-wise, -wize, conceited; over-wise'-ly. (O. E. wīs.)
- Over-work', -wurk, to work beyond one's strength; over-worked' (3 syl.), over-work'-ing.
- Over-wrought, -rawt, worked too much.
Old English ofer wyrc[an], past worhte, past part. ge-worht.

Ovidian, ō.vīd'.ī.ăn, in the style of Ovid, the Roman poet.

Ovi- (Latin prefix), egg, pertaining to an egg (ōvum, an egg).

Ovicular, o.vīk'kū.lar, like an egg. (Latin ōvum.)

Ovi-duct, the passage for the eggs in animals.

Latin ovi- [ōvum] ductus, the duct of the egg.

Ovi-ferous, o.vīf'.ĕ.rūs, applied to certain receptacles which receive the eggs after they have been excluded from the ordinary formative organs of the ovum.

Latin ovi- [ōvum] fērens, carrying the eggs.

Ovi-gerous, o.vīdg'.ĕ.rūs, applied to the ciliated plates (beneath the tail of crabs and lobsters) to which the eggs are attached after leaving the oviducts.

Latin ovi- [ōvum] gērens, bearing the eggs.

Ovi-form, egg-shaped. (Latin ovi- [ōvum] forma.)

Ovi-parous, o.vīp'.ă.rūs, producing young by eggs.

Latin ovi- [ōvum] pario, I produce young from eggs.

Ovi-posit, -pōz'.it, to lay eggs; ovi-pos'it-ed (Rule xxxvi.), ovi-pos'it-ing, ovi-pos'it-or (Rule xxxvii.), the organ by which insects deposit their eggs.

Latin ovi- [ōvum] pōnere, supine pōsitum, to deposit eggs.

Ovi-sac, the egg-bag of crustaceans, &c., the cavity in the ovary containing the ovum. (Lat. ovi-saccus, the egg-sack.)

Ovo- (a Latinised Greek prefix ōvōn for ὄον an egg.)

It is prefixed to words derived from the Greek, and in one example to a Latin compound.

Ovoid, ō'.void, resembling an egg in shape; ovoid'-al.

Greek ovo- [ōon] eidos, like an egg.

Ovo-logy, ō.vōl'.o.djy, that branch of natural history which treats of eggs. (Gk. ovo- [ōon] logos, a treatise on eggs.)

Ovo-viviparous, ō'.vo-vī.vīp''.a.rus, applied to those reptiles (like the adder and rattle-snake), produced from eggs hatched in the body, and not by incubation.

Latin ovo virus pario, I produce [offspring] alive from an egg.

It is a clumsy and ill-formed compound.

Ovule, ō'.vule (in Bot.), the seed contained in the ovary.

Latin ōvum, an egg, with diminutive. French ovicule.

Ovulite, ō'.vu.lite (should be ō'olite), a fossil egg.

"Ovulite" is a vile hybrid: Latin ovum, Greek lithos (dolite is Greek).

Ovum, plu. ova (Latin), ō'.vum, ō'.vah, an egg, &c.

Owe. Oh! O. Ho! Hoo, ho, Owes, ōze. Hose, hōze. Hoes.

Owe, ō, to be indebted to. Own, to possess.

Owed, ōde, was indebted to. Owned, possessed;

Ow'-ing, ō-ing, due as a debt. Own'-ing, possessing;

Ow'-er, ō'.er, debtor. Own'-er, possessor, proprietor.

Oh! exclamation of distress or emotion. O, sign of address.

Ho! exclamation to arrest attention. (Welsh ho! Fr. ho!)

Hoe, ho, an instrument for hoeing. (Fr. houe, v. houer.)

ERRORS OF SPEECH—

Who owes this? (In a game of forfeits). Who owns this, that is, "Who is the proprietor or owner of this?"

I am not worthy of the wealth I owe [own] (All's Well.... ll. 5).

To throw away the dearest thing he owed [owned] (Macbeth i. 4).

Thou... keep'st me from the house I owe [own] (Com. of Err. iii. 1).

The jeweller that owes the ring is sent for (All's Well.... v. 3).

All the treasure that thine uncle owes [owns] (King John ii. 1).

Thou dost usurp the name thou owest [ownest] (Tempest i. 2).

Bear our hack'd targets like the men that owe them (Ant. & Cleo. iv. 8).

Old Eng. agan. To "owe" is to keep as one's own what is another's.

Owl, owl (to rhyme with cowl), a bird. Howl, to bellow.

Owl'-ish (-ish added to nouns means "like," added to adj. it is dim.); owl'-ish-ly, owl-like. Ow'let, a young owl.

"Owl," Old Eng. ule, Lat. ulula. "Howl," Germ. heulen; Gk. hulao.

Own, to possess, to be the proprietor of. It follows the possessive pronouns my, your, his, their, thy or thine, her: thus my own, my property; your own, your property; &c.

Owned (1 syl.), own'-ing, own'-er, own'er-ship.

Old English agen, own, v. agan. The same word as "owe," but now used in a different sense. I owe a debt. I own property. To "own" is to have the ownership; but to "owe" is to have as your own what is due to a creditor, i.e., to be indebted to. (See above, Owe.)

Ox, plu. ox'-en, (poss. sing.) ox's, (poss. plu.) oxen's, a steer three years old and upwards intended for slaughter. If without horns it is called a doddered or humbled ox.

"Beast," bovine cattle generally; the beast market.

Bull, fem. cow, the male and female of neat cattle.

Calf, plu. calves, kahf, kahvz, the young of the cow.

Bull-calf, fem. cow-calf. Steer, fem. heifer, the calf up to its third year. Kine, cows as a collective word.

Neat cattle, oxen; neat's foot, neat's tongue, the foot and tongue of oxen prepared for food; neat-herd.

Ox-bow, the yoke for an ox; ox-stall; ox-lip, a flower.

"Oxen" is the only true example left of the old "Saxon" plural. Old English oxa, plu. oxan, after the conquest oxen.

"Cow," Old Eng. cū, plu. cȳ, corrupted to ky. "Kine" is ky with the suffix -ein (collective), ky-ein, corrupted to kine.

"Bull," Welsh bwl. "Bullock," Old English bulluca.

"Heifer," Old Eng. heafor. "Steer," Old Eng. steor. "Calf," cālf.

"Neat," O. E. neat, neat-hyrde, a neat-herd. "Beast," Lat. bestia.

"Oxlip" is a large variety of cowslip, so called because they make their appearance in early spring when the cows go to meadow.

Oxalic acid, ox.āl'ik ās'sid, acid manufactured from sorrel or wood-sawdust. Oxalis, ox.ā'lis, the wood-sorrel; oxal'ic.

Oxalate, ox'ă.lāte, a salt of oxalic acid (-ate denotes a salt from an acid in -ic, or most highly oxidised.)

Latin oxālis, green sorrel (Greek oxus, sour).

Oxide, ox'ide, a compound of oxygen with a base, as oxide of iron (rust). The number of equivalents is designated by the Greek prefixes prot-, deut-, trit-, &c., as protoxide, deutoxide, tritoxide, if saturated peroxide: thus Protoxide of A, one equivalent of oxygen with one of A.

Deutoxide of A, two equivalents of oxygen with one of A.

Tritoxide of A, three equivalents of oxygen with one of A.

Oxid-able, ox'ī.dă.b'l, capable of being made an oxide.

Oxid-ate, ox'ī.date, to convert into an oxide; ox'idāt-ed (R. xxxvi.), ox'idāt-ing (R. xix.), ox'idāt-or (R. xxxvii.)

Oxidation, ox'ī.day''shūn, union with oxygen.

Oxid-ise, ox'ī.dize, to convert into an oxide; ox'idised (3 syl.), oxidis-ing; oxidis-able, ox'ī.dī'',ză.b'l; oxidis-er.

Greek oxus, sour, with -ide, which denotes a base.

Oxygen, ox'ī.djen, a gas which gives to air its power of supporting respiration and combustion. In combination with hydrogen it becomes water, with minerals a solid.

Oxygenate, ox.idg'.ē.nate, to cause to combine with oxygen; oxyg'enāt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), oxyg'enāt-ing (Rule xix.), oxyg'enat-or (Rule xxxvii.) Oxygenous, ox.idg'.ē.nūs.

Oxygenise, ox.idg'.e.nize, to imbue with oxygen; oxyg'enised (± syl.), oxyg'enis-ing (Rule xix.); oxyg'enis-er, that which oxygenises; oxygenis-able, ox.idg'.ē.nī'',ză.b'l.

Greek oxus gennad, I make acids. This word was devised by Lavoisier, but it has two objections: (1) not all compounds of oxygen are acid; and (2) acidity is not in all cases due to oxygen.

Oxy-hydrogen, -hī''drō.djen, a mixture of oxygen and hydrogen used in the oxyhydrogen microscope and blowpipe.

Oxymel, ox'ī.mel, a mixture of vinegar and honey.

Greek oxus mēli, acid and honey.

Oxymoron, ox'ī.mō''.rōn, a figure of speech in which one word or part of a word seems irreconcilable with the other, as brass shoe-horn, iron mile-stone, cruel kindness, &c.

Greek oxumōron (oxus mōros), pointedly foolish, a paradox.

Oxyopia, ox'ī.ō''.pī.ah, preternaturally acute vision.

Greek oxuōpia (oxus ōps), sharp eye-sight.

Oxyphone, ox'ī.fōne, great shrillness of voice. (Gk. oxus phōnē.)

Oyer, ō.yer, a hearing or trial of law-suits (to hear).

Oyer and terminer, a commission to those addressed to hear and determine the causes submitted to them.

Norman French oyer, to hear; Latin audire, to hear.

Page (1 syl.), one side of a leaf, a boy attendant, to number pages; paged (1 syl.), pag-ing (Rule xix.), pāg'e-ing.

Pagination, pādg'ā.nay''shūn; paginal, pādg'ā.nāl.

"Page" (of a leaf), Latin pāgīna. "Page" (a boy), French page, Ital. paggio, corrupted from the Greek pais, gen. paidos, a child.

Pageant, pādg'n't, a gorgeous show; pag'eant-ry, pādg'ān.try.

Latin pēgma, a stage for scenic exhibitions. The "pēgmārēs" were gladiatorial shows exhibited on the pēgma (Greek pēgma).

Pagoda, pā.gō'.dah, a Hindū temple containing an idol, a summer-house built in imitation of a Hindū pagoda.

Hindustanee boot kuda, God's house; Persian pout ghod.

Pail, a water-bucket. Pale (1 syl.), white. Pāl. Pall, paul.

Pailful, plu. pailfuls (not pailsful). Two or three pailfuls means a "pailful" repeated twice or thrice; but two or three pails-full means two or three pails all full.

"Pail," Welsh paol. "Pale," Lat. pallidus, v. pallio (Gk. gālā, milk).

"Pal" (a doxy), paliard, one clothed in patches.

"Pall," Old English pæll; Latin pallium, a cloak.

Paillass, the French spelling of our corrupt form palliasse (q.v.)

Pain, pānē, torment. Pains, trouble. Pāne, a square of glass.

Pain, to vex; pained (1 syl.), pain'-ing, pain'-ful (R. viii.), pain'ful-ly, pain'-ful-ness. Pain-less, pain'less-ly, -ness.

Pains, trouble; pains'-taking, pains'-taker. To take pains.

Bill of pains and penalties (Eng. Hist.), a bill to punish an accused person with extra severity.

(The last bill of this sort was issued in 1820 against Queen Caroline.)

Paine forte et dure, pressing to death defendants who refuse to speak. (Paine should be peine.)

"Pain," O. E. pin, v. pin[an], past pinede, p. p. pīned (Lat. pēna).

"Pāne," same as "panel," French pan, panneau.

"Peine forte et dure," French (pain fort a durer).

Paint, a pigment, to use a pigment; paint'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), paint'-ing. Paint'-er, one who paints, a rope for mooring a boat or ship. Painters' colic, a disease to which house-painters are liable. (French peinte, Latin pictum.)

Pair, Pare, Pear, all pāre. Par, equal. Parr, a young salmon.

Pair, a couple, two articles or parts essential to a complete whole, to match; paired (1 syl.), pair'-ing.

Pairing-time, springtime when birds pair together.

Pairing-off, two members of opposite opinions agreeing to absent themselves when a vote is to be taken.

(This practice originated in the time of Cromwell.)

§ Pare, to peel. (Fr. parer, to dress, to pare horses' hoofs.

Pear, pare, a fruit. (Old English peru or pera.)

Par, pahr, equal. (Latin par.)

- i. PAIRS have no sing. numb. when the two parts which constitute a pair are joined and act together; but when each article is independent, it may be spoken of in the sing. numb.: Thus clippers, lemon-squeezers, nippers, nut-crackers, pliers, scissors, shears, spectacles, tongs, tweezers, &c. Drawers (clothing), stays, trousers, &c., have no sing. numb.; but blankets, boots, brackets, curtains, gloves, hinges, mittens, sheets, shoes, stockings, &c., consist of two separate articles "paired," and one of the pair is spoken of in the sing. numb.

ii. Pair. Couple. Brace.

Pair, two articles which go in "pairs," being either naturally or artificially necessary to make a complete whole, two articles which match or act reciprocally: as

A pair of clippers, nippers, nut-crackers, tongs, &c.

A pair of drawers, stays, trousers, &c.

A pair of brackets, coach-horses, decanters, nerves, ponies, vases, &c.

A pair of doves, fowls, soles, &c.

Couple, two articles of the same sort, but not necessarily pairs: as

A couple of dogs, ducks, eggs, rabbits, woodcocks, &c.

Brace, a sportsman's term for two head of game: as

A brace of birds, hares, partridges, pheasants, snipes, wild ducks; also a brace of carp, greyhounds, pistols, &c.

§ Two persons betrothed are a young couple, but man and wife are a married pair.

We say a brace of hares (game), but a couple of rabbits.

A brace of carp, a pair of soles, and a couple of fish generally.

A couple of dogs, but a pair of greyhounds.

A couple of glasses or bottles, but a pair of decanters.

A couple of shelves, but a pair of brackets.

A couple or two pillow-slips, but a pair of sheets and blankets.

A couple or two brooms, but a pair of hair-brushes.

- iii. Pair, Couple, Brace, Leash, Dozen, Score, Gross, &c., are not to be used in the plural number when two or more of these "collectives" are referred to: thus

Two pair (not pairs) of shoes.

Two couple (not couples) of rabbits.

Two brace (not braces) of birds.

Two leash (not leashes) of partridges.

Two dozen (not dozens) of eggs, or two dozen eggs.

Twenty score (not scores) of sheep.

Pāl, a doxy (contraction of paliard, a born beggar).

A paliard is "one that goeth in a patched cloke, and lys doxy [who] goeth in llike apparell." Fraternitee of Vacabondes, 1575.

Hamblet (1608) gives paliardize, dirtiness, shabbiness.

Palace, pāl'as. Pallas, Minerva. Palliasse, a "straw" mattress.

Palace, pāl'ās, the mansion of a sovereign or prelate; palatial, pā'lay'shē'āl, grand like a palace.

Palace court, the domestic court of the British sovereigns for offences committed by any of the royal domestics.

(Abolished 12th and 13th Vict.)

Palace-yard, the yard or drive before a palace.

"Palace," a dwelling on the Palatine Hill of Rome, where Augustus built his mansion, and Nero his "Golden House" or palatium.

"Pallas" (Minerva), from pallax, a maiden (Hemsterhuis).

"Palliasse," a corrupt form of the French paillasse (paille, straw).

Paladin, pāl'.a.dīn, one of the twelve knights which formed the coterie of Charlemagne, corresponding to the table-knights of King Arthur, a dignitary of the Byzantine palace.

Par corruption de palatin, du Lat. palatinus, an inmate of the palace; German paladin; Italian paladino.

Palæo-, pa'.le.o- (Greek prefix), ancient, præhistoric, extinct. In some examples the termination -æo- is wholly or partly incorporated with the word joined on.

Palæchinus, plu. -ni, pa'.le.kī'.nūs, a fossil sea-urchin (coal measures); palæchinidæ, pa'.le.kī'.nī.dē, the genus.

Greek palaïos echinos, ancient sea-urchin (-idæ, a family or group).

Palæo-cyon, pa'.le.o.sī'.on, a genus of extinct dogs or wolves.

Greek palaio- [palaïos] kuôn, ancient dog.

Palæo-gean, pa'.le.o.djē'.an, pertaining to the "pre-Ad'amic" period of the earth. (Gk. palaïos, gé the earth.)

Palæo-graphy, pa'.le.ōg''.ra.fy, the art of deciphering the ancient inscriptions and writings; palæo-graphic, -gräf'.īk; palæo-graphical, -gräf'.ī.kāl; palæo-graphist, pa'.le.ōg''.rā.fist; palæographer, pa'.lē.ōg''.rā.fēr.

Greek palaio- [palaïos] graphé, ancient writing.

Palæo-lithic, pa'.le.o.līth''.īk, applied to the pre-historic stone period. (Gk. palaïos lithos, ancient stone [period].)

Palæo-logy, pa'.le.ōl''.o.djy, the science and knowledge of antiquities; palæol'ogist. (Greek palaïos logos.)

Palæo-oniscus, pa'.le.o-nīs''.kūs, a genus of fossil fishes found in the Carboniferous and Permian formations.

Greek palaio- [palaïos], Latin oniscus, a wood-louse.

Palæo-ontology, pa'.le.ōn.tōl''.o.djy, that part of geology which treats of fossil plants and animals; palæontological, pa'.le.ōn'.to.lodg''.ī.kāl; palæontologist, -le.ōn.tol''.o.djist.

Greek palaio- [palaïos] onta logos, treatise on ancient existences.

Palæo-phytology, pa'.le.o-fl.tol''.o.djy, that branch of palæontology which treats of fossil plants and vegetables.

Greek palaio- [palaïos] phuton logos, treatise on ancient plants.

Palæo-saurus, plu. -sauri, pa'.le.o-saw''.rūs, the ancient saurian, an extinct reptile found in the Permian strata.

Greek palaio- [palaïos] saurós, the ancient lizard.

Palæo-siren, pa'.le.o-sī''.ren, a fossil reptile of the Lower Permian, resembling the salamander.

Greek palaio- [palaïos] seirén, an ancient siren or mermaid.

Palæo-spalax, pa'.le.ōs''.pā.lax, a fossil of the mole type.

Greek palaio- [palaïos] spalax, an ancient mole.

Palæo-therium, plu. -theria, pa'.le.o-rhī''.rūm, -rī.ah, a fossil thick-skinned genus of animals resembling ta'pirs.

Greek palaio- [palaïos] thérion, an ancient wild animal.

Palæo-xylon, pa'.le.ðx''.îlon, a fossil tree-stump in the coal-measures. (Greek palaïos xulon, ancient tree-stump.)

Palæo-zoic, pa'.le.o-zo''.îk (not -zoik, 1 syl.), applied to the lowest and oldest of the three great fossiliferous strata.

(From the New Red Sandstone downwards to the azoic rocks.)

Gk. palaïos zôikos, [rocks] with ancient animal life (zôon, an animal).

Palæo-zoology, pa'.le.o-zo.ðl''.o.djy (not -zoo'.lð.djy), that branch of geology which treats of fossil remains.

Greek palaïos zôon logos, a treatise on ancient living animals.

Palætiology, pa.lẽ'.ti.ðl''.ð.djy, the sciences which explains the causes of the changes in the past conditions of the earth; palætiological, pa.lẽ'.ti.o.lodg''.î.kål; palætiologist, pa.lẽ'.ti.ðl''.o.djist, one skilled in palætiology.

Greek palaïos aitia logos, a treatise on ancient causes.

Pal-ichthyology, pa.lîk'.rhl.ðl''.ð.djy, that part of palæontol'ogy which treats of fossil fishes; pal-ichthy-ol'ogist.

Greek palaïos ichthus logos, a treatise on ancient fishes.

Palæstra, pa.lees'.trah, a school in Greece for athletic exercises.

Greek palaistra, the wrestling-school (palaio, to wrestle).

Palanquin, pāl'.an.keen'', a Chinese and Indian litter.

French palanquin; Spanish palanquin; Hindu. palkce, a litter.

Pal'ant, the line of demarcation for vagrants.

Somner, in his Dict. Sax., gives the word palant as equivalent to palace, but the "Palant of Chichester" is not near the palace, and never was connected with it. It is probably the place where vagrants were stopped, not being allowed to pass beyond it into the town. Latin palantes, vagrants, v. palāri, to wander.

Palargonium (no such word). See Pelargonium.

Palate, pāl'.ăt. Pallet, pāl'.lět. Palette, pāl'.ět.

Palate, pāl'.ăt, the roof of the mouth, the organ of taste.

Palatable, pāl'.ăt.tă.b'l, agreeable to the taste; pal'atably, pal'atable-ness; pal'atal, uttered by aid of the palate.

Of consonants, the throat letters or "gutturals" are k, g, ch = k.

The "palatals," or those formed at the mouth-roof, are j, ch (soft).

The tongue letters or "linguals" are sh, zh.

The teeth letters or "dentals" are t, d, th, dh.

The lip letters or "labials" are p, b, f, v.

Pallet, pāl'.lět, a low small bed. (Fr. paille, straw, with dim.)

Palette, pāl'.ět, a painter's colour-board. (French palette.)

"Palate," Latin pālātum (Greek paô, Latin pasco, to feed).

Palatial, pā.lay'.she'ül, becoming a palace. (See Palace.)

Palatine, pal'.a.tine, the "palace-greave" (of Chester, Durham, or Lancaster), who held his court in a royal palace.

Palatinate, pa.lūt'.î.nate, the province of a palatine.

Latin pālātīnus, belonging to the pālātium or royal palace.

Palaver, pa.lah'.ver, soft sawder, to carny; palavered, pa.lah'.verd; palaver-ing, pa.lah'.ver.ing.

Portug. palavra, talk, palabra, wordy promises. (Not Fr. parler vous.)

Pale, wan, a stake, scope. Pail, a water bucket. Pal. Pall.

Pāle (1 syl.), without colour, to turn pale; paled (1 syl.), pāl'-ing (Rule xix.), pale'-ly, pale'-ness, pale'-ish (-ish added to adj. is dim.; added to nouns it means "like"); pale'-ale; (comp.) pāl'-er, (super.) pāl'-est. Pallor.

Pallid, pāl.lid; pāl'id-ly, pāl'id-ness.

Paling, pāy'ling, a barrier of pales; paled-in, enclosed.

Pail, a water-bucket. (Welsh paol.)

Pāl, a female companion, a doxy. (Arch. paliard, a beggar.)

A paliard is one who goes about in a patched cloak, hence paliardise, dirtiness, shabbiness (Hamlet, 1608, p. 181).

Pall (of a coffin). Old English pæll, Latin pallium.

"Pale" (wan), Latin pallidus, v. palleo.

"Pale" (a stake), Old Eng. pal; Latin pātus; Greek passālos.

"Pale" (scope), as within the pale of my observation, means the part "staked out," the "enclosure," the "field of my observation."

Paletot, pāl.tō (not pāl'e.tō), a light overcoat (French).

Palette. Pallet, a low bed. Palate, pāl'.āt, the roof of the mouth.

Palette, pāl'.ēt, a painter's colour-board; palette-knife, -nife.

To set the palette, to put on it the colours required for use.

Pallet, pāl'.et, a low mean bed. (Fr. paille, straw, with dim.)

Palate, pāl'.āt, the roof of the mouth. (Latin pālātum.)

"Palette," French palette (Latin pāla, a shovel, with diminutive).

Palfrey, plu. palfreys (not palfries, Rule xlv.), a lady's horse.

French palefroi (2 syl.); Low Latin pala fredus or pal fredus;

Latin pālēre, horse trappings, a horse with trappings.

Pal-ichthyology, pa.līk'.rhī.ōl'.o.gy, that part of palæontology which treats of fossil fishes; pal-ichthyologist, -ō.đjist.

Greek palaiois ichthus logos, a treatise on ancient fishes.

Palin- (Greek prefix), again. Written pali- in "palilogy," and palim- in "palimpsest." (Greek pālīn, again.)

Pali-logy, pāl.līl'.ō.đjy, the repetition of a word or phrase to increase its force, as very very good, too too bad.

Greek pālīn lōgōs, a word [uttered] again.

Palim-psest, pāl'.īmp.sest, a parchment, which after partial erasure, has been written over a second time.

Latin palimpsestos, a tablet which can be written on often.

(Greek pālīn psao, to rub-out again and again.)

Palin-drome, a verse or word which reads backwards and forwards the same, as madam or madam I'm Adam.

Greek pālīn drōmos, a running [one way and] again [the other way].

Palin-genesis, pāl'.īn-đjē.nēe''.ze.ah, regeneration; palin-genesis, pāl'.īn-đjēn''.ē.sīs, the repetition of creation.

The Orientals maintain that the inhabitants of the earth have been utterly extirpated and re-created over and over again. (Greek pālîn gēnēsīs, creation anew.)

Palin-ode, pāl'īn.ode, a poetical retraction; palin-odist, pāl'in.o''dist (Hor. Odes, i. 16, is an example).

Greek pālîn ôdē, a retracting ode. Stesichorus, the Greek poet, was struck blind by the Dioscūri for writing a satire on Helen, but was restored his sight on writing a palinode.

Palisade. Paling. Railing. Hedge. Fence.

Palisade, pāl'ī.sāde, a barrier of strong pointed stakes for fortification. Thick ornamental iron railings.

Palisading, pāl'ī.say''ding (a collective noun).

Palisado, plu. palisadoes, pāl'ī.sā''dōze, a stockade.

Palisade, to enclose with palisades; palisād'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), palisād'-ing. (Fr. palisade, Span. palisado.)

Paling, pay'ling, a fence of trim lath wood round a park or garden, or before a house, an iron fence less pretentious than a palisading. Pale or paling, a single stake.

A park paling, not palisading. (Latin pālus, a stake.)

Railing, a road or field defence of vertical bars supported by posts some five or six feet apart, the vertical bars to which palings are fastened top and bottom.

A rail or railing, a single bar. (Welsh rhail.)

Palisading, paling, and railing are the collective terms of palisade, pale, and rail, but the latter two are used indifferently.

Hedge, a fence of earth banked up and planted. Hedging, making or repairing a hedge. (Old English hege.)

Fence, any of the above, or a brick wall, a close hoarding, or an enclosure by iron or wooden hurdles, to prevent cattle from straying and to protect fields from outsiders.

Fencing (a collective noun), making or mending a fence.

Latin defensio, a defence (de fendo, to keep off).

Paliurus, pāl'ī.ū''rūs, usually called Christ's thorn.

Latin paliurus; Greek pāliouros, traditionally the plant from which "the crown of thorns was platted."

Pall, pawl. Paul, a man's name. Pawle. Poll. Pāl.

Pall, pawl, a cloth cover for a coffin. (O. E. pall, Lat. pallium.)

Pall, to clog; palled (1 syl.), pall'-ing. (Welsh pall.)

Paul, a man's name. (Latin Paulus.)

Pawl, a bar to prevent the recoil of a windlass. (Welsh pawl.)

Pöll, a head, to vote. (Dutch polle, the head.)

Pāl, a doxy. (Archaic paliard, a ragged beggar, see Pal.)

Pall-mall, pell mell, in a disorderly manner.

"Pall-mall," from the game so called. The palle is an iron ball, and the maul or mall a little mallet for striking it.

Palladium, pāl.lay'.dī.um, a safeguard. (Greek Pallas.)

The palladium was a wooden statue of Pallās (Minerva) said to have dropped from heaven. It was believed that Troy would continue secure so long as this statue remained in the city.

Pallet. Palette. Palate. Palliate. Pi'late. Pi'lot.

Pallet, pāl'.lēt, a low mean bed, properly of straw.

French paille, straw, with diminutive; Latin palea, straw or chaff.

Palette, pāl'.ēt, a painter's planchette or colour board.

French palette, diminutive of Latin pāla, a shovel.

Palate, pāl'.āt, the roof of the mouth, the organ of tasting.

Latin pālātum (Greek pas, Latin pasco, to eat or feed).

Palliate, pāl'.i.ate, to excuse, to extenuate. (See Palliate.)

Pi'late, a man's name. Pi'lot of a ship. (Latin pilōtus.)

Palliasse. Mattress. Matras. Sommier. Palace. Pallas.

Palliasse, pāl'.i.ās, a straw under-mattress.

Corruption of Fr. paillasse, from paille, Lat. palēa, straw, chaff.

§ Mattress, māt'.trēs, a "bed" stuffed with horse-hair, flock, wool, alva, &c., but not with feathers. (Welsh matras.)

Matras, māt'.rās, a cucurbit. (Fr. matras, Lat. matrācium.)

Sommier, sūm'.mī.er, a spring mattress.

French sommier, sommeil, sleep (Latin somnus, Greek hupnos).

§ Palace, pāl'.ace, a regal mansion. (Latin pallatium.)

Pallas, pāl'.i.ās, the Greek Minerva (pallax, a maiden).

Palliate, pāl'.i.ate, to excuse, to extenuate; pāl'liāt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), pāl'liāt-ing; palliative, pāl'.i.a.tiv (double l).

Palliation, pāl'.i.a''.shūn, extenuation, excuse.

Latin palliāre, supine palliātum to cloak, (pallum, a cloak).

Pall-mall, pell-mell (not paul maul), a game with ball and mallet.

The iron ball is the palle, and mall is the mallet to strike it with.

Pallor, pāl'.lor, paleness. Paler, pāl'e'.er, comp. of Pale (g.v.)

Lat. pallor, v. palleo, to look pale (Gk. pallō, to shake with fear).

Palm, palm, a tree, the inside of the hand between the wrist and the fingers, to pass off by imposition; palmed (1 syl.), palm'-ing. Palmy, pah'mj, prosperous.

Palmar. Palmer. Palm Sunday, the next before Easter.

Palmar, pah'.mar, pertaining to the hand or to a palm;

Palmer, pah'.mer, a pilgrim, so called from his carrying a palm-branch in sign of his expedition;

Palmer-worm, pah'.mer wurm, a caterpillar.

So called from Latin palmes, the shoots of trees, which it devours. (In the following the "l" is pronounced.)

Palmaceous (R. lxvi.), pal.may'.shūs, pertaining to palm-trees.

Palmary, pāl'.ma.ry, pertaining to palm-trees.

- Palmate, pāl'mate, (in Botany) a leaf resembling a human hand with the fingers stretched apart; palma'ted.
- Palma Christi, pāl'mah krīs'tī, the castor-oil plant.
Supposed to have afforded the "palm branches strawed by the way" when Christ rode in triumph to Jerusalem.
- Palmacite, pāl'ma.sīte, fossil palms (-ite, a fossil).
- Palmiferous, pāl'mīf'.ĕrūs, bearing palms. (Latin ferō.)
- Palmistry, pāl'mīs.try, telling fortunes by the lines of the hand; pal'mister, one skilled in palmistry.
- "Palm" (of the hand), Old English folme or folm; Latin palma.
"Palm" (a tree), Old English palm, palm-twig, palm-sunnan-deg, palm-wuce, palm week; Latin palma; Greek palamé.
- Palmati- (a prefix used in Bot.) Latin palmātus, marked like or resembling a man's hand.
- Palmati-fid, pāl.mat'ĭ.fīd, a leaf like a man's hand, with the indentations not more than half-way to the base.
Latin palma, gen. palmātis, findo, perf. fīdi, to cleave.
- Palmati-partite, pāl.mat'ĭ-par''tīte, a similar leaf with much deeper clefts. (Latin partitus, divided.)
- Palmetto, pāl.mēt'to, a West Indian palm-tree. (Latin palma.)
- Palmine, pāl'mīn, a fatty substance obtained from castor-oil; palmic acid, pāl'mīk ūs'sīd, obtained from palmine.
- Pal'mi-pēd, web-footed; palmipeds, an order of web-footed birds.
Latin palmipes, gen. palmipēdis. Evidently a blunder, being founded with palmipes, a measure of five hands' breadth, derived from palmus, gen. palmi (nine inches), instead of palma, -æ.
- Palmistry, pāl'mīs.try, fortune-telling by the hand. (See Palm.)
- Palpable, pāl'.pā'b'l, evident, perceptible by touch; pal'pably, pal'pable-ness. Palpability, pāl'.pa.bīl''ĭ.ty, obviousness.
- Palpation, pāl.pay'shūn, the act of feeling, perception by touch; but palpitation, pāl'.pi.tay''shun, is a throbbing.
Latin palpābilis, palpātio (palpāre, to feel, to touch).
- Palpitate, pāl'.pī.tate, to pant; pal'pitāt-ed, pal'pitāt-ing.
- Palpitation, pāl'.pi.tay''shūn, throbbing [of the heart]; but palpation, pāl.pay'shūn, is perception by touch.
Latin palpitatio, palpitāre (Greek pallo, to toss about the arms).
- Palsgrave, fem. palsgravine, pawlz'.grave, pawlz'.grā.vīn, a nobleman who has the superintendence of a royal palace.
Germ. pfalzgraf, pfalzgräfin (contraction of Lat. pālātium[graf]).
- Palsy, plu. palsies (R. xlv.), pōl'.zīz, contraction of paralysis [p'alsis]; palsied, pōl'.zīd, paralysed; palsical, pōl'.zī.kāl.
Latin pārālŷis; Greek pārālŷsis (para luo, thoroughly loose).
- Palter, pōl'.ter, to tamper; paltered, pōl'.terd; palter-ing.
- Palter-er, pōl'.te.ver. (Gk. sphallō, Lat. fallo, to falter.)

Paltry, worthless, contemptible; paltri-ness, paltri-ly (R. xi.)

Swed. palt, a rag; Norse pialt, piallet, ragged, pialtore, a rag-fair.

Pām, knave of clubs, the highest or "palm" card in 5-card loo.

Pampas, pām'pāz. Pam'pers, feeds on dainties.

Pampas (Peru.), the vast treeless plains of South America.

Pam'per, to indulge, to feed on dainties; pam'pered (2 syl.), pam'per-ing, pam'per-er. (Flem. pamberato, highly fed.)

Pamphlet, pām'flēt, a small book stitched together.

Pamphlet-eer, pām'flē.teēr', a writer of pamphlets;
pamphleteer'-ing, writing and publishing pamphlets.

Dutch pamphier, paper; Span. papeleta, a memorandum. Halliwell gives pamflet A-N, where "flet" is probably from filum, thread, and our hybrid would mean paper [sewn] with thread.

Pān, a vessel for holding milk and for other domestic uses.

Pan'ful, plu. panfuls (not pansful), pan-cake. (O. E. panne.)

Pan- (Greek prefix), all, the god Pan.

Pan-acea, pām'a.see.ah, a universal medicine.

Greek panaketa (pan akēōmai, I cure all); Latin panacea.

Pan-cratiūm, pām.krāt'ī.ūm, a trial of strength; pancratic, pan.krāt'ik, athletic; pancratic'al, pancratical-ly.

Greek pan'krātōs, all bodily-strength.

Pan-creas, pām.krē.as, a fleshy gland of the stomach;
pan-creatic, -kre.ăt'ik. (Greek pan krēas, all flesh.)

Pandean, pān.dee'an, pertaining to the god Pan; pande'an-pipes, a musical instrument of graduated reeds.

Pan'-dect, a cyclopædia. Pandects, a digest of the Roman laws compiled under the emperor Justinian.

Latin pandecta; Greek pan dechōmai, I teach all [the laws].

Pan-dem'ic, incident to a whole population.

Greek pan-dēmos, common or accessible to all.

Pan-demonium, -de.mō'ni.ūm, "the high capital of Satan and his peers"—Milton. (Gk. pan daimon, every demon.)

Pan'der, to minister to the selfish passions of others; pandered, pan'derd; pan'der-ing, pan'der-er.

From Pandarus, in the story of "Troilus and Cressida."

Pandiculate, pām.dik'.u.late, to yawn and stretch; pandic'ulāt-ed
(Rule xxxvi.)

Pandiculation, pām.dik'.u.lay''.shūn, gaping and stretching.

Latin pandiculatio, pandiculāri, to gape and stretch.

Pandora, pām.dōr'rah, a woman on whom all the deities of Greece bestowed a gift. Pando'ra's box, a casket in which all the ills of life were shut up, when Pandora peeped in all the ills flew out, but she slammed down the lid just in time to prevent the escape of hope.

Pane, a square of glass. Pains, trouble. Pain, ailment.

"Pane," Latin pannus, a patch; French panneau, a pane or panel.

"Pain," Old English pīn, v. pīn[an]; Latin pœna, punishment.

Panegyric, păn'.e.gīr'rik (not păn'.e.ger'rik), eulogy;
panegyrical, păn'.e.gīr'ri.kāl; panegyrically.

Panegyryze (Rule xxxiii.), păn'.e.gī.rize, to eulogise;
pan'egyryzed (4 syl.), pan'egyryz-ing (Rule xix.)

Panegyrist, păn'.e.gīr'rist, a eulogiser.

Greek panēgūrikos, panēgūrizó (pas agōra, the whole assembly), to address a national assembly, to praise a public character.

Panel, păn'.el (not pannel), a schedule of the names of a jury, the jury, a thin board set in a wooden frame, a compartment of wainscot, to panel; panelled, păn'.eld; pan'ell-ing (Rule iii.); panel-less; pane-less (2 syl.)

To impan'el a jury, to enter their names on a parchment schedule. This is done by the sheriff.

Low Lat. panellum, Fr. pan with dim., Lat. pannus, a patch, Gk. pénōs.

Pang, a paroxysm. (O. E. pang, venom or pyng[an], to prick.)

Panhellenic, pan'.hēl.lee'.nīk (not păn'.hēl'.ē.nīk), pertaining to all Greece; panhellenism, păn'.hēl.lee'.nīzm; panhellenist, pan'.hel.lee'.nist (not pan.hel'.ē.nist).

The introduction of "h" in the middle of Greek words is abnormal, except when a letter can be changed into its corresponding aspirate, as p into ph. In Greek these words are spelt πανελλήνικος, πανελληνες, &c., not πανελλήνικος, πανελληνες.

Panic, păn'.ik, a sudden and unaccountable terror; panic-struck, seized with a sudden and causeless terror.

Herodotus says that the god Pan assisted the Athenians at Marathon by striking causeless fear into the hearts of the Persians. Theon says that Pan, by blowing into a sea-horn, struck terror into the hearts of the giants when they warred against heaven. Another tale is that during the Indian expedition of Bacchus, one of his generals named Pan performed substantially the feat of Gideon (Judg. vii. 18-21).

Panicle, păn'.ī.k'l, (in Bot.) a catkin, a tuft of flowers or seeds.

Compact panicle, the seeds close together, as in maize.

Divergated panicle, the seeds wide apart, as in oats.

Spiked panicle, the seeds spiked, as in barley.

Panicked, with flowers in panicles and bunches (golden rod).

Latin pānīcula, a spool of yarn, diminutive of pānus, a quill of yarn.

Gk. pénion, the panicle of the pine, willow, oak, ash, alder, hazel, &c.

In the oak and hazel the male flowers only are in catkins.

Panification, păn'.ī.fl.kay'.shūn, conversion of dough into bread.

Panivorous, pan.īv'.o.rūs, subsisting on bread.

Latin pānis fīcto [fācto], I make bread; pānis vōro, I eat bread.

Pannade, păn'.nade', a prance or curvet. (Fr. panader, to strut.)
 ("Pannade" would be better with a single n.)

Pannage, păn'.age, the acorns and beech-nuts which swine pick up in woods, duty paid for the "run" of swine in a wood.

(The double n is an error from the notion that "pan" is the simple.)

Low Latin pannagium or paunagium; French panage.

Lat. pānis, Gk. panos, food (v. pao Gk., pasco Lat. [perf. pavi]).

Pannier, păn'.yer, a wicker-basket slung over a horse or donkey.

French panier, Latin panarium, for carrying bread.

(The double n is an error from the notion that "pan" is the simple.)

Pannikin, păn'.nĩ.kĩn (corruption of pankin), a small pan.

Pan-, pano- (Greek prefix), all, Pan (continued from p. 792).

Pano-phobia, pan'.o.fõ".bĩ.ah, panic-fear.

Greek pan, gen. panos phōbos, fear of Pan or fear from Pan.

Pan-oply, pan'.o.ply, complete armour (Rule lxx.)

(According to our general plan of expressing the Greek aspirate with an "h," this word should be panhoply.)

Greek pan hoplon, pan hoplia; Latin panoplia.

Pan-opticon, pan.õp'.tĩ.kõn, a sort of polytechnic institution.

Greek pan optomat, [a place where] I see everything.

Pan-orama, pan'.o.rah".mah, a large painting drawn gradually over a roller and exhibiting a succession of views; panoram'ic.

(According to our general plan of expressing the Greek aspirate with an "h," this word should be panhorama. Greek pan horāma.)

Pan-stereorama, pan.stẽr'rẽ.o.rah".mah, a picture in relief.

(Like "panorama," this word should consistently be spelt with an "h," as pansterehorama. Greek pan stērẽs horama.)

Pansy, plu. pansies, păn'.zĩz, the heart's-ease. (French pensée.)

"There is pansies, that's for thoughts" (Hamlet iv. 5).

Pant, to breathe rapidly after great exertion; pant'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), pant'-ing, pant'-ing-ly, pant'-er; pant'ess, difficulty of breathing in hawks. (Fr. penteler, to gasp.)

Pantaloon, păn'.ta.loon", a buffoon in pantomimes; pantaloons, trousers, drawers; pan'talets, loose drawers for children.

"Pantaloon" (the clown), from St. Pataleon, a patron saint of Venice.

"Pantaloons," so called from the loose trousers worn by pantaloons.

Panta-morphic (should be panto-morphic), taking all forms.

The rule for a prefix is to take, if possible, the crude form, if not to take the gen. case sing., which is sure to contain the crude form. Great uncertainty exists as to which of the following forms is correct: panta-graph or panto-graph, panta-meter or panto-meter, panta-logy or panto-logy, but there is really no doubt that panto- is to be preferred. Thus in Greek we have panto-krator, all-mighty, panto-misēs, all-hateful, panto-pathēs, all-suffering, panto-poros, all-inventive, panto-tolmos, all-daring, panto-phurtos, &c.

Pan-technicon, pan.tẽk'.nĩ.kõn, a bazaar, a place where anything may be sent to be warehoused.

Greek pan technikos, [a place for] everything pertaining to art.

Pan-theism, -thē'izm, the system which assumes God and Nature to be synonymous; pantheistic, păn'·thē'is''·tĭk; pantheistical, pan'·thē'is''·tĭ.kāl.

Pantheon, păn·thē'·ōn, a temple for all the gods.

Greek pan thēos, everything God; Latin panthēon. It will be observed that the Latin word is pan'·thē'·ōn not păn·thē'·ōn.

Panther, pan'·rher, a spotted wild beast, the Indian leopard. The leopard proper is African; pantherine, păn'·thē'·rĭn.

Greek panthēr; Latin panther or panthēra, panthērĭnus, adj.

Pantile, păn'·tile, a roofing tile curved longitudinally.

A roofing tile not curved is a Plain tile.

Old Eng. pan tigel, a hem tile, i.e., a tile turned up at the edge.

Pan'to- (Greek prefix), all, altogether (pas, gen. antos).

Panto-chronometer, -kro.nōm'·ē.ter, an instrument combining the compass, sun-dial, and universal time-dial.

Greek panto-chronos metron, the measure of all time.

Panto-graph (not pantagraph), pan'·tō.grăf, an instrument to enable unskilled persons to make a copy of a map, plan, or outline drawing; panto-graphic, -grăf'·ĭk; panto-graphical, -grăf'·ĭ.kāl; pantographist, -ra.fĭst.

Pantography, păn.tōg'·ra.fy, the pantographic art.

Greek panto- grapho, I draw or describe all things.

Panto-logy (not pantalogy), păn.tōl'·ō.djy, universal knowledge. Pantologia, păn'·to.lōg''·i.ak, a cyclopædia; pantological, pan'·to.lōg''·ĭ.kāl; pantologist, păn.tōl'·o.djĭst.

Greek panto- logos, a universal treatise, i.e., on all subjects.

Panto-mime (not pantamine), pan'·to.mĭme, a drama by actions without words; panto-mimic, păn'·to.mĭm''·ĭk; panto-mimically, -mĭm'·ĭ.kāl.ly; pantomimist, -mĭm'·ĭst.

Greek panto- mimos, wholly mime, i.e., dumb show.

Panto-phagist, păn.tōf'·a.djĭst, one that eats all kinds of food. (Greek panto- phago, I eat every kind [of food].)

Pantry, plu. pantries, păn'·trĭz, a store-room for household food.

French paneterie, a bread-room; Latin panis, panarium, a pantry.

Păp, soft food for infants; papp'-y (Rule i.), resembling pap.

Latin papa; Italian pappa, infants' food.

Papa, fem. mamma, pă.pal', măm.mah', father, mother. (Terms used chiefly by children of "the gentry." Norm. Fr.)

These words, like the names of "meats," are standing witnesses of the Conquest. The children of Norman lords used the Norman terms papa and mamma, while the Saxon peasantry adhered to their native words father and mother. (Lat. pappas, v. papāre.)

Papacy, pa'.pa.cy, the dignity or jurisdiction of a pope, the time of a pope's reign, the popes collectively considered.

Papal, pă'.pāl, pertaining to the pope; pă'pal-ly.

- Pā'palise, to bring into subjection to the spiritual rule of the pope; papalised, pā'pāl.īzd; pā'palis-ing, pā'pist.
- Pope (1 syl.); pope-dom, pōpe'.dum; popery, pō'.pe.ry, the religion of those who acknowledge the papal authority.
- The French have three words: pape, the pope, papas, a Levantine priest, and pope, a Greek priest; Italian papa; Spanish papa. Our adoption of "pope" shews that our sympathies were stronger with the Greek church than with the Latin.
- Papaveraceæ, pa.pa'.vē.ray''.sē.ē, a natural order of plants of which the poppy is a type (-aceæ, an order of plants); papaverous, pa.pa'.vē.rūs; papaveraceous, pa.pa'.vē.ray''.shūs (this word ought to be abolished); papaverine, pa.pay'.ve.rīn, an alkaloid found in opium. Poppy.
- Lat. pāpāver, pāpāvēreus; Old Eng. popig, a poppy; Welsh pabi.
- Paper, pay'.per (noun and verb); papered, pay'.perd; pā'per-ing; paper-y, pay'.pe.ry, like paper; pā'per-er, a person who hangs wall-papers; paper-hanger, paper-hangings, paper for decorating walls; paper-money, -mūn'.y, bank notes; paper-currency, paper-mill, paper-stainer, one who makes paper-hangings; paper-ruler, one who rules lines on paper; paper-folder, a bone or ivory knife.
- Tissue paper, tis'.su pay'.per, a paper made of refuse flax.
- Wove-paper, paper with a uniform surface; not ribbed.
- Laid-paper, paper ribbed and water-marked.
- Bath-post-paper, a wove paper "letter size."
- Foolscap paper, a folio sized paper, the water-mark of which was a fool's cap and bells, probably a pun on the word folio.
- Post paper, letter paper (old water-mark, a post horn).
- Blotting paper, an absorbent paper containing wool.
- Cartridge paper, paper used for cartridges.
- Writing paper, paper for writing-on with pen or pencil.
- Waste-paper, paper which has been used and is thrown aside.
- Daily paper, a newspaper issued daily, also called a daily, plu. dailies, day'.līz.
- Weekly paper, a newspaper issued once a week, also called a weekly, plu. weeklies, week'.līz.
- Papier-mache (French), pāp'.i.ā mah'.sha, paper reduced to a pulp and moulded into various articles.
- German papier, papier-macher, papier mühle; French papier.
- Papilio, pa.pīl'.i.o. Papilla, pa.pīl'.lah. (See below.)
- Papilio, plu. papilios, pa.pīl'.i.ōze, the butterfly genus.
- Papilionaceæ, pa.pīl'.i.o.nay''.sē.ā, plants with flowers resembling butterflies (-aceæ, an order of plants).
- Papilionaceous, pa.pīl'.i.o.nay''.shūs, like butterflies.
- Latin pāpilio, a butterfly (Greek ēpialos); French papilionacé.

Papilla, plu. papillæ, pă.pîl'.lah, pă.pîl'.lē, the fine extremities of the nerves on the surface of the tongue, hand, &c.

Papillary, păp'pil.la.ry; papillous, păp'.îl.lūs.

Papillate, păp'.îl.late; pap'illāt-ed; papillose, păp'.îl.lōse.

Latin păpilla, plu. papillæ, a nipple, păpillatus.

Papist, pay'pist, a Roman Catholic; papistical, pay.pis'.ti.kāl; papis'tical-ly; papistry, pay'pis.try: (French papiste.)

Papyrus, plu. papyri, pă.pÿ'.rūs, -ri (not păp'.î.rūs), an Egyptian reed used by the ancients as we use paper; papÿ'ri, written scrolls of papyrus found in Egypt and elsewhere.

Papyraceous, păp'.î.ray''.shūs, pertaining to papyrus.

Papyrine, păp'.î.rîn, vegetable parchment. (Lat păpÿrūs.)

It is interesting to observe the "vegetable" character of our words connected with books: Thus "Bible" is Greek bublos, the inner rind of the păpÿrus; "Book" is Old Eng. boc, Germ. buche, a beech-tree; "Leaf" is obvious; "Library" is Latin liber, the bark of a tree; "Paper," păpÿrus, the Egyptian reed.

Par, equal. Parr, a young salmon. Pas, pah, precedence.

At par, said of "stocks" when the market value equals the nominal; above par, below par. On a par, on equality.

If £100 of [A.B.] stock is quoted in the money-market at £100 it is at par, if above that price it is above par, if below that price it is below par. (Latin par, equal.)

Par- (Latin prefix), partly, in part.

Par-, para-, păr'ra-, before consonants (Greek prefix), side by side, like, through, beyond, exceedingly.

Para-batrachus, -băt'.ră.kūs, a fossil frog-like reptile of the coal measures. (Greek para batrachōs, like a frog.)

Parable. Fable. Allegory. Metaphor. Simile.

Parable, păr'ră.b'l, an every-day incident, with every-day actors, acting as they usually do, made to illustrate some religious truth. As the parable of the sower.

Fable or Apologue, ap'.ō.lōg, a purely imaginary incident, with actors not acting in their usual way, made to illustrate some moral or political truth: as "the trees choosing a king." (Judges ix. 8-15.)

Allegory, al'.le.gō.ry, abstract ideas expressed by sensible objects. The mind-picture is materialised by a picture addressed to the eye. It is not essential that any lesson be taught. "Angels blowing" allegorise wind.

Metaphor, mět'.ă.for, the substitution of a concrete word or phrase for an abstract one; as "go and tell that fox..." i.e., Herod. "Bridle your anger," i.e., control.

Simile, șim'.î.le, a direct parallel between two essentially different sets of actors, either drawn out in words or

- suggested to the imagination. A busy city compared to a beehive. A rebellious one to a ship tempest-tossed.
- Greek parabole (para ballo, I cast [two things] side by side).
- Para-bola, pǎ.rǎb'.ô.lah, a curve formed by cutting a cone with a plane parallel to one of its sides; parabolic, pǎ'r.ra.bôl''.îk; parabolical, -bôl''.î.kāl; parabol'ical-ly; parabol'iform; paraboloid, pǎ.rǎb'.ô.loid, a solid generated by the revolution of a parabola about its axis.
- Greek parābôlē (para ballo, to put [two things] side by side).
- Para-centesis, -sen.tee'.sis, tapping for dropsy.
- Greek parakentēsis, perforation (para kentoō, to pierce through).
- Para-centric, -sen'.trîk, out of the strict curve of a circle.
- Greek para kentron, [running] beyond the centre.
- Para-chronism, pa.rāk'.o.nîzm, anachronism, dating an event too late. Pro-chronism, dating an event too soon.
- Greek para chronos, beyond the [true] time. (See Metachronism.)
- Parachute, pǎ'r.ra.shoot, a sort of umbrella designed to enable aeronauts to descend from a balloon.
- French parer à chute, a chute [or descent] parrier. (See Parasol.) It is not from the Greek para and French chute, as is usually given.
- Para-clete, pǎ'r.ra.kleet, the Holy Ghost as a "comforter."
- Greek paraklētos, an advocate or comforter (para kālō, to call to one's side [either for advice or comfort]).
- Parade, pǎ.rade', ostentatious show, the place where troops assemble for exercise, order or array of troops, to parade; parād'-ed (R. xxxvi.), parād'-ing (R. xix.), parade-ground.
- French parade; Latin parātus, apparātus, in full dress.
- Para-digm, pa'r.ra.dîm, a declensional or conjugational model; para-digmatic, pǎ'r.ra.dîg.măt''.îk; para-digmat'ical, para-digmatical-ly.
- Greek paradeigma, an example or illustration (para deigma).
- Paradise, pǎ'r.ra.dice, the garden of Eden, elysium, heaven; paradisiacal (not paradisaical), pǎ'r.ra.dî.sî''.a.kāl, resembling paradise. Bird of paradise; paradisea, pǎr.ra.dî'.zē.ah, the genus; paradisean, pa'r.ră.dî''.zē.ăn.
- According to Chinese legend, birds of paradise have no feet; Linnæus, accepting this fable as a fact, calls them apoda (footless).
- Gk. paradeisos; Sansk. paradēsa; Persian pardes, pleasure-grounds.
- Para-dox, an apparent contradiction of terms; para-dox'ical, para-dox'ical-ly, paradox'ical-ness.
- Greek paradoxos (para doxa), contrary to opinion or expectation.
- Paraffin, pǎ'r.raffîn (not with one f), a substance contained in the products of the distillation of tar. It is now largely manufactured from cannell coal and used for lamps.
- Latin parum affinis, having very little affinity [or tendency to chemical combination with acids or alkalies]. The word was coined by Reichenbach. Often, but incorrectly, written parafine.

Para- (continued).

Para-goge, pär'ra.gō'.djy, the addition of a letter or syllable to the end of a word; paragogie, pär'ra.gōdg'ik; paragogical, pär'ra.gōdg'ikäl; paragogical-ly.

Greek paragōgē (par-agōgē, a leading alongside), augmentation.

Para-gon, pär'ra.gōn, a model, one without a peer.

Greek para ago, to lead to one's side, i.e., to set before one.

Para-graph, pär'ra.gräf, a clause, a section, a short notice in a newspaper, a mark thus (§); para-graphic, -gräf'ik; para-graphical, -gräf'ikäl; para-graphical-ly.

Gk. paragraphe (para graphē, a clause or sentence alongside [another]).

Para-lepsis, plu. paralepses, -lēp'sis, -lēp'sez (in Rhet.), an omission made for the purpose, that the speaker may repair it at a subsequent part of his address with greater prominence and effect. (Gk. para leipo, to leave on one side.)

Par-allax, pär'räl.lax (double l), the difference between the real and apparent place of a star or planet; parallactic, pär'räl.läk'tik; parallactical, pär'räl.läk'tikäl.

Greek parallaxis (para allasso, to shift aside).

Par-allel, pär'räl.läl, lines lying side by side equidistant throughout, similar, to relate a similar case; par'alleled (3 syl.), par'allel-ing, par'allel-ly, par'allel-ism.

Parallelo-gram, pär'räl.läl'.ō.grām, a four-sided figure with the opposite sides equal and parallel.

If the length equals the breadth, and the angles are right angles, it is called a Square.

If the length equals the breadth, and the angles are not right angles, it is a Rhombus, röm'büs.

If the length exceeds the breadth, and the angles are right angles, it is an Oblong.

If the length exceeds the breadth, and the angles are not right angles, it is a Rhomboid, röm.boid'.

Parallelo-piped, pär'räl.läl'.ō.pī.pēd, or better parallelo-pipedon, pär'räl.läl'.ō.pī.pē.dōn, a solid figure like a box in shape. There are six sides, the two opposite ones being in every case equal and parallel.

Of the fifty words in "-ell," all but six double the "l" when a suffix beginning with a vowel is added. The exceptions are

Angel, angel-ic, angel-ical, angel-ically.

Channel, channeled, channel-ing.

Chisel, chiseled, chisel-ing, chisel-er.

Hansel, hanseled, hanseling.

Impannel, impanneled, impannel-ing [but panel, panelled, panell-ing].

Parallel, paralleled, parallel-ing, parallelo-gram, &c.

Greek parallēlōs (para allēlōn, side-by-side of each other), parallēlogrammos (para allēlōn grammē, grammē, lines), parallēlopēdon (para allēlōn epi-pēdon, epipēdon, a plane).

- Para-logise, pa.rāl'.o.djize, to reason falsely; paralogised, pa.rāl'.o.gizd; paral'ogis-ing (Rule xix.), paral'ogism; paralogy, pa.rāl'.o.djy, false reasoning. (See O. C.)
 Greek para logismos, reasoning beyond [the orthodox rules].
- Para-lyse, pār'ra.lize, to affect with palsy, to unnerve; paralysed (3 syl.), paralys-ing. Paralysis, pa.rāl'.i.sis.
 Paralytic, pār'ra.lit''.ik; paralytical, pār'ra.lit''.i.kāl.
- Palsy, a contracted form of "paralysis," p'al'sis.
 Gk. paralysis (para luo, to disable completely). (See Paraplegia.)
- Paramatta, a mixed cloth. Parameter (a term in Math.)
 "Paramatta," so called from Paramatta, in Australia.
 "Parameter," Greek paramétrōs, I measure by another thing.
- Paramount, pār'rā.mount, the most important [consideration].
 Norman paramont [par amont].
 "Amont," up the stream; "Aval," down the stream."
- Paramour, pār'ra.moor, a prostitute. (Fr. par amour, for love.)
- Parapet, pār'ra.pēt, a wall breast-high; parapet.ed (one t).
 Fr. parapet, from the Ital. parapetto, breast-work (petto, the breast).
- Para- (continued).
- Para-phernalia, -fer.nay'.li.ah, the trousseau and personal ornaments which a wife brings over and above her dowry. (Greek para phernē, over and above the dowry.)
- Para-phrase, -frāze, a free translation with short running comments interwoven, to paraphrase; para-phrased, -frāzd; para-phraz-ing (Rule xix.), -frāze.ing.
- Paraphrast, pār'rā.fräst, one who paraphrases.
- Para-phrastic, -fräs'.tik; para-phrastical, -rā.fräs''.ti.kāl; para-phrastical-ly, not literally, with supplementary words.
 Greek paraphrasis, v. paraphrazo, paraphrastēs, paraphrastikos (para phrazo, to say more [than the author]).
- Para-plegia, -plē'.djī.ah, paralysis extending to the lower or upper half of the body. Paralysis is subdivided into Hemi-plegia and Para-plegia.
- Hemi-plegia* is paralysis of one side, and one side only.
- Para-plegia* is paralysis of the upper or lower extremities.
 Gk. paraplēz, gen. -plēgos (para platto, to strike beyond [the side]).
 Gk. hēmi-plēgia, a stroke of half the body, i.e., one side.
- Para-site (3 syl.), an epiphyte, a sycophant; parasitic, pār'ra.sit''.ik; parasitical, -ra.sit''.i.kāl; para-sit'ical-ly; parasitism, pār'ra.sit.ism, the flattery, &c., of a parasite.
 Gk. parasitōs (para siton, [eating] food beside [another]).
- Parasol, pār'ra.söl, a sun-shade. (French parasol.)
Parer à soleil, a sun parrier, so "parachute," parer à chute, a chute [or descent] parrier; "parapluie," parer à pluie, a rain parrier.
 Not Greek para, against, Latin Sol, the sun, as is usually given.

Par'-boil, to half-boil; par'boiled (2 syl.), par'boil-ing.

French parbouiller (obsolete), i.e., Lat. parum, little [boiled].

Parbuckle, par'.bŭk.k'l, a rope for hoisting or lowering casks, &c., to hoist and lower casks, &c., by a rope; parbuckled, par.buk'.k'ld; parbuck'ling.

Parcel, par'.sel, a small bundle, a part, a number [applied in contempt to persons], to apportion; parcelled, par'.seld; par'cell-ing (Rule iii., -EL), parcel-van, -delivery.

Low Latin parcella; Latin particŭla (pars, a part, with -cula, dim.)

Parch, to scorch; parched (1 syl.), parch'-ing, parching-ly.

Parchment, parch'-ment, vellum. (French parchemin.)

Latin pergamena charta, paper of Pergamos, in Asia Minor.

Pard, a panther. Leopard, the lion-pard, offspring of a panther and lioness. (Old English pard; Latin pardŭlis.)

Par'dŏn, forgiveness, to forgive; par'doned (2 syl.), par'don-ing; par'don-er, one who pardons, one who deals in papal indulgencies. Par'don-able, par'donable-ness, par'don-ably. Pardon me, an apology for contradicting a statement or for any trivial offence committed accidentally.

French pardon, v. pardonne, pardonnable; Low Latin pardonatio.

Pare (1 syl.) Pair. Pear. Par.

Pare, to peel, to slice; pared (1 syl.); par-ing, pŭre'-ing.

Parings, paré'-ingz, peelings, snips, the clippings of one's nails, the rind trimmed off slices of cheese, &c.

Cheese-parings, small mean savings.

Par-er, pŭre-er. (Fr. parer, to trim; Lat. parer, to prepare.)

§ Pair, two that match. (French paire; Latin par, equal.)

Pear, pŭre, a fruit. (French poire, Latin pŕum.)

Para-, Par- (before vowels), continued.

Par-egoric (not paragoric), pŭ're.gŏr'rik, a cough syrup.

Gk. parégŏrikŏs, parégŏrŏs, soothing (par-[para-] agŏreuo, parégoreo, to exhort an assembly, to advise, to console).

Par-enchyma, pŭ.rĕn'.kĭ.măh, the spongy tissue of animals and vegetables; parenchymatous, pŭ.rĕn'.kĭm'.a.tŭs; parenchymous, pŭ.rĕn'.kĭ.mŭs.

Greek parechuma (par-[para] egchuo, i.e., en chuo, to pour in abundantly), i.e., a great absorbent, like sponge.

Parent, pair'rent (not pay'rent), father or mother; parent-less; parent-age (-age, office, condition, state of). Parental, pŭ.rĕn'.tal; parental-ly. Parenticide, pŭ.rĕn'.ti.side, one who murders a parent, the crime of parent-murder.

Lat. pŕens, gen. pŕentis, pŕentŭlis, parenticida (pario, to obey).

Par-enthesis, plu. parentheses, pŭ.renth'.ĕ.sis, -renth'.ĕ.seez, a clause thrown into a sentence without being grammatically connected with it. Often marked off with brackets thus (...), if not bracketed off it must be marked off with a comma at the beginning and end.

Parentetical, pär'rën.thēt''ä.käl; parenthet'ical-ly.

Greek parenthesis (par-[para]en thesis, something extra put in).

Par-helion, par.hē'.lī.ōn, a mock sun.

Greek parelion, παρήλιον, παρήλιος (not παρήλιον), para helios, near the sun. The insertion of "h" in the middle of Greek compounds is to be deprecated, except when a letter happens to have a corresponding aspirate, as "p," ph (π, φ).

Pariah, pär'ri.ah or pär'ri.ah' (not pa.rī'.ah), the lowest of the people of Hindūstan, not belonging to any one of the castes.

Pariah dogs, stray dogs who have no master.

Parian, pair'ri.än (not pay'ri.än), adj. of Paros.

Parian marble, marble from the island of Paros (Cyclades).

Parietal, pär'ri.ē'.täl. (Latin pāries, gen. pāriētis, a wall.)

Pariē'tal bones form the skull, "the walls of the brain."

Parish, pär'rish, a division of a town or rural district under the charge of a clergyman; parish-clerk.

Parishioner, pär.rish'.ön.er, an inhabitant of a parish.

Parochial, pa.rō'.kī.äl, pertaining to a parish; parochially.

Low Latin parochianus; French paroisse, paroissien; Greek paroika (par-[para]oikia, houses beside each other); Latin paræcia.

("Parish" ought to be "paroch," then "parochial" would be its normal adj., and the etymology of the word would be preserved. "Par-ish," according to its construction, should mean "pretty equal," and not "neighbouring houses," as it ought to do.)

Parisian, pa.riz'.ä.än (not pa.rish'.an), a native of Paris.

Pari-syllabic, pär'ri-sül.läb.ik, having the same number of syllables throughout all the declension or conjugation.

Latin pari-[par, gen. paris]syllaba, syllābicus.

Parity, pär'ri.ty, analogy, equality. (Latin paritas.)

Park, an extensive plot of grass-land ornamented with trees surrounding a gentleman's house, a train of heavy artillery with all its appurtenances.

Old English parruc or pearroc; German pherch.

Parlance, par'.lance. (Norman-French parlance, speech.)

In common parlance, in the usual form of speech.

Parley, plu. parleys (not parties, Rule xlv.), par'.ly, par'.lez, a conference with an armed enemy, to confer with an armed enemy; par'leyed (2 syl.), par'ley-ing. To beat a parley, to beat a drum in a particular way to indicate that a parley is desired. To sound a parley, to sound a trumpet in such a way as to denote that a conference is requested. (French parler.)

The French use the word pourparler for a "parley," and parler for a dialect or style of utterance.

Parliament, Parlement, par'li.ment, par'.la.mah'n.

Parliament, par'li.ment, the national legislative assembly consisting of a House of Lords and a House of Commons. The members of the latter are elected by vote.

Parliamentary, par'li.mën'tä.ry, according to the rules and etiquette of parliament, adj. of parliament.

Parliamentary or Government [train], a train enforced by Act of Parliament to carry passengers in covered carriages both ways once a day at a penny-a-mile. This train is termed The Parliamentary, plu. parliamentaries.

Parliamentarian, par'li.mën.tair'rĭ.ăn (Eng. Hist.), one of those who took sides against Charles I. in the civil wars between him and his parliament.

§ Parlement, par'.la.mah'n (Fr. Hist.), a crown court where justice was administered in the king's name. The Paris parlement received appeals from all inferior tribunals, but its own judgments were final.

Med. Lat. parliamentum, Fr. parlement (v. parler, to speak).

Parlour, par'.ler, a reception room, a best room in small houses where there is neither separate dining room nor drawing room. Parlour boarder, par'.ler bŏr'.der, a school boy or girl who takes meals with the family.

"The parlour" (Fr. parloir), a room in a nunnery where the inmates are allowed to speak (parler) to visitors, hence "a visitors' room," a reception room, a "best" room.

Parmesan cheese, par'mĕ.zăn' cheez, so called from Parma, in Italy, noted for this particular kind of cheese.

Parnassian, par.nas'.sĭ.ăn, adj. of Parnassus, a mountain in Greece, famous as the residence of the Muses.

Parochial, pă.rŏ'.kĭ.ăl, pertaining to a parish; parochial-ly.

Parochialise (R. xxxi.), pa.rŏ'.kĭ.ăl.ize, to form into parishes; paro'chialised (5 syl.), paro'chialis-ing (R. xix.)

Parish, pă'r'rish; parishioner, pa.rish'.ŏn.er.

Low Latin parochialis, parochianus, a parish; French paroissial.

"Parochial" preserves the etymology of the word far better than parish (q.v.). Greek para oikos, houses near each other.

Parody, plu. parodies (R. xlv.), pă'r'ŏ.dĭz. Travesty, trav'.es.ty.

Parody, an imitation of another's words or style of writing.

Travesty, a burlesque parody; parodied (R. xl.), pă'r'ŏ.dĭd; paro'dist, paro'dy-ing, paro'dical.

Greek parōdia (para ōdē, a parallel ode); Latin parōdia.

Parol, pă.rŏlĕ'. Parrel [or parral], par'.rel.

Parol, word of promise, a promise given by a prisoner of war to return at a stated time if permitted to be free.

Par'el, a rope by which a yard is confined to a mast.

"Parol," French parole. "Parrel," Portuguese aparelho. Dana, in his Seaman's Manual, gives the word parral.

Paroquet, pär'rö.kët (should be perroquet), a small parrot.

French perroquet (derivé, selon Roquefort, de Perrot, nom donné à cet oiseau comme celui de Pierrot au moineau).

The perruche is a sort of paroquet; perriche, the American variety.

Parotid Gland, pa.röt'id... Carotid artery, ka.röt'id...

Parot'id gland is situated under the ear. It secretes saliva which is carried to the mouth. (The o in Gk. is o-mega.)

Greek parótis (para ous, gen. ótos, near the ear).

Carot'id artery, an artery of the neck, there is one on each side to supply the head with blood.

Greek karótis (káros, lethargy)... See Carotid.

Paroxysm, pär'röx.izm, a sudden access of pain or rage; paroxysmal, par'röx.iz'mäl. Paroxysmist, -röx.iz'mist, one who believes that the geological changes were sudden and violent, not gradual and imperceptible.

Latin paroxysmus, Greek paroxusmos (para oxus, very sharp).

Parquet, par'.kay, a small thick block of oak for flooring, to make a floor with such blocks; parqueted, par'.kayd; parqueting, par'.kay.ing; parquet-er, par'.kay.er, one who lays down parquet floorings.

Parquetry, par'.ka.try, the art of flooring with small oak-blocks, the flooring so made, fancy-work of inlaid wood formed into some [geometrical] design.

Parr. Par, equal. Pas, pah, precedence, a step (French).

Parr, a salmon fry so long as it retains the brown marks on its side, about two years; it is called a Mort in the third year. Par, equal. (Latin par, equal.)

Parrel, a rope by which a yard is confined to a mast. Dana spells it parral. Parol, pa.role', one's word of honour.

"Parrel," Portuguese aparelho. "Parol," French parole.

Parricide. Patricide. Matricide. Suicide. Regicide, &c.

Parricide, pär'rí.side, one who murders his father, the crime itself. (Lat. parricida, páter cædo, to kill a father.)

Patricide, pät'rí.side, one who invades his own country, the crime itself. (Latin patricida, patria cædo.)

Matricide, may'trí.cide, one who murders his mother, the crime itself. (Lat. mātricida, māter cædo, to kill a mother.)

Suicide, su'.i.cide, one who murders himself, felo de se.

Latin suicida (sui cædo, to kill oneself), suicide.

Regicide, redg'.i.side, one who murders a crowned head, the crime. (Lat. rēgicide, rex, gen. regis cædo, to kill a king.)

Parrot, pär'röt, a talking bird. Pol-parrot, a female parrot.

A corruption of Perrot, dimin. of Pierre or Peter (a male parrot); the female is Pol, dimin. of Polly [Mary]. In French Jacquot.

Parry, pär'ry, a ward in fence, to ward off. Thrust, a lunge, to lunge in fence. Parries, pär'rüz; parried, pär'rid; par-ri-er, par'ry-ing. (French parer, to ward off.)

Parse, to analyse words or sentences. Pass, to move on.

Parsed (1 syl.), pars'-ing (Rule xix.), pars'-er (of parse).

Passed (1 syl.), pass'-ing, pass'-er (of pass).

"Parse," Latin pars, a part, so in French to parse is faire les parties, to make the parts. "Pass," Lat. passus, a step, v. pando, passum.

Par'see, a Persian refugee living in India. The Parsees are fire worshippers, and were driven from Persia by the Mahometans. Par'see-ism, fire-worship. (Pers. parsi.)

Parsimony, par'si.măn.y, thriftiness; parsimonious, par'si.mō''nă.ūs; parsimoniously, parsimonious-ness.

Latin parsimōnia from parco, parsum, to spare.

Parsley, plu. parsleys (not parslies, Rule xlv.), par'slüz, a herb.

Lat. Petro-selinum; Gk. pētra-sēlinōn, rock parsley; Fr. persil.

Parsnip, par'snip, a vegetable. (For past'nag or past'nac.)

Also spelt parsnep, but parsnip (like turnip) is better. Strictly speaking the vowel should be a, Latin nāpus, a "tur-nape," so "pars-nape" is pasti nāp, a dibble-like turnip or nape (pasti-nac or pasti-nag).

Latin pastināca or pastināgo (from pastinum, a dibble).

Par'son, a clergyman; par'son-age, the house set apart for the clergyman of a parish; parsonic, par.son'ik, adj.

Low Lat. persona ecclesiae, the person who represents the church.

Part, a portion, to divide, to leave; part'-ed, part'-ing; partner, a trade-companion. Part-er, one who parts.

Parts, powers, natural endowments, places, districts.

Part-ible (not -able); partibil'ity, susceptibility of division.

In good part, in a friendly manner, with good temper.

In ill part, with displeasure. For the most part, chiefly.

For my part, as far as I am concerned, for my share.

In part, partly. Part and parcel, an essential portion.

Part of speech, one of the grammatical categories of words.

To part with, to give up. Part-ly, in part, in a measure.

Latin pars, gen. partis, v. partior, to part or divide.

Partake, par.take', (past.) partook', (past part.) partaken, -take'n, to participate; partaker, par.take'er, a sharer.

To partake means to take part with others, hence it is wrong to say, "Being hungry, I partook of a basin of soup," but it is quite correct to say "Will you partake of a pint of sherry with me?"

Old English taean, past toe, past part. tacen, with part.

Parterre (French), par.tare', a series of flower-beds artistically arranged with proper accessories of grass and gravel walks.

Parthenon, parth'ĕnŏn, the famous temple of Pallas (Minerva), in the Acropolis of Athens. (Gk. parthēnos, a virgin.)

Parthenope, par.thēn'.ġ.pē, one of the smaller planets.

Parthenope, the siren, threw herself into the sea because she could not beguile Ulysses with her songs.

Partial, par'shāl, biassed, not general. Partial to, fond of.

Partiality, plu. partialities, par'shī.āl'ĭ.tiz; partial-ly.

Partial-ist, one who limits the atonement to the elect.

Partialise, par'shāl.ize; partialised (3 syl.), partialis-ing.

French partial, partialité (Latin pars, gen. partis, a part).

Participate, par.tis'ĭ.pāte, to partake (followed by of or in);

participāt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), participāt-ing (Rule xix.), participāt-or (Rule xxxvii.) Participation, ĭ.pay''shŭn.

Participative, par.tis'ĭ.pay.tiv; participative-ly.

Participient, one who partakes or shares with others.

Participle, par'tī.sī.pl, part of a verb; participial, par'tī.sīp''ĭ.āl (adj.); participial-ly.

-ING, participle, gerund, and noun.

It represents three distinct endings:—

(1) The present participle, originally written -igende or -ende.

(2) The gerund, originally written -igenne, -enne, or -anne.

(3) The verbal noun, originally written -ung.

PARTICIPLE. -ing is a participle when the word is a verbal adjective, or governs a case and is not preceded by a preposition: as

I see trees as men walking. He ended frowning.

The grey-eyed morn smiles on the frowning night.

He went everywhere preaching the gospel of repentance.

GERUND. -ing is a gerund if it is preceded by a preposition: as

He lost his money by building houses.

I durst not laugh for fear of opening my lips.

Change of food is a great thing in fattening cattle.

He seemed in running to devour the way (2 Hen. IV. i. 1).

NOUNS. -ing is a noun when it is the subject or object of a verb, when it stands in regimen with a noun, when it is preceded by an adjective, or when the comes before it and of after it.

Subject: Preaching is a means of grace.

Object: I love dancing.

Both: Seeing is believing.

In regimen: The foolishness of preaching.

The—of: The preaching of John.

Adj.: Good preaching is.... My preaching was in vain.

¶ If the precedes a word ending in -ing of must follow; but if the does not precede, of must be omitted.

The preaching of repentance; preaching repentance.

The tolling of the bell; tolling the bell.

ERRORS OF SPEECH—

Who didst teach the hearts of thy faithful people by the sending to them * the light of thy Holy Spirit (collect).

The leaving * a neighbourhood in which we had enjoyed so much happiness was not without a tear (Vicar of Wakefield).

Sent to prepare the way by * preaching of repentance (collect).

* Quoting of authors is most for matter of fact (Selden).

By * lighting of a candle (Fuller).

In * defending of myself (Richard II. i. 3).

Lat. participālis, participātio, participātor, participium, participāre (pars, gen. partis cipio [capiō], to take part).

Particle, par' .tĭ.k' l., a minute part, an atom, a connecting word; (prepositions, conjunctions, &c., are particles, but the word is generally applied to those connecting words which cannot be readily classed under any group, as now, then, &c., in the phrases "Well, then, as I told you"; "Now, John was a prophet." "There are many who say so."

Latin particŭla, i.e., pars, with dim. -cula.

Particular, par' .tĭk' ku. lar. Peculiar, pe. kŭ' .li. ar.

Particular, precise. Peculiar, strange, eccentric.

Particular-ly, especially. Peculiar-ly, oddly, unusually.

Particulars, par' .tĭk' ku. larz, details. Peculiars, churches or parishes exempt from the jurisdiction of the ordinary.

Particularity, plu. particularities, par' .tĭk' ku. lăr' rĭ. tĭz, detail, minutiae. Peculiarity, plu. peculiarities, pe. kŭ' .li. -ăr' rĭ. tĭz, speciality, characteristic.

Particularise (Rule xxxi.), par' .tĭk' kŭ. la. rize, to enter into minutiae; partic'ularised (5 syl.), partic'ularis-ing (Rule xix.), partic'ularis-er. In particular, especially.

Lat. particŭla (pars with dim. -cula), particŭlārĭs; Fr. particulariser. "Peculiar," Latin pēculiārĭs (pecŭlĭum, private property, that which belonged to a slave as his own right, and which his overlord could not take from him).

Partisan, par' .tĭ.zăn, a halberd, a party adherent; partisan-ship (-ship, office, condition, state.)

We should spell "partisan," a halberd, pertuisan for distinction sake. "Partisan," French partisan. "Partisan" (a halberd), pertuisana.

-partite, par' .tĭte (in Botany), cleft more than halfway.

-fid, cleft less than halfway.

Partition, par' .tĭsh' .ŏn, division, separation. Petition, a request.

Partition, to divide into partitions or portions; partitioned (3 syl.), partition-ing. Petitioned (3 syl.), petition-ing.

"Partition," Lat. partitio, v. partio, to divide (pars, gen. partis, a part).

"Petition," Latin pētitio, v. pēto, to seek (Greek pothēō, to desire).

Partner, part' .ner (not par' .tĕ.ner), an associate in business; partner-ship, joint interest in a business or property (-ship, office, state, &c.) (Fr. partner, in a game or dance.)

Partner in trade in France is associé, and "partner" in a game or dance is now generally written partenaire.

Partridge, par' .ridge, often called a bird. A brace of partridges or a brace of birds, two partridges. A leash of partridges or a leash of birds, three partridges shot and tied together. A couple of brace or two brace of birds, four partridges shot and tied together in braces. Two leash of birds, six partridges shot and tied together in leashes.

French perdre, corrupt form of Greek perdix, Latin perdix.

Parturition, par'.tu.rish''.ŏn, the act of giving birth; parturient, par.tu'.ri.ent, given birth or about to do so.

Latin partūrens, gen. partūrentis, partūrio, to bring forth young.

Party, plu. parties, par'.tiz, a social gathering, a faction, one concerned in an affair, factional; party-man.

Party-coloured, -kū'l'lerd, having divers colours.

Party-fence, a fence between the lands of separate holders or proprietors. Party-jury, half natives and half foreigners. Party-spirit, the animus of a partyman.

Party-wall, a wall belonging to two separate tenements.

Party-ism, party-spirit. (French parti.)

"Party," persons about to be married. Is the party come? i.e., the bride and bridegroom. Party, one engaged. I saw the party yesterday. The French speak of a parti sortable, and say il a épousé un bon parti.

Archbishop Usher says "I sent for the party" [i.e., a clergyman who had given offence], and Shakespeare makes Stephano say to Caliban "Canst thou bring me to the party?" (Tempest iii. 2), but this use of the word is scarcely elevated from slang.

Parvenu (French), par'.vē.nū', an upstart, a vir novus.

Pas, pah, precedence, a step. Parr, a young salmon. Par, equal.

"Pas," Fr. pas; Lat. passus, a step. "Par" (equal), Lat. par.

Paschal, pās'.kāl, pertaining to the Jewish passover.

Paschal lamb, the lamb slain to commemorate the passover.

Paschal-supper, the meal at which the lamb is served.

Paschal cycle, -sī'.k'l, that which fixes the time of Easter.

Pasque egg, pas'-, an egg tinted, made of sugar, or filled with bonbons, &c., to commemorate Easter.

Pasque flower, a species of anemone (a.nem'.ō.ne) which flowers about Easter-time. Passion flower (p. 809).

Greek pascha; Hebrew pasach, to pass over.

Pasquin, pās'.kwīn, a mutilated statue set up near the Piazza Naro'ni, of Rome, opposite the house of a famous barber-gossip named Pasqui'no. The Italians of Rome make this torso the depository of political squibs.

Pasquinade, pās'.kwīn.ade'', a squib or lampoon fixed to the pasquin torso; pasquinād'-ed, pasquinād'-ing (Rule xix.)

Pass (Rule v.), perf. passed, adj. past; pass'-ing, pass'-er.

Pass-able, that may be passed. Pass-ible, sensitive.

Passabil'ity, possibility of passing. Passibil'ity, susceptibility of impressions from without. Pass'ably, tolerably.

Passage, a journey, a voyage, a way, an entrance, a clause.

Passenger, pās'.sēn.djer, a traveller by train, steam-packet, or other public conveyance, a way-farer; passenger-ship.

("Passenger" is a corruption of passager, see messenger.)

Fr. passer, passage, passager, passable. Passible, passibilité, &c.

Passe-partout, pās'.par.too', a movable picture mount.

French pass-par-tout, [a mounting] to put over any picture.

Passible, pās'.sĭ.b'l, capable of feeling. Passable, tolerable.

Passibility, pās'.sĭ.bĭl''.i.ty; passibleness, pās'.sĭ.b'l-ness.

Passion, pash'.ŏn, strong emotion of love; rage, desire, &c.

The passion [of Christ Jesus], the sufferings he underwent between the last supper and his death. Passion week, the anniversary of this week of suffering.

Passions, the emotions of the mind. Passion-less.

Passion-ate, inclined to anger (-ate, full of); passionate-ness; passionate-ly, intensely, vehemently.

Passion-flower, a flower in which the monks of old traced a resemblance to the instruments of Christ's crucifixion.

- (1) The flower keeps open only three days, denoting the three days interment. (2) The three styles symbolise the three nails. (3) The stamens, the hammers. (4) The five anthers, the five wounds. (5) The tendrils, the cords and whip. (6) The column of the ovary, the pillar of the cross. (7) The red-tipped threads within the flower, the crown of thorns dashed with blood. (8) The calyx, the nimbus. (9) The white tint, innocence. (10) The blue tint, heaven.

Passive, pās'.siv, submissive, that form of a verb in which the subject of an active verb becomes the object: thus "I [subject] love" (active), "I [object] am loved" (passive).

Passive-ly, passive-ness. Passivity, pās'.sĭv'.i.ty.

Passive obedience, o.bē'.di.ense, willing submission.

Lat. passibilis, passio, gen. passionis, passivus, passivitas (v. patior, passus, to suffer); Fr. passible, passibilité, passive, passable.

Passover, pās'.ŏ.ver, a Jewish festival in commemoration of the exodus from Egypt. Passover bread, a bread without leaven used by the Jews in the paschal festival, Ex. xii.

Passport, pās'.port, a permit to travel over a foreign country.

French passéport, originally a licence given to certain merchants to pass-the-port with their merchandise, and stay in the country a stated number of days to effect its sale.

Past, gone by, not present nor future, ended; Past by, gone past.

The past, of yore. Past-master. Past-grand. (See Pass.)

Paste, a cement made of flour and water, imitation precious stones, dough for puddings and pies. to cement with paste; pāst'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), pāst'-ing (Rule xix.), pāst'-er, paste-board, paste-brush.

Pasty, pās'.ty, a pie without a dish. Patty, a small pasty.

Pastry, pāce'.tre, confectionery. Paste, dough uncooked.

Latin pasta, French paste, pasté, pastisserie now pâtisserie.

Pastel, Pastil, Pastille, pās'.tel, pās'.til, pās'.teel'.

Pastel, a coloured crayon for drawing.

French pastel (paste or pâte, paste), coloured earth, white-lead or talc consolidated with gum-water.

Parturition, par'.tu.rish''.ŏn, the act of giving birth; parturient, par'.tu'.ri.ent, given birth or about to do so.

Latin partūrens, gen. partūrentis, partūrio, to bring forth young.

Party, plu. parties, par'.tiz, a social gathering, a faction, one concerned in an affair, factional; party-man.

Party-coloured, kū'l lērd, having divers colours?

Party-fence, a fence between the lands of separate holders or proprietors. Party-jury, half natives and half foreigners. Party-spirit, the animus of a partyman.

Party-wall, a wall belonging to two separate tenements.

Party-ism, party-spirit. (French parti.)

"Party," persons about to be married. Is the party come? i.e., the bride and bridegroom. Party, one engaged. I saw the party yesterday. The French speak of a parti sortable, and say il a épousé un bon parti.

Archbishop Usher says "I sent for the party" [i.e., a clergyman who had given offence], and Shakespeare makes Stephano say to Caliban "Canst thou bring me to the party?" (Tempest iii. 2), but this use of the word is scarcely elevated from slang.

Parvenu (French), par'.vē.nu', an upstart, a vir novus.

Pas, pah, precē'dence, a step. Parr, a young salmon. Par, equal.

"Pas," Fr. pas; Lat. passus, a step. "Par" (equal), Lat. par.

Paschal, pās'.kāl, pertaining to the Jewish passover.

Paschal lamb, the lamb slain to commemorate the passover.

Paschal-supper, the meal at which the lamb is served.

Paschal cycle, -sī'.k'l, that which fixes the time of Easter.

Pasque egg, pask-, an egg tinted, made of sugar, or filled with bonbons, &c., to commemorate Easter.

Pasque flower, a species of anemone (a.nem'.o.ne) which flowers about Easter-time. Passion flower (p. 809).

Greek pascha; Hebrew pasach, to pass over.

Pasquin, pās'.kwīn, a mutilated statue set up near the Piazza Naro'ni, of Rome, opposite the house of a famous barber-gossip named Pasqui'no. The Italians of Rome make this torso the depository of political squibs.

Pasquinade, pās'.kwīn.adē', a squib or lampoon fixed to the pasquin torso; pasquinād'-ed, pasquinād'-ing (Rule xix.)

Pass (Rule v.), perf. passed, adj. past; pass'-ing, pass'-er.

Pass-able, that may be passed. Pass-ible, sensitive.

Passabil'ity, possibility of passing. Passibil'ity, susceptibility of impressions from without. Pass'ably, tolerably.

Passage, a journey, a voyage, a way, an entrance, a clause.

Passenger, pās'.sēn.djer, a traveller by train, steam-packet, or other public conveyance, a way-farer; passenger-ship.

("Passenger" is a corruption of passager, see messenger.)

Fr. passer, passage, passager, passable. Passible, passibilité, &c.

Passe-partout, päs'.par.too', a movable picture mount.

French pass-par-tout, [a mounting] to put over any picture.

Passible, päs'.sä.b'l, capable of feeling. Passable, tolerable.

Passibility, päs'.sä.b'l''.i.ty; passibleness, päs'.sä.b'l'-ness.

Passion, pash'.ön, strong emotion of love; rage, desire, &c.

The passion [of Christ Jesus], the sufferings he underwent between the last supper and his death. Passion week, the anniversary of this week of suffering.

Passions, the emotions of the mind. Passion-less.

Passion-ate, inclined to anger (-ate, full of); passionate-ness; passionate-ly, intensely, vehemently.

Passion-flower, a flower in which the monks of old traced a resemblance to the instruments of Christ's crucifixion.

- (1) The flower keeps open only three days, denoting the three days interment. (2) The three styles symbolise the three nails. (3) The stamens, the hammers. (4) The five anthers, the five wounds. (5) The tendrils, the cords and whip. (6) The column of the ovary, the pillar of the cross. (7) The red-tipped threads within the flower, the crown of thorns dashed with blood. (8) The calyx, the nimbus. (9) The white tint, innocence. (10) The blue tint, heaven.

Passive, päs'.siv, submissive, that form of a verb in which the subject of an active verb becomes the object: thus "I [subject] love" (active), "I [object] am loved" (passive).

Passive-ly, passive-ness. Passivity, päs'.siv'.i.ty.

Passive obedience, o.bē'.di.ense, willing submission.

Lat. passibilis, passio, gen. passionis, passivus, passivitas (v. patior, passus, to suffer); Fr. passible, passibilité, passive, passable.

Passover, päs'.ö'.ver, a Jewish festival in commemoration of the exodus from Egypt. Passover bread, a bread without leaven used by the Jews in the paschal festival, Ex. xiii.

Passport, päs'.port, a permit to travel over a foreign country.

French passport, originally a licence given to certain merchants to pass-the-port with their merchandise, and stay in the country a stated number of days to effect its sale.

Past, gone by, not present nor future, ended; Past by, gone past.

The past, of yore. Past-master. Past-grand. (See Pass.)

Pâte, a cement made of flour and water, imitation precious stones, dough for puddings and pies, to cement with paste; päst'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), päst'-ing (Rule xix.), päst'-er, paste-board, paste-brush.

Pasty, päs'.ty, a pie without a dish. Patty, a small pasty.

Pastry, päce'.tre, confectionery. Paste, dough uncooked.

Latin pasta, French paste, pasté, pastisserie now pâtisserie.

Pastel, Pastil, Pastille, päs'.tel, päs'.til, päs'.tee'l.

Pastel, a coloured crayon for drawing.

French pastel (paste or pâte, paste), coloured earth, white-lead or talc consolidated with gum-water.

- Pastil [or Pastel], the woad plant. (Latin pastillus, woad.)
- Pastille, päs.teel', an aromatic composition which emits a perfume in burning. (Latin pastillum, a sweet ball.)
- Pastern, päs'.tern, the foot of a horse between the fetlock and the heel; pastern-joint, the ankle joint of a horse.
- French pasturon, päturon. Called phalange in the human foot.
- Pasticcio, plu. pasticcios. Pistachio, plu. pistachios.
- Pasticcio, plu. pasticcios, pas.titch'.i.ōze, a painting in which an artist imitates the style of another. David Teniers and Luca Giordano afford noted examples.
- Pistachio, plu. pistachios, pis.tah'.shē.ōze, a nut.
- "Pasticcio," Ital. pasticcio, a pie of odds and ends, a medley. The idea is this: as the meat of a pie is the refuse of a joint cooked again, so these pictures are the "pie-meat" of an original.
- "Pistachio," Italian pistacchio; Latin pistachium, the pistach-nut.
- Pastille, päs.teel'. Pastil, päs'.til. Pastel, päs'.tel.
- Pastille, an aromatic composition made into a small cone which emits in burning a strong perfume.
- French pastille; Latin pastillum, a sweet confection.
- Pastil [or Pastel], the woad plant. (Latin pastillus, woad.)
- Pastel, a coloured crayon for artists. (French pastel.)
- Pastime, päs'.time, amusement pour passer le temp.
- Pastor, päs'.tor, a minister. Pasture, päs'tchur, herbage.
- Pastor-ly, pastor-less, pas'toral; pastoral-staff, a crook.
- Pastorate, pas'.to.rate, the office or jurisdiction of a pastor (-ate, office); pastor-ship (-ship, office).
- Lat. pastor, a shepherd, pastoralis, pastoratus, pastūra (pasco, to feed).
- Pastry. Pasty. Patty. Paste.
- Pastry, pāce'.trē, confectionery, pies and tarts; pastry-cook.
- French pastisserie now pâtisserie, things made of paste.
- Pasty, päs'.ty, a pie without a dish. (Fr. pasté now pâté.)
- Patty, pät'.ty, a small pasty. (Fr. pâté with dim. -ie or y.)
- Paste, the dough of pastry before it is cooked.
- French paste now pâte; Latin pastus (v. pascor, to feed).
- Pasture, päs'.tchür, land for grazing. Pas'tor, a minister.
- Pasture, to graze, to supply with pasturage; pastured, päs'.tchürd; pastur-ing (Rule xix.), päs'.tchür.ing.
- Pastur-age, päs'.tchür.age, pasture-land, standing grass on which cattle feed (-age, state); pasture-able, pasture-less.
- Lat. pastūra (v. pascor, to feed); Fr. pasturage now pâturage.
- Pasty, päs'.ty, a pie without a dish. (See above, Pastry.)
- Pät, a small cake [of butter], a slight tap, apröpos, convenient, to tap; pätt'-ed (R. xxxvi.), pätt'-ing. Päte, the head.
- "Pat" (a tap), Welsh ffat. "Pat" (fit, suitable), German passend.

Patagonian, păt'.ă.gō''.nă.ăn (not pad'.a.gō''.nă.ăn), huge.

The natives of Patagonia (S. Amer.) are noted for their great stature.

Patavinity, păt'.ă.vîn''.i.ty, the use of local words or phrases, dialectic tones of voice, provincialisms. (See Patois.)

Livy was born at Patavium (Padua), and Asinius Pollio asserted that he could detect Paduan provincialisms in his writings.

Patch, a piece put on to mend a hole, a detached part, to patch; patched (1 syl.), patch'-ing, patch'-er, patch'-work, -wurk.

Patchouly, păt'.choo.ly, a vegetable perfume. (Malay pucha-pa'.)

Pâte (1 syl.), the brain-pan, the head; pated, pâte'.ed as long-pated, narrow-pated. (Lat. păt'ina, a deep dish; Gk. păt'inė.)

Paten, păt'.en. Patten. Pattern. Patin same as Paten.

Paten, pat'.en, the lid of the chalice, a metal plate to hold the bread of the eucharist. (Ital. patena, Lat. păt'ina.)

Patten, a clog raised on an iron hoop to keep the feet dry.

French patin, a high-heeled shoe; Greek patein, to walk.

Pattern, păt'.tern, a model, a sample. (French patron.)

(If these words were spelt paten (a chalice-lid), patin (a clog), and patern (a model), the distinction would be complete, the spelling simplified, and the derivations better observed.)

Patent, pay'.tent, a monopoly in a new invention, evident, open, to secure by patent; pa'tent-ed (R. xxxvi.), patent-ing.

Patentee, pay'.ten.tee, one who holds a patent. Patent-able.

Patent medicine, medicine bearing a government stamp.

Patent office, the government office for granting patents.

Patent right. Patent rolls, the registers of patents, letters patent collected together on parchment rolls.

Letters patent, public documents written on open sheets.

Close-letters, public documents folded up and sealed.

Latin patens, gen. patentis. Patents are written on open sheets.

Paternal, fem. maternal, pă.ter'.nal, ma.ter'.nal, fatherly, motherly; pater'nal-ly, fem. mater'nal-ly.

Pater'nity, fem. mater'nity, fathership, mothership.

Latin păternus, păternitas; măternus, măternitas (păter, măter).

Pater-noster, păt'.ter-nōs'.ter, the "Lord's Prayer," a rosary, every tenth bead in a rosary. Paternoster row, London.

The Lord's prayer, in Latin, begins Pater noster (our Father); at every tenth bead a devout Catholic should repeat the Lord's prayer.

Path, păth, a walk in a garden, park, field, church-yard, &c., for walkers but not for carts and carriages.

Carriage-drive, a park or garden way for carriages, &c.

Road, a wide public way for general traffic.

High-road, the main road from a town to the metropolis.

By-road, a narrow road from one high-road to another.

Lane, a narrow public way intersecting two by-roads.

Pavement, the footpath of a street paved for walkers.

The edging of a pavement is the kerb-stone.

Foot-path or Path-way, a public path for pedestrians.

"Path," Old Eng. paeth, v. pethian; (Lat. pes, gen. pedis, a foot).

"Road," Old Eng. rād, v. ridan, past rād, to ride, a way for riders.

"High road," O. E. heah rād, the chief road, so high seas, the main sea.

"By road," Old Eng. bý rād, a borough road (Danish by, a town or city), hence by-laws, local or borough laws.

"Pavement," Latin pavimentum. "Lane," Dutch laan.

"Footway," Old Eng. fōt weg, but weg-gang was the more usual term for a footpath. "Footpath," Old Eng. fōt path, a pleonasm.

Pathetic, pa.thēt'ik, grievous; pathetic-ly, pa.thēt'ik.kāl.ly.

Pathos, pāth'ōs, that which excites emotions of grief.

Lat. pathos, pāthēticus; Greek pathos, pāthētikos (paschō, to suffer).

Pathology, pa.thōl'o.djy, that part of medicine which treats of the nature of diseases, their causes and symptoms; pathologic, pāth'o.lodj'ik; pathological, pāth'ō.lodj'ik.kāl; pathological-ly; pathologist, pā.thōl'o.djist, one skilled in pathology. (Gk. pathos logos, treatise on suffering.)

Patience, pay'shence, resignation. Patients, pay'shents, clients of a medical practitioner. Patient, pay'shent, enduring, not easily provoked, one under the charge of a doctor.

Latin pātientia, pātiens, gen. patientis, patior, to suffer.

Patin, pat'in, the cover of a chalice, a metal plate. (See Paten.)

Patina, pāt'inah, the green rust of coins which have been buried, the coating which gathers on oil paintings.

Lat. pāttina, Gk. pāttānē (a plate), plating (a plating with *æru*go).

Patois, pāt'twah', provincialism. (Fr. corruption of Patavium.)

Asinius Pollio noticed a dialectic peculiarity in Livy which he called his patavinity or Pavālian provincialisms.

Patriarch, pāt'ri.ark, the head of a family was once so called, the "pope" of the Greek church; a very aged man.

The patriarchs, Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, and Jacob's sons.

Patriarch-al, pāt'ri.ark'.kāl; patriarch-ic, pāt'ri.ark'.ik.

Patriarch-ism, pāt'ri.ark'.izm; patriarch-ship (-ship, rank.)

Patriarch-ate, pāt'ri.ark'.ate (-ate, office).

Latin pātriarcha, pātriarchātis, pātriarchātus; Greek pātriarchēs (pātria archē, root of the line, first of the family).

Patrician, pā.trish'an, a nobleman, noble, not plebe'ian.

Latin pātricius, a senator, born of a senator, one of the Rom. pātres.

Patrimony, pāt'ri.mūn'y, an estate inherited from one's father; patrimonial, pāt'ri.mō'nī.āl; patrimo'nial-ly.

Latin pātrimōnium, pātrimōniātis (pāter, a father),

Patriot, păt' rĭ.ôt, one who loves his country; patriotic, păt' rĭ.ôt' ĭk; patriot'ical-ly. Patriotism, păt' rĭ.ôt.tĭzm.

Latin patriōta; French patriote, patriotique, patriotisme.

Patristic, pa.trĭs' ĭk, pertaining to the church or ecclesiastical fathers; patristics, pa.trĭs' tĭks, historical theology devoted to the lives and doctrines of the "fathers."

Latin pătres, the fathers. (Only five of the sciences [arithmetic, logic, magic, music, rhetoric] end in -ic, ten times that number end in -ics.)

Patrol, pa.trôl', a guard appointed to watch a district; to walk round the appointed district as a patrol; patrolled (2 syl.), patroll'-ing, R. iv. (Fr. patrouille, v. patrouiller.)

Patron, fem. patron-ess, pay'.trôn, one who befriends another, one who has the right of presenting to a benefice.

Patron-age, păt'.rô.nage, the good offices of a patron.

Patronise (Rule xxxii.), păt'.rô.nize, to befriend another; patronised (3 syl.), pat'ronis-ing (R. xix.), pat'ronis-er, one who promotes and sanctions an undertaking.

Latin pătrōnus. Romulus ordained that every plebeian should select a patrician for his friend and protector. The plebeian was called the lord's client, and the lord was called the plebeian's patron.

Patronymic, păt'.ro.nĭm' ĭk, a prefix or affix signifying the descendant of, as Mac Donald (offspring of Donald), O'Grady (offspring of Grady), Ap David (offspring of David), Fitz William (offspring of King William).

In scientific terms we use the Greek patronymic -idæ, as Canidæ, the dog family; Mongolidæ, the Mongul stock.

Latin pătrōnymĭcus, Greek pătr-ōnumĭkos (pătrō[s]onĭma, dialectic form of onoma, the father's name; the "o" of pătro- coalescing with the "o" of onĭma, become ω or o long).

Patten. Paten or Patin. Pattern (double t).

Patten, păt'.tĕn, a clog elevated on an iron hoop.

French pătin, a high-heeled shoe; Greek pătein, to walk.

Pat'en or Pat'in, the lid of a chalice, a metal plate for the sacramental bread. (Ital. patena; Fr. patene; Lat. pătĭna.)

Pattern, pat'.tern, a model, a sample. (French patron.)

(If these words were spelt paten (a chalice-lid), pătin (a clog), and patern (a model), the distinction would be complete, the spelling simplified, and the derivations better observed.)

Patter, păt'.ter, to strike with pats or little knocks like rain, to chatter, to trot about; pattered, păt'.terd; patter-ing.

Patter-er, a street vendor who talks incessantly.

Welsh fatiwr, fāt, a pat. The French have patatrus! slap, bang!

Pattern, păt'.tern, a model, a sample. (See above Patten.)

French patron, a master, a captain, a guide: a "pattern" is the guide or master-work of the copyist.

- Patty. Pasty. Pastry. Paste. (Patty, pet for Martha.)
Pat'ty, a small pasty or pie without a dish; patty-pan.
 French pâté with diminutive, in French petit, pâté.
Pasty, pās'ty, a pie without a dish. (Fr. pasté, now pâté.)
Pastry, pace'try, confectionery. (Fr. pastisserie, pâtisserie.)
Paste (1 syl.), dough for pastry before it is cooked.
 French paste now pâte; Latin pastus (v. pascor, to feed).
Paucity, paw'sh.ty, fewness; scarcity. (Latin paucitas.)
Paullinia, paul.lin'i.ah, a genus of plants from which the South American Indians make a beverage similar to tea.
 So called from Simon Paulli, of Copenhagen, professor of botany.
Paunch, the belly, the largest stomach of ruminants. (Lat. panter.)
Pauper, paw'per, a very poor man, one supported by the parish.
Pauper-ism, indigence. Pauperise (R. xxxi.), paw'per.ize; pau'perised (3 syl.), pau'peris-ing. Impov'erish (q.v.)
Pauperisation, paw'per.izay''shūn.
Poverty, pov'er.ty, penury (corruption of pauperty).
 Latin pauper, paupertas; French paupérisme, pauvreté.
Pause, pawz, a stop, rest, to cease; Paws, pawz, clawed feet.
Paused (1 syl.), paus-ing (R. xix.), pawz'-ing; pausing-ly; pau'-er, pawz'-er.
 Latin pausa; Greek paus, to cease. "Paws," Welsh pawen.
Pāve (1 syl.), to make a pathway of flagstones or other material suitable for foot-passengers, to lay a street with a solid flooring suitable for carts and horses, to lay a brick or stone floor in a room or yard, &c.; pāved (1 syl.), pāv-ing.
Pavement, pāve'-ment; paving-stones, paving-board.
Pavier, pavé'yer, a labourer who paves streets.
Pavior, pave'-or, a paving-brick, also called a pā'm'ent.
 Latin pavimentum, v. pāvio (Greek paidō, to hit hard, to ram down).
Pavilion, pāv'il'yōn, a large handsome tent, to shelter in a pavilion; pavil'ioned (3 syl.), pavil'ion-ing.
 In English, we spell pavilion with one l, in French it has double l; somewhat similar is the word battalion, which in English has double t and one l, but in French one t and double l.
 French pavillon; Latin pāpilō, gen. pāpilōnis, a tent.
Paw, the soft foot of a quadruped furnished with claws, to scrape the foot along the ground as a horse, to handle; pawed, pawd; paw-ing, pawing-ly.
 Welsh pawen, v. pawenu, pawenog, furnished with or having paws.
Pawky, pawk'y, cunning, artful. Pork, the flesh of pigs.
 "Pawky," Old English pæca, a deceiver, v. pæcan, to deceive.
 "Pork," Fr. pore, Lat. porcus, a pig. "Pig," O. E. piga, a little one.

Pawn, a pledge, a chessman, to pledge; pawned (1 syl.), pawn-ing. Pawn'-er, one who pawns. Pawnee', one who receives a pawn. Pawn-ticket, the pawnbroker's receipt.

Pawn-broker, -bro'.ker, a man whose trade is to advance money on pawns; pawnbro'ker-age, the trade of a pawn-broker (-age, state, condition, trade).

"Pawn," German pfand, v. pfanden, pfander. "Pawnright" (pfandrecht), "the right of keeping a pawn," should be introduced.

"Pawn" (a chessman), Hindūstan peon, a foot soldier; Span. peon.

Pay, (past) paid, (past part.) paid. (Laid, paid, and said, sēd, are irregular for layed, payed, and sayed), wages, stipend, to discharge a debt, to give what is due, to daub with pitch.

Pay'-er, one who pays. Pay-ee', one to whom money is paid.

Pay-ment, pay'-able; pay-clerk, -clark; pay-day (in the Stock Exchange), the last day for settling the transactions of the past fortnight, about the 15th and 30th of the month. Pay-office. Pay-master, plu. pay-masters.

"Pay" (to discharge a debt), French payer, payeur.

"Pay" (to daub with pitch), Old Fr. empoier (poiz, pitch, Lat. pix).

Pea, pee. Peas. Pease. Peace, pēce, concord, not war.

Peas, peez, the numeric plu. of pea, as 2, 3, 4... peas.

Pease, peez, a collective noun plu.: as a dish of pease.

Peas-cod, peez' kod (not pea's cod), the shell of a pea.

The s is radical (pea is a modern corruption of pese), pese-codd.

Pea-halm [or -haulm], hawm, a pea-stalk withered and dry.

Pea-soup, pea-shell; pea-nut, the ground nut.

Pease-meal, pease-pudding (not peas-pudding, &c.)

Old English pise, a pea (Latin pisum), plu. pesen and peses. The correct singular would be pese. Spenser has "Not worth a pese," and Surrey "Not worth two peason" (pesen).

Brother, cloth, die (a stamp), and penny have also double plurals, but only in the last word is one plural numerical and the other collective like the plurals of "pea." (See Penny.)

Peace, pēce. Piece, pēce. Pease, peez. Pays, payz. Pāce (1 syl.)

Peace, pēce, not war, quiet; peace'-less, peace-offering.

Peace'-able, peace'able-ness, peace'ably (only -ce and -ge retain the e before -able); peace-officer, a sheriff, constable, or other officer of the peace.

Peace'-ful (Rule viii.), peace'ful-ly, peace'ful-ness.

Peace'-maker. Peace'-breaker, -brāke-er (not brēe'-ker).

Pacify, pās'ā.fy, to soothe, to appease; pacifies, pās'ā.fize; pacified, pās'ā.fide; pacify-ing, pās'ā.fy.ing; pacifi-er.

Pacification, pās'ā.fī.kay''.shūn. Pacific, pā.sīf'āk; pacifical, pa.sīf'ākāl pacif'ical-ly.

Pacificator, fem. pacificatress, pa.sīf'āk.a.tor, -ka.tress.

- § Piece, pèce, a part, to patch. (French pièce.)
- Pease, peez (as a dish of pease); the vegetable considered collectively. Peas, the numerical plu. of pea, as two or three peas. (Old English piſe, plu. piſen.)
- Pays, payz, third sing. of pay. (French payer, to pay.)
- Pāce, a stride, speed. (Lat. passus, Gk. pateō, to tread.)
 Latin pax, gen. pācis, pācificātio, pācificātor, pācificātrix, pācificus, pācificāre (pax, gen. pācis ficio[fācio], to make peace).
- Peach, peetch', a fruit; peach'-y, peach'-iness; peach'-colour.
 Fr. pêche, contraction of Lat. persicus; O. E. persuc, the Persian fruit.
- Pea-cock, fem. pea-hen (both pea-fowl), offspring pea-chick.
 Old Eng. pawa coc, -hen, -cicen; Lat. pavo; Gk. raōs, a peacock.
- Pea-jacket, pee'jāk.ĕt, a coarse woollen jacket, a pilot's rough heavy coat. (Dutch pije, a coarse thick cloth; Fr. jaquette.)
- Peak, peek, a point, to mortify. Pique, peek, spite.
 Peaked, peekt; peak'-ing; peak'-y, having peaks.
 Old English peac and pie, a peak; French pique, v. piquer, to peak.
- Peal, peel (of bells), to resound. Peel, rind. Pell, a skin.
 Pealed, peeld; peal'-ing. (Lat. pello; Gk. pēlo, to be in motion.)
 Peel, rind, to take off the rind. (Lat. pellis; Gk. phōlis, a skin.)
- Pea, pee'an (or pæan), a song of triumph; pean-ism.
 Latin pean, a song to Pean (Apollo); Gk. paian. Apollo (the fardarter) was so called from paio, to strike or dart.
- Pear, Pair, Pare, all pāre. Par (Latin). Peer. Pier, peer.
 Pear, pāre, a fruit; perry, pēr'ry, pear-wine.
 Old English pera or peru, perewes, perry; Latin pirum.
- Pair, two articles that form a complete whole.
 Welsh par; French pair; Latin par, equal.
- Pare, to peel, to trim. (Fr. parer, to pare a horse's hoof.)
- Par, level, in equilibrio. (Latin par, equal.)
- Peer, a noble, an equal. (Lat. pares, equals [of the chief].)
- Pier, peer, a jetty. (Old English per or pere.)
- Pearl, purl, a gem. Purl, medicated malt liquor, to ripple.
- Pearl, to adorn with pearls; pearled, purl'd; pearl'-ing, pearl'-y, pearl'-iness (R. xi.); pearl'-ash', a carbonate of potassa obtained from wood-ashes; pearl'-barley, barley prepared in small pearl-white grains; pearl'-dīver; pearl'-edge, an edging given to certain ribbons; pearl'-eyed, -ide, having a white pearly speck in the eye; pearl'-grass; pearl'-wort, -wurt; pearl'-oys'ter; pearl'-sā'go, sago in small round grains like pearls; pearl'-stitch, an ornamental stitch in knitting; pearl'-studded; pearl'-white, a preparation of bismuth.

Mother-of-pearl, the inside surface or lining of pearl oysters and other iridescent shells and substances.

"Pearl," Old Eng. perl or pearl. "Purl," Welsh freulo, to purl.

Pearmain, pāre-mānē, an apple (i.e., peer-main, chief peer).

Peasant, pēz'-ant, a rustic. Pheasant, fēz'-ant, a game bird.

Peasant-ry, the peasant class. Pheasantry, a place for...

Fr. payсан; Lat. pāgānus (pāgus, a village; Gk. pagos, a hill).

"Pheasant," Latin phāsīānus; Greek phāsīānos; French faisan.

Pease, peez, the vegetable pea collectively considered: as a dish of pease; peas, definite plu. of pea. (O. E. pisē, plu. pisen.)

Peat, peet, a sort of turf; peats, peat cut into "turfs" for fuel; peat'-y, containing peat; peat'-bog, peat'-moss, peat'-soil.

Pebble, pēb'.b'l, a small stone; pebbled, pēb'.b'ld, covered with pebbles; pebbly, pēb'.ly, containing pebbles. Pebbles, pēb'.b'lz, water-worn minerals, transparent and colourless rock-crystal used for spectacle-glasses; pebble-stone.

"Pebble" should have but one b, Old English pabol, papol-stanas.

Peccable, pek'.ka.b'l, liable to sin; peccability, pēk'.ka.b'il''-ty.

Peccadillo, plu. peccadillos (R. xlii.), a petty offence or crime.

Peccant, pēk'.kānt, sinning. Piquant, pee'.khant, spicy.

Pec'cant-ly, sinfully. Piquant-ly, pee'.khant.ly, spicily.

Pec'cancy, pēk'.kān.sy, sin. Piquancy, -khan.sy, spiciness.

Peccavi, pēk'.kay'.vi, an admission of having done wrong.

Lat. peccare, perf. peccāvi (I have sinned), part. peccans, gen. peccantis.

Peck, quarter of a bushel, to pick with the beak; pecked (1 syl.), peck'-ing, peck'-er. Wood-pecker, a bird. To peck at, to strike at with a beak, to nag at with petty criticisms.

"Peck" (a measure), Fr. picotin, a peck, a "feed" [of oats for a horse.

"Peck" (to strike with the beak), German picken. (See Pick.)

Pecopteris, pē.kōp'.tēr'is, a genus of fossil ferns (coal measures).

If this word is meant to denote a comb-fern, i.e., a fern with comb-like leaflets, it is very badly compounded. The Gk. pekō is to comb wool, and pekō ptēris, "I comb a fern," does not express the idea of a comb-like fern. The word should be ktenopteris (tē.nōp'.tēr'is), a comb-fern. (Gk. kteis, gen. ktēnos, "a comb," and ptēris, a fern.)

Pectine. Pectose. Pectate. (Pecten. Pectinite. Pectinate.)

Pectine, pek'.tīn, vegetable jelly, somewhat like isinglass.

Pectose, pek'.tōce, the gelatinous principle of pectine.

Pec'tic acid, an acid obtained from pectine by adding potash.

Pectate, pek'.tate, a salt of pectic acid.

-ine (in Chem.), a simple substance; -ate, a salt from an acid in -ic.

Greek pektos, coagulated, gelatinised (the e is long).

Pecten, pek'.ten, clams, a genus of bivalves. Pectine (see above).

Pectolite, pek'.to.lite, a stone with its crystals star-formed.

Greek pektos lithos, a coagulated or crystallised stone.

- Pectinite, pek'.tī.nīte, a fossil scallop (-ite denotes a fossil).
 Pectinate, pek'.tī.nate, full of "teeth" like a comb.
 Pectinal, pek'.tī.nal, pertaining to a comb. Pectineal, pek'.tī.nē'āl (not pek'.tīn'.ē'āl), applied to the "pelvis."
 Pectinated, pek'.tī.nā.ted, cleft like a comb.
 Latin pecten, gen. pectinis, a comb (-ate, full of).
 Pectoral, pek'.tō.rāl. (Pectinal, pek'.tī.nāl. Pectinē'al, v.s.)
 Pectoral, good for the chest or lungs, pertaining to the chest, a breast plate worn by the Jewish High Priest, a medicine to relieve chest-complaints; pectoral fin, one of the fins near the gills of a fish. (Lat. pectōrāle, pectus.)
 Peculate, pek'.kū.lāte, to embezzle; pec'ulāt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), pec'ulāt-ing (Rule xix.); pec'ulāt-or, one who peculates.
 Peculation, -ku.lay''shūn, embezzlement of public money.
 Lat. peculatio, peculātor, v. peculāri and peculiāre (peculium, money).
 Peculiar, Particular, pe.ku'.lī.ar, par.tīk'.u.lar.
 Peculiar, special to an individual, odd, strange, exclusive;
 Particular, individual, precise, choice, favourite.
 Peculiar-ly. Peculiarity, plu. -ties, pe.kū'.lī.ār''rī.tīz.
 Peculiarise pek'.kū'.lī.ār.īze, to specialise; pec'uliarised (5 syl.), pecu'liaris-ing. Pecu'lium, a slave's own property.
 Latin peculiāris (peculium, one's own estate or goods which no overlord could take away or sell even if the owner was his slave).
 "Particular," Lat. particulāris (particūla, a particle, a small portion).
 Pecuniary, pe.ku'.nī.ā.ry, relating to money; pecu'niari-ly.
 Latin pecūniārius (pecūniārium, the treasury, pecūnia, money).
 Pedagogue, ped'.ā.gog, a school-master (in disparagement);
 pedagogic, ped'.a.go''.džik; pedagogical, -go''.džī.kāl;
 pedagogism, ped'.a.go.džizm, the vocation of a teacher.
 Latin pedagōgus; Greek paidagōgos (pais, gen. paidos agōgos, the leader of a boy). The pedagogue was the slave who had to take his master's son to and from school, to attend him whenever he left home, and to wait on him generally. The spelling is French, and would be much better without the last two letters.
 Pedal, ped'.al, a lever attached to a piano, harp, organ, &c., to modify the tone or swell of the instrument; pedal-note.
 Latin pedālis (pes, gen. pēdis, the foot), French pédale. (See Peddle.)
 Pedant, ped'.ant, one who makes a vain and ostentatious show of his learning; pedantic, ped'.dān'.tīk, formal; pedan'ti-cal-ly. Pedantry, plu. pedantries, ped'.ān.trīz.
 Fr. pédant, pédanterie, pédantesque (Gk. paideia, instruction).
 Peddle, ped'.d'l, to sell in a small way. Pedal (see pedal); ped'dled (2 syl.), peddling; peddler, one who deals or sells in a small way, one who busies himself with trifles; pedlar, a hawker. Peddlery, goods sold by pedlars.
 A ped is a basket without a lid, in which fish is hawked about the streets, also a market basket for eggs, &c. Tusser uses the word, and in Norwich that part of the market where country stores (such as eggs, butter, chickens, and so on) are brought from the country in hampers or baskets, is called the ped-market.

Welsh pad, that which keeps things together, hence padell, a pan.

Ped-, pedi-, before consonants (Latin prefix) nouns, a foot.

Pedestal, pěd'.ěs.tăl, the base of a statue. Ped'icel (q.v.)

Spanish pedestal; French piédestal (Latin pes, gen. pēdis, the foot).

Pedestrian, pě.děs'.tri.ăn, one who performs a journey on foot, walking; pedes'trial, pertaining to the foot.

Latin pēdestris (pes, gen. pēdis, Greek pous, gen. pōdos, the foot).

Pedicel, pěd'.i.sěl [or ped'icle, pěd'.i.s'l]. Ped'estal (q.v.)

Ped'icel, a short foot-stalk; pedicellate, pěd'.i.sěl''.late, supported by a pedicel. (Lat. pēdicŭlus, a little foot.)

Pediculus, pe.dik'.ŭ.lus, the louse genus; pedic'ulous or pedic'ular (adj.), pediculation, pě.dik'.u.lay''.shăn.

Latin pēdicŭlus, a little foot, a louse, noted for short legs.

Pedi-gerous, pě.didg'.ě.rŭs, furnished with foot-like organs.

Latin pedi- [pes, gen. pedis] géro, having feet.

Pedigree, pěd.i.gree, lineage (pes gradior, to go step by step).

Pediment, pěd'.i.ment, the triangular facing of a portico.

Ped'ipalp, plu. ped'ipalps, such insects as scorpions, which have feelers like pincers; pedipalpi, pěd'.i.păl''.pi, the genus; pedipalpous, pěd'.i.păl''.pŭs (adj.)

Latin pedi- [pes, gen. pedis], palpi, foot-feelers, v. palpo.

Latreille meant this word to denote "having feelers like arms," but his compound cannot be commended.

Pedlar, pěd'.lar, a chapman, who carries his wares in a "ped" or open basket; pedler, one who peddles or traffics in a very small way. Pedlery, pěd'.le.ry, the wares of a pedlar.

Pedo-baptism, pě.do-bap'.tizm, the baptism of young children; pedo-baptists, those who practise infant baptism. The term is usually applied by "Baptists" to "Independents."

Greek pais, gen. paidos baptismos, baptism of children.

Pedo-mancy, pěd'.o.măn.sy, divination from the lines of the foot.

Chiro-mancy, kí.ro-, divination from the lines of the hand.

The word ought to be podomancy. It is now neither Gk. nor Lat. Gk. pous, gen. pōdōs manteia, and cheir, gen. cheiros, -manteia, divination by the foot, and divination by the hand.

Pedometer, pě.dôm'.ě.ter, a land measurer, an instrument to measure the distance travelled over by a pedestrian.

Pedo-motrical, pěd'.o.mět''.rì.kăl (adj.)

If this word is Gk. pědōn metron, ground measurer, it would have been better hodometer, hō.dôm'.ě.ter (hōdōs, a road or path); if it means a "foot or pace measurer," it should be podom'eter.

Peduncle, pě.dŭn'.kule, the stem of a plant which supports the flower and the fruit; peduncular; pedunculate, pě.dŭn'.kŭ.late, growing on a peduncle; pedunculated.

Latin pedunculus, a little foot. This word is a blunder, pedunculus is diminutive of pēdo, gen. pēdōnis, a little splay-foot. It ought to be ped'icule, diminutive of pes, gen. pedis, a little foot or stem.

Peel (of an orange, &c.) Peal, peel (of bells). Pell, a hide.

Peel, rind, a wooden shovel for an oven, a small fortress, to pare; peeled (1 syl.), peel'-ing, peel'-er.

"Peel" and "Pell," Lat. pellis, a skin; Gk. phōlis, the scales of fish.

"Peel" (a shovel), Fr. pelle, a shovel. "Peel" (tower), Welsh pill.

"Peal" (of bells), Lat. pello, to play an instrument; Gk. pēlo.

Peep, a slight glance, the cry of a very young chicken, to look through a crevice, to steal a glance, to cry like a chicken; peeped (1 syl.), peep'-ing, peep'-er, peep'-hole.

Fr. pépier, to peep as chickens when they chip their shell, hence to peep out of their shell or look abroad. Dan. pippe, to peep up.

Peer. Pier. Pear. Pare. Pair. Par. Peerage. Pierage.

Peer, fem. peer-ess, a noble. Peer, a member of the House of Lords, a noble, an equal, to come just in sight, to pry; peered (1 syl.); peer'-ing, prying.

Peer'-age, the peers collectively. Pier-age, peer'-age, toll for making use of a pier (-age, collective, payment).

Peer'-less, unequalled; peer'-less-ly, peer'-less-ness.

§ Pier, peer, a stone pillar, a jetty. (Old Eng. per or pere.)

Pear, pare, a fruit. (Old Eng. pera or peru; Lat. pīrum.)

Pair, two that match. (French paire, Welsh par.)

Pare (1 syl.), to peel. (Fr. parer, to pare a horse's hoof.)

Par, equal, in equilibrio. (Latin par, equal.)

"Peer," French pair, pairesse. Latin pares, equals, because in feudal times all crown vassals were held equal. The five orders of peers are (1) duke, (2) marquis, (3) earl, (4) viscount, (5) baron.

Peevish, pee'-vish, testy, fretful; pee'-vish-ly, pee'-vish-ness.

Peewit, pee'-wīt, a lapwing (so called from its cry).

Peg, a pin to hang things on [as a hat-peg], to fasten with pegs, to strike; pegged (1 syl.), pegg'-ing (Rule i.), pegg'-er, pegged-boots. Clothes peg, clothz .., a cleft pin for fastening linen to a line for drying.

Peg-top, a plaything. To take down a peg, to humiliate.

To keep pegging away, to aim blows without cessation.

Gk. pégma, something fastened into [the wall], v. pégnumi, to fix in.

Peg'asus, the winged horse of Bellērōphon, a constellation.

Greek pégāsōs (from pégē, a fountain, so named from the "fountain of Oceanus," where it first made its appearance.

Pegmatite, peg'-mă.tite, granite composed of quartz and felspar.

Gk. pégma, anything compacted (-ite, a fossil or stony substance).

Peiramer, pī.rām'.ē.ter. Perimeter, pē.rīm'.ē.ter (q.v.)

Peiramer, an instrument for testing the amount of resistance to carriage wheels on different roads.

Greek peira metron, a trial metre. Might be spelt piramer, in the same way as "cheir" is spelt chir, or "pleio-cene," plio-cene.

Pekoe, peé'.ko, the best black tea. The varieties of black tea are bohea, congou, souchong, and pekoe (pih-haou).

Pelargonium, plu. pelargoniums, pěl'.ar.gō''.nĭ.umz., the greenhouse geranium or stork's-bill; pelargon'ic.

"Pelargonium," Greek pēlargōs, the stork. "Geranium," Greek gērānos, the crane. Called Storkbill and Cranebill because their fruit resembles the long bill of these birds.

Pelerine, pěl'.er.ĭn, a long cape with ends coming to a point in front. (French pélerine, a tippet).

Pelf, money, wealth obtained by plunder. (Old Fr. pelfre, plunder.)

Pelican, pěl'.ĭ.kăn, a water-bird. (Should be pelecan.)

Greek pēlikan; Latin pēlicānus. Our blunder, as usual, is from copying the French word pélican (Greek pelekao, to pick with an axe), the pecker, so called in allusion to its supposed habit of pecking its bosom to feed its young with its blood.

Pelisse, pē.lēce', a lady's over-dress opening in front, a furred robe for men. Police, pō.lēce', the guardians of order.

"Pelisse," Fr. pelisse; Lat. pellis, a skin. "Police," Fr. police.

Pell, a skin or hide. Peel, a baker's shovel, rind.

Pell-mell, in disorder. (French pêle mêle, helter-skelter.)

"Pell" and "Peel" (rind), Lat. pellis. "Peel" (a shovel), Fr. pelle.

Pellet, pěl'.lēt, a little ball. (Welsh pel, a ball, with diminutive.)

Pellicle, pěl'.lĭ.k'ĭ, a thin skin or film; pellicular, pěl'.lĭk'kū.lar.

Latin pellitcula, a small skin (pellis, a skin, with diminutive).

Pellitory, pěl'.lĭ.t'ry, a plant. Depilatory, de.pĭl'.a.tō.ry, a hair destroyer. (Latin de pilus, hair destroyer.)

"Pellitory" is a corruption of parietary, a wall-flower, pārĭētāria.

Latin pāries, a wall, in allusion to the place of its growth.

Pell-mell, in disorder, a stampede. (Fr. pêle-mêle, helter-skelter.)

Pellucid, pěl'.lū'.sĭd, transparent; pellu'cid-ly, pellu'cid-ness.

Latin pellucidus, v. pellūceo, pell[per]luceo, to shine through.

Peloponnesian (one l, double n), pěl'.o.pōn.nec''.sĕ.ăn, adj. of Peloponnēsus (the More'a of Greece), a native of...

Greek Pēlops, gen. Pēlopōs nēsōs, island of Pēlops. Far more likely pēl[is]-ops, gray-looking, as Græci is graios, the gray [people].

Pelt, skin for furriers. Felt, thick cloth.

Pelt-monger, a furrier. Fell-monger, a dealer in hides.

Peltry, pěl'try, the fur-trade; pelts are the raw skins, after they have been "prepared" they are furs.

A fell-monger deals in hides, for leather.

Pelt, a metal toe-piece for a boot or shoe. (Lat. pelta, a shield.)

- Pelt (verb), to assail, to throw missiles at [one]; pelt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), pelt-ing, pelting-ly.
 "Pelt" (a hide), French pelleterie, the fur-trade, pelletier.
 "Pelt" (to assail with missiles), Fr. peloter (pelote, a snow-ball, a ball).
- Pelta, a buckler; peltate, pěł.tāte (in Bot.), fixed to the stalk by a point within the margin; peltate-ly, pellate-hairs, peltate-leaf, peltate-stigma. (Latin pelta, a buckler.)
- Pel'vis, the bony cavity forming the lower part of the abdo'men; pelvic, pěł.vik; pelvim'eter. (Lat. pelvis, a basin.)
- Pen (for writing), an enclosure for cattle, to write, to shut up in a pen; penned (1 syl.), penn-ing (R. i.); pent, confined.
Pen-man, one skilled in the use of the pen; pen'man-ship, pen-cutter; pen-knife, -nife; pen-case, pen-holder.
 "Pen" (for writing), Old English pinn; Latin penna, a feather.
 "Pen" (for cattle), Old English pynd[an], to pound. The word should be pind, and the verb to pind.
- Penal, pee'nāl, incurring punishment, by way of...; pēnal-ly.
Penalty, plu. penalties, pěň.ăl.tiz, a punishment for an offence. Pains and penalties; extraordinary punishment.
- Penance, pen'ance, punishment by way of penitence.
 Latin penālis, penālitās (pœna, punishment, Greek poine).
- Penates, pe.nay'.tes (not pe.nates'), household gods (Latin).
- Pence (1 syl.), copper money collectively considered. Pennies, pěň.niz, plu. of a penny. Six-pence is the silver coin so called, or its equivalent; but six pennies is six penny pieces. (O. E. pening or penig, plu. peningas or penigas.)
- Penchant (French), pahn'shak'n', preference, decided taste.
- Pencil, pěň.sil (for drawing, &c.) Pensile, pen'sil, hanging.
Pencil, to draw with the pencil, to write with a pencil; pen'cilled (2 syl.), pen'cill-ing, pen'cill-er.
Pencilliform, pěň.sil'li..., pencil-shaped. Pencil of rays.
Pencil-case, slate-pencil, lead-pencil (lěd...).
 Latin penicillum, penicillum forma; German pinsel.
 "Pensile," Latin pensilis. This word is sometimes called pen'sile, but as the i is short, the proper pronunciation is pen'sil.
- Pendant, pen'dant (noun). Pendent, pen'dent (adj.).
Pendant, an ear-ring, any ornament that hangs from a suspender, a streamer or piece of bunting suspended to a mast-head, a gas or candle lustre.
Pendants, two pendent ornaments which correspond and can be symmetrically arranged.
Pendent, hanging. Pen'dence (2 syl.), pen'dency.
Pen'ding, during the progress of, till the matter is concluded.
Pendulous, pen'du.lus, swinging, oscillating, hanging; (s.) pen'dulous-ness. Pendulosity, pěň'du.lōs'kity.

Pendulum, plu. -lums, pěn'.dŭ.lum (of a clock); pendulum-bob, pendulum-clock, pendulum-rod, -weight.

Latin pendens, gen. pendentis, pendŭlus, v. pendere, to hang.

French pendant (d'oreille), and pendant (wrong), hanging.

Penetrate, pěn'.ě.trate, to pierce, to get into, to affect the mind; pen'etrāt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), pen'etrāt-ing (Rule xix.)

Penetration, pěn'.ě.tray''.shŭn; penetrable, pěn'.ě.tra.b'l; pen'etrably. Penetrability, pěn'.ě.tra.bŭl''.ĭ.ty.

Penetralia, pěn'.ě.tray''.ĭ.ah, the innermost recess, things kept secret. Pen'etrant, having the power to pierce; pen'etrancy; penetrative, pěn'.ě.tra.tĭv; pen'etrative-ly, pen'etrative-ness, pen'etrat-or.

Latin pēnētrābilis, pēnētrālia, pēnētrātor, v. pēnētrāre.

Penguin, pěn'.gŭin, a sea-fowl. (Fr. penguin; Lat. pinguis, fat.)

Peninsula, pe.nĭn'.sŭ.lah, a part of the continent jutting into the sea so as to have water on every side but one.

Penin'sular (adj.) Peninsulate, pe.nĭn'.sŭ.late; penin'sulāt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), penin'sulāt-ing (Rule xix.)

Peninsulation, pe.nĭn'.su.lay''.shŭn.

Latin pēninsŭla, pēninsŭlātus (pene insŭla, almost an island).

Penitent, pěn'.ĭ.tent (not -tant), sorry for a fault; pen'itent-ly.

Penitence, pěn'.ĭ.tense; penitency, sorrow for having done wrong. Penitential, pěn'.ĭ.těn''.shŭl; penitential-ly.

Penitentiary, plu. penitentiaries, pěn'.ĭ.těn''.shĭ.ă.rĭz.

Latin pœnitens, gen. pœnitentis, pœnitentia, pœnitentiārius.

Pennant, pěn'.nant, a long piece of bunting cleft at the loose end and fastened at the other to a mast-head.

Pennoncel, pěn'.nŏn.cel, the pennant or flag of a lance.

Pennon, same as pennant (the better spelling).

Welsh penwn, a flag; French pennon; Latin pannus, a rag.

Penn-, penni- (Latin prefix), a wing, a feather (penna).

Pennate, pěn'.nate, (in Bot.) applied to leaflets arranged on opposite sides of a leaf-stalk, like two outspread wings; pen'nāt-ed. (Also pinnate, pinnated.)

Latin pennātus, winged (penna, a wing or feather); pinna refers to the pinion or large feathers of a wing. Pennate the better word.

Penni-form, shaped like a quill or feather, certain muscles are so called. (Latin penna forma.)

Penni-gerous, pěn.nĭdg'.ě.rŭs, bearing feathers.

Latin penniger, i.e., penni-[penna]gero, I bear feathers.

Penni-nerved, -nervd, (in Botany) applied to leaves with a midrib from which nerves or veins branch on each side.

Latin penni-[penna]nervus, winged nerves.

Pennule, pěn'.nŭle, a small feather or division of a feather.

Latin pennŭla (penna, a feather, with -ula, diminutive).

Pen'ny, plu. pennies, (collective) pence. Pennies, pĕn'ni:z, two or more penny pieces. Pence, copper money, or its value; pen'ni-less, without a penny; pen'ni-less-ness.

Penny-wise, saving small sums at the hazard of larger ones.

Penny-a-liner, -line'er, a humble contributor to a newspaper, paid (at one time) at the rate of 1d. a line.

Penny-royal, a herb. Penny-wedding, a wedding where each guest contributes something to the banquet.

Penny-weight, -wāte, the 20th part of an ounce (Troy).

Penny-worth, -wūth, value to the amount of one penny.

A good penny-worth, a good bargain, good value for money.

"Pence" is used when the value of an article is stated in copper coins: as six-pence a pound, twenty-pence a yard; or when a silver coin of the value of six peniles is meant: as here's six-pence for you, i.e., a silver sixpenny coin. The penny was the standard coin for more than 1000 years. The greater penny was the fifth of a shilling (scilling), and the lesser penny the twelfth.

Old English peneng or penig. The double n is a corrupt spelling.

Pensile, pĕn'sil, hanging. Pencil, pĕn'sil (for writing).

"Pensile," Latin pensilis (not pensilis), the -si- is short, and the word ought not to be pronounced pen'sile. "Pencil," Germ. pensel.

Pension, pĕn'shun, an annual allowance of money without service, to grant a pension; pensioned, pĕn'shūnd; pension-ing, pĕn'shūn-ing; pension-ary, pen'shūn.ary (adj.)

Pensioner, pĕn'shūn.er, one who receives a pension, at the Universities of Cambridge and Dublin an ordinary student as distinguished from a fellow-commoner who dines with the fellows and pays extra, or a sizar who is admitted at reduced terms. At Oxford "pensioners" are called commoners, and "sizar" are called servitors, bible-clerks, &c.

Lat. pensio; gen. pensiōnis, pensionārius (pendere, sup. pensum, to pay).

Pensive, pĕn'siv, thoughtfully sad; pensive-ly, pensive-ness.

French pensif [pensée, thought], thoughtfully sad.

Penta-, pent-, before vowels (Gk. prefix), five. Pente-, fifty.

Penta-capsular, pĕn'.tă-kăp''.sū.lar, having five capsules or cells. (Greek penta- [pente], Latin capsula, a casket.)

These hybrids are very objectionable, though in Latin we have several words with the prefix penta-, every one is taken from the Greek.

Pen'ta-chord, -kord, a musical instrument with five strings, a scale of five diatonic degrees. (Gk. penta-, chordē, a string.)

Pentacle, pĕn'.tă.k'l, a figure composed of equilateral triangles so disposed as to form a star with five points. It represents the five senses and the trinity, and was used as a charm in the middle ages. (Ital. pentacolo, a talisman.)

Pen'ta-coccus, -kôk'.kūs, containing five seeds or grains, Greek penta-[pente]kokkos, a kernel or grain.

Penta-crinite, pěn.tăk'.rĭ.nĭte, a genus of fossil "sea-lilies" (the body terminates in five arms); pentac'rinous, -rĭ.nŭs.

Greek penta-[pente] krinōn, five [armed] sea-lily (-ite, a fossil).

Penta-dactyle, -dăk'.tĭl, having five fingers or toes.

Greek penta-[pente] dăktŭlōs, five fingers or toes.

Pent-adelphous, pěn'.ta.dĕl'.fŭs, (in Botany) having the stamens arranged in bundles of five.

Greek penta-[pente] adelphos, five brothers. Linnæus called the "stamens" males (andria), the "pistils" females (gynia), and the "stamens in bundles" brothers (adelpchia).

Penta-gon, pěn'.tă.gŏn, a figure with five sides and angles; pentagonal, pěn.tăg'.ŏ.năl; pentagonous, pěn.tăg'.ŏ.nŭs; pentagonal-ly, pěn.tăg'.ŏ.năl.ly.

Greek penta-[pente] gŏnia, having five angles.

Pent'a-graph, -grăf, a corruption of pantograph (q.v.)

Penta-gyn, -djĭn, a plant with five pistils or styles; penta-gynian, -djĭn'.ăăn; pentaginous, pěn.tădg'.ă.nŭs.

Greek penta-[pente] gunē, five females. Linnæus called the stamens "males, and the pistils females or "female organs."

Penta-hedron, a solid figure with five equal sides; penta-hedrous, -hĕd'.rŭs; penta-hed'ral.

This word should be penthedron, the t of pent- and h of hedra coalesce into th, πενθεδρόν. Penta hedron is an impossible Greek word.

Pent'a-hex'a-hed'ral (in Crystallography), having five ranges (one above the other), each with six faces.

An impossible Greek word. We have the Greek compounds ἐξέδρα (ĕξĕdra), not ἐξέδρα, and πενθεδρόν (not πενδεδρόν) as guides.

The word in Greek would be πενθεξέδρα not πενταέξέδρα.

Greek penta-[pente], five [rows], hex-hedra, six sides or faces.

Penta-mera, pěn.tăm'.ĕ.rah, a section of the beetle tribe having five joints on the tarsus of each leg; pentăm'eran, one of the pentam'era; pentamerous, pěn.tăm'.ĕ.rŭs (adj.)

Greek penta-[pente] meros, five articulations or joints.

Penta-meter, pěn.tăm'.ĕ.ter, a verse with five feet, having five metrical feet. (Greek penta-metron): as

May from her | lap to the | earth throws | cowslip and | prim-
roses | broad-cast,

Merrily | philomel sings || nightly on | yonder green bough.

Pent-andria, pěn.tăn'.drĭ.ah, hermaphrodite flowers with five stamens; pentander, pěn.tăn'.der, one of the pentan-dria; pentan'drian; pentandrous, pěn.tăn'.drŭs.

Greek penta-[pente] andria, five [organs of] manhood. Linnæus called stamens organs of manhood (andria), and pistils organs of womanhood (gynia [gynia]).

Pent-angular, pěn.tăn'.gu.lar, having five angles.

A hybrid: Greek penta-, Latin angulus, five angles.

- Penta-petalous, pěť.ă.lūs, having five petals or flower-leaves. (Greek penta-pētālon, five flower-leaves.)
- Penta-phyllous, pěn.tăf'.ă.lūs, having five leaves; penta-phylloidal, -fŭ.loi''.dăl, having the resemblance of five leaves, like the flowers of the placenta.
- Greek penta-phullon, five leaves; penta-eidos-phullon.
- Penta-polis, pěn.tăp'.ă.līs, a cluster of five noted cities, the most famous being that of Cŷrēnăica, in Africa, which contained the five cities of Bĕrēnĭcĕ, Arsĭn'cĕ, Ptŏlēmă'īs, Cŷrĕ'nĕ, and Apollŏ'nĭa. There were also those of Libŷa, Italy, and Asia Minor. (Greek penta-pŏlis, five cities.)
- Pent-archy, pěn'.tar.ky, a government vested in five rulers. Greek penta-archē, five supreme powers.
- Penta-sepalous, -sĕp'.ă.lūs, having five sepals.
A hybrid: Gk. penta, Lat. sepes, a hedge (divisions of a perianth).
- Penta-spermous, -sper'.mus, containing five seeds.
Greek penta-[pente]sperma, five seeds.
- Penta-stĕmon (generally written pentstemon), a genus of perennial flowers with five stamens.
Gk. penta-[pente]stĕmŏn, five standing threads (histĕmi, to stand).
- Penta-stich, peň'.tă.stĭk, a poem of five lines or verses.
Greek penta-[pente]stichos, five verses.
- Penta-style (3 syl.), an edifice with five columns in front.
Greek penta-stŭlos, five pillars.
- Penta-teuch, pěn'ta.tŭke, the five books of Moses.
Greek penta-[pente]teuchos, five books.
- Pentecost (not penta), the fiftieth day after the passover, Whitsuntide; pentecostal (adj.), pentecostals, oblations at Whitsuntide. (Gk. pentĕcostŏs, Old Eng. pentecoste.)
It must be observed that the prefix for five is penta-, but pentecost is from pentĕ-konta, fifty, not penta-, five.
- Penteconter, pěn'.te.kŏn.ter, a fifty-oared vessel.
Greek pentĕkonta, fifty, not penta-, five.
- Pent'house (2 syl.), a roof to a door-way; pent-roof, a roof with only one slope. (Welsh penty, a shed.)
- Penult, penultima, or penultimate, pe.nŭl't, pe.nŭl'.tĭ.mah, pe.nŭl'.tĭ.mate, the last syllable but one.
- Ante-penultimate, the last syllable but two.
Latin ultĭma, the last [syl.], pĕne-ultĭma, almost the last [syl.], ante-penultĭma, before the penultima or last syllable but one.
- Penumbra, pe.nŭm'.brah, the shaded edging of the deep shadow of an eclipse, that part of a picture where the light and shadow blend. (Latin pĕne umbra, utmost shadow.)
- Penury, pěn'.ă.ry, poverty. Penurious, pĕ.nŭ'.rĭ.us, niggardly; penu'rious-ness, penu'rious-ly.
Latin pĕnŭria, poverty (Greek peĭnao, to hunger).

Peon, pe'.on, an Indian foot-soldier or day labourer.

Our word pawn, in chess, is this word, called peune in India. Lye, in his Dict. Sax., gives peord, a pawn.

Peony, plu. peonies, pē'.d.nīz (not pi'.o.ny), a flower.

Old English peonie, so called from the chieftain Paton, who introduced it. Saxon Leechdoms.

People. Persons. Folk, pee'.p'l, per'.sonz, fōke.

People, a collective noun, denoting all the subjects of a prince or inhabitants of a nation, a class, a multitude.

Folk is the Anglo-Saxon equivalent of the French peuple.

Persons, plu. of person, more than one individual.

§ People is also used sometimes for neighbours, a household, v. to colonise; peopled, pee'.p'ld; peopling, pee'.plīng.

ERRORS OF SPEECH—

I saw several people on the hill [persons].

Thus play I in one person many people [characters] (Rich. II. v. 5).

The young people are out a-maying [folk, correct, it means the young inhabitants of the village, not several individuals].

Bring forth the blind people... and the deaf [correct] (Isa. xliii. 8).

Jacob came to Luz... he and all the people with him [correct, it means all his household or followers] (Gen. xxxv. 6).

Get thee out, and all people who follow thee [persons].

All people that on earth do dwell [nations correct].

Peperino (Ital.), pep'.ē.ree''.no, a volcanic tuff of basaltic scorixæ.

Peponidæ, pē'.pōn'.ī.dee, the gourd tribe; pēp'o, one of the peponidæ. (Gk. pēpōn, a melon, -idæ, a group or family.)

Pepper, a spice, to sprinkle with pepper, to beat; pep'pered (2 syl.), pep'per-ing; pep'pery, hot with pepper, irascible.

Pepper-box, pepper-corn; pepper-mint, an aromatic herb.

Old English peppor or pepor, pepporcorn; Latin piper.

Pepsine, pēp'.sīn, a medicine obtained from gastric juice; peptic, pēp'.tik, dietetic. Dispeptic, suffering from indigestion. (Gk. pēpto, I digest, pepsis, a digesting, cooking.)

Per, by the; as per annum, by the year; per bearer, -bare'-er, by the bearer; per cent., by the hundred, for every hundred; per centage, rate by the hundred; per diem, -di'.em, by the day; per head, -hēd, by the head, each; per man, by the man, i.e., each man; per saltum (not saltem), by a leap, all at once; per se, by himself, unassisted.

Per-, Pel- before l (Latin prefix), through, thoroughly.

In Chem. a maximum quantity, pro- a minimum quantity.

Per-adventure, pēr'.ād.vēn''.tchūr, perhaps.

French par aventure, by hazard (Latin advenio, to befall).

Per-ambulate, -ām'.bū.lāte, to wander about, to pass through; peram'bulāt-ed (R. xxxvi.), peram'bulāt-ing.

Peram'bulāt-or (Rule xxxvii.), peram'bulatory.

Perambulation, per.ăm'.bu.lay''shŭn, peregrination.

Latin per-ambulatio, pĕrambŭlātor, pĕrambŭlāre, to walk over.

Per-ceive, per-seev', to observe, to comprehend; perceived (2 syl.), perceive'-ing (R. xix.), perceive'-er, perceive'-able, perceive'-ably (R. xxviii.)

Perceptible, -sĕp'.tĭ.b'l; perceptibly, perceptible-ness; perceptibility, per.cĕp'.tĭ.bĭl''ĭ.ty. Im'perceptibil'ity.

Perception, per.sĕp'.shŭn. Perceptive, per.sĕp'.tĭv; perceptivity, per.cĕp'.tĭv''ĭ.ty, power of comprehending.

Latin per-ceptio [capio], supine perceptum, to take in thoroughly, perceptio; French perceptible, perceptibilité, perception.

Per cent. (Latin), by the hundred, for every hundred; percentage, per.sĕn'.tage, rate per hundred.

Perch, perch, a fish, a measure of $5\frac{1}{2}$ yards, a roost, to roost; perched, perchd; perch'-ing; perch'-er, perch'.er.

"Perch" (a measure, a roost), Latin perŭca, a pole (perŭngo [tango], to extend through).

"Perch" (the fish), Latin percha; Greek pĕrkis (perkos, spotted), the spotted fish. (This is not a compound of per).

Per-chance, -tchĕnse, perhaps. (French par chance.)

Per-chlorate, -klō'.rate, a compound of per-chloric acid with a base, as per-chlorate of ammonia; perchloric [acid], per.klō'.rik, seven equivalents of oxygen to one of chlorine. (Greek chloras, green, the green gas.)

Per in chemistry denotes a maximum quantity—thus per-chloric denotes a maximum of oxygen to a unit of chlorine.

Per-cipient, -sĭp'.ĭ.ent, perceptive. (Latin percĭpiens.)

Per-colate, per'.kō.lāte, to strain or filter through; per'colāt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), per'colāt-ing, per'colāt-or (Rule xxxvii.) Percolation, per'.kō.lay''shŭn.

Latin percolāre, supine percolātum (per cōlo, to strain through).

Per-cussion, -kŭsh'.ŏn, impact, blow; percussion-cap, a small copper cap for the nipple of a gun; percussion-lock, a gun-lock that acts by a percussion-cap.

Percussive, per.kŭs'.sĭv; percutient, per.kŭsh'.ĭ.ent.

Latin percussio, percutio, supine percutum (per quatio, to shake or batter thoroughly).

Per-dition, per.dish'.un, ruin. (Lat. per-dītio, Gk. perthō.)

Perdu [or perdue], pair.du', lost, concealed, in ambush.

Lying perdu, lying in ambush.

French perdu of the v. perdre, to lose; Latin perdo, Greek pertho.

Peregrinate, pĕr'rĕ.grĭ.nāte, to roam from place to place; peregrinated, pĕr'rĕ.grĭ.nāte.ed (Rule xxxvi.); per'egrināt-ing (Rule xix.), per'egrināt-or (Rule xxxvii.)

Peregrination, pĕr'rĕ.grĭ.nay''shŭn, a roaming about.

Peregrine falcon, pēr'rē.grīn' faw'.kōn, a migratory falcon.

Latin perēgrinatio, perēgrinator, perēgrinus, v. perēgrināri (perēger, a foreigner, per ager, across the fields).

Peremptory, pēr'rēmp.t'ry (not pēr'em'.to.ry), positive, dogmatical; peremptori-ly, pēr'rēmp.tō.rī.ly; peremptoriness, pēr'rēmp.tō.rī.ness.

Latin peremptōrius (ex per et emo ant. tollo, S. P. Festus).

Perennial, per.ēn'.nī.āl, a plant that lives several years; perennial-ly; perennity, per.ēn'.nī.ty, durability.

Latin perennitas, perennis (per annus, through years); annus in compounds becomes ennus, hence bi-ennial, tri-ennial, &c.

Per-fect, complete, to complete, to make perfect; per-fect-ed (R. xxxvi.), per-fect-ing; per-fect-er, per-fect-ly, per-fect-ness, perfect-ible, perfect'ibil'ity.

Perfection, per.fēk'.shūn; perfec'tion-al, perfec'tion-ist, perfec'tion-ism. Perfective, pēr.fēk'.tīv.

To perfection, in the best way possible.

Latin perfectio, perfectus, per-ficō[facio], to do thoroughly.

Per-fidious, per.fīd'.i.ūs, false, treacherous; perfid'ious-ly, perfid'ious-ness. Perfidy, plu. perfidies, pēr'.fī.dīz.

Latin perfidia, perfidiosus (per fides, [breaking] through a trust).

Per-forate, pēr'.fō.rate, to bore through; perforāt-ed (R. xxxvi.), perforāt-ing (R. xix.), perforāt-or (R. xxxvii.); perforable, pēr'.fō.rā.b'l; perforative, pēr'.fō.rā.tīv.

Perforation, pēr'.fō.ray''.shūn, a piercing through.

Lat. perforatio, perforātor, v. perforāre (pēr fōro, to pierce through).

Per-force' (2 syl.), by compulsion. (French par force.)

Per-form', to execute, to achieve, to act; performed' (2 syl.), perform'-ing, perform'-er, perform'-able, perform'-ance.

Latin performāre (per formo, to fashion completely).

Per'-fume (2 syl.), odour, to scent; perfumed (2 syl.), perfūm-ing (Rule xix.); perfūmer, perfūmist; perfūmery, perfumes in general; perfūmatory.

French parfum, parfumerie, par fumée; Latin per fumus.

Per-functory, per.fūnk'.t'ry, done solely with a view of getting the job over, slight, negligent, carelessly done; perfunc'tori-ness (Rule xi.), perfunc'tori-ly.

Perfunction, per.fūnk'.shūn, a quittance, despatch.

Latin perfunctio, perfunctorius, per fungor, to go through with a job.

Per-haps, by hazard, possibly. (Welsh per hap, by chance.)

Peri, plu. peris (not peries), pē'.riz (Pers.), a fairy spirit.

Peri-, pēr'ri- (Greek prefix), round, about, near, with.

Peri-cardium, pēr'ri-kar''.dī.ūm, the membrane which encloses the heart. Peri-cardia, pēr'ri-kar''.dī.ah, the two surfaces of the heart; peri-cardiac, pěr'ri-kar''.dī.āk; peri-car'dian. Peri-carditis, -kar.dī'tis, inflammation of the pericardium (-itis denotes inflammation).

Greek perikardion (peri kardta, round the heart).

Pěri-carp, that which encloses the seed; peri-car'pītal.

Greek perikarpion (peri karpos, round the fruit).

Pěri-chætium, -keē'.tš.ām (in mosses), the leaves that surround the base of the setæ or fruit-stalk; peri-chætial, -keē'.tš.āl. (Greek peri chaitê, round the setæ.)

Pěri-chondrium, -kōn'.drī.ām, the fibrous membrane which covers cartilages. (Gk. peri chondros, around cartilage.)

Pěri-clase, pěr'ri.klas, a Vesuvian mineral.

Gk. peri, klasis cleavage (referring to the cleavages at the angles).

Pěri-cranium, -kray'.nš.ām, the fibrous membrane that invests the skull. (Greek peri krānion, round the skull.)

Pěri-derm (in Bot.), the outer layer of bark. Albur'num, the soft white part between the wood and the bark.

Greek peri derma, enveloping the skin or alburnum.

Peri-gee, pěr'ri.djē, that part of the orbit of a planet which is nearest to our earth. Ap'ogee, the part most remote from our earth. Peri-gean, pěr'ri.djee'.an.

Greek peri gē, near [our] earth; apo gē, away from [our] earth.

Perigord, pěr'ri.gord, a dark-gray mineral. Perigord pie, a pie with truffles in it. (From Perigord, in France.)

Pěri-helion, -hē'.lš.ōn, the part of a planet's orbit nearest the sun. Aphelion, āf.hē'.lš.ōn, the part most remote from the sun. (Greek peri hēlion, near the sun.)

We have the Greek word ἀνῆλιος even although the aspirate could have been expressed with θ as ἀνθῆλιος, how much the more should we avoid the aspirate in perihelion, where the aspirate could not be expressed. In Greek περῆλιον not περιῆλιον.

Peril, pěr'ril, danger, to hazard; perilled (2 syl.), per'ill-ing (Rule iii. -IL with double l), but peril-ous, pěr'ril.ūs; perilous-ly, perilous-ness (with a single l).

French péril, perilleux (double l); Latin periculum, periculōsus (pério, to hazard, to attempt). The double l should be abolished in the verb or preserved throughout.

Pěri-lymph, -līmf, one of the liquids of the ear's vestibule.

The membrane which lines the cavities of the labyrinth contains a colourless fluid called Endo-lymph, and is separated from the bony wall by a collection of fluid called the peri-lymph. The nerve of the ear is plunged in the liquid and spread over the membrane.

Peri-meter, pě.rīm'.ē.ter, the straight lines which bound a plane figure; perimetrical, pěr'ri.mēt''.rī.kāl.

Greek peri metron, the measure round.

Peri-od, pe'.rĭ.ōd, a stated number of years, a termination, a complete sentence, a full stop (.), a series of recurring numbers; periodic, pe'.rĭ.ōd''ĭk; periodical, -ōd''ĭ.kāl; period'ical-ly; period'ical-ist.

Periodicity, plu. periodicities, pe'.rĭ.ō.dīs''ĭ.tĭz.

Greek periōdos (peri hōdos). According to our usual plan these words should have an h: as perihod, perihodical, &c., and nothing can more forcibly show the unwisdom of such a system. The Greek is περίοδος not περίλδος, but the simple words are peri hōdos.

Peri-odontal, per'ri-o.dōn'.tāl, surrounding the teeth.

Greek peri odontas, gen. odontōs, around the teeth.

Pēri-œcian, plu. peri-œcians or peri-œci, -ē'-sĭ, one who lives under the same latitude as ourselves, but in a longitude 180 deg. off. To these inhabitants our midnight is their midday, but our seasons correspond with theirs.

Greek peri oikēo. The words mean "I dwell round" [the limit], that is the 180 degrees which constitute the limit of longitude.

Pēri-osteum, -ōs'.tĕ.ŭm, the fibrous membrane enveloping the bone; peri-osteal, -ōs'.tĕ.āl, adj. of periosteum.

Peri-ostitis, -ōs.tĭ'.tĭs, inflammation of the periosteum (-itis denotes inflammation). (Gk. peri, ōstĕōn a bone.)

Pēri-ostracum, -ōs'.trā.kŭm, the membrane which covers shells. (Greek peri ostrākōn, round the shell.)

Peri-patetic, pĕr'ri-pa.tĕt''ĭk, a disciple of Aristotle, a great walker; peri-patet'ical, peri-patet'icism.

Aristotle used to lecture in the colonnade of the Lyceum. This colonnade was called the peripatos, because it was a kind of cloister for promenading purposes.

Peri-phony, pe.rĭf'.ĕ.ry, plu. peripheries, pe.rĭf'.ĕ.rĭz, the circumference of a curvilinear figure, as an ellipsis.

Peripheric, peripheral, peripheral (adj.), pe.rĭf'.ĕ.rĭk, pĕrri-fĕr'ri.kāl, pe.rĭf'.ĕ.rāl.

Greek peri phero, I carry [the line] all round.

Peri-phrasis, plu. periphrases, pe.rĭf'.rŭ.sĭs, pe.rĭf'.rŭ.sĕez, circumlocution. Periphrase, pĕr'ri.fraze (verb); per'iphrased (3 syl.), per'iphrās-ing (Rule xix.)

Periphrastic, pĕr'ri.frās'.tĭk; periphrastical, pĕr'ri.-frās''.tĭ.kāl; periphras'tical-ly.

Greek periphrasis (peri phrazo, I speak round about).

Per'i-polygonal, -po.lĭg'.ō.nāl (in Crystallography), having a great number of sides and angles.

Greek peri polu-gonia, round the polygon, or many-sided figure.

Peri-pteros, pe.rip'.te.ros, a temple the cella of which is surrounded by columns; perip'tēral (adj.)

Greek peri ptērōn, wings all round.

- Peri-scian, pe.rish'k.san, a native of the frigid zones whose shadow (at certain parts of the year) moves in the course of the day all round him; periscians or periscii.
Greek peri skia, shadow [moves] all round.
- Peri-scope, pēr'ri.skōpe, a view all round, a general view; periscopic, pēr'ri.skōp'ik, applied to concavo-convex glasses. (Greek peri skōpidō, I view all round.)
- Perish, pēr'rish, to wither, to die; perished (2 syl.), perish-ing, perish-able, per'ishable-ness, perishably, per'rish.äbly.
(-able for -ible, we have, as usual, borrowed the wrong conjugation from the French perissable.)
Latin perire (per eo, to go through, that is, to have past one's life).
- Peri-, pēr'ri- (continued):
- Peri-sperm, the albūmen, &c., of seed, the skin of seed.
Greek peri sperma, round the seed.
- Peri-spheric, pēr'ris.fēr'rik, globular.
Greek peri sphaira, round the sphere.
- Peri-spore (3 syl.), the outer covering of a spore.
Greek pēri spōra, round the spore or seed.
- Peri-staltic, pēr'ris.täl'tik, spiral, worm-like. Applied to that peculiar motion of the intestines whereby its contents are gradually "wormed" downwards; peristaltic-ally, pēr'ris.täl'ti.källy.
Greek peristaltikos (peri stello, I send it round and round).
- Peri-style, pēr'ri.stile; Peri-systole, pēr'ri.sis.tō.le. (v. inf.)
Peri-style, a building surrounded with columns, a range of pillars round the interior of a building or square.
Greek peristylon (peri stulos, pillars all round).
- Peri-systole, pēr'ri.sis'tō.le, the interval between the contraction (or systōlē) and the dilation (or diastōlē) of the heart, the pause between beat and beat.
Greek sustōlē, contraction; sus[sun]stellō, to send together; diastōlē, dilation; dia stello, to send asunder; peristōlē (peri sustōlē, beyond the contraction [but before the dilation begins]).
- Peri-tonæum or peri-tonēum, the membrane which envelops the abdominal viscera; peri-tonē'al (adj.)
- Peritonitis, pēr'ri.tō.nī'tis, inflammation of the...
Greek peritonaion (peri teinō, I stretch all round [the viscera]).
(-itis the Greek affix, denotes inflammation).
- Peri-trochium, -trō'.kĭ.ūni, a wheel fixed upon an axle round which a rope is wound, like windlass and capstan.
Greek peritrochion, peri-trōchaō, to run round.
- Periwig, pēr'ri.wig, a small wig, a cap of false hair. (Fr. perruque.)
- Periwinkle, pēr'ri.wīn.kl, a creeping plant, a small whelk.
"Periwinkle" (the plant), Fr. pervenche; Lat. pervinca or vinca.
"Periwinkle" (the whelk), O.E. pinewincle or peruince (wincle, a whelk).

Perjure, per'.djŭr, to forswear, to swear falsely; per'jured (2 syl.), per'jŭr-ing, per'jŭr-er. Per'jury, plu. per'juries, -riz.

Latin perjŭrium, perjŭrŭtio, perjŭro (per-jŭro, to for-swear).

Perk, smart, trim, to make smart, to hold up the head saucily; perked (1 syl.), perk'-ing, perk'-y, perk'i-ness, perk'i-ly.

Welsh perc or percu, v. percu, to perk; perciad, a perking.

Permanent, per'.mŕ.nent, durable, of long continuance; per'-manent-ly, per'manency. Permanent way, the bed on which the rails are laid in a finished railway.

Latin permanens, gen. permanentis, per mŕneo, to remain throughout.

Permeate, per'.mŕ.ŭte, to penetrate, to pass through the pores of a body; per'meāt-ed (R. xxxvi.), per'meāt-ing (R. xix.)

Permeation, per'.mŕ.ŭ''shŭn; permeable, per'.mŕ.ŭ.b'l.

Permeability, per'.mŕ.ŭ.b'l''ŭ.ty; per'meably.

Latin permeabilis, permeŭtio, permeŭre (per meo, to go through).

Per'mian system (in Geol.), the lower division of the New Red Sandstone, greatly developed in Perm (central Russia).

Per- (continued).

Permit, (noun) per'.mŭt, (verb) per.mŭt'.

Per'mit, a written certificate from the custom-house showing that the duty on the articles specified has been paid and may be removed, leave.

Permit', to allow; permitt'-ed (R. xxxvi.), permitt'-ing (R. iv.), permitt-ance (R. xxiv.)

Permission, per.nŭsh'.un, leave; permissive, per.mŭs'.sŭv; permis'sive-y. Permissible, per.mŭs'.sŭ.b'l.

Permissibility, pŕ.mŭs'.sŭ.b'l''ŭ.ty.

Latin permittere, supine permissum, permissibilis, permissio.

Permitt-ances ought to be permitt-ence (not first Latin conjugation).

Per-mŭte (2 syl.), to change the order or arrangement; permŭt'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), permŭt'-ing (Rule xix.)

Permŭt'-able, permŭt'able-ness, permŭt'ably.

Permutation, per'.mu.tay''shŭn, the successive changing of the arrangement of figures or articles in every possible order, a rule in arithmetic.

Latin permŭtabilis, permŭtŭtio, per-mŭtŭre, to change throughout.

Per-nicious, per.nŭsh'.ŭs, destructive, injurious; pernicious-ness; pernicious-ly, per.nŭsh'.ŭs.ly.

Latin perniciŭsus (perniciēs, per nex, gen. neis, thorough ruin; Greek nekus, a dead body).

"Pernidable," Latin perniciabilis, might be introduced.

Peronate, per.rŭ.nŭte (in Bot.), thickly covered with a woolly or powdery matter. (Lat. pŕŕŕnatus, shod with thick shoes.)

Peroneal muscles, pe.rō'.ně.āl mūs.s'lz, muscles arising from the fibula or shin-bone and concerned in the movement of the foot. (Latin pērōna, the fibula or shin-bone.)

Peroration, pēr'ro.ray''.shūn, the concluding part of a speech.

Lat. pērōrātio (per orāre, i.e., dicere, to speak through, i.e., the close).

Peroxide, per.ox'ide, an oxide with a maximum quantity of oxygen. Protoxide, pro.tōx'ide, an oxide with a minimum quantity of oxygen. N.B. Oxides are never acids.

The number of equivalents of oxygen is designated by the Greek prefixes prot-, deut-, trit-, &c., per-. As protoxide of A, 1 equiv. of oxygen to 1 of A; deutoxide of A, 2 equiv. of oxygen to 1 of A; tritoxide of A, 3 equiv. of oxygen to 1 of A; ..peroxide of A, the greatest possible amount of oxygen to 1 equiv. of A.

Per- (continued).

Per-pendicular, per'.pen.dik''kū.lar, vertical, at right angles to a given plane or line; perpendic'ular-ly.

Perpendicularity, per'.pēn.dik'ku.lūr''rī.ty.

Latin perpendicularis; perpendicularum, a plumb-line, a level (an instrument [quo perpenditur] "by which work is well tested").

Perpetrate, per'.pē.trate, to commit, to perform [in a bad sense]; per'petrāt-ed (R. xxxvi.), per'petrāt-ing (R. xix.), per'petrāt-or (R. xxxvii.), perpetrā'tion, -shūn.

Latin perpetrātio, perpetrātor, perpetrāre (per patro, to effect entirely; Greek pratto, to do).

Perpetuate, per'.pēt'tū.āte, to preserve from extinction, to continue; perpet'uāt-ed (R. xxxvi.), perpetuāt-ing (R. xix.), perpet'uāt-or. Perpetuation, per'.pēt'tū.ā''shūn.

Perpetual, per'.pēt'tū.āl; perpet'ual-ly.

Perpet'ual cu'racy, a living without tithes.

Perpetual curate, ku'.rate, one who holds a perpetual curacy.

These terms are abolished, and vicar, vicarage are used instead.

Perpetual motion, -mō'.shun; perpetual screw.

Perpetuity, per'.pēt'tū''ī.ty; in perpetuity, for ever.

Latin perpētūālis, perpētūātio, perpētūitas (perpes, continuous.)

Per-plex', to puzzle; perplexed, per.plex't; perplex'-ing, perplexing-ly; perplexed-ly, per.plex'ed.ly; -ness.

Perplex-able, obscure, hard to be understood.

Perplexity, plu. perplexities, per.plex'ī.tiz.

Latin perplexābilis, perplexitas, per-plexāri, to entangle thoroughly.

Per-quisite, per'.kwī.sīt, gain which incidentally accrues to an office over and above the salary.

Perquisition, per'.kwī.zīsh''ān, a minute inquiry.

Perquisitor, per.kwīz'.ā.tor, a diligent searcher.

Latin perquisitor, perquirere, supine perquisitum (per quero, to seek for diligently). A "perquisite" originally meant the profits of the lord of a manor over and above the rents, from finēs, heriots, waifs, strays, &c., which required to be "looked up diligently."

Perron, per'ron, a staircase outside a building, the flight of steps leading to a hall-door. (French perron, pierre, stone.)

Perruquier, pěrrū'.kĕr, a wig-maker. (French perruquier.)

Peruke, pe.ruke'. Periwig, pě'rĭ.wig (see these words).

Mot dérivé par Nicolai du celtique barr (chevelure) et uch élevé, chevelure haute et longue; et tiré par Roquefort du grec pyrrhikos (jaune-roux), a cause de la couleur blonde des perruques employées de préférence par les Romains (Dict. des Sciences, &c.)

Per'ry, wine made from pears. Ci'der, wine made from apples.

"Perry," O. E. perewes (Lat. pitum, a pear). "Cider," O. E. cider (Lat. sicēra, Gk. sikēra, any fermented drink except grape wine).

Persecute, per'.sĕ.kūte, to harass, to vex or annoy for religious differences; per'secūt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), per'secūt-ing (Rule xix.), per'secūt-or (Rule xxxvii.), persecuting-ly; persecution, per'.sĕ.kū''.shŭn; persecutive, per'.sĕ.ku.tĭv.

Latin persĕcŭtio, persĕcŭtor, v. persequor, persĕcŭtus (per sĕquor, to follow through, i.e., till your object is attained).

Persevere, per.se.veer', to continue persistently; persevered' (3 syl.), persevēr-ing, persevering-ly, persevēr-ance.

Lat. persĕvērantia, persĕvērāre (per sevēro, to stick rigidly to throughout, i.e., to the end). To persevere is to stick rigidly to your work till it is accomplished. To asseverate is to stick rigidly to what you say. "Perseverance" is doggedly following out to the end.

"Persistence," doggedly standing out to the end.

Persian, per'.shĭn, a native of Persia, the language of Persia, pertaining to Persia, coming from Persia; Persic, per'.sik.

Persiflage (French), per'.sĭ.flāzh, turning everything into banter.

Persist', to persevere, to stick rigidly to what you do or say; persist'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), persist'-ing, persisting-ly.

Persist'-ence (not -ance), persist'ency, persist-ent.

Latin per-sistere, to make a stand throughout, i.e., to the end (Greek stao, i.e., histēmi, to make a stand).

"Persistence" is doggedly standing out to the end.

"Perseverance" is doggedly following out to the end.

Person, an individual, one of the three states of a tense.

I and We are first person sing. and plu.

Thou and You are second person sing. and plu.

He or any one noun singular, and They, any noun plu., or more than one noun sing. are third person sing. and plu.

Per'son-able, of sufficiently good appearance for "society."

Per'son-age, a person of note, stature, a character assumed.

Per'son-al, private, worn about one's person, aimed at one's character or conduct as a personal remark.

Pers'onals, private movables; personal property.

Personal estate, all property except houses and land.

Personal iden'tity, that which makes us the same person notwithstanding all the changes of growth, &c.

- Personal pronoun, one of the pronouns I, we; thou, you; he, she; it, they.
- Personal represen'tative, the executor or administrator of a person deceased.
- Personalise (R. xxxi.), per'sōn.äl.ize, to make personal, to indicate the person; per'sonalised (4 syl.), per'sonalis-ing.
- Personate, per'sōn.ate, to assume the person or character of another; per'sonāt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), per'sonāt-ing (Rule xix.), per'sonāt-or (Rule xxxvii.)
- Personation, per'so.nay''shun. Impersonation.
- Personify, per.son'i.fy, to ascribe to inanimate objects the words, character, or acts of human beings; personifies (Rule xi.), per.son'i.fize; personified, per.son'i.fide; person'ify-ing; person'ifi-er, one who personifies.
- Personification, per.sōn'ä.fi.kay''shūn.
- Personalty, plu: personalties, per'sōnäl.tiz, personal property as distinguished from real property. (1 syl.)
- Personality, per'sōnäl''ä.ty, personal identity. (1 syl.)
- Latin persona, persōnälis, persōnäliter, persōnätus, persōnäre; French personnage, personnel (wrong), personnalité, personnification.
- Perspective, per.spëk'tiv, as objects appear to one looking at them; perspective glass, a glass through which objects are viewed; perspective drawing, drawing objects as they appear to the view; linear-perspective, geometrical figures in perspective; perspective-ly, per.spëk'tiv.ly.
- Perspec'to-scope. (An ill-compounded hybrid.)
- (All words, except peri-scope, phanta-scope, polariscope, poly-scope, and tele-scope, take the vowel o before the affix -scope.
- Fr. perspective; Lat. perspicio, sup. perspectum, to look at thoroughly.
- Perspicacious (not -tious), pers'pikay''shūs, acute of discernment, clear; perspica'cious-ly, perspica'cious-ness.
- Perspicacity, pers'pikäs''ä.ty, quickness of discernment.
- Perspicuity, pers.pik'kū'ä.ty, clearness in a statement.
- Perspicuous, pers.pik'kū.üs; perspic'uous-ness, -ly.
- Latin perspicácia, perspicácia (perspicax, gen. -cáis, quick sighted), perspicuitas, perspicuus (ger-spicio[specio], to see through).
- Perspire, per.spire', to sweat; perspired' (2 syl.), perspir'-ing.
- Perspiration, pers'pí.ray''shūn; perspir-able, pers.pí.rä'b'l; perspirability, per.spí.ra.bül''ä.ty; perspirative, per.spí.rä.tiv; perspiratory, per.spí.rä'try; perspir'-er.
- Lat. perspiratio, perspiräre (per spiro, to breathe through (the pores)).
- Persuade, per.swäde', to influence by advice, to convince; persuäd'-ed, persuäd'-ing, persuäd'ing-ly, persuäd'-er.
- Persuasion (-sion, Rule xxxiii.), per.sway''shūn.
- Persuasive, per.sway''siv; persuasive-ly, persuasive-ness.

Persuasive, per.sway'.sĭ.b'l; persuād'-able.

("Persuadable" is ill-formed and ought to be abolished.)

Persua'sible-ness; persuasibility, per.sway'.sĭ.bĭl'ĭ.ty.

Persuasory, per.sway'.sŏ.ry, having persuasive powers.

Latin persuasibilis, persuasio, persuasōrius, persuadēre, supine persuasum (per-suadco, to convince thoroughly).

Persuivant—no such word. (See Pursuivant.)

Per-sulphate, sŭl'.fate, sulphuric acid combined with a peroxide.

(-ate, a salt formed by the combination of an acid in -ic with a base.)

Pert, saucy, flippant; pert'-ly, pert-ness. (Welsh pert.)

Pertain, per.tain', to belong to; pertained (2 syl.), pertain'-ing.

Latin pertinēre [per tēneo], to belong to.

Pertinacious, per'.tĭ.nay''.shŭs, unyielding, obstinate; pertina'cious-ly, pertina'cious-ness, persistency.

Pertinacity, per'.tĭ.nās''ĭ.ty, obstinacy.

Lat. pertinācia, pertināctiter (per tenaz, thoroughly tenacious, teneo).

Pertinent, per'.tĭ.nent, to the point, relevant; per'tinent-ly.

Per'tinence, per'tinency. Impertinence, insolence.

Latin pertinens, gen. pertinentis (per teneo, to belong to).

Perturb, per.turb', to trouble; perturbed' (2 syl.), perturb'-ing.

Perturbation, per'.tur.bay''.shŭn, agitation, disturbance.

Perturbations of the planets, their deviations from their exact orbits caused by their mutual attractions.

Latin perturbatio, perturbāre (per turbo, to disturb wholly).

Peruke, pe.rŭke', a wig; peruked' (2 syl.), wearing a wig; peruke-maker. Perruquier (French), pĕr.rŭ'.kĭ.er, a wig-maker. Periwig, a small wig. (French perruque.)

Mot dérivé par Nicolai du celtique barr (chevelure) et ach (élevé), chevelure haute et longue; et tiré par Roquefort du grec pyrrhikos (jaune-roux), à cause de la couleur blonde des perruques employées de préférence par les Romains (Dict. des Sciences).

Peruse, pe.rŭze', to read with attention, to examine; perused' (2 syl.), perūs-ing; perus.er, pe.rŭze'.er; perūs'-al.

Latin perŭdĕre, sup. perŭsum, to look at thoroughly (the v changed to a u, "perŭsum" becomes peru'sum, hence peruse).

Peruvian, pe.ru'.vi.an, a native of Peru, pertaining to Peru.

Peruvian bark, the bark of several species of cinchona-trees [sin.kŏ'.nah]. Peruvian balsam. Perŭ'vine, vĭn.

Pervade, per.vade', to spread throughout; pervād'-ed (R. xxxvi.), pervād'-ing (R. xix.); pervasive, per.vă'.sĭv; pervasion, -vay'.zhŭn. (Lat. per-vadĕre, sup. -vasum, to go quite thro'.)

Perverse, per.verse', obstinate, stubborn; perverse-ness, -ly.

Perversity, per.ver'.sĭ.ty, obstinacy, disposition to thwart.

- Perversion, per.ver'.shŭn, distortion, diversion from the true intent or object. Pervasive, per.ver'.siv, tending to pervert.
- Pervert, (noun) per'vert, (verb) per.vert' (Rule 1.)
- Pervert, one changed from right to wrong opinions;
- Pervert', to corrupt, to distort, to wrest from its proper meaning or purpose; pervert'-ed (Rule xxxvi.); pervert'-ing, pervert'-er, pervert'-ible.
- Lat. per-vertĕre, supine -versum, to turn completely [from its purpose].
- Pervious, per'.vĭ.ŭs, penetrable; per'vious-ly, per'vious-ness.
- Latin pervius (per via, a way through). Imper'vius, not pervious.
- Pesade (French), pe.săhd', the motion of a horse raising his fore quarters without moving his hind feet.
- Pessimist, pes'.si.mist, one who thinks everything is wrong and that the world goes on from bad to worse.
- Optimist, op'.ti.mist, one who thinks whatever is is best, and hopefully believes that the world goes on improving.
- Latin optimus, the worst; optimus, the best.
- Pest, a plague, an annoyance; pest-house. (Latin pestis.)
- Pester, pēs'.ter, to plague, to annoy; pes'tered (2 syl.), pester-ing, pes'tering-ly, pes'ter-er.
- Pestiferous, pēs.tif'.ĕ.rŭs, bringing pestilence; pestif'e-rous-ly. (Latin pestis ferens, bringing pest.)
- Pestilence, pes'.ti.lēnee, a malignant and contagious malady, the plague; pes'tilent, pes'tilent-ly.
- Pestilential, pes'.tĭ.lĕn''shāl, infectious, contagious.
- Lat. pestiferus, pestilens, gen. pestilentis, pestilentia, pestis, the plague.
- Pestle, a rod for pounding things in a mortar; pestilla'tion, -shŭn.
- Old English pilstre; Latin pistillum, a pestle.
- Pet, a favourite, a fit of ill-temper, to cosset; pett'-ed (R. xxxvi.), pett'-ing (R. i.), pett'ing-ly, pett'-er. A pet lamb.
- Pett-ish, inclined to ill-temper; pettish-ly, pettish-ness.
- Welsh pitw, little, hence a pet lamb, a little lamb. "Pet" (ill humour), i.e., the cross, self-willed ways of a petted child (French petit).
- Petal, pĕt'.ăl. Pestle, pes'.t'l. Pistil, pĭs'.tĭl. Pistol.
- Petal, a flower-leaf of an expanded flower; petalled (ought to be petaled, as all the other derivatives have only one l); petal'i-form, pet'al-oid (3 syl.), pet'al-ism, pet'al-ite (3 syl.), pet'al-ous, adj. of petal. (Greek pĕtālŏn, a leaf.)
- Pestle, pes'.t'l, for pounding in a mortar. (Latin pistillum.)
- Pistil, pĭs'.tĭl, the seed-bearing organ of a plant. (pistillum.)
- Pistol, pĭs'.t'l, a small fire-arm. (Italian pistola.)
- Petard (French), pe'.tard, a piece of ordnance once employed for bursting open city gates, destroying bridges, and so on;
- petardier, pet.ar.deer', one who had charge of a petard.
- French péter, to crack, to explode, to make a loud report.

Petagus, pět'.ă.sűs, the winged cap of Mercury. (Lat. pētāsus.)

Peter-pence, a penny per house formerly paid to the pope as an annual tribute. (St. Peter claimed to be the first pope.)

Peter's mark, a tonsure. (Old English Petres mearc.)

Petiole, pět'.i.ōle, the footstalk of a leaf connecting the blade with the stem; petioled, pět'.i.ōld, having a footstalk; petiolar, petiolary; petiolate, pět'.i.o.late, growing on a footstalk; petiolule, pet'.i.o.lool, the stalk of a leaflet on a compound leaf. (Latin pētiolus, a little foot.)

Petition, pe.tish'.un, a formal solicitation, a written document containing a request, to solicit, to make a petition; petitioned, pe.tish'.und; petition-ing, petition-er; petition-ary, pe.tish'.ŏn.ă.ry, adj. of petition.

Latin petitio, v. petere, to ask; Fr. pétition (Greek pēthēō, to require).

Petit maitre, p'te' mait'r, a precocious boy, a boy who assumes the airs and manners of a "swell."

Petrel, pet'.rel (not pee'.trəl), one of "Mother Carey's chickens."

Thomson thinks the bird is called petrel from its cry "pewetrel," but the usual derivation is the Italian petrello (little Peter), so called because, like Peter, it walks upon the sea. (French pétrel.)

Petrify, pět'.rř.fy, to convert into stone, to strike dumb with amazement; petrifies, pět'.rř.fize; petrified, pět'.rř.fide; petrify-ing; petrific, pe.trřf'.ik, having a petrifying property. Petrifaction, pet'.rř.fac''.shŭn.

Fr. pétrification, pétrifier (Lat. petra facio, to make stone). Ill-formed.

Petro- (Greek prefix), pět'.ro-, stone, stony (pētra or petros).

Petro-graphy, pe.trŏg'.ră.fy, lithology; petrographic, pět'.ro.grăf''.ik. (Gk. petros graphō, I describe rocks.)

Petroleum, pět'.trŏ'.lē.ŭm, rock oil, mineral oil; petroline, pět'.rŏ.līn, an oil resembling paraffin, obtained by distillation from the petroleum of Rangoon.

Lat. petra oleum, rock oil; Ital. petrolio. -ine, in Chem., denotes a gas, hence "petroline" is petra-oleum-ine [petr'ol'ine], rock-oil-gas.

Petti-, a corrupt spelling of the French petit, little.

Petti-coat, pět'ti.coat, part of the underdress of girls and women. Petticoat government, woman's domination.

French petite cotte, a little petticoat, now called a jupon, the "cotte" or skirt is called a jupe, (1 syl.)

Petti-fog'ger, a lawyer of inferior grade; pettifogging, conducting mean law-business; pettifog'gery.

Halliwel, in his Arch. Dict., says "fogger" means a cheat, a huckster, and "fog" to flatter for gain. He refers us to Florio, p. 54. A "pettifogger," therefore, is a cheat in little things.

Petti-toes, pět'ti.tŏze, the feet of pigs prepared for food.

Corruption of French petons, little feet, peto's.

In petto, in secret, in the breast. (Italian petto, the breast.)

Petty, small, inferior, trivial; petti-ness (Rule xi.), petti-ly.

Petty-cash book, for entering small receipts and payments.

Petty-jury, plu. petty-juries, ju'.riz, a jury for the ordinary causes. Special jury, spesh'.əl ju'.ry, a jury elected for a special case. Grand jury, a jury to decide whether or not a case is to be submitted to the judge.

(Welsh pitw, small, little; French petit.)

Petulant, pēt'.u.lant, irritable, capriciously fretful; petulant-ly.

Petulance (3 syl.); pet'ulancy, irritability.

Latin petūlans, gen. petūlantis, petūlantia (a petendo, Cicero).

Petunia, pe.tu'.nī.ah (not be.tu'.ni.ah), a genus of flowers allied to the tobacco plant. (Brazilian petun, the tobacco plant.)

Peucite, a fossil cone-bearing tree or part of a tree.

Greek peukē, the pine or fir (-ite denotes a fossil).

Pew, an enclosure in a church or chapel designed to contain a family, to furnish with pews; pewed (1 syl.), pew'-ing; pew'-opener, an attendant to shew persons into the pews.

Lat. podium, a gallery, that part of a theatre where the emperor sat.

Pewter, pu'.ter, a factitious metal composed chiefly of tin; pew'tery; pew'terer, pu'.tē.rer, one who works in pewter; pewter-pot, a publican's measure for serving malt liquors

Dutch peauter, Spanish pettre, Italian pettro.

Phaeton, fay'.ē.tōn (not fe.ā'.ton nor fā'.ton), an open carriage.

Named after Phæton (Greek phæthōn), son of Phæbus, who one day undertook to drive the sun-chariot and upset it.

Phalanges, fa.lăn'.djēze, the small bones of the fingers and toes; phalangal, fa.lăn'.gāl or phalangeal, fa.lăn'.djē.əl (adj.)

Phalanger, fa.lăn'.djer, a marsupial animal of Australia.

Phalanx, plu. phalanxes, fa'.lanx.iz, a body of heavy-armed soldiers drawn up in the form of a deep square, with their shields joined and pikes crossing each other.

The Macedo'nian phalanx, 8000 men. It was considered invincible. (Greek phalagx, plu. phalaggēs.)

Phantoscope, făn'.ta.skōpe, an optical toy.

All words (except phanta-scope, peri-scope, polari-scope, and tele-scope) have the vowel o before -scope (Rule lxxiii.)

Greek phantasma skōpōs, I view phantoms. A burnt stick waved backwards and forwards forms a ribbon of light, and the eye sees a phantom when it sees an unbroken luminous line or circle.

Phantasma, făn.taz'.mah; phantasm, făn'.tazm, a vision, a thing of the imagination, a spectre.

Greek phantasma, v. phantazō, to make visible.

Phantasmagoria, făn.tăz'.mă.gō''.rī.ah, a magic-lantern with slides, the images of which may be increased or diminished at pleasure, and be made to appear in motion.

Phantasmagorial, fän.täz'.ma.gō''.rě.äl (adj.)

Greek phantasma gōriaō, I delude with shadows. Generally given as phantasma agōra, a collection of shadows, but -gōria with o long cannot be derived from agōra.

Phantasmato-graphy, fän.täz'.ma.tōg''.rě.fy, a description of the heavenly "phantoms": as halos, rainbows, &c.

Greek phantasma, gen. phantasmatos graphō, I describe phantoms.

Phantom, fän'.tōm, an imaginary existence, a spectre.

Greek phantasma, French fantôme, a phantom.

Pharaonic, fair'ra.ōn''.āk, pertaining to the Pharaohs (not Pharoahs as it is often miswritten).

Pharisee, fär'ri.sec, a Jewish sect; pharisaic, fär'ri.zay''.āk, ostensibly or hypocritically religious, a great observer of religious rites without humility and Christian charity; pharisaical, fär'ri.zay''.ā.kāl; pharisaical-ness, pharisa'ical-ly; pharisaism, fär'ri.zay''.āzm.

Gk. pharisaïds; Heb. parash, to separate. (Jos. Antiq. xiii.)

Pharmaco-, far'mä.ko- (Greek prefix), medicine (pharmākōn).

Pharmaceutical, far'.ma.su''.tī.kāl (not -ku''.tī.kāl), pertaining to drugs; pharmaceutical-ly.

Pharmaceutics, far'.ma.su''.tīks (not far'.ma.ku''.tīks).

Pharmaceutist, far'.ma.su''.tist, an apothecary.

Pharmacien, far.mas':i.en, a duly qualified apothecary.

Pharmacy, ph. pharmacies, far'.ma.siz, medicine, the science or practice of dispensing medicine, remedy.

Greek pharmakēuō, to administer medicine (pharmākōn, a drug).

Pharmaco-logy, far'.ma.kōl''.ō.djy, a treatise about drugs; pharmacologist, far'.ma.kōl''.ō.djist.

Greek pharmako-[pharmakon]lōgos, a treatise on drugs.

Pharmaco-pœia, far'.ma.ko.pee''.ah (not -ko'.pe.ah), a book of authorised directions for the mixing of drugs, and of what substances are to be used as medicines.

Pharmacopolist, far'.ma.kōp''.ō.list, a druggist.

Greek pharmako-[pharmakon]poiō, I make up medicines.

Pharmaco-siderite, far'.ma.ko-sid''.ē.rit, an arseniate of iron. (Greek pharmakon, sidēros iron.)

Pharmacy, ph. pharmacies, far'.ma.siz, the science or practice of dispensing medicine, medicine, remedy.

Pharos, fair'rōs, a lighthouse, a beacon.

So called from the island Pharos, in the bay of Alexandria, where King Ptolēmy (Philadelphōs) built a famous lighthouse.

Pharynx, fär'rīnks, a kind of funnel in the back of the mouth terminating in the gullet (or œsoph'agus). Larynx, lär'rīnks, the upper part of the windpipe (or tra'chea).

- Pharyngeal, fa.rin'.djě.ăl. Laryngeal, la.rin'djě.ăl (adj.)
Pharyngotomy, făr'rin.gōt''.ō.my, making an incision in the pharynx to remove a tumour. (Greek temno, to cut.)
 Gk. pharynx, the windpipe, a gulf or cleft (pharo, to divide or cleave).
 "Larynx," Gk. laruŋx, Lat. larynx, the upper part of the windpipe.
- Phase, fāze, the luminous part of the moon, &c., the outline of a wave, the aspect or representation of an idea.
 French phase; Greek phaino, to make to appear.
- Phaseolus, fa.zee'.ō.lūs (not fā.zě.ō'.lūs), the kidney-bean, &c.
 Greek phāsēlōs, a little boat or canoe, which the pod resembles.
- Pheasant, fěz'.ant, cock pheasant, fem. hen pheasant, a game-bird.
 Greek phāsīānos, the Phāsian bird, or bird from the river Phāsīs, in Colches (Asia Minor), where pheasants abound.
- Phe'nix or Phœ'nix, a fabulous bird, emblem of immortality.
 Greek phoinix, the phoenix described by Herodōtus, ii. 78.
- Phenomenon, plu. phenomena, fe.nōm'.ě.nōn, fe.nōm'.ě.nah, the manifestation of any natural effect, something very rare.
Phenomenal, fe.nōm'.ě.nāl, adj.; phenom'enal-ly, adv.
Phenomenology, fe.nōm'.ě.nōl''.ō.djy, explanation of...
 Greek phainōmēnon, v. phainōmai, to appear.
- Phial, fī'ăl, a small glass bottle for medicine. Vial, vi'.ăl, a jar used by experimentalists: as a Leyden vial. (The distinction is not strictly observed.)
 Greek phiale, an urn, a drinking cup, phialis, a phial.
- Phil-, fīl (Greek prefix), beloved, dear (philos, dear).
Phil-adelphian, fīl'.a.dēl''fī.ăn, adj. of Philadelphia.
 In Greek and Latin the penult is long. Greek philadelphēia; Latin philadelphia (philos adelphos, a dear brother), so named from Attālus Philadelphia, brother of Eumēnēs.
- Phil-anthropy, fī.lan'.thro.py, love of mankind, benevolence;
philanthropic, fīl'.ăn.thrōp''īk, adj.; philanthropical, fīl'.ăn.thrōp''ī.kāl; philanthrop'ical-ly. Philan'thropist.
 Greek phil-[philos] anthrōpōs, love of man.
- Philatory, plu. philatories, fīl'.a.tō.rīz, a reliquary, a transparent vessel for exhibiting the bones of saints.
 Gk. philos, dear (-tory denotes a depository or place set apart).
- Phil-harmonic, fīl'.har.mōn''īk, loving music.
 In Greek this word would be φιλαρμόνικος (not φιλάρμόνικος).
 We have the Greek word φίλαρματος (philos arma) for model.
- Philhellenist, fīl.hēl.leē'nist, a friend of the Greeks;
philhellenic, fīl.hēl.leē'nīk; philhelle'nism.
 The Gk. is φιλέλλην, φιλελλήνικος (not φιλέλλην, φιλέλλήνικος), philos Hēllēnēs, Hēllēnikōs, friends of the Hēllēnēs or Greeks.
- Philibeg, fīl'ī.bēg, the pouch of a Scotch kilt. (Better fillibeg.)

Philistine, fi.lis'.tīn, a fossilised prosaic sort of person behind the times, the non-academic portion of a university town, any one looked down upon as below par in manners, good-breeding, or polite letters; philistinism, fi.lis'.tīn-izm, the opinions and conduct of philistines.

This use of the word is German, but was introduced into our language by Matthew Arnold, in the Cornhill Magazine.

Phil-, philo- (before consonants) continued. (See Phyllo-.)

Philo-logy, fi.lōl'.o.djy. Linguistics, līn.gwis'.tiks.

Philol'ogy, the study or science of the philosophy, chronology, and historical development of language.

Linguis'tics, the study or science of comparative grammar.

Philological, fi.lō.lodj'.i.kāl; philological-ly.

Philologist, fi.lōl'.o.djist; philologer, fi.lōl'.o.djer.

Greek philo-[philos]logos, love of [the study of] words.

Philo-mel, fi'l'.o.mēl, the nightingale.

Greek philo-[philos]mēlōs, a lover of melody. According to fable, Philomēla, daughter of King Pandion; but it is doubtful whether Philomēla was changed into a nightingale or swallow.

Philo-progenitiveness, fi'lō-pro.djēn'.i.tiv.ness, a phrenological bump denoting "love of progeny."

Greek philo-[philos], Latin prōgēnies, love of progeny.

Philo-sophy, plu. philosophies, fi.lōs'.ō.fiz, a rational consideration of objects or ideas.

Natural philosophy, physics. Moral philosophy, ethics.

Philosopher, fi.lōs'.o.fēr, one profound in thought.

Philosophic, fi'l'.o.zōf'.i.k; philosophical, fi'l'.o.zōf'.i.kāl; philosoph'ical-ly.

Philosophise, fi.lōs'.o.fize, to moralise; philosophised (4 syl.), philos'ophis-ing (Rule xix.), philos'ophis-er; philosophism, fi.los'.o.fizm; philosophist, fi.lōs'.o.fist, a sophist; philosophistic. Philosopher's stone, a substance which should convert inferior metals into gold.

Greek philosōphēō, philōsōphia, philōsōphikōs, philōsōphos.

It was Pythagōras who substituted the word philosopher (a lover-of-wisdom) for sophist (a wise-man) previously used.

Philter, fi'l'.ter, a love charm. Filter, for straining water.

Philter, to give a love potion. Filter, to strain a liquid.

Philtered, fi'l'.terd; philter-ing, fi'l'.ter.ing. Also philtre.

Greek philtron, a potion to create love (philōo, I love).

Phillyrea, fi'l.ī.ree'.ah (a blunder for philyrē'a, one l).

A shrub, from Philyra, mother of the centaur Chiron, kū.rōn.

Phiz, fīz, the face (contraction of physiognomy).

Phlebitis, flē.bī'.tis, inflammation of a vein (-itis, inflammation).

Phlebotomise, flē.bōt'.ō.mīze, to practise venesection; phlebot'omised (4 syl.), phlebot'omis-ing (Rule xix.)

- Phlebotomy, flē.bōt'ō.my, venesection; phlebot'omist.
 Greek phlēps, genitive phlēbōs, a vein, temno, I cut.
- Phlegm, flēm. Fleam, fleem, a farrier's lancet.
- Phlegm, thick viscid matter discharged by coughing, sluggishness of temperament; phlegmatic, flēg.măt'īk (not flē.măt'īk); phlegmatical, flēg.măt'ī.kāl; phlegmatical-ly; phleg'mon, inflammation, an inflammatory tumour; phlegmonous, flēg'.mo.nūs.
- Phlegmasia, plu. phlegmasiæ, flēg.may'.zē.ah, flēg.may'.zē.ē, an inflammatory disorder with fever.
- Phlegethon, flēg'.ēth.ōn, a river of fire in the infernal regions.
 Greek phlēgma, phlegm, inflammation (phlēgo, I burn).
- Phleme, fleem, a corrupt way of spelling fleam (q.v.)
- Phlogiston, flō.djīs.tōn, the latent principle of fire, as distinguished from fire which (according to Stahl) is phlogiston in action. (Greek phlox, gen. phlōgos, flame.)
- Phlox, flōx, a garden flower. (Greek phlox, flame.)
- Phoca, fō'.kah, the seal or sea-calf genus; phocæan, fō.see'.ăn, one of the phoca genus; phocine, fō'.sîn, adj. of phoca.
- Phocenine, fō.see'.nîn, a fatty substance found in the oil of the seal and porpoise; phocē'nic acid, from phocenine.
- Phœbus, fee'.būs, Apollo, the sun; phœbean, fe.bee'.ăn (not fee'.bē.ăn), adj. (Gk. phoibos, phoibeias; Lat. phœbēan.)
- Phœnician, fē.nīsh.ī.ăn, a native of Phœnicia, pertaining to Phœnicia, maritime, commercial.
- Phœnicite, fee'.nī.sīte, a fossil palm-leaf (-ite, a fossil).
 Greek phœnix, the palm, which is a true phoenix, the fruit is the first yield, the young leaves are eaten as a vegetable, the older ones are employed for constructing huts, the stalks for crates, baskets, brooms, &c. When cut down, the wood is excellent timber, and its sap affords an intoxicating beverage. Even the stones of the fruit are ground into food for camels.
- Phoenix, fee'.nīx, a fabulous Arabian bird, of which there never was but one. She lives 340, 500 or 1460 years, when she makes a nest of hot spices which the sun sets on fire, and the bird being burnt arises anew in the form of a worm from the hot ashes.—Plin. x. 2.
- Phon-, phono-, before consonants, a blunder for phonê- (Greek prefix), sound especially as applied to the human voice.
- Phonetics, fō.nēt'īks, the science of sounds uttered by the human voice in language; phonetic, adj.; phonetic spelling, spelling as words are sounded and not according to their derivation; phonetical, fō.nēt'ī.kāl; ..cal-ly.
- Phonics, fō'.nīks, vocal acoustics; phonic, adj.; phonical, fō'.nī.kāl; phonical-ly.
- Greek phônê, sound; Latin phonicus. "Phonetic" is an ill-formed word, the gen. of phônê is phônês (not phônêtis or phônêtos).

Phono-camptic, fō'no.kamp''tīk, having the power to divert sound or turn it from its true direction.

For phōnē-camptic; Greek phōnē kampto, I inflect sound.

Phono-graph, fō'no.grāf, a written or printed word; phonographic, fō'no.grāf''īk; phonograph'ical; phonograph'ical-ly; phonographist, fō.nōg'.ra.fist.

Phonography, fō.nōg'.ra.fy; phonographer, -fer.

For phōnē-graph; Greek phōnē graphō, I write sounds.

Phonolite, fō'.nō.lite, clink-stone, which gives a metallic sound when struck with a hammer,

For phōnēlite; Greek phōnē lithos, sound-[giving] stone.

Phono-logy, fō.nōl'.ō.djy, the science of articulate sounds; phonological, fō'.nō.lodg''ī.kāl.

For phōnēlogy; Greek phōnē logos, treatise on vocal sounds.

Phono-typy, fō.nōt'.ī.py, a scheme for representing each spoken sound by a distinct character; phonotype.

For phōnētype; Greek phōnē tupos, type [to represent] sounds.

All these words are formed from an hypothetical word (phōnos); the word in Greek is phone (φωνή), whence φωνήμα not φωνώμα.

Phoranthium, fo.rānth'.ī.ūm (in Bot.), the receptacle of composite flowers. (Greek phēro anthōs, I bear the flower.)

Phos- (Greek prefix), light, i.e., luminosity (phōs).

Phos-gene, fōs'.djeeen, producing light, a gas made of chlorine and carbonic oxide gas. It must be exposed to the sun, as it will not unite in the dark.

Greek phōs gennō, I generate light.

Phos-phenes, fōs'.fē.neez, those luminous appearances seen when the eyes are shut after a sudden compression of the eye-balls. (Greek phōs phainō, I manifest light.)

Phos-phorus, fōs'.fō.rūs, an elementary substance; phosphorated, fōs'.fō.rūte.ed, combined or saturated with phosphorus; phosphorat-ing (R. xix.), fōs'.fo.rate.ing; phosphoresce, fōs'.fo.ress', to give out phosphoric light in the dark; phosphoresced' (3 syl.), phosphoresc'-ing (Rule xix.); phosphorescence, fōs'.fo.rēs''.sense.

Greek phōs phēro, I bear or carry light.

Phosph-ate, fōs'.fūte, a salt of phosphoric acid; phosphatic, fōs.fūt'.īk; phosphat'ic nodules, nōd'.dālz.

(-ate denotes a salt from an acid in ic: as "phosphoric acid.")

Phosph-ite, fōs'.fīt, a salt of phosphorous acid.

(-ite denotes a salt from an acid in -ous: as "phosphorous acid.")

Phosphor-ite, fōs'.fō.rīte, native phosphate of lime, apatite; phosphoritic, fōs'.fo.rīt''īk.

Phosphor-ic, fōs.fōr'īk; phosphorous, fōs'.fo.rūs; phosphor'ic acid; phosphorous acid.

Greek phōsphōrōs (phōs phēro, I bring the light), the light-giver

Phosph-uret, fōs'fũ.rèt, a combination of phosphorus with a combustible body or a metallic oxide; phosphurett'-ed.

Greek phōsphōrōs, with -uret, denoting combination with an inflammable or electro-positive body (Latin uro, to burn).

Photo-, fō'.tō- (Greek prefix), same as phos-, light (phōs, gen. phōtōs), relating to light. (See Phyto-, fī.to-.)

Photo-gen, fō'.tō.djēn. Phosgene, fōs'.djeen.

Pho'togen, paraffin oil, an inflammable hydrocarbon.

Phos'gene, a mixture of chlorine and carbonic oxide gas which gives light when under the influence of the sun.

Greek phōs, gen. phōtos gennao, I produce light. "Photo-gen" and "Phos-gene" are identical compounds, but differently applied.

Photo-graphy, fō.tōg'.ra.fy, the art or practice of obtaining pictures or drawings by the action of the sun.

Photograph, fō'.tō.grāf, a picture or portrait so obtained; photographic, fō'.tō.grāf''īk; photographical, fō'.tō.grāf''ī.kāl; photographical-ly. (See Phytophography.)

Photographer, fō.tōg'.ra.fer, photographist, -fist.

Photo-lithography, fō'.tō-lī.thōg''.ra.fy, a picture drawn on stone by sun-light (lithos, stone).

Greek phōs, gen. phōtos grapho, I draw by light. (See Phytology.)

Photo-logy, fō.tōl'.o.djy, that part of science which explains the nature and phenomena of light, optics; photologic, fō'.tō.lodg''īk; photological, fō'.tō.lodg''ī.kāl.

Greek phōs, gen. phōtos lōgōs, a treatise on light. (See Phytology.)

Photo-magnetism, fō'.tō-mag''.nēt.īzm, that branch of science which describes the relations of the phenomena of magnetism to those of light.

Greek phōs, gen. phōtos magnētis, light [and the] magnet.

Photo-meter, fō.tōm'.ē.ter, an instrument for measuring the intensity of light; photom'etry.

Greek phōs, gen. phōtos mētron, the measurer of light.

Photo-phobia, fō'.tō-fō''.bī.ah, a dread of light (a disease).

Greek phōs, gen. phōtos phōbōs, fear or dread of light.

Phot-opsy, fō.tōp'.sy, a symptom of amaurosis consisting of a play of light before the eyes.

Greek phōs, gen. phōtos opstōs, light [dancing before one's] vision.

Photo-sphere, fō'.tō.sfeer, the luminous envelope of the sun. (Greek phōs, gen. phōtos sphaira, a sphere of light.)

Photo-type, fō'.tō.tipe, a plate obtained by photography from which impressions can be taken:

Greek phōs, gen. phōtos tupos, a type [produced by] light.

Photo-zincography, fō'.tō-zīn.kōg''.rā.fy, photographic impressions made on plates of zinc.

Greek phōs, gen. phōtos [zinc] grapho, I draw by light on zinc.

Phragma, fräg'.mah, a false partition in fruits.

Phragma-cone, frag'.mä.kōne, the chambered cone in the shell of a bel'lemnite (a fossil mollusc).

Phragmite, fräg'.mīte, one of a genus of reeds growing on river banks and other damp places.

Greek phragma, a hedge or fence (phrassó, to fence in).

Phrase, fraze, an idiom, a mode of speech. Frays, frūze, quarrels.

Phrase-book, a book of phrases compiled and explained.

Phraseo-logy, fray'.zē.ōl'.ō.djy, style or manner of expressing thoughts, the diction of a speaker or writer; phraseological, fray'.zē.ō.lodg''.ī.kāl; phraseological-ly.

Greek phrasis, gen. phrasisōs lōgōs, the words of a phrase or speech.

Phren-, phreno-, frēn'.o- (Greek prefix), the mind, the midriff.

The ancients supposed the midriff to be the seat of the passions.

Phrenetic, frē.nēt'.īk, mad; phrenetical-ly, frē.nēt'.ī.kāl.ly.

Greek phrēn, gen. phrēnōs, adj. phrēnetikōs, phrenetic.

Phrenic, frēn'.īk, pertaining to the midriff or brain; phrenitis, frē.nī'.tis, inflammation of the brain.

Greek phrēn, gen. phrēnōs, the midriff or brain.

Shakespeare uses "stomach" for inclination, courage, passion, &c., and the Lat. stomachus means humour, fancy, choler, passion, &c., from the notion that the stomach or midriff is the seat of the mind.

Phreno-logy, frē.nōl'.ō.djy, the theory of craniology which supposes that mental faculties are indicated by developments in the bone of the skull; phrenological, frēn'.o-.lodg''.ī.kāl; phrenological-ly.

Phrenologist, frē.nōl'.o.djist, one skilled in phrenology.

Greek phrēn, gen. phrēnōs lōgōs, doctrine of the mind or brain.

Phreno-magnetism, frēn'.o-mag'.ne.tizmi, affecting the brain by magnetism or mesmerism.

Greek phrēn, gen. phrēnōs, magnētis, brain [affected by] magnetism.

Phrensy, plu. phrensies, frēn'.ziz, madness, delirium; phrensiad, frēn'.zīd, affected by phrensy; phrensiad-ly.

Phrygian, frīdg'.ī.ān, a native of Phrygia (in Asia Minor), pertaining to Phrygia. Phrygian mode, a certain style of music.

Phthisis, thī'.sīs, pulmonary consumption; phthisic, thī'.sīk; phthisical, -kāl. (Gk. phthīsis, v. phthio, to waste away.)

Phylactery, plu. phylacteries, fī.lūk'.tē.riz, a strip of parchment containing texts of scripture and worn by the Jews as amulets about their wrists or forehead.

Greek phylakterion, a protection, a guard.

Phyllirea (a triple blunder for philyrea), fīl'.ī.ree''.ah, a genus of evergreen shrubs.

The blunder has arisen from a confused notion that the word comes from the Greek phullon, a leaf; but the plant is named from Philyra, the mother of Chiron [kī'.rōn], the centaur.

Phyllite, fīl' .līte, a fossil leaf. (Gk. phullon, a leaf; -ite, a fossil.)

Phyllo-, fīl' .lo- (Greek prefix), leaf, leaf-like. (See Philo-.)

Phyllodium, fīl' .lō' .dī' .ŭm (in Bot.), a leaf-stalk developed into a sort of leaf. (Greek phullon eidos, like a leaf.)

The more usual formation would be phylloid.

Phyllo-gen, fīl' .lō' .djen, the terminal bud from which palm-leaves grow. (Greek phullon gennao, I produce the leaf.)

Phyllo-phagous, fīl' .lōf' .ă' .gŭs, feeding on leaves.

Greek phullo-[phullōn]phagō, I eat leaves.

Phyllo-phorous, fīl' .lōf' .ō' .rŭs, leaf-bearing.

Greek phullo-[phullōn]pherō, I bear leaves.

Phyllo-pod, fīl' .lō' .pōd, a family of crusta'ceans with feet like leaves. (Greek phullon pous, gen. pōdōs.)

Phyllo-ptosis, fīl' .lōp' .tō' .sis, the fall of the leaf.

Greek phullo-[phullōn]ptōsis, fall of the leaf.

Phyllo-taxis, fīl' .lō' .tax' .is, a methodical arrangement of leaves on a stem. (Gk. phullon taxis, array of the leaves.)

Physic, fīz' .īk, medicine, to treat with medicines; physicked, fīz' .īkt; physick-ing. ("Physic" would be better with a -k.)

Physics, fīz' .īks, natural philosophy (all sciences with this termination, except five, arithmetic, logic, magic, music, rhetoric, borrowed from the French, are plural.

Physical, fīz' .īkāl, bodily, material; phys'ical-ly.

Physical education, training the body to promote health.

Physical force, muscular strength, the force of armies and navies. Moral force, the force of moral suasion.

Physical geography, a description of the earth's surface, climate, and productions; Geology is concerned with the internal strata and their productions.

Physical impossibility, opposed to the laws of nature.

Physical laws, the ordinary laws of nature.

Physical point, a real point. Mathematical point, an imaginary point or point without parts.

Physical sciences. Natural sciences. Chemistry.

Physical sciences treat of inorganic bodies with relation to their properties. It includes natural history, mechanics, hydrostatics, hydraulics, pneumatics, magnetism, galvanism, optics, &c.

Natural sciences treat of inorganic bodies with relation to their appearances and external qualities. It includes mineralogy, zoology, botany, geology, physical geography, meteorology, &c.

Chemistry treats of organic and inorganic bodies with relation to their constituent parts and specialities. It includes organic and inorganic chemistry.

Astronomy (like chemistry) is generally placed by itself although it may be ranged under the natural sciences.

Physician, fī.zīsh'.an, one who has taken his M.D. degree.

Physicist, fīz'.ī.sīst, one skilled in natural philosophy.

Physico-logic, fīz'.i.ko-lodg''.īk, logic illustrated by physics.

Physico-theology, fīz'.i.ko-rhe.ōl''.ō.djy, theology...

The physique, fī.zeek', the healthy development of the body.

Gk. phūsikos (phūsis, nature, phuō, to generate); Fr. physique.

Physio-, fīz'.i.o- (Greek prefix), nature, external appearance.

Greek phūsis, gen. phūseōs, nature, outward form or shape.

Physio-gnomy, fīz'.i.ōg''.no.my (not fīz'.i.ōn''.o.my), the cast or expression of the face; physiognomist, fīz'.i.ōg''.-nō.mīst, one skilled in interpreting the cast or expression of a face; physiognomic, fīz'.i.ōg''.nō.mīk; physiognomical, physiognomical-ly. Physiognomics, -i.ōg''.no.mīks, the constitution of body and mind, with the state of the health expressed in the countenance of the face.

Greek phūsis-[phūsis, gen. phūseōs]gnōmōn, countenance-index.

Physio-graphy, fīz'.i.ōg''.rū.fy, a description of natural objects displayed on the surface of the earth, physical geography; physiographical, fīz'.i.o.grāf''.ī.kāl; physiographical-ly, fīz'.i.o.grāf''.ī.kāl.ly.

Gk. phūsis-[phūsis, gen. phūseōs]graphō, I describe natural objects.

Physio-logy, fīz'.i.ōl''.o.djy, the science which treats of the vital actions and functions of physical organs;

Physiologist, fīz'.i.ōl''.o.djīst, one skilled in physiology;

Physiologic, fīz'.i.o.lodg''.īk; physiological, -lodg''.ī.kāl; physiological-ly. (Gk. phusio-logos, treatise on nature.)

Physique (French), fī.zeek', bodily development.

Physo-grade, fīz'.ō.grade, applied to sea-nettles which move in the water by air-bladders. (Greek phusa, a puff.)

A wretched hybrid designed to express "movement by air-bladders." Vesigrade (vesica-gradior), movement by bladders, would be Latin, and physebeem or physabeem (phusa, gen. phusēs bēma), "movement by puffs of air," would be Greek (phuso- is abnormal).

Phyt-, phyto- before consonants (Greek prefix), a plant.

Phyt-elephas, fī.tēl'.ē.fās, the Jagua plant, a sort of palm.

Greek phut-[phuton]ēlephas, plant [which resembles] Ivory.

Phyto-geny, fī.todg'.ē.ny, vegetable development.

Greek phuto-[phuton]gēnēsis, plant genesis. (See Photogen.)

- Phyto-graphy, fi.tõg'.ra.fy, a description of plants, their habits, functions, distribution, and properties; phyto-graph'ical; phytographist, fi.tõg'.ra.fist, one versed in phytography. Photography, drawings made by light.
Greek phuto-[phuton]graphô, I describe plants.
- Phyt-oid, fi'.toid, resembling plants. (Greek phuton eidos.)
- Phyto-lite, fi'.to.lite, a fossil plant. (Gk. -lithos, a stone.)
- Phyto-logy, fi.tõl'.o.djy, botany, a treatise on plants; phytological, fi'.to.lodg''.i.kal; phytolog'ical-ly; phytologist, fi.tõl'.o.djist, a scientific botanist. (v. Photology.)
Greek phuto-[phuton]lõgõs, a treatise on plants.
- Phyto-nomy, fi.tõn'.o.my, the laws observed in the origin, growth, arrangement, and propagation of plants.
Greek phuto-[phuton]nomos, the natural laws of vegetation.
- Phyto-phagous, fi.tõf''.ã.gũs, plant-eating.
Greek phuto-[phuton]phago, I eat plants.
- Phyto-tomy, fi.tõl'.o.my, dissection of plants; phytotomist, one skilled in dissecting plants.
Greek phuto-[phuton]tõmë, plant dissecting.
- Phyto-zoon, fi'.to.zõ''.õn (not fi'.to.zoon), a plant-like animalcule, an insect living on a plant; phyto-zoa (plu.) fi'.to.zõ''.ah, moving filaments in the antheridia of cryptogamic plants. (Gk. phyto-[phyton]zõon, a plant animal.)
- Piacular, pi.ãk'.u.lar, expiatory. (Lat. piaculum, a sin-offering.)
- Pia-mater, pi'.ah-mũ'.ter, the innermost of the three membranes which cover the brain. Du'ra mater, the outer membrane.
Called "mater" from the ancient notion that all the other membranes of the body are "born" of it, being simply elongations thereof. The outer membrane being the toughest of the three is termed dura (hard), while the innermost being tender is termed pia.
- Piano, plu. pianos (Rule xlii.), pẽ.ãn'no, plu. pẽ.ãn'nõze (not pẽ.ah'.no, pẽ.ah'nõze), also piano-forte, pẽ.an'no-for'.te or pe.an'no-fort, a musical instrument.
- Piano, pẽ.ah'no, softly, not loud. Forte, for'.te, loudly.
Pianissimo, pe'.ah.nĩs''.sĩ.mo, as softly as possible.
- Pianist, pe'.a.nist, a performer on the piano-forte.
French piano-forte, from two Ital. words piano forte, soft and strong.
Invented by B. Cristofori, of Padua, in 1711, and improved by J. C. Schroder, of Dresden, in 1717. It superseded the harpsichord.
- Piastre, pe.ãs'.ter, a silver coin (4d.) of Turkey and Egypt.
Fr. piastre, from the Span. piastra, Ital. piastra, a metal plate.
- Piazza, pe.az'.zah, an open arcade. (Ital. piazza, a place, a square.)
- Pibroch, pẽ'.brõke, the wild martial music of the bagpipe.
Gaelic piobaireachd, pipe-music (piob, a pipe).

Pica, pī'kah, the magpie, a depraved appetite, a printing-type.

"Pica" (a magpie), Latin pica. "Pica" (a type), Latin littera picāta, the pitch-black letter used in ancient liturgies for initials. Pica is double the size of the type (nonpareil) used in this note. The type used in the text is called brevier. Pica is the printers' standard for leads, large type, &c. Thus in leads they say four to pica, six to pica, eight to pica, &c.; and in large types 2-line, 3-line, 4-line, . . . 100-line, and upwards—(six picas being equal to an inch). The spaces between words are measured by the "em quad," the exact square of any "fount."

"Pica" (a craving to eat what is not food: as chalk, slate pencil, cinders, &c.), French pica, parce que cet oiseau avale souvent des substances terreuse (Dict. des Arts et des Sciences.)

Picaroon, pīk.a.roon', a pirate, a plunderer. (Spanish picaron.)

Piccadilly, plu. piccadillies, pīk'.ka.dīl''.līz, a high turned-down collar worn in the reign of James I.

So called from Piccadilla Hall, the chief depôt of a certain lace much in vogue in the reign of Elizabeth. The lace was called piccadilly from its little spear-points (picca, a spear).

Pick, a pointed iron tool for breaking up the earth, a choice, foul matter in type, to select, to cull, to eat daintily, to dig with a pick; picked (1 syl.), pick'-ing, pick'-er, pick'-axe, pick'-hammer; pick-lock, an instrument for opening locks without a key; pick-pocket.

To pick off, to pinch or take off between the fingers.

To pick up, to take up with the fingers, to learn by gossip.

To pick a bone with one, to chide.

To pick a hole in a person's coat, to find fault with.

To pick a quarrel, to seek a cause of quarrelling.

To pick out, to select, to undo needle work.

Old English pyc[an], past pycle, past part pyced.

Pick-a-back, pick-a-back, or pig-back, on the back.

A corruption of apiga-back (piga, a child, apiga, in the manner of a child, apiga-back, as a child [is carried] on the back).

Picket, pīk'.ket, a guard of observation. Piquet, pe.ket', a game at cards. Picketed, pīk'.kēt.ed, posted as a guard of observation; picket-ing, pīk'.kēt ing.

Inlying pickets, a guard in camp ready for picket service.

Outlying pickets, a picket on actual watch.

"Picket," French piquet. "Piquet" (game of cards), so called from pique, that is, one player making thirty points before his adversary has scored one, in which case the thirty points count sixty.

Pickle, pīk''l, brine or vinegar for preserving food, vegetables preserved in vinegar, to preserve food in brine or vinegar, to "put down" food in brine or vinegar for the sake of pickling it; pickled, pīk''ld; pick'ling, pick'ler.

Germ. pökel, brine, pickle, v. pökeln, also pickel-haring, pickle herring.

Pic-nic, an excursion into the country with an out-door repast, originally each person brought his own provision.

The French have borrowed the word and call it picque nique. Bouillet says "expression empruntée de l'anglais pick-nick (choisir instant-précis)," that is, "let us pick the nick of time for a country-jauit."

Picric, pik'.rik, an acid intensely bitter used in malt liquors.

Latin picris; Greek pikros, bitter. Also called carbazotic acid.

Picts, a tribe of the ancient N. Britons.

Gaelic pictish, a freebooter. In Anglo-Saxon Peohtas, Peahhtas, Peh-tas, Pyhtas, and Pihtas. It is not from the Latin pictus, painted with woad.

Picture, pik'.tchür, a drawing, a painting, an engraving, a description, to paint or draw a picture; pictured, pik'.tchürd; pictur-ing (Rule xix.); pik'.tchür-ing.

Pictorial, pik'.tör'räl; pictorial-ly, picture-gal'ery; picture-liner, pik'.tchür line'.ër, one who prepares and fixes the inner canvas of pictures. (Latin pictūra.)

Picturesque, pik'.tchür.esk''; picturesquely, -tchür.èsk''ly; picturesque-ness, pik'.tchür.esk''.ness. The picturesque.

Latin pictūra, pictor, pictōrius (v. pingor, supine pictum, to paint); French pittoresque; Italian pittorresco. It would be better if we had abandoned the un-English -que and written picturecs.

Piddle, pīd'.d'l, to do trifling matters; pidd'ling, trifling; piddled, pīd'.d'ld; pidd'ler. (Welsh pitw, minute, petty.)

Pie, pī, meat or fruit baked in a dish with a crust, a magpie.

Pie-bald, having black spots on a white ground like a magpie.

Skew-bald, having brown spots on a white ground.

Pied, pīde, variegated with spots; pied-ness, pīde-ness.

"Pie" (the magpie), Fr. pie; Lat. pica. "Pie" (a pasty), Gael. pieghe. "Pie-bald," pie-marked; Gaelic ball, a mark, bailach, speckled.

Piece, pēce, a part. Peace, pēce (not war). Peas, peez, plu. of pea.

Piece, a fragment, a musical or literary composition, a separate thing of its kind, as a piece of paper, to patch, to join; pieced, peecd; piec-ing (Rule xix.); pēce'-ing.

Piece-goods, goods sold in the piece, as calico, cloth, &c.

Piece-meal, pēce'-meel, piece by piece, into small pieces.

Piece-work, pēce-wurk, work paid by the piece.

All a-pieces, in rags, in a dilapidated state.

A-piece, each, as a penny a-piece. Piece-less, entire.

"Piece," Fr. pièce, from Ital. pizza. "Peace," Lat. pax, gen pācis. "Peas" and "pease" (plurals of pea), Old Eng. pise, plu. pisen.

Pier, Peer, both peer. Pear, Pair, Fare, all pāre.

Pier, peer, a mole or jetty, a pillar. Pier-glass, a large looking-glass on pillars; pier-table, a console table.

Pier'-age, toll for the use of a pier. Peer'-age, the rank of peers (-age, toll, condition). (Old Eng. per or pere, a pier.)

Peer, a noble, an equal, to peep. (Fr. pair; Lat. pares.)

Pear, pair, a fruit. (Old Eng. pera or peru; Lat. pŕum.)

Pair, two corresponding articles. (Welsh par; Fr. paire.)

Pare, to peel, to trim. (Fr. parer, to pare hoofs, to trim.)

Pierce, pĕrce, to penetrate; pierced (1 syl.), pierc'-ing (Rule xix.), piercing-ly, piercing-ness, pierc-er, pĕrce'-r; pierce'-able (only -ce and -ge retain the -e before -able).

Fr. percer (Lat. per cis eo, to go through from this side [to the other]).

Pierian, pi.ĕr'ri.ăn, pertaining to the Muses. Pierides, pi.ĕr'ri.deez, the Muses, so called from Piĕria, near Mount Olympus, where they were worshipped (-ides, a patronymic).

Piety, pi.ĕ.ty, religious feeling or principle. Filial piety, devotion to one's parents. Pietist, pi.ĕ.tist; pietism; pietistic, pi.ĕ.tis''.ĕk, pertaining to the pietist sect.

Lat. pietas (pius, godly, expiare, to expiate, piare); Fr. piété.

Pig, (male) boar-pig, (fem.) sow; sucking-pig, the young pig so long as it is suckled by the sow. Hog, a male pig designed for slaughter. Litter, the entire brood of a sow. Porkers, young pigs after being weaned. Swine, pigs collectively (-ein, as in "kine," cu-ein, cows collectively).

Pork, the flesh of a slaughtered pig. Brawn, ham, bacon, parts of pork cured or prepared in a peculiar way for food. Chaps, the cheeks of a hog. Bath-chaps, &c.

Pig, to bring forth pigs; pigged (1 syl.), pigg'-ing (Rule i.)

Pigg'-ish, like a pig (-ish added to nouns means "like," added to adj. it is dim.); piggish-ly, piggish-ness.

Pigg-ery, plu. piggeries, pĭg'.ĕ.rĭz, a compartment in a farm-yard fitted up with sties and allotted to pigs.

Pig-headed, -hĕd'.ed, obstinate and stupid. (Pig-iron, see below.) Pig-nut, the ground-nut, so called because pigs are fond of grubbing up these nuts with their snout.

Pig-sty, plu. pig-sties, -stize, a place for pigs.

Pig-tail, the hind hair of a man twisted into a rope and tied at the ends in a knot, a species of tobacco.

Pig in a poke, a blind bargain. To buy a pig in a poke.

"Pig," Old Eng. piga, a child, a little one of any animal.

"Boar," Old Eng. bār. "Sow," Old Eng. sūg. "Hog," Welsh hwch.

"Swine," Old Eng. suin, i.e., sū[g]-ein, pigs collectively considered.

"Litter," Fr. litière (lis, Lat. lectus, Gk. lēchos, a bed or couch).

"Pork," Fr. porc, Lat. porcus, a pig, Gk. porkos, i.e., kapros, a boar.

"Brawn," Lat. aprugn[us], boars' flesh (aper, Gk. kapros, a boar).

"Bacon," Welsh bacwn. "Chaps," Old Eng. ceaf, a snout.

Pigeon, pidg'n, a bird; pigeon-livered, -liv'erd, timid.

Pigeon-express, news carried by a carrier-pigeon.

Pigeon-hole, a place for a pigeon, an opening in a case or frame for letters or sorted papers; pigeon-house.

Pigeon-talk, a corruption of business talk, thus: bidginess, bidgin', pidgin, pigeon.

Fr. pigeon; Lat. pipio, gen. pipion[is], v. pipio, to chirp or coo.

Piggin, a wooden vessel with a handle. Biggen, a coffee-pot.

"Piggin," Gaelic pige, an earthen vessel, pigeon, a little jar.

"Biggen," a coffee-pot made in imitation of a Beguin's cap.

Fig-iron, an oblong mass of unforged iron.

This is a mere play upon the word sow. When iron is melted it runs off into channels called sows (from saw[an], Old English to scatter).

The lateral branches of a "sow" are called the pigs, here the iron cools, and is then called "pig-iron."

Pig'ment, a paint, that secretion which gives the eye its colour; pigmental, pigmēn'.tāl. (Latin pigmentum.)

Pigmy, plu. pigmies, pig'māz, a dwarf; pigmean, pig.mee'.an.

Latin pygmæi, a people of Thrace, three inches high, in constant war with the cranes; pygmæus; Greek pygmaios (pygmē, 1 ft. 1½ in.)

Our spelling of this word quite conceals its meaning (13-inch folk), as well as its classic origin. Of course it should be spelt pygmy.

Pigsney, plu. pigsneys (not pigsnies), a little girl, a term of endearment to a little girl. (Old English piga, a child.)

Pike (1 syl.), a sort of spear, a fish, an iron spring on a lathe; piked (1 syl.), pikeman, pike-staff, plu. pike-staves.

Old Eng. piic, a pin or needle; Welsh pig, a pike; Fr. pique.

The fish is so called from its long body and pointed snout.

Pilaster, pī.lās'ter, a square pillar set into a wall and showing only one-fifth of its thickness; pilastered, pī.lās'terd.

Fr. pilastre; Ital. pilastro; Lat. pila (Gk. pīlēō, to thicken, to pile).

Pilch, a robe lined with fur, a flannel for infants. (O. E. pylce.)

Pilchard, pilch'rd, a fish resembling the herring.

Pile (1 syl.), a large stake driven into the ground to support the foundation of a pier, &c., the reverse side of a coin, a mass, hairy surface of cloth, to drive piles, to heap; piled (1 syl.), pil'-ing (R. xix.) Piles (1 syl.), a disease.

Pile-engine (-en'.dʒīn), Galvan'ic pile, Voltā'ic pile.

"Pile" (a pillar, a heap), Latin pila. "Pile" (hair), Latin pīlus.

Pileate, pī.lē.āte (in Bot.), having a mushroom-like head.

Pileiform, pī.li.form (not pī.lē.ī.form); pileus, pī.lē.us.

Latin pīleus, a cap; Greek pīlos (v. pīlēō, to felt wool).

Pilfer, pīl'.fer, to steal. Pilifer, pīl'.ī.fer, covered with hair.

Pilfered, pīl'.ferd; pil'fer-ing, pil'fering-ly, pil'fer-er; pilfery, plu. pilferies, pīl'.fer.īz.

"Pilfer," Welsh ysperrtuw, a spoiler, v. ysperrto, ysperriad, spoliation.

"Pilifer," Latin pīlus fēro, I bear hair (Greek pīlos, hair wool).

Pil'grim, a wanderer, one who travels to visit a shrine; pilgrim-age, pil'.grîmage, the journey of a pilgrim (-age, state, act, condition); pilgrimage, pil'.grîmize; &c.

Germ. pilgrim or pilger; Lat. peregrinus (perëger per agros, [one who travels] over lands, or [one who comes from] over-land).

Pilifer, pil'.îfer (in Bot.), covered with hair. Pilfer, to steal.

Piliform, pil'.îform. (Latin pilus fëro, I carry hair.)

Pill, a drug formed into a small ball. (Lat. pîlûla, a little ball.)

Pillage, pîl'.lidge, plunder, to plunder; pillaged (2 syl.); pillag-ing, pîl'.lă.djing; pillag-er, pîl'.lă.djer.

French pillage; Latin pîlâre, to steal.

The original meaning of pillage is "things crammed close together" (Gk. pîlôo or pîlô, to press close together. It is not connected with peel, Lat. pîlâre, to pull off the hair, as we are generally told.

Pillar, pîl'.lar, a column. Pillow, pîl'.lo, a cushion for the head.

Pillared, pîl'.lard, supported by columns. Pillowed (q.v.)

"Pillar," Span. pilar, Lat. pîla; Gk. pîlôo, to pile. "Pillow," Old Eng. pîle, Lat. pulvinar (pîlus), a hair-cushion.

(The double l in pillar is a blunder without excuse, as the i is long.)

Pillion, pîl'.yûn, the pad of a saddle, a pad for a woman to sit on when she rides behind a horseman, a soft low saddle.

Latin pîlus, hair, pîlôsus, stuffed with hair.

Pillory, plu. pillories, pîl'.lo.rîz, an instrument of punishment.

Pillored, pîl'.lo.rêd. Pillowed, pîl'.lowd. Pillared, pîl'.lard.

Pillored, punished in a pillory.

Pillowed, supported on a pillow, furnished with pillows.

Pillared, supported on columns, furnished with columns.

Pilloring, pîl'.lo.ring. Pillowing, pîl'.lo.ing.

Pilloring, punishing with the pillory.

Pillowing, supporting by pillows, supplying with a pillow.

French pîlori; Low Latin pîllorium; Latin pîlum, a post.

Pillow, pîl'.lo, a cushion for the head. Pillar, pîl'.lar, a column.

Pillow, to support with a pillow, to furnish with pillows; pillowed, pîl'.lôde; pillow-ing, pîl'.lo.ing; pillowy, pîl'.lo.y; pillow-slip or pillow-case, pillow-block.

"Pillow," Old Eng. pîle; Lat. pulvinar (pîlus, hair), a hair-cushion.

"Pillar," Span. pilar, Lat. pîla, a column, Gk. pîlôo, to pile.

Pilose, pî'.lôse, or pilous, pî'.lûs, covered with hair; pilos'ity.

Latin pîlôsus, hairy, pîlus, hair; Greek pîlos, hair.

Pilot, pî'.lôt, one who steers a ship, to steer a ship. Pilate, pî'.late, the "governor" of Judea who gave up Jesus Christ to be crucified. Pilot-ed, pilot-ing; pilot-age, the act of piloting, a fee for piloting a vessel (-age, the act, a fee).

Pilot boat, -bôte, a boat used by pilots for reaching a ship.

- Pilot cloth, a stout blue woollen cloth used by mariners.
- Pilot coat, -côte, a short loose coat made of pilot cloth.
- Pilot engine, -en'.dʒɪn, (in Railways) an engine sent in advance of a train to clear the line on "grand" occasions.
- Pilot fish, a fish that accompanies ships for weeks and months, it also accompanies the shark (probably to pick up food thrown overboard by mariners and left by the shark.)
- Pilot jacket, a pea-jacket, a pilot's weather-coat.
- Fr. pilote, from pile, a ship. Scaliger gives the French, pile, a ship.
- Pimento, plu. pimentoes (Rule xlii.), allspice, Jamaica pepper.
- Corruption of the Spanish pimenton, ground cayenne pepper, or of pimiento, red cayenne or Indian pepper.
- Pimp (noun and verb), pimped (1 syl.), pimp'-ing.
- Pimpernel, pɪm'.per.nəl, a plant called the "Shepherd's weather glass" because it closes at the approach of rain. Also called the "Poor man's hour glass" because it opens at seven and closes at about four.
- A blunder for bipennel, so called from its leaflets, each stalk containing twenty-one, disposed two and two with one at the extremity; Lat. bipennella, corrupted by the Fr. into pimprenelle, and partially restored by us in pimpernel.
- Fimple, pɪm'.pəl, a small red spot on the skin; pimples, pɪm'.p'ld; pimply, pɪm'.pli (corruption of Old Eng. pinpel.)
- Pin (noun and verb), pinned (1 syl.), pinn'-ing (R. i.), pinn'-er.
- Pintle, pin'.təl, an iron bolt. Pin-case; pin cushion (push to rhyme with push not with rush); pin-feather, -fɛrk'r, a small short feather; pin-hole; pin-eyed, -ide (in Bot.); pin-maker; pin-money, -mʌn'ny, a lady's personal allowance; pin-point, the point of a pin, a mere trifle.
- Welsh pin, a pin or pen; Latin spina, a thorn once used as a pin.
- Pinafore, pɪn'.ʌ.fər, a "tidy" for children to keep the front of their dress clean. (Afore, "before," pinned-before.)
- Pin'cers, nippers for drawing-out nails, &c. Pinch'ers (q.v.)
- (Pairs have no sing. when the parts which form the pair are joined together: as pincers, scissors, &c.; but when each part is separate it is referred to in the sing. number: as a glove, a shoe.)
- Pinch, a gripe, to nip; pinched (1 syl.), pinch'-ing, pinch-ing-ly; pinch'-er, one who nips or pinches. To know where the shoe pinches, to know practically.
- Pinch-penny, a niggard. (French pince, pincer, pinçon.)
- Pinch'beck, a mixed metal resembling gold, make-believe.
- Fr. Christopher Pinchbeck, a musical clock-maker (tem. George II.)
- Pindaric, pɪn.dɑr'ɪk (not pɪn'.da.ɪk), a poem in irregular verse.
- After the style of Pindar, the Greek poet (as "Alexander's Feast").

- Pine (1 syl.), a tree, a fruit, to languish; pined (1 syl.)
- Pin-ing (Rule xix.), pīnē'-ing; pīning-ly, pīn'-er.
- Piny, pīnē'-y. Pinery, plu. pineries, pī'nē.riz. Piney, pī.ny.
Piny, like a pine-apple, abounding with pine-trees.
Pinery, a house for the artificial cultivation of pine-apples.
Piney, made from pines, as piney tallow, piney varnish.
- Pinetum, pī.nēe'.tum, a plantation of pine-trees.
- Pinic acid, pī'nīk ūs'sīd, an acid obtained from pine-resin.
- Pine-apple, pine-clad, pine-crowned, pine-thistle.
- Pin-ite, pī'nite, a fossil of pine-wood or pine-cones, &c.
 Old English pīn-treow, a pine-tree, pīn-hnut, a pine-nut.
 "To pine," pīn[an], past pīnede, past part. pīned, pīnung, pīnere.
 Latin pinus, a pine-tree, pinum, a pine-apple; Greek pītus.
- Pineal gland, pīn'.ē.āl..., a small gland in the brain (shaped like a fir-apple), called by Descartes "the seat of the soul."
 French pinéal; Latin pinēālis, like a pine or fir-apple.
- Pin'fold, a pound. (Old English pinn-fald, a pen-fold.)
- Pinion, pīn'.yŭn, the last joint of a bird's wing, a bird's wing, a small wheel which works in a larger one, to bind the hands, to fasten the wings to prevent flying; pinioned, pīn'.yŭnd; pinion-ing, pīn'.yŭn.ing.
 "Pinion" (a wing), Lat. pinna or penna; (a wheel), Fr. pignon.
- Pinite, pī'nite, a fossil pine or part of a pine (-ite, a fossil).
- Pink, a colour, a flower, the acme [of perfection], of a pink tinge, to stab, to hit with dexterity, to work in eyelet holes, to scallop; pinked (1 syl.), pink'-ing, pink'-er.
Pinking-iron, -i.on, a tool for scalloping the edges of cloth, &c.
The pink of perfection, ...of fashion, ...of politeness.
 Welsh pinc, fine, smart, pwnc, a point, hence to pink or cut into notches; the flower called a pink has its petals pinked or notched; the colour called pink means the fine or smart colour, the perfection of colours. "To pink" (to stab) is to make an eyelet hole.
- Pinnace, pīn'.nace, a light vessel navigated with oars and sails.
 Fr. pinace or pinasse; Span. pinaza. (Our word should be pinace.)
- Pinnacle, pīn'.na.k'l, the summit, a slender turret, a high point.
 Latin pinncŭlum; French pinacle (wrong), Italian pinnacolo.
- Pinnate or pennate. Alatus, ā.lay'.tus or alate, a.lāte'.
Pinnate, the leaflets of a compound leaf arranged two and two opposite each other, like the outspread wings of a bird.
Alātus, the leaves of a stalk arranged two and two opposite each other, like the outspread wings of a bird.
Pari-pinnate, the leaflets pinnate without an odd-one.
Impari-pinnate, the leaflets pinnate with an odd-one atop.

- Pinnati-fid, pĭn.năt'.i.fĭd, the leaflets cleft less than half-way through. (Latin findo, perf. fĭdi, to cleave).
- Pinnati-partite, pĭn.năt'.i-par.tĭte, the leaflets cleft more than half-way through. (Latin partitus, divided.)
- Pinnatiped, pĭn.năt'.ĭ.pĕd, fin-footed. (Lat. pes, gen. pĕdis.)
- Pinni-ped, pĭn'.nĭ.pĕd, applied to certain crabs which have their hinder feet flattened like fins.
- Latin pinnatus, winged (pinna, a wing or fin), pennatus (penna).
- Pint, half-a-quarter of a gallon. (O. E. pynt; Low Lat. pinta.)
- Pioneer, pĭ'.o.neer', one of a company of soldiers sent before an army to clear the road and throw up works, to clear the way for others; pioneered' (3 syl.), pioneer'-ing.
- French pionnier (pion, a pawn, a day-labourer, a common soldier).
- Pious, pĭ'.ūs, religious, devout; pious-ly; piety, pĭ'.ĕ.ty (q.v.)
- Latin pius, godly, pietas, v. piāre, hence expiāre, to expiate.
- Pip, a disease with young chickens, the seed of apples, pears, grapes, &c., a spot (as a heart, diamond, club, or spade on cards), to chirp; pipped (1 syl.), pipp'-ing (Rule i.)
- "Pip" (disease with chickens), Fr. pépie; Lat. pĭtuita; Gk. pĕtua.
- "Pip" (to chirp), Latin pipio or pĭpiāre, pĭpāre, to cluck.
- "Pip" (of fruits), French pepin: Greek pĕpōn, ripe [fruit].
- Pipe (1 syl.), two hogsheads, a tube for conveying water, &c., a wind instrument, an apparatus for smoking, to play on a pipe, to call as on board ship, &c.; pipēd (1 syl.), pip'-ing (Rule xix.), pi'ping-ly, pip-er. Pipe-clay, pipe-fish.
- Piping hot, smoking hot. Piping, a mode of propagating pinks, &c.; a rounded edging in dresses.
- To pay the piper, to bear the expenses of an entertainment.
- Old Eng. pĭp, v. pĭp[an], pipere, a piper; pĭp-dreām, flute-music.
- Fr. pipe, a measure of capacity, an apparatus for smoking; pipeau, a tube for conveying water. Germ. pfeife, v. pfeifen, pfeifer.
- Piperine, pĭp'.ĕ.rĭn, the active principle of black pepper.
- Fr. pipérin; Lat. pĭper. (Our word "pepper" should have only one p.)
- Pipkin, pĭp'.kĭn, a small earthen pot. (O. E. pĭp and kin dim.)
- Pippin, pĭp'.pĭn, an apple, so called from its pips or spots.
- The corresponding Fr. word is rainette, "de ranetta, dim. de rana, parce qu'elle est, comme la grenouille, marquée de petites taches rouges ou grises" (Dict. Universel, &c.)
- Piquant, pĕĕ'.kăht, pungent, jaunty. Peccant, pĕk'.kant, erring; piquant-ly, pĕĕ'.kăht.ly; piquancy, pĕĕ'.kăhn.sy.
- "Piquant," Fr. piquant. "Peccant," Lat. peccans, gen. -antis, v. peccāre.
- Pique, peek. Peak, peek, the top of a mountain. Peck. Pick.
- Pique, spite, a score of thirty made at piquet before the adversary has gained a point, to wound another's pride.
- Piqued, peekd, annoyed. Peaked, peeked, rising in a peak.

Piqu'-ing, pee'.king. (Verbs ending in any two vowels, except -ue, retain both before -ing.) (Fr. piquer, piquer.)

Peck, to strike with the beak. (Span. picar, pico, a beak.)

Pick, to pluck, to select, to pilfer, &c. (Old Eng. pyc[an].)

French piquer, piquer. The word means "pricked with a pike."

Piquet, pe.kët', a game at cards. Picket, pik'.ët, a detachment of soldiers on picket duty. (Fr. piquet, both meanings.)

Pirate, pi'.rate, a sea-robber, to steal literary work; pirat-ed (R. xxxvi.), pi'.ra.ted; pirat-ing (R. xix.), pi'.ra.ting.

Piracy, plu. piracies, pi'.ra.siz (not pir'ra.siz).

Piratic, pi.rüt'.ik; piratical, pi.rüt'.i.käl; pirat'ical-ly.

Lat. pirāta, pirātīca, pirātīcūs (Gk. peira, a plot or design against one.)

Pirouette, pi'rro.ët', a spinning round on the toes, to spin round on the toes; piroüett-ed, piroüett-ing. (Fr. pirouette.)

Requefort says from the Low Lat. gyruette (gyrus, a whirl round), others suggest pied rouette, the feet a little wheel (roue, a wheel).

Piscatory, pis'.ka.tö.ry, pertaining to fishing or fish; piscato-rial, pis'.ka.tö''.räl; piscatorial-ly.

Piscary, pis'.kary, the right of fishing in another's stream.

Piscinal, pis.si'näl, pertaining to a fish-pond. Piscine, sîn.

Pisciform, pis'.sî.form. Piscivorous, pis.siv'.ö.rüs, living on fish. Pisiform, pi'.sî.form, pea-shaped.

Pisciculture, pis'.si.kül''.tchür, the artificial rearing of fishes; piscicultural, pis'.si.kül''.tchür.äl.

Pisces, pis'.sees (the fishes), the twelfth sign of the zodiac.

Latin piscārius, piscātōrius, piscātor, piscinālis, pisci-forma, pisci-cultūra, piscis plu. pisces (Greek pisko, from pino, to drink).

Pish! an interjection of contempt, equal to "hold your tongue"!

Pisiform, pi'.sî.form, pea-shaped. Pisciform, pis'.sî.form, fish-shaped. Pisolite, pi'.so.lite, a mineral found in globules.

Pisolitic, pi'.so.lüt''.ik, pertaining to pisolites [pi'.so.lites].

Old Eng. pise, plu. pisen; Lat. pisum; Gk. pisos, a pea (pisi-lithos).

Pismire, pis'.mire, an ant. (Danish myre, an ant.)

Pistachio, plu. pistachios (R. xlii.) Pasticcio, plu. pasticcios.

Pistachio, plu. pistachios, pis.tah'.she.öze (a blunder for pistacia, pis.tah'.së.ah), a tree which yields nuts.

Pasticcio (Ital.), päs.titch'.i.o, a "parody" in painting.

Lat. pistācia; Gk. pistākia (pissa, pitch, because its resin is very abundant); Fr. pistache; Ital. pistacchio.

Our word is neither Latin, French, nor Italian, but a mere blunder.

Pistil, pis'.til. Pistol, pist'l, a small fire-arm. Pistole, pis.tölé'.

Pistil (in Bot.), the seed-bearing organ. It has three parts, the stigma (or upper part), the style (or central part), and the ova'rium (or lower part). Linnæus called it gynia (in compounds), from the Greek gunê, "a woman."

- Pistillaceous (double l), pīs'.tīl.lay''shūs;
 Pistillary, pīs.tīl'.la.ry; pistillate, pīs'.tīl.lāte, having a pistil; pistilliferous (double l), pīs'.tīl.līf''ē.rūs.
 Instead of copying the French we should have preserved the double l in "pistil," for uniformity sake.
 Lat. pistill[um], a pestle, which it resembles; Ital. pistillo; Fr. pistil.
 Pistol, pist''l. Pistole, pīs.tōle' (q.v.) Pistil, pīs'.tīl (q.v.)
 Pistol, pist''l, a small fire-arm, to shoot with a pistol; pistoled, pist''ld; pist'ol-ing. Pistolet, a little pistol.
 So called from Pistoja, in Tuscany, where it was invented, 1545.
 Pistole, pīs.tōle', a Spanish gold coin worth about sixteen shillings. Now called a doblon. (Fr. pistole, see above.)
 Piston, pīs'.tōn, the plunger of a pump or steam-engine;
 Piston-rod. Em'bōlus, a sucker, a wedge.
 Span. piston or embolo; Lat. pīnsēre, sup. pistum, to bray in a mortar.
 "Em'bōlus," Greek emballo, to drive [a piston] into [a cylinder].
 Pit, a hole in the earth, a depression on the skin, the hollow under the arm, &c., the lowest part of a theatre, a grave, to put in competition; pitt'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), pitt'-ing.
 Coal-pit, a pit whence coals are extracted. Pit-coal, coals from a pit. Pitman, pitfall (not pitfal). Bottomless pit.
 Cock-pit (of a ship), a room appropriated to the wounded during an action, an area for cocks to fight in.
 Old English pett, pit, or pytt; Latin pūteus (Gr. πόρος, Varro.)
 Pit-a-pat, palpitation, a light, quick, and oft-repeated sound as of feet walking. Rule lxix. (Welsh ffat, a pat.)
 Pitch, resin of the pine, elevation, to smear with pitch, to fall headlong, to toss up with a pitchfork, to rise and fall as a ship at sea; pitched (1 syl.), pitch'-ing; pitch'-y, like pitch; pitch-dark, quite dark. Burgundy-pitch.
 Pitch'-er, a jug, one who pitches; pitch'-fork, pitch-pipe.
 To pitch on, to light on, to fix one's choice on.
 Old Eng. pic, pīcen, pitchy; Lat. pīceus, pīcturus (pīx, gen. pīcis, pitch).
 "Pitch" (to dart, to toss), Welsh picio; piefforch, a pitchfork.
 Pitcher, pitch'-er, a jug; pitcher-plant. (Welsh piser, a jug.)
 Piteous, pīt'.ē.ūs, mournful; piteous-ly, piteous-ness. (See Pity.)
 Pith, the "marrow" of plants and trees, the gist of what is said or written, vigour of thought or style, to take out the pith; pithed (1 syl.), pith'-ing, pith'-less; pith'-y, terse, full of pith; pith'i-ly (R. xi.), pith'i-ness. (O. E. pitha.)
 Pittance, pīt'.tance, a small allowance, properly of meat and drink. (It ought to have only one t.)
 French pittance; Low Latin pitancia, whence pitanciaris, the officer who dealt to monks, &c., their daily rations.
 Span. pitancia, the place where the rations are given out; pitancero, the distributor; pitar, to distribute rations; pitanza, the pittances.

Pituitary, pit'ũ.ĩ.tũ.ry, that which secretes mucus; pituitary gland; pituitary membrane, the fine lining of the nostrils.

Pituitous, pit'ũ.ĩ.tũ.s, consisting of mucus, resembling...

In Lat. the i in both syl. is long; pituita, pituitaria, pituitosus.

Pity, pit'.y, compassion, to feel commiseration; pitied, pit'.ĩd; pit'i-er, pit'i-able, pit'iable-ness, pit'ially.

Pit'i-ful (Rule viii.), pit'iful-ly, pit'iful-ness. Pit'i-less, pit'iless-ly, pit'iless-ness; pit'y-ing, pit'ying-ly.

Piteous, pit'.ẽ.ũs (not pit'.ichũs), deserving pity, calling for pity, mournful; piteous-ness, piteous-ly.

French pitiẽ, piteux, pitoyable (11); Latin piẽlas, piety.

Pivot, pit'.õt, the point on which a body turns, to place on a pivot; pivot-ed, pivot-ing, pivot-gun. (French pivot.)

Pix, a box containing coins to be assayed, a vessel for holding the "consecrated host"; pix-ing, assaying coins.

Pyx is the better spelling. (Lat. pyxis; Gk. puxõs, box wood.)

Placable, plak'.ã.b'l, able to be appeased; plac'able-ness, plac'ably; placability, plak'.ã.bil'.ĩ.ty. Implac'able, &c.

Latin placabilis, placabilitas, v. placare, to appease.

Placard, plã.kard', a printed bill to be pasted on a wall, to stick a printed bill on a wall; placard-ed (Rule xxxvi.), placard-ing, placard'er. (Fr. placard, v. placarder.)

Gk. plax, gen. plãkõs, a flat plate for a tablet, whence Fr. plaque.

Plaçe (1 syl.), a locality. Plaice, plãçe, a flat sea-fish (q.v.)

Place, to locate; placed (1 syl.), plãç-ing (R. xix.), plãç'er, place-less, place-man. To give place, to yield to.

To take place, to happen. To take the place of.

Old English place; Latin platã; Greek plateia [hodos],

Placid, plãs'.ĩd, calm, serene; placid-ly, placid-ness; placidity, plã.sĩd'.ĩ.ty. (Latin plãcidus, plãcẽo, to please.)

Placo-, plãk'.o- (Gk. prefix), scaly, tessellated (plax, gen. plãkõs).

Placo-dermata, -der'.ma.tãh, an order of scaled [fossil] fishes; placo-derm, one of the placo-dermata.

Greek plaz, genitive plãkõs derma, a skin or covering of scales.

Placo-ganoid, plã.kõg'.ã.noid, a sub-order of fossil fishes.

Gk. plax, gen. plakõs gãnõs-eĩdos, fish with bone-mail shiny-like.

Placoids, plãk'.oids, an order of fishes covered with scales of unequal size and irregular shape.

Ganoids, gan'.oids, an order of fish covered with brightly enamelled scales of regular shape.

"Placoid," Greek plaz, genitive plãkõs-eĩdos, scaly or scale-like.

"Ganoid," Greek gãnõs-eĩdos, shiny or sheen-like [scales].

Plagiarise (R. xxxi.), plãdg'.ẽ.ã.rĩze, to filch from the writings of another; plag'iarised (4 syl.), plag'iaris-ing (R. xix.)

Plagiarist, plädg'ě.ă.rĭst; plagiarism, plädg'ě.ă.rĭzm; plagiary, plädg'ě.ă.ry, the crime of literary theft.

Lat. plāgiarius (plāgium, kidnapping; Gk. plāgĭos, treacherous).

Plague, plaig, pestilence, nuisance, to vex, to annoy; plagued, plaigd; plagu-ing, plaig'-ing (verbs ending in any two vowels, except -ue, retain both before -ing, Rule xix.); plaguy, plaig'y; plagui-ly, plaig'.ly; plague-spot. (This is not a French but a Frenchified word.)

Lat. plaga, a blow or stroke [inflicted by God]; Welsh pla; Germ. plage. It is a great pity that the termination -ue after g and q is not abolished. it never aids the pronunciation, but misleads and in most cases renders the word ridiculous: thus plagu-ing, intrigu-ing, harangu-ing, piqu-ing, &c., are simply abominations.

Plaice, plāce, a flat sea-fish. Plāce (1 syl.), a locality, to locate.

"Plaice," Germ. plattēsse or plattfisch, the flat fish (Gk. platus, flat),
 "Place," Old English plæce; Latin placēa; Greek plateia [hōdōs].

Plaid, plād, a cloth checkered; plaid'-ed; plaid'-ing, a coarse woollen cloth used for plaids, blankets, &c.

Welsh plaid, a partition; Gaelic plaid, a blanket.

Plain, homely, not pretty. Plane (1 syl.), a joiner's tool.

Plain, a level piece of country, smooth, void of ornament, homely, not good looking, clear, not obscure; (comp.) plain'-er, (super.) plain'-est; plain'-ish, rather plain; plain'-ly; plain-ness (double n), flatness, homeliness.

Plain-dealing, frank or straightforward conduct.

Plain-speaking, frankness in speech; plain-spōken, brusque.

Plane (1 syl.), not curved, as a plane figure a figure enclosed by straight lines, a level, as on the same plane, a tool for planing or making level, to level; planed (1 syl.), planing (Rule xix.), plāne'-ing; plan-er, plāne'-er.

Plane geom'etry, geometry of flat not solid figures.

Plane trigonometry, that of flat not spherical surfaces.

Plane angle, by two straight lines on a flat surface.

Plane-chart, -tchart, a map disregarding the earth's sphericity and treating it as a flat surface.

Plane-iron, -i'on, the blade of a joiner's plane.

Plane of sight, the general level of the ground.

Plane-sailing, problems in navigation constructed as if the sea were a flat not a convex surface.

Plane-table, a board used by surveyors for drawing plans.

"Plain," Fr. plain, Lat. plānus, Gk. aplanēs; Welsh ysplan, clear.

"Plane," French plan, [surface] plane; Latin plānus.

The distinction between these two words is not very obvious, but as a general rule plane (except when it means a joiner's tool or to "make smooth") is a term in mathematics (opposed to curved or spherical); but plain (except when it means a "flat level expanse") is an adjective opposed to hilly, ornamented, pretty, &c.

Plaint, plānte, lamentation, a memorial of grievances.

Plaintive, plain'·tīv. Plaintiff, plain'tif. Defendant.

Plaintive, touchingly sad, having a mournful tone.

Plaintiff, one who brings an action against another.

Defendant, one against whom an action is brought.

Plaintively, plain'tīv.ly; plaintive-ness.

French plainte, plaintif; Latin plangere, sup. placatum, to bewail.

Plait, plāte (not plect). Plate. Plät.

Plait, a fold [of cloth], a braid, to braid; plait'-ed, plait'-ing, plait'-er. (Welsh pleth, v. plethu.)

Plāte (1 syl.), an earthen trencher, domestic articles in gold or silver. (German platte, plate; platt, flat.)

Plät, a plot of grass, a braid, to braid. (French plat.)

Plān, a scheme, a sketch, to devise, to delineate; planned (1 syl.), plann'-ing (Rule i.). plann'-er. (French plan.)

Planchet, plahn'sha or plahn'shēt, a small board, a very minute table, a flat piece of metal. (French planchette.)

Plāne (1 syl.), a joiner's tool, a term in mathematics. (See Plain.)

Plane-tree (French plane contraction of platane; Latin plātānus; Greek plātānos, plātus wide-spread).

Planet, plān'·ēt, a wandering-star. A fixed star, one that does not move in an orbit; planet-ary, plān'·ēt.ä.ry, adj.

Infe'rior planets, the two planets (Mercury and Venus) whose orbits are nearer the sun than our own.

Super'ior planets (Mars, Jupiter, Saturn, Urānus, Neptune), whose orbits are further from the sun than our own.

Planetoid, plān'·ēt.toid, one of the asteroids whose orbit lies between those of Mars and Jupiter.

Planetarium, plu. planetaria, plān'·ēt.tair'ri.üm, plu. plān'·ēt.tair'ri.ah, a machine for explaining the relative size, motion, and place of the planets of our system.

Planet-struck, blasted; planet-stricken.

Lat. pānēta; Gk. plānētēs (v. plānao, to wander); Fr. planète.

Planisphere, plān'·ä.sfeer, a map or model exhibiting the various circles of a sphere. (Latin planisphaerium.)

Plank, a beam or flat board, to cover with planks; planked (1 syl.), plank'-ing. (Welsh planc.)

Plano-concave, play'no-kön'kūve. Plano-convex, -kon'vex.

Plano-concave, flat on one side and hollow on the other C

Plano-convex, flat on one side and rounded on the other D

These are ill-formed words; we have for models plani-toquus, plani-pedia, plani-sphaerium, &c. "Plano" would be from the Greek planos, wandering, and not from the Latin planus, flat.

Plant, one of the vegetable kingdom, the stock and fixtures of a trade or railway, to set, to adorn with plants; plant'-ed (Rule xxxvi.); plant'-ing, plant'-er, plant'-able.

Plantation, plän.tay'.shün, a nursery of trees.

O. Eng. plante, plantung, a planting, v. plant[ian], plantode, planted.

Plantain, a genus of wild plants. Plantain-tree. Planting.

"Plantain," French plantain, Latin plantago, gen. plantagin[is], so called "quodd plantæ pedum similis sit" (Plin. xxv. 39).

"Plantain-tree," Span. plantano. "Planting," Old Eng. plantung.

Plash, to dabble with water; plashed, pläsh't; plash'-ing, plash'-y.

German platschern, to dabble, to splash (plä'sch').

Plaster (not plaister), plas'ter (noun and verb), plastered, pläs'terd; plaster-ing. Plaster-er, one who puts plaster on walls. Plaster of Paris, prepared gypsum for busts, cornices, walls, &c. (Old Eng. plaster, Lat. emplastrium.)

Plastic, pläs'tik, capable of modelling, suitable for forming into models; plastic art, the art of modelling; plastic-clay.

Plasticity, pläs'tis'.äty, susceptibility of being moulded.

Plastography, the art of modelling in plaster.

Lat. plastographia, plastice, gen. plastices; Gk. plastikós, plastiké, plastós, v. plasso, to model, to mould, to fashion.

Plät. Plait, pläte (not pleet). Plate, an earthen trencher.

Plat, a small lawn or plot of grass, a garden border, a braid, a rap with a spade or beater, to beat flat, to braid; platt'-ed (R. xxxvi.), platt'-ing (R. i.), platt'-er. (Fr. plat.)

Plait, a braid, a fold like a small tuck in cloth, to braid, to fold in plaits; plait'-ed, plait'-ing. (Welsh pleth.)

Pläte (1 syl.), an earthen trencher. Plait, a braid or fold (v.s.)

Plate, articles made of gold or silver for domestic uses.

Plated goods, articles "washed" or covered with silver.

To plate, to "wash" or cover with silver; plat-ed, pläte'-ed; plät'-ing (R. xix.) Plat-er, pläte'-er. Platter, plät'ter.

Plater, one who plates. Platter, a flat wooden dish.

Plate-ful, plu. platefuls (not platesful), two or three platefuls means a plateful repeated twice or thrice, but two or three plates-full would mean two or three separate plates filled full. Plate-armour, armour in plates not in mail.

Armour-plating, iron slabs for covering a ship.

Plate-glass, glass cast in plates ground and polished.

Plate-layer, one who lays down the rails of a railway.

Plate-mark, the stamps on gold and silver.

Plate-rack, a wooden frame for holding plates, &c.

Plate-warmer, a case to hold plates in front of a fire.

Old Eng. platung, plating; Germ. platte, v. platten, plattirt, plated.

The Fr. plat means a portion for one plate, assiette is a plate.

- Plateau, plu. plateaux, plăt'tō, plu. plăt'tōze, a table-land (Fr.)
- Plăt'form, a raised floor, a basis, as on the platform of civil liberty, a political or religious programme, the place where guns are mounted. (French plate-forme.)
- Platinum, plăt'ā.nŭm (not pla.tēe'.num), a metal.
- Platinise (Rule xxxi.), plăt'ā.nīze, to coat with platinum; plăt'inised (3 syl.), plăt'inis-ing, plăt'inis-er.
- Platinoid, plăt'ān.oid, a metal associated with platinum.
Spanish platina (plata, silver, which platinum resembles).
- Platitute, plăt'.i.tude, a weak remark without point or depth.
French platitute, plat, flat; Greek plătus, wide.
- Platonic, pla.tōn'īk, adj. of Plato, pure, sentimental; platonist, plā'.to.nist; platonism, plā'.to.nīzm; platonise (R. xxxi.), plā'.to.nīze; plā'tonised (3 syl.), plā'tonis-ing.
- Platonic bodies, pla.tōn'īk bōd'īz, the five regular geometrical solids: (1) tetrahedron, (2) hexahedron, (3) octahedron, (4) dodecahedron, and (5) icosahedron.
- Platon'ic love, love between the sexes of a purely spiritual character. Platon'ic year, an equinoctial year = 26,000 ordinary years. (Plato or Platōn, the Greek philosopher.)
- Platoon, pla.toon', two files forming a subdivision of a company of soldiers. (Corruption of the French peloton.)
- Platy-, platys- before vowels, (Gk. prefix), flat, broad (plătus).
- Platy-cephalic, plăt'ā-se.făl'īk, flat-skulled; platyceph'al-ous. (Gk. plātu-[platus]kephālē, broad or flat head.)
- Platy-crinite, pla.tīk'ri.nīte, encrinites or stone-lilies having broad flat receptacle plates; platyc'rinus, adj. platyc'rinous. (Gk. plātu-krinon, the broad flat lily (-ite, a fossil). Greek plātu-[platus]krinon, the broad flat lily (-ite, a fossil).)
- Platy-pus, plăt'ā.pūs, an Australian quadruped with a duck's bill and flat webbed feet, the ornith'orhyn"chus.
Greek plātu [platus]pous, broad flat foot.
- Platy-rhine, plăt'ā.rīne, having a broad flat nose.
The Greek form of this word would be platurrine, after the model πλατύρροος (πλατύς ρέω) not πλατύροος.
"Platyrhine" is an impossible word in Gk. (platus rhis, gen. rhinos).
- Platysma, pla.tīs'mah, a broad muscular expansion at each side of the neck. (Greek platusmos, enlargement.)
- Platys-omus, plăt'ā.sō'mūs, broad-shouldered, applied to a fossil ganoid fish with a deep bream-like body.
Greek plātu-[platus]ómōs, broad shoulder.
- Platy-somes, plăt'ā.sōmz, a family of coleop'terous insects.
Greek plātu-[platus]sóma, broad flat body.

Plaudit, plaw' dīt, applause; plau'ditory. (Latin plaudite.)

At the close of a play in ancient Rome the actors said to the audience plaudite, "now, clap your hands."

Plausible, plaw'.zī.b'l, specious, apparently right; plau'sible-ness, plau'sibly. Plausibility, plaw'.sī.bīl''ī.ty.

Latin plausibilis, v. plaudo, supine plausum, to applaud.

Play, sport, recreation, jest, freedom of action, a drama, a flitting [of colours], to indulge in sport, to perform on a musical instrument, to act, to toy, to twist the meaning of a word, to gamble; played (1 syl.), play'-ing, play'-er, play-ful (R. viii.), playful-ly, playful-ness. Play-bill, play-fellow, play-goer; play-house, a theatre; play-mate, play-thing; play-wright, -rite, a writer or adapter of plays. Playing cards. Play of colours.

Old English plega, v. pleg[an] or pleog[an], past pleged, past part. pleged, plegere, a player, pleghús, a playhouse.

Plea, plee, an excuse, the answer given in court by a defendant.

Plead, pleed, to argue in support of a cause; plead'-ed, plead'-ing, plead'-er. Plead'-ings, the mutual allegations in writing of plaintiff and defendant. Plead'-able.

Fr. plée now plaid, plaidier, plaid-able. Low Lat. placitum, placito.

Please, pleez, to gratify, to amuse. Pleas, pleez, excuses, pleadings.

Please; pleased, pleezd; pleas'-ing (R. xix.), pleasing-ly, pleasing-ness, pleas'-er. Pleased with, gratified with.

Pleasant, plez'zant, (comp.) pleasant-er, (super.) ...-est.

Pleasantry, plu. pleasantries, plēz'zān.trīz, witticism, jest.

Pleasure, plezh'er, gratification; pleas'ure-less, pleas'ure-able, pleasureable-ness, pleas'ureably. Pleasure-boat.

French plaisant, plaisanterie, plaisir; Latin placere, placencia.

Plebeian, ple.bee'an (not plē'.bī.an), one of the common people, vulgar; plebeianism, ple.bee'ān.īzm.

Latin plēbeius, plebs, gen. plēbis, the people (Gk. plēthos).

Plectrum, plēk'.trum, a small piece of ivory or metal with which the ancients struck the lyre. (Lat. plectrum, Gk. plektron.)

Pledge, a deposit, a surety, to warrant, to engage by promise, to drink to the health of one; pledged (1 syl.), pledg'-ing; pledg'-er, one who pledges; pledg'-ce, one pledged.

To hold in pledge, to keep as security. To put in pledge.

French pleige, v. pleiger; German pfledge; Low Latin plegium.

Pleiades, plī'.ū.deez or Pleiads, plī'.ūdz, a cluster of seven stars in the neck of Taurus. (Gk. pleiadēs, Lat. pleiades.)

Pleio-, see Plio-.

Plenary, plee'nū.ry (not plēn.a.ry), complete; plenari-ly (R. xi.), plee'nū.rī.ly. (Italian plenario; Latin plēnus, full.)

Plenipotentiary, plu. plenipotentiaries (Rule xliv.), plě'n'ĩ.po-tě'n''shě.ă.ry, plu. po.tě'n''shě.ă.rĩz, an ambassador vested with full powers to negotiate with a foreign state.

Plenipotence, ple.nĩp'.ō.tense; plenipotent, ple.nĩp'.ō.tent.

French plénipotentiaire; Latin plēnus potentia, full power.

Plenum, plee'nũm, the opposite of vacuum, văk'kũ.ăm.

A vacuum is a space wholly void, without even air.

A plenum is a space wholly filled with matter.

"Plenum," Latin plēnus, full. "Vacuum," Latin vacuus, empty.

Plenitude, plě'n'ĩ.tude, fulness. (Latin plēnitudo.)

Plenty, plě'n'.ty, abundance; plent'i-ful, plent'iful-ly, -ness.

Plenteous, plě'n'.tě.űs (not plě'n'.tchűs), plenteous-ly, -ness.

Beauty, bounty, duty, pity, and plenty add -eous not -ious, R. lvi.

Latin plēntitas, plenty, v. pleo, to fill, plēnus, full.

Pleonasm, plě'.o.năzm, redundancy of words; pleonastic, plě'.o.-năs''.tĩk, redundant; pleonastical-ly, plě'.o.năs''.tĩ.kăł.ly.

Greek plēonasmōs, plēon, full; Latin pleonasmus.

Plesio-, plě'.sĩ.o- (Greek prefix), akin to, nearly (plēsĩōs, near).

Plesio-morphous, plě'.sĩ.o-mōr''.fűs, nearly alike in form

(applied to crystals), plesio-morphism, plě'.sĩ.o-mōr''.fűzm.

Greek plēsto-[plēsios] morphē, akin [in] form.

Plesio-saurus, plu. plesio-sauri, plě'.sĩ.o-saw''.rűs, saw''.ri, plesio-saurian, plě'.sĩ.o-saw''.rĩ.ăn, a fossil saurian with paddles and an enormously long neck.

Greek plēsio-[plēsios] saurōs, akin-to a reptile or lizard.

Plethora, plěth'.ō.rah, redundant fullness of the blood vessels;

plethoric, ple.thōr'rik. (In Gk. the e and o are both long.)

Gk. plēthorē, fulness, v. plēthō, to become full; Fr. pléthorique.

Pleur-, plũ.r-; pleuro-, plũ.ro-, before consonants (Greek prefix), the side or ribs (pleura and pleuron).

Pleura, plũ.rah, the thin membrane which covers the inner surface of the thorax and its viscera.

Pleural, plũ.răł, adj. of pleura. Plural (in Grammar).

Pleurisy. Pneumonia. Pulmonary consumption.

Phthisis. Atrophy. Marasmus or Ta'bes.

Pleurisy, plũ.rĩ.sy or Pleuritis, plũ.rĩ.tĩs, inflammation of the pleura or lining of the thorax, &c.

Pneumonia, nũ.mō'.ni.ah, inflammation of the pulmonary tissue. (Greek pneumōnia, the lungs.)

Pulmonary consumption, pũł'.mō.nũ.ry kŏn.sũmp'.shűn, emaciation the result of tubercles in the lungs.

Pulmo, gen. pulmōnis (Lat.) corresponds with the Gk. pneumŏn, and pul'monary, the Lat. adj., with pneumonic, the Gk. adj.

Phthisis, thĩ'sĩs, consumption or wasting away.

Greek phthĩsis, from phthĩō, to consume or waste away.

- Atrophy, ăt' rŏ.fy, a wasting away, because the digestive organs refuse to assimilate the food.
- Gk. atrophos, a pining or wasting away (a trêphô, not to nourish).
- Marasmus, ma.ras'mus, consumption arising from tubercles in the mesenteric glands. Also called ta'bes.
- Greek marasmos, emaciation, v. marainô, to waste away.
- Latin tabes or tabes mesenterica, v. tabeo, to waste or pine away.
- Pleur-acanthus, plu'.ra.kănth''ŭs, a fossil fin-spine with sharp hooks on each side.
- Greek pleur-[pleura]acanthos, thorns [in] the sides.
- Pleur-enchyma, plu.rĕn'.kĭ.mah (in Bot.), the tissue out of which "wood" is mainly formed.
- Greek pleur-[pleura]egchŭmos, the juicy rib or side.
- Pleuritis, Pleurisy, inflam. of the pleura. (See Pleura.)
- Pleuro-carpus, plu'.ro.kar''pus, a moss with the fructification proceeding laterally from the axils of the leaves.
- Greek pleuro-[pleuron]karpōs, the fruit [from the] sides.
- Pleuro-nectidæ, plu'.ro.nĕk''ĭ.ĭ.dĕ, flat-fish, which swim on their sides. Both their eyes are on one side, as soles.
- Greek pleuro-[pleuron]nĕktēs, swimmers [on their] sides. (-idæ, a patronymic, denotes a family or race.)
- Pleuro-pneumonia, plu'.ro-nu.mŏ''nĭ.ah, inflammation of the pleura and lungs.
- Gk. pleuro-[pleuron]pneumôn, [disease of] the pleura and lungs.
- Plexus, plex'us (in Anat.), a network of nerves or vessels (Lat.)
- Pliable, pli'.a.b'l, flexible; pli'able-ness, pli'ably, pliabil'ity.
- Pliant, pli'.ant; pliant-ly; pliancy, pli'.an.sy.
- French piable (pli, a fold, v. plier), Latin plico, Greek pleko.
- Plicatile, pli'.ka.tile (in Bot.), having the power of folding together as the corollas of certain flowers; plica, pli'.kah, a diseased state of plants in which the shoots are stunted; plicate, pli'.kate, folded like a fan; pli'cat-ed (R. xxxvi.)
- Plication, pli.kay'.shŭn; plicature, pli'.ka.tchŭr.
- Latin plīcātĭlis, plīcātĭo, plīcāre supine plīcātum; Greek pleko.
- Pliers, pli'.ers, small pincers. (French plier, to fold.)
- Pairs have no singular if they consist of two parts joined together: as nippers, tweezers, trousers, drawers; but if the pair consists of two separate articles, each article can be spoken of in the singular number: as a glove, a shoe, &c.
- Plight, plite, pledge, condition, to give a pledge; plight'-ed (R. xxxvi.), plight'-ing, plight'-er. (The g is interpolated.)
- Old English pliht, v. plihht[an], past plihhte, past part. plihhted.
- Plinth (not plint), the projecting base of a column or wall.
- String-course, the projecting band of a house at the level of the first-floor or where the roof joins the walls.
- Greek plinthos, a brick, a plinth (dōmōi plinthou, a layer of bricks).

Plio-, pli.o- (Gk. prefix), more, full. (Gk. pleiōn, more; pleiōs, full.)

Plio-cene, plī'.ō.seen, a term applied to the Upper Tertiary deposits, which are divided into four groups.

1. Eo-cene, ē'.ō.seen (the lowest), the dawn of modern times.

Greek ēōs kainos, the dawn of modern [times]; the fossils of this group contain about thirty per cent. of modern species.

2. Mio-cene, mī'.ō.seen, less [full of] existing species than the group above, [but containing more than No. 1].

Greek meiōn kainos, less full of modern species [than No. 3]. The fossils of this group are eighteen per cent. of existing species.

3. Plio-cene, pli.o.seen, more full of existing species than the group below. It contains half and half.

Greek pleiōn kainos, more recent or existing species [than No. 2].

4. Plisto-cene, plī'.sto.seen, the most full of the four groups of existing species. (About 90 per cent.)

Greek pleistos kainos, the most full of recent or existing species [of all the four groups of the Tertiary deposits].

Plio-pithecus, plu. -ci, plī'.o-pīth''.ē.kūs, -si, an extinct ape.

Greek pleio-[pleiōn]pīthēkos, more [like] an ape [than any preceding fossil]. It is from the miocene group (see above).

Plio-saurus, plu. -sauri, plī'.o.saw''.rūs, plu. -saw'.ri, a marine reptile with shorter neck than the plesio-saur.

Greek pleio-[pleiōn]sauros, more like a reptile or lizard.

Plio-trachæ, plī'.o-trā.kē'.ah (in Bot.), spiral vessels with several fibres united.

Greek pleio-[pleiōs]trācheia, full of respiratory tubes.

Plod, to work laboriously, to trudge; plodd'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), plodd'-ing, plodding-ly, plodd'-er. (Dutch plots, dull.)

Plot, a small extent of ground or grass, the tale of a play or novel, a scheme of mischief, to scheme mischief; plott'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), plott'-ing (Rule i.), plott'-er.

"Plot" [of land], Welsh plâd, a flat piece; Gk. plātus, broad; Lat. lātus.

Plough, plōw (to rhyme with now), a machine for tillage, to till with a plough; ploughed (1 syl.); plough-ing, plōw'-ing; plough'-er, plough-boy; plough-man, plu. -men; plough-share, plough-staff, plough-tail; plough-wright, -rite.

Old Eng. plōh; Germ. pflug, v. pflugen, pfluger, pflug-schar, &c.

Of the 25 words ending in -ough, this is the only one pronounced ōw.

(1) = off: cough. (2) = ōf: (?) sough, trough = sōf, trōf.

(3) = ūf: chough, enough, rough, slough. (4) ūp = hiccough.

(5) = ōw (as in grow): dough, though. (6) = oo: through.

(7) = ōw: plough. (8) = aw: bought, brought, (?) drought, fought, nought, ought, sought, thought, wrought.

(9) = ōk: (?) hough, lough, shough. (10) = ūrrah: borough, thorough.

Trough, hough, sough, and drought, are uncertain: "trough" is trōf, and trōw; "hough" is hōk, hūf, and hōw; "sough" is sōf, sūf, and sōw; "drought" is drawt and drowt.

Plover, plūv'.er, allied to the lapwing and peewit.

Fr. pluvier; Lat. pluvia, rain, "parce que cet oiseau arrive dans nos contrées à la saison des pluies" (Dict. Universel des Sciences, &c.)

Plück, courage, the heart, liver, and lights, of animals, to strip off feathers, to snatch, to cull; plucked (1 syl.), pluck'-ing, pluck'-er.

Old English plucc[ian], past pluccode, past part. pluccod.

Plüg, a bung, to stop with a plug; plugged (1 syl.), plugg'-ing.

Welsh ploc, a plug; Dutch plug, a bung, a peg.

Plüm. Plumb, plum. Plüme (1 syl.) Prüne (1 syl.)

Plum, a fruit, £100,000; plum-cake, plum-pudding, plumdumpling, plum-bun, plum-tree; plum-pudding-stone.

Plümm-y, flavoured like a plum. Plüm'-y, feathery.

Plumb, a "bob" of lead. (Latin plumbus, lead.)

Plume, a decorative bunch of feathers. (French plume.)

Prüne (1 syl.), a dried plum. (French prune, a plum.)

"Plum" (a fruit), Old English plume, plume-treou, a plum-tree.

"Plum" (£100,000), Spanish pluma, "wealth," as well as "feather."

Plumage, plū'mage, the coat of a bird (Old Eng. plüm, Lat. plūma); -age denotes a collective noun, full of, Lat. agère.

Plumb, a leaden bob fastened to a string to ascertain if level or perpendicular work is quite "true"; "true" according to the plumb indicator, to sound or test with a plumb-line.

Plum, a fruit (see above). Plumbed (1 syl.), plumb-ing.

Plumb-er, plüm'.er, a worker in lead; plumber and glazier, glä'.zher, a man who does lead-work and puts glass in window-frames. Plumb-line, plumb-rule.

(In the following words the b is sounded:)

Plumbean, plüm'.bē.än; plumbeous, plüm'.bē.üs, adj.

Plumbery, plüm'.bē.ry, a place where lead is manufactured into waves for a plumber; plumbic acid, plüm'.bik äs'sid, per-oxide of lead; plumbiferous, plüm'.bif'.ěr.üs, producing or containing lead.

Plumbago, plüm.bay'.go, black-lead or graphite; plumbaginous, plüm.bay'.djün.üs, adj.; plumbagine, plüm'.ba-djün, a substance extracted from the roots of lead-wort.

Plummet, for sounding the depth of water. (*See Plumm*et.)

Lat. plumbāgo, lead-ore, plumbēus, plumbōsus, full of lead, plumbum.

Plüme (1 syl.), a bunch of feathers, to dress plumage, to pride [oneself on], as I plume myself on my...; plümed (1 syl.)

Plüm'-ing. Plümm'-ing, finding the direction of a lode.

Plüm'-y, feathery. Plümm-y, flavoured like a plum.

Plume-less. Plume-let, a little plume (-let dim.)

Plumigerous, plū.müdg'.ěr.üs, feathered; plumose, plū'.mōse.

Plumiliform, plū.mīl'.ī form, feather-shaped.

Plumiped, plū'.mī.pēd, having feathered feet.

Plumous, plū'.mus, feathery; plumosity, plū.mōs'.ī.ty.

Latin plūmēus, plūmiger, plūmipes genitive -pēdis, plūmōstas, plūmōsus, full of feathers, v. plūmāre, plūma, a feather.

The original gen. case of the 1st Lat. declen. was -ai: aulai, plumai.

Plummet, plūm'.mēt, a line for sounding the depth of water; plummet-line, same as plumb-line, a line for testing if work is "true" to the perpendicular or level.

Plumming, plūm'.ming, searching with a mine-dial where to sink a shaft, or the direction of a lode. Plūm'-ing.

The substitution of m for b in these words is to be regretted, as it connects the words with plum (the fruit) instead of with plumb (lead).

In Spanish there is the same inconsistency: plumbeo, leaden, plomo, lead, plomada, a plumb, the lead used by fishermen.

Plūmp, full of flesh, well filled out, to make plump, to blurt out, to hit, to fall like a dead mass, to give an undivided vote; plumped, plumpt; plump'-ing; plump'-er, an undivided vote; plump'-ly, plump'-ness.

German plump; Danish plump, v. plumpe.

Our expression "to plump out," i.e., blurt out, is plumpe ud med noget.

Plum-pudding, -pood'.ding not pūd'.ding (pood- as in good).

Plumule, plū'.mūle or plumula, plū'.mū.lah (in Bot.), a germ'ule (2 syl.) or first bud. (Latin plūmūla, plūma, with dim.)

Plūn'der, spoils of war, booty, to pillage; plundered, plūn'.derd; plun'der-ing, plun'der-er; plun'der-age, embezzlement of goods on board a ship (-age, an act of; Latin agēre).

German plunder, plunderer, plundern, plunderung. The word was first used in its present sense by the soldiers of Gustavus Adolphus on their return from their campaigns (1630-40). It meant robbing travellers when ransacking their luggage under pretence of searching for the papers of "Malignants."

Plünge (1 syl.), a sudden immersion, to dive under water, to rush heedlessly into an undertaking; plunged (1 syl.), plūng'-ing (Rule xix.); plūng'-er, one who plunges, a piston or solid brass "forcer" of a pump; plunge-bath; plunge-pole, the piston-rod of a pumping engine; plunging-fire, the fire of artillery directed downwards.

Plungeon, plūn'.djōn, a sea-fowl, the diver.

Welsh plung, a plunge; French plonger, plongeon.

Pluperfect or Preterpluperfect (in Gram.), that tense of a verb which indicates perfect in time and act (sign had).

Plural, plū'.rāl (in Gram.), that number of a noun which implies more than one object, and that part of a verb which is in regimen with a noun plural or its equivalent.

Plurality, plu. pluralities, plu.rāl'.ī.tiz, more than one.

Pluralist, plū'.rāl.ist, holding more than one benefice.

Plural-ise (Rule xxxi.), plū'.rāl.ize; plu'ralised (3 syl.), plu'ralis-ing (Rule xix.), plu'ralis-er; plural-ism, -izm.

Latin plū'rālis, plū'rālitas. Plū'rāltous nūmērus, the plural number.

Pluri-, plū'.ri- (Latin prefix), several (plus, gen. plū'ris).

Pluri-lit'eral, containing more than three letters.

Multi-lat'eral, having more than four sides.

Latin plū'ri-litēra, several letters; multi-latēra, many sides.

Pluri-ocular, -lōk'kū.lar (in Bot.), having many divisions containing seeds, as the orange and lemon.

Latin plū'ri-[plus gen. plū'ris]ocūlus, several little places or cells.

Pluri-partite, -par'.tite (in Bot.), deeply divided into several nearly-distinct portions.

Latin plū'ri-[plus gen. plū'ris]partitus, parted into several portions.

Plus (in Arith.), the sign +, signifying addition: thus 2 + 3 means 2 and 3 are to be added together. (Lat. plus, more.)

Plutonian, plū.tō.nē.an, adj. of Pluto the god of fire and the infernal regions, dark, the result of internal fire or heat.

Plutonist, plū'.tō.nist, one who ascribes the formation of rocks to internal heat and the action of fire.

Neptunist, nēp'.tū.nist, one who ascribes the formation of rocks to the action of water.

Plutonism, plū'.tō.nizm; Neptunism, nēp'.tū.nizm, the geological systems of the plutonists and neptunists.

Plutonic rocks, plū.tōn'ik..., igneous rocks in the interior of the earth. Volcan'ic rocks, igneous rocks consolidated on the earth's surface, products erupted from volcanoes.

Lat. Plūto, gen. Plūtōnis; Gk. Ploutōn, king of the infernal regions.

Plutus, plū'.tus, the god of wealth. Plūto, the god of hell.

"Plutus," Lat. Plūtus; Gk. Ploutos, "Pluto," Lat. Phuto; Gk. Ploutōn.

Pluvial, plū'.vī.āl, rainy; pluvious, plū'.vī.ūs.

Pluvia-meter, plū.vī.ām'.ē.ter, a rain-gauge; pluvia-metrical, plū.vī.ā-mēt'.rī.kāl, pertaining to a rain-gauge; pluvia-met'rical-ly, pluviam'etry (not pluviometry).

These are hybrids: Latin plūvia, rain, Greek metron, a gauge. The Greek compound would be Ombrometer, ombros, rain; we have as models ὀμβρο-δόςκος, receiving rain, ὀμβρο-φύπος, bringing rain.

Ply, to work, to study closely, to run from place to place (said of cabs and merchant vessels); plies (R. xi.), plize; plied, plide; ply'-ing; pli'-er, one who plies; pliers, tweezers, a machine for raising and lowering a drawbridge, also spelt plyers. (The original meaning of ply is "to fold").

Welsh plyg, a fold, v. plygu, plygiedydd, pliers, plygwr, a folder.

Pneumat-, pneumato- before consonants, pneumo- (Greek prefixes), nu'.mat-, nu'.nu.to-, wind, air; nu'.mō-, the lungs. Greek pneuma, genitive pneumatōs, wind, air. Pneumōn, the lungs.

Pneumatics, nu.māt'.īks, the science which treats of the mechanical properties of air; pneumat'ic (adj.); pneumatical, nu.māt'.ī-kāl; pneumatical-ly.

Greek pneuma, wind, air, pneumātikos, pertaining to pneuma, [ta] pneumātika or [hē] pneumatikē [technē], pneumatics.

All sciences with this ending (except arithmetic, logic, magic, music, and rhetoric, borrowed from the French) are plural.

Pneumato-cele (not -celle), nu.māt'.o.seel, a tumour filled with air. (Greek pneumato-, kēlē, a tumour.)

Pneumato-logy, nu.ma.tōl'.ō.djy, the science which treats of the properties of elastic fluids, pneumato-logical, nu'.mā.to-lodj'.ī.kāl; pneumatologist, nu'.ma.tōl'.ō.djist.

Greek pneumato-[pneuma] lōgōs, treatise of air, wind, or spirits.

Pneumato-meter, nu'.ma.tōm''.ē.ter, an instrument for measuring the amount of air inhaled at one breath.

Aneroid, an'.ē.roid, the air barometer. (See Aneroid.)

Barometer, ba.rōm''.ē.ter, an air-pressure gauge.

Greek baros metron, [an instrument to] gauge the weight [of air].

Aerometer, air.rōm''.ē.ter, an instrument for ascertaining the weight of the atmosphere or of a gas.

Greek pneumato-[pneuma] mētrōn, a breath or air gauge.

Pneumatosis, nu'.ma.tō''.sis, a windy swelling.

Greek pneumatōsis, inflation (pneuma, gen. pneumatos, wind).

Pneumo-, nu'.mo-. Pneuma-, pneumato- before consonants.

Pneumo-, the lungs. Pneuma-, pneumato-, wind, air.

Gk. pneumōn, the lungs; pneuma, gen. pneumatos, air, wind, spirit.

Pneumo-gastric, nu'.mo-gās''.trik, pertaining to lungs and stomach; pneumo-gastric nerve, a nerve extending over the viscera of the chest and abdomen.

Greek pneumōn, the lungs, gastēr, the belly.

Pneumonia, nu.mō'.ni.ah, inflammation of the lungs; pneumonitis, nu'.mo.nī''.tīs, (-itis denotes inflammation).

Pneumonic, nu.mōn'.īk. Mnemonic, ne.mon'.īk.

Pneumonic, pertaining to the lungs, pulmōn'ic.

Mnemonic, aiding the memory; mnemon'ics, rules for...

Pneumonitic, nu'.mo.nī't'.īk, adj. of pneumonitis.

Greek pneumōnia, pneumōn, genitive pneumōnōs, the lungs.

Pneumo-thorax, nu'.mo.thō''.rax, the escape of air into the pleura through a laceration of one of the lungs.

Gk. pneumōn thōrax, [air from the] lungs [into the pleura] thorax.

If the first half is meant for pneuma-, air, and the word means "air into that part of the thorax called the pleura," it is a blunder, and the word should be pneumato-thorax, nu'.mā.to-thō''.rax.

Poach, pōtch, to bag game, to cook eggs by breaking them into a frying pan; poached (1 syl.), poach'-ing, poach'-er.

"Poach" (to bag), O. E. pocca, a bag. "Poach" (eggs), Fr. pocher.

Pöck, a pustule on the skin full of morbid matter in an eruptive disease; pock-y, pock'i-ness, pock-mark. (O. E. poc.)

Pocket, pōk'ēt, a small pouch, a net to receive a billiard ball, a bag [of hops], to put into one's pocket; pock'et-ed (R. xxxvi.), pocket-ing; pocketful, plu. pocket-fuls; pocket-book, pocket-glass; pocket-handkerchief, plu. -handkerchieves; pocket-knife, plu. pocket-knives; pocket-money, pocket-picking or pick-pocketing, pick-pocket; pocket-pistol, a small pistol, a pocket brandy-flask. To pocket an affront, not to resent it.

Old Eng. pocca, a bag; Fr. pochette, dim. of poche, v. empocher.

Poco, pō'.kō (in Mus.), a little less. Piu, pē'.oo, a little more.

Poco-animato, -an'.ī.mah''.to, rather animated (Italian).

Poco-largo, rather slow (Italian).

Poco-meno, -mā'.no, somewhat less (Italian).

Poco-piano, -pe.ak'.no, somewhat softly (Italian).

Poco più allegro, -al.la'.gro, a little quicker (Italian).

Poco più lento, a little slower (Italian).

Poco presto, rather quick (Italian).

Poco a poco crescen'do, -krc.shēn'.do, gradually increasing.

Poco a poco diminuen'do, gradually diminishing.

Poco-curante, pō'.kō-koo.rhān''.ta, paying little regard to the main subject and "riding off" on some minor point.

Pōd, the pericarp or seed-vessel of a pea, bean, &c.; to develop a pod; perf. pōdd'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), pōdd'-ing (Rule i.)

Welsh pod, v. podî, to contain.

Podagra, pōd'.a.grah (not po.dah'.grah), the gout; podagric, po.dāg'.rik, gouty, troubled with gout.

Greek pōdāgra (pous, genitive pōdos agra, seizure of the foot).

Podesta, po.des'.tah, a governor of Venice or Gen'oa (Italian).

Pōdge (1 syl.), porridge; hodge-podge, a medley; podg'-y.

Podo-, pōd'.o- (Greek prefix), a support, a foot (pous pōdōs).

Podo-carp, pōd'.o.karp, the stem supporting the fruit.

Greek pōdo-[pous, genitive pōdos] karpōs, fruit on a support.

Pōd'o-cephalous, -sēf'.a.lūs, having a truss of flowers on a long peduncle. (Greek pōdo-, kephālē, a head.)

Podo-gyne, pōd'.o.djīn, a column elevating the ovary.

Greek pōdo-[pous, genitive pōdos] gunē, a support to the ovary.

Podo-phylline, pōd'.o-fīl''.līn, a cathartic principle obtained from the root of May-apples.

Podo-phyllum (not -phylium), pŏd'.o.fil''.lum (not po.dof'.il.lum), the May-apple or wild lemon.

Podophyllous, pŏd'.o.fil''.lŭs, having the locomotive organs compressed into the form of leaves.

Greek pŏdo-[pous, genitive pŏdos]phullon, leaf like a web-foot.

Pod'o-sperm, the umbilical cord of an ovule (2 syl.)

Greek pŏdo-[pous, genitive pŏdos]sperma, the support of the seed.

Pod'o-sphenia, -sfee'.ni.ah (in Geo.), a genus of fossil microscopic plants with wedge-shaped frustules (2 syl.)

Greek pŏdo-[pous, genitive pŏdos]sphēn, supporters of wedges.

Pœcile, pee'.sī.lee, a colonnade at Athens where Zeno taught.

Greek poiکیلē[stoa], the portico decorated [with various pictures].

Poem, pŏ'.ēm, a composition in verse (not applied to dramas).

Poet, fem. poet-ess, a writer of poetry. Poet-laureate, law'.rē.ate, the poet pensioner of the nation. Poetaster, pŏ'.e.tŭs''.ter, a petty poet of no merit.

Poetry, pŏ'.ē.try. Poesy, pŏ'.ē.sy. Posy, plu. posies, pŏ'.zīz.

Poetry, the composition of a poet or of poets.

Poesy, the gift of poetry, the poetic faculty, poetry.

Posy, a motto in a ring, a nosegay.

Poetic, po.ēt'.ic; poetical, po.ēt'.ī.kāl; poet'ical-ly.

Poetics (Rule lxi.), po.ēt'.īks, that branch of science which treats of poetry. Poetise (Rule xxxi.), pŏ'.ē.tīze; po'etised (3 syl.), po'etis-ing (Rule xix.), po'etis-er.

Latin poësis, poëta, poëtica, poëticus; Greek poiēma, poiēsis, poiētēs (poiēō, to make, to invent), a poet is an inventor.

Poh! po, an exclamation of contempt.

Poignant, poyn'.yant, pungent, piquant; poignant-ly.

Poignancy, poyn'.yăn.sy. (Fr. poignant; Lat. pungo, to prick.)

Point (1 syl.), the sharp tip of an instrument, the drift of a remark, wit, a stop, to sharpen to a point, to direct with a finger, to put in stops, point-ed, point-ing, point-er.

Pointed-ly, pointed-ness. Point-less, pointless-ly, -ness.

Pointers, two bright stars of the Great Bear which serve to point out the north star. Pointer, a sportsman's dog.

Point (sea term), to work the end of a rope over with knittles.

Pointsman, point-work; point of sight (in Perspectiva), the point which is supposed to be exactly opposite the eye. Vanishing point, the point which is supposed to bound the sight in any direction.

Points of the compass, the thirty-two indications on the card marked with letters as N., N. by E., N.N.E., &c.

Fr. pointe, v. pointer; Lat. punctum, v. pungo, sup. punctum, to prick.

Poise (1 syl.), a regulating power or weight, to balance, to make two weights balance; poised (1 syl.), pois'-ing (R. xix.)

Welsh pwys, weight, v. pwysu, pwysur, that which poises a weight.

Poison, poi'son, venom, to injure or kill by poison; poi'soned (2 syl.), poison-ing, poison-er. Poison-ous, poi'son.us; poisonous-ly, poisonous-ness. (Fr. poison, v. empoisonner.)

Pōke (1 syl.), a bag, a [bull's] horn, to thrust at one with anything pointed, to feel for something in the dark; pōked (1 syl.), pōk'-ing (Rule xix.); pōk'-er, one who pokes, an iron bar for stirring a fire; poker-pictures, pictures made by singeing wood with a hot poker. To poke fun at, to bamboozle. To poke at, to grub about, to thrust at.

"Poke" (a bag), O. Eng. pocca. "Poke" (to thrust at), Dutch poken.

Polacca, po.lāk'.kah, a three-masted vessel used in the Mediterranean. (A blunder for Polacra or polacre.) v. Polka.

Ital. polacra; Span. polacre; Fr. polacre. (The word is Italian.)

Polar, pō'.lar, pertaining to the poles; polar bear (white); polar-circle, a circle drawn round each pole parallel to the equator, that round the north pole is called the arctic circle and bounds the north frigid zone, that round the south pole is called the antarctic circle and bounds the south frigid zone; polar distance, polar clock.

Polari-scope, pō.lār'.ri.skōpe, an instrument for detecting and exhibiting polarised light.

(The vowel before -scope is generally o, but peri-scope, phanta-scope, polar-i-scope, poly-scope, and tele-scope are exceptions.)

Polarise (Rule xxxi.), pō'.lar.ize, to limit the reflexion or transmission of light to one or two planes; polarised (3 syl.); polaris-ing (R. xix.), pō'.lar.ize.ing; po'laris-er.

Polarisation, pō'.lar.izay".shūn; pōlaris'-able.

Polarity, po.lār'.rī.ty, the property which certain bodies possess of tending towards the poles; polary, pō'.la.ry.

Lat. pōlāris (pōlus, the pole). Fr. polarité, polarisation, polariser.

Pōle (1 syl.) Pool. Poll, pōle. Poll, pōl [a degree tripos].

Pole, a staff, the fourth of a "chain," an extremity of the earth's axis, a native of Poland; pole star, pole-axe.

Pool, standing water. (Old English pōl, a lake.)

Poll, pōle, a list of voters. (Dutch bol, polle.)

Pōll, the non-honour tripos. (Greek [hoi] polloi.)

"Pole" (a staff), Old Eng. pol; Lat. pōlus, a pole or axle-tree.

Pole-cat, a sort of weasel very destructive to poultry.

Compounded of the French poule chat, the poultry cat.

Polemarch, pōl'.ē.mark, a military commander of ancient Greece, subsequently a magistrate who had the charge of strangers and foreigners (pōlēmos archōs, war-chief).

Polemic, po.lēm'ik; polemical, po.lēm'ī.kāl, controversial, disputative; polem'ical-ly. Polem'ics, the art and practice of disputation; polemical theology.

Greek pōlēmticos, pōlēmos, war. (-ics, Rule lxi.)

Polemo-scope, an instrument for seeing without being seen, so named by its inventor from the notion that it would be useful in time of war, a perspective glass for viewing objects not directly before the eye.

Greek pōlēmos shōpeo, I view the battle [being myself unseen].

Polenta, po.lēn'.tah, maize or chestnut meal.

Latin polenta, barley flour dried and then fried (pollen, fine flour).

Polianthes, pōl'.ānth''.ēēz. Polyanthus, pōl'.ānth''.ūs.

Polianthes, a genus of flowers containing the tuberose (being natives of India they are hothouse plants).

Polyanthus, a variety of the primrose so called because it bears many flowers on one stalk.

"Polianthes," Gk. pōlis anthos, a city flower (cultivated in towns).

"Polyanthus," Gk. pōlus anthos, [bearing] many flowers, free-blooming.

Police, po.leese', a body of men appointed to preserve order; police-man, one of the police; police-officer, police-station.

The pronunciation of the word shows it to be French.

French police, Greek politiēs or politeia, administration of a city.

Policy, plu. policies, pōl'.ī.siz, prudence, a schedule stating the terms of a contract to pay a certain sum of money on the conditions set forth, scheme of governing; policy-holder, one to whom the policy is granted.

French police [d'assurance], Greek pōliticia, civil polity, conditions.

Polish, pō'.lish, pertaining to Poland. Polish, pōl'.ish (q.v.)

Polish, pōl'.ish, artificial gloss, elegance, to make glossy, to make polite in manners; pōlished (2 syl.), pōlish-ing, pōlish-er; polishing-iron, -ī'on; polishing-paste.

Latin politio or politus, v. pōlio, to polish; Greek phalos, splendid.

Polite, po.lite', polished in manners; polite'-ly, polite'-ness, polite literature. (Latin politus, polished, refined.)

Politese, pōl'.i.tess'' (French), Brummagem politeness.

Politics, pōl'.ī.tīks, the art and science of civil government.

Pol'itic, of good policy. Polit'ical, pertaining to politics; polit'ical-ly; politician, pōl'.i.tīsh''.an.

Polity, pōl'.i.ty, civil constitution. Pol'icy, prudence, scheme of government; political econ'omy, the science of using to the best advantage the resources of a nation.

Lat. politica, politiceus; Gk. politikos (politēs, a citizen, pōlis, a city).

Of sciences, only five end in -ic, ten times that number end in -ics.
The five (arithmetic, logic, magic, music, rhetorique) are from the Fr.

- Polka, pōlē'.kah, a Polish dance; pōlk, to dance the polka; pōlk'-ing, polked (1 syl.) (Contraction of polacca [dance].)
- Poll, pōle. Poll, pōl. Pōle (1 syl.) Fool.
Poll, pōle, a head, a register of voters, a declaration by votes, a place where votes are taken, to vote, to register a vote, to lop the top of trees; pōlled (1 syl.); poll-ing, pōle'-ing; poll-book, pōle... (not pōl); poll-clerk, -tax.
 A *poll*ed cow, pōled..., a cow without horns; pōlled cattle.
- Poll, pōl, the degree list at Cambridge without honours.
 A contraction of the Greek [hoi] polloi, the many; the honour tripos consists of Wranglers, Senior optimēs, and Junior optimēs.
Pōle (1 syl.), a staff, &c. (Old Eng. pol; Lat. pōlus.)
Pool, a lake, a sheet of standing water. (Old Eng. pōl.)
 "Poll" (a head), same as bowl, so "skull" is also a drinking vessel.
- Pollard, pōl'.lard, a tree which has had the head lopped off; pollard-ed, pōl'-lar.ded. (See above Poll, a head.)
- Pollen, pōl'.lēn, the fecundating dust of flowers, fine bran; pollenarious, pōl'.le.nair''rī.ūs, consisting of fine meal.
Pollenine, pōl'.lē.nīne, from the pollen of certain plants.
 (The following have i instead of e.)
- Pollinar, pōl'.lī.nar, covered with pollen; pollinose, pōl'.lī.noze, full of pollen; pollinic, pōl'.lī.nīk, adj. of pollen; polliniferous, pōl'.lī.nīf''ē.rūs, containing pollen; pollinia, pōl'.līn'.ī.ah, agglutinated pollen.
 Lat. pollen, gen. pollinis; Gk. palē, fine meal (pallo, to bolt flour).
- Pollack, pōl'.lāk, one of the cod family. Polack, pō'.lak, a Pole.
 "Pollack," German pollak. "Polack," German polak.
 ("He smote the sledded Polack on the ice." Hamlet i. 1.)
- Pollute, pōl'.lūte', to make foul; pollūt'-ing (R. xix.), pollūt'ing-ly, pollūt'-ed (R. xxxvi.), pollūt'ed-ly, pollūt'ed-ness.
- Pollution, pōl'.lū.shūn; pollūt'-er.
 Lat. pollutio, pollūtus, v. polluo supine pollūtum; Gk. phōlunō.
- Pollux, pōl'.lux, a bright star in Gem'ini. Castor and Pollux, a constellation, two allied felspar minerals.
 Latin Castor and Pollux, twin brothers, sons of Jupiter and Leda.
- Polonaise, pōl'.o.nazé'', a dress, a piece of music with three crotchets in a bar, the polacca. (Fr. polonaise, Polish.)
- Poltroon, pol.troon', a coward, a dastard; poltroon'-ery.
 French poltron, poltronnerie; Spanish poltron, poltroneria.
Poltron, a bird of prey with the talons of the hind-toes cut off to prevent its flying at game (Lat. pollux truncato, deprived of its talons).
 Not "one who cuts off a finger" to disqualify himself for war.
- Poly-, pōl'le- (Gk. prefix), many, having many, much (pōlus).
- Pōly-acoustic, -a.kōw'.stīk (not -a.koo'.stīk), an instrument for multiplying sound, sound multiplying.
 Greek pōlu-[polus]akoustikēs (akouō, to hear).

Pöly-adelph, -a.dělf', a plant with stamens united by filaments in more than two bundles; poly-adelphian, -a.dělf'.fi.an; poly-adelphous, -a.dělf'.fűs; poly-adel'phia.

Greek pölu-[polus]adolphos, a brother. Linnæus termed stamens the andria or male organs of plants, and stamens in bundles he termed adelphía, a brotherhood. The pistils he termed gynia, the female organs, from Greek guné, woman.

Pöly-an'der, an hermaphrodite plant with more than twenty stamens; poly-andrian, -ăn'.drĭ.ăn; poly-androus, -ăn'.drűs. (Greek polus aner, gen. andros, many a man.)

Linnæus termed the "stamens" the male organs of plants (v.s.)

Pöly-anthus, plu. -anthuses, -anth'.űs, plu. -anth'.űs.ez, a variety of the primrose. (Gk. polu-anthos, many-flowered.)

Pöly-archy, -ar'.ky, government by the many. Monarchy, mön'.ar.ky, government vested in a single ruler.

Greek pölu-[polus]arché, sovereignty of the many.

Greek mön-[monos]arché, sovereignty [vested in] one only.

Pöly-car'pon, the four-leaved all-seed; poly-carpous, -kar'.pus; poly-carpic, -kar'.pĭk. (Gk. polus, karpos, seed.)

Pöly-cephalous, -sěf'.a.űs, capped by many like parts.

Greek pölu-[polus]kephalé, many a head.

Pöly-chord, -kord, a bow-instrument with ten strings.

Greek pölu-[polus]chordé, many a string.

Pöly-chroite, pö.lik'.ro.ite, the colouring matter of saffron which exhibits divers hues when acted on by re-agents.

Greek pölu-[polus]chroizó, I give many a colour.

Pöly-chrome, -kröme, a substance obtained from quassia-wood and the horse chestnut, which gives to water the quality of exhibiting great play of colour; pöly-chromatic, -krö.măt'.ĭk, iridescent; poly-chromy, pö.lik'.rö.my, the art of colouring statuary, architectural colouring.

Greek pölu-[polus]chroma, many a colour.

Pöly-cotyledon, -küt'.i.lee''.dön, having more than two seed-lobes; pöly-cotyledonous, -küt'.i.lee''.do.nűs.

Mono-cotylé'don, having only one seed-lobe.

Di-cotylé'don, having two seed-lobes.

Gk. mono- (only one), di- (two), polu- (many), kotulédón, a socket.

Pöly-cracy, pö.lik'.rű.sy, mobocracy, the rule of the mob.

Greek pölu-[polus]kratésis (v. krató), government of the mob.

Pöly-dipsia, pöl'.i.dĭp''.sĭ.ah, exceeding thirst (a disease).

Greek pölu-[polus]dipsa, much thirst.

Pöly-embryony, -em'.brĭ.ď.ny, more than one embryo in the same seed; poly-embryonic, -em'.brĭ.ďn''.ĭk.

Greek pölu-[polus]embrűn, many an embryo.

Pöly-gala, pö.lĭg'.ă.lah, the milk-plant.

Gk. pölu, gála milk, being supposed to increase the milk of cattle.

Poly-gamy, pō.lig'.ā.my, having more than one living wife; polygamous, pō.lig'.ā.mūs (adj.); polygamist, -lig'.ā.mist.

Greek pōlu-[polus]gamōs, more-than-one marriage.

Polyg-archy, pōl'.ī.gar.ky, government of the many. (A blunder for polyarchy or poliarchy.)

"Polyarchy," Greek pōlu-[polus]archē, mob government.

"Poli-archy," Greek pōli-[polis]archē, [chief] city magistrate.

Pōly-gastria, -gās'.trī.ah, one of the two divisions of the infusoria. They are devoid of spinal marrow and of both vascular and respiratory organs, but have many stomachs. Ehrenberg erroneously called them polygas'trica; poly-gastric, -gās'.trīk, one of the polygastria, (adj.)

Greek pōlu-[polus]gastēr, many stomachs.

Poly-genous, pō.lidg'.ē.nūs, consisting of many kinds.

Greek pōlu-[polus]gēnos, many kinds.

Pōly-glōt, a book containing several versions of the same text. The bible in several languages.

Greek pōlu-[polus]glōtta, many a tongue.

Pōly-gōn, a figure with more than four angles and sides; polygonal, pō.lig'.ō.nāl; polygonous, pō.lig'.ō.nūs.

Pōly-gonom'etry, the measurement of polygons.

Greek pōlu-[polus]gōnia, many an angle; metrōn, a measure.

Poly-gonum, pō.lig'.ō.nūm, buck-wheat.

Greek pōlu-gōnu, many knees (because it has many knots).

Pōly-grām, a figure consisting of many lines.

Greek pōlu-[polus]grammē, many a line.

Pōly-graph, -grāf, an instrument for multiplying the transcripts of a written document or letter; poly-graphic, -grāf'.īk; poly-graphical, -grāf'.ī.kāl.

Poly-graphy, pō.lig'.rā.fy, the art of writing in various ciphers, the art of reading ciphers.

Greek pōlu-[polus]graphō, I write many [letters or ciphers].

Poly-gyn, pōl'.ī.djĕn, a plant with several pistils or distinct styles; poly-gynian, -djĕn'.ī.ăn; poly-gynous, pō.lidg'.-ī.nūs; poly-gynia, pōl'.ī.djĕn'.ī.ah.

Greek pōlus gunia, many female organs.

Linnaeus called "pistils" female organs, and "stamens" male organs.

Poly-halite (not -hallite), pōl'.ī.hā.lite, a mineral so called from the number of salts which enter into its composition.

Greek pōlus hals, genitive halōs (not -hallos), many salts.

In Greek this h could not be introduced. We have for models πολυαρμόνια (not πολυάρμυνια), from πολὺς ἀρμονία; πολὺππος not πολύππος, &c.

Poly-hedron, pōl'.ī.hēd'.rōn, a solid figure with many sides, a multiplying glass with several plane surfaces disposed in a convex form; poly-hēd'ral; pōly-hedrous -hēd' rūš (Greek polus hēdron, many a side).

The spelling of this word is not possible in Greek (see above).

Pōly-hymnia, -hīm'.nī.ah (better Polym'nia), muse of lyric poetry. (In Greek πολύμνια, polus hūmnos.)

It would not be possible to introduce the h in Greek.

Poly-morph, pōl'.i.morf, a tribe of shells of divers shapes; poly-morphic, -mor'-fik; poly-morphous, -mor'fūs.

Greek pōlu-[polus]morphē, of divers shapes.

Pōly-nesia, -nee'.zī.ah, a group of islands in the Pacific; poly-nesian, -nee'.zī.ān (adj.), pertaining to Polynesia.

Greek pōlu-[polus]nēsōs, many islands.

Pōly-nomial, -nō'.mī.āl, an algebraic expression consisting of many terms: as $a + b + c + d +$, &c.

Pōly-onomous, -ōn'.ō.mūs, having many names or titles; poly-on'omy, a variety of names.

Greek pōlu-[polus]ōnōma, many names. The cognate words anonym, eponym, pseudonym, synonym should have been models.

Pōly-optron, -ōp'.trōn, a glass through which objects appear multiplied but diminished in size. (See Polyscope.)

Greek pōlu-[polus]optomai, I see many objects.

Poly-orama, pōl'.i.ō.rak''.mah, a view of many objects.

Greek pōlu-[polus]horāma, a view of many objects.

According to our usual method this word should be polyhorama:

Polyparia, pōl'.i.-pair'ri.ah, a coral, so called because it is the production of polypes (2 syl.)

Latin pōlīpus pārēre, a polyp produces it.

Polyp, pōl'.īp or polype (French), pōl'.īp, plu. polyps or polypes, pōl'.īps, an animal with many feet, generally applied to those radiate water-animals which have many tentacles or foot-like organs round the mouth.

Greek pōlu-[polus]pous, many a foot; French polype.

Pōly-petalous, -pēt'.ā.lūs, having many petals.

Greek pōlu-[polus]pētālōn, having many flower-leaves.

Pōly-phagous, pō.līf'.ā.gūs, omnivorous. (Gk. phago, I eat.)

Pōly-pharmacy, -far'.mā.sy, medicines of many ingredients.

Greek pōlu-[polus]pharmākōn, many medicines [mixed].

Poly-phony, pō.līf'.ō.ny, multiplicity of sounds as in echoes, polyphonic, pō.līf'.ō.nūs; polyphonic, pōl'.i.fōn''āk; polyphonist, pō.līf'.ō.nīst, a ventriloquist.

Greek pōlu-[polus]phōnē, many a sound.

Poly-phore, pōl'.ī.for (in Bot.), a receptacle with many ovaries. (Greek polus phērō, I bear many [ovaries].)

Poly-phyllous, pō.līf'.īl.lūs, many-leaved.

Greek pōlu-[polus]phullōn, many a leaf.

Poly-pode, pŏl'.i.pŏd, the milleped or wood-louse.

Greek pŏlu-[polus]pous, genitive pŏdos, many a foot.

Poly-podium, pŏl'.i.pŏ''.dĭ.ŭm, a genus of ferns.

Greek polus pous, genitive pŏdos, many feet. So called because its root creeps by numerous fibres or feet.

Poly-porous, pŏ.lĭp'.ŏ.rĭs, full of pores; polyp'orus, a fungus which produces the dry-rot.

Polyporite, po.lĭp'.ŏ.rite, a fossil fungus (coal measures).

Greek pŏlu-[polus]pŏrŏs, many passages or pores. (-ite, a fossil.)

Pŏly-prismatic, -priz.mĭt'.ĭk, having crystals presenting numerous prisms in a single form.

Greek pŏlu-[polus] and prismatic. "Prism," Greek prisma, v. prid, to saw asunder. A prism is cut in every direction.

Poly-ptychodon, pŏl'.ĭp.tĭk''.ŏ.dŏn, a fossil sea-lizard.

Gk. pŏlu-ptuche odous gen. odontos, having teeth with many folds.

Poly-pus, plu. polipi. Polype, plu. polypes.

Polypus, pŏl'.i.pŭs, a fleshy tumour formed in the nose.

Polype, pŏl'.ĭp, a worm-like animal with many tentacles.

Polypous, pŏl'.i.pŭs, resembling a polypus, having many feet or roots. (Greek polu-pous, many footed.)

The distinction between polype and polypus is not rigidly observed. The animal is called both, but the tumour only polypus.

Pŏly-rhizous, -rĭ'.zŭs, possessing many rootlets.

Greek pŏlu-[polus]rhĭza, many a root. In Greek the aspirate would be expressed by doubling the r, as in πολυρραφής, πολύρρην, πολύρροδος, πολύρροθος, &c.

Poly-scope, pŏl'.i.skŏpe, a glass through which objects appear multiplied. (See Polyoptron.)

Greek pŏlu-[polus]scŏpŏs, I view many things [for one].

Pŏly-sepalous, -sĕp'.a.lŭs, [a calyx] having separate sepals.

Greek pŏlu- with "sepal," the leaf-like division of the calyx.

Pŏly-sperm, [a pericarp], a plant containing many seeds; poly-spermous, pŏl'.i.sper''.mŭs, many-seeded.

Greek pŏlu-[polus]sperma, [having] many seeds.

Pŏly-stigma, -stĭg'.mah, a brown fungus found on sloe and birdcherry leaves; poly-stigmous, -stĭg'.mus, [flowers] with many carpels each originating a stigma.

Greek pŏlu-[polus]stigma, many a stigma.

Poly-style, pŏl'.i.stĭle, having many columns; pŏly-stylous, -stĭ.lŭs, [an ovary] with several styles.

Greek pŏlu-[polus]stŭlŏs, a column, pillar, or style.

Pŏly-syllable, -sĭl'.lŭ.b'l, a word of more than three syllables; poly-syllabic, -sĭl'.lŭb'.ĭk (not -sĭl'.la.bĭk).

Greek pŏlu-[polus]sullabŏ, many a syllable.

Pöly-syndeton, -sîn'.dē.tōn, the repetition of a conjunction : as We have ships, and men, and money, and stores.

Greek pōlusundētōs (pōlus sundētōs, many connecting words).

Pöly-synthetic, -sîn.thēt'.īk, grammatical agreement but verbal differences; poly-synthetical, -sîn'thēt'.ī.kāl; poly-synthesis, -sîn'.thē.sīs; poly-synthecism, -sīzm.

Greek polu-[polus]synthēsis, agreement of many [languages].

Pöly-technic, -tēk'.nīk, a scientific institution for the exhibition of all sorts of inventions and contrivances.

Greek pōlu-[polus]technē, [exhibition of] numerous arts.

Pöly-thalamia, -thǎ.lūm'.ī.ah, a numerous order of minute shell-animals each shell consisting of a series of chambers.

Poly-thalamous, -thǎl'.a.mūs, multilocular.

Greek pōlu-[polus]thalamus, many chambered [shell-fish].

Pöly-theism, -thē'.īzm, the doctrine of the plurality of gods; poly-theist, -thē'.ist; poly-theistic, -thē'.īs'.īk; poly-theistical, -thē'.īs'.ī.kāl; poly-theist'ical-ly.

Greek pōlu-[polus]theos, many gods.

Poly-tomous, pō.līt'.o.mūs (in Bot.), [a leaf] subdivided but not jointed to the petiole (3 syl.) or foot-stalk.

Greek pōlu-[polus]lōmé, much cutting-down or sub-division.

Poly-zoa, pōl'.i.zō'.ah, a numerous class of molluscs and plant-like animals chiefly inhabitants of the sea; pöly-zoon, -zō'.ōn, one of the polyzoa.

Greek pōlu-[polus]zōōn, the many living-animals.

Pöly-zonal, -zō'.nāl, [a lens] with many zones or rings.

Greek pōlu-[polus]zōnē, many belts or rings.

Pom-, pomi- (Latin prefix), pome- (French prefix), apple.

Pomade, po.māhā', perfumed ointment for the hair.

French pommade (pomme); Latin pōmum. (See pomatum.)

Pomander, po.mǎn'.der, a scent-ball, a pouncet-box.

French pomme d'ambre, apple of amber; Latin pōmum.

Pomace, po.mācē', apples crushed, the refuse of cider-pressings; pomaceous, po.may'.shūs (Rule lxvi.)

Pomatum, po.may'.tum, an ointment once made of crushed apples, rose-water, and lard; pomatumed, po.may'.tūmd, dressed with pomatum. (Latin pōmum.)

Pome-citron, pōm.sīt'.rōn, a citron apple.

French pomme citron; Latin pōmum citrinus.

Pome-granate, pōm.grān'.ate, a fruit, a tree.

Ital. pomo granato; Lat. pōmum granātum, a fruit full of seeds.

Pome-roy, pōm.roy' or pome-royal, an apple.

French pomme de roy, the royal apple or king pippin.

Pomi-ferous, po.mīf'.ē.rūs, apple-bearing.

Latin pōmi-[pomum gen. pomi]ferens, bearing apples.

- Pommel, pŭm' mĕl, the knob of a sword-hilt, the protuberant part of a saddle. Pummel, to beat.
- French pommeau, pommelle (pomme, an apple); Latin pŏmum.
 "Pummel" (to thump), Welsh pumplaw, pumpio.
- Pomo-logy, pŏ.mŏl'.o.djy, a treatise on the art of rearing fruit; pomological, pŏ'.mo.lŏdg''.i.kăl; pomologist, pŏ'.mŏl'.o.djist, one skilled in pomology.
- This hybrid is indefensible. It is meant to be Latin pŏmum and Greek lŏgŏs, a discourse on fruits. The Greek karpŏs is quite well known, and karpology or carpology would be a good compound.
- Pomp, ostentation; pompous, pŏm'.pŭs, grandiose; pompous-ly.
Pomposity, pŏm.pŏs'.i.ty, self-display, vain ostentation.
 Latin pompŏsitas, pompŏsus; Italian pompa, pomposo, pomposita.
- Pompion, pŏm'.pi.on, a pumpkin. (Dutch pompeon.)
- Pomposo (Ital.), pŏm.pŏ'.sŏ, a pompous person, (in Mus.), stately.
- Poncho (Spanish), pŏn'.tcho (not pŏn'.ko), an overcoat for men.
 It is simply a large blanket with a hole in the middle for the head, used chiefly by Spanish Americans.
- Pond, a small piece of still water. (Old Eng. pynd[an], to pound.)
 The idea is "water pounded" or "water in a pound."
- Ponder, pŏn'.der, to consider; pondered, pŏn'.derd; pon'der-ing, ponder-er, pon'der-able, pon'derable-ness, pon'deral.
- Ponderability, pŏn'.de.ra.bĭl''.i.ty. Ponderous, pŏn'.dĕ.rŭs; ponderous-ness, pon'derous-ly; ponderosity, -de.rŏs''.i.ty.
 Lat. pŏndĕrŏsitas, pŏndĕrŏsus, pŏndĕrĕre, to weigh (pondus, a weight).
- Poniard, poin'.yard, a dagger, to stab; pon'iard-ed (R. xxxvi.), pon'iard-ing. (We preserve the French pronunciation, but not the French spelling, poignard, a dagger.)
- Pontage, pŏn'.tage, toll for passing a bridge or for keeping it in repair. (Lat. pons, gen. pontis, a bridge, with -age; a toll.)
- Pontic, pŏn'.tik, pertaining to the Pontus or Black Sea.
 Latin ponticus, adj. of Pontus; Greek pontos, the deep, pontikŏs.
- Pontifex, pŏn'.ti.fex, a high priest; pontiff, pŏn'.tif, the pope; pontifical, pŏn.tif'.i.kăl; pontifical-ly; pontific, -tif'.ik; pontificate, pŏn.tif'.i.kate, the office or dignity of a pontiff.
- Varro says: "A ponto faciendo, nam ab iis Sublicius est factus primum et restitutus saepe, cum ideo sacra et uls et cis Tiberim fiant" (de Lingua Lat. iv. 15. See also Diony. ii. 73, iii. 45).
- Pontine, pŏn'.tine, as "pontine marshes" sea-fens near Rome.
 Latin Pomptinæ paludes, so named from Pontia or Pompertia, a city of the Volscians, whence Pomptinus ager.
- Pontoon, pŏn.toon', a flat-bottomed boat or temporary bridge;
pontonier, pŏn'.tŏn.eer, a soldier in charge of a pontoon;
pontoon-bridge; pontoon-carriage, -cŭr'rage.
 French ponton, pontonmier (Latin pons, genitive pontis, a bridge).

Pony, plu. ponies, pō'niz, a small variety of horse, £25, in Vingt-et-un the person on the right-hand of the dealer.

"Pony" (in cards), Latin pone, [the person] behind [the dealer].

French poney is from the English word, Welsh pon, a pack or burden, with dim., "a little [beast] of burden," a little pack [horse].

Poodle, poō'dl, a shaggy water-spaniel, a small dog with long curling hair. (Dutch poedel-hond, a rough water-dog.)

Pooh! poō; pooh, pooh! an exclamation of disapproval.

Pool. Poule. Pōle. Poll, pōle. Poll, pōl. Pull. Pule.

Pool, a lake. (Old English pōl.)

Poule, pool, the collective stakes in certain games (also spelt pool), one of the figures in a quadrille.

"Poule" (in billiards, &c.), "vient, sans doute, de ce que dans l'origine l'enjeu était une poule" (Bouillet).

"La Poule" (in quadrilles), so called from the music produced by Julien, in 1802, the second part of which began with the imitation of a cackling hen or cock-crow.

Pōle, a staff, the extremity of the earth's axis. (O. E. pol.)

Poll, pole, a head (same as bowl, so "skull" is also a bowl).

Poll, pōl, the ordinary degree list in Cambridge University.

Greek [hoi] polloí, the many (not the honoured "few").

Pull (to rhyme with bull, full), to tug. (O. E. pull[ian].)

Pūle (1 syl.), to whimper, to whine. (French piauler.)

Poop. Pōpe (1 syl.) Pōp, a sudden report. (See Pope.)

Poop, a deck raised over the after-part of the spar-deck; pooped (1 syl.), drenched by a sea breaking over the stern.

French poupe, the stern of a ship; Latin puppis, a ship, the stern.

Poor, poō'r. Pōre (1 syl.) Paw.

Poor, poō'r (not pōr), the needy, mean, not fertile, lean, wretched; poor'-ly, poor'-ness. The poor, the needy collectively considered. A poor-house, an alms-house.

Poor-laws, poor-rates; poor-spirited, cowardly.

Poverty, pōv'er.ty, impecuniosity.

Pauper, paw'per, one who subsists on charity.

Pauperise (R. xxxi.), paw'pě.rize, to reduce to poverty;

pauperised (3 syl.), pauperis-ing (R. xix.) Pauper-ism.

Pōre (1 syl.), an opening in the skin, to look steadily.

Paw, a soft foot with claws. (Welsh pawen.)

"Poor," French pauvre, pauvreté, pauvret, paupérism; Latin pauper, paupertas, paupērics, paupérare (Greek pathros).

"Pore," French pore; Latin pōrus; Greek pōros, a passage.

Pōp, an explosive report, to make a pop, to come suddenly [on one], suddenly; popped, pōpt; pōpp'-ing, pop-gun.

To pop off, to disappear suddenly.

To go off with a pop, to make an explosive noise.

To pop the question, to ask a woman to become one's wife,

- Pope (1 syl.) Poop, the stern of a ship (q.v.) Pöp (see above).
Pope, the bishop of Rome; pope-dom, -dum, the office or dignity of pope. Popery, pō'.pě.ry, the Roman Catholic religion. Popish, pō'.pish (Rule xix.); popish-ly.
Pope-joan, -djōne, a game at cards.
The pope's eye, a fatty gland in a leg of mutton.
 Fr. pope (of the Gk. church), pape (of the Lat. church); O. E. papa.
 Latin pēpa, one who offers sacrifice; pāpa, the pope; Gk. pappus.
Popinjay, pōp'.ĭn.djay, a fop, a cockcomb, a parrot.
 Span. papagayo, a parrot; Fr. papegai; African babaga, a cockatoo.
Poplar, pōp'.lar, a tree. Popular, pōp.pŭ.lar, in public favour.
 "Poplar," Lat. pōpŭlus. "Popular," Lat. pōpŭlus, the people.
Poplin, pōp'.lĭn, a cloth made of silk and worsted. (Fr. papeline.)
 First manufactured at Avignon, "séjour des papes" (Bouillet).
Poppet, pōp'.pēt, a term of endearment to young children.
 Puppet, Fr. poupée, a doll; Latin pŭpus, a little boy, a puppet.
Poppy, plu. poppies, pōp'.pĭz, a plant; poppy-head, -oil.
 Old English pupig or popig; popig-drenc, poppy drink.
Popular, pōp'.pŭ.lar, in public favour. Pöp'lar, a tree.
Populace, pōp'.pŭ.lāce, the people. Populous, pōp'.pŭ.lŭs, thickly peopled; populous-ness, populous-ly, pop'ular-ly; popularise (Rule xxxi.), pōp'.pŭ.lā.rĭze, to render pleasing or suitable to the general public; pop'ularised (4 syl.), pop'ularis-ing (Rule xix.), pop'ularis-er.
Popularity, pōp'.pŭ.lār''rĭ.ty, public favour.
Populate, pōp'.pŭ.late, to colonise; pop'ulāt-ed (R. xxxvi.), pop'ulāt-ing (R. xix.) Depopulate, &c.
Population, pōp'.pŭ.lay''shŭn, the whole inhabitants.
Pop'ulātor, one who populates. Depop'ulātor.
 "Populous," Latin pōpŭlāris, pōpŭlāres, pōpŭlārĭtas, pōpŭlātio, pōpŭlātōr, pōpŭlōsus, pōpŭtus, the people, v. pōpŭlāre.
 "Poplar," Latin pōpŭtus (Greek paipallo, to quiver, to shake).
Porcelain, pōr'.slĕn, china-ware, pertaining to china-ware; porcellaneous (R. lxvi.), pōr'.sĕl.lay''nĕ.ŭs, like porcelain; porcellanite, pōr'.sĕl.la.nĭte, a silicious mineral.
 Fr. porcelaine. Marryatt says from porcellana a cowrie-shell, and Roquefort gives the same etymon "coquille de Venus, dite en Latin porcellana." Porcellina or -ana was a surname of Venus.
Porch, a portico, a covered vestibule outside a house.
 Fr. porche; Lat. portĭcus (porta, a gate, Gk. pōrōs, a passage).
Porcine, pōr'.sĭne, pertaining to pigs. (Latin porcinus, porcus.)
Porcupine, pōr'.ku.pĭne, a small animal armed with quills.
 Italian porco-spinoso; Spanish puerco espin; French porc-épic.
Pöre (1 syl.) Poor, poo'r. Paw.
Pöre (1 syl.), a passage in the skin for perspiration.

- Poor, poo'r, needy, impecunious. (Fr. pauvre, Lat. pauper.)
- Paw, a soft foot with claws. (Welsh pawen.)
- To pore-over, to study intently, to examine diligently;
pored-over, pōrd...; pōr'-ing-over (Rule xix.)
- Porous, pōrē'us, full of pores; porous-ly, porous-ness.
- Porosity, pō.rōs'ī.ty, state of being porous.
- Porifera, pō.rīf'ē.rah, sponges and other similar animals porif'eran, one of the porifera.
- Poriform, pōrē'ī.form, resembling pores.
Fr. pore; Lat. pōrus; Gk. pōros, a passage. Porus fero, I bear pores.
- Pork, the flesh of pigs; pork'er, a young hog; pork-butcher.
French pore, a pig; Latin porcus. The names of meat are French, but of the animals English. Swine, pork; sheep, mutton; beef, ox; veal, calf; venison, deer; &c.
- Porphyry, plu. porphyries (R. xlv.), pōr'.fē.rīz, a sort of granite capable of a fine polish of a purple and white colour.
- Porphyritic, por'.fe.rīt''īk, having the texture of porphyry.
- Porphyraceous, por'.fē.ray''shūs (R. lxvi.), adj. of porphyry.
- Porphyriso (Rule xxxi.), por'.fē.rīze, to imitate porphyry;
por'phyrised (3 syl.), por'phyris-ing (R. xix.), porphyris-er.
Lat. porphyrites, porphyriticus; Gk. porphurites (porphura, purple).
- Porpoise, por'.pūs, the sea-hog. (Ital. porco pesce, the hog-fish.)
- Porraceous (Rule lxvi.), pōr.ray'.shūs, green like a leek.
Latin porrāceus (porrum, a leek, Greek prason).
- Porridge, pōr'rīdge, oatmeal broth; porridge-pot.
- Porringer, pōr'rīn.djer, a basin or plate out of which children eat their porridge. (Corruption of porridg-er.)
"Porridge," a corruption of pottage; Ital. polaggio; Fr. potage.
- Port, Porto, both port.
- Port, a harbour, a wine, an aperture for guns, mien, larboard.
- Portal, pōr'.tāl, a gate, a passage.
- Port-er, a beverage, a man who moves luggage.
- Port-charges, port-dues, toll paid for wharfage.
- Port-crayon, a crayon holder; port-fuse, a case filled with a combustible mixture for firing mines; port-holes, portlids, port-town, port-warden.
- Port-able, that may be easily carried by hand.
- Portability, por'.ta.bīl''ī.ty; port'able-ness.
- Port-age, the act of carrying. Porterage, money due for the carriage of parcels, &c. Porter, fem. portress.
- Port-ly, dignified; port'li-ness (Rule xi.), corpulence.

¶ Porte, port, something to hold another, as porte-feuille, -fűh'ě, a portfolio; porte-monnaie, -mo.nă, a purse.

The Sublime Porte, the government of Turkey.

An English-Latin translation of Babi Ali (the High Gate).

"Port" (a harbour), O. Eng. port; Lat. portus (Gk. pŏros, a passage).

"Port" (wine), so named from Oporto, a city of Portugal.

"Port" or "porte" (a holder), Latin portāre, to carry.

"Sublime Porte," Latin sublīma porta, the lofty gate.

Port- (Latin prefix), a gate, a holder (porta, a gate; portāre).

Port-cullis, -kűl'.līs, a gate like a harrow suspended over a fortified gate-way; port-cullised, -kűl'.līst.

French porte-coulisse, a sliding-gate; Latin porta clausa.

Port-folio, plu. portfolios (Rule xlii.), -fŏ'.li.oze, a portable case for drawings, prints, &c. (French porte-feuille.)

Portend, por.tend', to indicate; portend'-ed, portend'-ing.

Portent, por.tent, an ill-omen, a sign of coming evil.

Portentous, por.těn'.tűs, ominous; portentous-ly, -ness.

Latin portentŏsus, portentum (porro tendere, to stretch forwards).

Portico, plu. porticoes (Rule lxii.), por'.tű.kŏze, a porch, a piazza, a roof supported on columns; porticoed, por'.tű.kŏde.

Ital. portico; Lat. porticus (a porta, eo quod sit aperta, Isid.)

Portion, pŏr'.shűn, a share, to give a portion to; portioned, por'.shűnd; portion-ing, portion-er; portion-ist, one who receives an allowance from some foundation. (Lat. portio.)

Portland-stone, a freestone from Portland island.

Portland-cement, -sě.ment'. Portland vase, a vase found in the tomb of Severus the Roman Emperor, and deposited by the Duke of Portland in the British Museum.

Portmanteau, plu. portmanteaus (more common than portmantaux), port.măn'.to, plu. port.măn'.tŏze, a leather trunk.

French porte-manteau, a [box] for carrying wearing apparel.

Portrait, pŏr'.tret, a likeness; portrait-ure, por'.tra.tűre.

Portray, por.tray'; portrayed, por.trăde'; portray'-ing (Rule xiii.), portray'-er, portray'-al. Portrait-painter.

French portrait, corruption of pour-trait, i.e., "trait pour trait."

Portreve, port.reev', chief magistrate of a port or maritime town. (Old English portgerēfa, the port sheriff.)

Portuguese, por'.tű.geez', a native of Portugal, adj. of Portugal.

Proper names of a people in -ese are alike in both numbers.

Pose, pŏze, attitude, a catarrh, to puzzle, to place in attitude; posed, pŏzd; pos-ing (R. xix.), pŏze'-ing; pos-er, pŏze'.er.

"Pose" (to puzzle), Welsh posiaw (posiad, a questioning).

"Pose" (an attitude), Lat. positus, placed, v. pono, supine positum.

"Pose" (a catarrh), Old English gepose, a stiffness or catarrh.

Position, po.zűsh'.űn, situation. (Latin pŏsītio, gen. pŏsītīōnis.)

Positive, pöz'x.tiv, certain, opposed to negative, absolute; positive-ly, positive-ness; positiv-ism, pöz'x.tiv.izm, the philosophical system of Mon. Auguste Comte.

This system concerns itself only with phenomena, and considers all inquiry into causes and reasons as utterly futile (Latin pöstitivus).

Posse, pös'se, the civil power of a county that may be called to attend a sheriff in the execution of justice, a batch of the police, a crowd. (Latin posse [comitatus], able to attend.)

Possess, pöz.zess' (not po.zess'), to have, to occupy; possessed', pöz.zest'; possess-ing; possess-or (R. xxxvi.), pöz.zës'.sor.

Possession, pöz.zësh'.än (not po.zësh'.än, a common error).

Possessive, pöz.zës'.siv; possess'ive-ly, possess'-öry.

The possessive case (in Gram.), the case made by adding 's in the sing., and ' or 's in the plural. It is almost wholly limited to animals and nouns personified.

Latin possessio, possessivus, possessor, possessörius, v. possideo.

Posset, pös'sët, milk curdled with treacle or wine, to drug; posset-ed (3 syl.), poss'et-ing (not possetted, possetting).

Possette, pöz.zet' (in Dancing), a "setting" to one's partner.

(Only two words in -et (carburett-ed and epaulett-ed) double the final letter when -ed or -ing is added, and these two words ought to be deprived of the supernumerary letter.)

Welsh posel, curdled milk; Latin posca, a drink made of sour wine.

Possible, pös'si.b'l, what may be, what can be done, barely able to come to pass; poss'ibly. Possibility, pös'si.bil''.x.ty.

Latin possibilis, possibilitas, v. posse, to be able.

Post, a hasty message, an office or employment, a stake fixed in the ground, a relay of horses, time for the distribution of letters, to put letters in a post box, to ride with post horses; post'-ed (R. xxxvi.), post'-ing; post'-er, a large bill to be fixed on a wall; post-age, money paid for post-ing; post-al (adj.), post-bag, post-bill, post-boy; post-captain, a posted or gazetted captain (not a captain by courtesy or brevet rank); post-chaise, post-haste, post-man, post-mark, post-master; postmaster-general, plu. postmasters-general; post-office; post-office-directory, plu. -directories; post-office order, a money order transmitted by post; post-paid, post-town, post-age-stamp.

From pillar to post, from one thing to another, to and fro.

Posted up in, quite familiar with.

Old English post; Latin pono, supine positum, to place, to set.

A post is a stake set or placed in the ground.

To travel post is to travel by horses set or placed at fixed distances.

To post an account is to set or place it under its proper heading.

A military post is a soldier set or placed in a given station.

A post office is an office where letters may be placed for delivery.

To post a letter is to place it in a box appointed to receive it.

- Post- (Latin prefix), subsequent to, after (post, after, since).
Post-date, to date a document after the real time; post-dated, -dāte'.ed; post-dā'ting (post and date).
Post-diluvial, -dī.lū'.vī.āl, since Noah's flood; post-diluvian. (Latin post diluvium, since the flood).
Post-entry, plu. -entries, -en'.trīz, a subsequent entry.
Posterior, pōs.tee'.rī.or, later in time; poste'rior-ly.
Posterity, pōs.tēr'.rī.ty, descendants, opposed to.
Ancestors, ān'.sēs.torz, predecessors.
Latin postērus, subsequent, (comp.) postērior, postērīlas.
Postern, post'.ern, a private entrance, a vaulted passage under a parapet and through the rampart.
French posterne now póterne, a "post" or back gate.
Post'-fix, a suffix, to attach to the end [of a word]; post-fixed, -fixt; postfix-ing.
Latin post figo, supine fixum, to attach on behind.
Post-humous, pōs'.tū.mūs, after decease; posthumous-ly.
A posthumous-child, born after the death of its father or taken from a dead mother.
A posthumous work, published after the author's death.
Posthumous fame, renown after the decease of a person.
Latin posthūmus, i.e., post humātus, after interment.
Postilion, po.stil'.yūn, the rider on the near leader in a travelling carriage. (French postillon).
In English battalion, pavilion, postilion (with one l).
In French batillon, pavillon, postillon (with double l).
A "postilion" is a person in the employ of a post master.
Post-meridian, -mē.rīd'.ī.ān (expressed by P.M.), afternoon.
Latin post mēridiānus, post mērdies.
Post-mortem, -mor'.tem, made after death, after death.
Latin post mors, genitive mortis, after death.
Post-nuptial (not -nuptual), -nūp'.tshāl, occurring after marriage, done after marriage.
Latin post nuptiālis (nuptiæ, a wedding).
Post-pay, (past) post-paid, (past part.) post-paid, [a letter] with the expense of postage prepaid.
Post-obit, -ō'.bīt (not post-orbit), a bond to be paid after the death of the person granting it.
Latin post obitus, after death (v. obēo, to die).
Post-pone (2 syl.), to defer; post-pōned (2 syl.), postpōn'-ing (Rule xix.), postpōn'-er, postpone'-ment.
Latin postpōnēre (post pōno, to place behind).
Post-prandial, -prān'.dī.āl, after dinner.
Latin post prandium, after dinner.

Post-scenium, -sē'.nī.ŭm, the part of a theatre which is behind the scenes. (Latin postscenium.)

Post-script (expressed by P.S. sing., P.SS. plu.), a paragraph added to a letter below the signature.

Latin post scriptus, written after [signature].

Post-tertiary system, -ter'.shē.ar''ry sīs'.tem, the rocks subsequent to the glacial period or boulder drift.

- (1) Primary or azoic rocks, a.zō'.ik, those wholly without fossils: as the granite, slate, gneiss [nīce], &c.
- (2) Palæozoic group, pā.lē.o-zō'.ik, between the primary and the secondary. It includes the Cam'brian, Silū'rian, Devō'nian, Carboniferous, and Permian.
- (3) Secondary group, between the palæozoic and tertiary. It includes the Tri'as, Li'as, Oolite, Wealden, and Cretaceous or Chalk.
- (4) Tertiary group, between the secondary and the post-tertiary (between the chalk and the glacial period or boulder drift).
- (5) Post-tertiary, from the boulder clay to the surface.

Postulate, pōs'.tū.lāte, a proposition taken for granted, to assume; pōs'tulāt-ed (R. xxxvi.), pōs'tulāt-ing (R. xix.)

Postulatory, pōs'.tū.lā.t'ry, assuming without proof.

Postulant, pōs'.tū.lānt (a term in dialectics, &c.)

The Postulates of Euclid are: Let it be granted

1. That a straight line may be drawn from one point to another.
2. That a straight line may be produced to any required length.
3. That a circle may be described from any centre, at any distance from that centre.

Lat. postulātorius, postulatum, pōstulāre (posco, to demand).

Posture, pōs'.tchūr, attitude, position; postured, pōs'.tchūrd.

French posture; Latin pōsitūra (pōno, supine pōstum, to place).

Posy, plu. posies, pō'.zy, plu. pō'.zīz, a motto, a bunch of flowers.

Poesy, pō'.ē.sy, poetry.

A posy meant originally a copy of verses presented with a bunch of flowers, and subsequently either the verses or the flowers.

Pōt, a vessel for domestic uses, to put into pots, to preserve in pots; pōtt'-ed (R. xxxvi.), pōtt'-ing (R. i.); pōtt'-er.

Pottery, plu. potteries, pōt'.tē.rīz, the place where earthen pots are made, earthen pots considered as ware; pot-boy.

Pot-companion, -com.pān'.yān; pot-herb, a kitchen herb.

Pot-hook, a hook for suspending a kettle, &c., over a fire, the last stroke of an m or n in writing.

Pot-house, a public-house of inferior grade; pot-luck.

Pot-valiant, -vāl'.yant. Potted-meat, preserved meat.

Potter's-clay, potter's-wheel. Potting-house.

To go to pot, to go to ruin; gone to pot, discarded.

Welsh pot, whence potes, pottage, v. potiaw, potiad, a potting.

Potable, pō'ta.b'l (not pō't.a.b'l), drinkable; potable-ness.

Potation, po.tay'.shūn. Potatory, pō'.tā.tō.ry.

Latin potabilis, pōtatio, pōtator (v. pōtāre, to drink).

Potash, pō't.ash, the ashes of burnt wood purified in water and used for washing purposes, potassa.

Potassa, po.tās'.sah, pure potash; potassium, po.tās'.sī.ūm, the metallic basis of potash.

German pottasche; French potasse, potassium (from the German).

Potato, plu. potatoes (Rule xlii.), pō.tay'.tōze, a vegetable.

Corruption of batata; Spanish batatin or pataca.

Poteen, pō'.rhene', Irish whisky. (Irish v. potaim, I drink.)

Potent, pō'.tent, powerful, efficacious; po'tent-ly, powerfully.

Potentate, pō'.tēn.tate, a magnate; poten'tial, -tēn.shāl; potential-ly, po.tēn'.shāl.ly; potentiality, -shī.āl''ā.ty.

Potence, po'.tense; po'tency, -sy, strength, efficacy.

Latin pōtens, gen. pōtentis, pōtentātus, pōtentia (posse, to be able).

Potentilla, po'.tēn.tīl'.lah (not potentella), tansy.

Latin potentia, with dim. So called from its reputed virtues.

Pother, pōrh'.er, disturbance. Bōth'er, annoyance, to perplex;

pothered, pōrh'.erd; poth'er-ing, pother-er;

bothered, bōrh'.erd; both'er-ing, bother-er.

Mr. Garnett says that the word "pother" is Celtique, and frequently occurs in the Irish Bible in the sense of to be grieved or troubled.

Potion, pō'.shūn, a medicine taken as a draught, a dose.

French potion; Latin pōtio, genitive pōtiōnis, v. pōtāre, to drink.

Pot-pourri, pō'.poo.ree'', different flowers mixed with spices, &c., for perfume. Popery, pō'.pe.ry, Roman catholicism.

French pot pourri, the olla podrida of Spain, a ragout composed of all sorts of viands and vegetables, seasoned and cooked together.

Potsherd, pōt'.sherd, a bit of broken earthenware.

Welsh pot and Old English sceard, a sherd or fragment.

Pottage, pōt'.tage, broth. (Welsh potes, Fr. potage, Ital. pottaggio.)

Potter, pōt'.ter, one who makes pottery; to potter about, to move about interfering with others or doing trifling works; pottered, pōt'.terd; potter-ing, pottering-ly, potter-er.

Pottle, pōt'.t'l, a two-quart measure. (Welsh potel, a truss.)

Pouch, a pocket, to put into a pocket; pouched (1 syl.), pouch'-ing.

Old English poeca or pochcha, a pocket or pouch.

Poule, a figure in quadrilles, the collective stakes of all the players in several games. Pool, a lake. Pull, to drag, to twitch.

"Poule" (in quadrilles), so named from the tune in which an imitation of a cackling hen is introduced.

"Poule" (stakes), Fr. poule, because originally l'enjeu était une "poule."

"Pool," Old English pól. "Pull," Old English pull[ian].

Poultry, poul'try, domestic birds reared for the table or for eggs.

Poulterer, poul'te.rer, one who deals in poultry and game.

Turkey poult, a young turkey. Pullet, a young hen.

Poultry-yard. (French poule, poulet; Latin pullus.)

Poultice, poul'tis, a cataplasm, to apply a poultice; poulticed, poul'tist; poultic-ing (Rule xix.), poul'tis.ing.

Latin puls, pultis, pap; Greek pōltōs (in Celsus pouls).

Pounce (1 syl.), powdered pumice-stone, to rub with pounce, to dash down upon; pounced (1 syl.), pounc-ing (R. xix.)

"Pounce" (powdered pumice-stone), Fr. ponce; Lat. pumex, pumicis.

"Pounce" (to dart on), Latin pungo, supine punctum, to thrust at.

Pound, a weight, a sovereign of money, a place for stray cattle, to imprison in a pound, to bray with a pestle; pound'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), pound'-ing, pound'-er; pound'-age, a deduction on each pound, a charge for cattle pounded.

"Pound" (for cattle), O. E. pōnd, v. pun[ian], p. punode, p.p. punod.

"Pound" (of money), Old Eng. pūnd, 48 scillingas or 240 peningas.

"Pound," a Norman pound 20 scillingas or 240 small peningas.

Pour, po'r. Poor, poo'r. Power, pōw'er. Pōre (1 syl.) Paw.

Pour, pōr (not pōr nor pōw'er), to rush tumultuously, to come down in torrents, to transfuse, to cause to flow; poured (1 syl.), pour'-ing. (Welsh bwrrw, to throw, to pour.)

Poor, poo'r, needy. (French pauvre, Latin pauper.)

Power (to rhyme with flower), might. (French pouvoir.)

Pōre (1 syl.), a passage in the skin for perspiration. (Fr. pore.)

Paw, a soft foot with claws. (Welsh pawen.)

Pourparty, poor.par'ty, a division of lands among partners previously held by them in common. (French pourpartier.)

Pout, a sea-fish, a young turkey, a fit of sulks, to stick out the lips in ill-temper, to sulk; pout'-ed (R. xxxvi.), pout'-ing, pouting-ly; pouter, one who pouts, a pigeon.

"Pout" (a young turkey), a corruption of poult, French poulet.

"Pout" (to sulk), Welsh potenu, to bulge out, poten, a paunch.

Poverty, pōw'er.ty, destitution. (Fr. pauvreté, Lat. paupertas.)

Powder, pōw.der ("pōw-" to rhyme with now), a substance pulverised, to reduce to dust, to sprinkle with powder; powdered, pōw'derd; powder-ing, powdery, powder-er, gun-powder, hair-powder, powder-flask, powder-horn; powder-magazine, mag.a.zeen; powder-mill, powder-puff.

Pulverise, pūl'.vē.rize, to reduce to powder; pul'veris-ing.

French poudre, pulveriser; Latin pulvis, gen. pulvērīs, v. pulvērō.

Power, pōw'er ("pōw-" to rhyme with now, see pour), ability, might, authority. Powers, resources, nations.

Power-ful (Rule viii.), powerful-ly, powerful-ness.

Power-less, powerless-ly, powerless-ness.

Power of attorney, -at.tur'ny, authority deputed to another to act; power-loom, a loom worked by steam; horse-power; mechanical power, me.kän'.ĩ.käl...; steam-power; water-power, wau'.ter... (French pouvoir.)

Practical, Practicable, Pos'sible, prāk'.ĩ.kal, prāk'.ĩ.kā.b'l.

Practical, not theoretical, not speculative, result of practice.

Practicable, what may be done with the means possessed.

Possible, what might be done if means were given.

Practicability, prāk'.ĩ.kā.bil''.ĩ.ty, feasibility.

Practicable-ness, feasibility. Practical-ness, of a practical character (neither theoretical nor speculative).

Practice, prāk'.ĩs, habit, repetition, the official duties of a lawyer or medical man, a rule in arithmetic.

Practise, prāk'.tiz (not prāk'.tize), to play a musical instrument for the sake of improvement, to follow the profession of law or medicine, to exercise oneself in, to do habitually; practised, prāk'.ĩzd; practis-ing.

Practiser, prāk'.tiz.er. Practition-er, prāk'.ĩsh'.ōn.er.

Practiser, one who practises or repeats an act.

Practitioner, a medical man in actual practice.

ERRORS OF SPEECH—

They passed the river where the passage was most practical [-able].

The squaring of the circle is not practical [practicable].

Prudence is a practicable virtue [practical].

The scheme was not practical with the means possessed [practicable].

It is possible to move the world but not practical [practicable].

Celsus was a practiser of medicine [a medical practitioner].

Many an invention fails because it is not practicable [practical].

To remove the Goodwin Sands, however useful, is not practical so far as we know at present [practicable].

Men of action are generally more practicable than men of thought[-cal].

Fr. practicable, pratique, practicien; Lat. practicus; Gk. pratto, to do.

Prætexta, pre.tex'.ta, a magisterial robe. Pre'text, a pretence.

In Rome, the prætexta was worn by priests, magistrates, boys of the higher grades up to 17 years of age, and unmarried girls. It was a long white robe bordered with purple (prætextus, bordered).

Prætor, pre'.tor, a chief magistrate of Rome; in Cicero's time there were two, similar to our lord mayor and sheriff of Middlesex, subsequently the number was increased and they were governors of provinces.

Prætorian, prē.tōr'ri.ăn, adj. of prætor; prætorian bands, the household troops in ancient Rome, the imperial body-guard; prætor-ship, office of prætor (-ship, office).

"A præesse, [præest-or] ut sit generatim is qui præest" (Livy).

Pragmatic, prag.măt'ĭk, meddling, suggesting impertinently; pragmatical, prag.măt'ĭ.kăl; pragmatical-ly, -ness.

Pragmatic sanction, prag.măt'ĭk sank'shŭn, (1) the decree issued by Charles VII. of France in 1438, and (2) that of Charles VI. of Germany whereby the crown of Germany was made hereditary in the house of Austria.

Lat. pragmaticus, "relating to state affairs," "confirmed by law," and pragmatica sanctio, an edict with legal force (Gk. pragma, an act). Pragmătter, "prompters," gave rise to the ordinary use of the word.

Prairie, plu. prairies, prair'ry, plu. prair'riz (not pĕ.ray'ry), vast undulating grassy plains in North America.

Fr. prairie, a meadow; Lat. prĕtum; Gk. prĕsta, a garden-plot.

Praise, prĕze. Prays, intercedes. Preys, plunders.

Praise, commendation, to commend; praised, prĕzd; prais'-ing (R. xix.), praising-ly, prais'-er, praise-less; praise-worthy, -wur'-the, deserving of commendation; praise-worthi-ly (R. xi.), praise-worthi-ness.

"Praise," Welsh pris, price, value; so in Danish, prize, a prize, and prize, to praise; French prix [de merit]; Latin prĕtium.

"Prays," Fr. prier; Lat. prĕcāri. "Preys," Lat. præda; Fr. proie.

Prance (1 syl.), to frisk or dance about, to strut; pranced (1 syl.), pranc'-ing (Rule xix.), prancing-ly, pranc'-er.

Frank, a frolic, a freak, to dress ostentatiously; pranked (1 syl.), prank'-ing; prank'-ish, full of fun.

Welsh pranc, fun and frolic, v. prancio, to frolic, pranciad, pranciwr.

Prate (1 syl.), to tattle, to chatter; prat'-ed (R. xxxvi.), prat'-ing, prating-ly; prat'-or, a chatterbox. (Dan. prate, n. prat.)

Prattle, prăt'tle, the talk of children, gossip, to prattle; prattled, prăt'tld; prattling-ly, prattler. (Dim. of prate.)

Prawn, a sort of shrimp (corrupt contrac. of palæmon, a shrimp).

Prax'is, plu. prax'es, a set of examples for practice.

Greek praxis, a deed, something done or to be done, pratto, to do.

Pray, to make a prayer. Prey, pray, to feed on carrion; prays; prayed, praid; pray'-ing, praying-ly. (See Praise.)

Prayer, prair; prayer-ful, prayerful-ly, prayerful-ness, prayer-less, prayerless-ly, prayerless-ness, prayer-meeting. I pray you [tell me], I beg of you to tell me.

"Pray," Fr. pier; Lat. prĕcāri. "Prey," Lat. præda; Fr. proie.

Preach, preech, to deliver a sermon; preached (1 syl.), preach'-ing, preaching-ly, preach'-er, preacher-ship (-ship, office of); preach-ment, a moral scolding (a word of disrespect).

Old Eng. predich, predic'ian, past prediciode, past part. prediciod, predicung; predicere, a preacher; Lat. prædicāre, prædicatio.

Pre- (Latin prefix præ-), before in rank, priority, very.

Pre-Adamite, -ăd'.ăm.ĭte, existing before the creation of Adam; pre-Adamic, prĕ.ă.dăm'.ĭk, prior to Adam; pre-Adamitic, prĕ-ăd'.ămĭt''.ĭk, adj. of pre-Adamites.

Pre-amble, pre.ăm'.b'l, the introduction of a statute, &c.

Fr. préambule; Lat. præ-ambulo, I walk or go before [the main matter].

Prebend, prĕb'.end. Prebendary, prĕb'.en.dă.ry.

Prebend, the stipend given to a prebendary.

Prebendary, the curate of a cathedral or collegiate church.

Prebendal, pre.bĕn'.dăl, pertaining to a prebendaryship; prebendal stall, a prebendary's seat in a cathedral;

Prebendary-ship, the office of a prebendary (-ship, office).

Latin præbĕo, to afford. A prebend is a small stipend "afforded" out of the revenues of a cathedral or collegiate church to a curate called a prebendary for officiating at stated times.

A prebendary is paid a stipend propter officiōsos labōres (for service).

A canon is paid a stipend ex officio (because he is a canon).

Precarious, pre.kair'ri.ŭs, of uncertain tenure; precariously, precarious-ness. (Lat. prĕcārĭus, obtained by begging.)

A thing obtained by begging depends on the will of the bestower, and is therefore as uncertain as his temper and life.

Pre- (continued).

Precaution, pre.kaw'.shŭn, care bestowed beforehand, to warn beforehand; pre-cautioned (3 syl.), pre-caution-ing, precaution-ary, pre.kaw'.shŭn.ă.ry; precaution-al.

Fr. précaution; Lat. præcautio (præ cautio, caution beforehand).

Pre-cede, pre.see'd', to go before; precĕd'-ed, precĕd'-ing.

Precedent, pre.see'.dent and prez'.e.dent. Pres'ident.

Precedent, pre.see'.dent, previous, former.

Precedent, prez'.ĕ.dent, a rule for future guidance.

President, prez'.ĭ.dent, one who presides over others, the chief magistrate of the United States of America.

Precedent-ly, pre.see'.dent.ly, beforehand.

Precedency, pre.see'.den.sy. Presidency, prĕz'.ĭ.den.sy.

Precedency, pre.see'.den.sy, the place of greater honour.

Presidency, prez'.ĭ.den.sy, the office of a president.

Precedented, prez'.e.dĕn.ted. Unprecedented.

Of verbs from the Latin cĕdo (to go), 3 end in -ced and 7 in -ede:

(1) Exceed, proceed, and succeed end in -ced. The seven are

(2) Accede, antecede, concede, intercede, precede, recede, and secede.

"Supersede" is from another root, super sĕdĕo, to sit over.

(It would be far better if all these verbs ended in -ced.)

Latin præ-cĕdo, to go before; French prĕcĕder; prĕcĕdent.

"President," &c., Fr. prĕsident, prĕsidence, prĕsider; Lat. præ sĕdĕo.

Pre-centor, pre.sen'.tor. Present-er, pre.zēn'.ter.

Precentor, leader of a cathedral or collegiate choir.

Presenter, one who makes a presentation.

Precentor-ship, the office of precentor (-ship, office, rank).

French précenteur; Latin præ cantor, the leading singer.

In English cathedrals the precentor is a priest-vicar or minor canon.

Pre-cept, pre'.sept, a command, an injunction, a principle.

Preceptive, pre.sēp'.tiv, containing or giving precepts.

Precept'-or (R. xxxvii.), fem. preceptress, pre.sēp'.tress; precep'tor, a teacher, the head of a preceptory.

Preceptory, plu. preceptories, pre.sēp'.to.riz, a subordinate religious establishment in the middle ages, certain colleges of the Knights Templars.

(Those colleges which were not "preceptories" were commanderies.)

Preceptorial, pre'.sēp.to''.rī.āl, adj. of preceptor.

Lat. præceptivus, præceptor, fem. præceptra, præceptorius, præceptum, (præ-cipio[cāpio], to instruct, to take the initiative).

Pre-cession, pre.sesh'.ūn [of the equinoxes], the slow backward movement of the equinoctial points along the ecliptic from east to west; preces'sion-al.

French précession; Latin præcedo, supine præcessum, to precede.

Pre-cinct, the limits or bounds of a district. The precincts.

Latin præcingo, supine præcinctum, to enclose, to gird about.

Precious, presh'.ūs, valuable; precious-ly, precious-ness.

Latin præciosus, full of value, præthum [or præcium].

Precipice, pres'.i.pīs, a steep, a declivity of abrupt descent.

Precipitate, pre.cip'.i.tate, to cast down headlong, to hasten on prematurely; precip'itāt-ed (R. xxxvi.), precip'itāt-ing (R. xix.), precip'itāt-or (R. xxxvii.), precip'itate-ly.

Precipitate, pre.sip'.i.tate. Precipitant, pre.sip'.i.tant.

Precipitate, a substance held in solution released and thrown to the bottom of a vessel in a solid state.

Precipitant, something which releases a substance held in solution and causes it to fall away in a solid state.

Precip'itant-ly, with too great haste.

Precipitance, pre.cip'.i.tance, rash haste; precipitancy, pre.cip'.i.tān.sy. Precipitable, pre.cip'.i.tā.b'l; precipitability, pre.cip'.i.ta.bīl'.i.ty.

Precipitation, pre.sip'.i.tay''.shūn, rash haste, hastiness.

Precipitous, pre.sip'.i.tūs, abrupt; precip'itous-ly, -ness.

Red precipitate, red oxide or protoxide of mercury.

A precipitate is a substance held in solution released from the liquid by chemical action.

A sediment is something suspended or mixed with a liquid mechanically, settled at the bottom.

Latin præcipitium, præcipitans genitive præcipitantis, præcipitantia, præcipitatio, præcipitator, præcipitare (præ caput, head foremost).

Précis, plu. préces, pra'.sē, plu. pra'.seez. Precise (see below).

French précis, an abstract, a summary, a succinct abridgment.

Precise, pre.sice', exact, nice, scrupulous; precise'-ly, -ness.

Precision, pre.sizh'.ŭn. Precisian, pre.siz'.ĭ.an.

Precision, accuracy, definiteness, exact termination.

Precisian, one rigidly exact in observing rules.

Precisian-ism, pre.siz'.ĭ.ŭn.ĭzm, scrupulous exactness.

Latin præcise, precisely, præcisio, præ-cido, to prune down, to lop.

Pre- (continued).

Pre-clūde (2 syl.), to shut out; preclūd'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), preclūd'-ing; preclusive, pre.klū'-siv; preclū'sive-ly.

Preclusion (Rule xxxiii.), pre.klū'.shŭn, exclusion.

To preclude is to prevent entering by previously shutting the door.

Thus sin, by its very nature, precludes the sinner from heaven.

Stopped by natural disqualification.

To exclude is to shut out: thus the angel shut Adam and Eve out of the garden. Stopped by active interference.

Latin præcludo (præ claudio), to shut the door beforehand.

Pre-cocious, pre.kō'.shŭs, prematurely ripe or advanced in mind; precō'cious-ly, precō'cious-ness.

Precocity, pre.kōs'.ĭ.ty, premature development.

Latin præcox gen. præcōcis, ripe before its time (præ coquo).

(English words derived from Latin adjectives in -x add -ious not -eous: as audax, audacious; capax, capacious; edax, edacious; ferox, ferocious; limax, limacious; mordax, mordacious; præcox, precocious; silex, silicious; vorax, voracious.)

Pre-conceive, pre'.kōn.seev'', to form an opinion beforehand; preconceived' (3 syl.), preconceiv'-ing (Rule xix.)

Preconception, pre'.kōn.sēp''.shŭn, a foregone notion.

Latin præconceptus, præ concipio, to conceive beforehand. In -ceive, -lieve, remember that the earlier consonant (c) takes the earlier vowel (e) first, and the later consonant (l) takes the later vowel (i) first: thus conceive, deceive, perceive, preconceive, receive, undeceive. But believe, disbelieve, relieve, &c.

Pre-concert, pre'.kōn.sert'', to settle by previous agreement; preconcert-ed (Rule xxxvi.), preconcert'-ing, preconcert-ed-ly. (Latin præ concerto.)

Con-certare means to strive in rivalry with others; præ-concertare, to settle together beforehand who is to be the winner.

Pre-contract, (noun) pre.kōn'.trakt, (verb) pre'.kōn.tract''.

Precon'tract, a previous contract.

Precontract', to bargain beforehand; precontract-ed (Rule xxxvi.), precontract'-ing.

Latin præ contractus (præ con-traho supine -contractum).

Pre-cordia, pre.kor'.dī.ah, the diaphragm; precor'dial, adj.

The precordial region, all the region about this organ.

Latin præcordia, præcordiālis (præ cor gen. cordis, before the heart).

Pre-cursor, pre.kur'.sor, a forerunner, a token of a future event; precursory, pre.kur'.sō.ry, foretokening.

Latin præcursor, præcursōrius (præ curro, to run before).

Predaceous (R. lxvi.), pre.day'.shus, living by prey, plundering.

Predatory, prēd'.a.tō.ry, pillaging, ravenous, indulging in rapine; predatori-ly, prēd'.a.tō.rī.ly, furtively.

Latin prædaceus, prædātōrius, præda, rapine, plunder.

Pre- (continued).

Pre-decessor, -de.sēs''.sor, one who has preceded another in office, place, or business. (French prédécesseur.)

Latin præ de-cēdo, to go-away before [another enters].

Pre-design, -de.zīne'', to purpose beforehand; predesigned' (3 syl.), predesign'-ing. (Latin præ designa.)

Pre-destinate, pre.des'.tī.nāte, to determine beforehand; predes'tināt-ed (R. xxxvi.), predes'tināt-ing (R. xix.); predes'tināt-or (R. xxxvii.), one who predestinates.

Predestinarian, pre.dēs'.tī.nair''rī.ăn, one who believes in the doctrine of predestination, a fatalist, adj. of predestination; predestina'rian-ism, tenets of predestinarians.

Predestination, pre.dēs'.tī.nay''shŭn, foreordination.

Predestine, pre.dēs'.tīn, to foreordain; predestined, pre.dēs'.tīnd; predes'tin-ing (Rule xix.)

Latin prædestinatio, prædestīnāre, to destine beforehand.

Pre-determine, pre.de.ter'.mīn, to determine beforehand; predeter'mined (4 syl.), predeter'min-ing.

Predetermination, pre'.dē.ter'.mī.nay''shŭn, resolution.

Predeterminate, -de.ter'.mī.nate; predeter'minable.

French prédeterminer, prédétermination (Latin præ determināre).

Pre-dicate, pre'.dī.kate, that which is affirmed or denied of another, (in Gram.) that which is stated of a subject (an intrans. verb, or an active verb and all that belongs to it), to affirm or deny something of another; pre'dicāt-ed (R. xxxvi.), pre'dicāt-ing; pre'dicant, one who predicates.

Predication, pre'.dī.kay''shŭn. Predicatory, -dī.ka.t'ry.

Predicability, pre'.dī.ka.bīl''ī.ty; pred'icable.

(The five logical predicables are: (1) genus, (2) species, (3) difference, (4) property, and (5) accident.)

Lat. prædicatio, prædicātor, prædicātum, prædicāre, to predicate.

Pre-dicament, -dīk'.ă.ment, a dilemma; predicament-ăl.

Latin prædicamentum, a logical category. It does not say much for the "simplicity" of logic, that the word predicament has become synonymous with "confusion."

Pre-dict', to foretell; predict'-ed (R. xxxvi.), predict'-ing, predict'-or (R. xxxvii.); prediction, pre.dīk'.shŭn,

Latin prædictio, prædictum, prædicere, to fore-tell.

- Pre-dilection, -di.lek'shun (not -deliction), a preference.
French prédilection; Latin præ dillgo supine dilectum.
- Pre-dispose, pre'dis.poze', to incline beforehand; pre'disposed' (3 syl.); pre'dispōs'-ing, creating a predisposition.
Predisposition, pre'dis.po.zish'ün, propensity.
Fr. prédisposer, prédisposition; Lat. præ dispōno, to predispose.
- Pre-dominate, pre.dōm'ā.nūte, to prevail; predom'ināt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), predom'ināt-ing (Rule xix.), prevailing.
Predom'inant, prominent, masterful; predom'inant-ly.
Predominance, pre.dōm'ā.nance; predom'inancy.
Latin præ dōmināri, dōminans genitive dōminantis, dōminātus.
- Pre-em'inent, most excellent; pre-em'inent-ly.
Pre-eminence, pre.ēm'ā.nence; pre-em'incy.
Latin præ-ēminentia, præ-ēminēre [e-manēre, to remain above], to remain high above all others, to excel.
- Pre-emption, pre.emp'shūn, the first right of buying, the choice of refusing to buy. (Latin præ emo, sup. emptum.)
- Preen, an instrument for dressing cloth, to dress the feathers (said of birds); preened (1 syl.), preen'-ing.
Danish preen, a bodkin: Chaucer uses the word proine.
- Pre- (continued).
Pre-engage, pre'en.gāge', to engage previously; pre-engaged (3 syl.), pre-engag-ing (Rule xix.), pre'en.gāge'-ing'; pre'-engage'-ment, a prior engagement.
Pre with French engager, engagement (en-gage, under a contract).
- Pre-estab'lish, to settle beforehand; pre-established, -es.tāb'lisht; pre-estab'lish-ing, pre-estab'lish-ment.
Pre with French établir, établissement (Latin stabilire).
- Pre'-exist', to exist in a previous state; pre-exist'-ed (R. xxxvi.), pre-exist'-ing. Pre-exist'ent, pre-exist'ence.
French préexister, préexistence, préexistant (11).
- Pre-face, prēf'.āce (not prē'face), introductory remarks, the preliminary address of a book, to say something before the principal subject is brought forward; prefaced, prēf'.est; prefac-ing, prēf'.āsing.
Prefatory, prēf'fū.tō.ry; pref'atori-ly (Rule xi.)
Lat. præfatio (præfari, to speak before, to make preliminary remarks).
- Pre'-fect, a sort of sheriff in France, chief of the police; pre'fect-ship (-ship, office, rank). Prefecture, -fēk.tchur; prefectory, pre.fek'.tō.ry, pertaining to a prefect.
Latin præfectus, præfectōrius, præfectūra (præ ficio [facio] supine præfectum, to make or set over others).
- Pre-fer', to like better, to promote to honour; preferred' (2 syl.), preferr'-ing (Rule iv.), preferr'-er.
(The other derivatives have only one r, Rule i.)

Prefer'-ment. Prefer-able (Rule xxiii.), prĕf'.er.ă.b'l; preferably, preferable-ness. Preference, -er.ence; preferential, prĕf'.er.ĕn''.shăl; preferential-ly.

Preference shareholder, one entitled to first dividends.

Preference stock, stock of a public company which receives dividends before the ordinary stock.

French préférer, préférable, préférence. It will be observed that our irregularities in this word are of French origin.

Pre-figure, pre.fĭg'ūr, to foreshadow; prefigured, -fĭg'ūrd; prefig'ur-ing (R. xix.); prefigure-ment, pre.fĭg'ūr.ment; prefiguration, pre.fĭg'.u.ray''.shŭn. (Lat. præfigurāre.)

Pre-fix, (noun) pre'fix, (verb) pre,fix', a particle added to the beginning of a word, to affix; prefixed, pre,fixt'; prefix'-ing. (Lat. præfigo, sup. præfixum, to fix before.)

Pregnable, prĕg'.nă.b'l, that may be taken by assault.

French pregnable now prenable; Latin prenĉo, to seize on.

Pregnant, prĕg'.nant, being with child, teeming; preg'-nant-ly. Pregnancy, prĕg'.nan.sy. (Latin prægnans.)

That is præ gigno, before giving birth, state before birth.

Pre-hensile, pre.hĕn'.sĭl, adapted for seizing or laying hold; prehensible, pre.hĕn'.sĭ.b'l. Prehension, pre.hĕn'.shŭn.

Latin præhensio, v. præhendo supine præhensum, to lay hold on.

Pre-judge, pre,judge', to judge beforehand; prejudged' (2 syl.), prejudg'-ing (Rule xix.) Prejudg'-ment. (Words ending in -dge drop the -e before -ment.)

Pre-judicate, -jŭ'.dĭ.kate, to form a judgment without hearing both sides; preju'dicāt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), preju'dicāt-ing (Rule xix.), preju'dicāt-or (Rule xxxvii.); prejudication, pre'jŭ.dĭ.kay''.shŭn.

Pre-judice, prĕd'.jŭ.dĭs, bias of mind, to bias; prejudiced (3 syl.); prejudic-ing (Rule xix.), prĕd'.jŭ.dĭs.ĭng.

Prejudicial, prĕd'.ju.dĭsh''.ăl; prejudicial-ly.

Latin præjudicatio, præjudicium, præjudicare, to pre-judge.

Prelate, prĕl'.ate, a bishop; prelate-ship (-ship, office, rank); prelatic, pre.lăt'.ĭk; prelatical, pre.lăt'.ĭ.kăl; prelát'-ical-ly. Prelatist, prĕl'.a.tĭst, a lover of episcopacy; prelatism, prĕl'.a.tĭzm, the episcopal system.

Prelacy, prĕl'.ă.sy, episcopacy; prelature, prĕl'.a.tchŭr.

By "prelate" we generally mean a bishop, but the word is not of necessity so restricted. Any clergyman (as an archdeacon, patriarch, &c.) who has authority over others is a prelate.

Latin prælatus, prælātūra (præ-fero); French prélat, prélatûre.

Pre-liminary, pre.lĭm'.ĭ.nă.ry, introductory. Preliminaries, -lĭm'.ĭ.nă.rĭz, introductory arrangements; prelim'inari-ly.

French préliminaire; Latin præ limen, before the threshold.

Pre-lude, prě'l'lude, a short musical introduction, something introductory. Prelusive, pre.lū'siv; prelusive-ly.

Latin prælūdium, a flourish before [the fight], v. prælūdēre.

Pre-mature, pre'mā.tūre', before the right time, before the facts are fully known; premature-ly, premature'-ness.

Prematurity, pre'ma.tu''rī.ty, ripeness before the time.

Latin præmātūritas, præmātūrus (præ-mātūrus, ripe before time).

Pre-maxillary, -max.ıl'lı.ry, a bone of the upper jaw forming its margin and anterior to the true maxillary bone.

Latin præ maxilla, before the jaw-bone or maxillary bone.

Pre-meditate, -mēd'ī.tate, to think over beforehand; premed'itāt-ed (R. xxxvi.), premed'itāt-ing (R. xix.), premed'itāting-ly. Premeditation, pre.mēd'ī.tay''shūn.

Latin præmeditatio, præmeditārī, præmeditātus.

Premier, prēm'ī.er, the prime minister; premier-ship.

French premier [ministre], the first or chief minister of the crown.

Pre- (continued).

Pre-millennial, pre'mīl.lēn''nī.ıl, prior to the millennium.

Premise or premiss. Premises. Premise, premises.

Premise or premiss, prēm'īs, plu. prem'ises or prem'isses, the propositions from which an inference is deduced.

Premises, prēm'ī.zēz, lands and tenements.

Premise, pre.mīze', to assume beforehand; premises, pre.mī'.zēz; premised, pre.mīzed'; premis-ing (R. l. xix.), pre.mī'.zīng.

French premise, plu. premisses (in Logic), Latin præmitto supine præmissum, to promise or set down beforehand.

"Premises," the beginning of a deed setting forth the grantor and grantee, with the lands and tenements conveyed, hence the lands and tenements of an estate or occupation.

Premium, pre'mī.ım, the sum paid to an assurance company, a douceur, a sum of money over and above the price. (Latin præmium, reward; præ meo, to go before.)

(A premium is a sum of money paid beforehand to secure a purchase.)

Pre-mon'ish, to forewarn; premon'ished, premonish-ing.

Premonition, pre'mo.nīsh''ūn. Premunition, -mu.nīsh''un.

Premonition, previous notice or warning.

Premunition, anticipation of objections.

Premonitory, pre.mōn'ī.tō.ry. Premunitory, -mu'nī.tō.ry.

Premonitory, giving indications or signs beforehand.

Premunitory, defining a penalty that may be incurred.

Premon'itor; premonitive, pre.mōn'ī.tīv; ...tive-ly.

Latin præmōnitio, præmōnitōr, præmōnitum, præ-mōnēa.

Premunire, pre'.mu.nĩ''rě, the crime of introducing a foreign authority (as the pope's), a writ founded on the offence.

Premunition, pre'.mu.nĩsh''ǎn, anticipation of objections.

Premunitory, pre.mu'.nĩ.tǒ.ry, defining a penalty which may be incurred. (See above Premonish.)

Corruption of præmōnēri. From the words præmōnēri facias at the beginning of the writ (i.e., Cause [A B] to be forewarned that he appear before....). Præmuniri facias would mean "cause [A B] to be previously well-fortified."

Pre-occupy, pre.ǒk'.kũ.py, to take possession before another, to engage the time or services of another beforehand; preoccupies (R. xi.), -ǒk'.kũ.pize; preoccupied, -ku.pide; preoccupy-ing; preoccupancy, pre.ǒk'.kũ.pǎn.sy.

Preoccupation, pre'.ǒk.ku.pay''shũn, prior engagement.

Latin præoccupatio, præoccupāre supine præoccupātum.

Pre'-ordain', to predetermine; preordained' (3 syl.), preordain'-ing. Preordination, pre'.or.dĩ.nay''shũn.

Latin præordīnatio, præordīnāre (præordīnātor is a good word).

Prepaid (see Prepay.)

Pre-pare' (2 syl.), to make ready; prepared' (2 syl.); prepar-ing (R. xix.), pre.pair'.ing; prepar'-er, -pair'.er; preparedly, pre.pair'.ēd.ly; prepared-ness, -pair'.ēd.ness.

Preparation, prěp'.ǎ.ray''shũn, provision, readiness.

Preparative, pre.pǎr'rá.tiv; preparative-ly.

Preparatory, pre.pǎr'ra.tǒ.ry. (Obs. the a in -ra-.)

Latin præparatio, præparātorius, præparāre supine præparātum.

Pre-pay', (past) prepaid', (past part.) prepaid', to pay beforehand; prepay'-ment, payment in advance.

Pre and the French payer; Latin pago supine factum, to bargain.

Pre-pense' (2 syl., not pre.pence), premeditated.

Latin præ pendo supine pensum, to ponder beforehand.

One of the eight words in "-ense": con-dense, im-mense, sense, tense, with dis-pense, ex-pense, pre-pense, and recom-pense.

Pre-ponderate, pre.pǒn'.dě.rate, to outweigh; prepon'de-rāt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), prepon'derāt-ing.

Prepon'derant, prepon'derant-ly. Preponderance, pre.pǒn'.dě.rance; prepon'derancy, predominancy.

Preponderation, pre.pǒn'.dě.ray''shũn, predominance.

French préponderance, préponderant; Latin præponderāre.

Pre-position, prěp.o.zĩsh''ǎn, one of the "parts of speech"; preposition-al, prepositional-ly. (See Prepossession.)

Prepositive, pre.pǒz'.ĩ.tiv, put before. Prepos'itor.

Latin præpōsitio, præpōsitivus, præpōsitor (præ-pono).

Prepossess, pre'.pǒs.zes' (not pre'.pǒ.zes', a common error), to have or take previous possession; prepossessed, pre'.pǒs.zest; prepossess-ing, pre'.pǒs.zēs'.ing.

Prepossession, pre'pōs.zesh''ān. (See Preposition.)

Latin præ possessio (possideo, i.e., posse sedeo, able to settle there).

Pre-posterous, pre.pōs'.tērūs, out of reason, absurd; prepos'terous-ly; prepos'terous-ness, absurdity.

Latin præpostērus, hind-part foremost (præ-postērior).

Pre-requisite, pre.rēk'kwī.sīt, previously required.

Latin præ requisitus (præ requirere, to require previously).

Pre-rogative, pre.rōg'.ā.tīv, a privilege, a special right.

Latin præ rogativa. When the votes of the Roman centuries were taken, the names of the different centuries were put into a box and drawn; that first drawn was termed prærogativa, and was deemed of the utmost importance. Hence "prærogative" came to signify a special privilege, a peculiar favour.

Presage, (noun) prēs'sāge, (verb) pre.sāge' (Rule 1.), a presentiment, a foreboding, to forebode, to foreshow; presaged' (2 syl.), presag-ing (Rule xix.), pre.sāge'.ing; presag-er, pre.sāge'.er; presage'-ful.

Latin præsāgium, præsāgio (præ, sagio to scent or guess).

Presbyter, prēs'.bī.ter, a minister of the Church of Scotland; presbyterian, pres'.bī.tee''rī.ān, one of the Scotch church, a Calvinistic dissenter who admits of infant baptism; presbyte'rian-ism, the tenets of the presbyterians.

Presbytery, prēs'.bī.tē.ry, a council of presbyters.

Pres'byter-ship (-ship, office, rank); prēsbyte'rial.

Greek presbus, an elder, presbutēros, presbutērion.

Prescience, pre'shē.ense, foreknowledge; prescient, pre.shē.ent.

Latin præsciens gen. -scientis (præ scire, to know beforehand).

Prescribe, pre.skrībē', to set down for guidance, to order as a remedy; prescribed' (2 syl.), prescrib'-ing (Rule xix.), prescrib'-er. Prescript, pre'.skript, a law, a rule.

Prescription, pre.skrīp'.shūn. Prescriptive, pre.skrīp'.tīv, acquired by immemorial usage. Prescript'-ible.

Prescriptibility, pre.skrīp'.tī.bīl''ā.ty, contractibility.

Latin præscriptum, præscriptio (præ scribo, to write out beforehand). A prescription is a contract agreed upon beforehand.

Present, (noun) prez'.ent, (verb) pre.zent'.

Pres'ent (noun), not absent, at hand, a gift, a warning.

Present' (verb), to give, to introduce [at court]; present'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), present'-ing, present'-er, present'-able.

Presence, prež'.ence. Presents, prež'.ents, gifts.

Pres'ence, state of being present, port or mien, an assembly in a court reception. The presence chamber.

Present-ly, prež'.ent.ly, by and by, before long.

Presentation, prež'.ēn.tay''shūn, act of presenting, a gift, right or act of nominating to a school or benefice, an "exhibition." Presentee, prĕz'.en.tĕ', one presented to a benefice, &c. At pres'ent, now. Present' arms!

Latin præsens gen. præsentis (præ sum, to be pres'ent), præsentatio, præsentia, v. præsentāre, to present'.

Presentiment, pre.zĕn'.tĭ.ment. Presentment, pre.zĕnt'.ment.

Presentiment, apprehension of evil, foreboding (French).

Presentment, appearance, presentation. (See Present.)

Preserve, pre.zerv', a jam, a place for game, to keep, to make into a jam; preserved' (2 syl.), preserv'-ing (Rule xix.), preserv'-er, preserv'-able; preservative, pre.zer'.vĕ.tiv.

Preservation, prĕz'.er.vay''.shŭn, keeping, conservation.

Preservatory, -zer'.vŭ.tō.ry. Conservatory, -ser'.va.to.ry.

Preservatory (adj.), having conservative properties.

Conservatory (noun), a hot house, a green house.

Fr. préserver, préservatif; Lat. præservāre, to preserve, to defend.

Preside, pre.zide', to take the "chair," to act as president; presid'-ed (R. xxxvi.); presid-ing (R. xix.), pre.zide'.ing.

Presidency, prez'.ĭ.dĕn.sy. Precedency, pre.see'.dĕn.sy.

Pres'idency, the office of president, the term of office.

Prece'dency, the right of priority or going before another.

President, prĕz'.ĭ.dĕnt. Precedent, pre.see'.dĕnt, prez'.ĕ.dĕnt.

Pres'idĕnt, the person who presides, the head of the U.S.

Prece'dĕnt, previous, former. (Lat. præ-cedo, to go before.)

Precedĕnt, prez'.ĕ.dĕnt, a rule for future guidance.

President-ship (-ship, office). Presidential, prez'.ĭ.dĕn''.shŭl.

Latin præses gen. præsidis, a president, præsideo [sedeo], to sit before others. "Precedent," Latin præcedo, to go before others.

Presignify, pre.sĭg'.nĭ.fy, to intimate or show beforehand; presignifies, pre.sĭg'.nĭ.fize; presignified, -sig'.nĭ.fide; presig'nify-ing. Presignification, -sig'.nĭ.fĭ.kay''.shŭn.

Latin præsignificāre, significātio, (præ signum ficto [fācio]).

Press (R. v.), a machine for pressing, a machine for printing, to squeeze, to urge; pressed, prest; prest (adj.), press'-ing, press'-ing-ly, press'-er. Pressure, presĥ'.ur; pressur-age, presĥ'.ur.age, the juice of the grape extracted at the press.

The press, authors (collectively). Gone to press, in the press.

Press-man, plu. press-men, one who works at the press.

Press-bed, a bed which may be enclosed in a case.

Press-money, -mŭn'.y, money given to engage a man for the army; press-gang, a gang employed to kidnap men into the naval service; press-work, the work of taking impressions on paper from type. Pressing-iron,

Liberty of the press, the right of publishing without licence.

Latin prēmo supine pressum, to press. German presse, v. pressen.

"Press-money," a corruption of prest-money; that is, ready money.

Fr. prest now prêt. Ital. presto, Lat. præsto, ready at hand.

Prestige (Fr.), prēs'.teej, éclat, the influence of past events.

Presto, prēs'.to (in Music), very quick; prestis'simo (super.)

Presume, pre.zūme', to take for granted, to act presumptuously;
presūmed' (2 syl.), presum-ing (Rule xix.), pre.zū'ming;
presūm'ing-ly; presum-er, pre.zū'mer.

Presum-able, pre.zū'.mä.b'l; presū'mably.

Presumption, pre.zūmp'.shūn. Ar'rogance. In'solence.

Presumption, assumption of what one has no claim to.

Arrogance, assumption of more than one has any claim to.

Insolence, conduct not consistent with the usages of society.

Presumptive, pre.zūmp'.tīv; presumptively.

Presumptuous, pre.zūmp'.tū.ūs. Ar'rōgant. In'solent.

Presumptuous, assuming without right or title.

Arrogant, overstepping the limits of one's just position.

Insolent, acting in a way unusual in society.

A young man who takes to task his betters is presumptuous.

A critic who presumes to advise as well as criticise is arrogant.

A servant who treats his master as an equal is insolent.

Presumptuously-ly, pre.zūmp'.tu.ūs.ly; presumptuous-ness.

Presumptive evidence, circumstantial or moral evidence.

Heir presumptive, air..., one who will be heir unless one is born who will have a superior claim.

Latin præsumptio, præsumptuosus, præ-sumo supine -sumptum, to assume [a position] before it is gained.

Pretend, pre.tend', to hold out falsely, to presume; pretend'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), pretend'-ing, pretend'ing-ly, pretend'-er.

Pretence, pre.tense'; pretence-less, without pretence.

Pretension, pre.tēn'.shūn (R. xxxiii.), a claim true or false.

Pretentious, pre.tēn'.shūs (a word of the 19th century);
preten'tious-ly; preten'tious-ness, empty assumption.

Latin prætendo supine prætensum, to stretch a coverlet over, to hang a curtain before, hence to hide, to falsify.

Preter-, pre'.ter- (Lat. prefix), contrary to, by, beyond, more than.

Preter-imperfect (in Eng. gram. called imperfect), that tense which refers to an act now finished, but not at the time referred to. (Latin tempus præteritum imperfectum.)

Preterite, prēt'.er.īt (in Gram.), the tense which refers to an act done in time past, or to a habit of a previous period. (In English Grammar called the Past tense.)

In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth (Gen. i. 1).

His sons went and feasted in their houses, every one his day (Job i. 4).

Latin tempus præteritum, the time [of the act referred to] past.

Preter-mit, pre'ter.mit', to pass by; preter-mitt'-ed, preter-mitt'-ing. Pretermission, pre'ter.mish''.un.

Latin prætermisso, prætermitto, to pass over or by.

Preter-natural, pre'ter-nāt' tchūr.rāl, contrary to nature; preter-nat'ural-ly, preter-nat'ural-ness.

Latin præter naturālis, out of the natural [order of things].

Preter-perfect (in Eng. Grammar called perfect, preterite or past). (Latin tempus præteritum. See Preterite.)

Preter-plu'perfect (In Eng. Grammar called pluperfect or Past Tense Complete), sign had. It refers to an act finished at a time now past.

Latin tempus præteritum plusquam perfectum.

Pretext, pre'text, a pretence. (Lat. prætexta, an embroidered robe.)

The prætextæ were dramas in which actors personated those who wore the prætexta, hence a "pretence."

Pretty, prīt'.ty (not prēt'.ty), comp. pretti-er, super. pretti-est, nice looking, agreeable to the eye; pretti-ly, prīt'.tī.ly; pretti-ness. (Old English præte, adorned, pretty.)

Prevail, pre.vail', to be in force, to overcome, to gain the advantage; prevailed, pre.vaild'; prevail'-ing, prevail'-ing-ly. (The other derivatives omit the -i-.)

Prevalent, prēv'.a.lent; prev'alent-ly, currently, generally.

Prevalence, prēv'.ā.lence; prevalence, predominance.

Latin prævalentia, prævalēre, prævalens genitive prævalentis.

Prevaricate, pre.vār'.rī.kate, to shuffle [in words]; prevar'icāt-ed (R. xxxvi.), prevar'icāt-ing (R. xix.), prevar'icāt-or.

Prevarication, -vār'.rī.kay''.shūn, evading the disclosure of the truth. (Latin prævāricāri, varico, to straddle.)

The word was first applied to men who ploughed crooked ridges, and then to those who gave crooked answers (Pliny xviii. 49).

Prevent, pre.vent', to obstruct, to hinder (at one time it also meant to go before, to precede); prevent'-ed, prevent'-ing, prevent'-ing-ly, prevent'-er, prevent'-able (Rule xxiii.)

Prevention (not prevension, Rule xxxiii.), pre.vēn'.shūn.

Preventive (not preventative), pre.vēn'.tīv; prevent'ive-ly.

Lat. præventio, prævenio sup. præventum (præ venio, to go before).

Previous, pre'.vī.ūs, prior [in time]; pre'vious-ly, previous-ness.

To move the previous question, an ingenious way of burking a troublesome motion. (Latin prævious.)

Take for example: "A" moves that the income-tax be abolished. "B" moves that the civil list be first presented. "A" presses his measure, and "C" divides the House on the previous question (that is, that the civil list be first presented).

PREVIOUS or PREVIOUSLY (?). "A quarter's notice required previous or previously (?) to the removal of a pupil." Previous is correct. Obs. "previous-to" is one word, meaning preceding, and by substitution the difficulty will be solved at once: "A quarter's notice preceding [not precedingly] the removal of a pupil is required. The sentence means notice of a person's intention to remove a pupil must be given three months before the removal itself takes place, or three months preceding the removal itself.

"Sound from the mountain, previous to the storm Rolls o'er the muttering earth" (Thomson).

Pre-warn, pre.worn', to warn beforehand; prewarned, -wornd'; prewarn'-ing (pre with Anglo-Saxon wyrn[an], to warn.)

Prey, pray, spoil, carion. Pray, to implore.

Prey (verb); preyed, praid; prey'-ing, to feed on carion.

Pray, prayed, praid; pray'-ing, to use prayer.

"Prey" Welsh praid; Lat. præda. "Pray," Fr. prier, Lat. precâri.

Price, value, cost; priced (1 syl.), marked with the price, valued.

High-priced, dear; low-priced, cheap; price-less, invaluable.

Welsh pris, rate, value; Latin præitium (Greek praô, to sell).

Prick, a wound with a small pointed instrument, a spine, a goad, to pierce with a pin, needle, goad, &c.; pricked (1 syl.), prick'-ing, prick'-er. To prick up the ears, to listen with suddenly roused attention.

Old English prica or pricca, v. pricitan, past pricode, p. p. pricod.

Prickle, prîk'kl, a small spine or splinter; prick'li-ness (Rule xi.); prick'ly pear, Indian fig. (Old English priccle.)

Pride (1 syl.), hauteur, arrogance. Pried, pride (of v. pry).

I pride myself on, I think much of; prid'-ed, prid'-ing.

Proud (adj.), proud'-ly, proud'-ish (-ish added to adj. is diminutive, added to nouns it means "like").

Old English prût, pryt or prjd, prûtlic (adj.), prûtlice (adv.)

Priest, fem. priest-ess, preest, prees'tess, one who performs sacrifice, a clergyman in full orders, a minister who performs mass; priest'-ly, sacerdotal, arrogant; priestli-ness (Rule xi.), priest-like; priest-craft, the trickery or frauds of priests to gain influence. Priest-hood, the clergy considered collectively (-hood, office, rank); priest-ridden, in religious bondage.

Old Eng. preost, preosthdd; Lat. præstes (præsto, to stand over others).

Prig, a conceited mannikin, to pilfer; prigged (1 syl.), prigg'-ing (Rule i.), prigg'-er. Prigg'ery or prigg'-ism, foppery; prigg'-ish, like a prig (-ish added to nouns means "like," added to adj. it is dim.); priggish-ly, priggish-ness.

"Prig," contraction of prag(matical). "Prig" (to steal), Fr. prendre.

Prim, precise, finically nice. Prime, first-rate, to charge. (super.) primm'-est, prim'-ness, prim'-ly. (See Primer.)

Latin primores, the gentry, military officers, &c.

The idea is, dressed as precisely as an officer or fine gentleman.

Prima donna (Italian), prĕ'mah dŏn'nah, the best female operatic singer; primo musico, the best male singer.

Primacy, prī'mă.sy, rank or office of a primate.

Primate, prī'mate, an archbishop or bishop of a province;
primates (2 syl.), the genus man, ape, monkey, and bat.

Primate of all England, archbishop of Canterbury.

Primate of England, archbishop of York.

The Archbishop of Canterbury has jurisdiction over the province of York as well as over the rest of England. The Archbishop of York has jurisdiction over his own province only.

Primate-ship (-ship, office, jurisdiction, rank of).

Primal, prī'may'.shĭ'ăl, adj. of primate.

Primal, prī'măl, original, first, the earliest.

Primary, prī'mă.ry, first in order, rank, time, &c.

Primari-ly (R. xi.), prĭ'mă.rĭ.ly, in the first place, chiefly.

Primary colours, -kŭl'ers, red, yellow, and blue.

Primary plan'ets, those which revolve round the sun.

(A satellite [săt'.ĕl.lite] revolves round a planet.)

Primary qualities, -kwŏl'ĭ.tĭz, those inseparable from a body. Primary rocks, the azoic (a.zŏ'.ĭk) rocks.

French primat, primatial, primaire, primatie; Latin prĭmas gen. prĭmātis, a nobleman, prĭmārius (primus, first, chief).

Prime (1 syl.), the first part of the day, first rate, to charge a gun;
primed (1 syl.), prim'-ing (R. xix.), prime'-ly, prime'-ness;
prime-min'ister, chief minister of state; prime mover,
-mŏo'ver, a machine which works other machines;
prime number, a number indivisible (except by 1).

Primer, prĭm'er, a child's first book, the type used at one time in prayer books and office books called prĭmers.

Old English prĭm, prime, the first hour of the day; Latin prĭmus.

To prime a gun, to prime canvas, &c., is to prepare it, to do the first thing required before it can be used.

Prim-, primo- before cons. (Lat. prefix), first, original, early.

(Primo- is a French corruption or debased Latin form for primi-.)

Prim-eval, prĭ.mĕ'.văl, of the earliest age or time, original.

Latin prĭmævus, prĭmus ævus, the first age.

Primitive, prĭm'.ĭ.tĭv, pristine, old-fashioned, original;
prim'itive-ly, prim'itive-ness. (Obs. -mi- not -ma-.)

Latin prĭmĭtĭvus (from prĭmĭtus (adv.), at the first).

Primo, plu. primos (Ital.), prĕ'.mo, plu. prĕ'.mŏze, first;

Primo-buffo (Ital.), first comic actor or singer;

Primo-mu'sico (Ital.), principal male singer; primadonna, principal female singer in the opera.

Tempo-primo, tem'.po prĕ'.mo, in the original time;

Violino-primo, ve.o.lee'.no prĕ'.mo, first violin.

Primo-genial, prī.mo-djē'.nī.āl, primary;

Primogenitor, prī.mo-djēn''.ī.tor (Rule xxxvii.), the root of the original family, the first of the race; primogeniture, prī.mo-djēn''.ī.tchūr, the right inherent in an eldest son to inherit; primogeniture-ship.

These words are copied from the French primogéniture, in Latin primigénitus, primigénia, &c. (-ship Old Eng., state, right of.)

Prim-ordial, prī.mōr'.dī.āl, existing from the first, first in order, original; the first [true leaves of a plant].

Lat. primordiālis, primordium (primo ordior, I begin from the first).

Prim'-rose (2 syl.), a spring flower. (Latin primus rōsa.)

Prī'mus, the presiding bishop of the Scotch Church.

Prince (1 syl.), fem. princ-ess, prīn'.cess, the son and daughter of a sovereign, a Continental title of rank. Principāl'ity; the territory which gives a prince his title; prince-dom, -dum, the sovereignty or jurisdiction of a prince; prince'-ly, prince'li-ness (Rule xi.), prince's feather, a flower (one of the amaranth species); the prince's feathers, a plume of three feathers (Prince of Wales);

Prince of Wales, eldest son of the British sovereign.

Prince's met'al, an imitation of gold (copper and zinc).

Fr. prince, princesse; Lat. princeps, principālitās, principālis.

Principal, prīn'.sī.pāl, chief. Principle, prīn'.sī.p'l, motive.

Principal, the head master, the capital of a sum of money placed out at interest; prin'cipal-ly, chiefly.

Principality, prīn'.sī.pāl''.ī.ty, the territory which gives a prince his title. Principalities, -pāl''.ī.tīz, potentates.

Latin principālis, principālitās (princeps, a chief).

Principia, prīn.sīp'.ī.ah, first principles. Newton's great book.

Principle, prīn'.sī.p'l, motive. Principal, prīn'.sī.pāl, chief.

Principle, the cause or origin, an element, a fundamental truth, an established rule of action, a tenet or doctrine.

Latin principium, a maxim or principle (princeps, a chief).

Prink, to prank; prinked (1 syl.), prink-ing. (Old Eng. princ.)

Print, an engraving, an impression from type, to express by type, to stamp a fabric, to publish; print'-ed (R. xxxvi.), print'-ing, print'-er; print'-less, leaving no impression.

Letter-press printing, printing by movable types or letters.

Stereotype printing, stēr'rē.o.type, mould printing.

A stereotype is a metal plate the exact model of a letter-press.

Out of print, all copies sold. Printing office, printing-paper, printing-press. Print-seller, one who sells engravings; print-shop, a shop where engravings are sold.

Impression, im.prēsh'.un, a copy of type set up.

Contraction of imprint; Lat. imprīmo sup. -pressum, to engrave, &c.

- Pri'or, fem. prior-ess, pri'.ôr ress, the superior of a convent or nunnery, anterior [in time], previous; prior-ship (-ship, office, dignity); priorate, pri'.o.rate, office of prior.
- Priory, plu. priories (R. xlv.), pri'.ô.rîz, convent or nunnery.
- Priority, pri'.ôr'ri.ty, prece'dence in rank, time, or place.
French prieur, priorat. "Prior" (adj.), Latin prior.
- Prise (1 syl.) Pries (v. pry). Prize, a gift, to value highly.
- Prise, to force open with a lever; prised (1 syl.); pris-ing (Rule xix.), prîze'ing; pris-er, prîze'-er.
French priser, to grip, prise, a hold, a grip, a purchase or leverage: as Il n'y a point de prise, there is no purchase or grip. See Prize.
- Prism, prîzm, an optical instrument; prismatic, prîz.mû't'îk; prismatical, prîz.mû't'î.kâl; prismat'ical-ly, prismatic colours, iridescence produced by analysed light.
- Prismoid, prîz'.moid, a figure like a prism; prismoid'-al.
French prisme; Greek prisma (prîô, to saw or cut), prisma-eidos.
- Prison, prîz'n, a jail; pris'on-er, prison-house.
Impris'on, to put into prison; imprisoned. (O. E. prisun.)
- Pristine, prîs'.tîn (not prîs'tine), original. (Latin pristînus.)
- Prithée, prîh'.ey, "I pray thee," If you please.
- Private, pri'.vate, not public. Privet, prîv'.et, an evergreen.
- Private, a common soldier. not engaged in business; private-ly, private-ness. Privacy, prîv'.a.sy, retirement.
- Privateer, pri'.va.teer', an armed ship belonging to a private person sailing with licence to attack a foe; privateer-ing, cruising about in a privateer.
- Privation, pri.vay'.shûn, hardship, deprivation.
- Privative, prîv'.a.tîv, not positive, a particle denoting the absence of something; priv'ative-ly.
Latin privâtio, privâtivus, privâtus, v. privâre, to take away.
- Privet, prîv'.et, an evergreen shrub. Private, pri'.vate (see above).
"Privet," Old English pryfetes. "Private," Latin privâtus.
- Privilege, pri.v'i.ledge, a special benefit; privileged, pri.v'î.ledgd.
Introduced in 1137, and appears in the Sax. Chr. as priviligies.
Fr. privilegé, Lat. privilegium (priva lex gen. légis, private law).
- Privy, prîv'.y, assigned to private uses, not public, secret, admitted to the joint knowledge of some secret; priv'i-ly.
- Privy, prîv'î.ty. Privy chamber, a private room in a palace. Privy council, the state council of the British sovereign; privy coun'cillor, one of the privy council.
- Privy purse, the gentleman who has charge of the money set apart for the sovereign's private use, the money itself.
- Privy seal, the seal used by the sovereign in subordinate matters. Great seal, the more important national seal.
- Lord privy seal, the principal Secretary of State.
Latin prîvus, particular, peculiar to oneself; French privé,

Prize (1 syl.) Prise, prize, to force open. Pries (v. pry).

Prize, reward of merit, spoil or plunder, to value highly; prized (1 syl.), priz'-ing (Rule xi.), prize-book; prize-fighter, -fite'-er, a public boxer; prize-fighting, prize-man; prize-money, -mūn'.y; prize-ring.

"Prize," Fr. prix v. priser. "Prise," Fr. prise, a purchase or leverage.

Pro and con, plu. pros and cons, [arguments] for and against (Lat.)

Probable, prōb'.a.b'l, likely, credible; prob'ably, in all likelihood.

Probability, plu. probabilities, prōb'.ā.bīl''ī.tiz, likelihood.

Latin probabilis, probābilitas (v. probo, to prove or approve).

Probate, prō'.bātē, an official copy [of a will] with a certificate of its having been proved. Court of Probate. Probate duty, plu. ...duties, dū'.tiz, fees for proving a will.

Probation, pro.bay'.shūn, time of trial, approval;

Proba'tion-āl; proba'tion-āry, serving for test;

Probationer, pro.bay'.shun.er. Probator, pro.bay'.tor.

Probationer, one under a test of approval, a student (in Scotland) licensed to preach, but not ordained;

Probator, an examiner, one who undertakes to prove a charge. Probatory, prō'.ba.tō.ry, serving for trial; probatory term, time for taking testimony.

Probe (1 syl.), an instrument for examining a wound, &c., to search or examine with a probe; probed (1 syl.), prōb'-ing (R. xix.), prōb'-er; probe-scissors, -sīz'.zers.

Lat. probāto, probātor, probāre sup. probātum, to test, to prove.

Probity, prōb'.ī.ty, honesty. (Latin prōbitas, prōbus, honest.)

Problem, Theorem, prōb'.lēm, thē'.o.rēm.

Problem, a question of doubt to be solved, (in Geom.) something to be constructed. Theorem, something to be proved.

Problematic, prōb'.lē.māt''īk; problematical, -lē.māt''ī.kāl; problematical-ly. Theoretic, thē'.ō.rēt''īk; retical.

Latin problēma, problēmātīcus; Greek problēma, problēmātikōs.

Pro-, pur-, prod- before vowels (Lat. and Gk. prefix), for, before.

Pro-boscis, plu. pro-boscises (not probosces), pro.bos'.sīs.ēz, the trunk of an elephant or insect; proboscidian, prō'.bōs.sīd''ī.ān, an animal with a proboscis.

Latin proboscis, plu. probosides (not probosces); Greek probōskēs (pro before, boskō I feed, the feeding instrument before the mouth).

Pro-ceed', to go forward; proceed'-ed, proceed'-ing.

Proceed'ings, transactings, legal action, plans.

Procedure, pro.see'.djūr. (Should be proceedure.)

Proceeds, prōs'seedz, amount of money received.

(Of the verbs derived from the Latin cēdo (to go), three are spelt -ceed and eight -cede. The three are exceed, proceed, and succeed. The eight are accede and concede, antecede and intercede, precede, recede, retrocede, and secede. The word supersede is from another root, sedeo, to sit (to sit over others). They should all be spelt -eed. "Procedure" is neither one thing nor another.

Latin pro-cedo, to go forwards, procēdens, procēdentia (see below).

Pro-cess, prōs'sēs (not prō'sēs), course of operation, a projecting part of a bone, a protuberance. In process of time, at a future period. In process, begun but not completed.

Pro-cession, pro.ses'k'ŭn, a cortège; proces'sion-āl, proces'sional-ly; proces'sion-ary, processional.

Latin processus, processio, procēdo supine processum (see above).

"Procession" introduced in 1154 from the Fr. In the Sax. Chron.

Pro-chronism, prōk'.ro.nizm, antedating an event.

Meta- or Para-chronism, post-dating an event.

Ana-chronism, a.nāk'.ro.nizm, misdating an event.

Greek pro- before, meta- after, para- beyond, ana- without, chronos, [right] time or date.

Pro-claim', to announce in public; proclaimed' (2 syl.), proclaim'-ing; proclaim'-er, one who proclaims;

Proclamation, prōk'.lă.may''.shŭn, official declaration.

Latin pro clāmāre, to cry forth, i.e., in public; proclāmatio.

Pro-clivity, plu. proclivities, pro.klīv'.ĭ.tĭz, inclination.

Latin pro clivus, down hill, proclivitas, propensity.

"Inclination" is in clino, to bend towards.

"Propensity" is pro pendeo, to hang forwards.

Pro-con'sul [of Rome], governor of a province, one who acts as a consul without being one; procon'sular; proconsulate, pro.kon'.sŭ.late, province or office of a proconsul; proconsul-ship (-ship, tenure, office of).

Pro-crastinate, pro.krās'.tĭ.nate, to defer; procras'tināt-ed (R. xxxvi.), procras'tināt-ing (R. xix.), procras'tināting-ly, procras'tināt-or (R. xxxvii.) Procrastination, -nay'.shŭn.

Latin procrastinatio, procrastināre (pro cras, for to-morrow).

Pro-create, prōk'.kre.ate, to generate; proc'reāt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), proc'reāt-ing (R. xix.), proc'reāt-or (R. xxxvii.)

Procreation, prōk'.kre.ā''.shŭn. Proc'reant, prōk'.krē.ant; procreative, prōk'.krē.ā.tĭv; procreative-ness.

Latin procreatio, procreator, pro-creāre, to produce.

Procrustean, pro.krūs'.tĕ.ăn (not pro'.krūs.tee''.an), pertaining to Procrustēs, a robber of Greece who stretched or mutilated every one he caught to a standard length.

Proctor, prōk'.tor (Rule xxxvii.), in the Universities a graduate who acts as street censor over the students out of college (he is attended by two servants called his "bull dogs"); in law a manager of another person's affairs.

A contraction of procūrator (Latin), an attorney, a proctor.

Pro-, prod- before vowels (continued).

Pro-cumbent, pro.kũm'.bent, prostrate, lying down.

Latin pro-cumbens genitive -cumbentis, pro cumbo, to lie all along.

Pro-cure, pro.kũre', to obtain; procured' (2 syl.), procur-ing (Rule xix.), pro.kure'-ing; procure'-able, procure'-ment.

Procũr'-er, fem. procũr'-ess, one who panders to another's licentiousness. Procuration, prõk'kũ.ray''shũn, visitation fees paid to a bishop or archdeacon.

Procurator, prõk'ku.rũ.tor, a proctor; procurator-ship (-ship, office, rank of); procuratorial, -ku.ra.tõ''rũ.ũl; procuratory, prõk'ku.ra.tõ.ry.

Latin pro-cũrũre, to take charge for another, procuratio, procurator.

Pro-cyon, prõs'.ĩ.on (not pro.sĩ'on), a bright star in the constellation Canis Minor.

Greek pro kuon, [the star which rises] before the Dog star (Sirtus).

Prod-igal, prõd'.ĩ.gũl, a spendthrift, lavish; prod'igal-ly.

Prodigality, plu. prodigalities (R. xlv.), prõd'.ĩ.gũl''ĩ.tĩz.

Latin prõdĩgũlĩtas, prõdĩgũlis (pro[d]igo[ago], to drive forth).

Prod-igious, prõ.dĩdĩg'.us, monstrous, extraordinary; prodigious-ly; prodigious-ness, enormous size.

Prodigy, plu. prodigies, prõd'.ĩ.dĩĩz, a wonder, portent.

Latin prõdĩgium (pro[d]igo[ago]), a [wonderful] production.

Produce, (noun) prõd'duce, (verb) pro.dũse'.

Prod'uce, amount, profit, that which is brought forth.

Produce', to bear, generate, bring forth, to lengthen;

produced' (2 syl.); produc-ing (R. xix.), pro.dũ'sing;

produc-er, pro.dũ'ser. Produc-ible, pro.dũ'sĩ.b'l.

Product, prõd'dũct (not pro'.duct), result.

Production, pro.dũk'.shũn, work, fruit, composition.

Productive, pro.dũk'.tĩv; productive-ly, -ness.

Lat. prõ-dũco, to stretch forth; prõductio, prõductĩlis, prõdux, -ũcis.

Pro-em, a preface, introduction to a book; proe'mĩal.

Greek pro-oimĩon, an overture, an exordium (oĩmos, a road).

Pro-fũne (2 syl.), irreverent, impious, to desecrate, to defile;

profaned' (2 syl.), profãn'-ing (Rule xix.), profãn'-er.

Profanation, prõf'fũ.nay''shũn, desecration.

Profane'-ly; profane'-ness, irreverence of holy things.

Profanity, plu. profanities (Rule xlv.), pro.fãn'.ĩ.tĩz.

Latin pro fanum, before the temple, not in it, not admitted into the temple; prõfanatio, prõfanũre.

Pro-fess', to say, to announce; professed, pro.fest'; profest', acknowledged; professed-ly, pro.fẽs'.sẽd.ly; profess-ing

- Profess'-or (Rule xxxvii.), one appointed by authority to teach; profess'or-ship; professorial, pro'fēs.sō''.rī.āl.
- Profession, pro.fēsh'.ūn, a vocation where learning is the "stock in hand"; profession-al, profess'ional-ly.
- The learned professions, lern'.ed pro.fesh'.ūnz, divinity, law, medicine, and advanced teaching.
- Latin prōfessio, prōfessor, pro-fiteor [fāteor], to confess publicly.
- Proffer, prōf'.fer, to offer, to tender; proffered (2 syl.), proffer-ing, proffer-er. (Latin pro-fero, to hold forth.) (The double f in this word is a blunder, arising from a confusion of the word with offer. "Of-fer" is a compound of ob-fer, but "pro[ff]er" is not a compound of prob-fer; French proférer.)
- Profile, prō'.feel, an outline portrait of a side face; profiled, prō'.feeld, done in profile. (French profil.)
- Silhouette, sīl'.oo.ēt'', a black profile. (A man's name.)
- Fr. profil, a corruption of pourfil, [shown] by a thread or outline.
- Profit, prōf'.it, gain. Prophet, prōf'.et, one who predicts.
- Profit, to render or derive benefit; profit-ed (R. xxxvi.), profit-ing, profit-able, profit-able-ness, profit-ably, profit-less, profitless-ly.
- "Profit," Fr. profit, profiter, profitable; Lat. profectus, proficio.
- "Prophet," Gk. prōphētēs (pro phēmī, to pre-dict); Lat. prophēta.
- Pro-fligate, prōf'.lī.gate, a dissolute person, dissolute; profligate-ly; profligate-ness, dissipation, profligacy; profligacy, plu. profligacies, prōf'.lī.gā.sīz.
- Lat. pro-fligāre, to cast down [everything] before [one's self-indulgence].
- Pro-found', learned, deep; profound'-ly, profound'-ness.
- Profundity, pro.fūn'.dī.ty, deep and exact knowledge.
- Latin Pro i.e. procul fundo, far from the bottom, profunditas.
- Pro-fuse, pro.fūce', lavish; profuse'-ly; profuse'-ness.
- Profusion, pro.fū'.zhūn. (Lat. pro fundo, to pour forth.)
- Pro-geny, plu. progenies (R. xlv.), prōdg'.ē.ny, plu. -ē.nīz, offspring. Progenitor, pro.djēn'.ī.tor, an ancestor.
- Lat. prōgēnēs, prōgēnītor ("progenies," offspring of a fore-father).
- Pro-gnathous, prōg.nay'.rhūs, having projecting cheek bones or jaws; prognathic, prōg.nāth'.īk; prognathism, prōg.nā'.rhīzm. (Gk. pro gnathos, forward cheeks or jaws.)
- Pro-gnosis, prōg.nō'.sīs. Diagnosis, dī.ag.nō''.sīs.
- Prognosis, knowledge of premonitory symptoms.
- Diagnosis, discrimination of different symptoms.
- Prognostic, prōg.nōs'.tīk, indicative. Prognostics, signs.
- Prognosticate, prōg.nōs'.tī.kāte, to forebode, to foretell; prognos'ticat-ed (R. xxxvi.), prognos'ticat'-ing (R. xix.)
- Prognostication, prōg.nōs'.tī.kay''.shūn, prediction.
- Prognosticat-or (R. xxxvii.), prōg.nōs'.tī.kay'.tor.
- Latin prognōsis, plu. prognostica, prognosticare (Gk. pro ginōskō),

Programme, prō'.grām, a bill of proceedings (French).

Greek pro grammā, a public notice (pro-grapho). We write telegram, epigram, monogram, diagram, &c.

Progress, (noun) prōg'.rēs, (verb) pro.grēs'.

Prog'ress, advancement, improvement, onward course.

Progress', to advance, to improve; progressed' (2 syl.), progress'-ing. Progression, pro.grēsh'ăn, onward movement; progression-al, pro.grēsh'ăn.ăl; progressive, pro.grēs'.siv; progressive-ly, progressive-ness.

Lat. progressio, progressus, v. progredior (pro gradus, a step forwards).

Pro-hibit, pro.hīb'īt, to forbid; prohib'it-ed (Rule xxxvi.), prohib'it-ing, prohib'it-er; prohibit-ive, pro.hīb'īt.īv.

Prohibition, prō'.hīb'sh'ăn; prohibition-ist.

Prohibitory, pro.hīb'īt.ō.ry, containing a prohibition.

Lat. prohibētio, prohibitor, prohibitorius, pro-hibeo [habeo], to forbid.

Pro-ject, (noun) prōd'.jēkt, (verb) pro.jēkt'.

Proj'ect, a scheme; project', to cast forwards, to jut over, to contrive, to draw; project'-ed (R. xxxvi.), project'-ing.

Projection, pro.djēk'.shūn, a scheme, a part jutting out, a plan, the casting in of the powder which alchemists expected would convert baser metals into gold.

Projectile, pro.djēk'.tīl, a missile. Projectiles, that branch of mechanics which treats of missiles or bodies hurled.

Project'-or, one who plans. Projecture, pro.djēk'.tchūr, a jutting out beyond the plane of the general surface.

Latin prōjectio, prōjecta, prō-jicio [jacio], to cast forwards.

Pro-lap'sus, a protrusion of some internal organ through the skin; prolapse, pro.lāps', to protrude; prolapsed' (2 syl.); prolapse'-ing. (Lat. pro-labor, lapsus, to slip forwards.)

Pro'-lāte (2 syl.), lengthened, extended beyond the line of an exact sphere; prolate spheroid, -sfē'.roid, elongated at the poles. Oblate spheroid, flattened at the poles.

Latin prolātus (pro fero supine -lātum, to carry forwards).

Pro-legomena, prōl'.ē.gōm''.ē.nah, an introductory dissertation; prolegomenary, prōl'.ē.gōm''.ē.nā.ry, introductory.

Greek prolegomena, things to be said first (pro légo, to say before).

Pro-lepsis, pro.lēp'.sīs (in Composition), forethought, anticipation of objections, putting the whole first and the parts afterwards: as "both eagles flew away, one to the east and the other to the west."

By this figure of speech adjectives are often substituted for adverbs: as I arrived safe. As much as to say, "You are anxious to know if I am 'safe,' I will relieve that fear by assuring you that I arrived 'safe' and sound." I arrived safely would be good grammar, but would be simply a piece of news, without any regard to the supposed anxiety referred to. Greek pro lépsis, anticipation.

Proletaire, pro'.lě.tair, one of the lowest grade of society; proletariat, pro'.lě.tair''rě.ăt, the lowest grade; proleta- riān, pro'.lě.tair''rě.ăn, mean, vulgar; proletair-ism, pro'.lě.tair''rizm. (French proletaire.)

The Roman proletarii were too base even for common soldiers.
 Gellius says, xvi. 10, "Proletarii dicuntur, quod raro ad militiam conscriberentur, sed procreandæ prolis gratia in urbe linquerentur."

Pro-liferous, pro.lif'.ě.rūs (in Bot.), said of buds which become viviparous, and leaves which produce buds.

Prolific, pro.lif'.ĭk, fruitful, productive; prolif'ic-ness.

Prolification, pro.lif'.ĭ.kay''shŭn, growth of a second flower out of the substance of the first.

Fr. prolifère, prolifique (Lat. proles-ficio [făcio], to make offspring).

Pro'-lix, tediously long, diffuse; prolix-ly, prolix-ness.

Proximity, pro.lix'.ĭ.ty. (Latin prolixus, prolixitas.)

Pro-lixo [laxo], to loose forth, that is, to set quite free.

Pro-locutor, pro.lŏk'kŭ.tor (not pro'.o.kŭ'.tor), the chairman of convocation; proloc'utor-ship (-ship, office of).

Latin proloquor, prolocutus, to speak forth, to speak freely.

Prologue, pro'.lŏg, a short copy of verses preceding a drama.

French prologue. This French termination should be abolished, it only misleads. Latin prolog[us], Greek prŏlŏg[os], Danish prolog.

Pro-long', to lengthen out; prolonged' (2 syl.), prolong'-ing, prolong'-er. Prolongate, pro.lŏn'.gate, to extend, to continue; prolongât-ed (Rule xxxvi.), prolongât-ing.

Prolongation, pro'.lŏn.gay''shŭn, continuation.

Latin pro-longāre, to lengthen out, to defer, to continue.

Pro-lusion, pro.lŭ'.zhŭn, a prolegomena, an introductory essay, the flourish before a concert, fence before a match.

Latin proludĕre supine -lŭsum, the play before [the set to].

Promenade, prom'.ě.năhd'', a fashionable walk for pleasure, to walk for fashion-sake; promenăd''-ed (Rule xxxvi.), promenăd''-ing (Rule xix.), promenăd''-er.

French pro-mener, to drive forth, to lead or conduct out.

Promethean, pro.meeth'.ě.ăn (not pro'.mĕ.rhee''.ăn), adj. of Prometheus (pro.mĕe''.rhŭce), invigorating by fire.

Pro-, prod- before vowels (continued).

Prominent, prŏm'.ĭ.nent, full, standing out, distinguished;
prom'inent-ly. Prominence, prŏm'.ĭ.nense; prom'inency.

Latin prominentia, pro-mineo, to jut forward, to stand out.

Pro-miscuous, pro.mĭs'.kŭ.ŭs, miscellaneous, indiscriminate; promiscuous-ly, promiscuous-ness.

Latin prŏmiscuus (pro misceo, to mix up, to mix together).

Pro-mise, prŏm'.ĭz, a word pledged, declaration of an intention, expectation or hope, to assure, to engage by word; promised, pröm'izd; prom'is-ing, giving a promise, giving hopes of future excellence; prom'ising-ly, prom'is-er.

Promisor, promisee (in Law), prom'i.zor', prom'i.zee'.

Promisor, one who makes a promise; promisee, one to whom a promise is made. Promisory, pröm'iz.ēr ry.

Promissory-note, a written promise to pay a stated sum at the time fixed on the note. Breach of promise.

I promise myself. I fully expect; I promised myself, &c.

Lat. prömissor, prömissum, v. pro-mitto, to send [words] before [deeds].

Pro-montory, plu. promontories, pröm'ön.tör rüz, a headland.

Latin prömontörium (pro mons, a mountain [standing] forwards).

Pro-mote, pro.mote', to advance, to favour; promöt'-ed (R. xxxvi.), promöt'-ing, promöt'-er, one who promotes.

Promotion, pro.mö'.shün; promotive, pro.mö'.tív.

Latin prömötio, pro-möveo, to move forwards.

Prompt, ready, quick, easy, to suggest; prompt'ed (R. xxxvi.), prompt'-ing, prompt'-er, prompter-ship (-ship, office.)

Promptings, suggestions of conscience or affection; prompt'-ly, prompt'-ness. promptitude, promp'.tütude.

Latin prompte, promptitudo, v. prompto, promptu.

Promulgate, pröm'.ül.gate (not pro.müll'.gate), to publish or spread abroad; prom'ulgät-ed (R. xxxvi.), prom'ulgät-ing, prom'ulgät-or (R. xxxvii.), one who promulgates.

Promulgation, pröm'.ül.gay''shün, diffusion.

Promulge, pro.mulge', to propagate; promulged' (2 syl.), promulg'-ing (Rule xix.), promulg'-er.

Lat. prömulgätio, prömulgo sup. prömulgätum (mulgo, to publish).

Pröne (1 syl.), bending forwards, with the face downwards; prone'-ly, prone'-ness. (Gk. pro-neuö, to stoop forwards.)

Pro'-noun, one of the parts of speech. Pro-nominal, pro-nöm'.ä.näl, adj. of pronoun; pronom'inal-ly.

Latin pro nomen, for a noun, prönmänälis.

Pro-nounce' (2 syl.), to utter, to articulate; pronounced' (2 syl.); pronounc-ing, pro.nounce'-ing; pronounc'-er; pronounce-able (only -ce and -ge retain -e before able).

Pronunciation, pro.nүн'.sä.a''shün (not pro.nun'.she...).

Latin prönnunciätio, v. prönnuncio (pro nuncio, to speak openly).

Proof (noun), prove (verb), proove (not pröve).

Proof, evidence, demonstration, able to resist, for examination as a proof sheet; proof'-less.

Proof copy or impression, one of the early copies of an engraving; proof before lettering, a copy on India paper before the name of the plate has been added to it.

Proof-house, where the strength of guns, &c., is tested.

Proof-sheet, a printed sheet sent to the author for examination; clean proof, a proof sheet fully corrected.

Proof spirit, spirit with 100 parts of alcohol to 103 of water.

Proof text, a text of Scripture in proof of a doctrine.

Proved (1 syl.); prov-ing, proo'.ving; prov-er, proo'.ver; prov-able, proo'.va.b'l; provably; proven, proo'.ven.

Old Eng. prósfian, past prófode, p. p. prófod; Lat. probo, to prove. The verb ought to have double o, to compensate for the lost accent.

Prop, a support, to shore; propped (1 syl.), propp'-ing (R. i.)

Danish prop, a cork, v. proppe; German pfropf, a graft, pfropfen.

Propaganda, pröp'.ä.gän'.dah, a society established in 1622 for diffusing Roman catholicism, a secret political society; propagandism, pröp'.ä.gän'.dizm, proselytism; propagandist. (Ital. propaganda; Lat. propago, to propagate.)

Propagate, pröp'.ä.gate, to diffuse, to multiply by cultivation; prop'agät-ed (R. xxxvi.) prop'agät-ing, Prop'agät-or (R. xxxvii.); prop'agable (not propagatable).

Propagation, pröp'.ä.gay''.shün; prop'agative, -tiv.

Propagating glass, a glass hand-frame used in gardens.

Latin pröpägätio, pröpägätor, pröpägäre (pago or pango, to plant; Greek pégo or pégno), to increase by planting or by slips.

Propel, pro.pèl', to drive forwards; propelled' (2 syl.), propelling-propeller; screw-propeller, a vessel propelled by a screw.

Propulsion, pro.pül'.shün; propulsive, pro.pül'.siv.

Latin propello (pro pello), to drive forwards. It would be far better to restore the double l to the verb "propel." (Rule iv.)

Propense, pro-pense'. Prepense, pre-pense', premeditated.

Propense', prone, disposed; propensity, plu. propensities, pro.pèn'.sì.tiz, bent of mind, bias.

Latin pröpenstas, propensio (pro-pendeo, to hang forward).

Proper, pröp'.er, (comp.) proper-er, (super.) proper-est, proper-ly.

Proper, decorous, correct, as it should be, personal as a proper name, (the name of a person, place, river, &c.)

Property, plu. properties. Propriety, plu. proprieties.

Property, pröp'.er.ty, money, lands, or goods possessed by a person, a special or inherent quality.

Properties, pröp'.er.tiz, articles needed by actors in a play.

Property-man, one who has charge of the loose "properties" of a theatre. Property tax, a tax on real property.

Propriety, pro.pri'.ě.ty, decorum, suitable behaviour.

Proprietor, pro.pri'.ě.tor, owner. Proprietary, -pri'.ě.tä.ry.

Appropriate, ap.pro'.pri.ate, to take and use as one's own what belongs to another; appro'priät-ed, appro'priät-ing.

Lat. proprius, pröprietas; Fr. propre, propriété (both meanings).

Prophet, prɔf'ēt, one who foretells events. Profit, prɔf'īt, gain.

Prophet, fem. prophetess, prɔf'ētɛs; prophetier, -ē.sī.er.

Prophecy, plu. prophecies (noun). Prophecy, -sies (verb).

Prophecy, prɔf'ē.sī, plu. prɔf'ē.siz, a prediction.

Prophecy, prɔf'ē.sī, to foretell; propheties, prɔf'ē.siz; prophesied, prɔf'ē.sīd; prophecy-ing, prɔf'ē.sī.ɪŋ.

Prophetic, prɔf'ēt'ik; prophet'icā, prophet'ical-ly.

- (1) It may be asked why the -cy and -sy of "prophecy" and "prophecy" are long, while the final -y of ecstasy, fallacy, phantasy, &c., is short. The reply is this: "prophecy" is the Greek prophēteia (-tīa), v. prophēteuō, but "ecstasy" is the Greek or Latin ecstāsīs, "fallacy" the Latin fallācia, and "phantasy" the Greek or Latin phantāsia, &c. In the verbs ending in -fy (as amplify, mystify, qualify, rectify, &c.), the -fy represents the Latin verb facio [fīc'], and becomes more important being the representative of an entire word.

- (2) The following are examples of the c of nouns changed to s in verbs: Advice, advise; choice, choose; device, devise; licence, license; practice, practise; prophecy, prophecy.

Gk. prophētēs, prophētīkōs, prophēteia (pro phēmī, to fore-tell).

Prophylactic, prɔf'ī.lūk'.'tīk, preventive, a medicine to defend from disease; prophylactical, prɔf'ī.lūk'.'tī.kāl; -ly.

Greek prophylaktikōs (pro phulasso, to defend beforehand).

All classical words containing -ph- or -y- (not final) are from the Gk.

Propinquity, plu. propinquiries, prɔ.pɪn'.kwɪ.tɪz, vicinity, nearness of blood, neighbourhood, or time. (Lat. propinquitās.)

Propitiate, prɔ.pɪsh'ī.ate, to reconcile, to make atonement; propitiat-ed, prɔ.pɪsh'ī.ate.ed (R. xxxvi.); propitiat-ing, prɔ.pɪsh'ī.ate.ɪŋ (R. xix.); propitiat-or, prɔ.pɪsh'ī.a.tɔr (R. xxxvii.); propitiable, prɔ.pɪsh'ī.ā.b'l.

Propitiation, prɔ.pɪsh'ī.ā'.shūn. Propitiat-ory, prɔ.pɪsh'ī.ā'trɪ; propitiatori-ly (Rule xi.)

Propitious, prɔ.pɪsh'ūs; propitious-ly, propitious-ness.

Latin propitiābilis, propitiātio, propitiātor, propitiātorium, propitiātorius, v. propitiāre (prope, near, i.e., favourable). So the prophet says: "Call upon the Lord while He is near," i.e., favourable.

Propolis, prɔ'.pɔl.ɪs, a cement used by bees for closing up the chinks of their hive. Farina or pollen is bee-bread.

Greek pro-pōlis, before the city, applied by Pliny to the gum-resin of bees, used chiefly on the exposed parts of a hive.

Proportion, prɔ.pɔr'.shūn, ratio, symmetry, the Rule of Three, to adjust, to divide into portions; proportioned, prɔ.pɔr'.shund; propor'tion-ing, propor'tion-er.

Proportion-able, prɔ.pɔr'.shūn.ā.b'l; propor'tionable-ness, propor'tionably. Propor'tion-āl, propor'tional-ly.

Proportionals, prɔ.pɔr'.shūn.ālz, the terms of a ratio.

Proportion-ality, prɔ.pɔr'.shūn.āl'.tɪ.

Proportionate, pro.por'.shūn.ate, in proportion, to divide according to a just ratio; proportionāt-ed (R. xxxvi.); proportionāt-ing (R. xix.), proportionate-ly, proportionate-ness. Proportion-less, out of proportion.

In proportion, to the degree that, according as.

Direct proportion, 1st term : 2nd :: 3rd term : 4th.

Inverse proportion, 1st term : 2nd :: 4th term : 3rd.

Continued „ 1st term : 2nd :: 2nd : 3rd :: 3rd : 4th, &c.

Mean proportion, the middle term of any three in a series (say 2, 4, 8, 16, 32, &c.): 4 is the mean of 2 and 8; 8 is the mean of 4 and 16; 16 of 8 and 32.

Fr. proportion, v. proportionner, proportionnel(!!), proportionnalité;
Lat. prōportio gen. -ōnis (pro portio, according to the just portion).

Propose, pro.pōze'. Propound, pro.pound'. Purpose, pur'.pōz.

Propose, to nominate, to offer oneself in marriage

Propound, to offer for consideration, to set a puzzle.

Purpose, to design, to intend.

Proposed' (2 syl.); propos-ing (Rule xix.), pro.pō'zing; propos-er, pro.pō'zer; propos-al, pro.pō'zāl, offer.

Proposition, prop'pō.zish''.un; proposition-al.

Propound', to set a puzzle, to offer for consideration;
propound'-ed (R. xxxvi.), propound'-ing, propound'-er.

ERRORS OF SPEECH—

I propose to take a ride at noon [purpose].

He proposed in his heart to build a house to the Lord [purposed].

There will she hide to listen our propose [purpose].. Much Ado iii. 1.

Man proposes, but God disposes [purposes].

Fr. proposer, proposition; Lat. propositio, pro-pono, to place before one.

Pro-prætor, pro.pree'.tor, a Roman prætor sent at the expiration of two years of office to administer a province; he was no longer prætor, but only a pro-prætor or quasi-prætor.

Proprietor, fem. proprietress, pro.pri'.ē.tor, pro.pri'.ē.trēs, owner; proprietor-ship (-ship, office, state of, rank of).

Proprietary, pro.pri'.ē.tā.ry. Propriety, pro.pri'.e.ty.

Proprietary, belonging to a proprietor, an owner.

Propriety, plu. proprieties [pro.pri'.ē.tīz], decorum.

Latin prōpriētārius, prōprietas; French propriétaire, propriété.

Proproctor, pro.prōk'.tor, an assistant proctor. (See Proprietor.)

Propulsion, pro.pūl'.shun, the act of propelling; propulsive, pro.pūl'.siv; propulsory, pro.pūl'.sō.ry. (See Propel.)

(If the Latin supine is -sum, we add -sion not -tion to our noun.)

Latin pro-pello supine pro-pulsum, to drive forwards.

Prorogue, pro.rōg', to adjourn parliament from the end of one session to the beginning of the next.

To dissolve [parliament] is to break it up that the electors may return new members if they choose.

Prorogued, pro.rōgd'; Prorogu-ing, pro.rō'.ging (g hard), (verbs ending in any two vowels, except -ue, retain both before -ing); prorogu-er, pro.rō'.g'r.

Prorogation, pro'.rō.gay''shūn, adjournment [of parliament]. The spelling of this awkward word is not French. The u is set after the g to prevent its being softened by the following e. This arises from the want of some means of distinguishing long and short vowels. Fr. proroger, prorogation; Lat. prōrōgāre, prōrōgatio (pro rogare).

Pro-scenium, plu. -scenia, pro.sce'.nī.ūm, plu. -sce'.nī.ah, that part of a stage between the orchestra and the drop-scene, the drop-scene and its furniture. (The whole stage.)

Latin pro-scēnium; Greek pro-skēnion (pro skéné, before the stage).

Pro-scribe, pro-skribé'. Prescribe, pre.skribé'.

Proscribe, to outlaw, to doom to death, to interdict.

Prescribe, to order as a remedy, to lay down rules, to order.

Proscribe', proscribed' (2 syl.), proscrib'-ing, proscrib'-er.

Prose, prōze, composition not in verse, to talk in a tedious manner; prosed (1 syl.); pros-ing, prō'zing; pro'sing-ly; pros-er, prō'.zer; prosaic, prō.zay'.īk; prosaic-al, prō.zay'.ī.kāl; prosaical-ly; prosaist, prō.zay'.ist.

Pros-y, prō'.zy; pro'si-ness (Rule xi.), pro'si-ly.

"Prose," Latin prōsa (from prorsus, straight on, direct).

"Verse," Latin verso supine versum, to turn.

Prosecute, prōs'.ē.kūte. Persecute, per'.sē.kūte.

Prosecute, to carry on a legal accusation against a person.

Persecute, to vex, to trouble, to harass persistently.

Pros'ecute, pros'ecūt-ed (R. xxxvi.), pros'ecūt-ing (R. xix.)

Prosecutor, fem. prosecutress, prōs'.ē.kū.tor, prōs'.ē.kū.trīs.

Prosecution, prōs'.ē.kū.shūn, a criminal suit;

Persecution, per'.sē.kū.shūn, persistent annoyance.

Latin prōsecūtor, v. prō-sēquor, prōsecūtus, to follow forth.

"Persecute," Latin per-sēquor, persēcūtus, to follow throughout.

Proselyte, prōs'.ē.lite, a con'vert, to convert'; pros'elyt-ed (R. xxxvi.), pros'elyt-ing (R. xix.) Proselyt-ise (R. xxxi.), prōs'.ē.lī.tize, to make converts; proselytised, -ē.lī.tized; proselytis-ing, prōs'.ē.lī.tī.zing; proselytism, ē.lī.tīzm.

In Greek the -e is long and the -y [u] short, proselūtēs, proselūtēuo. Lat. prōselūtus (Gk. pros echōmai, to come to), a new convert.

Prosody, plu. prosodies, prōz'.ō.dīz, that part of grammar which treats of versification; prosodial, pro.zo'.di.āl; prosod'ian; prosodical, pro.zōd'.ī.kāl; prosod'ical-ly. Prosod'ist.

Lat. prōsōdia; Gk. prōsōdia (prōs ōdē, an ode sung to [a tune]).

Prosopopœia (Latin), prōs'.ō.pō.pee''.yah, personification.

Greek prōsōpōn, a mask, pros ops, [put] before the face.

prospect, prös'pekt, a distant view, a landscape, expectation; prospecting, searching for metal before a shaft is sunk.

Prospective, prös.pëk'.tív, future, looking forwards.

Retrospective, rët'.ro.spëk'.tív, looking back.

Prospective-ly, prospective-ness. Prospec'tion, -shün.

Prospectus, plu. prospectus-es, a programme, statement of a plan of operation with the terms of membership.

Lat. prospectus, v. pro-specto sup. -spectum, to behold in front [of one].

prosper, prös'per, to thrive; prospered, -perd; pros'per-ing.

Prosperous, prös'.pë.rüs; pros'perous-ly, pros'perous-ness.

Prosperity, -për'ri.ty. (Lat. prosper, prospërus, prospëritas.)

Prostitute, prös'.tütüte, a harlot, to debase venally; pros'titüt-ed, pros'titüt-ing (Rule xix.), pros'titüt-or (Rule xxxvii.)

Prostitution, prös'.ti.tü.shün, harlotry, selling what money ought not to be able to buy, as honour, truth, conviction, &c.

Latin prostituta, pro-stituo [stätuo], to set open to anyone.

Prostrate, prös'.träte, lying on the ground, lying at mercy, lying in humble adoration, to throw down; pros'trät-ed (R. xxxvi.), pros'trät-ing (R. xix.) Prostration, prös.tray'.shün (not -sion because the Lat. supine is not -sum, R. xxxiii.)

Latin pro-sterno supine prosträtum (to cast or lay at full length).

Prostyle, pro'stîle, a range of columns in front of a building.

Lat. prostulos; Gk. prostûlos (pro stûlos, pillars in the fore-front).

Proton, proto- before consonants (Gk. prefix), first, least in quantity.

Protean, pro'.të.än (not pro.tee'an), adj. of Proteus, readily assuming different shapes, changeable. Proteus, pro'.tuce, a god who could at pleasure transform himself into any shape or form, a genus of reptiles, a species of infusoria. Pro'tea, a genus of plants.

Protect, pro.tekt', to defend; protect'-ed (R. xxxvi.), protect'-ing, protect'-ing-ly. Lord Protector, Oliver Cromwell.

Protect-or, fem. protectress, pro.tëk'.trës; protector-less, protector-ship (-ship, office, rank of). Protectorate, pro.tëk'.tor.ate, the government of Oliver Cromwell.

Protection, pro.tëk'.shün. Protectorial, pro.tëk'.tor'ri.äl.

Lat. pro-tector, prö-tëgo supine protectum, to cover over, to protect.

Protégé, fem. protégée (both pro'.ta.zha''), a person under the patronage of another. (French protégé, protégée.)

Protein, pro'.tëin (not pro.tinë' nor pro.teen') the basis of albumen, casein, and fibrine. Proteinous, pro.tee'.än.üs.

Gk. prótenó, to take the first place [or basis of nitrogenized bodies].

Protest, (noun) pro'test, (verb) pro.test' (Rule I.), a solemn disavowal. To protest [against], to disallow; protest'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), protest'-ing, protest'-er or protestät-or.

Protestation, prôt'.ës.tay''shûn, declaration of dissent.

Protestant, prôt'.ës.tant, one of the reformed Christian sect; protestantism, prôt'.ës.tân.tizm' (in 1529 Luther and his followers protested against the decree of Charles V., and appealed from the Diet of Spire to a general council).

Latin prōtestans genitive prōtestantis, prōtestatio, v. prōtestāri.

Pro-, prot-, proto- before consonants (Gk. pref.), before, first.

Pro-thalamium, -rha.lām''ā.ām, the bridal song preceding a marriage ceremony. Epi-thalamium, ēp'.ā.rha.lām''ā.ām, the bridal song concluding a marriage ceremony.

Greek pro before, epi after, thālāmion the bridal ceremony.

Protho-notary, plu. -notaries, prō'.rho.nō''tū.riz, a chief notary. In the U.S. a registrar or clerk of certain courts.

This debased Latin hybrid ought to be reformed. The mediæval form, protonotarius, is somewhat better.

Greek prōto- [prōtos], Latin notārius, first or chief notary.

Pro-thorax, prō'.rhō'.rax, the first segment of the thorax of insects. Meta-thorax, the last or third segment.

Meso-thorax, the segment between these two.

Greek pro before, mēta after, mēso- between, thorax the thorax.

Proto-col, prō'.to.kōl, a rough draft of a treaty or despatch.

Greek prōto- [prōtos] kolla, glue or gluten. "À Byzance on nommait protocollum (premier registre) le registre destiné à contenir les actes publics. On l'appelait ainsi, parce qu'il fait avec un papier particulier, dans la fabrication duquel entrait une espèce de gomme faite avec le gluten ou collum." Dict. des arts, &c.

Proto-martyr, prō'.to-mar''.ter, the first martyr (Stephen).

Greek prōto- [prōtōs] martūr, the first witness [of the faith].

Proto-papas, prō'.to-pāp''as, the Russian imperial confessor. A Russian clergyman of the first rank.

Greek prōto- [prōtōs] pappas, the first father [confessor].

Proto-chloride, prō'.to-klo'.rīde, a compound containing only one equivalent of chlorine to one of the base: as protochloride of tin. (Greek proto- with chloride.)

Prot-ornis, pro.tor'.nīs, a fossil bird resembling a lark.

Greek prōt- [prōtos] ornis, the first [known specimen of] a bird.

Prot-oxide, pro.tōx'.īde, a compound containing only one equivalent of oxygen to one of the base.

Greek prōt- [prōtos] with oxide (which see).

Proto-phyte, prō'.to.fīte, a microscopic fossil, apparently belonging to the vegetable kingdom. (Gk. phuton, a plant.)

Proto-plasm, prō'.to.plāzm, the material of which living bodies are formed; that which forms cell-nucleus; proto-plasmic, prō'.to.plās''.mīk, adj. of protoplasm.

Proto-plast, the first mould or form, the copy, the original; proto-plastic, prō'.to-plās''.tīk, first formed.

Greek prōto- [prōtos] plasma, the first mould or form.

Proto-saurus, plu. protosauri, -saw'.rus, -saw'.ri or proto-saurian, pro'.to.saw''.ri.an (noun and adj.), the fossil "monitor" of Thuringia. (At one time the earliest known specimen of fossil reptiles.)

Greek próto-[prôtos]sauros, the first [known specimen] of a lizard.

Proto-sulphate, -sül'.fet, a compound of sulphuric acid with an oxide. Proto-sulphuret, -sül'.fũ.rèt, a compound containing only one equivalent of sulphur to one of the base: as protosulphuret of mercury.

Proto-type, pro'.to.tipe, the original from which others are copied, a primary form. (Greek prôtos, tupos, a type.)

Proto-zoa, pro'.to.zõ''.ah, the first or lowest division of the animal kingdom occupying a sort of neutral ground between vegetables and animals; proto-zoan, pro'.to.zõ''.an; proto-zoic, -to.zõ''.ík. (Gk. prôtos zôon, first living animal.)

Protract, pro.träkt', to spin out, to prolong; protract'-ed, protracted-ly, protract'-ing. Protractive, pro.träk'.tív.

Protraction, pro.träk'.shũn, prolongation, delay; planning out on paper the dimensions of a plot of land.

Protract'-er. Protract'-ör.

Protractor, one who protracts or lengthens out.

Protractor, a mathematical instrument for measuring angles, a muscle to draw a part forwards; retractor, a muscle to draw the part backwards.

Latin pro-traho supine -tractum, to draw forwards; retro-, back.

Protrude, pro.trũde', to thrust forwards, to thrust out; protrũd'-ed (R. xxxvi.), protrũd'-ing (R. xix.); protrusile, -trũ'.síl.

Protrusion, pro.trũ'.zhũn (R. xxxiii.); protrusive, -trũ'.sív.

Latin pro-trũdo supine -trũsum, to thrust forwards, to thrust out.

Protuberant, pro.tũ'.bẽ.rant, prominent, swelling out; protu'berant-ly. Protuberance, pro.tũ'.be.rance.

Protuberate, pro.tũ'.bẽ.rate, to swell or bulge out; protu'berat'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), protu'berat'-ing (Rule xix.)

Protuberation, pro.tũ'.bẽ.ray''.shũn. (Latin pro-tũbẽrũre.)

Latin tũber gen. tũberis, a hunch, a hump, a knob, a knot of wood.

Proud (1 syl.), haughty; proud'-ly, proud'-ish (-ish dim.)

Pride, haughtiness, delight accompanied with satisfaction.

Old Eng. prút or pryt, pride, prút, proud, v. prútlian, prútlice.

Prove, proov, to demonstrate. Proof, demonstration.

Proved, proovd; prov-ing, proov'.ing; prov-en, proov''n; prov-er, proov'.er; prov-able, proov'.ũ.b'l; provably.

Old English próf[ian], past prófode, past part. prófod.

The termination -ove is very irregular. It has three distinct sounds:

(1) = ove: clove, cove, drove, grove, hove, rove, stove, strove, throve, wove.

(2) = ùv: dove, glove, love, shove.

(3) = oov: move, prove, and their compounds.

Provence. Province. Provencial. Provincial.

Provence, pró.vahnse', from Provence in France.

Province, próv'ánce, a district, a jurisdiction.

Provencial, pro.vah'n'.sahl, adj. of Provence in France.

Provincial, pro.vín'.shál, adv. of province.

Both these words come from the Latin provincia, a province.

Provender, próv'.én.der, dry food for beasts.

French provende; Latin præbenda, "Præbenda," the salt, wood, and other necessities provided for a magistrate on his coming into residence in any country of the Roman empire. Hor. Sat. i. 5, 46.

Proverb. Adage. Axiom. Maxim. Saw.

Proverb, próv'.erb, a pithy, popular, practical saying the result of observation: as a bushel of March dust is worth a king's ransom. A pin a day is a groat a year.

Maxim, a rule of science, government, or manners in the form of a precept: as everything is worth just what it will fetch. A good master makes a good servant.

Saw, the pithy saying of some individual inculcating a maxim, as Solon's saw: Know thyself.

Adage, ad'.age, a pithy sentence expressing a rule of action: as Make hay while the sun shines. Strike while the iron is hot. Never look a gift horse in the mouth.

Axiom, a self-evident truth: as the whole is greater than a part. Two straight lines will not enclose a space.

Proverbial, pro.ver'.bíl.ál; proverbial-ly; proverbial-ism, a proverbial phrase; proverbial-ist. (Lat. proverbium.)

Provide, pro.ví.de, to supply, to get ready for future use; provid'-ed (R. xxxvi.), provid'-ing (R. xix.), provid'-er.

Provident, próv'.í.dent, careful to provide for future wants, economical, prudent; provident-ly, with wise precaution.

Providential, próv'.í.dén''.shál, through God's care or forethought; providential-ly. Providence, pro.v'i.dense, God, God's superintending care, timely precaution.

To provide for, to lay up supplies beforehand.

To provide against, to take precautions to prevent.

Provision, pro.víz'h'un. Proviso, pro.ví'.zo. (Which see.) Latin providentia, providens gen. -dentis, pro-vídeo, to fore-see.

Province, próv'.ince, a district, the range of a jurisdiction: as the province of an archbishop, special function or duty; provincial, pro.vín'.shál; provin'cial-ly; provin'cial-ism, dialectic words or tones; provin'cial-ist. (See Provence.)

Latin provincia, provinciális (pro vinco, to conquer previously).

Provision, pro.vizh'ŭn, food, supply, terms, things provided, to victual, to lay in stores; provisioned, pro.vizh'ŭnd; provision-ing; provision-äl, for the nonce; provisional-ly.

Provisional registration, a preliminary registration of a new company till it has been fully organised.

Provision-dealer, one who sells articles of food by retail;

Provision-merchant, a wholesale provision-dealer.

Latin provisio, foresight; French provision. (See Provide.)

Proviso, plu. provisos (R. xlii.), pro.vi'zo, plu. pro.vi'zōze, a conditional clause, a stipulation. Provisor, pro.vi'zor, purveyor of a religious house, the principal of a French college; provisory, pro.vi'sō.ry, temporary; provisori-ly.

Latin proviso (abl. case of provisus), it being provided, provisor.

Provoke, pro.vōke', to irritate; provoked' (2 syl.), provōk-ing, provōk-ing-ly, provōk'-er. Provocation, -kay''shŭn.

Provocative, pro.vōk'.a.tiv (not pro.vō'ka.tiv), irritating; provocative-ly, provocative-ness. Provocat-or.

Latin provocatio, provocātor, pro-vōcāre, to call forth, to challenge.

Provost, prōv'.ōst (in Scot.), the mayor of a city, the principal of certain colleges, the governing officer of some universities.

Provost-marshal, plu. provost-marshals, an officer whose duty it is to take charge of prisoners-of-war and prosecute crimes against naval or military discipline; provost-ship.

Old Eng. prafost; Fr. prévost now prévôt; Lat. præ pōsitus, placed before. ("ship," Old English -sceap, office, rank of.)

Prow. Brow, the ridge over the eye. Pro, for, in favour of.

Prow (to rhyme with nōw, not with grōw), the fore-part of a ship. Poop, the stern or the hind part of a ship.

Fr. proue; Lat. prōra; Gk. prōra, a prow; Lat. puppis, a poop.

Prowess, prōw'.ēss ("prōw" to rhyme with nōw), valour.

Fr. prouesse; Span. proezas; Ital. prodezza (Lat. prodesse, to profit).

Prowl (to rhyme with hōwl, grōwl, not with bōwl, a basin), to roam for prey (followed by about); prowled (1 syl.), prowl-ing, prowl-ing-ly, prowl'-er. (Fr. proic-aller.)

Proximate, prōx'.ī.mate, nearest. Ultimate, ŭl'.timate, final.

Proximate-ly. Proximity, prox'īm'.ī.ty, vicinity, nearness.

Proximate cause, the immediate cause, the cause immediately preceding an effect. Ultimate cause, the first cause, the primal mover of the cause. (See Proximo.)

Latin proximus (super. of prope, near), proximitas, proximatus.

Proximo. Ultimo. Instant. (See above, Proximate.)

Proximo, prox'.ī.mo, the next month (contracted to prox.)

Latin proximo [mense], in the next or following month.

- Ultimo, ŭl'.tī.mo, the last month (contracted to ult.)
 Latin ultimo [mense], in the last or preceding month.
- Instant, in'stant, the present month (contracted to inst.)
 Latin instante [mense], in the instant or present month.
- Proxy, plu. proxies, prōx'iz, a deputy, a written or deputed vote. (Latin procūrator, pro cura.)
- Prude (1 syl.), a woman of affected coyness and squeamishness.
Prudery, plu. pruderies, prū.dēr'iz, the manners of a prude.
Prūd'-ish (-ish added to nouns means "like," added to adj. it is dim.), prū'dish-ly, -ness. (Welsh prudd, Fr. prude.)
- Prudent, prū'dent, discreet; prū'dent-ly. Prudence, prū'dence.
Prudential, prū.dēn'.shāl; pruden'tial-ly. Pruden'tials, maxims of practical wisdom. (Lat. prūdens, prudentia.)
- Prud'homme, prū.dong, or A Mon. prud'homme (French), a man of good moral intentions but without either genius or originality. One who affects a love of virtue.
- Pruinose, prū'ā.nōze, that hoar-frost appearance seen on some leaves, the very minute "feathers" (fine as dust) on some insects; pruinous, prū'ā.nūs, adj. of pruinose.
 Latin pruina, hoar-frost, pruinōsus, full of hoar-frost.
- Prune (1 syl.), a dried plum, to trim trees, to cut away what is superfluous; pruned (1 syl.), prūn'-ing (R. xix.), prūn'-er, pruning-hook; pruning-knife, -nife; pruning-shears.
 "Prune" (a plum), Fr. prune; Lat. prunum; Gk. prounē, a plum-tree.
 "Prune" (to trim), Scotch preen, proyne; Chaucer's proine.
- Prunella, prū.nēl'.lah. Salt prunella. Prunello.
Prunella, a genus of astringent plants used medicinally for sore throats. (Corruption of French brunelle.)
 German brunelle, self-heal; bräune, quinsy, croup, sore-throat.
Salt-prunella, a mixture of refined nitre and soda for sore throats. (Fr. sel de brunelle, Germ. prunellen-salz.)
Prunello, a species of plum. (Fr. prunelle, a little plum.)
Prunello, a cloth employed for clerical gowns and ladies' shoes. (A corruption of Brignoles, in France.)
- Prurient, prū'rī.ent, an itching desire, a perverted taste or inclination; prurient-ly. Prurience, -rī.ence; prū'riency.
Prurigo, prū.rī'.go, the itch; pruriginous, prū.rīdg'.ā.nūs.
 Latin prūriens gen. prūrientis, prūrio, to itch, to itch with desire.
- Prussian, prūsh'.an (not prū'.shun), a native of Prussia, prūsh'.ah.
Prussian-blue, a deep rich blue. Prussiate, prūs'.sī.āte, a cyanide (3 syl.) Prus'sic acid, hydro-cyanic acid, the acid of the prussiate of potass, the bitter kernels of fruit, &c.

Pry, to inspect inquisitively, to try to discover (followed by into).

Pries (3 sing.) Prise, prize, to force open. Prize, a reward.

Pried, pride (past tense of pry). Pride, hauteur, arrogance.

Pry'-ing, pry'-ing-ly, prī'-er (with i, Rule xii.)

(The "y" of cry, dry, shy, and sly (before -er) is unsettled. In some cases both forms are used: as cryer, a bellman, crier, one who weeps; dryer, one who dries, drier, more dry, &c.)

Welsh prw, anxiety, inquisitiveness, v. prwyo and pryderu.

Pryan, prī'an, ore mixed with clay, &c. (Cornish pryt, clay.)

Ps- is the Greek double letter ψ pronounced s.

Psalm, sahm (or sām with "a" as in father), a sacred song.

The Psalms, one of the books of the Old Testament.

Psalm'-ist, a writer of psalms. The psalmist, king David.

Psalm-odist, sahm'ō.dīst, a singer of psalms.

Psalmody, sahm'ō.dy, the art and practice of psalm-singing.

In the following words the l is pronounced:

Psalmodio, sāl.mōd'īk; psalmodical, sāl.mōd'ī.kāl.

Psalmography, sāl.mōg'.rā.fy, psalm composition;

Psalmographer, sāl.mōg'.rā.fer, a compiler of psalms;

Psalmographist, -fist, a virtuoso in psalm literature.

Psalter, sāl'ter. Salter, sāl'ter, more salt, one who salts...

Psalter, the "book of psalms" bound up separately, 150 devout "aspirations" for Roman Catholic use.

Psaltery, plu. psalteries, sāl'tē.riz, a kind of harp

Old English psalm, psaltere or psalter; Greek psalmos, psalmōdia, psalmōdōs, psallēria; Latin psalmus, psalmōdia, psalmographia, psalmographus, psallērium.

Psammite, sām'mīte. Samite, sām'īte, a rich silk (Old Fr.)

Psammite, fine-grained sandstone not gritty; psammitic, sām.mīt'īk. (Greek psammitēs, sandy; psammos, sand.)

Pseud-, sude-, pseudo-, sū'do- (Gk. prefix), false (pseudēs, -eos).

Pseud-æsthesia, sū'dē.se.thē'.sī.ah, morbid sensibility.

Greek pseud-[pseudēs] aisthēsis, perception by the senses.

Pseud-epigraphy, sū'dē.pīg'.rā.fy, ascription of works to false or wrong names; pseud-epigraphist, &c.

Greek pseud-epi-graphē, false [ascription] of a writing.

Pseudo-apostle, sū'do-a.pos'.t'l, a fictitious apostle.

Greek pseudo-[pseudēs] apostōlōs, a false apostle.

Pseudo-blepsis, sū'do-blēp'.sīs, depraved sight, as when Macbeth saw the dagger, or when to Don Quixote's eye mill-sails looked like giants. (Gk. pseudo-, blēpsis, vision.)

Pseudo-bulb, an enlarged ærial stem resembling a tuber.

Greek pseudo-[pseudēs] bōlōs, a false bulb.

Pseudo-graph, sū'.dō.grāf, a piece of false writing, as the decretals of Mentz, falsely ascribed to Isidore of Seville; pseudography, sū.dōg'.rā.fy. (Gk. pseudo-, graphē, writing.)

Pseudo-logy, sū.dōl'.ō.gy, falsehood of speech, as Sinon's tale to the Trojans (Æn. ii. 61, &c.); pseudol'ogist.

Greek pseudo-[pseudēs] lōgōs, false words or discourse.

Pseudo-martyr, sū'.dō-mar''.ter, a false martyr, as the 11,000 virgin martyrs of Cologne; pseudo-martol'ogy.

Greek pseudo-[pseudēs] martŭr, a false martyr.

Pseudo-morphous, sū'.dō-mor'.fŭs, having a false form: as those crystal-like substances which have received their forms from some external circumstance and not from crystallisation. (Greek pseudo-morphē, false shape.)

Pseudo-nym, sū'.dō.nŭm, a false name, as when Swift signed his famous letters "M. D. Drapier"; pseudonymous, sū.dōn'.ī.mŭs, adj. of pseudonym.

Greek pseudōnumos (pseudo-onŭma, the double o coalesced into a long ō), false name. "Onuma," a dialectic form of onōma.

Pseudo-philosopher, sū'.dō-fī.lōs'ō.fer, a false philosopher, as Periander of Corinth termed a sage by court flattery;

Pseudo-philosophy, -fī.lōs'ō.fy, "philosophy falsely so called," Col. ii. 8. (Greek pseudo-philōsōphía, &c.)

Pseudo-prophet, sū'.dō-prōf''.et, a false prophet, as the prophets who lied to King Ahab (1 Kings xxii.); pseudo-prophecy, plu. prophecies, sū'.dō-prōf'.ē.siz.

Greek pseudo-[pseudēs] prophētēs, prophēteia.

Pseudo-scope, sū'.dō.skōpe, an optical instrument which makes convex surfaces appear concave, and vice versa.

Greek pseudo-[pseudēs] skopeo, I view things falsely.

Pshaw! shaw, an exclamation expressive of contempt.

Psyche, sī'.ky, soul, breath, spirit; psychical, sī'.kī.kāl, pertaining to the soul, spirit, mind. (Greek psuchē.)

Psycho-, sī'.ko- (Greek prefix), soul, spirit.

Gk. psuchē, breath, soul, and psuchos, chillness (psuchō, to breathe).

Psycho-logy, sī.kōl'.ō.djy, the doctrine of man's spiritual nature, the science of mental phenomena, metaphysics.

Psychologist, sī.kōl'.ō.djist; psychologic, sī'.ko.lōdg''īk; psychological, sī'.ko.lōdg''ī.kāl; psychological-ly.

Greek psucho-[psuchē] lōgōs, treatise on soul or spirit.

Psycho-machy, sī.kōm'.a.ky, the conflict between soul and body, conscience and desire. What St. Paul calls "the law in his members warring against the law of his mind," Rom. vii. 23. (Gk. psucho-[psuchē] machē, the soul fight.)

Psycho-mancy, sī'.ko.mān.sy, divination by consulting the spirits of the dead. (Witch of Endor, 1 Sam. xxviii. 7, &c.)

Greek psucho-[psuchē] manteia, spirit divination.

Psychro-meter, sī.krōm'.ē.ter, an instrument for testing the amount of vapour present in the atmosphere.

Greek psychros metron, a meter of the cold or chill.

Ptarmigan, tar'.mī.gān, a bird of the grouse kind.

Gaelic tarmachan. The initial p should be dropped.

Ptero-, tēr'ro-, pter-, ter- before vowels (Gk. pref.), a wing (ptērōn.)

Pter-ichthys, tēr'rik'.rhīs, a genus of fossil fishes with wing-like appendages (in the Old Red Sandstone).

Greek ptērōn ichthus, a wing [furnished] fish.

Ptero-dactyle, tēr'ro.dāk''.tīl, a genus of fossil reptiles capable of flying. A compound of bat, bird, and crocodile. (In the oolite.) Pterodactylous, tēr'ro.dāk''.tī.lūs.

Greek ptērōn daktūlōs, a wing-finger (like a bat).

Ptero-poda, tēr'rōp'.o.dah, a class of molluscs with fins or lateral appendages like wings; pteropod, ter'ro.pōd, one of the pteropoda; pteropodous, tēr'rōp'.ō.dūs, adj.

Greek ptērōn pous gen. pōdōs, wing foot.

Ptero-sauria, tēr'ro.saw''.rī.ah, a genus of extinct reptiles which could fly; ptero-saurus, tēr'rō.saw''.rūs or ptero-saur, tēr'ro.sor, one of the pterosauria; ptero-saurian, ter'rō.saw''.rī.ān, adj. or noun.

Greek ptērōn sauros, a winged lizard or reptile.

Ptery-, ter'ri-, pteryg- before vowels (Gk. prefix), a wing (ptērux, ptērūgōs). Pter-, ter-, ptero-, tēr'ro-, a wing. (See above.)

It is a pity that one of these two prefixes (ptero- and ptery-) has not been adopted exclusively, although there are the two Greek words pteron and pterus in defence of the two.

Ptery-goid, tēr'rī.goid, applied to the wing-like processes of the sphenoid bone.

Greek pterus gen. ptērūgōs eidos, wing-like.

Pteryg-otus, ter'ri.gō''.tūs, a gigantic fossil crustacean.

Greek pterygo- ous genitive ōtos, a wing-ear.

Ptisan, tīz'.ān, barley-water and similar drinks. (Gk. ptīsanē.)

Ptolemaic, tōl'.e.may''.īk, adj. of Ptolemy. The Ptolemaic system supposed the earth to be the fixed centre of the universe round which all other heavenly bodies revolve.

Puberty, pū'.ber.ty, fourteen years old (boys), twelve years (girls); pubescent, pu.bēs'.sent, belonging to puberty; pubes'cence.

Latin pūbertas, pūbesens gen. pūbescentis (pūber, of mature age).

Public, pūb'.līk, not private; public-ly. A public, a public-house.

Publicity, pūb.līs'.ī.ty. Publicist, pūb'.lī.sist, one skilled in the laws of nations. Public-spirited, -spiritedness.

Pub'lish, to make public, to issue a book; published (2 syl.), publish-ing; publish-er, one who publishes books (that is, prints, advertises, and sells them).

- Publication, pŭb'likay''shŭn, a book published, &c.
- Publican, one who keeps a public-house. (In Script.), a farmer of the public taxes in the Roman employ.
 Latin publicānus, publicatio, publicitas, publicus, publicare.
- Pŭce (1 syl.), a colour. Pews, pŭze, enclosed seats in a church, &c.
 "Puce," Fr. puce, a flea, flea-colour. "Pews," Lat. podium, a gallery.
- Puceron, the vine-fretter or plant-louse. (Fr. puceron, puce, a flea.)
- Pŭck, a mischievous elf. (Welsh pwca or pwci, a hobgoblin.)
- Puck'er, to gather into small folds, to wrinkle, to rumple; puck'ered (2 syl.), puck'er-ing. (Fr. poche, a pucker.)
- Pudding (pud- to rhyme with good), a food made up with eggs and milk. Pie, food covered with a crust made without eggs or milk and baked. Pudding-faced, fat-faced. Pudding-sleeve, a full sleeve like that of a Geneva preaching gown. Pudding-stone, a conglomerate. Pudding time, dinner time. (Welsh poten.)
- Puddle, pŭd'.d'l (not pood'.d'l). Poodle, poó'.d'l, a shaggy dog.
Puddle, a small pool of standing and muddy water; to foul water, to make impervious to water, to stir liquid cast-iron in order to convert it into wrought-iron.
 "Poodle," Danish pudel or pudel-hand. "Puddle," Germ. puddeln.
- Puerile, pu'.e.rile, childish; pu'erile-ly, childishly.
Puerility, plu.puerilities (R. xlii.), pu'.e.ril'.i.tiz, childishness.
 Latin puerilis, puerilitas (puer, a child, a boy).
- Puerperal, pu.er'.pě.räl, [a fever] following childbirth.
 Latin puerpera, a woman that lies in child-bed.
- Pŭff (R. v.), a slight blast of wind, exaggerated praise, a dabber for powdering the skin or hair, to praise overmuch, to swell out. Puff-ball, a fungus. Puff-paste. Puffed, pŭft.
Puff-ing (part. of puff). Puff'in, a water fowl.
Puff'er; puff-y, puff'i-ness (R. xi.), puff'i-ly, puffing-ly.
 Welsh puff, v. puffio; German puffen, to pop or bang.
 "Puffin," so called from the puffing noise it makes when caught.
- Pŭg, a lap-dog, a dwarf bull-dog, a tame monkey; pugg'-y (R. i.)
Pug-nose, a flat monkey-nose; pug-face, having a face like a monkey's; pug-dog. (Old English piga, a child.)
- Pugh! poo, an exclamation of disdain or incredulity.
- Pugilism, pu'.gil.izm, the art or practice of sparring; pu'gilist; pugilistic, pu'.gil.iz''.ik. (Latin pugil, a boxer.)
- Pugnacious, pŭg.nay'.shŭs, quarrelsome; pugna'cious-ly.
Pugnacity, pŭg.näs'.i.ty. (Lat. pugnācitas, pugnax, -ācis.)
- Puisne, pu'.ny, inferior, as puisne judges. Pu'ny, feeble, stunted.
 French puisé, now puiné, younger, inferior.

Puissant, pu'is.sant, powerful, mighty; pu'issant-ly, pu'issance.

French puissant, puissance; Latin posse, to be able.

Puke (1 syl.), to spew as an infant; puked (1 syl.), pūk'-ing.

Latin spuo, to spew, to spit; Greek ptuo, to spit.

Püle (1 syl.), to whimper; puled (1 syl.), pül'-ing (Rule xix.), puling-ly. (Fr. piauler, to cheep as a bird; Lat. pipilare.)

Pull (to rhyme with wool, not with dull), a haul, to draw forcibly, to pluck, to tug; pulled (1 syl.), pull'-ing.

To pull down, to demolish. To pull off, to strip or take off.

To pull out, to extract, to draw out.

To pull up, to stop, to pluck up, to extirpate.

Three words, bull, full, pull rhyme with wool, but all other words in -ull have the u short: as cull, dull, gull, hull, lull, mull, skull, trull, &c. (For pul- see the note below pulpit.)

Old English pull[ian], past pullede, past part. pulled.

Pullet, pu'let (pul- to rhyme with wool not with dull), a chicken, a young hen. (French poulet; Latin pullus.)

Pulley, plu. pulleys (not pullies, R. xiii.), pu'liz (pul- to rhyme with wool not with dull), one of the six mechanical powers. It consists of a rope working over a grooved wheel turning on an axis. (French poulie; Greek poleuo, to turn.)

Pulmonary, pül'.mö.nä.ry (pül- to rhyme with dull not with wool), pertaining to the lungs, as pulmonary consumption; pulmon'ic. (Lat. pulmōnārius, pulmōnes, the lungs.)

Pülp, the soft juicy tissue of plants; pulp'-y, pulp'i-ness (R. xi.); pulpous, pül'.pūs; pulpous-ness. (Latin pulpa.)

Pulpit, pu'pit ("pul-" to rhyme with wool not with dull), a desk from which sermons are delivered, connected with the pulpit, as pulpit oratory. (Latin pulpitum.)

Of the words beginning with pul:- six are short (to rhyme with dull): as pül-monary, pülp, pül-sate, pülsc, pül-taccous, pül-verise; four are long, to rhyme with wool: as pull, pullet, pulley, pulpit; and one, viz. pule, like rule, has the full sound of u long.

Pulsate, pül'.sate, to throb, to beat as a pulse; pul'sät-ed (Rule xxxvi.), pul'sät-ing; pulsative, pül'.sä.tiv; pulse-less, pulse'less-ness. Pulsation, pül.say'shün; pul'satory.

Pülse (1 syl.), the alternate contractions and dilations of an artery; grain contained in a pod.

To feel [one's] pulse, to touch the pulse, to sound one.

Latin pulsatio, pulsus, pulsäre, to beat or throb.

"Pulse" (peas, &c.), Latin pulsus, beaten or driven [out of the pods].

Pultaceous, pül.tay'shüs (R. lxvi.), soft like a poultice, macerated.

Latin puls genitive pultis, pap, a food of meal or pulse made slab.

Pulverise, pül'.vē.rize, to reduce to dust or powder; pulverised (3 syl.), pul'veris-ing; pulveris-able, pül'.vē.rī'.zä.b'l.

Pulverisation, pŭl'.vĕ.rĭ.zay''shŭn; pulveris-er, -rĭ''zer.

Pulverous, pŭl'.vĕ.rŭs; pulverulent, pŭl'.vĕ.rŭ.lent; pulverulence, pŭl'.vĕ.rŭ.lence. Pulverine, pŭl'.vĕ.rĭn, ashes of barilla. (Lat. pulvis gen. -vĕris, pŭlvĕrŭlentus.)

Pulvilli, pŭl'.vĭl'.li, the cushions or suckers of the feet of insects by means of which they defy the laws of gravity.

Latin pulvillus, a little cushion (paulus villus, little wool).

Puma, pŭ'.mah, the American lion. (Peruvian puma.)

Pumice, pŭm'.ĭss, lava; pumice-stone, solidified lava.

Pumaceous, pu.may'.shŭs. Pomaceous, po.may'.slus.

Pumaceous, composed of pumice, like pumice.

Pomaceous, consisting of apples, like apples. (Lat. pomum.)

Pumici-form, pŭ.mĭs'ĭ.form, [rocks] like pumice-stone.

Old English pumic-stān; Latin pumex genitive pūmicis, pumice.

Pummel better pommel. (See Pommel.)

Pŭmp, an engine for giving out water, a light "dress" shoe, to sift out information by artifice, to pump water; pumped, pŭmpt; pump-ing, pump'-er.

Sucking pump, the common household pump, by which the water is first forced through a valve into the suction tube, then through valves in the piston into the barrel.

Lift pump, a pump without the suction tube and its valve, so that the water is lifted the whole way from the well.

Force pump, a pump with a solid piston and a side pipe, into which the water is forced through a valve, and may then be delivered at the required height.

Pump-room, the room at a mineral well where the waters are drawn and drunk. Pump-barrel or stock.

Germ. pumpe, v. pumpen. "Pump" (a shoe), Fr. pompe, pump-shoe.

Pumpkin, pŭmp'.kĭn (older form pumpion), a gourd.

Welsh pump with dim. kin, a little round-mass; Old Fr. pompon.

Pŭn, a play on words, to pun; punned (1 syl.), punn'-ing (R. i.), punning-ly, punn'-er or pun'-ster, one who puns.

-ster is not a female suffix, as we are generally told, it is of any gender and means "guidance," "skill obtained by practice."

Old Eng. pun[tian], past punode, p. part. punod, to beat, to bray, &c.

Pŭnch, a stamp for piercing holes, a thrust with the fist or elbow, a beverage, a stage puppet, a short fat horse, to punch holes, to poke; punched (1 syl.), punch'-ing, punch'-er; punch'-y, short and stumpy.

"Punch" (for making holes), Welsh punc, a point: Lat. punctum.

"Punch" (a beverage), Hind. punj, five, being made of 5 ingredients.

"Punch" (the puppet), probably paunch, but the usual derivation is the Ital. pollicinello (pollice, a thumb), little Tom-thumb figures.

Puncheon, pŭn'.shŭn, a cask of eighty-four gallons, a stud or short piece of timber to stand upright, a stamp.

"Puncheon." French poinçon, a king-post, a puncheon.

Punchinello, pŭn'.shĭ.nĕl''.lo, a puppet-show, a buffoon.

Italian polcinello (pollice, the thumb), Tom-thumb show.

Punctilio, plu. punctilios, pŭnk.tĭl'.ĭ.ōze (Rule xlii.), a nice point in behaviour or ceremony; punctilious, pŭnk.tĭl'.ĭ.ŭs; punctil'iously, punctil'ious-ness. (Italian puntiglio.)

Punctual, pŭnk'.tŭ.ăl, exact to time; punc'tual-ly, -ness.

Punctuality, pŭnk'.tu.ăl''ĭ.ty; punctualist, pŭnk'.tŭ.ăl.ist.

Punctuate, pŭnk'.tu.ate, to mark off with stops; punc'tu-āt-ed (R. xxxvi.), punc'tuāt-ing; punctuist, pŭnk'.tŭ.ist.

Punctuation, pŭnk'.tu.ă''shŭn, the putting in of stops.

Puncture, pŭnk'.tchŭr, a small wound with a pointed instrument, to puncture; punctured (2 syl.), punc'tŭr-ing.

Pungent, pŭn'.djent, piquant; pun'gent-ly, pun'gency.

Latin puncto, in a moment, pungo sup. punctum, to prick, pungens gen. -gentis; Fr. ponctuer, ponctualité, ponctuation, ponctuel.

Punic, pŭ'.nik, faithless, treacherous. Punic faith, perfidy.

Lat. Punicus, a Carthaginian, stigmatised by the Romans for perfidy, but their treachery could not exceed that of the Romans.

Punish, pŭn'.ish, to chasten; pun'ished (2 syl.), pun'ish-ing, pun'ish-er. Punishment, pŭn'.ish.ment; pun'ish-ably;

Punitive, pŭ'.nĭ.tĭv; punitive-ly; punitory, pŭ'.nĭ.tŏ.ry.

French punissable, punir; Latin punire supine punitum, to punish.

Punka, pŭn'.kah, a large fan or machine for cooling the air of rooms. (A word imported from Hindustan.)

Punt, a flat-bottomed boat for ferries, &c. (Old English punt.)

Puny, pu'.ny, feeble, small. Puisne, pu'.ny, as puisne judges.

French puisé now puiné, younger, inferior.

Pup, a whelp, to bring forth whelps; pupped, pŭpt; pŭpp-ing; pŭpp'-y, plu. puppies, pŭp'.pĭz, a little pup; puppy-ism, priggism; puppy-ish (-ish added to nouns means "like").

Lat. pŭpus, a child; Gk. boupdis, the young of a cow; Fr. poupée.

Pupa, plu. pupæ, pŭ'.pay, plu. pŭ'.pee, the third state of insect existence: (1) the egg, (2) the caterpillar, (3) the pupa or chrysalis, (4) the imāgo or perfect insect.

Pŭpe (1 syl.), plu. pupes, pŭ'.pees, one of the oviform nymphs of certain insects. (Latin pupa, a doll; French pupe.)

Pupil, pŭ'.pĭl, a scholar, the apple of the eye; pu'pil-age (-age, state, condition); pupillary, pŭ'.pĭl.ă.ry. Pupilarity, pŭ'.pĭ.lŭr''rĭ.ty, wardship, minority.

Latin pŭpilla (both meanings), pŭpillāris, pŭpillus.

Puppet, pŭp'.pĕt, a doll; puppet-show. (Lat. pupa; Fr. poupée.)

- Puppy, puppy-ism, puppy-ish. (See Pup.)
- Pur, to make a rattling noise like a cat when pleased; purred (1 syl.), purr-ing, purring-ly. (An imitative word.)
- Purana, pū.rah'.nah, a sacred poetical work explanatory of the Shaster; puranic, pū.rah'.nik. (Sanskrit purana, old.)
- Purbeck stone, pur'.bèk..., a limestone from the island of Purbeck (Dorsetshire). Purbeck beds.
- Pur'blind, partly blind; purblind-ness, short sightedness.
Corruption of parblind. Latin parum, a little, blind.
- Purchase, pur'tchess, something bought, leverage, to buy; purchased (2 syl.), purchas-ing (R. xix.), purchas-able.
French pourschasser, to pursue till the object is won.
- Pûre (1 syl.), comp. pûr'-er, super. pûr'-est, unadulterated, untainted, not dirty, holy, absolute; pure'ly, pure'-ness.
Purity, pû'.rî.ty. Pure mathematics, limited to abstract quantities only. (See Purify.)
Old Eng. pûr; Lat. pûrus, pûritas (Gk. pur, fire, the purifier).
- Purfl, pûr'.fl, to decorate with embroidery; pur'fled (2 syl.), pur'fling. Purl edging, a purfled edging. (Fr. pourfiler.)
- Purge (1 syl.), a purgative medicine, the effect of a purgative medicine, to cleanse, to produce evacuations; purged (1 syl.), purg'-ing (Rule xix.), purg'-er; purgativ, -tir.
- Purgation, pur.gay'.shûn, a cleansing, an atonement.
- Purgatory, plu. purgatories (R. xlv.), pur'.ga.tô.rîz, a state or locality after death for the purging away of personal sins (a Roman Catholic tenet); purgato'rial.
Latin purgatio, purgatorium, purgatorius, purgâre, to cleanse.
- Purify, pu'.ri.fy, to make clean, to free from guilt or defilement; purifies, pû'.rî.fize; purified, -rî.fide; pu'rifi-er (R. xi.)
- Purification, pû'.ri.fî.kay''.shûn, a cleansing; purificative, pû'.ri.fî.kay.tiv; purificatory, pu'.ri.fî.kâ.t'ry.
Latin pûrificatio, pûrificâre (Gk. pur, fire, qui omnia purificat).
- Purim, pu'.rim, the Jewish "feast of lots," to commemorate the deliverance of the Jews from Haman's machinations.
Hebrew pur plural purim, lots. When Haman laid his plot to extirpate the Jews, he drew lots to find out the most lucky day, and the lot drawn was the 13th day of the twelfth month (Esther iii. 7-13).
- Purist, pu'.rist, one who affects great purity, one over-nice in the choice of words, one who insists that the New Testament was written in pure Greek; purism, pu'.rizm.
- Paritan, pu'.rî.tân, a word applied to a dissenter in the reigns of Elizabeth, James I., and Charles I.; pu'ritan-ism.
- Puritanic, pu'.rî.tân''.ik; puritan'icâl, puritan'ical-ly.
French puriste, purisme, puritaine, puritanisme; Latin pûrus, pure.

Purl, medicated malt liquor, to ripple. Pearl, pur'l, a gem.
Purled (1 syl.), pur'l'-ing, pur'l'ing-ly.

"Purl," Welsh ffreulo. "Pearl," Old English pearl or pearl.

Purlieu, plu. purlieus, pur'.lu, plu. pur'.luze, a precinct, an environ free from forest law, a suburb.

A corruption of pourallie, a perambulation. A forest border was made free by a perambulation, technically called a pourallie.

Purloin, pur.loin', to steal; purloined' (2 syl.), purloin'-ing, purloin'-er. (Fr. pour-eloigner, to remove to a distance.)

Purple, pur'.p'l, a colour, a royal robe: as to wear the purple, to dye purple; purpled, pur'.p'ld; pur'pling.

Old English purpur or purpura; Latin purpura; Greek porphura.

Purport, pur'.port, intent, to intend; pur'port-ed (Rule xxxvi.), pur'port-ing. (French pour-porter, to pur-pose.)

Purpose, pur'.pöz. Propose, pro.pöze', to nominate.

Purpose, an intention, to intend; purposed, pur'.pözd; purpos-ing (Rule xix.), pur'.pözing.

Purpose-less, purpose-ly. On purpose, intentionally.

The distinction between purpose and propose is not strictly observed. The French proposer and Latin pröpono have both meanings. As, however, we have the two verbs, it is better to use purpose when we mean "intend": as I purpose (not "propose") to go to town to-morrow. I purpose to build a house on this spot.

Purse (1 syl.), a pocket, bag, or scrip for money. Porte-monnaie, port-mön.nay, a pocket leather-case for money.

Purse, to contract the mouth or brows into wrinkles; pursed (1 syl.), purs'-ing (R. xix.), purse'-ful, purse'-proud.

Purs'-er, paymaster on board ship. Burs'-ar, a college treasurer. (Fr. bourse; Lat. bursa, Gk. bursa, a hide.)

Pursue, pur.sü', to follow; pursued' (2 syl.), pursu'-ing (verbs ending in any two vowels, except -ue, retain both before -ing), pursu'-er, pursu'-able (R. xxiii.); pursu'-ant, -ance.

Pursuit, pur.süte'. In pursu'ance of, following out.

French poursuivre, poursuite; Latin prosequor (séquor, to follow).

Pursuivant, pur'.svě.vant, a state messenger, one of the four junior officers in the Heralds College. (Fr. poursuivant.)

(1) Portcullis, (2) Rouge Dragon, (3) Blue Mantle, (4) Rouge Croix.

Pursey, pur'.sy, puffy and bloated; pur'si-ness (Rule xi.), fat and broken-winded. (French poussif, broken-winded.)

Purtenance (abridged form of appurtenance), pur'.tě.nance, the pluck of an animal slain for food or sacrifice.

Fr. appartenance; Lat. ap[ad]pertinens, pertaining to. The spelling of our word is objectionable; it should be ap-pertinence.

Purulent, pū'ru.lent. Prurient, prū'rĭ.ent.

Purulent, full of pus, containing pus, resembling pus.

Prurient, hankering after, lascivious, itching with desire.

Purulence, pu'ru.lence; pu'rulency, pu'ru.lent-ly.

Latin pūrilentus (pus gen. pūris, corrupt matter; Greek puōs).

Purvey, pur.vey', to buy in provisions, to supply provisions; purveyed' (2 syl.), purvey'-ing, purvey'-ance, purvey'-or.

Fr. pourvoir, pourvoyeur; Lat. pro-videre, to provide by foresight.

Purview, pur'.vu, a proviso, the body of a statute beginning with the words "Be it enacted..." Preamble, pre.am'ble, the introduction of a statute setting forth its general scope and preceding the words "Be it enacted..."

French pourvu [que], provided that.

Pūs, corrupt matter formed in sores. Puss, a cat, a hare.

Purulent, pu'ru.lent, full of pus; pu'rulence, pu'ri-form.

Latin pus gen. pūris, pūrilentus, puri-forma (Greek puōs).

"Puss." This word stands alone in its pronunciation, which lies between pūs and poos. We have the same u sound in push and put.

Pusey-ism, pū'sĭ.ĭzm, the religious views of Dr. Pusey, restoring the Church of England to the state in which it was at the Reformation; Pu'sey-ite, a disciple of Dr. Pusey.

Push, a thrust, a pressure, to shove; pushed (1 syl.), push'-ing, pushing-ly, push'-er. (Welsh pwys, French pousser.)

(It is not possible to show by any combination of letters the u sound of puss, push, put. It is not ū nor ü, nor oo except in the word foot.)

Pusillanimous, pū'sĭl.lĭn''ĭ.mūs, mean spirited, cowardly; pusillan'itous-ly, pusillan'itous-ness, pusillanim'ity.

Latin pūsillanimis, pūsillanimitas (pūsillus animus, a little mind).

Puss, a cat, a hare; puss-y, dim. Pūs, corrupt matter of a sore.

(It is not possible to show by any combination of letters the u sound of puss, push, put. It is not ū nor ü, nor oo except in the word foot.)

Pustule, pūs'tū.le, a small skin blister; pus'tūlar; pustulous, pūs'tū.lūs; pustulate, pūs'tū.late, to cover with pustules; pus'tulāt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), pus'tulāt-ing.

Latin pustūla, pustulātus, pustulōsus (pus, corrupt matter of a sore).

Put (to rhyme with foot not with but), to lay, to place, to propose a question, (past) put, (past part.) putt'-ing (R. i.)

To put about, to change the course [of a vessel].

To be put about, to be harassed, to be inconvenienced.

To put back, to delay, to restore a thing to its place.

To put by, to save, to store up. To put down, to repress, &c.

To put forth, to extend, to germinate, to publish.

To put forward, to advance, to promote. To put in, to insert.

To put in practice, to do. To put off, to defer, to divest.

To put on, to invest, to assume. To put out, to extinguish, &c.

To put together, to unite, to accumulate into a mass.

To put to, to shut, to distress. To put to rights, to arrange.

To put to sea, to set sail. To put to the sword, to slay.

To put to trial, to test. To put trust in, to confide in.

To put up, to offer for sale, to set in order, to store.

To put up at, to stop at an hotel. To put upon, to impose on.

To put up with, to endure. To be put to, to have difficulty.

"Put" is the only word in -ut which rhymes with foot, all the other words have u short: They are occiput, but and butt, cut, gamut, glut, gut, hut, jut, nut, rut, shut, slut, smut, strut, tut.

Puss and push are two other examples of u sounded as in put.

Putative, pū'tā.tīv, reputed, as putative father. (Lat. pūtātivus.)

Putrefy, pū'trē.fy, to corrupt, to rot; putrefies, pū'trē.fize; putrified, pū'trē.fide (R. xi.); putrefi-er, putrefy-ing.

Putrefaction, pū'tre.fāk'.shūn; putrefactive, -fāk'.tīv.

Putrescent, pū'trēs.sent, becoming putrid; putrescence, pū'trēs.sense; putrescible, pū'trēs.sib'l; putrescibility.

Putrid, pū'trīd, corrupt, rotten; putrid-ness, rottenness.

Putridity, pū'trīd'ā.ty; putredinous, pū'trēd'.ā.nūs.

Latin putredo gen. putredinis, putrefactio, putridus, putris, putrefacio, to make putrid, putre-fio, to become putrid, putresco, to grow more and more rotten. -sc[o] denotes an inceptive state.

Puttocks, pūt'.tōks, small shrouds which go from one mast to another. (Corruption of futtock.)

Putty, plu. putties (R. xliv.), pūt'.ty, plu. pūt'.tīz, a cement used by glaziers and painters, to fill up with putty; puttied, pūt'.tīd; pūt'tī-ing, pūt'tī-er. (Spanish potea.)

It will be observed that put has three distinct sounds: (1) to rhyme with foot, one example, put; (2) to rhyme with but, two examples, puttocks, putty; (3) ū, as putative, putrid, putrefy.

Puzzle, pūz'.z'l, perplexity, something to be solved, to bewilder, to perplex; puz'zied (2 syl.), puz'zling, puz'zler.

To pose, with diminutive. Welsh posiaw, (noun) posiad.

Pyæmia, pī.ē.mī.ah, a disease produced by infecting the blood with the pus of a sore. (Gk. puon haima, pus [in the] blood.)

According to our usual way of spelling these Greek compounds, this word ought to be written pyhæmia (Rule lxx.)

Pycnodont, one of a large family of fossil fishes with a mouth paved with teeth. (Greek puknos odous, gen. odontos.)

Pygmy, pīg'.my, one of the fabulous nation of dwarfs, a dwarf; pygmean, pīg.mee'.ān, dwarfish. (Also spelt pigmy, &c.)

Lat. pygmæi; Gk. pugmaios; Fr. pygmée (Gk. pugmé, a fist, people as big as one's fist). The y is the correct way of spelling these words.

Pylorus, pi.lōr'ūs, the lower and right-hand orifice of the stomach leading to the intestines; pyloric, pi.lōr'ik, adj.

Greek pulōrōs, a gate-keeper (pulē ourōs, gate warder).

Pyr-, pŷro- before consonants (Gk. pref.), fire, igneous (pŷr, puros).

Pŷrēto- (Gk. pref.), burning hot, feverish heat (pŷrētos, fiery heat).

Pyr-acanthus, pŷrā.kānth'ūs, a shrub with large spines and deep-red flowers; pyracanthous, pŷrā.kānth'ūs.

Greek pŷr acanthōs, the fire[like] thorn.

Pyramid, pŷrā.mīd, an Egyptian structure with four faces, each being triangular; pyramidal (not pyrim'idal), pŷrām'ī.dāl (not pŷrā.mī.dāl); pyram'idal-ly, pyram'idal numbers; pyramidic, pŷrām'ī.dīk; pyramidical, pŷrā.mīd'ī.kāl; pyramid'ical-ly. Pyramid-al, pŷrā.moi'.dāl, having a figure or form like a pyramid; pyramid'ion. (Gk. purāmis; Lat. pyrāmis gen. pyrāmidis.)

Pyre, pŷr, a funeral pile. (Latin pyra; Greek pur, fire.)

Pyrethrum, pŷree'.thrūm, feverfew. (Better pŷrēth'rūm).

Greek pŷrēthōs, fiery heat. It is a febrifuge.

Pyretics, pŷrēt'īks, medicines for the cure of fevers; pyreto-logy, pŷr're.tōl'ō.gy, a treatise on fevers.

Greek pŷrēthōs, feverish heat, lōgōs, a discourse. (v. Pyritic.)

Pyrites, pŷr'rītes, a brass-like mineral common in coals.

Copper pyrites, a combination of copper and sulphur.

Iron pyrites, a combination of iron and sulphur.

Pyritic, pŷr'rī'īk; pyritical, pŷr'rī'ī.kāl. (v. Pyretics.)

Pyritiferous, pŷr'rī'īf'.ē.rūs, containing pyrites.

Greek pŷrītēs, a stone from which fire may be struck (pur, fire).

Pyro-acetic [spirit], pŷr'ro-a.see'.īk, a liquid obtained by the dry distillation of acetates. (Gk. puro-, Lat. acētum.)

Pyro-citrate, pŷr'ro-sīt'.ratē, a salt of pyrocitric acid.

Greek pŷro- [pur gen. puros], Latin citron (-ate denotes a salt).

Pyro-gallate, pŷr'ro-gāl'.late, a salt of pyrogallic acid.

Pyrogallic acid, an acid obtained by heat from gallic acid.

Greek pŷro- [pur gen. puros], Latin galla (-ate denotes a salt).

Pyro-genous, pŷr.rōdg'.ē.nūs, produced by the agency of fire.

Greek pŷro- [pur gen. puros] gennao, I produce from fire.

Pyro-latry, pŷr.rōl'.ā.try, fire worship.

Greek pŷro- [pur gen. puros] latreia, fire worship.

Pyro-ligneous, pŷr'ro.līg'.nē.ūs, obtained from the distillation of wood; pyrolignite, pŷr'ro.līg'.nīte, a salt of pyro-ligneous acid. (-ite denotes a salt from an acid in -ous.)

"Pyroligneous" is ill-formed, the word should be pyrolignous, Greek pŷro- [pur gen. puros], Latin lignum, wood.

- Pyro-malate, pīr'ro-ma''late, a salt of pyroma'lic acid.
 Greek pūro- [pur gen. puros], Latin mālum, an apple. Pyroma'lic acid is obtained from malic acid by heat (-ate denotes a salt).
- Pyro-mancy, pīr'ro.mān.sy, divination by fire; pyromantic, pīr'ro.mān''.tik, one who divines by fire, adj.
 Greek pūro- [pur gen. puros] manteia, divination by fire.
- Pyro-mania, pīr'ro.may''.nī.ah, an insane desire for setting fire to houses. (Greek pur mania, fire madness.)
- Pyro-meter, pīr'rom'.ē.ter, a meter for showing very high degrees of temperature, as of steam boilers, an instrument for showing the expansion of metals by heat; pyrom'etry, pyromet'ric; pyromet'rical, -kāl; pyrometrical-ly.
 Greek pūro- [pur gen. puros] metron, a measurer of heat.
- Pyro-morphite, pīr'ro-mor''.fite, a native phosphate of lead; pyromorphous, pīr'ro.mor''.fūs, having the property of crystallising by the action of heat. (Greek pur, morphē.)
- Pyr-ope, pīr'rōpe, a sort of garnet of a poppy-red colour.
 Greek pūrōpōs, pur ōps, face [like] fire.
- Pyro-phane, pīr'ro.fāne, a mineral made transparent by heat; pyrophanous, pīr'rof'.ā.nūs, rendered transparent by heat. (Greek pūro- phānōs, clear from fire.)
- Pyro-phorus, pīr'rof'.ō.rūs, a substance which takes fire spontaneously when exposed to the air; pyrophorous, adj.
 Greek pūro- [pur gen. puros] phōrōs, bearing fire.
- Pyro-phosphate, pīr'ro-fōs''.fāte, a salt of pyrophosphoric acid; pyro-phosphoric acid, pīr'ro-fōs.fōr''ric ās sīd, an acid obtained by heat from phosphoric acid.
 Greek pūro- [pur gen. puros] phōsphōrōs. (See Phosphorus.)
- Pyro-scope, pīr'ro.skōpe, an instrument for measuring the pulsations of air, or the intensity of radiated heat.
 All words (except phanta-scope, peri-scope, polariscope, poly-scope, and tele-scope) have -o- before -scope (Rule lxxiii.)
 Greek pūro- [pur gen. puros] skōpeō, I take notice of fire.
- Pyrosis, pīr'ō.sis, water-brash. (Greek pūrōsis, a burning.)
- Pyro-technic, pīr'ro.tēk''.nīk, pertaining to fire-works; pyrotechnics, the art of making or displaying fire-works; pyrotechny, pīr'ro.tēk''.ny. Pyrotechnist, pīr'ro.tēk''.nist.
 Fr. pyrotechnique, pyrotechnie; Gk. pūro- [pur] technē, fire-artifice.
- Pyrrhic dance, pīr'rik..., a war-dance invented by Pyrrhicūs.
- Pyrrhonism, pīr'ro.nīzm, scepticism, universal doubt; pyrrhonic, pīr'ōn'.īk, adj. of Pyrrho the sceptic; pyrrhonist, pīr'ro.nīst.
- Pythagorean, pī.thāg'.ō.ree''.ān (not pīth'.a.gōr'.re.an), adj. of Pythagoras or his philosophy; pythagoric, pīth'.a.gōr''rik; pythagorical, pīth'.ā.gōr''rī.kāl; pythagorism.
- Pythoess, pīth'.ō.ness, priestess of Apollo, at Delphi.
- Pythian, pīth'.ī.an, adj., as Pythian games (one of the four great national festivals of ancient Greece). Python, pí.rhōn, the dragon slain by Apollo, a genus of large serpents; python'ic; pythonist, píth'ō.níst, a conjurer, a soothsayer; pythonism, píth'ō.níz.m.

Pyx (better than pix), the shrine of the "host," the box in which the nautical compass is suspended, a box for coins to be tested before being reissued from the mint, a trial of the purity of silver-plate. (Lat. pyxis; Gk. puxis, a box.)

Pyx-idium, pix'íd'.í.um (in Bot.), a capsule (2 syl.) with a lid, as seen in hentane, &c. (Lat. pyxis; Gk. puxis, a box.)

The letter P presents several very striking peculiarities: (1) It contains an unusual amount of technical words, consequently, of words derived from the Greek or of a hybrid character; (2) The paucity of native words is more remarkable still; (3) More than half the words are from the Latin, or from Latin through the French.

Thus, of the 2200 words beginning with "p" 1234 are directly or indirectly Latin, and 565 Greek. There are 49 hybrids, 68 from proper names, 169 from promiscuous sources, 53 Welsh, and only 53 native, that is, belonging to the language spoken in England before the Conquest. The native words are:

Pad, paddock, paganish (fr. Lat.), pain, pale, pall, pan, parsley (fr. Lat.), par-take, path, pea, peace (fr. Lat.), peak, pear (fr. Lat.), pebble, pen (a fold), penny, pepper (fr. Lat.), pcrivinkle (fr. Lat.), pier, pig, pike, pillow (fr. Lat.), pimple, pine, pinfold, pipe, pit, pitch, pith, play, plight (fr. Lat.), plough, pluck, plume (fr. Lat.), pock, poinding, poke, pole (fr. Lat.), poppy (fr. Lat.), pound, por, pretty, prick, pride, priest (fr. Fr.), proof, proud, prove, provost, pull, and punt.

Those which are common to the Welsh language are:

Pail, paller, pannel, par, pare, parol, pass (n.), pat, pawl, penguin, pennon, penthouse, perk, pert, pet, pilfer, pin, pink, pitch, pitchfork, plague, plaid, (?) plait, plat, plate, plug, plumb (fr. Lat.), pod, point, poise, pontage (fr. Lat.), pork (fr. Lat.), port (fr. Lat.), pose (fr. Lat.), posset, post (fr. Lat.), poi, pottle, pour, praise (?), prance, prank, prey (?), price, print, pudding, puff, pun, punch, pure (fr. Lat.), push (fr. Fr.).

Quack, an empiric, to practise as an empiric, to cry as a duck.

Quackery, plu. quackeries, kwăk'.ě.ríz; quacked, kwăkt; quack'-ing. Quack-salver, a hawk of quack medicines.

Germ. quacksalber. "Quack" (as a duck), Germ. quaken, to croak.

Quadr-, quadri-, quadru- (Latin suffixes), four.

From the Latin quadra, quadrum gen. quadri (quatuor, four).

∴ Quadragenarian, kwôd'.ră.dje.nair'ri.ăn, a man forty years old, of forty. (Latin quădrăgēnarius.)

Quadrage, kwôd'.ră.djeen, an "indulgence" for forty days. Latin quădrăgēni, forty each (quatuor, ginta, Greek konta).

Quadragesima, kwôd'.ra.djēs''.ī.mah, Lent which contains forty days; quadragesima Sunday, first Sunday in Lent; quadragesimal, Lenten. (Latin quădrăgēsīma, mălis.)

Quadr-angle, kwôd.răn'.g'l, a plane figure with four right angles, a court inclosed on its four sides by buildings; quadrangular, kwōd.răn'.gŭ.lar; quadrang'ular-ly.

Latin quadrangŭlus, quadrangŭlāris (quadra angŭlus).

Quadrant, kwōd'.rant, an arc containing 90 degrees or the quarter of a circle; quadrant'al.

Lat. quadrans gen. quadrantis, the fourth of anything; quadrantālis.

Quadrat, kwōd'.rat, metal "padding" for type. (Fr. cadrat.)

Quadrate, kwōd'.rate, having four equal sides, symmetrical, to reduce to a square, to make four things correspond; quad'rāt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), quad'rāt-ing (Rule xix.)

Quadratic, kwōd.răl'.ĭk; quadratic equation, -e.kwā'.shŭn, one in which the answer or unknown quantity is a square.

Quadratics, kwōd.răl'.ĭks, the praxis of quadratic equations. Quadrat'rix, a mechanical line in geometry.

Quadrature, kwōd'.ra.ture, the act of squaring, applied to the moon in its first and last quarters.

Quadratus, kwōd.ray'.tŭs, applied to the square-shaped muscles: as quadratus fe'mōris, ...lumbo'rum, &c.

Latin quādrātus, quādrātūra; French quadrature.

Quadr-ennial, kwōd.rěn'.nĭ.ăl (for quadri-ennial), once in four years; quadrennial-ly. (Latin quadriennium.)

"Annus" in composition becomes -ennis, -ennium: as bi-ennial, tri-ennial, quadr-ennial, sept-ennial, per-ennial, &c.

Quadri-capsular, kwōd'.rĭ-kăp''.sŭ.lar, with four capsules.

Latin quadri-capsŭlar, having four capsules (2 syl.)

Quadri-cornous, kwōd'.rĭ-kor''.nus, with four horns.

Latin quadri-cornu, having four horns.

Quadri-costate, kwōd'.rĭ-kōs''.tate, four-ribbed.

Latin quadri-costa, having four ribs.

Quadri-dentate, kwōd'.rĭ-dĕn''.tate, having four teeth.

Latin quadri-dentātus, having four indentations or teeth.

Quadri-farious, kwōd'.rĭ-fair''rĭ.ĭs, in four rows.

Latin quadri-fārius, having four parts, ways, &c.

Quadri-fid, kwōd'.rĭ.fĭd, cut down to about the middle in four parts. If cut beyond the middle quadri-partite.

Latin quadri-fĭdus (quadri-fĭndo perfect fĭdi, to cleave).

Quadri-ga, kwōd'.rĭ.gah, a car drawn by four horses abreast.

Latin quadriga, i.e., quatuor jugum, a four-yoke.

Quadri-lateral, kwōd'.rĭ-lăl''.ĕ.răl, having four sides and four angles. (Latin quadrilātĕrus, lātus a side.)

Quadri-literal, kwōd'.rĭ-lĭt''.ĕ.răl, containing four letters.

Latin quadri-lĭtĕra, containing four letters.

Quadrille, kŭ.drĭl', a four-sided dance, a game of cards by four players. (French quadrille.)

Quadrillion, kwōd' drīl'.yŭn, the fourth power of a million, a unit with twenty-four ciphers (quadri-million).

Quadri-lobate, kwōd'.rī-lō".bate, having four lobes.

Latin quadri- with Greek lōbōs, having four lobes.

Quadri-ocular, kwōd'.rī-lōk''kū.lar, having four cells.

Latin quadri-lōcūlus, with four little places or chambers.

Quadri-nomial, kwōd'.rī-nō".mū.āl (in Algebra), consisting of four terms. Binomial, consisting of only two terms.

Latin quadri-nōmen genitive nōminis, four names or terms.

Quadri-partite, kwōd'.rī-par".tite, deeply cleft into four parts. Quadri-fid, cleft into four parts but not deeply; quadripartite-ly; quadripartition, -par.tish'.ŭn.

Lat. quadripartitus, quadri-, partitus, divided, v. partior, to divide.

Quadri-pennate, kwōd'.rī-pēn".nate, having four wings.

Latin quadri-penna, a wing or feather.

Quadri-phyllous, kwōd'.rī-fīl'.lūs, having four leaves.

A hybrid. Latin quadri-, Greek phullon, a leaf. The Greek would be tetra-phyllous, tē.trāf'.ū.lūs.

Quadri-reme, kwōd'.rī.reem, a galley with four banks of oars.

Latin quadri-rēmīs, quadrus rēmus, four [banks of] oars.

Quadri-syllable, kwōd'.rī-sīl'.lū.b'l, a word of four syllables.

Mon'o-syllable, a word of one syllable. Dis-syllable, a word of two syllables. Tri-syllable, a word of three syllables. Quadrisyllabic, kwōd'.rī-sīl.lūb''bīk.

Latin quadri-syllaba (Greek sullābē), four syllables.

Quadri-vium, kwōd'.rīv'.ŭm, the four arts or ways to philosophy (arithmetic, music, geometry, and astronomy).

Trivium, trīv'.ŭm, the three arts or ways to eloquence (grammar, rhetoric, and logic). The two together make the seven sciences. Quadrivial, kwōd'.rīv'.ŭl.

Quadroon, kwōd'.roon', four removes from pure Negro blood.

Zambo, the issue of an Indian and a Negro.

Mulatto, the issue of a white man and a Negress.

Terzeron, the issue of a white man and Mulatto woman.

Quadroon, the issue of a white and Terzeron.

French quarteron; Latin quadra (quatuor, four).

Quadru-man, kwōd'.ru.mān, a four-handed animal; quadrumana, kwōd'.ru'.mū.nah, animals like monkeys with four hands; quadrumanous, kwōd'.ru'.mū.nūs.

French quadrumane; Latin quadrum manus (four hands).

Quadru-ped, kwōd'.ru.pēd, a four-footed animal.

Latin quadrupes gen. -pēdis (quadrum pes gen. pedis, four feet).

Quadru-ple, kwōd'.ru.p'l, fourfold, to increase fourfold; quadrupled, kwōd'.ru.p'ld; quad'rupling, quad'ruply.

Quadruplicate, kwōd' drū'.plū.kate, to make fourfold; quadruplicat-ed (R. xxxvi.), quadruplicat-ing (R. xix.)

Quadruplication, kwöd dru' pl.kay''shñ.

Latin quadruplex, quadruplicatio, quadruplicare, quadruplicum.

Quæstor, kwees'tor, a Roman revenue officer.

Quaff (Rule v.), kwâf, to drink copiously; quaffed, kwâft; quaff'-ing, quaff'-er. (Fr. [se] coiffer, to get intoxicated.)

Quag, a bog; quagg'-y (Rule i.), adj. (Corruption of quake.)

Quagga, kwäg'gah, a South African animal allied to the ass and the zebra. (Hottentot quagga.)

Quagmire, kwäg'mire, a bog which trembles under the feet when walked upon. (Corruption of quaking mire.)

Quail, a bird allied to the partridge, to quake with fear; quailed (1 syl.), quail'-ing. Quail-pipe, a quail lure.

Italian quaglia, v. quagliare, to curdle [with fear]; French caille.

Quaint, odd, singular; quaint'-ly, quaint'-ness. (O. Fr. coint.)

Quake (1 syl.), to tremble; quaked (1 syl.), quāk'-ing (R. xix.)

Quaker, kwä'ker, one of the Society of Friends; qua'ker-ly; qua'ker-ism, the tenets or manners of a quaker.

Old English cwac[ian], past cwaced, past part. cwaced, cwacung.

Qualify, kwöl'äfy, to make competent, to mitigate, to dilute; qualifies, kwöl'äfize; qualified, kwöl'äfide; qualifi-er, kwöl'äfi.er; qualifi-able, kwöl'äfi''äb'l (Rule xi.)

Qualification, kwöl'äfi.kay''shñ; qualificative, kwöl'äfi.kä.tiv; qualificator, kwöl'äfi.kä.tor.

French qualifier, qualificatif; Italian qualificare, qualificazione.

Quality, plu. qualities, kwöl'ä.tiz, an inherent property, rank.

Qualitative, kwöl'ä.tä.tiv; qualitative-ly. Qualitative analysis, an analysis to determine the quality of the ingredients of a compound body.

Fr. qualité; Ital. qualità, qualitivo; Lat. qualitas (qualis, like).

Qualm (to rhyme with form), a feeling of nausea, prick [of conscience]; qualm-ish for qualmy-ish, rather qualmy; qualmish-ly, qualmish-ness. (Old Eng. qualm or cwalm.)

Quandary, plu. quandaries, kwön'.dä.riz (not kwön'.dair'.riz), perplexity. (Fr. qu'en dirai-je, what shall I say to it.)

Quant, kwont, a pole for pushing a barge, to push with a quant.

Quantity, plu. quantities, kwön'.tätiz, the bulk, weight, or number of a mass. Quantitative, kwön'.tätä.tiv; ...tive-ly.

Quantitative analysis, to determine the quantity of the respective ingredients contained in a compound.

French quantité; Latin quantitas (quantus, how much, &c.)

Quantum, kwön'.tüm, amount, quantity. (Latin quantum.)

Quantum meruit (Latin), kwön'.tüm mēr'rū.it, an action based on the promise of a defendant to pay the plaintiff as much as he deserved.

Quantum sufficit (Latin), kwăn'.tăm sűf' fű.săt, sufficient.

Quantum valeat (Latin), kwăn'.tăm vă'.lě.ăt, an action to recover the worth of goods sold to the defendant.

Quarantine (one r), kwőr'răn.teen, the time a ship must abstain from entering a port for fear of introducing infection, to compel a ship to abstain from...; quar'antined (3 syl.); quarantin-ing, kwőr'răn.teen'ing. (Italian quarantina.)

Laz'aret, a ship lying out on quarantine.

"Quarantine" a corrupt form of Latin quadraginta, forty, because originally ships from a suspected port were lazarets forty days.

Quarrel, kwőr'rěl, a contention, a dispute, an arrow for a cross-bow, a diamond pane of glass, to dispute; quar'relled (2 syl.); quarrell-ing, quarrell-er (Rule iii.)

The spelling of "quarrel" (a dispute) is indefensible, it ought to be querel, Welsh cweryl, French querelle, Latin querēla, a complaint, and hence a dispute (v. queror, to complain).

"Quarrel" (an arrow), Welsh chwarel; French quarreau, a square-headed dart, and hence a square of glass.

Quarry, plu. quarries, kwőr'ríz, a stone-mine, any game flown at by hawks and killed, dead game, to excavate from a stone-mine; quarried, kwőr'ríd; quarry-ing; quarry-man.

"Quarry" (stone mine), Fr. carrière, Low Lat. quadrataria, a place where stones are cut from the mine in "square" blocks (carré).

"Quarry" (dead game), Fr. curée, cuyerie, the entrails given to the dogs.

Quart, kwort, the fourth part of a gallon, two pints. (Fr. quarte.)

Quartan [ague], kwor'.tăn, occurring every fourth day.

Latin quartāna [febris], from quartus, the fourth.

Quarter, kwor'.ter, the fourth-part, 28 lbs. avoirdupoise, 8 bushels, a point of the compass, a part of a town, mercy granted by a conqueror to an enemy, a part or side, (in a shoe) the part from the heel to the vamp.

Quarters, a military station, a lodging, the place assigned to a soldier or sailor on duty, (in Arch.) the slight up-rights between the puncheons, to divide into four equal parts, to station for lodgings, &c.; quartered, kwor'.terd; quarter-ing, quarter-ly, quartern; quartern-loaf, a loaf of 4 lbs. (made of a quarter of a peck [or stone] of flour).

Quarter-day, Lady-day (25th March), Midsummer-day (24th June), Michaelmas-day (29th Sept.), Christmas-day.

Quarter-deck, between the main-mast and the stern.

Quarter-master, a regimental staff-officer whose duty is to assign quarters and provide food and clothing to his regiment, (in the navy) a petty officer who assists the mates in stowing the hold, attending to the steerage, &c.

Quarter-sessions, a general court held quarterly by the justices of the peace of each county.

Quarter-staff, plu. quarter-staves, a long staff anciently borne by foresters for attack and defence.

Head-quarters, the tent or residence of the commander-in-chief of an army or of the chief officer in command.

To give quarter, to accept as a prisoner of war an enemy who submits. To show no quarter, to slay without mercy.

To quarter arms, to place the arms of other families in certain compartments of a family shield.

Latin quartarius, quartarium (quartus, from quatuor, four).

Quartet, kwor.tel' or Quartetto, plu. quartettos (Rule xlii.), a musical composition in four parts. (Italian quartetto.)

Quarto, plu. quartos (R. xlii.), kwor'.tōze, a book (nearly square) four leaves being a sheet. (Ital. in-quarto, Lat. quartus.)

Quartz, kwortz, rock-crystal, flint-earth; quartiferous, -tīf'.ĕ.rŭs.

Quartzite, kwortz'.ite, sandstone indurated by heat.

Quartzose, kwortz'.ōze, abounding in quartz (-ose, full of); quartz-y, containing or resembling quartz.

French quartz, quartzoux, from the German quarz, quarzig.

Quash, kwosh, to crush; quashed (1 syl.), quash'-ing.

Old English cwys[an], past cwysde, past part. cwysed (Latin quasso).

Quasi, kway'.sī, apparently, resembling, implied (Latin).

Quasi contract, an implied contract, as when a master employs a workman on any business.

Quasi argument, a confirmatory statement or illustration.

Quasi tenant, a subtenant accepted by the landlord.

Quassia, a South American plant the bark of which is a tonic.

So called from the negro Quassy, who first made it known.

Quaternary, kwŭ.ter'.nā.ry, consisting of fours, arranged in fours; quaternate leaf, kwa.ter'.nate, with four leaflets.

Quaternion, kwa.ter'.nī.on (in Script.), a file of forty soldiers, four grouped together. Quater'nity, a four in one.

Latin quaternarius, quaternio, quaternitas (quater, four times).

Quatorze, ka.tōrz' (Fr.), fourteen, as Louis quatorze, four cards at the game of piquet (good for fourteen points).

Quatrain, kwŏt'.răn, a poetical stanza of four lines with alternate rhymes. (Fr. quatrain, quatre; Lat. quatuor, four.)

Quatrefoil, kah'.trĕ.foil, an ornamental arrangement of cusps into four leaves. (French quatre feuille, four leaves.)

Quaver, kwa'.ver, a black note with a hooked tail, a trembling, to tremble, to vibrate, to shake; quavered, kwa'.verd; qua'ver-ing, qua'ver-er. (Welsh chivibio, to quaver.)

Quay, plu. quays. Key, plu. keys. (Both kee, plu. keez.)

Quay, a wharf at which vessels load and unload. (Fr. quai.)

Key, an instrument for turning a lock-bolt. (O. Eng. cæg.)

Quean, a worthless woman. Queen, a sovereign. (Both kween.)

"Quean," Old Eng. quean, a barren cow, quêne or cwêne, a harlot.

"Queen," Old Eng. cwén, a queen; as a prefix it means a female, hence queen-bee, the female bee, cwén fugel, a hen bird.

Queasy, kwē'zy, qualmish, with a sensation of nausea; queasi-ly (Rule xi.); queasi-ness, qualmishness.

Queen, wife of a king, a sovereign. Quean, q.v. (Both kween.)

Queen consort, the wife of a reigning king.

Queen dowager, the widow of a king.

Queen-mother, the mother of a reigning queen.

Queen regent, a queen reigning in her own right.

Queen-ly, queen-like, becoming or fit for a queen.

Queen-bee, the fertile female of a hive. (In Ang.-Sax. cwén was used as a prefix to denote a female.)

Queen-post and King-post. Queen-posts are two uprights fixed on the wall-plate to support the roof. If only one post is used it is called a King-post. (See Roof.)

Queen's metal, a superior kind of pewter.

In regard to the national offices, as King's or Queen's Bench, &c., and such terms as King's or Queen's Evidence, it is wholly absurd to keep changing them as a man or woman becomes the head of the empire. As well call the kingdom a queendom.

"Quean," Old Eng. cwén. "Quean," Old Eng. cwêne, cwén, a harlot.

Queer, curious, odd; queer'-ly, queer'-ness, queer'-ish. (R. lxvii.)

German quer, oblique, crotchety, hence querkopf, a queer fellow.

Quell (R. v.), to put down rebellion, to quiet; quelled (1 syl.), quell'-ing; quell'-er, R. i. (Old Eng. cwell[an], n. cwal.)

Quench, to extinguish, to allay [thirst]; quenched (1 syl.), quench'-ing, quench'-able, quench'-er; quench'-less, quench'-less-ly, quench'-less-ness. Unquench'-able.

Old English cwenc[an], past cwencde, past part. cwenced.

Querimonious, kwēr'ri.mō''nī.ūs, complaining; querimo'nious-ly, querimo'nious-ness. (Latin quērīmōnia, v. quēror.)

Querulous, kwēr'rū.lūs, habitually complaining, whining; quer'ulous-ly, quer'ulous-ness. (Latin quērūlus, quēror.)

Quern, kwern, a hand-mill for corn. (Old English cwēorn.)

Query, plu. queries, kwē'ry, plu. kwē'rīz (R. xlv.), an enquiry to be resolved, a point to be inquired into, to make a query; queried, kwē'reḍ; query-ing, kwē'rī.ing; que'rist.

Quest, kwest, search, pursuit. (French queste, now quête.)

Question, kwēs'.tchūn, an interrogation, subject of debate, to doubt, to feel uncertain, to have no confidence in; questioned, kwēs'.tchūnd; question-ing, question-er; question-able, doubtful, disputable; questionable-ness, questionably. Questionary, kwēs'.tchūn.ā.ry.

Question-ist. In question, under discussion.

Begging the question, assuming what ought to be proved.

A leading question, lee'.ding kwes'.tchun, a question which suggests [or leads up to] the required answer.

Out of the question, not to be thought of, most unlikely.

Past questioning, beyond a doubt.

Latin querere supine quæsitum, quæstio; French question.

Queue, kū (Fr.), a tail or tie of a wig, a cue, a line of followers.
In France the train made by a crowd seeking to enter a theatre, &c., on the principle of first come first enter.

Quibble, kwib'.b'l, an evasive speech, a distorted reply, to evade a direct reply by artifice; quib'bled (2 syl.), quibb'ling, quibb'ler. (Same as quip, Welsh chivip, a sudden turn.)

Quick, (comp.) quick'-er, (super.) quick'-est, alive, active, intelligent; quick-ly, quick-ness, rapidity, liveliness.

The quick and the dead, the living and the dead.

Quick-grass, dog-grass, which spreads very fast. (A.S. cwice.)

Quick-lime, unslaked lime, lime with its caustic qualities.

Quick-match, cotton strands dipped in saltpetre, &c.

Quick-sands, a shifting sand-bank in the sea.

Quick-set, hawthorn slips for hedge planting.

Quick-sighted, -sīte'.ed, acute in sight and perception.

Quick-witted, of ready wit, intelligent, sharp.

Quicken, to hasten, to become alive, to incite; quicken'd, kwik'nd; quicken-ing, kwik.'ning; quicken-er.

Old Eng. cuc, cweoc or cwic, cwictic, cwice for hedges, v. cuc'ian].

Quicksilver, kwik'.sil.ver, fluid mercury; quicksilver'd, kwik'-.sil.ver'd, overlaid with quicksilver; quick'silver-ing.

So called because it is white like silver and very mobile.

Quid, kwid, a piece of tobacco rolled about the mouth, as a cow rolls about the cud she is chewing. (Old Eng. cud.)

Quiddity, kwid'.dī.ty, a subtility, a verbal crotchet.

The schoolmen used to say quid est? (what is it?) and the reply was the "quid" is so and so, whence the barbarous Latin noun quid-tas: as talis est quiditas, such is the "quid" or solution.

Quidnunc (Latin), a prying inquisitive gossip after news, quid nunc means "What now?" "What is going on now?"

Quiescent, kwī.ēs'.sent, in perfect repose; quiescence, kwī.ēs'.-sense; quies'cent-ly. Acquiesce, to agree to or with, &c.

Latin quiescens genitive quiescentis, quiesco (-sco inceptive).

Quiet, kwī'.et, (comp.) quiet-er, (super.) quiet-est, calm, freedom from disturbance or noise, smooth, to still, to allay; qui'et-ed (Rule xxxvi.), qui'et-ing; qui'et-er, more quiet, one who quiets; qui'et-ly; qui'et-ness, calmness, stillness; quietude, kwī'ē.tude.

Qui'etist, one of the sect revived by Michael Mo'linos in the 17th century; quiet-ism; quietistic, kwī'ē.tiss.tik.
Latin quies gen. quiētis, quiētus; French quiet, quietiste, quietisme.

Quill, one of the large strong feathers of a goose, &c., the reed on which weavers wind the thread to be used in a woof, (poetically) a musical instrument, music or song, to plait, to wind on a quill; quilled (1 syl.), quill'-ing.

Quill-driver, a clerk. (German kiel, a quill.)

Quilt, a counterpane, to sew a ball with strug; quilt'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), quilt'-ing, quilt'-er.

Latin culcitra, a quilt or bed tick, v. culcitāre. Same word as "counterpane," which is culcitra puncta, a quilt with a pattern.

Quinary, kwī'.nā.ry, consisting of fives, a multiple of five.

Quinate, kwī'.nate, applied to five leaflets on a petiole.

Latin quinārius, containing five (quini, five each).

Quince (1 syl.), a fruit. (Fr. coing, cognasse, the quince tree.)

Quincunx, kwīn'.kūnks, arranged like the five of cards; quincuncial, kwīn'.kūn'.sē.āl, adj.; quincuncial-ly.

Latin quincunx, quincunciālis. (First applied to five ounces.)

Quindecagon, kwīn'.dēk'.ā.gōn, a plane figure with fifteen sides and fifteen angles. (Latin quinque, Greek deka-gonia.)

Why this hybrid was manufactured it would be hard to say, when the Greek dekapentagon (dēk'.a.pēn'.tē.gōn) was at hand.

Quindecemvir, plu. quindecemviri or quindecemvirs, kwīn'.dē.sēm''.vir, plu. -vī.rī or -verz, the fifteen priests of ancient Rome who had charge of the sibylline books; quindecem'virate (5 syl.), the collective body or office of...

Latin quindecem vir, fifteen men, one of the fifteen men.

Quinine, kwī'.nine (not kwe.neen'), a tonic made of Peruvian bark. (French quinine from Spanish quina.)

The word is derived from the Peruvian kin-kin or kina-kina (the bark of barks), but cinchona is Latinised from Cinchon, wife of the viceroy of Lima, who introduced it into Spain in 1648.

Quinquagesima, kwīn'.kwa.djēs''.ā.ma, the fiftieth.

Quinquagesima Sunday, the seventh Sunday before Easter, Shrove-Sunday. (Latin quingagesimus.)

Quinq-, quin'que- before consonants (Latin prefix), five.

Quinq-angular, kwīn'.kwān'.gū.lar, having five angles.

Latin quinq-[quinque]angūlus, having five angles.

Quinque-capsular, kwīn'.kwē-kāp''.sū.lar, having five capsules. (Latin quinque capsula, five capsules [2 syl.])

Quinque-costate, kwîn'.kwě-kôs''.tate, five-ribbed.

Latin quinque costa, five ribs. A botanical term.

Quinque-dentate, kwîn'.kwě-děn''.tate, five toothed.

Latin quinque dens genitive dentis, five teeth. (Bot. and Zoology.)

Quinque-farious, kwîn'.kwě-fair''rî.ăis, applied to leaves disposed in five rows along a stem.

French quinquefarié; Latin quinque fero, I carry five [rows].

Quinque-fid, kwîn'.kwě-fîd, [a leaf] cleft into five parts not further than the middle. (See Quinque partite.)

Latin quinque fido perfect fîdi, cleft into five parts.

Quinque-foliate, kwîn'.kwě-fô''.lî.ate, having five leaves.

Latin quinque foliatus (folium, a leaf), five-leaved.

Quinque-lateral, kwîn'.kwě-lăt''.ě.răl, having five sides and five angles. (Also called Multi-lateral.)

Lat. quinque latus, five sides, multus latus, many sides. (See below.)

Quinque-literal, kwîn'.kwě-lît''.ě.răl, having five letters.

Latin quinque litëra, five letters. (See above.)

Quinque-lobate, kwîn'.kwě-lô''.bate, having five lobes.

Latin quinque, Greek lobôs. A Greek compound is pentelobate.

Quinque-ocular, kwîn'.kwě-lök''kû.lar, [a pericarp] with five cells. (Latin quinque locûla, five little chambers.)

Quinqu-ennial, kwîn.kwě'n'.nî.ăl, once in five years, lasting five years. (Latin quinquennium, quinque annus.)

"Annus" in composition becomes enni-: as bi-ennial, &c.

Quinque-partite, kwîn'.kwě-par''.tite, [a leaf] cleft into five parts further than the middle. (See Quinque fid.)

Latin quinque partitus, parted into five [divisions].

Quinque-valve, kwîn'.kwě-valve, having five valves.

Latin quinque valvæ, having five valves.

Quinque-reme, kwîn'.kwě-reem, a galley with five banks of oars. (Latin quinque remus, five [banks of] oars.)

Quinsy, plu. quinsies, kwîn'.sîz (Rule xlv.), acute inflammation of the tonsils, an inflammatory sore throat.

French esquinancie; Greek sun-agchônê, suffocation, throttling.

The derivation of "quinsy" from the Gk. sunagchônê seems as remote as that of "sir" from the Gk. anax, a king, but both are certain.

Quint, a sequence of five. (French quinte, Latin quintus.)

Quintain, kwîn'.tîn, a military game performed on horseback. (Invented by Quintus, a Roman soldier.)

Fr. quintaine; Ital. quantana; Low Lat. quintana. The quintan was a "mannikin" mounted on a pivot, with a whip in his hand with which he lashed the maladroït player.

Quintal, kwîn'.tăl, 100 or 112 lbs. Quintile, kwîn'.tîl, 72 deg.

"Quintal," Fr. quintal; L. centum. "Quintile," Fr. quintil; L. quintus.

Quintessence, kwîn.tēs'.sense, the fifth essence, the most subtile extract of a body. (Fr. quintessence, Lat. quinta essentia.)

The ancient Greeks, like modern chemists, said there are four elements or forms in which matter can exist: fire (the imponderable form), air (the gaseous form), water (the liquid form), earth (the solid form). Pythagoras added a fifth, ether, more subtile than any, out of which the stars were created; this ether was called the fifth essence: hence "ethereal," the most pure and subtile.

Quintet' or quintetto, plu. quintettos, kwîn.tēt'.toze (R. xlii.), a musical composition for five voices or instruments (Ital.)

Quintile, kwîn.til, the position of two planets, the fifth of a circle [72 deg.] off each other. Quintal', 100 or 112 lbs.

"Quintile," Fr. quintil; L. quintus. "Quintal," Fr. quintal; L. centum.

Quintillion, kwîn.til'.yūn, a million raised to the fifth power (a unit followed by thirty figures. A million is six figures, and $6 \times 5 = 30$.) (Compound of quint million.)

Quintuple, kwîn'.tū.p'l, five-fold, five crotchets to a bar, to make five-fold; quin'tupled (3 syl.), quin'tupling.

Latin quintuplex (quinto plico, to fold in five folds).

Quip, a jest, a gibe, to rally with sarcasm; quipped (1 syl.), quipp'-ing (Rule i.) Equip', to furnish with equipments.

Welsh chwip, a flirt or flirt, v. chwipio.

Quire, kwire, a choir, twenty-four sheets of paper each folded once; quirister, kwir'ris.ter, a chorister.

"Quire" (of paper), Fr. cahier. "Quire" (choir), Fr. chœur.

Quirk, kwerk, a quibble, a smart retort. (Welsh chwired.)

Quit, to leave; quitt'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), quitt'-ing, quitt'-er, quitt'-ance. Quits, obligations balanced, one debt balanced by another. Quit rent, a small rent paid in acknowledgment of another's right.

Fr. quitter, quitte; Low Lat. quietare, quietus redditus, quit rent.

Qui tam, a penal action in which the informer gets half the penalty. It is instituted by the crown and the informer.

The first words are "Qui tam pro domina regina, quam pro se ipso, sequitur" (Who as well for the queen as for himself).

Quite, kwite, entirely. (Same as Quit, q.v.)

Quiver, kwiv'r, a case for arrows, to shake; quivered, kwiv'rd; quiver-ing, quivering-ly, quiver-er.

"Quiver" (for arrows), Fr. carquois; (to shake), Welsh chwibio.

Qui vive, ke veev', "who goes there?" the challenge of a French sentinel. On the qui vive, on the alert.

Quixotic, kwix.ōt'ik, romantically absurd; quixotism, kwix'.ō.tizm. (From Don Quixote.)

Quiz, one who banters or chaffs, to banter, to look at through an eye-glass; quizzed (1 syl.), quizz'-ing (R. i.), quizzical, kwīz'.zī.kāl. Quizzing-glass, a small eye-glass.

Said to be invented by Daly, manager of the Dublin theatre, who laid a bet to invent a new word which should be generally known in the city within 24 hours. A corruption of quid est, what is it?

Quodlibet and quidlibet, kwōd'.lī.bēt, kwīd'.lī.bēt, a verbal subtlety, promiscuous questions. (Latin.)

Quoif, a cap or hood; quoiffure, koif'.fure, a head-dress.

French coiffe, coiffure, coiffeur, coiffer (couvrir, to cover).

Quoin, koin. Coin, money (either good or bad).

Quoin, the end of a wall, a wedge-for elevating guns, a wedge used by printers to tighten type in a "chase."

"Quoin," French coin. "Coin" (money) is the same word, both from the Latin cunēus, a wedge or die for stamping money.

Quoit, koit, a heavy flat ring to be thrown at a mark; quoits, the game played with quoits.

Games named from the articles used are plural if more than one article of the same kind is used by a single player, otherwise they are singular: as cards, draughts, dice; but bandy, football, &c.

Quondam, kwōn'.dām (Latin), former: as my quondam friend.

Quorum, kwōr'rūm, sufficient to form a committee, a special commission of justices. Justices of the Quorum.

Commissions of the peace are addressed to several persons by name (say five or seven), quorum [of which], some three or four, are to meet together, otherwise the business is to be deferred.

Quota, kwō'.tah (Lat.), the share of a general [debt] allotted to any one individual, the amount which forms one share.

Quote, kwōte, to cite, to name chapter and verse; quōt'-ed (R. xxxvi.), quōt'-ing (R. xix.), quōt'-er, quōt'-able.

Quotation, kwō.tay'.shūn. (French coter, Latin citāre.)

Quoth, kwōth, says. (Old English cwyth, says.)

Quotidian, kwō.tīd'.x.ān, daily. (Latin quotidiānus.)

Quotient, kwō'.shent, the answer of a sum in division.

Dividend, the number to be divided.

Divisor, the number to divide by.

Quotient, the answer. Remainder, what is left when the dividend is not exactly measured by the divisor.

French quotient (Latin quoties, how often: as quoties, how often does 2 go in 8, 4 is the quotient or result of quoties).

Rabate. Rebate. (See Rabbet and Rabbit.)

Rabate, ră.bait', to bring back a hawk from its flight; rabāt'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), rabāt'-ing (Rule xix.)

Rebate, re.bate', deduction, abatement in price.

Both French rebatre, to beat or bring back, to abate.

Rabbet, răb'.băt (in Joinery), an edge left like that of a door-frame into and against which the door fits. (See above.)

A rabbet joint, a way of splicing timber securely.

These words are generally written rebate, rebated, &c., but are most frequently called by joiners rabbet, &c. Strictly speaking rabot is the correct spelling.

Fr. raboter, to plane, rabot, a plane; Lat. rādūla, v. rādo, to plane.

Rabbi, plu. rabbis, răb'.bi, plu. răb'.biz, a Jewish doctor or master; rabbinic, răb'.bîn'.îk; rabbinal, răb'.bîn'.î.kăl; rabbinal-ly, răb'.bîn'.ist. (Hebrew R[a]BA.)

Rabbit. (See Rabbet, Rabate, Rebate.)

Rabbit, răb'.bît, (male) buck [rabbit], (fem.) doe, dō [rabbit].

Welsh rabbit, cheese toasted and dropped on bread (corruption of rare-bit, tit bit); rabbit-warren, -wôr' rên.

Rabble, răb'.b'l, the mob, the canaille; rabblement, a tumultuous crowd of the lower orders. (Lat. rādūla, a brawler.)

The second b in "rabbet," "rabbit," "rabbi," and "rabble" is quite supernumerary, and not required for the pronunciation even.

Rabid, răb'.îd, mad, as a rabid dog; rab'id-ly, rab'id-ness.

Rabies, răb'.î.eez, hydrophobia. (Latin rābīdus, rābīes.)

Raca, rah'.kah, "thou fool," Matt. v. 22. (The offence of this Syriac word has no equivalent in our language.)

Raccoon, răk.koon', a North American animal resembling a badger. Shortened into 'coon. It bides in trees.

Răce (1 syl.), stock or family, a contest in running, a tide arrested and diverted, the watercourse leading to a mill-wheel, to run, to contend in a race; raced (1 syl.); rac-ing, ra'.cing; rac-er, ra'.ser; race-course.

"Race" (pedigree), French race; Latin rādix gen. rādīcis.

"Race" (course), Old Eng. răs, v. răs[an], past răsde, p. part. răsed.

Rach. Rash. (See below Rack, Wrack.)

Rach, rack, (fem.) brach, brack, a setter. (Old Eng. ræce.)

Rash, rash, hazardous, venturesome. (Old English hræs.)

Rack. Wrack, sea-weed. (See above Rach, Rash.)

Rack, anything for holding hay, plates, bottles, toast, &c., made with bars, floating vapour, an instrument of torture, to strain, to draw off from the lees, to torture; racked (1 syl.), rack'-ing, rack'-er (Old English hracca.)

Rack-rent, the full rent, if rates are paid on the rack-rent no deductions of any kind are allowed.

To rack off, to draw off wine, &c. To put to the rack, to subject to the torture of the rack.

To rack one's brains, to strain thought to the utmost.

Shakespeare often uses wrack for wreck, and probably "wrack" = wreck (not rack, floating vapour) is the reading of that famous passage in the Tempest iv. 1. The towers, palaces, and temples of the earth, yea, and the great globe itself, shall dissolve and "leave not a wrack behind" (i.e., a shattered fragment).

Rack'et, a clatter, the bat used at tennis, tennis, to make a racket; rack'et-ed, rack'et-ing; rack'et-y, noisy.

The game ought to be racket, not rackets, as each player holds only one racket or bat (Fr. raquette; Lat. reticulum).

Racy, rā'sy, (comp.) rā'ci-er, (super.) rā'ci-est (R. xi.), piquant; rā'ci-ness, rā'ci-ly. (O. E. hræs, a gushing; ræs, force.)

Raddle, răd'.d'l, to twist together. (O. E. wrăd, a tie, a band.)

Thackeray uses the expression raddled with red, converting rud red, ruddle red-earth, into raddle, to paint with red. The word, however, is objectionable, and is probably an error for ruddled.

Radiate, ra'.dī.āte, to send out rays of light or heat; ra'diāt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), ra'diāt-ing, ra'diāt-or (Rule xxxvii.)

Radiation, ra'.dī.ā''shŭn; radial, ra'.dī.āl.

Radiant, ra'.dī.ant; ra'diant-ly; radiance, ra'.dī.anse; radiancy. Radiata, ra'.dī.ā.tah, a class of animals (like the star-fish) which have their members round a central axis. Radiative, ra'.dī.a.tīv; ra'diary.

In Lat. the first a is short, but we have taken "ray" as the crude form. Lat. rādians gen. rādiantis, rādiatio, rādiātus, v. rādiāre (rādīus).

Radical, răd'.ī.kăl, a democrat. Rad'icle, the embryo root.

Rad'ical (in Chem.), the base or chief part of a compound; fundamental, coming from the root, pertaining to the root; rad'ical-ly, rad'ical-ness, rad'ical-ism.

Radicant, răd'.ī.kant, producing roots from the stem.

Radicatē, răd'.ī.kate; rad'icāt-ed (R. xxxvi.), rad'icāt-ing.

Radication, răd'.ī.kay''shŭn. Erad'icate, to root up.

Latin rādicālis, rādicātus, v. rādicāri (rādiŭs gen. rādicis, a root).

Radicle, răd'.ī.k'l, the embryo of the root. Rad'ical, a democrat.

Latin rādicŭla, a little root (rādiŭs genitive rādicis, a root).

Radiolite, ra'.dī.ō.lite, one of the radiolites, a genus of fossil shells. (Latin rādiŭs, Greek lithos, a ray fossil.)

The corresponding Greek word to radius is aktin ("actinite").

Radish, răd'.ish (not red'.ish). Reddish, răd'.ish, rather red.

Rad'ish, an esculent root. (Old Eng. redic; Lat. rādiŭs.)

Obs. "radish" only one d, "reddish" double d (red, redd-ish, R. i.)

Radius, plu. radii or radiuses, ra'.dī.us, plu. ra'.dī.ī, &c., a straight line from the centre to the circumference of a circle. (Latin rādiŭs, plu. rādii, the spoke of a wheel.)

Rad'ix, plu. rad'ices. Rad'ish, plu. rad'ishes, an esculent root.

Radix, ra'.dix, plu. radices, rad'.i.sceez, the base of any system of computation, the part of a plant inserted in the ground, the crude form of a word.

Latin rādiŭs plural rādices; Greek rhadiŭs, a branch.

Raffle, răf'f'l, a sort of lottery, to try one's luck in a raffle; raffled, răf'f'ld; raffling, raff'ler. (Fr. rafle, rafler.)

Raft, răhft, a wooden platform for floating. Raftsmán, răhfts'-man, plu. raftsmen, one who manages a raft.

Old Eng. hræfn[an], to support, a "raft" is for the transport of goods.

Rafter, răhf'.ter, one of the sloping beams of a roof; raftered, răhf'.terd. (Old English răfter, a rafter.)

Răg, a tatter, to scold. Rags, tattered clothes, bits of rag; ragg'-ed, tattered; (super.) ragg'-ed-est (comp. not in use); ragg'-ed-ly, ragg'-ed-ness; but ragged (1 syl.), scolded; ragg'-er, one who nags or scolds; ragg'-ing (Rule i.)

Rag'-bolt, an iron pin with jags on both sides.

Rag'-wheel, a wheel with a notched or jagged tyre.

Rag'-man, plu. -men, a collector of old rags.

Rag'-stone, a stone so called from its rough fracture.

Old English hracod, ragged. Danish rageri pl., trumpery, trash.

Ragamuffin, răg'.ă.műf'.fîn, a rascallion.

Corruption of Fr. racaille maroufle, a tag-rag rascallion.

(If the first syllable were from "rag" the g would be doubled.)

Răge (g = dg), anger, to storm; răged (1 syl.); rag-ing, ră'.ging; ră'ging-ly; rag-er, ra'.ger. (French rage.)

Ragout (Fr.), ră.goo', meat stewed and highly seasoned.

From French re-gôte, Latin re-gusto, to taste again.

Raid, răde, a foray. (Old Eng. răd, a rioting, an incursion.)

Rail, a horizontal bar of wood or metal (the uprights are pales), an iron bar on which locomotives run, a corn-crake, to reproach, to scoff; railed (1 syl.), rail'-er; rail'-ing, a fence made with rails and posts, reproaching.

Raillery, plu. railleries, răl'.lě.rěz (not rail'.lě.rěz), banter; railleur (Fr.), rail'.yer, a banterer.

Rail'-way, a road laid with iron-rails for locomotives.

Rail-road; railway-chairs, cast-iron pieces bolted on the sleepers in which the rails are firmly set.

Railway-plant, the entire apparatus used on a railway; railway sleepers, planks of wood laid across the permanent way on which the "chairs" are fastened; railway slide, a turn-table; railway guide, a book of railway fares.

By rail, by railway. Rail-guards, iron rods to throw off from the rails any obstruction.

"Rail" (a bar), Welsh rhail. "Rail" (a bird), Fr. rále, Lat. raillus.

"Rail" (to banter), French railler, raillerie, railleur.

The double l in "raillery" is an indefensible violation of Rule ii.: railed, railling, railer, &c., have only one l. As for raillieur, it is not Anglicised, and therefore may remain in its present form.

Raiment, ray'ment, clothing in general. (Cont. of arrayment.)

Rain, Reign, Rein, all rāne. Reins.

Rain, water from the clouds, to drop water from the clouds;
rained (1 syl.), rain'-ing, rain'-less, rain-bow.

Rain'-y, rain'i-ness (Rule xi.), rain-fall (not rainfal);
rain-gauge, -gage; rain-tight, so as to keep out rain;
rain-prints (in Geol.); rain-water, -wau'ter.

Reign, rain, government. (Latin regnum, regnāre.)

Rein (for horses), restraint. (Fr. rêne, Lat. rētinens.)

Reins, rains, the kidneys. (Fr. rein, Lat. ren, plu. renes.)

"Rain," Old English regen, regn, rén, rein, v. regian, regnan, rénan, past rinde, regenig, rainy, regentic, likely to rain.

Raise, Raze, both raze. Rays, raze, beams of light, &c.

Raise, rāze, to elevate, to propagate; raised (1 syl.)

Rais'-ing (Rule xix.), elevating. Rais'in, a dried grape.

Rais-er, ra'zer, one who raises. Ra'zor (for shaving).

Raze, to lay level with the ground, to destroy.

"Raise," O. E. ræran, to raise, deriv. risan, to rise (to make to rise).

"Raze," Fr. raser, razoir, a razor; Welsh rhasgiwr; Lat. rādo.

"Rays," Fr. rayon, Lat. rādīus, beams which radiate like spokes.

RAISE, RISE; LAY, LIE. "Raise" and "lay" are transitive verbs, but "rise" and "lie" intransitive. The former require a noun after them, which the latter will not admit. RAISE, raised, raised.
RISE, rose, risen.

ERRORS OF SPEECH:

The price of flour is raising fast [rising].

They rose the price of wheat yesterday [raised].

Gold has ris or raised in value [risen].

Being risen from sleep, he sat up [raised].

Raisin, ra'zin a dried grape. (French raisin, Latin rācēmus.)

Rajah, fem. rannee, rak'jah, ran'nee, a native sovereign or prince in Hindūstan; rajah-ship (-ship, office, rank of);
rajpoot, rahj.poot', the higher Hindū military caste.

Raja, royal; raja putra, royal offspring.

Rāke (1 syl.), an instrument for gardening and agricultural purposes, a debauchee, to use a rake, to act as a debauchee; raked (1 syl.), rāk'-ing (Rule xix.), rāk'-er. (See Raca.)

Rāk'-ish (-ish added to nouns means "like," added to adj.
it is dim.); a rakish looking vessel, said of a vessel when the mast slopes from its perpendicular; rakish-ly, -ness.

"Rake" (an inst.), Old Eng. rāce, v. rāc[ian], past rācode, p. p. rācod.
Welsh rhacai, a rake, rhacaniad, v. rhacanu, rhacanuwr, a raker.

Rakehell, rāke-hell, a profligate. (French racaille, a rascal.)

Rally, rāl'ly, to banter, to reduce fugitive troops to order again, to resume strength; rallies, rāl'liz; rallied, rāl'led;
rally-ing, rallying-point. (Fr. raillier, both meanings.)

Ram, (fem.) ewe, you; ram, a tup; ewe, the dam; lamb, the offspring; tup-lamb, male; ewe-lamb, female; hogget, a weaned lamb; shearling, a lamb which has lost its first fleece; wether, a sheep more than two years old reared for the butcher; a sign of the ecliptic (in Latin aries, ā'.rī.eez), a battering instrument; to force down, to butt; rammed (1 syl.), ramm'-ing (Rule i.), ramm'-er.

Old English ram, a tup. German rammen, to drive or force down.

Ramadan, rām'.ā.dān, the ninth month of the Moslem year.

Ramble, rām'.bl, a stroll, to wander about; rambled, rām'.bl'd; ram'bling, ram'bling-ly, ram'bler.

Welsh rhamp, a running out or about (with dim.), v. rhampu.

Ramify, rām'.ī.fy, to force itself throughout in every direction; ramifies, rām'.ī.fize; ramified, rām'.ī.fide; ram'ifi-er, ram'ify-ing. Ramification, rām'.ī.fī.kay''.shūn.

Italian ramificare, ramificazione; French ramifier, ramification (Lat. ramus ficio [fācio], to make branches [in all directions]).

Ramoneur, rām'.ō.nure, a chimney sweeper. (Fr. ramoneur.)

Ramp, the curved part of a wall or hand-railing connecting a higher part with a lower, the hand-railing of a staircase, the talus of a fortification, to bound, to sport about riotously; ramped, rampt; ramp-ing, ramp'ing-ly.

Rampant, overleaping restraint, wildly frolicsome, standing erect on the hind legs; ram'pant-ly, ram'pancy.

Rampageous, rām.pāge'.ūs, outrageously frolicsome; ram-paging, rām.pā'.gīng, prancing wildly.

Fr. rampe, ramper, rampant; Old Eng. rempend, violent, headlong.

Rampart, rām'.part, the earth bank of a fortification. (Fr. rempart.)

De l'ancien italien ramparo ou riparo, des latin reparatorium.

Ram'rod, the rod used to "ram" home the charge of a gun.

Rancid, rān'.sīd, having a rank odour or taste (applied to oil, butter, &c., in bad condition); ran'cid-ly, ran'cid-ness.

Rancidity, rān.sīd'.ī.ty; rances'cent, becoming rancid.

Latin rancidus, rancesco (-scō inceptive); French rancidité.

Rancour, rān'.kor, spite, malice. Rank'er (comp. of rank).

Rancor-ous, rān'.kor.ūs, full of rancour; rancorous-ly.

Ital. rancore; French rancune; Latin rancor, sourness, rankness.

Rān'dom, chance; at random, at hazard. (Old Eng. randūn.)

Range, rainj (not rānge), a kitchen apparatus for cooking, a class or order, things in a line, the distance to which a gun, &c. carries, the line a shot describes when projected; to set in a row, to wander; ranged (1 syl.), rāng'-ing.

Rāng-er, a game dog, keeper of a park or forest.

Range of mountains, a line or chain of mountains.

Welsh rheng or rhenc; French rang, ranger; Low Latin rengus.

Rank, degree, high place, order, a row, strong, luxuriant, strong-flavoured, musty; (comp.) rank'-er, (super.) rank'-est; rank'-ly, rank'-ness, rank'-ish (-ish with adj. dim.)

Old English ranc, ranclic, ranclice, rankly, rancnes, rankness.

Rankle, răn'.k'l, to fester, to irritate; rankled, răn'.k'ld; rank'ling. (Welsh rhanc, craving, v. rhancu, to crave.)

Ran'ny, plu. rannies, ran'.niz, the shrew-mouse. Ran'nee, the wife of a rajah, a princess in Hindûstan. (Hind. rajni.)

"Ranny," Latin [mus] araneus (quod aranei modo tenuissimum filum et gladli aciem conscendit. Columella).

Ransack, răn'.săk, to search thoroughly, to pillage; ransacked, răn'.săkt; ran'sack-ing. (Danish ransage, ransager.)

Ransom, răn'.săm, redemption, to redeem; ran'somed (2 syl.), ransom-ing, ran'som-er; ran'som-less, irredeemable.

Fr. rançon, rançonner. (A corruption of Lat. redemptio or resûmo.)

Rănt, bombast, to declaim with bombast; rant'-ed (R. xxxvi.), rant'-ing, rant'ing-ly; ranter, a bombastic declaimer, a religious sect. (Dutch randten, to be idiotic.)

Ranun'culus, plu. ranun'culuses (not ranunculi), a genus of flowers including the crow-foot, kingcup, buttercup, &c.

Latin ranunculus, a little frog. So called because the divisions of the leaves bear a fanciful resemblance to the foot of a frog, and not, as we are generally told, because they are found in marshes where frogs abound. The original of Dioscorides was from a dry situation. The Fr. word is renoncule, an erroneous spelling; Lat. rana, a frog.

Răp, rapper. Wrap, to envelop. (Fris. wrappe).

Răp, a slight knock, a very small coin, to knock, to transport with ecstasy; rapped, rapt, knocked; rapt, inspired or transported with ecstasy; rapp'-ing (R. i.)

Rapp'-er, one who knocks. Wrapper, a cloak, &c.

Old Eng. hrep[ian] or hrepp[ian], to touch, p. hreppode, p. p. hreppod.

"Rap" (to seize with ecstasy), Lat. rapere, to ravish [with inspiration].

"Rap," a base Irish halfpenny, 1721, ruppe, a small Swiss coin.

Rapacious, ra.pay'.shŭs, extortionate, seizing by violence, greedy; rapa'cious-ly, rapa'cious-ness. Rapacity, ra.păs'.ăty.

Latin răpăctas (răpax gen. răpăcis); French rapacit  , rapace.

Răpe (1 syl.), a carrying away by violence, a plant, a division of the county of Sussex; rape-oil, rape-cake, from rape-seed.

Lat. răpio, to ravish. "Rape" (seed), Lat. răpum, Gk. rhapus.

"Rape" (of Sussex), Old Eng. răp, a rope or measure of land. Iceland is divided into districts called hreppar, Norse repp, a district.

Rapid, răp'id, quick, a part of a stream which runs faster than the general current; rap'id-ly, rap'id-ness. Rapid'ity.

Latin răpidus, răpid  tas, v. răpere, to hurry away (Gk. harpazo).

Rapier, ra'.p  er, a sword for thrusting. (French rapi  re.)

Rapine, răp'în, pillage. Repine, re.pine', to fret.

"Rapine," Latin răpîna. "Repine," French repoudre.

No words can better show the absurdity of a final e mute than these two. Its one object is to lengthen the preceding vowel, but in these two words we have "-ine" = ine and "-ine" = in.

Rappee, rap.pee', a coarse pungent snuff. (French rapé.)

Rappel' (French), the beat of drum to call soldiers to duty.

Rapport, rap.por', relation, reference. Report', account.

En rapport (Fr.), ahn rappor', in relation, in connexion.

Raptor, plu. raptores, răp'.tor, plu. rap'.tôr'reez, birds of prey; raptor, one of the raptôres; raptorial, răp.tôr'ri.ăl;
raptorious, răp.tor'ri.us, adj. (Lat. raptor, plu. raptôres.)

Rapture, răp'.tchūr, transport, extreme joy; rap'tured (2 syl.); rapturous, răp'.tchūr.ūs; rapturous-ly, joyously.

Latin rapio supine raptum, ravished [with joy]; Greek harpazô.

Rare, rair, (comp.) răr'-er, (super.) răr'-est, scarce, thin, not dense; rare'-ly, rare'-ness; rare'-bit, a dainty morsel.

Rarity, plu. rarities, rair'rĭ.tĭz. (Lat. rărus, Fr. rare.)

Raree-show, rair're show, a show carried in a box.

A corruption of rarity show, the exhibition of a rarity.

Rarefy, rair'rĕfy, to make thin or less dense; rarefies (R. xi.), rair'rĕfize; rarefied, rair're.fide; rarefi-er, rair'rĕ.fĭ.er;
rarefi-able, rair'rĕ.fĭ''.ă.b'l; rarefy-ing, rair'rĕ.fĭ''.ing.

Rarefaction, rair'rĕ.fĭ.kay''shĭn, state of being rare.

Lat. rarefio, to become thin, rarefacio, to make thin, rarefactio (rărus).

Rarity, plu. rarities, rair'rĭ.tĭz, opposed to common, opposed to density, something scarce, legerity. (Lat. rarĭtas, rărus.)

Rascal, răs'.kăl, a scoundrel; rascal-ly. Rascallion, răs.kăl'.yĭn.

Rascality, plu. rascalities (R. xliv.), răs.kăl'.ĭty; knavery.

Old Eng. rascal, a lean worthless deer, hence a worthless fellow; Fr. racaille. "Come, you thin thing; come, you rascal" (2 Hen. IV. v. 4).

Răsh, (comp.) rash'-er, (super.) rash'-est, headstrong, imprudent; rash'-ly, rash'-ness. (German rasch.)

Rasher, rash'.er, a slice of bacon for frying, (comp. of rash).

Welsh rhasg, a slice; Lat. rasūra [lard], v. rădo sup. răsum, to shave

Raskolniks, răs'.kŏl.nĭz, Russian dissenters. (Russian raskolo.)

Rasores, ra.sŏr'reez, birds which scratch with their feet.

Rasor, ra'.sor, one of the above. Răzor (for shaving);
rasorial, ra.sŏr'ri.ăl. (Latin rădo, răsum, to scratch.)

Rasp, a rough file, to rub with a rasp; rasped (1 syl.), rasp'-ing.

Rasp'ings, particles rubbed off by a rasp; rasp'-er.

Raspatory, ras'.pa.tŏ.ry, a surgical instrument for scraping diseased bone. (Danish rasp, v. raspe.)

Raspberry, rās'.bēr ry (not rāhs'.b'ry nor raz'.bēr ry), a fruit.

The rasp-like berry-fruit. The Germans call the blackberry kratzebeere, i.e., the scrape-berry, from kratzen, to scrape or scratch.

Rāt, a rodent animal, to work for less than the usual price, to desert one's political party for personal gain; ratt'-ed (R. xxxvi.), ratt'-ing, ratt'-er. Ratten, rāt.t'n, to take away or destroy the tools of a fellow-workman who deserts his society (the trade union).

To smell a rat, to have an inkling of something concealed.

Rats'-bane; rat's-tail, a disease in horses. (Old Eng. rat.)

Ratafia, rāt'.a.fe''.ah, a liqueur. Ratafia [cake], rāt'.a.fe', plu. ratafias, rāt'.ā.feze. (French ratafia.)

"Des deux mots rack (ou rhum) et tafia, liqueurs avec lesquelles on préparait les premiers ratafias." Dict. universel.

Ratan, rāt.tān', a genus of palms, a walking-stick. Ratten, rat.t'n, to take away or destroy the tools of a man who offends a trade union. ("Ratan," Malay rotan. See Rat.)

Ratchet-wheel, ratch'.et weel, a wheel with pointed angular teeth; ratchet, a small arm or pointed bar which fits into the space between any two of the teeth to prevent the wheel turning in the wrong direction or to stop it.

French rochet, roue à rochet; Italian rochetto, a cog-wheel.

Rāte (1 syl.), a local tax, a proportion, the amount at which a thing is valued, price, to fix a rate, to chide violently; rāt'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), rāt'-ing (Rule xix.)

Rāt'-able; ratability, rāte'.a.bil''.i.ty; ratably, rāte'.a.bly; rate-payer, one who pays rates. (See Ratio.)

Pro rata (Latin), in proportion, according to tariff.

Rāth, early. Wraith, rāth, an apparition. Wrath, rawth, anger.

Rather, rāth'.er (not rā'.rher), sooner, in preference, slightly.

I had rather, corruption of I'd rather, i.e., I would rather (Latin malō, i.e., magis volo, I like better).

Old English rath or hræthe, soon, rathor or hræthor, sooner.

Ratify, rāt'.īfy, to confirm; ratifies, rāt'.ī.fize; ratified, rāt'.ī.fide; rat'ifi-er (Rule xi.); rat'ify-ing, confirming.

Ratification, rāt'.ī.fī.kay''.shūn, corroboration.

Latin rātificatio, rātificāre (rātus ficio [fācio], to make firm).

Ratio, plu. ratios, rā'.shī.ōze, proportion, the relation of homogeneous things, mutual relation of two magnitudes, the degree of difference between things compared. (Lat. rātio.)

Ratiocination, rāsh'ā.ōs.ī.nay''.shūn, reasoning, argument.

Ratiocinate, rāsh'ā.ōs''.ī.nate; ratiocinat-ed, ā.ōs''.ī.nū.ted (Rule xxxvi.); ratiocinat-ing, rāsh'ā.ōs''.ī.nū.ting; ratiocinative, rāsh'ā.ōs''.ī.nū.tiv, argumentative.

Latin ratiocinatio, ratiocinātivus, ratiocināri (ratio, reason).

- Ration, răsh'ăn, a dole of food. Rasher, răsh'er, a slice of bacon.
Fr. ration; Lat. ratio, proportion, share (reor ratur [the portion] rated).
- Rational, răsh'ăn.ăl, reasonable, endowed with reason; rational-ly, rational-ness. Rational-ist, one who believes what reason dictates. (Intr. 1646 Clar. State Pap.)
- Rationality, răsh'ăn.ăl''i.ty, reasonableness, mental sanity.
- Rationalise (R. xxxi.), răsh'ăn.ăl.ize; rationalised (4 syl.); rationalis-ing (R. xix.), răsh'ăn.ăl.izing; rational-ism.
- Rationalistic, răsh'ăn.ăl.ăs''.tık, pertaining to rationalism; rationalis'tical, rationalis'tical-ly. Rational hori'zon, the plane passing through the earth's centre parallel to the sensible horizon. Rational quantity (in Alg.), one which can be expressed without the use of a radical sign.
- Rationale, răsh'ă.o.nă''.le, explanation.
Latin rătionălis (ratio); Fr. rationalism, rationaliste, rationalité.
- Ratlines, răt'.lînz, the lines or cords running across the shrouds like the rounds of a ladder, and so used on going aloft.
- Ratten, răt'.t'n, to take away or destroy the tools of a workman who offends a trade union. Ratan, răt'tăn', a walking-cane. Rattened, răt'tn'd; ratten-ing, rat'tn.ing.
Fr. rat, a non-unionist being supposed to "rat" or desert his party.
- Rattle, răt'.t'l, a toy, an instrument of alarm, a rattling, to clatter, to spring a rattle; rattled, răt'.t'ld; rattling; rattler, a giddy noisy prater; rattle-snake. (Ger. ratteln.)
- Ravage, răv'.age, to lay waste, to spoil; rav'aged (2 syl.); rav'ag-ing (R. xix.), rav'ag-er. (Fr. ravage; Lat. rapēre.)
- Răve (1 syl.), to be frantic, to be enthusiastic; raved (1 syl.); răv-ing (R. xix.), furious with frenzy. Ră'ven, a bird. Răv'er, răv-ing-ly. (Fr. raffolir; Lat. răbio, to be mad.)
- Rav'el, a part untwisted, a jag, a tangle; to tangle, to untwist; ravelled, răv'.eld; rav'ell-ing (part. and noun), a piece of untwisted thread or yarn, a part ravelled out; rav'ell-er, Rule iii., -EL. (French raveler.)
- Raven, (noun) ră'.v'n, (verb) răv'.n. Ravine, ra.veen' (see below).
Raven, ră'.v'n, the largest of the crow family;
Raven, răv'.n, prey, to glut on prey; rav'ened (2 syl.), rav'en-ing, rav'en-er.
- Ravenous, rav'n.ăs, voracious; ravenous-ly, ravenous-ness.
Old Eng. hræfen, hræfn, or hræfen, a raven, redfiende or redfigende.
- Ravine, ra.veen', a gorge, a mountain-cleft. (French ravin.)
- Ravish, răv'.ish, to seize and carry off, to fill with delight, to violate; rav'ished (2 syl.); rav'ish-ing, transporting with delight, &c.; rav'ish-er, rav'ish-ment, rav'ishing-ly.
Old Eng. redff[ian], to rob, to ravish, past redfode, past part. redfod.
French ravir, ravissant, ravissement; Latin răpēre, to seize,

Raw, uncooked, inexperienced. Roar, rō'r, to bellow.

Raw'-ish (-ish added to adj. is dim., added to nouns it means "like"); raw'-est, most raw; (comp. not in use), raw'-ly, raw'-ness; raw'-bones (2 syl.), lean and bony.

Old Eng. redw or hredw (Lat. rudis). "Roar," Welsh rhawr.

Ray, plu. rays, raze (R. xlv.) Raise, rāze. Raze (see below).

Ray, a beam of light, &c.; ray-less. (Fr. rayon, Lat. rādīus.)

Raise, to elevate, to lift up. (O. E. rār[an], whence rīs[an].)

Raze or rāse (1 syl.), to lay level with the ground (see above); razed (1 syl.), rāz'-ing (Rule xix.)

Razie, ra.zē', a war-ship with one deck cut down.

Razor. Razure. Razer. Raiser.

Razor, rā'zōr, an instrument for shaving.

Razure, rā'.zhūr, something obliterated or scraped out.

Razer, rā'.zer, a destroyer, one who levels with the ground.

Raiser, rā'.zer, a propagator, one who raises. (See Raise.)

Fr. raser, rasoir, a razor, [vaisseau] resé; Lat. rado supine rasum.

Razzia, rūd'.zē.ah, a sweeping and sudden destruction of a town, its tribe, its herds, its crops, and all its belongings.

This word was introduced by the French conquerors of N. Africa. Mot arabe employer en Algérie (Dict. des Arts et des Sciences).

Re- (Latin prefix), again, back, anew.

In seven words re- is written red-: red-action, red-dition, red-ecm, red-integrate, red-olent, red-ound, and red-undant.

Re, ra, = D in music; the second note of the Sol-fa system.

Re-absorb, -ab.sor'b', to absorb again; re-absorbed' (3 syl.), re-absorb'-ing; re-absorption, re'.ab.sorp''shun.

Lat. re-absorpeo supine -absorptum (re ab sorbeo, to sup up again).

Reach, reech, an extent, stretch, limit of power, to stretch, to attain; reached (1 syl.), reach'-ing. Retch, reech, to vomit.

Old Eng. hræc[an] or ræc[an], past ræhte, past part. ge-ræht.

"Retch," Old English hræc[an], hræckung or hræcung, retching.

Re-act, to act again; re-act'-ed (R. xxxvi.), re-act'-ing.

Re-action, -āk'.shūn; re-active, -āk'.tīv; re-act'-ion-ary.

Latin re-ago supine -actum, to do again, -actio, -activus.

Read. Reed. Rede. (All reed.) Red, a colour. (O. E. red or read.)

Read, reed, (past and past part.) read, red; read-ing, reed'-ing, to peruse a book, &c. Reader, reed'.er; reader-ship (-ship, office of); read-able, reed'-a.b'l; read'-able-ness, read'-ably. Well read, -rēd, learned.

Reading book, reed'-ing... Reading-room.

Reed, a hollow knotted stalk. (Old Eng. reōd or hrēōd.)

Rede, reed, advice. (Old Eng. ræd or réd, v. réd[an].)

THAT READS ODDLY. THAT EATS TENDERLY. THAT DRINKS PLEASANTLY, and many similar phrases, are elliptical. The full sentences would be:

That affects the ear oddly when one reads it.

That breaks tenderly beneath the teeth when one eats it.

That affects the palate pleasantly when one drinks it.

"Read," Old Eng. reord[ian], past reordode, past part. reordod, part. reordung, a reading, a lecture; or réd[an], ræda, rédere, or redere, a reader, rédung-bóc, a reading-book.

Re-adjourn, re'-ad.jurn'', to adjourn again; re'-adjourned'' (3 syl.), re'-adjourn'-ing, re'-adjourn'-ment.

French re ajourner (à jour [to defer] to [another] day).

Re-adjust, re'-ad.just'', to arrange again; re'-adjusted'' re'-adjust'-ing, re'-adjust'-ment. (Latin re ad justus.)

Re-admit'', to admit again; re'-admitt''-ed (Rule xxxvi.), re'-admitt''-ing; re'-admitt''-ance, a second admittance.

Re-admission, re'-ad.mish''-ŭn; re-admissible.

"Admittance" should be admittence, as it is not the 1st Latin conj. Latin re admittēre supine -admissum, -admittens gen. -admittentis.

Re'-adopt'', to adopt again; re'-adopt''-ed, re'-adopt''-ing.

Re-adoption, re'.a.dŏp''-shŭn. (Latin readoptāre.)

Re'-adorn'', to adorn again; re'-adorned'', re'-adorn''-ing.

Re'-adorn''-ment. (Latin re adorno, ornāre, to adorn.)

Ready, rĕd'dy, prepared, quick, willing; (comp.) read'i-er, (super.) read'i-est, rĕd'ĭ.est. Readily, rĕd'ĭ.ly (R. xi.); readi-ness, rĕd'ĭ.ness. Ready-made, rĕd'dy maid, made before hand, kept on hand for sale.

Ready money, rĕd'dy mŭn'ny, cash, not credit.

Ready reck'oner, a book of tables to assist in reckoning.

To make ready, ...rĕd'dy, to prepare, to put in order for use.

Old Eng. hræde or hræde, rædlíc, rædlíce, readily, rædlícnēs or hrædlícnēs, readiness; v. hræd[an] or hræd[ian], to make ready, past hrædode, past part. hrædod.

Re-affirm, re'.af.firm'', to affirm again; re'-affirmed'' (3 syl.), re'-affirm''-ing; re-affirmation, -af'.fir.may''-shŭn.

Latin re affirmo, -affirmātio, -affirmātivus (af[ad]firmo).

Re-agent, re.a'.djent, a test, a substance to detect the presence of other bodies. (Latin re agens genitive -agentis, ago.)

Re-aggravation, re-ag'.gra.vay''-shŭn, the last warning before excommunication is fulminated by the pope.

Three admonitions called aggravations are first given, and then a re-aggravation or final warning. (Latin gravāmen, a grievance.)

Real, rĕ.āl (not reel). Reel, a Scotch dance, to stagger, &c.

Real, genuine, true; real-ly, rĕ'.āl.ly, verily, truly.

Reality, plu. realities, rĕ.āl'ĭ.tĭz, a fact, a real existence.

Real-ise (R. xxxi.), rē'ā.līze, to form a clear idea, to feel vividly, to convert property into money; re'alised (3 syl.), re'alis-ing (R. xix.); realis-able, rē'āl.ī'zā.b'l.

Realisation, rē'āl.ī.zay''shūn.

Real-ist, rē'ālist, one of the school or sect opposed to the nominalists; realistic, rē'āl.iss''tīk (adj.)

Real-ism, rē'āl.īzm, the tenets of the realists.

Lat. realis, reālitās (res); Fr. réaliste, réalisme, réalisation, réaliser.

Realm, rēlm, a kingdom. (Italian reame; Latin regnum.)

Ream, reem, 20 quires of paper, 21½ quires among printers.

Old Eng. reama, a band, a tie. (A bundle of paper tied together.)

Re-animate, re'ān'ī.mate, to revive; re-an'imāt-ed (R. xxxvi.), re-an'imāt-ing (R. xix.) Reanimation, re'ān'ī.may''shūn.

Latin re animatio, -animāre supine -animātum (anima, life).

Re'-annex'', to annex again; re'-annexed'', re'annex'-ing.

Re-annexation, re'ān.nex.ā''shūn (not re'.a.nex...).

Latin re an[ad]necto, to tie to again.

Reap, reep, to cut with a sickle or machine, to receive the fruit of one's labour; reaped, reep't; reap'-ing, reap'-er.

Old English hreop[an], past hreopte, past part. hreopt or rīp, a reaping, v. rīpp[an], rippere, a reaper, rīp-tima, harvest.

Re apparel, rē'āp.pār''rēl, to clothe again; re-appar'elled (4 syl.), re-appar'ell-ing. (Latin re, ap[ad]paro, to dress fully.)

Re-appear, re'.ap.pear'', to appear again; re'-appeared'' (3 syl.); re'-appear'-ing, re'.ap.pear''-ing; re'-appear'-ance.

Latin re ap[ad]pāreo, to appear to [view] again.

Re-apply, re'.ap.ply'', to apply again; re'-applied'' (3 syl.), re'-apply'-ing. Re-application, re'.āp.plī.kay''shūn.

Latin re ap[ad]plicāre, to fold to one again.

Re-appoint, re'.ap.point'', to appoint again; re'-appoint'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), re'appoint'-ing, re'-appoint'-ment.

Fr. re-appointer. An appoint in French is the odd money of a large sum: thus, in £430 15s. 6d., 15s. 6d. is the "appoint," also the balance of a debt, hence the salary of an "appointment."

Re-apportion, re'.ap.por''shūn, to apportion again; re-apportioned, re'.ap.por''shūnd; re-appor'tion-ing.

Latin re ap[ad]portio, to [give] the portion again to [each].

Rear, reer, the part left behind, the last in order, to raise, to rise on the hind legs, to propagate; reared (1 syl.), rear'-ing.

Rear admiral, an admiral of the third rank.

Rear-guard, the guard which follows the main army at a distance to protect it against a surprise from behind.

Rear-line, the last line or rank of a battalion.

Rear-rank, the hindermost rank of a body of troops.

- Rearward, reer'-ward, the last troops, the train behind.
- Rear-mouse, the bat, the mouse that raises itself in the air.
Occasionally rear is spelt rere, from French arrière: as
- Rere-dos, the back of an altar-piece or fire-place.
- Rere-fief, reer'-feef, a fief held under a feudatory.
- Rere-mouse and rere-ward are spelt both ways.
- "Rear" (behind), Fr. arrière; Old Eng. hrére-mús, a rere-mouse.
"Rear" (to raise), Old Eng. rér[an], past rérde, past part. réred.
For distinction sake it would have been better to spell the verb rear (to raise), and the noun with its prefix rere (behind).
- Re'-ascend'', to ascend again; re'-ascend''-ed, re'-ascend''-ing.
Re-ascension, re'.ás.sén''.shūn; re'-ascent, another ascent.
Latin re as[ad]scando, to climb to [a higher position] again.
- Reason, ree'.z'n, the faculty of thought, to argue; reasoned, ree'.z'nd; reason-ing; reason-less, reason-er; reason-able, ree'.z'n.ä.b'l; rea'sonable-ness, rea'sonably. In reason, in moderation. By reason of, on account of, by means of. In all reason, rightly.
Old Eng. ræsica, resung, v. ræswian, past ræswode, past part. ræswod, or resian, past resode, past p. resod; Welsh rheswm; Lat. rätio.
- Re-assemble, re'.as.sem'.b'l, to assemble again; re-assembled, re-assem'bling, re-assemblage (-age collective).
Fr. re-assembler; Low Lat. assemblatio (as [ad] simul blatio), a muster for chatting together, with the prefix re- (again).
- Re'-assert'', to assert again; re'-assert''-ed, re'-assert''-ing.
Re-assertion (not -sion, Rule xxxiii.), re'.äs.ser''.shūn.
Latin re as[ad]serere supine sertum, to knit [words] together.
- Re-assign, re'.äs.sine'', to assign again; re'-assigned'' (3 syl.), re'-assign''-ing; re'-assign''-ment. (Lat. re as[ad]signo.)
- Re-assimilate (not -mu-), re'.äs.sim''.i.late, to assimilate again; re-assim'ilät-ed (R. xxxvi.), re'-assim'ilät-ing (R. xix.); re-assimilation, re'.äs.sim'.i.lay''.shūn.
Latin re as[ad]similare, to liken to again (similis, like).
- Re'-assume'' (3 syl.), to assume again; re'-assumed'' (3 syl.), re'assūm''-ing (R. xix.) Re-assumption, re'.äs.sūmp''.shūn.
Latin re as[ad]sumere supine sumptum, to take to [oneself] again.
- Re-assure, re'.äs.shüre'', to corroborate again, to assure again; re'-assured'' (3 syl.), re'-assūr''-ing; re-assūr'ance.
Fr. re assurer; Low Lat. assurāre, i.e., re as[ad]secūro, to secure...
- Re'-attach'', to attach again; re'-attached'', re'-attach''-ing.
Ro'-attach''-ment. (Fr. re attacher; Low Lat. attachiāre.)
- Re'-attempt'', to attempt again; re'-attempt''-ed (R. xxxvi.), re'-attempt''-ing. (Lat. re at[ad]tento, to try to [do] again.)
- Reaumur's thermometer, rau'.murz -her.möm.čter, a thermometer where 0° (zero) marks the ordinary freezing-point of water, and 80° boiling water. Centigrade begins the same, but marks boiling water at 100°. Fahrenheit marks the freezing-point 32°, and boiling water 212°.

Reaumur and Fahrenheit are the names of the inventors.

Reave, reev, to bereave. Reeve, reev, a steward. Reef [of rocks].

Reft, bereft; reav'-ing, bereaving; reav'-er, a robber.

O. Eng. redfa or redfere, a robber, v. redff[ian], p. redfode, p. p. redfod.

Re'-avow'', to avow again; re'-avowed'' (3 syl.), re'avow''-ing.

French re avouer; Latin re a[ad]r[oe]vo, to vow to [a thing] again.

(Of the 40 words beginning with rea-, 7 are native, and "ea" represents either æ, ê, or é (= ee): as reach, read, ream, reap, rear, reason, reave; in 3 words "ea" represents ê: as read (= rêd), ready, and realm (Ital.); in 2 it is open: as real, with realise and realgar; and in 26 re- is the prefix of words directly or indirectly from the Latin. The disuse of both diphthongs and accents has done more than anything to perplex our spelling.)

Re-baptize (not -ise, R. xxxii.), re'.bāp.tīze'', to baptize a second time; re'-baptized'' (3 syl.), re'-baptiz''-ing, re-bap'tism.

Re- with Greek baptizo, baptisma; Latin baptiso, baptismum.

Rebate. Rabate. Rabbet. Rabbit.

Rebate, (noun) re'.bate, (verb), re.bāte'.

Re'bate, deduction, also another way of spelling rabbet.

Rebate', to make a deduction; rebāt'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), rebāt'-ing, rebate'-ment. French rebatte, to abate.)

Rabate, to bring back a hawk from its flight. (Fr. rebatte.)

Rab'bet, a juncture in joinery. (Fr. raboter rabot, a plane.)

Rab'bit, an animal. Welsh rabbit, i.e., rare-bit, tit-bit.

Rebec, re'.bēk, a three-stringed violin tuned in fifths.

Fr. rebec, a corrup. of the Span. rebel, itself a corrup. of Arab. rebab.

Rebel, (noun) rēb'.el, (verb) rē.bel', one who rises against the constituted authorities, to revolt, &c.; rebelled, rē.beld'; rebell'-ing (R. iii.) Rebellion, re.bēl'.yŭn, insurrection.

Rebellious, re.bēl'.yŭs; rebellious-ly, rebellious-ness.

(It would be better if all verbs ending in "l" (accented on the final syllable) preserved the double l throughout. The second l has been restored to many words: as recall, farewell, besall, &c.)

Latin rebell[io], rebellium, rebellis (bellum, war).

Re-bound', to spring back. Rebind, past rebound, to bind anew; re-bound'-ed, re-bound'-ing, rebound'ing-ly.

"Rebound," French rebonder, bond, a leap. "Rebind," Old English bind[an], past band, past part. bunden, with prefix re-, again.

Re-buff', to repel, to snub; rebuffed' (2 syl.), rebuff'-ing, rebuffing-ly, rebuff'-er. To meet with a rebuff.

French re bouffer, rebuffade, bouffée, a puff of wind, to blow back.

Re-build, re.bild', to build anew; re-built', past part. rebuilt'.

Old English re with byld[an], past bylde, past part. byldeð.

Re-bury, re.běr'ry, to bury again; re-buried, re.běr'rěd;
re-bury-ing, re.běr'ry-ing; re-burial, re.běr'rě.ăl.

"Bury" has only one r, "berry" (the seed), and "marry" have double r, in direct violation of their original forms, O. E. berie, Lat. marito.
Old English burian or byrian, past byrode, past part. byrod.

Rebus, a riddle in hieroglyphics, &c. (non verbis sed rebus).

I.O.U for I owe you, O.D.V for eau de vie, are of the nature of rebuses.

Rebüt', to repel, to confute; rebutt'-ed (R. xxxvi.), rebutt'-ing;
rebutt''-er, a plaintiff's reply to a defendant's rejoinder.
French rebut, repulsion, rebuter, to rebuff.

Re-call (not recal), re.kawł', to call back; recalled, re.kawł'd;
re-call'-ing. (Latin re cālo; Greek kāléo, to call.)

Re-cānt', to retract, to unsay; recānt'-ed (R. xxxvi.), recant'-ing.
Recantation, re'.kăn.tay''shŭn; recant'-er. (Lat. recanto.)

Re-capitulate, re'.ka.pīt''u.late, to repeat the heads or main points of what has been said; re-capit'ulāt-ed (R. xxxvi.), re-capit'ulāt-ing (R. xix.), recapit'ulāt-or (R. xxxvii.)

Recapitulation, re'.ka.pīt''u.lay''shŭn, a summary.

Latin recapitulatio, v. recapitulāri (cāput gen. cāpitis, a head).

Re-caption, re.kāp'.shŭn, reprisal, retaking one's own goods from one who has wrongfully retained them; recapt'or; recapture, re.kāp'.tchŭr. (Lat. cāpio, to take, sup. captum.)

Re-cast, past recast, past part. recast, to cast afresh, to reckon up again; recast'-ing. (Dan. kaste to cast, kastning casting.)

Recede, re.seed', to go back, to retreat; recēd'-ed (R. xxxvi.), recēd'-ing. (Latin recēdo, re cēdo, to go back.)

Of verbs from the Latin cēdo, three end in -eed and seven in -ede:

(1) Exceed, proceed, and succeed end in -eed. The seven are

(2) Accede, antecede, concede, intercede, precede, recede, and secede.
Supersede is from another root, super sedeo, to sit over.

(It would be far better if all these verbs ended in -eed.)

Receipt. Reseat. Recipe, rěs'.i.pe (q.v.)

Receipt, rě.seet', a written legal acknowledgment of the payment of a bill; receipt'-ed, re.seet'.ed; receipt-ing, re.seet'.ing. Receipt-stamp, a legal stamp for the acknowledgment of a receipt.

Re-seat, rě'.seet'', to restore a member of parliament to his seat again; re-seat'-ed, re-seat'-ing.

The use of the word receipt for a compound is almost obsolete.

"Receipt," Latin recipio supine receptum, to receive.

"Reseat," Old Eng. sett[an], past sette, past part. geset, with re.

It simplifies matters a great deal to use recipe in all cases for a compound, whether medical or not, and receipt for the acknowledgment of a bill paid or of something received.

Receive, re.seev', to take, to accept; received, re.seev'd;
receiv'-ing (R. xix.), receiv'-er, receiv'-able (R. xxiii.), receivable-ness, receivably. Receipt, re.seet' (see above.)

Receipt of custom (in Script.), the office of the collector of the Roman taxes. Receiving house, a place where parcels are left till forwarded (see reception, recipient).

Latin re-cipio [cāpio, to take] supine receptum.

Note, all -ceives take the e first, all -lieves take the i first. It can easily be remembered by the fact that the earlier consonant takes the earlier vowel first, and the later consonant the later vowel: thus conceive, deceive, perceive, receive; but believe, disbelieve, relieve, &c. (Leave, "to quit," is quite another word.)

Re-cension, re.sēn'.shūn, a review, a critical examination of the text of an ancient author. (Latin recensio, a review.)

Recent, re'.sent. Re-scent, Re-sent, re-sent'. Resent, re.zent'.

Re'cent, (comp.) re'cent-er, (super.) re'cent-est, modern, fresh, of late origin or issue; re'cent-ly, re'cent-ness; recency, re'.sēn.sy. (Lat. recens, gen. recentis, new, fresh.)

Re-scent', to perfume afresh. (Fr. re-senter, Lat. sentio.)

Re-sent', sent again. (O. E. send[an], p. sende, p. p. sended.)

Resent, re.zent', to avenge an affront. (French ressenter.)

It would have been better if we had preserved the double s in this last word to distinguish it from re-sent (sent again).

Re-ceptacle, re.sēp'.tū.k'l, a place or vessel into which things are received; receptacular, re.sēp.tūk' ũ.lar.

Reception, re.sēp'.shūn, the act of receiving, admission; receptibility, re.sēp'.tī.bīl' ũ.ty; receptive, re.sēp'.tīv.

Receptivity, re.sēp.tīv ũ.ty. (See Receive, Recipient.)

Lat. receptaculum, receptio (re, cāpio, to take); Fr. réceptacle, réception.

Rechabite, re'k' ũ.bīte, one of the society of Rechabites (3 syl.), or modern total abstainers from intoxicating drinks.

From Rechab, whose son laid an injunction on his posterity not to drink wine, which they obeyed for 300 years (Jcr. xxxv. 6, 7).

Re-charge' (2 syl.), to charge again; re-charged' (2 syl.), re-charg'-ing. (Fr. re-charger, to load [guns] again.)

Re-charter, re.tchar'.ter, to charter again; re-char'tered (3 syl.), re-char'ter-ing. (Lat. charta, a charter; Gk. kartēs, papers.)

Re-cheat, re.tcheet', a refrain on a hunting-horn to recall the hounds when they have lost scent, to sound the recheat; recheat'-ed, recheat'-ing. (French requêté, a recheat.)

Re-cherché, re.sher'.sha (not rā.sher.sha' given by Worcester), rare, exquisite, extremely nice. (French recherché.)

Recipe, res'.i.pe, a prescription for any compound whether in food, medicine, or trade. (See Receipt.)

Latin recipe, take, imperative mood of recipio [re-capio].

In medical prescriptions written R or R. "Recipe" (Lat. take). Medical prescriptions begin with R, the R is recipe, take, the flourish is the symbol of Jupiter (♃), and the whole may be thus paraphrased: "Under the beneficent auspices of Jupiter (patron of medicines) take the following drugs, in the proportions set down."

Re-cipient, re.síp'.i.ent, one who receives, a receiver; recipience, re.síp'.i.ense; recipiency, -i.en.sy (v. receive, reception).

Lat. recipientis gen. recipientis (re-cípŭ [cápŭ, to take], to receive).

Re-ciprocate, re.síp'.rö.kate, to give and receive mutually; recip'rocät-ed, recip'rocät-ing (Rule xix.), cätŭng-ly.

Reciprocation, re.síp'.ro.kay''.shŭn. Reciprocal, -rö.käl; recip'rocal-ly, recip'rocal-ness. Reciprocal proportion.

Reciprocity, rës'.i.prös''.i.ty, interchange, mutual action.

Lat. rēciprocātio, rēciprōcus, v. rēciprōcāre (from "reciplo," Varro).

Recite, re.sit'e, to repeat; recit'-ed (R. xxxvi.), recit'-ing (R. xix.), recit'-er, recit'-äl. Recitation, rës'.i.tay''.shŭn.

Recitative, rës'.i.tä.teev', a musical recitation introduced in oratorios; recitativo, plu. recitativos, rës'.i.ta.tee''voze (R. xlii.), same as recitative. (Lat. rēcītāre, cītō to cite.)

Reck, Wreck, both rĕk. Reek, Wreak, both reek.

Reck, to heed, to care; recked, rĕkt; reck'-ing, reck'-less, reck'less-ly; reck'less-ness, heedlessness, indifference.

Wreck, destruction of a ship at sea. (Danish vrag.)

Reek, steam from evaporation. (Old English reōc[an].)

Wreak, reek, to avenge. (O. E. wrēc[an], wrēc, vengeance.)

"Reck," Old Eng. reccan, past reahhte, past part. ge-reahht, reccēleas, reckless, reccēleaslic, recklessly, reccēleasnes, recklessness. (The word reckless was almost obsolete in Hooker's time.)

Reckon, rek'on, to number; reckon on, to count on; réckon up, add up; reckon with, to bring to punishment; reckoned, rĕk'und; reckon-ing, reckon-er, ready reckoner.

Old English reccnan, to reckon, reccan or reccēan, to tell.

Re-claim', to claim again, to rescue; reclaimed' (2 syl.), reclaim'-ing, reclaim'-er, reclaim'-able, reclaim'ably.

Reclamation, rĕc'.la.may''.shŭn. (Lat. reclamatio, reclamāre.)

Re-cline, re.kline', to lean, to lie in repose; reclined' (2 syl.), reclin'-ing (R. xix.), reclining-ly, reclin'-er, reclin'ate.

Reclination, rĕk'.li.nay''.shŭn. (Lat. rēclinātio, rēclināre.)

Lat. clīnō, Gk. klīnō, to bend. Our word lean is from [c]līno.

Re-close, re.kloze', to close again; reclosed' (2 syl.); reclōs'-ing.

Latin reclaudō supine reclausum, to reclose; Greek kléizō, to shut.

Re-chuse, re.klūce', one who lives in retirement; recluse'-ly, -ness.

Reclusion, re.klū'.zhŭn; reclusive, re.klū'.šiv. (Fr. reclus.)

Recognise (R. xxxi.), rĕk'kög.nize, to acknowledge, to know again; recognised, rĕk'kög.nizd; recognis-ing, rĕk'kög.ni''.zing; rec'ognis-er; recognis-able, rĕk'kög.ni''.zä.bl; -ably.

Recognition, rĕk'kög.nish''.ŭn, avowed knowledge, recollection. Recognitory, re.kög'.ni.tö.ry, containing recognition.

(In the following legal terms the "g" is mute and "z" preferred.)

Recognizance, re.kõn'ĩ.zance, a legal obligation to pay a debt, to appear at the assizes, to keep the peace, &c.

Recognizor, re.kõn'ĩ.zor', one who enters into a recognizance.

Recognizee, re.kõn'ĩ.zee', one to whom it is made.

Latin recognitio, recognosco (re cog[cum]nosco, to know again).

French reconnaissance, reconnaissable, reconnaître.

Recoil, a rebound, to start back, to revolt, to feel abhorrence; recoiled', recoil'-ing, recoil'-ing-ly, recoil'-er, -ment.

French recul, v. reculer; Latin re cellere, to strike or go back.

Re-coin, to coin again; recoined' (2 syl.), recoin'-ing, -age.

French coin (with re); Greek kónos, a cone; Latin cunæus, a stamp.

Re-collect, rěk'kõl.lekt', to remember; recollect'-ed (R. xxxvi.), recollect'-ing.

Recollection, rěk'kõl.lěk''.shũn, remembrance; rec'ollec'-tive, rěk'kõl.lěk''.třv.

Re-collect, re'-kõl.lekt', to collect again; re'-collect''-ed, -ing. Recollection, re'-kõl.lěk''.shũn; re'-collect''-or.

Lat. recolligo supine -lectum (re coll[cum]ago, to bring together again).

Re'-combine'' (3 syl.), to combine again; re'combined'' (3 syl.), re'-combin''-ing (R. xix.), re'combin''-er. Recombination, re'.kõm.bĩ.nay''.shũn. (Lat. re combināre, bini two by two.)

Re'-commence'' (3 syl.), to begin again; re'commenced'' (3 syl.), re'commenc''-ing (R. xix.); recommence-ment, re'.kom.mense''.ment. (Only verbs ending in -dge drop -e- before -ment, as "judg-ment". To these add "argu-ment".)

Fr. recommencer (Lat. re com[cum]initio, with the beginning again).

Recommend, rěk'kõm.měnd'', to commend to another, to advise; rec'ommend''-ed (Rule xxxvi.), rec'ommend''-ing.

Recommendation, -měn.day''.shũn; recommend''-able.

Recommendatory, rěk'kõm.měn''.dũ.t'ry; rec'ommend''-er.

Lat. recommendāre (mandāre, to trust to one's charge), to recommend is to say a [person] is fit to be trusted to one's charge. The French recommander, recommandable, recommandation, violate a principle.

Re'-commit'', to commit again; re'-committ''ed (Rule xxxvi.), re'-committ''-ing, re'-committ''-al, re'-committ''-ment.

Re-commission, re'.kõm.mish''.ũn, a new commission.

Latin re com[cum]mitto supine missum, to send to.

To "commit" a man is to send him to the charge of a public officer.

Recompense (not -pence), rěk'kõm.pense, reward, to reward; rec'ompensed, rec'ompens-ing (R. xix.), rec'ompens-er.

Recompensation, rěk'kõm.pěn.say''.shũn; -pen'satory.

Only nine words in the language end in -nse, but nearly 700 end in -nce. The nine are: dense and condense, immense, sense, and tense, and the four compounds dis-pense, ex-pense, pre-pense, and recompense. The s is the better form: thus recurrens is the Latin form of our recurrence; but we have followed the French as a rule.

Latin recompensatio; French récompense, v. recompenser.

Re'-compile'' (3 syl.), to compile again; re'-compiled'' (3 syl.), re'-compil'-ing (Rule xix.); re'compil'-er, one who...

Recompilation, re-kõm'.pi.lay''.shûn.

Lat. re compilāre, compilatio (re com[cum]pilo, to pile together again).

Re-compose, re'.kõm.põze'', to compose again; re'composed'' (3 syl.); recompos-ing, re'.kõm.põ''.zing; re-compõs'-er; recomposition, re-kõm'.po.zish''.ân.

Latin re com[p]onere, to put together again (Greek põneo, to toil).

Reconcile, rek'.õn.sile, to conciliate; re'conciled (3 syl.), re'concil-ing, re'concil-er, re'concil-able, re'concilable-ness, re'concilably, re'concile-ment (Rule xviii.)

Reconciliation, rek'.õn.sil'.ã''.shûn; reconciliatory, rek'.õn.sil''.ã''.try. (Latin reconciliatio, reconciliare.)

Re'condense'' (3 syl.), to condense again; re'condensed'' (3 syl.), re'condens'-ing. Recondensation, -kõn'.den.say''.shûn.

Latin re condensatio, condensare (denso, to thicken).

"Dense" and its compounds, with the four compounds dis-pense, ex-pense, pre-pense, and recom-pense, and the three words immense, sense, and tense, are the only words in the language ending in -nse. Nearly 700 end in -nce, in most of which s would be better.

Recondite, rek'.õn.dite, abstruse. (Latin reconditus, hidden.)

Re'-conduct'', to conduct back, &c.; re'conduct''-ed (R. xxxvi.), re'conduct''-ing. (Lat. recondūco, sup. ductum, to lead back.)

Reconnaissance (not reconnoissance). Recognizance.

Reconnaissance, rä.kõn.nã.zahns, the examination of a tract of country for military or other operations.

Recognizance, re.kõn'.ã.zance, a legal money obligation to keep the peace, or to appear at the assizes.

French reconnaissance; Latin recognoscere, to recognise.

Reconnoitre, rek'.õn.noi''.ter, to examine the position and movements of a hostile force, to examine the line of country intended for military operations; reconnoitred, rek'.õn.noi''.terd; reconnoitring, rek'.õn.noi''.tring.

Fr. reconnoître, now reconnaître (Lat. recognoscere, to know thoroughly).

Re-conquer, re.kõn'.kwer (not re.kõn'.ker), to conquer again; reconquered, re.kõn'.kwerd; reconquer-ing, reconquest.

Fr. reconquérir; Lat. conquiro supine conquisitum (quæro, to seek). To "conquer" is to obtain by united action what one seeks.

Re-consid'er, to consider again; re-considered, re'.kõn.sid''.erd; re-consid'er-ing. Reconsideration, -kõn.sid'.ẽ.ray''.shûn.

Lat. re consideratio, considerare (con sidera, to consult the stars).

Re'-construct'', to construct again; re'-construct''-ed (R. xxxvi.), re'-construct''-ing. Reconstruction, re'.kõn.strük''.shûn; reconstructible, re'.kõn.strük''.ã.b'l; reconstructive, -tiv.

Latin re constructio, con-struo supine -structum, to pile together.

Re'-convert'', to convert again; re'-convert''-ed (Rule xxxvi.), re'-convert''-ing. Reconversion, re'.kõn.ver''.shũn.

Latin re conversio, con-vertō supin. versum, to change entirely.

Re'-convey'', to convey again; re'-conveyed'' (3 syl.), re'-convey''-ing. Reconveyance, re'.kon.vey''.anse.

Latin re convēho, vēho, to carry; to "convey" is to carry with you.

Record, (noun) rĕk'kord, (verb) rĕ-kord', a rĕgister, to register, to write in a book. Rĕc'ord-office (not re.kord'...).

Lat. recorder, to call to mind (re, cor gen. cordis, a heart or mind).

Rĕcount', to relate. Rĕ'-count', to count again.

Rĕcount'-ed, rĕcount'-ing; rĕ'-count'-ed, rĕ'-count'-ing.

French recomter, i.e. -compter; Latin compūto (pūto, to prune).

To "compute" is to "prune away" errors and misconceptions.

Recoup, rĕ'.koop'', to indemnify; recouped, re'.koop't'; re-coup'-ing. (French recouper, coup, a cut, a slice.)

Recourse, rĕ.ko'rsĕ', resort. To have recourse to, to put in requisition, to make shift with. (Fr. recours, Lat. recursum.)

Recover, rĕ.kũv'.er, to restore to health, to regain, to repair;

Re-cover, rĕ'.kũv''.er, to cover over again; recovered, rĕ.kũv'.erd; recover-ing, recover-er; re-covered, rĕ'-kũv''.erd; re-cover-ing, rĕ'-kũv''.er-ing.

Recoverable, re.kũv'.er.ă.b'l; recover-able-ness.

Recovery, plu. recoveries (R. xliv.), rĕ.kũv'.ĕ.rĭz, restoration to health, the act of getting back into possession.

Recoveror, (in Law) one who obtains restitution.

Recoveree', (in Law) one who has to make restitution.

Fr. recouvrer, recouvrable; Lat. recupĕro [re cāpio], to recover.

Recreant, rĕk'.rĕ.ant, a poltroon, craven, cowardly.

Fr. récrier, to cry out, alluding to judicial combats, when the person who "cried out" for mercy was deemed a poltroon.

"Craven" means the same thing: "mercy craven." (See Craven.)

Recreate, rĕk'krĕ.ate, to amuse, to divert, to renew the spirits; re-create, rĕ'-krĕ.ate'', to create anew; recreat-ed, rĕk'krĕ.ă.ted; recreat-ing, rĕk'krĕ.ă.ting; re-created, rĕ'-krĕ.ă''.ted; re-creating, rĕ'-krĕ.ă''.ting.

Recreation, rĕk'krĕ.ă.shũn, amusement, diversion;

rĕ'-krĕ.ă''.shũn, a new creation.

Recreative, rĕk'krĕ.ă.tĭv; rec'reative-ly, rec'reative-ness.

Latin recreatio, recreāre (creo, to create, to establish).

Recriminate, re.krĭm'.ă.nate, to bring a countercharge, to involve others in an accusation; recrim'ināt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), recrim'ināt-ing (Rule xix.), recrim'ināt-or (R. xxxvii.)

Recrimination, rĕ.krĭm'.ă.nay''.shũn; recriminative, re.krĭm'.ă.nă.tĭv; recriminatory, re.krĭm'.ă.nă.t'ry.

Latin recriminatio, recrimināri (crimen, a crime, a charge).

- Re-cross, to cross over again; (past) recrossed, re-krost', (past part.) recrossed or recrost; recross'-ing.
 Welsh croesi, to cross, to put across, croesiad, a crossing, croesffon, a cross-staff, croesfford, a cross-road (with the prefix re).
- Recruit, re.krūte', a newly-enlisted soldier, a new supply, to replenish, to fill up; recruit'-ed (R. xxxvi.), recruit'-ing, recruit'-er; recruit'-ment, replenishment, restoration.
 Fr. recrue, recruter, recrutement; Lat. recrescere, to grow again.
- Re-crystallize (Rule xxxii.), re'-kris''tāl.lize, to crystallize a second time; recryst'allized (4 syl.), recrystalliz-ing, -i'zing. Recrystallization, re-kris'tāl.li.zay''shūn.
 Greek krustallizo, krustallos; Latin crystallum (Greek kruos, ice).
- Rectangle, rĕk.tān'.g'l, a four-sided figure which has all its angles right angles, as a square, a parallelogram; rectangular, rĕk.tān'.gū.lar; rectan'gular-ly.
 Latin rectangulus (rectus angulus, right angle); French rectangle.
- Rectify, rĕk'.tī.fy, to put right; rectifies, rĕk'.tī.fize (Rule xi.); rectified, rĕk'.tī.fide; rec'tifi-er, rec'tifi'-able.
 Rectification, rĕk'.tī.fl.kay''shūn, the act of putting right.
 Lat. rectificio [ficio], to make right; Fr. rectification, rectifier.
- Rectilinear, rĕk'.tī.līn''ĕ.āl, bounded by straight lines.
 Latin rectilīneus (rectus linea, a straight line).
- Rectitude, rĕk'.tī.tude, integrity. (Lat. rectitudo, Fr. rectitude.)
- Rector, rĕk'.tor, receives both great and small tithes.
 Vicar, vīk'.ar, a clergyman who receives only the small tithes, the minister of a district church without tithes.
- Rector-ship (-ship, office, rank of); rectorate, rĕk'.tō.rate.
 Rectory, plu. rectories, rĕk'.tō.riz; rectorial, rĕk.tōr'ri.āl.
 Latin rector, a ruler (rego supine rectum, to rule). Vicarius, a vicar.
- Rectrix, plu. rectrices (Latin), rĕk'.trix, plu. rĕk'.trī.sēz, one of the chief (or rudder) feathers in the tail of a bird.
- Recumbent, re.kūm'.bent, reclining, inactive; recum'bent-ly, recum'bence (3 syl.), recum'bency. (Lat. recumbens.)
- Recuperative, re.kū'.pĕ.ra.tīv, restorative. Recuperation, re.kū'.pĕ.ray''shūn, recovery. (Lat. recūpĕrātio, recūpĕrāre.)
- Recur, re.kūr', to return at intervals; recurred' (2 syl.), recurr-ing, re.kūr'ring; recurr-ent, re.kūr'rent; recurrent-ly.
 Recurr-ence, re.kūr'rence; recurrency, re.kūr'ren.sy.
 Latin re-currĕre, to run back, to recur, recurrens gen. -currentis.
- Recusant, rĕk'ku.zant, one who refuses to conform; rec'usancy.
 Lat. recūsans gen. -antis, refusing [to conform] (re causa, without cause).
- red (native suffix), mode, fashion, state, condition: as hatred.
- Red- for re- (Lat. prefix). There are seven examples: red-action, red-dition, red-ēem, red-integration, red-olens, red-ound, and red-undant, to these add the Latin word red-dendum.

Rěd, a colour. Read, rěd (past and past part. of read, reed).
Rede, reed. Reddish, rěd'ish. Răd'ish.

Red, (comp.) redd'-er, (super.) redd'-est (Rule i.); red'-ly, red'-ness. Redd'-ish (-ish added to adj. is dim., added to nouns it means "like"); reddish-ness.

Radish, răd'ish (one d), an esculent root. (Latin rădix.)

Rede, reed, advice. (Old English răden, counsel).

Redden, rěd'n, to make red; reddened, rěd'nd; redde-ning, rěd'n'ing; redde-er, rěd'n'er.

"Red," Old English reod, rud, rěd, răd, and read; read-clăfer, red clover, read-eorth, red earth, readnes, redness, v. read[ian], to redder, past readode, p. p. readod, or read[ian], readode, readod.

Red-action, rě.dăk'.shŭn, a digest, the act of arranging in order; redacteur, rě.dăk'.tŭre, an editor; redac'tor.

French rédacteur, a clerk, an editor, rédaction, editing, putting into ship-shape (Latin red[re]agere, to do again).

Redan, rě.dăn'. Redden, rěd'n, to make red (O. E. reodian.)

Redan', two parapets of earth like a V with the point towards the enemy. (Fr redan, Lat. re dens, a tooth reversed.)

Red-dendum, plu. reddenda, rěd.děn'.dŭm, plu. rěd.děn'.dah (in Law), the clause in a lease by which rent is reserved.

Latin reddendum, to be reckoned, reddo (red[re]do, to give back).

Red-dition, rě.dish'.ăn, restitution; redditive, rěd'.dŭtiv.

Fr. reddition; Lat. redditio (red[re]do, to give back, to restore).

Reddle or Ruddle, rěd'd'l, rŭd'd'l (not răd'dle), red ochre [for marking sheep], to mark with red ochre. Thackeray uses ruddle, but "ruddle" is the correct spelling.

Old Eng. rud or reod, red, rudian or reodian, to redder, rud-eorth.

Red-eem, rě.deem', to ransom; redeemed' (2 syl.), redeem'-ing, redeem'-er, redeem'-able (R. xxiii.), redeem'able-ness.

Redemption, rě.demp'.shŭn; redemption-er, an emigrant who works off his passage-money by service; redemptive, rě.demp'.tiv; redemptory, rě.demp'.tŏry.

Latin redemptio, red[re]ēmo supline emptum, to buy back.

Re-deliberate, re'-de.lib''.ěrate, to reconsider; redelib'erāt-ed (R. xxxvi.), redelib'erāt-ing. Redeliberat'ion, -shŭn.

Lat. re delib'rat'io, delib'rare. The Latins said deliberare ensem (to unsheathe a sword), to deliberate is to "unsheathe thought."

Re-deliver, re'-de.liv''.er, to deliver again; re'delivered'' (4 syl.), redeliv'er-ing; redelivery, re'.de.liv''.ěry; redeliv'er-ance. (French re deliverer, deliverance.)

Latin re de lib'rare, to free again from [bondage], liber, free.

Re-demand, re'-de.mand'', to demand again; re'demand''-ed, re'demand''-ing. (Lat. re, de-mando to claim from one.)

Re-descend, re'.de.send'' (not re'.des.send'), to descend again; re'descend''-ed (R. xxxvi.), re'descend''-ing. Redescension, re'.de.sen'.shūn. (Latin re descendio, descendo.)

A compound of re de scando, to climb down again.

Red-integration, rēd'.in.tē.gray''shūn, restoration to a sound state. (French réintégration, Latin red[re]integratio.)

Re-discover, re'.dis.kūv''.er, to discover again; re'discovered''-ed (4 syl.), re'discover''-ing. Rediscovery, re'.dis.kūv''.ē.ry.

French re découvrir, to uncover again; Latin cophinus, a coffer.

To cover is put into a box, to discover is turn from or out of a box.

Re-dispose, rē'.dis.pōze'', to adjust again; re'dispōsed'' (R. xxxvi.), re'dispōs''-ing (R. xix.) Redisposition, -dis.pō.zish''.ūn.

Latin re dispositio, dis[de]pono, to put down, to part with.

Re-distribute, re'.dis.trīb''.bute, to distribute again; re'distrib''ūt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), re'distrib''ūt-ing (Rule xix.)

Redistribution, re'.dis.trīb''.shūn, a new distribution.

Latin re distributio, dis[de]tribūo, to give in parts again.

Red'-olent, diffusing odour; red'-olent-ly, sweetly smelling; red'-olence (3 syl.); red'-olency, fragrance, perfume.

Latin redolens gen. redolentis, red[re]olēo, to smell very sweet.

Re-double, rē.dūb'.b'l, to repeat often, to increase twofold; redoubled, rē.dūb'.b'ld; redoubling, rē.dūb'.ling.

French redoubler; Latin re duo plīcāre, to fold in two again.

Re-doubt, re.dout', a little fort into which soldiers may retire, field-works enclosing a port. (The b is an error.)

Fr. redoute, from the Span. reducto, Ital. redotto, a shelter; Lat. re-ducō sup. reductum, to retreat. A place to which soldiers can retreat.

Re-doubtable, rē.dout'.ā.b'l, formidable; redoubted, rē.dout'.ed.

French redoutable, redouter, to dread [doughty].

The b in "redoubt" and "redoubtable" is a mere blunder. These words have no connexion with doubt. "Redoubtable" is the same word as doughty, and both should be spelt in one way (douty, redoutable); and "redoubt" is from the Latin reduct[io].

Red-ound, rē.dound', to conduce (followed by to); redound'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), redound'-ing. (French redonder.)

Latin red[re]undāre, to tide back, to flow back (unda, a wave).

Re-dress, rē.dress', to rectify; rē'.dress'', to dress again; rē'dressed' (2 syl.); (past part.) rē'dressed or rē'drest';

rē'dress'-ing; rē'-dressed'' (2 syl.), (past p.) rē'-dressed'' or rē'-drest'', rē'-dress'-ing, rē'dress'-er, rē'dress'-ible (not -able, Rule xxii.); redress-ive, -iv.

Fr. redresser; Lat. re dērtgo supine directum, to make right again.

Red tapism, rēd tāpe'.izm, official priggism; red tape, official formality; red-tā'pist, an official martinet.

Official documents being tied together with "red tape," Dickens happily applied the word to official formality.

Rě-duce' (2 syl.), to lessen, to subdue; reduced' (2 syl.); reduc-ing, rě.dũ'.sing; reduc-er, rě.dũ'.ser; reduc-ent, rě.dũ'.sent; reduc-ible, rě.dũ'.sĩ.b'l (R. xxii.), reduc-ible-ness; reduct', reduc-tive, -tĩv, reductive-ness.

Reduction, rě.dũk'.shũn, diminution, a rule in Arithmetic.

Latin reductio, reducere supine reductum (re dũco, to bring back).

Red-undant, re.dũn'.dant, exceeding what is required; redun-dant-ly. Redun-dance (3 syl.), redun-dancy.

Latin redundantia, redundans gen. redundantis (undare, to flow).

Re-duplicate, rě.dũ'.plĩcate, to redouble, to repeat a word or part of a word with a slight alteration: as tee-total.

Reduplication, rě.dũ'.plĩ.kay''shũn; reduc-tive, -tĩv.

Lat. reduplicatio, reduplicare (re duo plĩcare, to fold in two again).

Re-echo, rě-ěk'kho, to echo back; re-echoes, re.ěk'khũze; re-echoed (3 syl.); re-echo-ing, re.ěk'kho.ing.

Greek ěchē, ěchē, a sound; Latin echo; French écho; Spanish eco.

Reed, Read, Rede, all reed. Red, Read = rěd (past tense).

Reed, an aquatic plant, the mouthpiece of certain wind instruments, that part of a loom which keeps the threads apart; reed-ed, covered with reeds; reed-y, reed-less.

Read, to follow with the understanding written or printed words. (Old English rěd[an] or red[an].)

Rede, reed, advice, counsel. (Old English rěd or rěd.)

Rěd, a colour (Old Eng. reod). Read = red (O. E. rědde).

Reef, plu. reefs (Rule xxxix.) Reave. Reeve.

Reef, all the sail which lies between two reef-bands or between the first reef-band and the head of the sail, a chain or ridge of rocks showing above the surface at low tide. Shoal or bank is of larger area than a reef and less compact; coral-reef; reef-y, full of reefs.

Reef-band, a stout canvas band sewed across a sail with earings or reef-holes at each end for reefing.

Reef-tackle, tackle for hauling up the middle of each leech towards the yard, so that the sail may be easily reefed.

To reef, to reduce a sail by tying together two parallel rows of short ropes for the purpose; reefed (1 syl.), reef-ing; reef-er, one who reefs.

Reave, reev, (past and past part.) reft, to take away, to plunder generally; bereave. (O. E. reaff[ian], to seize.)

Reeve, reev, a steward, to pass the end of a rope through a block. (Old Eng. gerefa, a reeve, as port-reeve, she-riff.)

"Reef" (of rocks), Norse rev, revle, a shoal or little reef.

"Reef" (to tie up a sail), Norse reve, revning, Welsh rhaf, a bundle.

Reek, Wreak, both reck. Reck, Wreck, both rĕk.

Reek, the vapour of evaporation, to give out vapour; reeked (1 syl.), reek'-ing; reek'-ing hot, steaming hot; reek'-y, full of vapour; reek'i-ness. (O. E. reōc[an].)

Wreak, reek, to avenge. (O. E. wrēc[an], past wrēc, &c.)

Reck, rĕk, heed, to heed. (O. E. recc[an], n. rec or recc.)

Wreck, rĕk, a shattered ship, to shatter. (Danish vrag.)

Reel. Real, rĕ'al, not false (Latin reālis, res, [the true] thing).

Reel, a Scotch dance, a frame on which yarn is wound, a certain quantity of thread, worsted, &c.; to roll about, to gather yarn off the spindle; reeled (1 syl.), reel'-ing.

Old English hreol or reol. "Reel" (to stagger), Norse ragle. to reel.

Re'-elect'', to elect again; re'-elect''-ed (R. xxxvi.), re'-elect''-ing.

Re-election, re'.e.lĕk''.shŭn. (Lat. re electio, e.lĕgo, to pick out.)

Re'-embark'', to embark again; re'-embarked'' (3 syl.), re'-embark''-ing. Re-embarkation, re'-en'.bar.kay''.shŭn.

Fr. rembarquer. The Fr. for "re-embarkation" is rembarquement.

Re-embody, rĕ'em.bōd''.y, to embody again; re-embodies, rĕ'em.bōd''.ĭz (Rule xi.); re-embodied, rĕ'-em.bōd''.ed; re'-embod''y-ing. Re-embodi-ment (Rule xi.)

Old Eng. bodig, with em-, to collect into, and the prefix re-, again.

Re'-enact'', to enact again; re'-enact''-ed, re'-enact''-ing.

Re'-enact''ment. (Lat. acta, an act; en-, to make; re-, again.)

Re'-enforce'' (3 syl.), to put in force again; rĕ'-enforced'' (3 syl.), re'-enforc''-ing (Rule xix.) Re'-enforce''ment. (Only verbs ending in -dge lose the -e before -ment.)

Fr. force, with en-, to put into or make, and the prefix re-, again.

Re'-engage'' (3 syl.), to engage again; rĕ'-engaged'' (3 syl.); re-engag-ing, rĕ'en.gāge'.ing. Re'-engage''ment (v. s.)

Rĕ-en'ter, to enter again; re-entered, rĕ.en'.terd; re-en'ter-ing.

Re-en'try, re-en'trance. (French rentrer, Latin re intrāre.)

Re-es'tab'lish, to establish again; re-es'tab'lished (4 syl.), re-es'tab'lish-ing. Re-es'tab'lish-ment. (French rĕtablir.)

Reeve, Reave, both reev. Reef, a bank of rocks.

Reeve, a steward. This word is now used only in composition, as port-reeve, sheriff, i.e., "shire-reeve."

Reave, to bereave; reft, bereft. (Old Eng. reāff[ian].)

"Reeve," Old English gerĕfa, a sheriff. "Reef," Dan. rev.

Re-examine, rĕ'ex.ām''.ĭn, to examine again; re-examined, rĕ'ex.ām''.ĭnd; re-examin-ing, rĕ'ex.am''.ĭn.ing (R. xix.)

Re-examination, rĕ'ex.ām''.ĭ.nay''.shŭn, a fresh examination.

Lat. re examinatio, exāmināre, exāmen, the needle of a balance, which proves a weight, so an examination indicates or proves merit.

Re'-exchange" (3 syl.), to exchange again; re'-exchanged" (3 syl.), re'-exchang"-ing. (Fr. rechange; Lat. campire.)

Rē-exhib'it, to exhibit again; rē-exhib'it-ed, rē-exhib'it-ing, rē-exhib'it-er. Rē-exhibition, re.ex'.hīb'ish''.ūn.

Lat. re exhibitio, exhibere sup. exhibitum (ex habere, to have out).

Re'-export", to export again; re'-export"-ed, re'-export"-ing. Re-exportation, re.ex.por.tay''.shūn. (Fr. réexporter.)

Re-fashion, rē'fāsh''.ōn, to fashion anew; re-fashioned, -fāsh''.ōnd; re-fashion-ing. (Fr. façon, Lat. fūcio, to make.)

Re-fasten, rē'fah''.s'n, to fasten again; re-fastened, -fah''.s'nd; re-fasten-ing, rē'fah''.s'n.ing.

Old English fæst, firm, -en, to make [firm], prefix re-, again.

Re-fection, rē'fēk''.shūn, refreshment, a repast.

Refectory, plu. refectories (Rule xlv.), rē'fēk''.tō.rīz, a room where refreshments are provided.

Lat. refectio, v. reficō supine refectum (re-facio), to refresh.

Refer, rē'fer' (followed by to), to allude, to assign; referred, rē'ferd'; referr-ing (Rule i.), referr'-er.

(The following have only one r.)

Referee, rēf'.er ree''; refer-ence, rēf'.er rence.

Ref'erable (should be ref'erible, not of the 1st Lat. conj.)

Referendary, rēf'.er ren''.da.ry, an arbiter.

Referential, rēf'.er rēn''.shāl. Reverential, rēv'.ē.ren''.shāl.

Referential, referring to something else.

Reverential, manifesting reverence.

Latin refero, referens; French référer, référéndaire.

Rē-fine' (2 syl.), to purify, to polish, to improve; refined' (2 syl.); refined-ly, rē'fī'.ned.ly; refined-ness, rē'fī'.ned.ness.

Refinery, plu. refineries (Rule xlv.), rē'fī'.nē.rīz, a place where [metals] are purified. Refine'-ment.

Fr. raffiner, i.e. re-affiner, raffinement, raffinerie; Low Lat. affināre.

Refit, (noun) rē'fīt, (verb) rē'fīt'.

Refit, rē'fīt, restoration of fittings and requisites after loss or damage; rē'fīt', to fit or equip again; refitt'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), refitt'-ing (Rule iv.), refitt'-er, refit'-ment.

Fr. faill, what is required: as trouver le faill de... to find what [one] requires; c'est justement votre faill, that is just what you require.

Re-fix, rē'fix'', to fix again; refixed' (2 syl.), refix'-ing.

Latin refigo supine refixum (re figo, to fix again).

Re-flect', to deliberate, to show in a looking-glass, to throw back rays of light or heat; reflect'-ed (R. xxxvi.), reflect'-ed-ly, reflect'-ing, reflect'-ing-ly, reflect-or (Rule xxxvii.), a polished glass or metal surface for reflecting light or heat; [ray] reflect'-ent, the [ray] descendant bent back.

(The following are spelt in two ways.)

Reflection, re.flĕk.shŭn, deliberation, consideration;

Reflexion, re.flĕk.shŭn, the bending back of rays.

Reflect-ible or Reflex-ible, capable of reflexion.

Reflective, re.flĕk.tiv, deliberative; thoughtful;

Reflexive, re.flĕx'iv, bending-back [rays]; reflective-ly, reflective-ness; reflexive-ly, reflexive-ness.

Reflexibility; reflexed, re.flĕx' (see reflected).

Latin reflecto supine reflexum (re flecto, to bend back).

French réflexion, réflecteur, réflexible, réflexibilité.

Refluent, rĕf'flŭ.ent, ebbing, flowing back. (Latin refluens.)

Re'flex, sympathetic, curved backwards. Reflex action [of muscles], acting (without the motive power of the will) in sympathy with some other part of the body.

Re'-flux, the ebb or backward movement of the tide, &c.

French reflux, ebb; Latin re-fluo supine fluxum, to flow back.

Rĕ'-forge" (2 syl.), to forge again; rĕ'-forged" (2 syl.), rĕ'-forg"-ing (R. xix.), rĕ'-forg"-er. (Fr. re-forgér.)

Reform, rĕ.form', amendment, to amend; rĕ'-form", to form anew; rĕformed' (2 syl.), rĕform'-ing, rĕform'-er, rĕ'-formed" (2 syl.), rĕ'-form"-ing, rĕ'-form"-er.

Rĕform'-able; reformative, rĕ.for'mă.tiv.

Reformation, rĕf'fôr.may".shŭn, amendment.

The Reformation, that change in the Anglican church which was made in the reign of Henry VIII.

Reformatory, plu. reformatories (R. xliv.), rĕ.for'ma-tō.rĭz, a house where evil doers (especially the young) are sent with the view of reforming their character.

Latin reformatio, re-formāre, to form anew.

Re-fract. Reflect. Refraction. Reflexion.

Re'fract', to break a ray [of light or heat] so as to cause it to deviate from a straight line.

(When a ray of light passes through a window-pane it is refracted. In an  the bottom stroke would represent the down stroke refracted, the column of a Y would represent the same thing.)

Reflect, to bend a ray [of light or heat] back to the plane from which it proceeds, though not necessarily to the same spot in that plane.

(When we stand before a looking-glass, the rays proceeding from our face strike the glass and are reflected back to our eyes, but the left side becomes the right and the right the left. In a  one of the strokes would represent the other reflected.)

- Refraction, re.frāk'.shun, the deviation of rays [of light or heat] caused by their being refracted or broken.
- Reflexion, the rebound of rays [of light or heat] towards the plane from which they proceed.
- Refract'-ed (R. xxxvi.), refract'-ing; refract-ive, re.frāk'.tīv.
- Refractory, re.frāk'.tō.ry, breaking through the bounds of decorum, obstinate and hence difficult of fusion; refractori-ly, re.frāk'.tō.rī.ly; refractori-ness (Rule xi.).
- Lat. refractio, re-fringēre [frango] sup. refractum (frango, to break.)
- Refragable. Refrangible. (Mark the -able and -ible.)
- Refragable, re.frāg'.ā.b'l, capable of being gainsaid.
- Refrangible, re.frān'.ji.b'l, capable of being refracted.
- Latin refrāgābilis, re-frāgāri, to gainsay (frāgo, to make a cracking noise, as when a solid substance cracks or bursts, fragor.)
- Rē-fresh', to revive vigour, to cool, to improve by new touches; rēfreshed' (2 syl.), rēfresh'-ing. Rēfresh'-er, a fee to a barrister to insure attention or expedition. Rēfresh'-ment, food or rest to invigorate after fatigue.
- Old English fersc, fresh, with re-; French rafraichir, &c.
- Re-frigerate, rē.fridg'.ē.rate, to cool; rē-frig'erāt-ed (R. xxxvi.), rē-frig'erāt-ing (R. xix.), rēfrig'erāt-or (R. xxxvii.); refrigeratory, rē.fridg'.ē.rā.t'ry; refrigerat-ive, -ē.ra.tīv.
- Refrigeration, rē.fridg'.ē.ray''.shūn; refrigerant, -ē.rant.
- Latin refrigērātio, refrigērātor, -lōrius, refrigērāre (frigus, cold).
- Re-fuge, rēf'fuge, a retreat, a place of safety; ref'uge-less.
- Refugee, rēf'fu.djē', one who seeks safety in another country.
- City of refuge, plu. cities of refuge, sīl'tiz... (Jos. xx. 7, 8).
- Re-fulgent, rē.fūl'.djent (-fūl to rhyme with dull not with pull), shining; rēfūl'gent-ly, rēfūl'gence' (3 syl.), rēfūl'gency.
- Lat. rēfulgens gen. rēfulgentis, refulgentia, refulgēre (fulgor, sheen).
- Rē-fund', to repay, to restore; rē-fund'', to invest again; rēfund'-ed (R. xxxvi.), rēfund'-ing; rē-fund'-ed, &c.
- Lat. re-fundo, to pour back, to refund; Fr. fonds, public money.
- Re-furbish, rē.fur''.bish, to brighten or furbish up again; rē-fur'bished (3 syl.), rē-fur'bish-ing, rē-fur'bish-er.
- Fr. rē fourbir, fourbisser (Lat. furnus, i.e. furvus, a furnace, from furveo, to grow hot). "Furbish," like bran-new, means "bright by burning heat." The two words illustrate each other.
- Refuse, (noun) rēf'fuze, (verb) rē.fuze'. Refuge, rēf'fuge.
- Ref'use, rubbish, odds and ends rejected. Refuse', to deny; refused, rē.fūzed'; refus-ing, rē.fū.zing; refus'-er.
- Refus-al, rē.fū.zāl; refus-able, rē.fū.zā.b'l.
- Fr. refus, refusable, refuser, refuseur (Lat. re-fundo, to pour back again [one's request] hence "not to accept.")

Rē-fute' (2 syl.), to controvert, to overthrow by argument; rēfūt'-ed (R. xxxvi.), rēfūt'-ing, rēfūt'-er, rēfūt'-able.

Refutation, rēf'fū.tay''shūn; refutatory, rē.fū''.tā.t'ry.

Lat. rēfūtātio, rēfūtātōrius, rēfūtāre (fūto, to confute). The original meaning of futo is "to cool the pot," and our slang expression "to cool one's courage," i.e. to allay zeal, is a similar figure of speech.

Re-gain', to gain again; regained' (2 syl.), regain'-ing.

Fr. regagner; Old Eng. re-gyn[an], past gynde, past part. gyned.

Regal, rē.gāl, kingly, pertaining to a sovereign; re'gal-ly.

Regalia, rē.gāl'.lī.ah, insignia of royalty; rega'lian.

Regality, rē.gāl'.ī.ty. (Lat. rēgālis, rēgālitas, rex, rēgis.)

Regale, rē.gālē', to entertain with good cheer. (See Regal.)

Regaled (2 syl.), regāl'-ing (R. xix.), regāl'-er, regale'-ment.

Fr. régaler, Span. regalar (Lat. regālis, like a king), patronato regio.

Regard', esteem. Regards', looks, respects. Regard', to esteem, to attend to, to observe, to heed; regard'-ed (R. xxxvi.), regard'-ing, regard'-er, regard'-ful (R. viii.), regard'-ful-ly, regard'-less, regard'-less-ly, -less-ness.

Regardant, re.gar'.dant (in Her.), looking behind.

IN REGARD OF. IN REGARD TO. WITH REGARD TO.

IN RESPECT OF. IN RESPECT TO. WITH RESPECT TO.

"In regard of" and "in respect of" are modern forms, which ought not to be tolerated, although sanctioned by the names of Coleridge and Trench. The proper forms are In or With regard to, In or With respect to. The error arises from the notion that "regard" and "respect" are nouns, but in or with regard, and in or with respect, are adverbial idiotisms = relatively, respectively, and In regard of or In respect of is just as absurd as in reference of.

Re-gather, rē.gār'h'er, to gather or collect again; rē-gath'ered (3 syl.), rēgath'er-ing. (O.E. gader[ian], p. -ode, p.p. -od.)

Regatta, rē.gāt'.tah, boat and yacht races. (Italian regatta.)

Regency, plu. regencies, rē'.djēn.siz. (See below, Regent.)

Regenerate, rē'.djēn'.ē.rate, to renew, (in Theol.) to "be born of water and the Holy Ghost," conversion; regen'erāt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), regen'erāt-ing (Rule xix.) Regeneration, rē'.djēn'.ē.ray''shūn; regen'erāt-or; regeneratory, rē'.djēn'.ē.rā.t'ry, tending to reproduce or renovate.

Lat. regēnērātio, regēnērator, re-gēnērāre, to re-generate; Gk. gēnōs.

Regent, rē'.djent, one who rules for another; re'gent-ship (-ship, office, rank of). Regency, plu. regencies, rē'.djēn.siz.

Fr. régent, régence; Lat. rēgens gen. rēgentis (rēgo, to rule).

Regicide, rēdg'.ī.side, one who murders a sovereign; regicidal, rēdg'.ī.sī.dāl. (Fr. régicide; Lat. rex cædo, I kill a king.)

Rē'-gild'', to gild again; rē'-gild''-ed; regilt, rē'.gilt''.

Old Eng. gild[an], past gildede, past part. gilded, with re-, over again.

Regime (Fr.), rā'.zheem', mode of living, administration, rule.

Regimen, řědg'ĩ.měň. Regiment, řědg'ĩ.ment. (See below.)

Regimen, regulation of diet, syntactical dependence of words.

Latin régimen, government; régimentum, a regiment.

Regiment, řědg'ĩ.ment, a body of soldiers. Regiment (see above).

Name of the division.	Ruling officer.	Second in command.
A company	Captain	Lieutenant.
A battalion	Commandant	Adjutant-major.
A regiment	Colonel	Major.
A brigade	General of the brigade, or Brigade-major.	Brigadier-general.
A division	General of the division.	Colonel.

Regimental, řědg'ĩ.měň''.těl. Reg'imentals, military uniform.

Latin régimentum; French régiment (from régimen, government).

Region, řě'.djűň, territory, district. (Lat. régio gen. régiōnis.)

Register, řědg'ĩs.ter. Registrar, řědg'ĩs.trar. Registry.

Register, a book for registries, a sliding-plate in stoves for regulating the heat of a fire, the compass of the human voice or of a musical instrument.

Registrar, one whose business it is to register births, deaths, and marriages; registrar-ship (-ship, office of).

Registry [řědg'jűs.try], the place where registers are kept, the enrolment in a register, the act of registering.

Reg'ister, to enter in a register; reg'istered (3 syl.), reg'ister-ing. Parish register, for births, deaths, &c.

Registered company, an association "registered" under the "Joint Stock Act," but not chartered.

Registered letter, a letter "registered" and acknowledged by every person through whose hands it passes.

Register office, an office where names, &c., are set down;

Registrar's office, the office of a registrar of births, &c.

Registration, řědg'jűs.tray''.shűň, insertion in a register.

Lat. registrarius, registrum, v. régēro supine regeſtum, to register).

Regium donum (Latin), řě'.djűm dō'.num, an annual grant of public money formerly paid to the Presbyterian ministers of Ireland. Regius professor, one appointed by the crown.

Rē-grāft', to graft again; rē-grāft'-ed, rē-grāft'-ing.

Fr. regreffer; Low Lat. -greffarius; Gk. grapho (to blunder).

Rě'gress, licence for returning. E'gress, licence for leaving.

E'gress and rēgress, entrance and exit.

Regressive, řě'.grěš''.šűv, opposite of pro'gress'ive.

Regression, řě.grěš'űň, the act of returning.

Lat. regressio, regressus, v. re-grēdior [gradior] sup. gressum (gradus).

Regret', slight degree of vexation or remorse, to feel regret; regrett-ed (R. xxxvi.), regrett'-ing (R. iv.), regrett'-able, regret'-ful (R. viii.), regret'-ful-ly.

French regret, regrettable, regretter; Scotch greet, to cry, greetin.

Regular, rĕg'gŭ.lar, according to rule, in good order, in accordance with custom, level, symmetrical, established; regular-ly: Regularity, rĕg'gŭ.lăr'ri.ty, method, order.

Regulate, rĕg'gŭ.late, to put in order, to put under rules; regulât-ed (R. xxxvi.), rĕg'ulât-ing (R. xix.), regulât-or (R. xxxvii.); regulative, rĕg'gŭ.lă.tiv, regulating.

Regulation, rĕg'gŭ.lay''shŭn. (Fr. régularité, Lat. rĕgŭla.)

Re-gurgitate, re.gur'.djĭ.tate, to be thrown back [from a whirlpool]; regur'gitât-ed (Rule xxxvi.), regur'gitât-ing.

Regurgitation, re.gur'.djĭ.tay''shŭn. (Spanish regurgitar.)

Latin gurgēs gen. gurgitis, a whirlpool; Greek gurgathos (Perottus).

Re-habilitate, rĕ'.hă.bĭl'.ĭ.tate, to restore to former rank and privileges, to restore rights which have been forfeited; rĕ-habil'itât-ed (R. xxxvi.), rĕ-habil'itât-ing (R. xix.)

Rehabilitation, rĕ'.hă.bĭl'.ĭ.tay''shŭn, restoration to...

French rĕhabilitĕr, rĕhabilitation (Latin hăbĭlis, handsome, jocund). To "rehabilitate" is to make comme il faut again.

Rĕ'-hash'', to hash again; Rĕ'-hashed'' (2 syl.), rĕ'-hash''-ing.

Old E. hacc[an], to hash, with re-; Fr. hacher, hachis (hache, an axe).

Re-hear, rĕ'.heer'', to hear or try over again; (past and past part.) re-heard, rĕ'.hură''; rĕ-hear'-ing. (O. E. hŷr[an].)

Re-hearse, rĕ'.hurse', to recite, to try over before a public performance is made; re-hearsed, rĕ'.hurst'; re-hears'-ing.

Re-hearsal, rĕ'.hur'.săl; re-hears-er, rĕ'.hur'.ser.

Reichsrath, rikes'.răth, the imperial parliament of Austria.

(The guttural "ch" cannot be expressed by any English characters.)

Reign. Rain. Rein. (All rain.) Reins.

Reign, the time during which a sovereign rules, the time during which anything predominates, to rule, to predominate; reigned, raind; reign-ing, ră'.ning.

Rain, water from the clouds. (Old Eng. rægn or rĕgen.)

Rein, a bridle-strap. (Old Eng. rĕne; Latin rĕtĭnens.)

Reins, the kidneys. (French reins; Latin ren plu. renes.)

"Reign," Fr. regne; Lat. regnum, v. regnāre, to reign; O. E. regel.

Re-illuminate, rĕ'.ĭl.lu''mĭ.nate, to enlighten again; rĕ'-illu'-minât-ed (Rule xxxvi.), rĕ'-illu'-minât-ing (Rule xix.)

Re-illumination, rĕ'.ĭl.lŭ'.mĭ.nay''shŭn; rĕ'-illu'-minât-or.

Re-illumine, rĕ'.ĭl.lume'' (same meaning), rĕ'-illumed'' (3 syl.), rĕ'-illŭm'-ing (Rule xix.) Rĕ'-lume', rĕ'-lumed' (2 syl.); relum-ing, rĕ'.lŭ'.mĭng (Milton).

Latin re illūminatio, illūminātor, illūmināre (lūmen, light).

Re-imburse, rē'īm.burse'', to refund, to return what has been expended; re'-imbursed'' (3 syl.), re'-imburs'-ing (R. xix.)

Re'-imburse''-ment; re'-imburs''-er. (French rembourser.)

Bourse is a purse, im-bourse to put into one's purse, re- back.

Re'-import'', to import again; re'-import''-ed (Rule xxxvi.), re'-import''-ing. Re-importation, rē'-īm.por.tay''shūn.

Fr. réimporter, réimportation; Lat. re im[in]portāre, to bring-in again.

Re-impose, rē'īm.pōze'', to impose again; re'-imposed'' (3 syl.), re-impos-ing, rē'īm.pō''zing. Reimposition, -zish'ān.

Latin re impōsitiō, re im[in]pono, to put on, i.e. impose on, again.

Rein. Rain. Reign. (All rain.) Reins.

Rein, the strap of a bridle. The reins, "ribbons" for guiding horses, the kidneys. Rein, to govern by the reins, to control, to restrain; reined (1 syl.); rein-ing, rain'ing; rein'-less, without reins. To rein in, to check. To give the reins to, to allow unrestrained freedom. To take the reins, to control. To hold a tight rein over.

Rain, water from the clouds. (Old Eng. rægn or rēgen.)

Reign, government, to rule. (Fr. regne, Lat. regnāre.)

Reins, the kidneys. (Fr. reins; Lat. ren, plu. rēnes.)

"Rein," Old Eng. rēne; Lat. rētīnens; Fr. retenir, to rein-in.

Re-incorporate, rē'-īn.kor''pō.rate, to incorporate again; rē-incorporat-ed (R. xxxvi.), rē-incorporat-ing (R. xix.)

Re-incorporation, rē'-īn.kor'pō.ray''shūn.

Latin re incorporātiō, incorporāre (corpus, a body), to embody.

Reindeer, rain'-deer, one of the deer kind. (O. E. randeōr.)

Rē'-inhab''it, to inhabit again; rō'-inhab''it-ed (Rule xxxvi.), rō'-inhab''it-ing. (Latin re inhābitāre, hābitō, to dwell.)

Re-inquire, rē'īn.kwire'', to inquire again; rē'-inquired'' (3 syl.), rē'-inquir''-ing (R. xix.); re-inquiry, rē'īn.kwi''ry.

Latin re inquirēre (in quero, to search into); French enquīrer.

Reins, rains, the kidneys. (Fr. reins; Lat. rēnes, [see Rein].)

Rē'-insert'', to insert again; rē'-insert''-ed, rō'-insert''-ing.

Re-insertion (not -sion, Rule xxxiii.), rē'īn.ser''shūn.

Lat. insēro supine insertum, to put in (not insēro supine insitum, to sow in or ingraft). One is sēro, sērūi, sertum; Greek heiro; the other is sēro, sēvi, sātum; Greek speiro.

Rē'-inspect'', to inspect again; rō'-inspect''-ed (Rule xxxvi.), rō'-inspect''-ing. Re-inspection, rē'īn.spēk''shūn.

Latin re inspectiō, in-specto, to look into (freq. of inspicio).

Re-inspirit, rē'īn.spīr''rit, to add fresh vigour or spirit; rē-inspir'it-ed (Rule xxxvi.), rē-inspir'it-ing.

Latin re in-spīro, to breathe into again, to give fresh breath to.

Re-install, rē'ān.stawl'', to install again; rē'-installed'' (3 syl.), rē'-install''-ing (Rule iv.), rē'-instal''-ment.

Re-installation, rē'ān.sta.lay''-shūn.

French reinstaller, reinstallation; German installiren, installation. (As the double l has been restored to "install" it should be preserved in installment also.)

Rē'-instate'' (3 syl.), to restore to office or dignity; rē'-instāt''-ed; rē'-instāt''-ing; rē'-instate''-ment. (Lat. re in stātus.)

Rē'-instruct'', to instruct anew; rē'-instruct''-ed (Rule xxxvi.); rē'-instruct''-ing. Re-instruction, rē'ān.strūk''shūn.

Lat. re instructio, in-struere sup. -structum, to draw up in ranks again.

Re-insure (better re-assure), rē'-ān.shūre'', to assure again; re-insured, rē'-ān.shūred''; re-insuring, rē'-ān.shūre''-ing.

Reinsurance, rē'ān.shūre''-ance, reassurance.

French re assureur; Latin re ad securus, to make secure again.

The Latin insecurus means "insecure," not secure.

Re-inter, rē'-ān.ter'', to inter again; rē'-interred'' (3 syl.); rē'-interr''-ing (R. iv.); rē'-inter''-ment. (Lat. in terra.)

Re-interrogate, rē'-ān.tēr''rō.gate, to interrogate again; rē-interrogāt-ed (R. xxxvi.), rē-interrogāt-ing (R. xix.)

Re-interrogation, rē'-ān.tēr''rō.gay''shun.

Latin re interrogatio, interrogare (inter rogo, to ask questions).

Re-introduce, rē'-ān'.tro.dūse'', to introduce again; rē'-introduced'' (4 syl.), rē-introduc-ing (R. xix.), -dū'-sing.

Re-introduction, rē'-ān'.tro.dūk''shūn.

Latin re introductio, intro-ducere, to lead in; French réintroduire.

Rē'-invest'', to invest again; rē'-invest''-ed, rē'-invest''-ing, rē'-invest''-ment. (Latin re investio, vestis a robe.)

Re-investigate, rē'-ān.vēs''tī.gate, to search into again; rē-investigāt-ed (R. xxxvi.), rē-investigāt-ing (R. xix.), re-invest'igāt-or. Re-investigation, -ves.tī.gay''shūn.

Latin re investigatio, investigare (vestigla, a slot).

Re-invigorate, -ān.vīg''ō.rate, to renew vigour; rē-invigorāt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), rē-invig'orat-ing (Rule xix.)

Re-invigoration, rē'-ān.vīg'.o.ray''shūn, reanimation; rē-invig'orāt-or, Rule xxxvii. (Latin vigor, vigour.)

Re-issue, rē'.īss''su, a new issue, to issue again; re-issued, rē'.īss''sude; re-issu-ing, rē'.īss''su-ing (verbs ending in any two vowels, except -ue, retain both before -ing.)

French issue, an outlet, v. issir, issu, born; Latin ex-ire, to go out.

Re-iterate, rē'-it'.ē.rate, to repeat often; rē-it'erāt-ed (R. xxxvi.), re-it'erāt-ing (R. xix.) Rē-iterā'tion, -shūn.

Latin reiteratio, reiterare (iterum, again, re iterum, again and again).

Reiter, Righter, Writer (all rī'.ter).

Reiter, rī'.ter, a trooper, a free-lance. The German cavalry in the middle ages went in France by the name of reiters.

- Right-er, one who puts things right. (Old Eng. rehtere.)
- Writer, rī'ter, an author. (Old Eng. writere, v. writ[an].)
- "Reiter," German reiter, a horseman, a mounted soldier.
- Rē-ject', to decline, to refuse; rē-ject'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), rē-ject'-ing. Rejection, rē-jěk'.shŭn; rejective, -jěk'.tīv.
Lat. rejection, re-jecto [jăcto] supine rejectum, to fling back again.
- Re-joice' (2 syl.), to exult, to feel delight; re-joiced' (2 syl.), re-joic'-ing (Rule xix.), rejoic'-ing-ly, re-joic'-er.
French joie, v. réjouir; Latin gaudium, v. gaudere, to rejoice.
- Re-join', to go back to, to join again; rejoined' (2 syl.), re-join'-ing. Rejunction, re-jŭnk'.shŭn, a fresh junction.
- Rejoinder, re-join'.der (in Law), the defendants reply to the plaintiff's replication, a reply to an objection.
French rejoindre; Latin rejungo, -unctio, -unctura, -juncior.
- Rē-judge', to judge again; rē-judged' (2 syl.), rejudg'-ing (R. xix.)
Re-judg'-ment (verbs ending in -dge drop -e before -ment).
French refuger (juge); Latin jūdicāre, jūdex genitive jūdicis.
- Re-kindle, rē.kin'.d'l, to kindle anew; rē-kin'dled, re-kin'dling.
Welsh cynnud, fuel, cynneuad, a kindling, v. cynneu with re.
- Re-knit, rē.nīt'', to knit over again; re-knitt'-ed, reknitt'-ing, R. iv. (O. E. cnytt[an], past cnytte, past part. ge-cnytt.)
- Rē-land', to land again, to put on shore again; rē-land'-ed (R. xxxvi.), rē-land'-ing. (Old Eng. land, with re.)
- Rē-lapse' (2 syl.), a falling back from convalescence, to fall back from convalescence; rē-lapsed' (2 syl.), rē-lāps'-ing.
Latin relābor, relapsus (lābor, to slip or slide, re-, back).
- Re-late' (2 syl.), to narrate, to give particulars, to refer [to]; relāt'-ed, told, allied by marriage or blood; relāt'-ing (Rule xix.); relāt'-er (better relat-or), one who relates.
- Relation, re.lay'.shŭn, a narration, a kinsman or woman; relation-ship (-ship, office, condition of); relation-al.
- Relative, rēl'.ă.tīv, respecting, one connected by blood or marriage, one of the parts of speech; relative-ly, relative-ness. Relative terms, as servant and master, husband and wife, uncle and aunt, king and subject.
Latin relātio, relātivum, relātor; French relation, relatif (re fero).
- Rē-lax', to loosen; relaxed' (2 syl.), rē-lax'-ing; relax'ative, -tīv.
- Relaxation. Recreation. Diversion. Amusement.
- Relaxation, re'.lax.ă''shŭn, unstringing the bent bow.
- Recreation, rēk'kre.ă.shŭn, restoration of exhausted vigour.
- Diversion, dī.ver'.shŭn, turning the mind away from work.
- Amusement, a.muze'.ment, substitution of pleasure for work, a musis [suspension] from severe study.
- Relaxation, rel'.ax.ă''shŭn, respite from work.
Latin relaxatio, relaxare (laxo, to loosen); Fr. relaxation (Medic.)

Relay, (noun) rē'lay, (verb) rē.lay' (Rule I.)

Rē'lay [of horses], fresh horses supplied to continue a journey, a fresh horse previously provided to join a hunt, &c.

Rēlay', to lay down again; rē-laid', rē-lay'-ing.

Old English leg[an], past legde, past part. ge-led or ge-legd with re-.

Re-lease, rē.lēce', freedom from restraint or bondage, liberation from an obligation, to set free from bondage or obligation; released, rē.leest'; re-leas'-ing, release'-ment.

French re laisser (not reldcher, as is usually given), to let go.

Relegate, rēl'.ē.gate, to banish, to send away, to dispose of elsewhere; rel'egāt-ed (R. xxxvi.), rel'egāt-ing (R. xix.)

Relegation, rēl'.ē.gay''shūn. Latin rēlēgatio, rēlēgate.)

This word should be rē.lē'gate, v. lēgo, lēgāre, not lēgo, lēgere.

Rēlent, to become less severe, to have mercy on one ill-used; relent'-ed, relent'-ing, relent'-less, relent'less-ly, relent'less-ness, relent'-er. (Lat. lentus slow, not lēnis mild.)

The idea is to "slacken the speed of pursuit," in allusion to the chase of avengers of blood. Lat. relentescō, to run slower and slower.

Rē-let', (past and past part.) relet, to let [on lease] again.

Old English lēt[an], to allow, past lēt, past part. lāten, with re-.

Relevant (not revelant), rēl'.ē.vant, pertinent, applicable; rel'evant-ly; relevance, rēl'.e.vance'; rel'evancy.

Lat. relēvans gen. relēvantis, relēvare, to relieve, to lighten. A relevant remark, relieves or aids or helps to support the argument.

Reliable, rē.lī'.ā.ble, that may be relied on; reli'able-ness, reli'ably. Reliance, re.lī'.ance. Reliant, re.lī'.ant.

Dean Alford objects to the adj. reliable because the verb is rely-on, and therefore, he says, the adj. should be rely-on-able, but we have many similar words to bear it countenance: thus, we respond-to, but our adj. is responsible; we dispense-with, but our adj. is dispensable; we depend-on, but our adj. is dependible; we agree-with, but our adjs. are agreeable and disagreeable, &c. (See Rely.)

Rel'ic (not relict), a corpse. Rel'ict (not relic), a widow.

Relic, rel'ik, that which is left after the loss or decay of the rest. Relics, rēl'-iks, the body of a deceased person, the remains of "saints," the remains of something belonging to a deceased person, as part of a garment, &c.

Relict, rēl'ikt, a widow; relict'-ed, land left bare.

"Relic," Lat. reliquia, relics. "Relict," Lat. relictus, left behind.

Relief, plu. reliefs (Rule xxxix.) Relieve, 3 sing. relieves.

Relief, rē.leef', mitigation, help, dismissal of a sentinel from his post, the appearance of projection in painting, the projection of figures from a plane.

Relieve, re.leev' (verb); relieves, rē.leevz'; relieved, rē.leevd'; reliev-ing, re.lee'wing; reliev-er, re.lee'ver.

Relieving officer, one to whom paupers apply for "relief."

Relievo, plu. relievos or relievi (a blunder for the Italian rilévo or rilíévo), rĕl'ĭ.ă''vo or rĕ.lee'vo, sculpture or cuttings in which the design projects from the surface. Intaglio, in.tăl'yo, a gem or stone with a design cut into the substance. Alto-relievo, high relief, when the figures project from the surface more than half "the round." Mezzo rilievo, mĕd'.zo' re.li.ă.vo, when the figures project from the surface half "the round." Basso rilievo, low relief, when the figures project from the surface less than half "the round."

Fr. relevé, relief (Sculpt.); Ital. rilevo or rilievo; Lat. relevāre.

Re-light, rĕ'lite'', to rekindle; rĕ-light'-ed (R. xxxv.), re-light'-ing.
Old Eng. liht[an], past lihte, past part. lihted (g interpolated).

Religion, rĕ.lĭdg'ăn, the sacred creed and rites of a people; religion'-ist, a partisan of religious dogmas and forms.

Religious, rĕ.lĭdg'.ŭs; religious-ly, religious-ness.

Religieux, fem. religieuse, plu. fem. religieuses (French), rĕ.lee'.zhĕ'u, a monk or friar; re.lee'.zhĕ'ŭze.

Lat. relĭgio, relĭgiōsus, v. relĭgo, to bind. Religion means "a bond."

Relinquish, rĕ.lĭn'.kwĭsh, to leave, to abandon; relin'quished (3 syl.), relin'quish-ing, relin'quish-er. Relin'quish-ment.
Latin re-linquo, to leave behind. (-ish, to make or cause to.)

Reliquary, plu. reliquaries, rĕl'ĭ.kwă.rĭz, a casket for relics.

Reliquiæ, rĕ.lĭk'.kwĭ.ĕ, relics, organic remains; (in Bot.) the remains of withered leaves attached to a plant.

French reliquaire; Latin reliquiæ (relinquo, to leave behind).

Re-liquidate, rĕ-lĭk'kwĭ.date, to liquidate again; rĕ-liq'uidāt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), re-liq'uidāt-ing (Rule xix.)

Reliquidation, rĕ-lĭk'kwĭ.day''shŭn, repayment of debts.

French liquidation, liquider; Latin liquidāre (liquāre, to melt).

Relish, rĕl'.ish, something taken with food to make it more palatable, a liking, to like, to have a taste for; rel'ished (2 syl.), rel'ish-ing; rel'ish-able, palatable.

Fr. re lécher, to lick up, to lick; Gk. leicho, to lick up or lick.

Re-load, (past) re-loaded, (past part.) re-laden, rĕ-lōde', rĕ.lō'.ded, rĕ-lō'.d'n, to load again; re-load-ing, -lō'.ding.
Old Eng. hlād[an], past hlōd, past part. hlæden, with re-, again.

Reluctant, rĕ.lŭk'.tant, unwilling, averse; reluc'tant-ly.

Reluctance, rĕ.lŭk'.tance; reluc'tancy.

Latin reluctans genitive reluctantis, reluctāri (lucta, a struggle).

Relume, rĕ.lŭme', to kindle again, to enlighten again; relumed' (2 syl.), relŭm'-ing, Rule xix. (Latin relŭmĭno.)

Rely, rĕ.lĭj (followed by on or upon), to depend [on]; relies, rĕ.lĭze'; relied, rĕ.lide'; rely'-ing, reli'er (Rule xi.)

Reliable, rĕ.lĭ'.ă.b'l. (See Reliable.)

Old English leof[an], past ledy, past part. logen, with re-.

Remain, rĕ.māne', to stay behind; remained (2 syl.), remain-ing.

Remain'der. Remains'. Rem'nant.

Remainder, the balance left when a divisor does not exactly measure the dividend, surplus, what is left.

Remains, the residue of something destroyed or lost.

Remnant, the rag end of a piece of cloth, or of an army.

Latin rĕmānĕre; Greek mĕnō, to stay, to remain.

Re-make, (past and past part.) re-made, rĕ.māke', rĕ.maid', to make anew; re-māk'-ing (Rule xix.)

Old Eng. mae[ian], past macode, past part. macod, with re-, again.

Rĕ-mānd', to send back to jail for further examination on a future day; remānd'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), remānd'-ing.

Latin rĕmandāre, to commit to one's charge again.

Re-mark', an observation, a comment, to notice, to say; re-marked' (2 syl.), remark'-ing, remark'-er.

Remark'-able, worthy notice; remark'ably, -able-ness.

French remarquer, remarquable; Old Eng. mearo[ian], with re-.

Re-marry, rĕ-mūr'ry, to marry again; re-marries, rĕ-mūr'riz (Rule xi.), re-married, rĕ-mūr'red; remarry-ing, rĕ-mūr'rying. Remarriage, re.mūr'ridge.

The double r in "marry" is quite indefensible.

Fr. marier, mariage; Low Lat. maritagium; Lat. mas, maris.

To marry is to take to oneself a husband (maritus).

Re-measure, rĕ-mezh'ur, to measure grain; re-measured, -mezh'urd; re-meas'ur-ing. (Fr. mesurer, Lat. mensurāre.)

Remedy, plu. remedies (Rule xliv.), rĕm'ĕ.dĭz, a cure, to cure; remedied, rĕm'ĕ.ded; rem'edy-ing.

Remedial, rĕ.mee'dĭ.āl. Remediable, rĕ.mee'dĭ.a.b'l.

Remedial, tending to cure or remedy; remedial-ly.

Remediable, capable of being cured or remedied; reme'diable-ness, reme'diably.

Remediless, rĕ.mĕd'ĭ.less; remed'iless-ness, remed'iless-ly.

Latin rĕmĕdĭum, rĕmĕdĭālis, rĕmĕdĭābilis, v. rĕmĕdio.

Rĕ-melt', to melt again; rĕ-melt'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), rĕ-melt'-ing; (past part.) re-melt'-ed or re-molten, rĕ-mōle'ten.

Old English mel[an], past mealt, past part. molten, with re-.

Remember, rĕ.mēm'ber, to recollect; remembered, rĕ.mēm'berd; remem'ber-ing, remem'ber-er. Remembrance, -branse; remembranc-er, rĕ.mēm'.brān.ser, a recorder.

Fr. rememor, Old Fr. remembrance; Lat. rĕmĕmōrārī (mēmōr).

Re-mind', to put another in mind of [something]; remind'-ed, remind'-ing, remind'-er. (Old Eng. mynd, with re-.)

Reminiscence, rĕm'ĭ.nĭs''sense, recollection.

French réminiscence; Latin rĕmĭnĭscentĭa, v. rĕmĭnĭsco.

Remiss, rě.miss', negligent, inattentive to duty; remiss'-ly, remiss'-ness. Remiss'-ible, that may be passed over.

Remission, rě.mish'.un, pardon, cessation; remissive, -siv.

Remit, rě.mīt', to relax, to absolve; remitt'-ed (R. xxxvi.), remitt'-ing (R. iv.), remitt'-er, remitt'-āl; remitt'-ance, sending money, &c., to some one at a distance (R. xxiv.)

Remitt'-ent, alternately increasing and diminishing; remitt'-ent-ly. More often intermittent, -mittent-ly.

Remittance and remittent are inconsistent, one being the first Latin conj. and the other the third. "Remittance" should be remittance. Latin rēmīssio, rēmīssens gen. rēmīssentis, re-mitto, to send back, hence to send away, to release, to forgive.

Rē-mix', to mix again; remixed, re.mixt', (past part.) remixt.

Latin remisceo supine remixtum, to mix over again.

Remnant, rem'.nant. Remain'der. Remains'.

Remnant, the rag end of a piece of cloth, or of an army.

Remain'der, what remains over the required quantity.

Remains, the débris of a ruin, what remains of a dead body.

The spelling of remnant is abnormal; Latin remanens, gen. -entis.

Re-model, rě-mōd'.ēl, to model again; remodelled, rě-mōd'.ēld; remod'ell-ing, remod'ell-er (Rule iii., -EL).

All but six words ending in -el (not accented on the last syl.), double the -l on receiving a postfix beginning with a vowel.

The exceptions are an'gel (angel'-ic), chan'nel (channeled), chis'el (chiseled), impanel (impaneled, but panel makes panelled, one n and double l), hansel (hanseled), and parallel (paralleled). There are about fifty the other way.

Remonstrate, rě.mōn'.strate, to expostulate; remon'strāt-ed (R. xxxvi.), remon'strāt-ing (R. xix.), remon'strāt-or (R. xxxvii.), remon'strant; remonstrance, -mōn'.stranse.

Fr. remonstrance; Lat. re monstrāre (mōnēo, to advise), to point back.

Remorse, re.morse', contrition; remorse'-ful, remorseful-ly.

Remorse-less, remorse'less-ness, remorse'less-ly.

Latin remordeo supine remorsum, to bite, vex, or eat away.

Rě-mōte' (2 syl.), distant; remōte'-ly, remōte-ness. (Lat. rēmōtus.)

Rē-mould', to mould anew; remould'-ed, remould'-ing.

Welsh mold, v. moldio, with the particle re- prefixed.

Remove, rě.moov', to change place; removed, re.moovd'; remov-ing (R. xix.), re.moov'-ing; remov-er, re.moov'.er; remov-able, re.moov'.a.b'l (only verbs in -ce and -ge retain the -e before -able). Removability, rě.moov'.va.bil''ā.ty.

Removal, rě.moov'.vāl, dismissal from a post, change of place.

The termination -ove has three distinct sounds:

(1) = ōve: clove, cove, drove, grove, hove, rove, stove, sirove, throve, wove.

(2) = ūv: dove, glove, love, shove.

(3) = oov: move, prove, and their compounds. (Fr. mou-, prou-.)

Latin remōveo supine remōtum, to remove; French mouvement.

Re-munerate, rě.mū'.ně.rate, to reward; remu'nerāt-ed (R. xxxvi.), remu'nerāt-ing (R. xix.), remu'nerāt-or (R. xxxvii.)

Remuneration, rě.mū'.ně.ray''.shŭn; remunerative, rě.mū'.ně.rā.tiv; remuneratory, rě.mū'.ně.rā.try.

Remunerable, rě.mū'.ně.ra.b'l, fit to be rewarded.

Latin remuneratio, remunerātor, v. remunerāre (mūnus, a gift).

Renascent, rě.nŭs'.sent, rising up again; renāscence, -nŭs'.sense; renas'cency, renas'cible. (Lat. renascens; gen. renascentis.)

Re-navigate, rě-nŭv'.i.gate, to navigate again; re-navigāt-ed, re-navigāt-ing (R. xix.) Renavigation, -nŭv'.i.gay''.shŭn.

Latin renavigatio, re-navigāre, to renavigate (navis, a ship).

Rencounter, ren.koun'.ter, incident; event. (French rencontre.)

Rend, (past and past part.) rent, to tear. Rent, price for tenancy.

Rend, a split; a tear [tarē]; rend'-er, rend'-able.

Old Eng. hrend[an] or rend[an], past rende, past part. rended.

Ren'der, to restore; to deliver; rendered, rěn'.derd; ren'der-ing, ren'der-er, ren'der-able. (Ital. rendere; Lat. reddere.)

Rendezvous (French), rah'n'.dă.voo' (not ren'.de.voo'; Worcester), a place of muster or meeting, an appointed meeting.

We call the plu. rah'n'.da.vooz, but the odious plu. rendezvouses given in some dictionaries is inadmissible. (Rendez vous, show yourself.)

Renegade, rěn'.ě.gāde, an apostate; a turncoat; renegado, plu.
renegadoes (Rule xlii.), ren'.ě.gah''.dōze (Spanish).

Rē-nerve', (2 syl.), to give new vigour to; rē-nerved' (2 syl.), rē-nerv-ing, R. xix. (Lat. nervus, a nerve; Gk. neurōn.)

Rē-nett', to net over again; renett'-ed (R. xxxvi.), renett'-ing.

Old English net or nett, with the particle rē- prefixed.

Rē-new', to renovate; renewed' (2 syl.), renew'-ing, renew'-er.

Renew'-al, renew'-able. (O. E. nīw[ian], p. nīwode, p. p. nīwod.)

Reniform, rěn'.i.form, kidney-shaped. (Lat. rēnes, the kidneys.)

Ren'net, the prepared inner membrane of a calf's stomach.

German reinette; Old English ge-runnen, to curdle.

Renounce, rě.nounce', to give up, to repudiate; renounced' (2 syl.); renounce-ing, re.noun'.sing; renounce-er, -noun'.ser.

Renounce'-ment. Renunciation, re.nŭn'.sĭ.ă''.shŭn (not re.nun'.she.ă''.shŭn), abandonment, repudiation.

French renonce, renonciation, renoncement; Latin renunciare.

Renovate, rěn'.d.vāte, to renew; ren'ovāt-ed (Rule xxxvii.), ren'ovāt-ing (Rule xix.), ren'ovāt-or (Rule xxxvii.)

Renovation, rěn'.d.vay''.shŭn, restoration, renewal.

Latin renovatio, renovātor, renovāre (novus, new, re-, again).

Renown', fame; renowned, rě.nound', famed; renowned-ly, rě.noun'.ēd.ly. (Fr. renom, renommé; Lat. nōmen, a name.)

Rent, money paid by a tenant for his occupation, a tear [tare], to hold as a tenant, to lease or let for a fixed sum; rent'-ed, rent'-ing, rent'-er, rent'-able; rent'-al, the sum-total of all the rents paid to a landlord.

Rent'-charge (2 syl.), a yearly charge for a tenement.

Rent'-roll (not rentrol), a list of rents payable at stated times. (Old English rent. See Rend.)

(Rentier, rahn'.tē'a (French), a proprietor, one who lives on his rents, is a good word, which might be introduced.)

Renumerate or Enumerate, -nū'.mē.rate, to recount; re- or e-nū'merāt-ed; re- or e-nū'merāt-ing (Rule xix.); re- or e-nū'merāt-or (Rule xxxvii.)

Re- or E-numeration, -nū'.mē.ray''shūn, account, list.

Latin renūmeratio, renūmerātor, renūmerāre (nūmerus, a number).

Renunciation, rē.nūn'.sī.ā''shūn (not rē.nūn'.shē.ā''shūn), renouncement, abandonment. (See Renounce.)

Re-obtain, rē'-ob.tain'', to obtain again; rē-obtained' (3 syl.), re-obtain'-ing, re-obtain'-ment. (Latin re-obtinēre.)

Re-occupy, rē'-ōk'kū.pī, to occupy again; re-occupies, rē'-ōk'kū.pize; re-occupied, rē'-ōk'kū.pide (R. xi.), rē-oc'cupi-er, re-oc'cupy-ing. Re-occupa'tion, rē'-ōk'kū.pay''shun.

Latin occupatio, occupāre (oc[ob]cāptō), to take possession of.

Re-open, rē'-ō'.p'n, to open again; re-opened, rē'-ō'.p'nd; re-opening. (Old English open[ian], &c.)

Re-oppose, rē'-op.pōze'' (not rē'.o.pōze''), to oppose again; re'-opposed'' (3 syl.), re-oppos-ing (R. xix.), -ōp.pō''zing.

Re-opposition, rē'-ōp.pō.zish''ūn. (Lat. re-op[ob]pōnēre.)

Re'-ordain'', to ordain again; re'-ordained'', re'-ordain''-ing.

Re-ordination (mark the vowel change, ai into i), -shūn.

Latin ordinatio, ordināre (ordo gen. ordinis), to promote, to order.

Rē-or'der, to order again; re-ordered, rē-or'.derd; re-or'der-ing.

Latin ordo, order, v. ordior (i.e., texere incipere. Voss).

Re-organise (Rule xxxi.), rē-or'.gān.ize, to organise again; re-organised, rē-or'.gān.ized; re-organis-ing (R. xix.)

Re-organisation, rē-or'.gān.ī.zay''shūn.

Fr. réorganisation, v. réorganiser (Gk. orgānos, an organising).

Rep (corruption of rib), a cloth with a ribbed surface.

Re-pacify, rē-pās'.ī.fy, to pacify again; re-pacifies, -pās'.ī.fize; re-pacified, rē-pās'.ī.fide; re-pacify-ing, -pās'.ī.fī.ing.

Re-pacification, rē-pās'.ī.fī.kay''shūn.

Lat. re-pacificatio, pacificāre (pax-fictō [fāciō], to make peace).

Rē-pack', to pack again; rē-packed' (2 syl.), rē-pack'-ing.

German packen, with re- (Latin pango supine pactum, to plant).

- Rē-paint', to paint again; rē-paint'-ed (R. xxxvi.), rē-paint'-ing.
French peindre; Lat. pingo supine pictum, hence pictūra, a picture.
- Re-pair', to mend; repaired' (2 syl.), repair'-ing, repair'-er.
Repair'-able, able to be repaired. Rep'arable, retrievable.
Boots and shoes are repairable or un-repairable, past repairs.
A loss is reparable or ir-reparable, not to be retrieved.
- Repair-ment, the act of mending or repairing.
- Reparation, rēp'pa.ray''.shŭn, restoration, amends.
"Repairment" is applied only to little jobs of repairs, "reparation" to larger repairs, as the reparation of a church, a bridge, a house.
Lat. rēparābilis, rēparālio, rēparāre; Fr. réparable, réparation.
- Repartee, rēp'par.tēe'', a smart and witty retort. (Fr. repartie.)
- Re-pass (Rule v.), past and past part. repassed (2 syl.) Repast, a meal. Re-pass'-ing. (Fr. repasser, repas, a repast.)
- Repast, rē.past', a meal. Repassed, re.past'. (See above.)
Lat. re-pastus, fed again (pascor), our pasture; Low Lat. repastum.
- Repay, rē.pay', (past and past part.) re-paid'; repay'-ing, to pay again. Repay'-ment, repay'-able. (Fr. payer, Lat. pago.)
(Pay, lay, and say, with their compounds, make paid, laid, said [= séd], instead of payed, layed, sayed. Rules xiii. xiv.)
- Re-peal, rē.peel', reformation, to revoke. Repel' (q.v.)
- Re-pealed' (2 syl.), re-peal'-ing, repeal'-er, repeal'-able.
Low Lat. repello, repellatus, repealed; Lat. re-appello, to call back.
- Re-peat, rē.peat', a mark in music to denote "over again," to recite, to say again; repeat'-ed (R. xxxvi.), repeated-ly.
Repeat'-er, one who repeats, a watch which strikes the hours, (in Arith.) an interminate decimal; repeat'-ing.
- Repetition, rēp'pē.tish''.ŭn; repetitive, re.pēt'.ī.tiv.
French répeler, répétition; Latin repētere (pēto), to seek again.
- Repel, rē.pēl', to drive back; repelled, re.pēld'; repell'-ing, repell'-ing-ly, repell'-er, repell'-ent, repell'ency.
"Repel" would be better with double l; Lat. repello (see Repulse).
- Repent, rē.pent', to feel penitence or regret; repent'-ed (R. xxxvi.), repent'-ing. Repentant, re.pēn'.tant; repentant-ly;
repentance, re.pēn'.tance. (Should be repentent, -tence.)
As usual we get our wrong conj. from the French repentant, repen- tance, repent, repentir; Latin re-pentire.
- Re-people, rē-pee'.p'l, to colonise again; repeopled, -pee'.p'ld; repeopleing, rē-pee'.pling, recolonising, recolonisation.
French peuple; Latin pōpŭlus, pōpŭlo, to people, with re-, again.
- Re-percussion, rē-per.kŭsh''.ŭn, a rebound, reverberation; re- percussive, rē-per.kŭs'.siv. (French répercussion.)
Latin perpercussio, v. perpercŭlio (quāto supine quassum, to shake).
- Repertory, phŭ. repertories, rēp'per.tō.riz, a cabinet, a place or book where the contents are orderly arranged.
French répertoire; Ital. repertorio; Latin repertus, [easily] found.

Repetition, rĕp'pĕ.tish''.ŭn, recital, a repeating; repetition-al.

Repetitive, rĕ.pĕt'.ĭ.tiv. Repeat (q.v.), repeated, &c.

Latin repetitio, repĕtĕre (peto, to seek); French répétition, répĕter. It is a great pity that a has been introduced into the word "repeat," here the e final (repete) would be far preferable, if indeed it is desirable at all to lengthen the Latin short e of "pĕto."

Repine, rĕ.pīnĕ', to murmur, to fret; repined' (2 syl.); repin'-ing (Rule xix.), repin'-ing-ly; repin-er, rĕ.pī'.ner.

Old English pīn[an], past pīnede, past part. pīned, with re.

Replace, re.plācĕ', to put back again, to succeed another in a place or post; replaced' (2 syl.); replac-ing, re.plā'.sing.

Replace'-ment. (French replacer, remplacement, place.)

Replait, Replate (both rĕ.plāte'). Replāt.

Replait, rĕ.plāte', to plait or make into folds again; re-plait'-ed, re-plait'-ing. (Welsh pleth, v. plethu.)

Replat, rĕ.plāt', to braid together again. (Welsh plethu.)

Replate, -plate', to "wash" again with silver. (Germ. platten.)

Rĕ-plant', to plant again; re-plant'-ed, -ing. (Fr. replanter.)

Re-plead, rĕ'.pleed'', to plead over again; replead'-ed (R. xxxvi.), replead'-ing, replead'-er. (Fr. replaider, Old Fr. plĕe.)

Re-plenish, rĕ.plĕn'.ish, to stock again; re-plen'ished (3 syl.), replen'ish-ing, replen'ish-er. Replen'ish-ment.

Norman replener (Latin re-plĕnus, full again; Greek plĕrés).

Replete, rĕ.pleĕt', well filled; replete'-ness, completeness.

Repletion, rĕ.pleĕ'.shŭn, plethora, superfluity.

Repletive, re.pleĕ'.tĭv, tending to fill; repletive-ly.

Latin replĕtio, re-plĕo, to fill again; French réplĕtion.

Replevy, re.plĕv'.y, to allow one to "mainprise" on security, to give back on certain conditions goods which have been distrained; replevies, rĕ.plĕv'.ĭz; replevied, re.plĕv'.ĭd (Rule xi.); replev'y-ing; replevi-able, rĕ.plĕv'.ĭ.ă.b'l.

Replevin, re.plĕv'.ĭn, an action in law to recover goods which have been wrongfully distrained.

Low Latin replegio, n. replegiamentum, replegiabilis (plegium, a pledge; Fr. pleige, v. pleiger; Germ. pſledge; Lat. pignus).

Replica, rĕp'plĭ.kah (Italian), a copy of a picture by the author.

Replication, rĕp'plĭ.kay''.shun, reverberation, a plaintiff's reply to the defendant's plea. Replicate, rĕp'plĭ.kate (in Bot.), folded down. (Latin replicātio, plĭcāre, to fold.)

Reply, rĕ.ply', an answer, to answer; replies, rĕ.plīzĕ'; replied, rĕ.plīde (Rule xi.); repli'-er, reply'-ing.

French répliquer; Latin re-plĭcāre, to fold back again, to reply.

Re-polish, rĕ.pōl'.ish, to polish again; re-pol'ished (3 syl.), repol'ish-ing, repol'ish-er. (Latin polĭtio, v. pōlio.)

Report, rě.port', a rumour; a statement, to give a statement, to spread a rumour; report'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), report'-ing.

Report'-er, one who reports for a journal; report'-able.

Low Latin reportus; Latin re-portāre, to bring [word back].

Repose, rě.pōzě', rest, sleep, to rest, to rely; reposed (2 syl.); reposed-ly, rě.pō.zěd.ly; reposed-ness, rě.pō.zěd.ness; repos-ing (Rule xix.), rě.pō.zing; repos-er, rě.pō.zer; repos-al, rě.pō.zāl, reliance, full confidence.

Reposition, rě.po.zish''.ǎn, the laying up in safety.

(In the following examples the "o" is short.)

Reposit, rě.pōz'.ǎt, to lay up, to lodge for safety; reposit-ed, rě.pōz'.ǎt.ed (Rule xxxvi.); reposit-ing, rě.pōz'.ǎt.ing.

Repository, plu. repositories, rě.pōz'.ǎt.ō.riz, a place where things are put for safety, a museum or bazaar.

Latin repōno supine repōstūm, repōstōrium; Fr. repos, v. repōser.

Re-possess, rě.pōz.zěs' (not rě.po.zěs''), to obtain possession again; re-possessed, rě.pōz.zěs't'; re-possess'-ing.

Repossession, rě.pōz.zesh''.ǎn (not rě.pō.zesh''.ǎn).

Lat. re-possessio, re-possidēre (posse sedere, able to settle down).

First applied to real property, as lands, then to personal property.

Reprehend, rěp.prě.hend'', to chide, to rebuke; reprehend'-ed, reprehend'-ing; reprehend'-er, one who blames.

Reprehension, rěp.prě.hěň''.shŭn, reproof, censure.

Reprehensible, rěp.prě.hěň''.sĭ.b'l; rep'rehen'sible-ness, rep'rehen'sibly; reprehensibility, rěp.prě.hěň''.sĭ.bŭ''.ǎty.

Reprehensive, rěp.prě.hěň''.sŭ; rep'rehen'sive-ly.

Reprehensory, rěp.prě.hěň''.sō.ry, containing censure.

Latin reprehensio, v. reprehendēre supine -hensum, to lay hold of one with the intent of "pulling him back" (re-[retro]prehendo).

Represent, rěp.prě.zent'', to show by resemblance; to describe; to show on the stage, to enact; represent'-ed (R. xxxvi.), represent'-ing; represent-er, rěp.prě.zěň''.ter.

Representation, rěp.prě.zěň.tay''.shŭn; represent'-able, represent'-ment. Representative, rěp.prě.zěň''.tă.tiv, a deputy, a member of parliament, an agent, the standard of a group of animals, &c.; having representatives; represent'ative-ly, represent'ative-ness.

Latin repræsentatio, repræsentāre (presentem sisto, to stop behind to act for some one absent as if he were present).

Re-press', to put down, to crush; repressed, -prest'; repress'-ing.

Repression, rě.prěs''.shŭn; repress'-er; repress'-ible, repress'ible-ness, repressibly. Repressive, re.prěs''.sŭ; repress'ive-ly. (Lat. repressio, repressor, reprimō, pressum.)

Reprieve, rĕ.preev', to suspend the execution of a criminal; to grant a respite to; reprieved, rĕ.preevd'; reprieve-ing, rĕ.pree'ving. (Fr. repris, from reprendre, to take back.)

The idea is that of a criminal led to execution and taken back again.

Reprimand, rĕp'pri.mand'', a reproof, to reprove, to admonish; rep'rimand''-ed, rep'rimand''-ing, rep'rimand''-er.

A French blunder, réprimande, v. réprimander; Lat. reprehend[us], something to be repressed and therefore rebuked.

Re-print, (noun) rĕ'print; (verb) rĕ.print'.

Rĕprint, a new edition, a new issue of a plate, &c.

Rĕprint', to print again, to print a new edition; rĕ-print'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), reprint'-ing. (Latin re-imprimō.)

Reprisal, rĕ.pri'.zāl, a seizure from a foe by way of retaliation.

Low Lat. reprisale, reprisa, a reprise; Fr. reprisaille (reprendre).

Reproach, rĕ.pročk', a shame, infamy, cause of censure; to censure, to reprove; reproached' (2 syl.), reproach'-ing, reproach'-er, reproach'-able, reproach'-able-ness, reproach'-ably. Reproach'-ful (Rule viii.), reproach'-ful-ly, reproach'-ful-ness. Reproach'-less, reproach'-less-ly, reproach'-less-ness. (Fr. reproche, reprocher, reprochable.)

Reprobate, (noun) rĕp'prü.bĕt, (verb) rĕp'prü.bāte. (See Reprove.)

Reprobate, an abandoned wretch, to disapprove greatly; rep'robāt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), rep'robāt-ing (Rule xix.)

Reprobation, rĕp'prü.bay''shŭn; rep'robate-ness.

Reprobation-er, rĕp'prü.bay''shŭn.er, one who believes that some were condemned to eternal punishment even before they were born (Rom. ix. 13).

Latin reprobatio, reprobare (re-prübo, to dis-approve).

Re-produce, rĕ'.pro.duce'', to produce over again; re'-produced'' (3 syl.); reproduc-ing, rĕ'.prü.dŭ''sing; reproduc'-er.

Reproduction, rĕ'.pro.dŭk''shŭn. (Latin re-prodūco.)

Reprove, rĕ.proov', to rebuke. Reproof, a rebuke (v. Reprobate); reproves, re.proovz', chides. Reproofs, rebukes (pl.); reprov-ing (Rule xix.), re.proov'ing; reprov'-ing-ly; reprov'-er, re.proov'er. Reprov'-able, rĕ.proov'.abl'; reprov'-able-ness; reprovably, rĕ.proov'.äbly.

"Reprove," French réprouver. "Reprobate," Latin re-prübare.

Rĕ-prüne', to prune again; re'pruned'' (2 syl.), re'prün''-ing.

Chaucer uses the word proine, to dress or clean, said of a bird.

Reptile, rĕp'.tile, a creeping animal; reptilian, rĕp.til'.i.ăn.

Reptilia, rĕp.til'.i.ah, the reptile genus.

Latin reptilis, reptilla (repo, Greek herpō, to creep).

Republic, rĕ.püb'.lik, a commonwealth; republ'ican; republ'ican-ism, rĕ.püb'.li.kăn.izm, republican government.

Latin res-publica, the public weal; French république, républicain.

Republication, rě.pŭb'.lĭ.kay'.shŭn, a new edition.

Republish, rě'.pŭb''.lish, to issue a new edition; rěpub'-lished (3 syl.), rěpub'lish-ing. (French republier.)

Repudiate, rě.pŭ'.dĭ.ate, to refuse to pay a debt, to divorce; repu'diāt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), repu'diāt-ing (Rule xix.), repu'diāt-or (Rule xxxvii.), repu'diable.

Repudiation, rě.pŭ'.dĭ.ā''.shŭn, divorce, refusal to pay either interest or the principal of a public loan.

Latin rěpŭdiatio, rěpŭdiator, rěpŭdiare (pŭdor, shame). Neither "divorce" nor "refusal to pay a debt" is without shame.

Repugnant, rě.pŭg'.nant, adverse; repug'nant-ly; repugnance, rě.pŭg'.nanse; repug'nancy. Repug'nate (3 syl.), &c.

Latin rěpugnantis, rěpugnans gen. rěpugnantis, re-pugnāre.

Re-pŭlse' (2 syl.), to repel; repŭlsed' (2 syl.), repŭls'-ing, repŭls'-ing-ly, repŭls'-er; repulsive, rě.pŭl'.sĭv; repul'-sive-ly, repul'sive-ness, repulse'-less; repuls'ory.

Repulsion, rě.pŭl'.shŭn, opp. of attraction. (See Repel.)

Lat. rěpulsio, rěpulsus, rěpulsare (frequent. of -pello, to drive off).

Re-purchase, rě.pŭr'.chase, to buy again; repur'chased (3 syl.), repur'chas-ing (R. xix.), repur'chas-er. Repurchase, n.

French pourchasser, to pursue till we obtain, with re- prefixed.

Repute, rě.pŭt'e', character, fame, to estimate, to think; repŭt'-ed (R. xxxvi.), reckoned, believed; reput'ed-ly; reput-ing (Rule xix.), rě.pŭ'.ting; repute'-less, without repute.

Reputation, rěp'pu.tay''.shŭn, fame, [good] character.

Reputable, rěp'pu.tā.b'l; rep'utable-ness, rep'utably.

Latin rěpŭtatio, rěpŭtare, to consider. "A man of reputation" is one to be considered, one to be thought of over and over again.

Request, rě.kwest', a petition, entreaty, to entreat, to solicit; request'-ed, request'-ing, request'-er. In request, in demand. (French requeste, now requête; Latin rěquiro.)

Requiem, rěk'kwĭ.ĕm, a hymn or musical service for the dead.

So called because the musical service for the dead in the Roman Catholic church begins with the word requiem.

Require, rě.kwĭre', to request, to want, to call for; required' (2 syl.), requir'-ing (Rule xix.), requir'-er, requir'-able (Rule xxiii.), re.kwĭ'.rā.b'l. Require'-ment.

Requisite, rěk'kwĭ.zĭt, necessary; req'uisite-ly; requisite-ness, rěk'kwĭ.zĭt.ness, necessity, need.

Requisition, rěk'kwĭ.zĭsh''.ŭn. Requisitive, rě.kwĭz'.ĭ.tĭv.

Latin rěquĭrere, rěquisitio; French rěquisition, requĕrir, requis.

Requite, rě.kwĭt'e', to compensate; requit'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), requit-ing (R. xix.), rě.kwĭ'.ting; requit'-er, requit'-al.

German quitt, quit, free; nun sind wir quitt, now we are quits.

Reredos, rĕr-dos, the screen behind the "altar" of a church, the back of a fireplace. (Fr. arrière dos, behind the back.)

Reremouse, rĕr-mouse, the bat. (Old English hrĕre-mūs.)

This is the mouse that rears or rises in the air; hrĕran, to raise.

Re-resolve, rĕ.rĕ.zōlv'', to resolve over again; re-resolved, rĕ.rĕ.zōlvd''; re'-resōlv''-ing, R. xix. (Lat. re-resolvo.)

Rere-ward or rear-ward, rĕr.wawrd, the rear part of an army; rerewards better rearwards, adv. (Fr. arrière-garde.)

Rĕsail', to sail back. Rĕsale' (2 syl.), a second sale.

Resailed' (2 syl.), resail'-ing. (Old English sægelf[ian].)

Resale' (2 syl.), a second sale. (O. E. syll[an], to sell. See above.)

Re'-scīnd'', to revoke; re'-scīnd''-ed (R. xxxvi.), re'-scīnd''-ing. Latin rescindo, to abolish (scindo, to cut off); French rescinder.

Rescript, rĕ.skript, an edict, a decree; rescribe, re-skribe', to write over again; rescribed' (2 syl.), rescrib'-ing (R. xix.)

Rescription, rĕ.skrip'.shŭn. (Latin rescriptum, rescribo.)

Rescue, rĕs'.ku, release, to liberate, to get back, to deliver; rescued, rĕs'.kude; res'cu-ing (verbs ending in any two vowels, except -ue, retain both before -ing), res'cu-er.

French recous, from Italian risosso, redeemed, v. riscuotere, i.e. riscuotere, to shake back; Latin re-quatio.

Re-search, rĕ.serch', laborious search and investigation; verb re'-search'', to search again; re'-searched'' (2 syl.), re'-search''-ing, (French recherche, v. rechercher.)

Re-seat, rĕ'-seet'', to return again as member of parliament, to seat anew; re'-seat''-ed (Rule xxxvi.), re'-seat''-ing.

Latin re-sēdō (sēdes, a seat); German sitz, v. sitzen.

Reseda, re.see'.dah (not res'.ĕ.dah), mignonnette or mignonette, rocket, &c. (Latin rēsēda, not rĕsĕda.)

Rēsēdens [dolōres], relieving pains and swellings (Plin. xxvii. 106).

Re'-seek'', to seek again; (past and past part.) re-sought, rĕ-sort''; re'-seek''-ing. Resort, re.zort', a haunt (q.v.)

Old Eng. seef[an], past sohte, past part. gesoht. "Resort," Fr. ressort.

Re'-sell'', to sell again; (past and past part.) re-sōld', re'-sell''-ing. (Old Eng. syll[an], p. sealde, p. p. seald.)

Rcsemble, rĕ.zĕm'.b'l, to be like; resembled, rĕ.zĕm'.b'ld; resembling, rĕ.zĕm'.bling. Resemblance, rĕ.zĕm'.blance.

French ressembler, ressemblance; Latin re-stimŭlare (stimŭlis, like).

Re'-send'', to send again; (past and past part.) re'-sent'', re'-send''-ing. Resent, rĕ.zent', to visit with indignation.

Old Eng. send[an], past sende, p. p. sended. "Resent," Fr. ressentir.

Resent, rě.zent', to consider as an affront, to visit an affront with displeasure; resent-ed, rě.zen'.ted; resent-ing, -zen'.ting; resent'ing-ly, resent'-er; resent-ful, rě.zent'.ful; resent-ful-ly. Resent-ment, rě.zent'.ment; resentive, -zen'.tiv.

Fr. ressentir, ressentiment (Lat. re-sentio). See Resend. (Once used in a good sense: "A good man is a resenter . . of benefits." Barrow).

Reserve, rě.zerv', to keep in store; rě'-serve'', to serve again.

Reserve, rě.zerv', absence of frankness, a store for future use, a body of soldiers to be brought into action if necessary, to keep in store; reserved, rě.zervd'; reserv-ing (Rule ix.), rě.zer'.ving; reserved-ly, rě.zer'.ved.ly; reserved-ness, rě.zer'.ved.ness; reserv-er, re.zer'.ver.

Reservation, rěz'.er.vay''shŭn. In reserve, in store.

Reservé, rě'-serve'', to serve again; reserved, rě'-served'', &c.

Reservoir, rěz'.er.vivor, a tank or place for storing water.

Fr. réserve, réservation, réservoir; Lat. re-servare, to keep back.

Re-set'', (past and past part.) re-set'', to set again; resett-ing (Rule iv.); resett-er, one who receives stolen goods.

Old English sett[an], past sette, past part. geset; settere, a thief.

Re-settle, rě.sět't'l, to settle anew; re-settled, rě-sět't'ld; re-settling, rě-sět'ling. Re-settle-ment, rě-sět'tl.ment.

Old English setl or setel, v. setl[an], setlung, a settling.

Re-shape'' (2 syl.), to shape anew; re-shaped'' (2 syl.), re-shāp''-ing, R. xix. (O. E. scap[an], p. scōp, p. p. scapen)

Re-ship'', to ship again; re-shipped, rě.shipt''; re-shipp''-ing.

Re-ship''-ment. (O. E. scip[ian], p. scipode, p. p. scipod.)

Reside, rě.zide', to dwell; resided, rě.zi'.ded; resid-ing (R. xix.), rě.zi'.ding. Resident, rěz'.i.dent; residence, rěz'.i.dense; residency, rěz'.i.děn.sy; residential, rěz'.i.děn'.shŭl.

Residentiary, rěz'.i.děn'.shĭ.ĕ.ry.⁶ A canon residentiary

Fr. résider (to give up), résidence, résident !! Lat. residens gen. residentis, re-sédēs (sēdes, a seat); Gk. hēzō[mai]; Low Lat. residentia, resideo.

Residue, rěz'.i.du, the remainder; residual, rě.zid'.ŭ.ŭl; residuary, rě.zid'.u.ŭ.ry, entitled to the residue.

Residuum, plu. residua, rě.zid'.u.um, plu. rě.zid'.u.ah.

Latin residuum plu. residua, residuus; French résidu (in Chem.).

Resign, rě.zīne', to yield, to give up; rě'-sine'', to sign again; resigned, rě.zind'; resigned-ly, rě.zi'.nēd.ly; resign-ing, rě.zi'.ning; resign-er, rě.zi'.ner, one who resigns.

Resignation, rěz'.zīg.nay''shŭn, submission, patience.

Re-sign, rě'-sine'', to sign again; resigned, re'sind'; resign-ing, rě'.si'.ning. Resignature, rě'.sig''.nă.tchur.

"Resign" (to give up), Lat. resigno, resignatio; Fr. résigner, résignation.

"Resign" (to sign again), Lat. re-signo, to seal again (signum, a seal).

"To give up" and "sign again" are both the same Latin verb, because the person signs, seals, and delivers, who resigns a right.

Resilient, rĕ.sĭl'.ĭ.ent, rebounding; resilient-ly; resilience, rĕ.sĭl'.ĭ.ense; resiliency. (Lat. resiliens, gen. resilientis.)

Re sĭlio, to leap back. In compounds a becomes i in Latin.

Resin, rez'n, the exudation of firs, pines, &c. Rosin, rōz'n, resin from which the oil has been distilled.

Resiny, rĕz'n.y, of the nature of resin. Rosiny, rōz'n.y.

Resinous, rĕz'n.ūs, containing resin; res'inous-ly, -ness.

Rosin, to rub with rosin; rosined, rōz'ĭ.nd; ros'in-ing.

Latin resina; Greek rhĕlinĕ (from rĕo, to flow); French resine.

Resist, rĕ.zĭst', to withstand; resist-ed, re.zĭst'.ed; resist-ing, re.zĭst'.ing; resist'ing-ly, resist'-ible (not -able), resist'-ible-ness, resist'ibly. Resistibility, rĕ.zĭst'.ĭ.bĭl''.ĭ.ty.

Resistance, rĕ.zĭst'.ance; resistant, rĕ.zĭst'.ant. (Should be resistent, resistence, especially as we write resist-ible.)

Resist-less, rĕ.zĭst'.less; resist'less-ness, resist'less-ly.

As usual, we owe our wrong conj. to the French résistance, résistant, résistible (!), résister. Latin resistens gen. resistentis, resistere. The French seem to have blundered between sto, stāre, and sisto, sistere; re-sisto is a compound of the latter verb.

Resolute, rez'.ō.lute, determined; res'olute-ly, res'olute-ness.

Resolution, rez'.ō.lu''.shŭn, determination.

Resolve, rĕ.zōlv', to determine, to analyse, to solve a difficulty, to loosen; resolved, rĕ.zōlv'd; resolved-ly, rĕ.zōlv'.ed.ly; resolved-ness, rĕ.zōlv'.ed.ness; resolv-ing (R. xix.), rĕ.zōlv'.ing; resolv-er, rĕ.zōlv'.er; resolv-able, rĕ.zōlv'.ā.b'l. Resol'vabil'ity; resoluble, re'.sol''.ā.b'l, capable of being dissolved; resolvent, rĕ.zōlv'.vent, having the power to melt or disperse solid substances.

(We have avoided the French error in "resolvent," but have blundered in resolvable, which should be resoluble. See Resist.)

Latin resolūbilis, v. resolvĕre supine resolūtum, resolvens gen. resolventis, resolūtio, resolūtus; French resolvant (wrong).

Resonant, rez'.ō.nant, returning or increasing sound; res'onant-ly.

Resonance, rez'.ō.nanse, increase of sound produced by reverberation too near to become an echo.

Latin resōnans gen. resonāntis, resonantia, re-sono, to sound back.

Resort, rĕ.zort'. Resort, rĕ'-sort''. Resought, rĕ'.sort''.

Resort, rĕ.zort', a haunt, a place frequented. To resort to, to frequent, to have recourse to; resort-ed, rĕ.zor'.ted; resort-ing, rĕ.zor'.ting; resort-er, re.zor'.ter.

A last resort, rĕ.zort', a last and forlorn hope of redress.

A last resource, a final expedient, a last shift.

My dernier ressort, dair'.nĕ.ū rezzor', strictly speaking means my final tribunal, my last hope of redress, but it is very often used to mean "my last shift or hope."

In French the word ressort sometimes means tous les moyens qu'on a, tous son pouvoir, but the legitimate meaning of dernier ressort is "final tribunal": thus when all other courts have failed to give redress, the plaintiff's dernier ressort is the House of Lords.

Low Latin resortare, ressortum (in law); French ressort, v. ressortir.

Resound, rě.zound', to echo. Rě'-sound'', to sound again; resound-ed, rě.zoun'.ded; resound-ing, rě.zoun'.ding; rě'-sound''-ed, sounded again; rě'-sound''-ing.

Latin rě-sōnāre, both meanings; French resonner, to celebrate, &c.

Resource, rě.so'rce'. Recourse, re.co'rse'. Resort, rě.zort'.

Resource, an expedient, a contrivance, a means.

Recourse, application for help, a turning to.

Resort, a tribunal, a place of appeal, to repair to.

"Resource," French ressource. "Recourse," French recours; Latin re-curro, to run to [for aid]. "Resort," French ressort.

Re'-sōw'' ("sōw" to rhyme with grōw), to plant again. Re-sew, re'-sōw'', to sew with the needle again.

Re'-sōwed (2 syl.); re-sown, re-planted; re'-sōw''-ing.

Re-sew, re-sōw; resewed, re-sōwd; (past part.) resowed, but resewn, re-sown, though not correct is far more general.

"Resow," Old English sdu[an], past seow, past part. sāwen.

"Resew," Old English stuw[ian], past stwode, past part. ge-swēd.

Note.—There are thirty-two words beginning with res- followed by a vowel. In exactly one-half of these words the s = z, and in the other half it = s. For example, in the following words the s = z: resemble, resent, reserve, reservoir, reside, residue, resign (to give up), resin, resist, resolvable, resolute, resolve, resonant, resort (recourse), resound (to reverberate). But in the following examples the s keeps its own sound: research, reseat, reseck, resell, rescind, re-sent (sent again), re-serre (to serve again), reset, resettlement, reshape, reship, re-sign (to sign again), resilient, re-sort (to sort again), resource, resow (to sow seeds again), and resew (to sew with the needle again).

Respect, re-spekt', esteem, to esteem; respect'-ed (Rule xxxvi.); respect'-ing, esteeming, concerning; respect'-er, -less.

Respect'-able (R. xxiii.), deserving respect; respect'ably, respect'able-ness; respectability, rě.spěk'.tă.bil''.i.ty.

Respect'-ful (Rule viii.), showing respect; respectful-ness; respect'ful-ly, deferentially, civilly.

Respect'-ive, -iv; respect'ive-ly, each to each, separately.

French respecter, respectable (whence our wrong conj.), respectif.

Latin respicio supine respectum (re-specio, to look back at).

IN RESPECT OF, a modern error for In respect to or With respect to. "Respect" is not a noun in this phrase, but in respect or with respect is adverbial = respectively. We could not say respectively of or relatively of, but we find in some old writers respectively to, and we still say relatively to. Probably the error arose from the French à l'égard de, but the "article" makes all the difference, and without it the phrase would be par rapport à. The same applies to the phrase in regard of for in regard to.

Respire, rě.spīr'e, to draw air into the lungs, hence "to live."

Expire, to drive air out of the lungs, hence "to die."

Respired' (2 syl.); respir-ing, rě.spī'.ring.

(The following change the accent to the first syllable.)

Respirable, rěs'.pī.rā.b'l; res'pirable-ness; respirability, rěs'.pī.rā.bīl''ī.ty, suitability for breathing purposes.

Respiration, rěs'.pī.ray''shŭn, the act of breathing.

Respirator, rěs'.pī.rā.tor, a mouth-piece to warm the air before it is inhaled into the lungs; respiratory, -rā.t'ry.

Lat. respiratio, respirātor, respirāre sup. respirātum (spiro, to breathe).

Respite, res'.pīt, temporary delay in the execution of a capital punishment, rest, breathing-time, to suspend, to delay, &c.; res'pit-ed (Rule xxxvi.), res'pit-ing (Rule xix.)

Fr. répit, delay, sans répit, unrespited, donner du répit &c.

Resplendent, rě.splěn'.dent, brilliant; resplen'dent-ly; resplendence, rě.splěn'.dence; resplen'dency.

Lat. resplendens gen. resplendentis, v. re-splendo, to shine bright.

Rě-split', (past and past part.) resplit; res'splitt'-ing (R. iv.), to split again. (Dan. split, v. splitte; Germ. splittern.)

Respond, rě.spond', to answer; respond'-ed, respond'-ing; respondent, re.spōn'.dent. Respondentia, -děn''shě.ah.

Response, rě.sponse', reply, the answer of the congregation in parts of the Church service.

Responsible, rě.spōn'.sī.b'l; respon'sible-ness, respon'sibly.

Responsibility, plu. responsibilities, rě.spōn'.sī.bīl''ī.tiz.

Responsive, rě.spōn'.sīv; respon'sive-ly, responsive-ness.

Responsion, rě.spōn'.shŭn, the Oxford "little go."

Responsory, rě.spōn'.sō.ry, making answer.

Lat. respondens gen. -dentis, responsio, v. respondeo, sup. responsum.

A "response" is a voluntary reply, "quod qui spondet, sua sponte promittat" (Varro); "respondeo a sponte" (Festus).

Rest, sleep, repose, residue, to sleep, &c. Wrest, rest, to twist.

Rest'-ed, rest'-ing, rest'-less, rest'less-ness, rest'less-ly.

"Rest," Old English rest, ræst, or reost, v. rest [ian], past reste, past part. rested, or hrest [ian], past hreste, past part. hrested.

"Wrest," Old Eng. wrest [ian], to twist, past wreste, p. p. wrested.

Rě-stāte' (2 syl.), to state again; rě'stāt'-ed, rě'stāt'-ing.

Rě'-state'-ment. (Lat. stāre sup. stātum, to establish.)

"Stated" means fixed, as a stated day, named beforehand, told.

Restaurant (French), res'.to.rahng, an eating house or room.

"Restaurant" is a place for "restoring" the body. "Refreshment" is something taken to make us more fresh. One refers to exhaustion and the other to fatigue.

Restiff, res'.tīf, unwilling to go forwards; restiff-ness. (Fr. rétif.)

Re-stipulate, rě'stíp''pŭ.late, to stipulate over again; rě-stíp'u-lât.ed (Rule xxxvi.), rě-stíp'ulât-ing (Rule xix.)

Re-stipulation, rě'stíp'pŭ.lay''shŭn, a new compact.

All bargains among the Romans were made by asking the question an stipem vis? the reply was stipem volo. (Do you want money? I do want money.) So that stipulate is a compound of stips-volo (stip'ulo), and Isidore's tale about stipulum, a straw, is worthless.

Restitution, rěs'.tŭ.tu''shŭn, restoration. (Lat. restitutio, statuo.)

Restive, rěs'.tŭv, restless; res'tive-ness, res'tive-ly, res't'y.

Fr. rétif; Ital. restio; Lat. re-sto, to stand back, not to go forwards.

Restore, rě.stōr'e, to replace, to renovate; restored' (2 syl.), restōr'-ing, restōr'-er, restōr'-able, restor'able-ness.

Restoration, rěs'.tō.ray''shŭn, recovery, the re-establishment of the monarchy under Charles II.; restora'tion-ist.

Restorative, rě.stōr'ră.tŭv, remédial; restor'ative-ly.

(These words should be spelt with au, not with o.)

Lat. restauratio, re-staurare (Gk. staurōō, to drive in stakes, stauros a stake), to restore or restaur is to repair the pales, &c., in order to make the place secure. "Restore" must be re-storeo, to repair the mats (stōrea, a mat, from Greek sterno, to strew).

Restrain, rě.strain', to keep back, to repress; restrained' (2 syl.); restrained-ly, re.strain'.ed.ly; restrain'-ing, restrain'-er, restrain'-able. Restrain'-ment. Restraint, rě.straint'.

Restrict, rě.strīkt', to circumscribe; restrict'-ed (R. xxxvi.), restrict'-ing; restrictive, rě.strīk'.tŭv; restrictive-ly.

Restriction, rě.strīk'.shŭn, limitation.

Fr. restreint, restreindre, restriction, restrictif; Lat. restrictio, v. restringere sup. restrictum, to strain hard, to stop; Gk. straggo.

Result, rě.zŭlt', consequence, issue, decision, to arise from, to ensue; result'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), result'-ing. Resultant, rě.zŭl'.tant, the force which arises from the composition of two or more forces; result'-less, inefficacious.

Latin resultans gen. resultantis, resultāre (re sŭlio, to rebound).

Resume, rě.zŭme', to begin again, to proceed after interruption; resumed' (2 syl.); resum-ing (Rule xix.), rě.zŭ'.mŭng; resŭm'-able, that may be taken back or begun again.

Resumption, rě.zŭmp'.shŭn; resumptive, rě.zŭmp'.tŭv.

Resumé, ră'.zŭ.mă, a summary, a recapitulation.

Latin resumptio, resŭmĕre supline resumptum (sumo, to take up).

Re-summon, rě'.sŭm''.mŭn (not re-summons), to summon again; re-summoned, rě'.sŭm''.mŭnd; rě-sum'mon-ing.

Latin submŭnens, sub-mŭnĕo, to warn; French sommer, with re.

Re'-supply'', to supply again; resupplies, rě'.sŭp'.plize'' (R. xi); resupplied, rě'.sŭp'.plide''; re'-supply''-ing.

Latin re sup[sub]pleo, to fill up again; French supplĕer.

Resurrection, rĕz'zer.rĕk''shŭn, a rising from the dead; resurrection-ist, one who steals dead bodies from their graves; resurgent, rĕ.sur'.djent, swelling up again.

Lat. resurrectio, resurgens gen. resurgentis, v. resurgo sup. resurrectum.

Re'-survey'', to survey again; resurveys, rĕ'.sur.vūze'' (R. xiii.); resurveyed, rĕ'.sur.vūde''; re'-survey'-ing.

French re-surveiller; Latin sur[super]vidĕre, to look over.

Re-suscitate, rĕ'.sŭs''.sĭ.tate, to revive, to recover; resus'citāt-ed (R. xxxvi.), resus'citāt-ing (R. xix.), resus'citāt-or.

Resuscitation, rĕ.sŭs'.sĭ.tay''.shŭn; resus'citable; resus-citative, rĕ.sŭs'.sĭ.tā.tĭv, revivifying, reproductive.

Latin resuscitatio, resuscitare (re sursum cito, to stir up again).

Retail, (noun) rĕ'tail, (verb) rĕ.tail'. Wholesale, hole'sail.

Re'tail, sale of goods in small quantities for domestic uses.

Wholesale, sale of goods in large quantities to retail dealers.

Retail', to sell by retail; retailed' (2. syl.), retail'-ing, retail'-er; retail'-ment, the act of retailing.

Low Lat. retallia or retallium; Fr. tailler, to cut into parcels; Ital. ritaglio. "Wholesale," the sale of whole packages at once.

Retain', to keep in possession; retained' (2 syl.), retain'-ing.

Retain'-er, an attendant; retain'-able (Rule xxiii.)

Retention, re.tĕn'.shŭn; retentive, re.tĕn'.tĭv, &c.

Latin retĭneofeneo sup. retentum; French retenir, rĕtension (11).

Rĕ'-take'' (2 syl.), to take again; (past) retook', (past part.) retaken, rĕ.tā'.k'n; retak-ing, rĕ.tā'.king; retak-er.

Old English tac[an], past toc, past part. tacen, with re- prefixed.

Retaliate (with one l), rĕ.tāl'.ĭ.ate, to requite, to give tit for tat; retal'iāt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), retal'iāt-ing (Rule xix.)

Retaliation, re.tāl'.ĭ.ā''.shŭn; retaliative, re.tāl'.ĭ.ā.tĭv; retaliatory, re.tāl'.ĭ.a.t'ry, returning tit for tat.

Latin retālĭāre (tālĭo, like for like). Lex tālĭōnis, tit for tat.

Retard', to hinder; retard'-ed, retard'-ing, retard'-er.

Retardation, rĕ'.tar.day''.shŭn; retard'ment.

Lat. retardatio, retardāre (tardus, slow); Fr. retarder, retardement.

Retch, reech. Reach, reech. Wretch, retch.

Retch, to make an effort to vomit; retched, reecht; retch-ing, reech'ing.

"Retch," Old Eng. hræc[an], past hræcde, p. part. hræced, hræctung.

"Reach" (to extend), Old Eng. hræc[an], past hræced, p. part. hræced.

"Wretch" means an outlaw. Old Eng. wrecca, v. wreccan, to exile.

Re'-tell'' (not retel), to tell again; (past and past part.) re'-töld'', re-tell-ing. (O. E. tell[an], past tealde, p. p. ge-teald.)

- Re-tention, rě.těn'.shŭn, a keeping back, restraint, a withholding.
Retentive, re.těn'.tĭv, not forgetful, retaining; retentive-ly, retentive-ness. Retain', retained' (2 syl.), retain'-ing.
 Latin rēntentio, v. rēntēre [tēneō], to hold back, to retain.
- Reticence, rět'.ĭ.sense, concealment by silence, taciturnity; reticency; reticent, rět'.ĭ.sent, taciturn.
 Lat. rēticentia, rēticēre (tācēō, to keep silence), to keep back by silence.
- Reticule (not riticule), rět'.ĭ.kŭle. Ridicule, rĭd'.ĭ.kŭle.
Reticule, a lady's work-bag, (in a telescope) a network to divide the field of view into a series of minute squares; reticular, re.tĭk'.kŭ.lar; reticulate, re.tĭk'.kŭ.late, to make meshes; retic'ulāt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), retic'ulāt-ing.
Reticulation, re.tĭk'.kŭ.lay''.shun. Reticulum, plu. reticula, re.tĭk'.kŭ.lah, the second stomach of ruminants.
- Ridicule, mockery. (Latin rĭdicŭlum, rĭdicŭlus, a buffoon.)
 Latin rēticŭlum plu. rēticŭla, rēticŭlātus, rēticŭlāre (rēte, a net).
- Retina, rět'.ĭ.nah, one of the coats of the eye; retinitis, -nĭ''.tis, inflammation of the retina (-itis, denotes inflammation).
 Latin rētna, the net-like tunicle of the eye (rēte, a net).
- Retinue, rět'.ĭ.nu, a train of retainers. (Fr. retinu, v. retinir.)
- Retire, rě.tĭre', to withdraw; retired' (2 syl.); retir-ing (R. xix.), re.tĭre'.ing. Retire'-ment. (Fr. retirer, to draw back.)
- Retort', a quid pro quo, a chemical vessel with a long neck, to return an incivility; retort'-ed (R. xxxvi.), retort'-ing.
 Lat. rētorqueo sup. rētorturn, to twist back again; Fr. retorquer.
- Re-touch, rě.tŭtch', to improve by new touches; re'-touched'', retouch-ing, rě.tŭtch''.ing. (Fr. retoucher, Lat. tango.)
- Re'-trāce'' (2 syl.), to trace again; retraced' (2 syl.), retrac-ing (R. xix.), rě.trā'.sing. (Fr. retracer; Lat. traho, to draw.)
- Re'-tract'', to withdraw; retract'-ed, retract'-ing, retract'-able (better retract'-ible), retractible-ness, retract'ibly.
Retraction, re'.trāk.tay''.shŭn. Retraction, re.trāk'.shŭn; retractive, rě.trāk'.tĭv; retractive-ly, retract'ile.
 Latin retractatio, retractare (freq. of re-trāho, to draw back).
- Re-translate, rě.trans.late'', to translate over again; rě'-trans-lāt'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), rě'-translāt'-ing (Rule xix.)
- Retranslation, rě.trans.lay''.shŭn, a new translation.
 Latin re-translatio, v. transfēro supine translātum, to transfer.
 To "translate" is to transfer from one language into another.
- Retreat, re.treēt', retirement, to retire, to fall back in war; retreat'-ed, retreat'-ing. (Fr. retraite, Lat. retrāho.)
- Retrench', to abridge; retrenched' (2 syl.), retrench'-ing.
Retrench'-ment. (Fr. retrancher [trancher], to cut back.)

Retribution, rět' trĭ.bŭ''shŭn, requital; retrib'ŭter.

Retributive, rě.trĭb'ŭ.tĭv, retaliative; retrib'utive-ly;
retributory, rě.trĭb'ŭ.tŏ.ry. (Latin retributio, re-tribuo.)

Retrieve, rě.treev', to recover a loss; retrieved, rě.treevd';
retriev-ing (R. xix.), rě.tree'.ving; retriev-er, rě.tree'.ver, a sporting dog, one who retrieves; retriev-able, -vŭ.b'l;
retrievable-ness, rě.tree'.vŭ.b'l.ness; retriev'ably.

A corruption of Fr. retrouver, to find again. We have the law-term trover (an action for recovery), and "treasure trove" (money found).
 Latin re-tribuo, to restore, to give back (troubădour and trouvère).

Re'-trim'', to trim again; re'-trimmed'' (2 syl.), re'-trimm''-ing.
 Old English trym[ian], past trymede, past part. trymed.

Retro- (Latin prefix), in the contrary direction, backwards.

Retro-cede, rět'tro.seed, to go back; ret'rocēd-ed (R. xxxvi.), ret'rocēd-ing (R. xix.) Retrocedent, rět'tro.see''.dent, applied to shifting diseases (like gout).

Retrocession, rět'tro.ēs''.shŭn, a moving backwards.

Latin retro-cēdō. Except exceed, proceed, and succeed, all words derived from "cedo" are spelt -cede. "Supersede" is not from
 "cedo" to go, but "sedeo" to sit.

Retro-grade, rět'.ro.grāde'', backward, to move backwards;
ret'rogrād''-ed (R. xxxvi.), ret'rogrād''-ing (R. xix.)

Retrogradation, rět'.ro.gra.day''.shŭn, retrocession.

Latin retro-grādior, retrogrādātio (gradus, a step, retro, back).

Retro-gression, rět'.ro.grēs''.shŭn, opposed to progression;
retrogressive, rět'.ro.grēs'.sĭv; ret'rogres'sive-ly.

Latin retro-grēdior, retrogressus. There are in Latin the two verbs.

Retro-spect, rět'.ro.spěkt, a review; retrospective, rět'.ro.-spěk''.tĭv; retrospective-ly, opposed to prospectively.

Retrospection, rět'.ro.spěk''.shŭn, re-examination.

Latin retro-spectio, v. spēcio supine spectrum, to look back.

Retro-vert, rět'.ro.vert'', to turn back; ret'ro-vert''-ed
 (R. xxxvi.), ret'ro-vert''-ing. Retroversion, -ver''.shŭn.

Latin retro-vertō supine versum, to turn back.

Return, re.turn', a coming or going back, a report, a profit, a requital, to go or come back, to give or send back; returned'' (2 syl.), return'-ing, return'-er, return'-able.

Returns, a species of tobacco, statistics, profits in trade, state of the poll in elections. Return-ticket.

French retourner; Low Latin retornāre, retorna, retornum.

Re-unite, rě.u.nite'', to unite again; rě-unit''-ed (R. xxxvi.), rě-unit''-ing (R. xix.) Reunion, rě-ŭ''.nĭ.ŭn.

Latin reunĭre, unio, union (unus, one): French réunion, réunir.

Re'-urge'' (2 syl.), to urge again; re'-urged'' (2 syl.), re'-urg''-ing.
 (Lat. re-urgeo; Gk. ergô, to force or drive by force.)

Re-vaccinate, rĕ-văk'.sĭ.nate, to vaccinate again; rĕ-vac'cināt-ed (R. xxxvi.); rĕ-vac'cināt-ing; rĕ-vaccination, rĕ-văk'.sĭ.nay''shŭn. (Lat. văcca, a cow. Coined by Dr. Jenner, 1796.)

The idea is this: To give a healthy child cow-pox by inoculating it in the arm with vaccine matter, to prevent its having small-pox.

Re-valuation, rĕ-văl'.u.ă''shŭn, a second valuation.

Fr. re évalution, v. évaluer; Latin vălor, price, valeo, to be worth.

Reveal, re.veel''. (Revell. Reveille. Revel. See below.)

Reveal, re.veel', to uncover, to make known what was before concealed; revealed, re.veeld'; reveal'-ing, reveal'-er.

Revelation, rĕv'.ĕ.lay''shŭn, a discovery, (in Theol.) the disclosures made in the Bible of God's plan of salvation.

Latin rĕvelătio, rĕvelăre, to reveal or unveil (vĕlum, a veil).

Re-veil, rĕ'-vail'', to veil again; re'-veiled'' (2 syl.), re'-veil'-ing.

Lat. rĕ-vĕlăre (which means to un-veil), to veil again. (See above.)

Reveille, ra.vay'.yă or ra.vail'.yă, the military call at daybreak.

French reveillé, v. reveller, to awaken. (See Reveal.)

Revel, rĕv'.ĕl, an orgie, to feast with unrestrained indulgence; revelled, rĕv'.ĕld; revell-ing, rev'.ĕl-ing; revell-er, -ĕl.er.

Revelry, plu. revelries (Rule xlv.), rĕv'.ĕl.rĭz, a festivity.

Revel-rout, rĕv'.ĕl.rŏwt, a tumultuous festivity of the mob.

Revels or reveals, rĕv'.ĕlz or rĕ.veelz, the vertical sides of the aperture between the plane of a wall and a window or door-frame. (See above, Reveal.)

Low Latin revella, a revel. French réveillon, a feast given in the middle ages at midnight, v. réveiller, to rouse from sleep.

Revenge, rĕ.venge', a malicious return of an injury, to return an injury maliciously; revenged' (2 syl.); reveng-ing (Rule xix.), rĕ.venge'.ing; reveng-er, rĕ.venge'.er.

Revenge'-ful (Rule viii.), revenge'ful-ly, revenge'ful-ness.

French venger, vengeance, revanche, revancher; Latin re-vĭndĭcăre.

Revenue, rĕv'.ĕ.nu (not rĕ.vĕn'.u), public income.

Rev'enue cutter, an armed vessel employed by the custom-house officers to prevent smuggling.

Rev'enue officer, an exciseman, an officer employed in the service of the custom-house. Rev'enue-board, -bord.

French revenu (Latin re-vĕnto, to come back, to return), a return.

Re-verberate, rĕ-ver'.bĕ.rate, to echo, to resound; rĕ-ver'berāt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), rĕ-ver'berāt-ing (Rule xix.)

Reverberation, rĕ-ver'.bĕ.ray''shŭn, replication.

Reverberatory, rĕ-ver'.bĕ.ră.t'ry (adj.), replicatory.

Latin rĕverbĕrătio, rĕverbĕrăre, to beat back.

Revere, rĕ.veer', to regard with reverence; revered, rĕ.veerd'; rever-ing, rĕ.veer'.ing; rever-ing-ly; rever-er, -veer'-er.

Reverence, rĕv'.ĕ.rense; rev'ered (3. syl.); reverenc-ing (Rule xix), rĕv'.ĕ.rĕn.sing; rev'erenc-er.

Reverend. Reverent. Reverence. Reference.

Reverend, rĕv'.ĕ.rend, worthy of reverence. The Reverend, rĕv'.ĕ.rend, a title applied to ministers of religion in the address of letters, printed notices, &c.

Reverence, rĕv'.ĕ.rence, religious awe and deference. Your reverence, the way Roman Catholic priests are addressed in Ireland.

Reverent, rĕv'.ĕ.rent, showing religious awe and deference to holy rites, services, and things.

Reference, rĕf'.ĕ.rence, allusion, a direction to something bearing on a subject in hand.

In the Church of England an ARCHBISHOP is styled Your Grace. A letter to an archbishop begins My Lord. The envelope is addressed To his Grace the Archbishop of...

A BISHOP is styled My Lord. A letter to a bishop begins My Lord, and the envelope is addressed To the Right Rev. the Lord Bishop of...

A DEAN is styled Mr. Dean. A letter to a dean begins Mr. Dean or Rev. Sir, and the envelope is addressed To the Very Reverend the Dean of...

An ARCHDEACON is styled Sir. A letter to an archdeacon begins Rev. Sir, and the envelope is addressed To the Venerable the Archdeacon [Smith].

A D.D. is styled Doctor or Doctor [Smith]. A letter to a D.D. begins Dear Doctor or Rev. Sir, and the address on the envelope is To the Rev. [John Smith], D.D.

The general clergy of all creeds and denominations are styled Mr. [Smith]. A letter to a clergyman begins Dear Sir or Rev. Sir; and the address on the envelope is To the Rev. [John Smith].

If a clergyman has a civil title above a BARONET, the civil title comes first: as To the Right Hon. and Right Rev. the Lord Bishop of...; To the Hon. and Right Rev. the Lord Bishop of...; To the Right Hon. and Rev. Lord [Alston]; To the Hon. and Rev. [John Smith], D.D.; To the Rev. Sir [John Smith], Bart.

A clergyman cannot be a knight, because a knight is only a personal title, and clergymen are never made knights.

Latin rĕvĕrendus, worthy of reverence, rĕvĕrentia, rĕvĕrens genitive rĕvĕrentis, v. rĕvĕrĕri; French rĕvĕrer, rĕvĕrence, rĕvĕrend.

Reverie, rĕv'.ĕ.rĕ, plu. reveries, rĕv'.ĕ.rĕz, a dreamy state of musing, a "brown study." (Fr. rĕverie, rĕve, a dream.)

Reverse, rĕ.verse', the contrary, a change for the worse, misfortune.

Reverse, Obverse. Reverse, the side of a coin which does not contain the head. Obverse, the side which contains the head: thus "Britannia" is the reverse side of our copper money, and the sovereign's head the obverse.

Reverse, to turn in the contrary direction, to invert, to annul; reversed, rĕ.vers't; revers'-ing (R. xix.), revers'-er.

Revers-al, rĕ.ver'.sāl; reverse'-ly, revers'-less.

Revers-ible, rĕ.ver'.sĭ.b'l; reversibly, rĕ.ver'.sĭ.bly.

Reversion, rĕ.ver'.shĭn; rever'sion-āry, rever'sion-er.

- Revert, rě.ver't, to refer back to, to return to the original owner or his heirs; revert'-ed (R. xxxvi.), revert'-ing; revertive, rě.ver'tiv; revertive-ly.
 Latin reversio, v. re-vertēre supine reversum (re-vertō, to turn back).
- Re-vibrate, rě-vi'brate, to vibrate in return; re-vi'brāt-ed, re-vibrāt-ing (R. xix.) Revibration, rě-vi-bray''shŭn.
 Latin re-vibratio, vibrāre; Greek ibuo; French vibrer, vibration.
- Revictual, rě.vit'l (not rě-vic'.tu.āl), to refurnish with provisions.
 Fr. ravitailler, victuaille; Lat. victus food, v. vivo sup. victum to live.
- Review, rě.vew', an inspection of soldiers or sailors, a critique, to hold a review, to make a critique; reviewed, rě.vewd'; review'-ing, review'-er; reviewal, rě.vew'.āl.
 French revue, Latin re-video, to see or inspect again.
- Rě-vile (2 syl.), to calumniate, to upbraid; reviled' (2 syl.), revil'-ing, revi'ling-ly, revil'-er. (Latin re, vilis, vile.)
- Re-vindicate, rě-vin'.dī.kate, to vindicate again; rě-vin'dicāt-ed (R. xxxvi.), re-vin'dicāt-ing (R. xix.), re-vin'dicāt-or (R. xxxvii.) Revindication, rě-vin'.dī.kay''shŭn.
 Lat. re vindicatio, vindicāre (vindex gen. vindicis, a defender).
- Revise, rě.vīz'e, to look over with care and correct what is wrong, a second proof-sheet being the first proof with the corrections inserted; revised, rě.vīz'ed'; revis-ing (R. xix.), revi'z-ing; revis'er, re.vi'zer; revis-al, rě.vi'zāl.
Revision, rě.vīz'h.ăn, critical examination; revis'ion-āl.
 Fr. révision, réviser; Lat. re video supine visum, to look over again.
- Re-visit, rě.vīz'it, to visit again; revisit-ed (Rule xxxvi.), rě.vīz'it-ed; revisit-ing, rě.vīz'it-ing; revisit'er, it'er.
Revisitation, -vīz'itay''shŭn. (Lat. rěviso, 3 sing. rěvisit.)
- Revive, rě.vīve', to resuscitate, to renew; revived' (2 syl.), reviv'-ing (Rule xix.), revi'ving-ly.
- Revivre, re.vi'ver, one who revives, a dye for reviving cloth.
- Revivor (in Law), the renewal of a suit discontinued in consequence of the death of one of the parties concerned.
- Revival, re.vi.vāl, a religious "awakening"; revi'val-ist.
- Revivify, rě-viv'ī.fy, to reanimate; revivifies, rě-viv'ī.fize; revivified, rě-viv'ī.fide; reviv'ify-ing, reviv'ifi'er.
- Revivification, rě-viv'ī.fī.kay''shŭn, resuscitation.
 Latin revivo, re-vivifico (virus-ficio [facio], to make alive).
- Revocable, rěv'o.kā.b'l (not rě.vō'.kā.b'l), that may be revoked; rev'ocable-ness, rev'ocably; revocability, -vō'.kā.bīl''īty.
- Revocation, rěv'o.kay''shŭn, a repeal, a recantation.
- Revocatory, re.vōk'.ā.tōry; revocative, re.vōk'.ā.tiv.
- Revoke, re.vōké', to repeal, to annul, to renounce at cards; revoked' (2 syl.), revōk'-ing (Rule xix.), revōk'-er.
 Latin rēvocatio, rēvocāre supine rēvocatum (re voco, to call back).

Revolt, rev'ölü', a rebellion, an insurrection, to rebel, &c.; revölt'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), revölt'-ing, revölt'ing-ly; revölt'-er, one who revolts or deserts to the enemy.

Fr. revolle, v. revolter; Lat. revolve sup. revolütum, to roll round.

Revolution, rev'.o.lu''.shün, the motion of a body round its axis, change of the constitution of a nation, that change (in Eng. Hist.) which placed William III. on the throne in 1688; revolution-ist, one who aids a revolution, a partisan of the revolution; revolutionary, rev'.o.lu''.shün.ä.ry.

Revolutionise (R. xxxi.), rev'.o.lu''.shün.ize; revolu'tionised (5 syl.), revolu'tionis-ing (R. xix.), revolu'tionis-er.

Revolve, rev'ölve', to roll round; revolved' (2 syl.), revölv'-ing (R. xix.), revöl'ving-ly. Revölv'-er, a pistol with several chambers to a revolving barrel.

Revolvency, rev'öl'.vën.sy, state or principle of revolving.

French révolution, révolutionnaire; Latin revölütio, revolveo.

Revulsion, rev'ül'.shün, repugnance, diversion of disease from one part of the body to some other, violent severance; revulsive, rev'ül'.siv; revül'sively.

Fr. révulsion (Med.), révulsif (Med.); Lat. revello supine revulsum.

Reward, rē.wörd ("word" to rhyme with lörd), a gift for merit, to recompense; reward-ed, rē.wörd'-ed; reward'-ing, reward'-er, reward'-able, reward'able-ness, reward-less.

WARD has four distinct pronunciations:

- (1) ward (as in hard): sward, green-sward.
- (2) word (as in lord): ward, award, reward, woodward.
- (3) wüd: awkward, backward, downward, forward, godward, heavenward, homeward, inward, onward, outward, rere-ward, thitherward, upward, wayward.
- (4) üd: coward [cöw'-ud], froward [frow'-ud], leeward [lu'-ud], steward [stü'-ud], toward [töw-ud and töw-ud], windward.

"Reward," Norman regarde, fees, allowances, perquisites, rewards, v. regarder, to allow. Our award, to adjudge.

Re-write, rē.rite', to write again; (past) re-wrote, rē-röte'; (past part.) re-written, rē.ril'tn; re-writ-ing, rē.ril'ting.

Old English writ(an), past writ, past part. writen, with re.

Rex, fem. regina (Latin), rē.dji'.nah, king, fem. queen.

Reynard, rēn'närd, the fox. Renard, rēn'närd, the fox.

"Reynard" (in French renard) is the hero of the famous beast-epic of the 14th century. In this satire Reynard typifies the church, his uncle Isengrin (the wolf) the baronial element, and Nodel (the lion) the regal. The word means "cunning in counsel."

Rhadamantine, räd.ä.män.tine, strictly just, as severely just as Rhadāmantus (one of the three judges in Hades).

Rhapsody, plu. rhapsodies (Rule xlv.), răp'.sö.diz, unconnected but high-flown composition. It was originally applied to the Homeric poems, each book of which was called a rhapsody. Rhapsodist, răp'.sö.dist, one who writes or speaks in high-flown but unconnected sentences. It was originally applied to the wandering bards who made recitations from "Homer"; rhapsodic, răp.săd'ăk; rhapsodical, răp.săd'ă.kăl; rhapsod'ical-ly. Rhapsodise, răp'.să.dize, to write or utter rhapsodies; rhapsodised (3 syl.), rhapsodis-ing (Rule xix.)

Greek rhapsōdia (rhapto ōdē, odes stitched together).

Rhenish, rēn'nîsh; adj. of Rhine, wine from the Rhine districts.

Rhetoric, rēt'.ō.rîk, the science of oratory; rhetorical, rē.tōr'ri.kăl (adj.); rhetor'ical-ly, figuratively.

Rhetorician, rēt'tō.rîsh''ăn, one skilled in rhetoric.

Greek [he]rhetōrikē[technē], rhētōrikōs (rhētōr, an orator).

(All sciences with this termination are plural, except the five arithmetic, logic, magic, music, and rhetoric from the French.)

Rheum, rūme. Room, place, a chamber. Rōme, the city.

Rheum, catarrh, tears, a thin watery humour; rheum'-y.

"Rheum," Old Eng. reoma; Gk. rheuma (rheo, to flow); Fr. rhume.

"Room," Old Eng. rūm. "Rome," Gk. rhōmé, strength or Rome.

Rheumatism, rū'mū.tîzm, a disease; rheumatic, rū.măt'ăk; rheumatical, rū.măt'.i.kal; rheumatical-ly.

"Rheumatismus Græci fluxiones vocant," Pliny xii. 21.

Rhinoceros, plu. rhinoceroses, ri.nōs'.ē.rūs [ēz], a pachyderm with a horn on its nose; rhinocerial, ri'.no.sē'.rî.ăl.

Lat. rhinoceros; Gk. rhinokēros (rhinos kēras, [having a] nose horn).

Rhiz-, rhizo- before consonants (Greek prefix), root (rhiza).

Rhiz'-anth, an intermediate class of plants between the flowering and non-flowering. (Gk. rhiza, anthos flower.)

Rhizo-carpous, riz'.o-kar''pūs, deciduous plants the roots of which last many years. (Greek rhiza, karpos growth.)

Rhiz'-odont, a reptile (like the crocodile) whose teeth are planted in sockets; rhiz'-odus, a genus of sauroids.

Greek rhiza odons gen. odontos, teeth rooted [in sockets].

Rhizo-phagous, ri.zōf'.ă.gūs, feeding on roots.

Greek rhizo-[rhiza] phago, I eat roots.

Rhizo-phorous, ri.zōf'.ō.rūs, root-bearing; rhizophora, ri.zōf'.ō.rah, plants (like the mangrove) noted for their adventitious roots. (Greek rhiza phero, I bear roots.)

Rhizo-pod, riz'.ō.pōd, one of the rhizopoda.

Rhizopoda, riz.ōp'.ō.dah, a class of animals whose "feet" or organs of locomotion are "roots" or filaments.

Greek rhizo-[rhiza] pous, gen. pōdēs, roots [for] feet.

Rhod-, rhodo- before consonants (Gk. prefix), a rose (rhōdōn).

Rhod-anthe, rō.dănth'.ey, a flowering annual.

Greek rhōd-[rhōdōn] anthōs, a rose[like] flower.

Rhodium, rō'.dī.ŭm, a metal discovered in 1803 by Wollaston.

Greek rhōdōn, a rose, the colour of some of its salts.

Rhodo-crinus, ro.dōk'.rī.nūs, a genus of en'crinites (3 syl.)

Greek rhōdo-[rhōdōn]krinon, the rose lily or encrinite.

Rhodo-dendron (not rhodo-dendrum), ro'.dō.dēn''.drōn, plu. rhododendrons, ro'.dō.dēn''.drōnz, a plant.

Greek rhōdo-[rhōdōn]dendrōn, the rose tree.

"Rhododendros ne nomen quidem apud nos invenit Latinum, rhododaphnen vocant, aut nerium," Pliny xxiv. 53.

Rhombus, rōm'.būs, a square pushed out of angle, hence the sides are equal and parallel, but the angles are not right angles; rhombic, rōm'.bīk. Rhomboid, rōm.boid', an oblong pushed out of angle, hence its opposite sides are equal and parallel but its contiguous sides are unequal; and its angles are not right angles; rhomboid'-āl.

Greek rhombos, rhombos-eidos, like a rhombos.

Rhubarb, ru'.barb, a plant called "spring-fruit," the root is used as a stomachic. (French rhubarbe.)

"Mot formé de Rha barbarum, [Rha] nom du Volga chez les anciens, et la rhubarbe est originaire des bords de ce fleuve," Bouillet.

Rhyme. Rime. Rim. Ream. Rhythm.

Rhyme, rīme, similarity of sound in words, to write verses in which the words at stated distances clink alike.

Rime (1 syl.), hoar-frost (hrīm or rīm-forst).

Rīm, the edge or margin (rīma).

Ream, reem, a bundle of paper (reama, a bond or tie).

Rhythm, rīth'ūm, an harmonious flow of accents.

Greek rhuthmos (rhao or rheo, to flow), a measured movement.

The "h" in rhyme is a blunder (Ang.-Sax. rīm, Ital. rīma, Fr. rīme).

If either of the first two words given above has an "h" it ought to be rhīme, hoar-frost (Ang.-Sax. hrīm). Some effort has been recently made to restore "rhyme" to its proper spelling, the present word can only be the Gk. rhuma (the drawing [of a bow]), but without doubt "rhyme" and "rhythm" have got confounded.

Rhythm, rīth'ūm, an harmonious flow of accents in prose or verse; rhythmic, rīth'.mīk; rhythmical, rīth'.mī.kāl; rhyth'mical-ly. (Gk. rhuthmos, measured motion. v.s.)

Rīb, a bone, a ridge, &c., to furnish with ribs, to form ridges in cloth; ribbed (1 syl.), rīb-b'ing, R. i. (O. E. rīb or rīb-b.)

Ribald, rīb'.ald (not rīb'.ald), scurrilous, obscene; ribaldry, rīb'.āl.drī; ribaldrous, rīb'.āl.drūs. (French ribaud.)

Rīb'-band. Ribbon, rīb'.ān (see below).

Rīb'.band, a narrow slip of wood nailed to a ship's ribs.

Ribbon, rīb'.ān, a narrow fabric [of silk] used for trimmings; ribboned, rīb'.būnd, adorned with ribbons. (Fr. ruban.)

Ribbonism, rīb'.ān.izm, the tenets of a secret society in Ireland (formed in 1808). Ribbon-man, plu. -men, one of the members of the ribbon-society.

- Blue ribbon, the order of the Garter. So called because the badge of the order is suspended to a sky-blue ribbon.
- Red ribbon, the order of the Bath, so called because the badge of the order is suspended to a red ribbon.
- THE RED RIBBON (in France) a chevalier of the legion of honour.
- A ROSETTE indicates a higher grade than a chevalier.
- THE YELLOW RIBBON for the médaille militaire, instituted by Nap. III., as a minor decoration of the red ribbon.
- RIBBONISM: The two main objects are: (1) to secure "tenant-right," that is, to prevent any landlord from turning off a tenant: and (2) to deter any one from taking a farm from which a tenant has been ejected. The badge is a piece of ribbon in the button-hole.
- Ribston pippin (not ripstone), rib'stōn pīp'.pīn, an apple.
So called from Ribston Hall, in Yorkshire.
- ric or -rice (native suffix), power, dominion. (O. E. ric-, rice-.)
- Rice (1 syl.) Rise, increase of price, ascent, to ascend. (O. E. risan.)
- Rice, a grain. Rice-paper, made from the pith of Tung-tsau, and not from rice. (Fr. riz; Germ. reiss, corrup. of oryza.)
- Rich, wealthy, costly, abundant; (comp.) rich'-er, (super.) rich'-est, rich'-ly, rich'-ness. The rich, the wealthy collectively considered. Riches, rich'ēz, wealth (always used as a plural noun, but probably a corruption of the Fr. richesse).
- Old English rice or riche, riclice richly. "Riches" takes a plural construction only: as "Riches make to themselves wings..."
- Rick, a heap of corn or hay piled in the open air, to pile into a rick; ricked (1 syl.), rick'-ing. (O. E. hreac, hric, or hrig.)
- Rickets, rik'ēts, a diseased state of the bones in young children; rickety, rik'ēt.y, affected with rickets, unsteady.
- Rickety stock, stock for which the broker is responsible and the buyer cannot pay for.
- Fr. rachitique, rachitisme; Gk. rachitis (rakie, O. E. hric, the back).
- Ricochet. Rocō'co [Jewellery], flashy [jewellery].
- Ricochet, rik'ō.shay' (Fr.), the rebound of a stone in water termed ducks and drakes, the rebound of shot so as to leap a wall, the repetition of a word or phrase in a song, to fire so as to produce a rebound; ricochett'-ed, rik'ō.shāde; ricochett-ing, rik'ō.shay.ing (generally Anglicised into rik'ō.shēt.ted, rik'ō.shēt.ting).
- Rid, freed, disencumbered, to clear, to free. (See Ride.)
- Rid, (past and past part.) rid; ridd'-ing (R. i.); ridd'-ance, deliverance. To get rid of, to free oneself from.
- Ride [a horse, &c.], (past) rode, (past part.) ridden.
Old Eng. hredd[an], past hredde, hredding, or riddan, p. part. ridde.
- Riddle, rid'.dl, a sieve, a puzzle, to sift; riddled, rid'.dlid; riddling, rid'.ling; riddler, rid'.ler.
- "Riddle" (a sieve), Old English rādels, hrādels or hriddel; verb hrid[ian], past hridode, past part. hridrod, to winnow.
- "Riddle" (a puzzle), Old English rādels, from rēdan, to interpret.

Ride, (past) rode, (past part.) ridden. Rid, rid, rid (q.v.)

Ride (1 syl.), to go on horseback, to be conveyed in a carriage; rid-er, ri'der. Ri'ders, the interior ribs of a ship; rider-less. Riding-habit, a garment worn by ladies on horseback. Riding school, a place where riding is taught. To ride rough-shod over [one], ruff-shod, to act dogmatically, to be overbearing, to disregard one's feelings.

TO TAKE A RIDE OR TO TAKE A DRIVE [in a carriage]? It is usual to say Riding on horseback, Driving in a carriage, but the distinction is not strictly observed, and "to take a drive" or "to have a drive" is certainly equivocal. "Then shall there enter.... princesriding in chariots and on horses" (Jer. xvii. 25). Again, "Jehu rode in a chariot and went to Jezreel" (2 Kings ix. 10).

Old Eng. rid[an], past rdd, past part. riden; rida or ridere, a rider.

Ridge, the elevated slip of land between furrows, the highest edge of a roof, a line of hills, rocks, or mountains; to form a ridge; ridged (1 syl.), ridg'-ing (R. xix.), ridg'-y.

Ridge-tiles, curved tiles to cover a roof-ridge.

Old English hrieg, hric, hrycg or hrycc, hrycg-bân, the back-bone.

Ridicule, derision, mockery. Reticule, a lady's work-bag.

Ridicule, rid'ă.kûle, to deride; rid'iculed (3 syl.); rid'icûling (Rule xix.); rid'icûl-er, one who derides.

Ridiculous, ri.dik'kû.lûs, laughably absurd; ridic'ulous-ly, ridic'ulous-ness. (Lat. ridicûlus, rideo with dim.)

"Reticule," Latin reticûlum, a little net (re'te, a net).

Riding, ri'.ding, one of the three divisions of Yorkshire.

Called a trithing in Lincolnshire; ding or thing, a legislative assembly, hence stor-thing, the great legislative assembly; lag-thing, a law assembly; a tri-thing is a jurisdiction over a third part, and ri-ding is a corruption of [t]ri-ding or trithing. (See Ride.)

Ridotto, plu. ridottos (Rule xlii.), a soirée of music and dancing held by Italians chiefly on the eve of a fast-day.

Rife (1 syl.), replete, full (followed by with), rife'-ness, -ly.

Old English ryf, prevalent; German reif, mature, ripe.

Riff'râff, the offscouring of society, the rabble.

Old English riesa or redsa, a plunderer, a ragged vagrant.

Rifle, ri'f'l, a gun the barrel of which is grooved with spiral channels, to ransack, to plunder; rifled, ri'f'ld; rifling, ri'fling; rifler, ri'fler. Rifle-man, plu. rifle-men.

Rifle-pits, short trenches forming cover for two riflemen.

"Rife" (a gun), Dan. rifle, a groove; Germ. riffeln, to cut a groove.

"Rifle" (to pillage), French rifler; German raffen, to snatch up.

Rift, a fissure; rift'-ed, split. Reft, bereft. (See Reave.)

Rive, 1 syl., (past) rived, (past part.) riven, riv'n, split.

Riv-er, ri'ver, one who rives. Riv'-er, a stream.

"Rift," Old Eng. ryft, a fissure. "River" (a stream), Lat. rîvus.

Rig, a prank, a trick, the general appearance of a ship, dress.

To rig out, to furnish with clothes, to fit up a ship; rigged (1 syl.), rigg'-ing (part. and noun), rigg'-er (Rule i.)

To rig a ship, to fit the shrouds, stays, and braces to their respective yards and masts.

To run a rig, to do something audacious and absurd.

To rig the market, to buy up extensively so as to sell out at a profit. To run a rig upon, to play a practical joke on.

"Rig" (dress), O. E. wrig[an], to cover, past wrdh, past part. wrigen.

"Rig" (frolicsome adventure), "tricks of a wanton" (Florio).

Right, Rite, Write, Wright (all rite).

Right has no degrees, but there are many ways of expressing approximation: as nearly right, very nearly right, exactly right; correct, not the left, not crooked, not wrong.

A right angle, an angle of 90 deg.

The right side [of cloth], the show side, the side to be shown.

To right, to adjust, to restore to one's rights; right'-ed (R. xxxvi.), right'-ing, right'-ful (R. viii.), right'-ful-ly, right'-ful-ness, right'-ly, -ness. Right away, entirely away.

Right and left, in all directions, on all sides.

Rights and lefts, said of boots and shoes made to fit the right and left foot, and not either foot indifferently.

Right ascen'sion. Right declina'tion.

Right honourable, address of noblemen below a marquis.

Given (1) to earls, viscounts, barons; (2) to the younger sons of dukes and marquises; (3) to the lord chancellor, the members of the privy council, master of the rolls, chief justices, lord mayors, and generals; (4) to the wives of earls and viscounts, and to the daughters of dukes, marquises, and earls. A marquis is Most honourable.

Right. Left. The right, those who favour the administration. The left, those who oppose the administration.

Extreme right, Extreme left, firm partisans or opponents.

In the French legislative assembly the party favourable to ministers sit on the right side of the hall, and vice versa.

Bill of rights, a summary of the privileges claimed by the people and obtained from Charles I. in 1628. Another made to the Prince of Orange by the two houses of parliament in 1689. By rights, properly.

Righteous, rite'tchūs, agreeing with what is right; righteous-ly, righteous-ness. Rightness, correctness.

FOR RIGHTEOUSNESS SAKE (not for righteousness' sake); so for conscience sake, for goodness sake, &c. The possessive is almost wholly limited to animals and nouns personified.

"Right," Old Eng. riht; v. riht[an], past rihte, past part. ge-rihted, rihtlic (adj.), rihtlice (adv.), rihtnes, rihtwisnes righteousness, rihthand, rihting or rihtung. (The g is interpolated.)

"Rite" (a symbolical ceremony), French rit or rite, Latin rītus.

"Write" (with a pen), Old Eng. writ[an], past wrot, past part. writen.

"Wright" (a workman), Old Eng. wryhta, for wyrhta or wyrhle.

Rigid, riḡ'īd, stiff, inflexible; rig'id-ly, rig'id-ness.

Rigidity, ri.ḡīd'ī.ty, inflexibility. (Latin rigīdus.)

Riglets, riḡ'.lēts, slips of wood used by printers in making up a "form" to tighten it. (For reglet, Fr. réglet, Lat. regūla.)

Rigmarole, riḡ'.mā.rōle, a confused statement garnished with improbabilities, nonsensical. (Corruption of ragmanroll.)

"Ragmanroll" was a game resembling Twelfthnight characters. The stanzas of the characters were written on a scroll or roll.

"This rolle which withouten any drede

Kynge Ragman me bad me sowe in brede

And cristenyd yt the merour of your chaunce" (Ragmane).

Rigor, ri'.gor. Rigour, riḡ'r. Rigger, riḡ'.g'r (in Mech.), a drum.

Rigor, a sudden chill indicative of fever; rigor morbis, the stiffening of the limbs at death. (Latin rigor.)

Rigour, harshness, severity; rigorous, riḡ'.ḡ.rūs; rigorous-ly, rigorous-ness. Rigorist, a Jansenist. (Latin rigor.)

Rill (R. v.), a small brook, to run in a rill; rilled (1 syl.), rill'-ing; rill'-et, a small rill. (Welsh rhil, a groove, a channel.)

Rime (1 syl.), hoar-frost. Rhyme, rime, clink of words.

Rim-y, ri'.my. Rimose, ri'.mōse, full of fissures; rimose-ly.

Rimosity, ri'.mōs'ī.ty, chinky, in a rimose state.

"Rime," O. E. hrīm. "Rhyme," O. E. rīm; Ital. rima; Fr. rime.

If either of these words should have an "h," it is rime, hoar-frost.

Both the "h" and "y" of rhyme are most objectionable. The distinction should be rhime, hoar-frost; rime, clink of words. Rhyme is a blundering confusion between rīm and rhythm.

Rind (not rīne), the outside coat of fruit, cheese, &c., bark of trees.

Rine (1 syl.), the river. (Old English hrinde or rind.)

Binderpest, riṇ'.der.pest, the cattle plague.

German rind, black cattle; rinder-pest, the black cattle pest.

Rīng, Wring (both rīng). Rink. (See Rink.)

Ring, a circle, an ornament for the finger, to put a ring into a pig's snout, the sound of a bell, to sound a bell.

Ring, (past) rang, (past part.) rung (a bell).

Ring, (past) ringed, (past part.) ringed, ringd (a pig); ring'-ing, ring'-er. Ring'-less; ring-bolt, an iron bolt with a ring at one end. Ring-dove, duv. Ring-fence, a fence encircling an estate with one enclosure.

Ring'-mail. Fairy-ring, phu. fairy-rings.

"Ring," Old Eng. hring or ring, v. hring[ian], past hringode, p. p.

hringod (to make to ring), ring[an] or hring[an] (to ring a bell).

"Wring" (to twist), Old Eng. wring[an], past wrang, p. p. wrungen.

- Ring-leader, -lee'.der, the leader of a riotous or rebellious mob.
- Ringlet, ring'.lēt, a long curl of hair; ring'let-ed, having ringlets.
- Rink, a floor prepared for skating with rollers, to skate with rollers; (past) rinked, rinkt (not rank); rink-ing.
 Old English ringc, hrinc, or hrineg, a ring, circus, or circle.
 In "ring" the past rang and past part. rung are errors, being taken by confusion from "wring," to twist, so that it would be absurd to repeat the error in the new verb "rink." (See Ring.)
- Ring-worm, wurm, a disease in the scalp. (O. E. rency wyrm.)
- Rinse, 1 syl. (not rense), to dip things into clean water, to wash the mouth; rinsed, rins't; rins-ing (R. xix.), rin'.sing; rins-er, rin'.ser. (Fr. rincer; Dan. rense, to clean.)
 The only word in -inse. There are eight in "-ince": convince, evince, mince, prince, province, quince, since, and vince. There are nearly 250 in "-ence," and only ten in "-ense." (See Recompense.)
- Riot, ri'.ot. Ryot, ri'.ot, a Hindû tenant farmer.
 Riot, a brawl, to raise an uproar, to disturb the peace; ri'ot-ed (R. xxxvi.), ri'ot-ing, ri'ot-er; riotous, ri'.ōt.ūs; ri'otous-ly, ri'otous-ness. To run riot, to act without constraint, (Fr. riote, an altercation, v. rioter, rioteur.)
- Rip, a place torn, a careless child of high animal spirits, to rive in two, to cut through a seam, to split wood; ripped, ript; ripp'-ing (Rule i.), ripp'-er. A rip of a horse, a worthless horse. (O. E. ryp[an] or rypp[an], past rypt.)
- Ripe (1 syl.), mature, mellow; ripe'-ly, ripe'-ness.
 Ripen, ri'.p'n, to become ripe; ripened, ri'.p'nd; ripen-ing, ri'.p'n-ing. (Old English ripe, v. riþian.)
- Ripple, rip'.p'l, a little curling wave, to form ripples; rippled, rip'.p'ld; rippling, rip'.pling; rippling-ly.
- Ripple-marks, wavy marks in sand. (Old Eng. hrympelle.)
- Rise, (noun) rice, (verb) rize. Rice, a grain (oryza).
- Rise, (past) rose, (past part.) risen, rize, rōze, rīz'n, to get up, to mount, to advance in price or position, to shoot up; ris-ing (Rule xix.), ri'.zing; ris-er, ri'.zer.
 Old English ris[an], past rās, past part. risen.
- Risible (not -able), ri'z'.i.bl, exciting laughter, connected with laughter; risibly, ri'z'.i.bly. Risibility, ri'z'.i.bl'.i.ty.
 Latin risibilis, risibilitas, ridere supine risum, to laugh (risus).
- Risk, hazard, to hazard, to peril; risked (1 syl.), risk'-ing, risk'-er, risk'-y, risk'ful (R. viii.) To run a risk, to incur hazard or peril. To take all risks, to insure or accept at all hazards. (Fr. risque, risquer; Germ. risiko, v. riskeren.)
- Rissole, plu. rissoles (French), ris'.sōle, plu. ris.sōlz (not re'sole), minced meat wrapped in a thin paste and fried brown.

Rite. Right. Write. Wright (all rite).

Rite, a symbolical ceremony, a visible religious form.

Ritual, rit'tū.āl, a book of rites, pertaining to rites.

Ritualist, rit'tū.āl.ist, one who pays special attention to the rites and outward forms of public worship.

Ritualism, rit'tū.āl.izm, the way of performing public worship followed by ritualists; rit'ual-ly.

"Rite," Fr. rit or rite, rituel (!), ritualiste, ritualisme; Lat. ritus.

"Right" (not wrong), Old Eng. riht, v. riht[an] (the g interpolated).

"Write" (with a pen), O. Eng. writ[an], past writ, past part. writen.

"Wright" (a workman), Old Eng. wryhta, for wyrhta or wyrihte.

Rival, ri'.v'l, a competitor, to compete, to strive against another; rivalled, ri'.v'ld; ri'vall-ing (Rule iii., -AL).

Rivalry, plu. rivalries (Rule xlv.), ri'.vāl.riz; rival-ship.

Rivals meant originally "persons dwelling on opposite sides of a river" (Latin rivālis, rivus a river). Cælius says there was no more fruitful source of contention than a river-right.

Verbs in -al (not accented on the last syl.) are very irregular. They double the l when -ed, -er, or -ing is added, but not with other vowel suffixes: thus, "equal" makes equalled, equaller, equalling; but equalise, equalised, equalising, equalisation, equality.

"Signal" makes signalled, signaller, signalling; but signalise, signalising, signalisation.

"Petal" makes petalled, but petalism, petalous, petaloid, petalite, petaline.

¶ "Coral" always doubles the l: as corallaceous, coralline, coralliferous, corallite, coralliform, coralloid.

"Metal" makes metallic, metallurgy.

If the l is ever doubled, the rule should be uniformly observed that the duplication takes place only before -ed, -er, and -ing. It would, however, be far better to keep strictly to Rule iii.

Rive (1 syl.), past rived (1 syl.), past part. riven, riv'n, to split; riv'-ing (R. xix.); riv-er, ri'.ver, one who rives. (See below.)

Old English rofen, riven; Danish revne, a fissure, to crack, to rive.

River, riv'.er, a stream of water flowing into the ocean; rivulet, riv'vū.lēt, a small river (-let, dim.); river-bed, river-god; river-horse, the hippopotamus.

Latin rivus; French rivière (Greek rhōo, to flow). See above.

Rivet, riv'.ēt, a metal pin for fastening wares, to fasten with a rivet; riv'et-ed (R. xxxvi.), riv'et-ing. (Ital. ribat[itura].)

"Riveted" and "riveting" are often spelt rivelled, rivetting, but one t is better, according to Rule iii.

Our word "rivet" quite conceals the meaning, which is ribattere, to hammer back [the two ends of the pin inserted].

Rōach (1 syl.), a fresh water fish. (Old English hreoce.)

Road, Rode (both rode). Rowed, rōwd, rōwd. Rood. Rude.

Road, rōde, a public path for horses.

The [*] roads, a place where ships may "ride at anchor."

Roadster, a horse for travellers, a ship at anchor.

Road-surveyor, plu. road-surveyors; road-way.

- Road-side (not road's side). To take to the road, to become a highway robber. On the road, on the way.
 ("Road-side" (not road's side), the possessive suffix is almost wholly limited to animals and nouns personified.)
- "Road," Old Eng. rād, from the v. rīd[an], past rād, p. part. rīden.
 "Rode," past tense of the verb ride, Old Eng. rād (see above).
 "Rowed" (moved with oars), Old Eng. rōw[an]; p. reow, p. p. rōwen.
 "Rood" (a quarter of an acre), O. E. rod. "Rood" (cross), O. E. rōd.
 "Rude," Latin rūdis, also raudus, rōdus, or rūdus.
- Roam, rōme, to wander. Rome, a place. (See Rheum.)
 Roamed (1 syl.), roam'-ing, roam'-er. (German herum.)
Herum-gehen, to go [roaming] about; herum-laufen, to loaf about.
- Roan, rōne, imitation morocco made of sheep-skin instead of goat-skin, a dark bay or puce colour, a sorrel horse spotted with white. (Fr. rouan (roux); Gk. eruthron, red.)
- Roan-tree or Rowan tree, rō'an or rōw'an, the mountain ash.
 Old English rūn-tree, the magic tree, rūn-craft, magic-craft; the tree being (as Evelyn says) a "reputed preservative against fascinations and evil spirits, and therefore called Witchan."
- Roar, rōre, the bellow of a lion, the loud pealing noise of the sea, cannons, thunder, &c., to make a deep loud sound, to cry aloud in distress; roared (1 syl.), roar'-ing, roar'-er.
 Old English rār[ian], past rārōde, past part. rārōd, rārung.
- Roast, rōste, meat roasted, to cook meat before a fire; roast-ed (Rule xxxvi.), roast-ing, roast'-er. To rule the roast, to have the chief direction, to be paramount.
 Baked, cooked in an oven.
 Fried, cooked over a fire in a metal pan.
 Grilled, cooked over a fire on a gridiron.
 Toasted, [a thin slice] cooked before a fire on a fork.
 Boiled, steeped in water and kept boiling till it is cooked.
 Stewed, put in a stew-pan with very little liquor and cooked slowly.
 TO RULE THE ROAST, a cor. of rule the roost, in allusion to the rooster of a farm-yard or head cock which rules the position of the hens.
 "Roast," Welsh rhost, v. rhostiaw; rhostiwr, a roaster; rhostiedig.
 "Bake," Old English bac[an], past bōc, past part. bacen.
 "Fry," French frīre, friture; Latin frigēre; Greek phrugo, to broil.
 "Grill," French gril, a gridiron, v. griller.
 "Broil," to cook on a gridiron (properly over charcoal), Fr. brasiller.
 "Toast," Latin torreo supine tostum, to toast or scorch.
 "Boil," French bouillir (bouillon, the bubbling of boiling water).
 "Stew," Italian stufare (stufa, a stove). The idea is to cook in a hot bath or bagnio (stufare), stufarolo a keeper of a bath.
 Whence it will be seen that roast is Welsh; bake, English; toast, Latin; stew, Italian; and fry, grill, broil, French.
- Rōb, fruit jelly, to steal. Rōbe, a garment. (French robe.)
 Robbed, rōbd; robb'-ing (Rule i.); robb'-er, one who steals.
 Robbery, plu. robberies (Rule xlv.), rōb'.bē.riz, theft.
 Old English redf[ian], past redfode, past part. redfod, refung; redfa, redfere, répera or redpere, a robber. "Rob" (Pharm.), French.
- Rōbe, a long loose garment of state or dignity, to array, to put on a robe; rōbed (1 syl.); rob-ing, rō'bing (R. xix., but rōb, to steal, makes *rōbb*ed (1 syl.), rōbb'ing, see above); robe-maker, rōbing-room. Master of the robes.

Mistress of the robes, the lady highest in rank attending on the queen. (French robe, Old English reāf.)

Robin, rōb'īn, a bird, the robin red-breast. (Lat. rūbens, red.)

Robust, rō.būst', strong; rōbust'-ly, rōbust'-ness. (Lat. rōbustus.)

Rōc, a fabulous bird of Arabian story. Rock, a mass of stone.

"Roc," Arabic rukḥ. "Rock," French roc or roche.

Roche-alum, rōsh āl'.ūm (ought to be Rock alum).

Fr. alun de roche, originally prepared in Constantinople, Syria, &c.

Rochelle salt, rō.shēl' sōlt, tartrate of soda and potassa.

Discovered by M. Seignette, an apothecary of Rochelle.

Rochet, rōsh'ēt, a short surplice. Rock'et, a squib, a plant.

"Rochet," French rochet. "Rocket" (a plant), French roquette, corruption of Latin erūca. "Rocket" (a squib), Danish raket.

Rōck; a vast conglomerate of earth, a stratum, a distaff held in the hand, to shake a cradle, to vibrate; *rock*ed (1 syl.), rock'-ing, rock'-er, rock'-y, rock'i-ness (R. xi.), rock'-less.

Rockery, plu. rockeries, rōk'.ē.rīz, a mound of stones for rock plants. Rock-bound, hemmed in by rocks.

Rock crystal, a variety of quartz. Rock-leather.

Rock-oil, petrolēum or mineral oil. Rock pigeon.

Rock-rose. Rock-ruby, plu. rock rubies, rū'.bīz, red garnet.

Rock-salt, common salt as it is found in salt mines.

Rock-soap, a silicate of alu'mina. Rock-shells.

Rock work, -wurk, stones piled into a rockery.

Rocking-chair. Rocking-horse. Rocking-stone.

Fr. roc or roche. "Rock" (a distaff), Dan. rok; (to vibrate) Dan. rokke.

Rocket, rōk'.ēt, a squib, a plant. Rochet, rōsh'ēt, a surplice.

"Rocket" (a squib), Dan. raket; (a plant) Fr. roquette, corruption of Lat. erūca. "Rochet" (a short surplice), Fr. rochet.

Rococo, rō.kō'.ko, applied to jewelry and furniture full of flashy ornament of Moorish character. (French rococo.)

Rōd, a wand, a stick for flogging, a measure of land equal to five yards or fifteen feet. (Old English rod.)

Rodentia, rō.dēn'.shē.ah, a class of animals (like the rat, mouse, rabbit, hare, &c.) distinguished by gnawing habits; rodent, rō'.dent, one of the rodentia. (Lat. rōdo, to gnaw.)

Rodomontade, rōd'.o.mōn.tade' (not rō'.do.mōn.tade), empty bluster, vain vaunting, rant, to rant, to vaunt; rod'omontād'-ed rod'omontād'-ing, rod'omontād'-or, rod'omontād'-ist.

French Rodomont, a brave but braggart knight in Orlando Innamorato. Neither Rodomont nor Hector deserve the opprobrium attached to their names. In Ariosto's poem Rodomont is toned down.

Roe, rō, (male) hart, a small deer, the spawn of fish. Rōw.

Roe-buck, (fem.) roe, (offspring) fawn.

Hard-roe, the spawn of the female fish.

Soft-roe, the milt of the male fish.

"Roe" (deer), rd, rāh, or ræh. "Roebuck," rā-deór or rhd-deór.

"Roe" (of fish), German rogen, milch-rogen, milt or soft roe.

"Rōw" (with oars), Old Eng. rōw[an], past reow, past part. rōwen.

"Rōw" (a disturbance), corruption of roue, a disturbance created by the roués or profligates in the regency of the Duke of Orléans.

Rogation week, rō.gay'.shūn..., the 2nd week before Whitsunday.

Rogation-days, the three days preceding Ascension day.

There is no rogation service in the Ch. of Eng., but in the Rom. Cath. Ch. "the litany [or rogation] of the saints" is sung in procession.

Rogue, rōg (g hard), a rascal, a sly fellow; rogu-ish, rō'.gish waggish (-ish added to nouns means "like"); roguish-ly, rō'.gish.ly (g hard); roguish-ness, rō'.gish.ness.

Roguery, plu. rogueries, rō'.gě.ry (g hard), rō'.gě.riz.

Latin rogo, to beg. A rogue means "a sturdy beggar," "rogues and vagrants." The French-looking termination -gue is most objectionable and wholly arbitrary, but we have no simpler means at present of expressing a long vowel before c or g hard.

Roister, roys'ter, to act with the noise and turbulence of a reveller; rois'ter-ing, noisy, uproarious; rois'ter-er, a turbulent reveller. (Fr. rustard, unmannerly and rude, ruster.)

Rôle (1 syl.), a part in a drama, a speciality. Roll (see bêtow). French rôle, a dramatic character to be sustained, a part.

Roll, rôle, the act of rolling, a register, a catalogue, a chronicle, a small loaf of bread, a scroll, to move in an orbit, to run on a wheel, to draw a roller over. (See Role.)

Rolled (1 syl.); roll-ing, rôle'-ing; roll-er, rôle'-er.

Rollers, rôle'-ers, skates mounted on wheels, the heavy waves of a ground swell; roll-call, rolling-mill.

Rolling-pin, used for rolling out paste; rolling-press.

Rolling-stock, the locomotives, &c., of a railway company.

The rolls (London), a part of the city near Temple Bar which enjoys special liberties, so called from the court rolls or records deposited in the Rolls office.

Master of the rolls, judge of the Rolls court.

Keeper of the rolls, an officer appointed to take charge of the rolls and records deposited in the Rolls buildings.

Welsh rhod, rholen, v. rholio, rholiwr, a roller; Low Latin rōtulus, a roll; Latin rōtula, a little wheel, rōta, a wheel, v. rōto, to turn round.

Röllick, noisy and boisterous mirth; röllick-ing, röllick'-y.

Although the k has been dropped in a great many words, as in music, public, traffic, &c., it is still retained in all monosyllables (except orc and roc), in all agglutinated words, and in about a dozen others:

as attack, bailiwick, bannock, barrack, haddock, hassock, hollyhock, mattock, padlock, ransack, and rolluck.

In verbs, the k is retained before -cd and -ing: as "mimic," mimicked, mimicking: "physic," physicked, physicking, "traffic," trafficked, trafficker, trafficking, because c = s when followed by -e or -i.

Rolly-polly, rōlē'y pōlē'y, a pudding in which jam is rolled in a crust. (Latin pollis or pollen, flour [rolled up].)

Romaic. Romanic. Romance. Romantic. Romansh. Romany.

Romaic, rō.may'ik, the language of modern Greece.

Roman'ic (adj.), derived from the Roman alphabet.

Romance, rō.manse', applied to the languages which have grown out of the ancient Roman tongue, as the Spanish, Portuguese, Italian, and [Provençal] French.

Roman'tic, wildly imaginative and full of adventure.

Romansh, rō.mānsh', the romance language of the Grisons.

Romany, rō'mā.ny (or romany tshib), the Gipsy tongue.

"Romaic," Modern Greek romaios; French romainque.

Roman, plu. Romans, a citizen of Rome, pertaining to Rome or the papal church, the ordinary upright type used in printing. (Italics, the sloping type.)

Romanic, rō.mān'ik, derived from the Roman alphabet.

¶ Romanism, rō'mān.izm, the tenets of popery.

Romanist, rō'mān.ist, a Roman Catholic.

Romanise (Rule xxxi.), to convert to Romanism, to conform to the Roman Catholic forms and tenets; Romanised, rō'mān.īzd; Ro'manis-ing, Ro'manis-er. Roman Catholic, kāth'ō.lik. Roman Catholicism, kā.thōl'ī.sizm.

Roman candle, a fire-work in form of a large candle, and generally held in the hand. (Used in the street processions of Rome.)

§ Roman cement, a cement used for imitating stone (first employed by the Italians).

Roman law, those laws which are based on the principles of the old Roman laws: as the civil law, the canon law, and all but statute law. Roman School (in Painting.)

¶ Romance, rō.mance', applied to the languages which have grown out of the ancient Latin, as the Italian, Spanish, Portuguese, and French; a tale of wonder and extravagant adventure, to deal in extravagant stories, to let the imagination run wild; romanced' (2 syl.); romanc-ing, rō.mān'sing; romānc'-er.

In Spain the term signifies a ballad. Hence romancero, a collection of national ballads.

In England it was first applied to tales from the French, and subsequently to any tale of wild adventure.

¶ Romanesque, rō.mă.něsk, applied to the debased style of architecture and ornament adopted in the later Roman empire, (in Paint.) fable mixed up with romance.

¶ Romantic, rō.măn'.tĭk, wild, extravagant in fancy; roman-tic-ness, wildness, &c.; romantical-ly, rō.măn'.tĭ.kăl.ly; romanticism, rō.măn'.tĭ.sĭzm, applied to the unnatural productions of modern French novelists.

¶ Romish, rō'mish, Roman Catholic; Ro'mish-ly; Ro'mist (offensive terms): as the Romish Church, Romishly inclined.

Latin Rōmānus; Fr. romance, romancier, romantique, romanesque. The earliest mention of the word "Rome" is by Hellanicus, contemporary with Herodotus.

Romp, a boisterous playful girl, to play boisterously; romped, rōmp't; romp'-ing, romp'-ing-ly, romp'-er; romp'-ish, inclined to romping; romp'-ish-ly, romp'-ish-ness.

Corruption of Welsh rhamp, getting out of bounds, "rampant."

Rondo, plu. rondos, rōn'.dōze, a poem or piece of music in three strains, the second and third ending with the first part repeated; roundelay, roun'.dē.lay.

Rondo, Ital.; rondeau, Fr.; roundelay (Fr. rondolet), a little rondo.

A rondo, strictly speaking, should contain thirteen lines, divided into three strophes. The opening clause of the first line must be repeated in the eighth and last lines. In music the air is repeated.

Rood. Rūde (1 syl.) Rōd. Road. Rowed.

Rood, the fourth of an acre, a wooden cross with a figure representing the crucified Saviour.

Rood-screen or rood loft, the gallery or screen at the entrance of the chancel, on which a rood was erected before the Reformation.

"Rood" (of land), Old Eng. rod. "Rood-cross," rōd, rode-cross.

"Rude" (ill-mannered), Latin rūdis, raudus, rōdus or rūdus.

"Rod" (a stick, a measure of land), Old English rod.

"Road," rode (a way for horses), Old Eng. rād, from ridan, to ride.

"Rowed" (1 syl.), Old Eng. rōw[an], past reow, past part. rōwen.

Roof, plu. roofs (Rule xxxix.), the cover of a house; roof'-ing, the materials of a roof, putting on a roof; roof'-less.

Old Eng. rāf or hrāf; rōfleas, roofless; hrāf tigel, a roof tile.

CONICAL ROOF (a roof to a round building), rising like a cone.

CURB [or Mansard] ROOF, a roof with the gable broken into elbows.

GABLE ROOF, a roof like an inverted v (Λ).

KING POST ROOF, a roof supported inside with a central upright standing in the beam, with two struts like a V.

HIP ROOF, a roof with a slant on all four sides.

M ROOF, a double roof forming an inverted w (M).

QUEEN ROOF, a roof supported in the inside with a parallelogram resting on the beam, and further strengthened by two struts.

Ogee ROOF, a roof adapted to an ogee gable.

SHED ROOF, the roof of a lean-to with only one slope.

Rook. Crow. Daw. Raven.

SIZE: Daw, about 13 inches; crow, 18; rook, 20; raven, 25.

BILL: All conical and compressed at the point, but that of the crow and raven is stronger and more curved than that of the daw and rook. The bill of the rook is warty at the base, and the wartiness extends to the eyes and down the throat. Crows and ravens have bristles at the base of the bill and under the throat.

NESTS: Daws build in ruins, steeples, belfries, and church towers; crows, on the branches of high trees in solitary places; rooks, in high trees near the haunts of man and always in large colonies; ravens, on mountain tops, crags, and rocks.

Eggs: They all lay about five; those of a daw are bluish-white with dark brown spots; of a crow, palish green, sometimes blurred; those of a rook, pale green with greenish dark brown blotches; those of a raven, pale green, spotted.

HABITS: Daws are sociable and not averse to man, but they are not gregarious; crows are unsociable, solitary, and seek their food in lonely places; rooks are social, gregarious, fond of the neighbourhood of man, and seek their food in cultivated fields; ravens are sedentary, solitary, or go in pairs.

FOOD: Daws and rooks live chiefly on insects and seed; crows, on offal, mice, beetles, caterpillars, grubs, [and are fond of ripe cherries]; ravens feed on carrion, rabbits, young game, the young of all birds [and grain].

COLOUR: The daw, black with a dark gray neck; the carrion crow, jet black; the Royston crow, gray back, but black head, wings, and tail; the rook, glossy blue-black; raven, metallic black.

Rook, the castle at "chess," to cheat; rooked, rook'-ing.

Rookery, plu. rookeries, rook'.ĕr.iz, a colony of rooks, a mass of mean buildings inhabited by persons of low character, a place where thieves congregate.

"Rook" (the bird), Old Eng. hroc, hrooc, or róc; (at chess) Ital. rocco.

Room. Rheum, rūme. Rome. Rūm. Rhomb, rōmb.

Room, an apartment, place, space, scope; room'-ful (R. viii.), room'-y, room'i-ness (R. xi.), room'i-ly.

"Room," Old English rūm, rūmlíc, roomy; rūmnes, roominess.

"Rheum" (tears, the overflow of secretions), O. E. reoma; Gk. rheuma.

"Rome" (chief city of Italy), Greek rhómē, strength.

"Rum," Fr. rum or rhum; that from French colonies is called tafia.

"Rhomb" (a rhombus or square out of angle), Greek rhōmbōs.

Roost, a perch, to sit on a perch, to go to perch. Roast, to cook.

Roost'-ed (R. xxxvi.), roost'-ing; roost'-er, the head cock of a roost; (in America), a cock generally.

To rule the roost, to be the rooster of the harem, or head cock who rules the position of all the fowls on the roost.

At roost, on the perches. Gone to roost, gone to their perches.

"Roost," Old English hrōst. "Roast," Welsh rhost, v. rhostiaw.

Root. Route, root. Rout, rōwt (to rhyme with out).

Root, that part of a plant which is in the earth, cause, the crude form of a word, the value of an unknown quantity in algebra, to send out roots, to fix in the earth by roots, to become established (generally followed by itself or used in the passive voice); root'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), root'-ed-ly, root'ed-ness, root'-ing, root'y, root'i-ness, root'-less, root'-let (-let, dim.); root-leaf, plu. root-leaves, -leef, plu. leeves; root-stock. To take root. To tear up by the roots.

"Root," Danish rod, fæste rod, to take root; Latin rad[ic].

"Route," root (a journey, the way taken by a traveller), Fr. route.

"Rout," rōwt (to rhyme with out), an assembly, French rout.

"Rout," rōwt (a discomfiture, to put to flight), French dérouté.

Rōpe (1 syl.), a cord of several strands. Roup, a sale by auction.

Roping, rō'ping, applied to a glutinous mass which draws out into long "threads"; rop-y, rō'py, stringy; rōpi-ness, applied to liquors; rop-ish, rō'pish.

Ropery, plu. roperies (Rule xlv.), rō'pē.riz, place where ropes are made; rop-er, rō'per, a rope-maker.

Rope-dancer; rope-ladder; rope-ma'ker, rope-ma'king.

Rope-walk, wauk, a long shed where ropes are spun.

A rope of sand, a bond without union. (Old Eng. rāp.)

Roquelaure, rōk'.ē.lor, a short military cloak which buttoned.

Named after the Duc de Roquelaure, who set it in fashion.

Rosary, plu. rosaries (Rule xlv.), rō'zā.riz, a string of beads for the counting of paternosters and ave Marias.

Rosarium, rōzair'ri.um, a work on roses, a rose garden.

Lat. rosārius, rosārium; Med. Lat. rosariolum, a string of beads; Ital. rosario. Said to be so named from a chaplet of beads perfumed with roses given by the Virgin to St. Dominic. It must have five divisions or a trinity of five, and each division contains ten small beads for ave Marias, and one large one for a paternoster.

Rose. Rōws. Roes. Rouse. Rōws.

Rose, rōze, a flower, a plant, a colour; past tense of rise; ros-y, rō'zy; ro'si-ness. Rosaceous, rō.zay'.shūs.

Rosaceæ, rō.zay'.sē.ē, applied to rose-like corollas; rosaic [acid], rō.zay'.ik, a red acid deposited in certain inflammatory fevers and in gout diseases.

Roseate, rō.zē.et (not rōzhe.at, Worcester), rose coloured.

Rose-coloured, kūll'rd; rose hue; rose-bush ("bush" to rhyme with push, not with rush). Rose diamond, a diamond cut into twenty-four triangular facets. Rose-drop; rose-gall, gawl; rose-mallow, the hollyhock; rose-pink; rose-rash, a skin eruption, also called St. Anthony's fire; rose-water, waw'.ter; rose-window, a [church] circular window scalloped, also called a marygold window and a St. Catherine's wheel. Rose-wood.

Rosy-bosomed, rosy-fingered, rosy-hued, rosy-tinted, &c.

Under the rose (or Latin sub rosa), in private, in secrecy, not to be repeated. War of the Roses, the long York and Lancaster feud (1455-1486).

"Rose," Old Eng. rose; Latin rosa, rosāceus; French rose, rosacé.

"Rows," rōws (orderly series or lines), Old Eng. rawa or ræwa.
 "Row" (to propel a boat), O. E. rōw[an], past rōwde, past p. rōwed.
 "Roes," Old Eng. rd or rdh. "Rouse," rouze, Old Eng. hrcōs[an], to shake up. "Rōws" (disturbances, janglings), Fr. roué.

Rosemary, roze'mă.ry, a fragrant shrub from which Hungary water is made. (Corruption of ros-marinus, sea-dew.)

.. "plantes qui doivent leur nom à la rosée qui les couvre fréquemment sur les plages maritimes, leur habitation favorite," Dict. des Scien.

Roseola, rō.zeé'.d.lah, a rose-coloured rash. (Latin rōseōlus.)

Rosetta-stone, rō.zēt'.tah..., a stone found by M. Boussard, near Rosetta, in 1799, and noted for having furnished the key to the hieroglyphics of ancient Egypt. Erected B.C. 195.

Rosette, rō.zēt', a ribbon made into a cluster somewhat like a rose. (French rosette, rose with -ette dim.)

Rosetum, rō.zeé'.tum, a rose-bed or garden. (Latin rosētum.)

Rosicrucians, rōs'.ā.krū''.sī.ānz, a sect of alchemists who claimed to possess the secret of the "philosopher's stone"; Rosicru'cian, one of the Rosicrusians, adj. of...

Ros cruz gen. crucis, dew-light. Dew was considered the most powerful solvent of gold, and "cross" in alchemy means light, because a cross is a monogram of the three letters L. V. X. (light). Now "Lux" is the menstruum of the red dragon [corporeal light], and the red dragon digested by dew converts all metals into gold.

Rosin, rōz'.ān. Resin, rēz'.ān, matter exuded from pines, &c.

Rosin is resin in a solid state, to rub with rosin; rosined, rōz'.ānd; rosin-ing, rosin-y; rosinous, rōz'.ān.ūs.

Old Eng. hrysel; Fr. résine; Lat. resina; Gk. rhétine (rhéo, to flow).

Rossignol, rōz'.ān.yōle, the nightingale. A most felicitous French corruption of the Latin luscīnia or lusciniōla.

Either [in] lucis cano, I sing in the groves, or lugens cano.

Rōt, decay, a distemper peculiar to sheep, to decay; rōtt'-ed (R. xxxvi.), rōtt'-ing, rōtt'-en (adj.), rōtt'en-ly, rōtt'en-ness, rotten-stone, trip'oli or terra tripolita'na.

Old English rōt[ian], past rōtode, past part. rōtōd; rōtung.

Rotate, rō.tāté', to revolve on a centre or axis; rōtāt'-ed, (Rule xxxvi.), rōtāt'-ing (Rule xix.) Rotation, rō.tay'.shūn.

Rotary, rōt'.ā.ry. Rotatory, rōt'.ā.tō.ry.

Rotary, turning on its axis like a wheel, whirling.

Rotatory, one of the rotatories, pertaining to the rotatories.

Rotatories, rōt'.ā.tō.rīz, the wheel animalcules (4 syl.)

Rotators, rō.tay'.torz, muscles to roll a limb on its axis. They are of two sorts, prōnatōres, to turn the limb inwards, and supinatōres, to turn it outwards.

The substitution of rotatory for rotary is a vulgarism.

ERRORS OF SPEECH—

I have just seen the new rotatory engine [rotary].

Rotatory motion is whirling round an axis [rotary].

No efficient rotatory steam-engine has been invented [rotary].

Rôte (1 syl.), impressed on the memory by repetition, a sort of hurdy-gurdy; by rote, by repetition. Wrote, did write.

"Rote," Fr. routine (apprendre par routine); Lat. rôta, a wheel.

"Rote" (a mus. inst.), a corruption of Welsh crowd; Irish cruit.

Rotifer, rô't'î-fer, one of the wheel-animalcules (4 syl.)

Rotifera, rô'tîf'ĕ-rah, a class of infusoria. (Lat. rôta fero.)

Rotten, rô't'n, (super.) rott'en-est, (comp. rarely used), decayed; rott'en-ly, rott'en-ness. (See Rot.)

Rotund, rô'tund', round; rotundity, rô'tûn'dî-ty, roundness.

Rotundo, plu. rotundoes (Rule xlii.), or Rotunda, plu. rotundas, rô'tûn'dôze, rô'tûn'dahs, a circular building.

Lat. rotundus, rotunditas; Span. rotundo; Ital. rotondo.

Rouble, roo'b'l, a Russian silver coin = 3s. The bank rouble of account somewhat less than a shilling.

Roué, roo'a (French), a profligate. One broken on the wheel or routine of profligacy. The word came first into use during the regency of the duke of Orléans. (Fr. roue, a wheel.)

Rouge (Fr.), roo'jh, a red colour, a paint, to tinge the face with rouge; rouged (1 syl.), roug'-ing (R. xix.), roug'-er.

Rouge et noir, roo'jh a nwar (French), black and red (a gambling game with cards; &c.)

Rough, Ruff, both rô'f. Roof. Rôve (1 syl.)

Rough, rô'f, not smooth, violent, grating, rugged, to win a trick by trumping it, to turn up the shoes of horses in frosty weather to prevent their slipping; roughed, rô'ft; rough-ing, rô'f-ing. To rough it, to put up with things in a rough way. In the rough, without preparation.

Rough-ly, rô'f-ly; rough'-ness; rough'-ish (-ish added to adj. is dim., added to nouns it means "like"), rough-ish-ly, rough-ish-ness. The roughs, rô'fs, rowdies. Rough-cast, rough-draft, rough-shod. To ride rough-shod over [one]; to be regardless of his interest or feeling. A rough customer, one dangerous to deal with.

Roughen, rô'f'n, to make rough; roughened, rô'f'nd; roughen-ing, rô'f'n-ing (-en added to adj. = to make.)

"Rough," Old Eng. hrioh, hreo, hrûh, hreo, reoh, roeth, rûh, hreo or hredw; *hreo*fnes, reohnés, or rûhnés, *hreo*flic or *hreo*flic.

"Ruff," contraction of ruffle; Belgic ruffelen, to wrinkle.

"Roof," Old Eng. rôf. "Rove" (to roam for plunder), Dan. rôve.

The pronunciation of -ough is very irregular, because we try to represent the guttural sound by letters: thus we have—

(1) ough = off: cough.

(2) ough = ôf: sough [sôf], trough [trôf].

(3) ough = ûf: chough, enough, rough, slough, tough.

(4) ough = ôw (as in grôw): dough, though, furlough.

(5) ough = oo: through.

(6) ough = ôw (as in nôw): plough, bough, slough, dough-ty.

(7) ough = ðk: (?) hough, lough, shough.

(8) ough = ðp: hiccough.

(9) ough = ðrrah: borough, thorough.

(10) ought is generally pronounced -ort: as bought, drought, fought, nought, ought, sought, thought, wrought.

Rouleau, plu. rouleaux, roo'.lo, plu. roo'.lōze, a roll of gold coin made up in paper. (French rouleau, a roll.)

Roulette, roo.lēt, a game of chance. (Fr. roulette, a little wheel.)

Roun, rōwn (to rhyme with frōwn, not with grōwn), to whisper, to hold private conference; rouned, round; roun'-ing. Incorrectly written round, round'-ed, round'-ing.

Polonius says to the king respecting Hamlet: "Let his queen-mother be rowned with him," but Bunyan says "That lesson I will round you in the ear," (i.e., whisper privately into your ear.)

Old Eng. rūn[ian], to whisper, past rūnode, past part. rūnod, rūning.

Round (see Roun), globular, circular, not inconsiderable; a circle, a circuit, a rotation, the step of a ladder, a volley, a short musical fugue, to make circular, to polish off, &c.; round'-ed, round'-ing, round'-ly, round'-ness, round'-ish (-ish added to adj. is dim., added to nouns it means "like"); round-hand (in Penmanship), large rounded writing.

Round-head, -hēd, a puritan; the hair of a puritan was cut short, that of the royalists was worn long.

Round-number, a number which ends with a naught.

Round-robin, a petition with the signatures like the spokes of a wheel. ("Robin" a corrup. of Fr. ruban, a ribbon.)

Round-shouldered, the back and shoulders protuberant.

All round, in every direction. To come round, to revive, to become more placable. To get round, to recover, to wheedle. Round-about, not direct, circuitously.

Germ. rund, v. rundiren, rundlich; Fr. rond; Lat. rōtundus.

CANON, a short perpetual fugue in two or more parts.

CATCH, a short humorous fugue, so contrived that the words of the different singers catch up each other and pervert the sense.

FUGUE, a vocal or instrumental composition where one part leads off the subject, which is answered in the fifth or eighth by the other parts; the subject is then interspersed and distributed at the pleasure of the composer.

GLEE, a vocal composition for three or more voices, with more than one movement. Originally confined to gleeful music, but not now.

MADRIGAL, a far more elaborate composition than a glee, generally with five or six voices, and very fuguy.

ROUND, a short fugue or canon resembling a catch, only the words of the different parts do not catch in and change the sense.

Roundel, roun'.dēl, or Roundelay, roun'.de.lay, a rondo, consisting of three parts, the first of which is complete, the second begins like the first and then diverges, and the third ends as the first begins.

French rondelet (rondeau with diminutive), Italian rondo.

Roup, a sale by auction, to sell by auction. Rōpe, a cord. Rouped (1 syl.), roup'-ing. Articles of roup, conditions of sale.

"Roup," O. Eng. hreōp, [the price bid] called out. "Rope," O. E. rāp.

Rouse, rouze, a revel, to wake from sleep. Rōws. Rōws.

Roused (1 syl.); rous-ing (R. xix.), rouze'-ing; rou'sing-ly.

A rousing fire, a roaring fire. (Gk. roizos, a rushing sound.)

O. Eng. hreds[an], to shake, to rush, p. hreds, p. p. hroren; Gk. roizos.

"Rōws" (to rhyme with cōws), disturbances made by the Fr. roués.

"Rōws" (to rhyme with grōws), orderly lines, files, or series. O. E. rawa.

Rout (to rhyme with out.) Route, Root, both root.

Rout, an evening party, a tumultuous crowd, a rabble, to put to flight, to rouse or disturb; rout'-ed, rout'-ing.

"Rout" (a soirée), French rout. "Rout" (defeat), French dérouté.

"Rout" (to disturb), O. E. hrut[an], to rouse from sleep; hruth.

Route, root, course, way taken by a traveller, road (see above).

"Route," French route. "Root," Danish rod, Latin rad[ix].

Routine, roo.teen' (the pronunciation shows it to be French), the daily round of business, red tapism, official method.

French routine (Latin rōta, a wheel), round and round like a wheel.

Rōve (1 syl.), to wander about; roved (1 syl.); rov-ing (R. xix.), rō'-ving; rov-ex, rō'-ver. (Dan. rōve, to roam for plunder.)

Rōw (to rhyme with grōw). Rōw (to rhyme with nōw). Roe, rō.

Rōw, a line of articles set in order, a file, a series, a street, to propel with oars; rowed, rōwd; rōw'-ing, rōw'-er; row-lock, rāl'.lōk, places in a boat for the oars to work in; row port, an opening in a small vessel for oars.

Rōw (to rhyme with nōw), a disturbance, a scolding, an uproar, to make a row; rowed, rōwd; rōw'-ing; rōw'-dy, a riotous blusterer; rōw'dy-ism, rōw'dy-ish (-ish added to nouns means "like"); rōw'dy-dōw, a hubbub.

"Rōw" (a rank or file), Old English ræwa or rawa.

"Rōw" (with oars), Old English rōw[an], past reow, past part. rōwen.

"Rōw" (a disturbance), Fr. roué, [the disturbance made by] a roué.

"Roe" (a deer), Old English rā, rāh, or rāh.

Rowan or roan tree, rō'an, the mountain ash.

Old English rūn-tree, the witch or magic tree. (See Roan-tree.)

Rowel, rōw'.ēl (rōw to rhyme with nōw), the star-like prickly wheel of a spur, a little wheel or ring on a horse's bit, a seton, to insert a rowel; row'elled (2 syl.), row'ell-ing (Rule iii., -EL. Most verbs in -el double the -l on receiving a suffix beginning with a vowel).

Fr. rouelle (roue, a wheel, with dim.; Lat. rōtēla, dim. of rōta).

Royal, roy'.āl, pertaining to a sovereign; roy'al-ly.

Royalty, roy'.āl.ty, state or office of a sovereign, a portion given to an author or inventor for the use or sale of his work, a portion paid to the owner for working a mine on his estate; roy'al-ist, roy'al-ism. Royalise, roy'.āl.īze, to make royal; royalised, roy'.āl.īzd; roy'alis-ing (Rule xix.) Royal Acad'emy, the school where the paintings of living artists are annually exhibited. Royal Academician, a.kăd'.ĕ.mīsh'.ăn, a member of the Royal Acad'emy (initials R.A.) Royal Society, a society for the promotion of science, the oldest incorporated scientific society in London; royal-yard, the fourth yard from the deck, on which the "royal" is spread. The royals, 1st foot reg.

A royal, one of the shoots of a stag's horn, a small sail immediately above the top gallant.

Regalia, re.gay'.lī.a, ensigns of royalty. (See Regal.)

Fr. royal, royalisme, royaliste, royauté; Lat. rēgālis, rēgālitās, rēgālia, fees granted to a king, ensigns of royalty (rex gen. rēgis, a king).

Royster, rois'.ter, to bluster; roys'ter-ing, roys'ter-er.

French rustard, unmannerly; rustre, a boor or unmannerly person.

Rūb, a scouring, dusting, polishing, brushing, to rub; rubbed, rūbd; rubb'-ing (Rule i.), rubb'-er. To rub down, to clean [a horse] by rubbing. To rub up, to polish [plate]. To rub out, to erase. (Welsh rhwb, v. rhwbio, rhwbiwr.)

Rubbish, rūb'.bish, odds and ends of no use or value; rubbish-y, worthless (that which is rubbed off).

Rubble, rūb'.b'l, the fragmentary matter of rocks, coarse "walling"; rub'bly, rubble-work, built of rubble.

From rub, little pieces rubbed off. Welsh rhwbio, to rub.

Rubeola, ru.bee'.ō.lah, measles, a disease which presents the characteristics of measles and scarlet fever; rubeloid, ru'.be.loid, a very mild form of rubeola. (Lat. rŭber, red.)

Rubescent, ru.bēs'.sent, becoming red, tending to redness.

Latin rŭbescens genitive rŭbescēntis, v. rubesco (-sco, inceptive).

Rubican. (Rubicon, Rubicund, see below.)

Rubican, ru'.bī.kăn, a red and gray [horse] with the red predominating, bay or sorrel mixed with gray.

French rubican, Latin rŭbĕre, to be red (rŭber, red).

Rubicon, ru'.bī.kăn, a small river which separated Italy from Cisalpine Gaul, the province of Cæsar (see above).

To pass the Rubicon, to take the first step in a dangerous enterprise from which there is no receding.

As the Rubicon bounded the province of Cæsar, to cross it with a hostile army was in fact to invade Roman territory, or declare war against Rome. Similarly when, in 1859, the Austrians passed the Tic'no, it was a virtual declaration of war against Sardinia; and when, in 1866, the Italians passed the Adige (3 syl.), it was a virtual declaration of war against Austria.

Rubicund, ru'.bī.kŭnd, ruddy. (Rubican, Rubicon, see above.)

Rubicund-ly. Rubicun'dity, (lat. rŭbicundus).

- Rubiginous, ru.bidg'ĩ.nūs, a rusty red, red with gray.
 Latin rūbiginōsus, the colour of rust (rūbigo gen. rūbiginis, rust).
- Rubric, ru'brĩk, the directions printed in prayer-books;
 rubrical, ru'brĩ.kũl; rubricist, ru'brĩ.sĩst; rubricate, ru'brĩ.kate, marked with red, to mark with red;
 rubricated, ru'brĩ.kũ.ted; ru'brĩcāt-ing (Rule xix.)
 Lat. rūbrica, red ochre. Rubrics were originally printed in red letters.
- Ruby, plu. rubies, ru'biz, a precious stone, to make ruby red; rubied, ru'bid; ru'by-ing. (Latin rūber, red.)
- Rūd, red, redness, a fish, to make red; rudd'-ed, rudd'-ing.
 Ruddle, to make red; rudded, rũd'.d'ld; rudd'ing.
 Ruddled with red, painted or coloured red (said of the face).
 Old Eng. rud, red, rudu, redness; Welsh rhudd, v. rhuddaw, rhuddell, red ochre, rhuddellu, to stain with red ochre.
- Rudder, rũd'.der, that which governs a ship; rudder-less.
 Old English rōther or rēther, a rudder, helm, or oar; German rudcr.
- Ruddock, rũd'.døk, the red-breast. (O.E. rudduc, Welsh rhuddawg.)
- Rud'dy, (comp.) rud'di-er, (super.) rud'di-est, the colour of the cheeks in robust health; rudd'i-ness, rudd'i-ly.
 Old Eng. rudlic, ruddy; Welsh rhuddellen, one of a ruddy hue.
- Rude, unmannerly, inclement. Rood, the cross with its effigy.
 Rude (1 syl.), comp. rūd'-er, super. rūd'-est; rude'-ly, rude'-ness. ("Rude," Lat. rūdis. "Rood," O.E. rōd.) v. Rue.
- Rudiment, ru'dĩ.mẽnt, a first principle, embryo, the A.B.C. of knowledge; rudimental, ru'dĩ.mẽn''.tũl; rudimental-ly.
Rudimentary, ru'dĩ.mẽn''.tũ.ry. (Latin rudimentum.)
- Rue, ru, a plant, a lane, sorrow, to repent, to grieve for; rued, rude (see Rude); ru'-ing (verbs ending in any two vowels, except -ue, retain both before -ing); rue-ful, rue-ful-ly, rue-ful-ness. (Old Eng. rũte, rutu, rũde, the herb rue.)
 Old Eng. hreoŵ or reŵu, v. hreoŵian, past hreoŵede, p. p. hreoŵed.
 "Rue" (a strip of land free from manorial claims), Old Eng. rewe.
- Ruff, a plaited collar, a bird. Rough, rũf, not smooth.
 To ruff [at cards], to trump a card; ruffed, rũft; ruff'-ing.
 "Ruff," Belgic ruyffelen, to wrinkle. "Rough," Old Eng. hreoŵ.
- Ruffian, rũf'.fi.ũn, a brutal fellow; ruff'ian-ly, ruff'ian-like; ruff'ian-ish (-ish added to nouns means "like," added to adj. it is dim.); ruff'ian-ism. (Fr. ruſien; Ital. ruffiano.)
 Our application of the Fr. ruſien (a libertine), Ital. ruffiano (a pimp), to a human brute, is creditable to English feeling and social morals.
- Ruffle, rũf'.f'ũl, a strip of cambric, &c., worn round the wrists, neck, &c., to wrinkle, to discompose, to put out of temper;
ruffled, rũf'.f'ld; ruff'ing, ruff'ler; ruffle-less.
 Belgic ruyffelen, to wrinkle. Chaucer has riweling, wrinkling.

Rûg, a soft woolly mat, a coarse warm coverlet. Old Eng. hreog, one of the many varieties of the word rough (q.v.)

Rugged, rûg'.gêd, rough, full of asperities; rûg'ged-ly, rûg'ged-ness. (Old English hreog, rough; hreognes, roughness.)

Rugose, rû.gôse', full of wrinkles; rugosity; ru.gôs'.îty.

Latin rûgôsus, rûgôsitas (rûga, Greek rûtis, a wrinkle).

Ruin, rû'ân, destruction, loss of fortune or happiness, to destroy, to reduce to poverty, to corrupt. A ruin, a dilapidated building. Ruins, the remains of an ancient edifice [of note]; ruined, rû'înd; ru'in-ing, ru'in-er. Ruination.

Ruinous, rû'î.nûs; ruinous-ly, ruinous-ness.

Latin ruîna, ruînôsus, ruînâre (ruo, to fall down, &c.)

Rûle (1 syl.), government, sway, an instrument for measures, a line in printing, to control, to govern, to draw lines with a ruler; ruled (1 syl.); ru'ling, rû'ling; rûl'-er.

Rule. Ruler. Scale.

Rule, a carpenter's measure, a gauge, slips of brass used by printers to separate work into columns, &c.; parallel rules, stonemason's rule, a T rule, &c., &c.

Ruler, a piece of hard wood along which a pen or pencil is run to make a straight line.

Scale, a rule marked with chords, sines, and tangents.

Sometimes a "Ruler" is called a rule, but a "Rule" is never called a ruler. (O. E. regel, regul, or reogol; Lat. rêgula, a rule or ruler.)

Rûm, a spirit distilled from the sugar cane, odd, queer; (comp.)

rumm-er, (super.) rumm-est (R. i.), rum'-ly, rum'-ness.

"Rum" (spirit), Fr. rum or rhum. "Rum" (queer), O. E. rom, a priest. The word "rum" originally meant "old fashioned," and was applied to the clergy: thus Swift speaks of "a rabble of rusty dull rums."

Rumble, rûm'.b'l, a seat behind a carriage for servants, a low growling noise, to make a rumbling noise; rumbled, rum'.b'ld; rum'bling, rum'bling-ly, rum'bler.

German rummel, v. rummeln and rumpeln; Danish rumle.

Ruminant, rû'mî.nant, cud-chewing, a cud-chewing animal.

Ruminate, rû'mî.nate, to chew the cud; to meditate; ru'minât-ed (Rule xxxvi.), ru'minât-ing (Rule xix.), ru'minât-or (R. xxxvii.) Rumination, rû'mî.nay".shûn.

Ruminantia, rû'mî.nân".shê.ah, the animals which ruminate. (One of the great divisions of animals.)

Lat. rûmî.nans gen. rûmî.nantis, rûmî.natio, rûmî.nâtor, rûmî.nâre.

Rummage, rûm'.mage, a turning over of things in quest of something mislaid, to rout over; rum'maged (2 syl.); rummaging, rûm'.mă.ging; rum'mag-er.

Rummage sale, a clearance sale at the docks of unclaimed goods and residues. (French remuer.)

Rummer, ru'mer. Rumour, ru'mer, (see below).

Rummer, a large drinking glass with a foot, queer-er.

German römer; Danish rum, large. (See Rum, odd.)

Rumour, ru'mer, report, to spread a report. (See above.)

Rumoured, ru'merd; ru'mour-ing. (See p. 769.)

Fr. rumeur, Lat. rumor. This is one of the nineteen words derived from the Lat. -or through the Fr. -eur, which remains. Hundreds have dropped the u, and not a few within the present century. The sooner these nineteen go the better.

Rump, the end of the backbone with the parts adjacent; rump-steak, stake (not steek), a choice slice cut from the thigh of an ox near the rump. The Rump, the fag-end of the Long Parliament which met in 1659.

Germ. rumpf. "Steak" is the Norse steg, a roast, v. stege, to roast.

Rumple, rūm'p'l (corruption of rimple), a crease, a tumbled state; to crease, to tumble clothes, paper, &c.; rumpled, rūm'p'ld; rum'pling, rump'-ly.

Old English hrympelle, v. rimpan, to rimple or rumple.

Rūm'pūs, a turmoil. (Italian rombazzio, Swiss v. rumpusen.)

Run, (past) ran, (past part.) run, to move the legs quickly in progressive motion, to flow, to ooze out, to ply a coach, a flow, a course, a jaunt, a rapid succession of notes, a voyage, &c.; rūnn'-ing (Rule i.), runn'-er.

To let run, to allow liquor to flow from a tub, &c.

To run amuck, to run on blunderingly and without caution.

To run at, to attack, said of a bull, &c.

To run away with, to make off with, to steal, to elope.

To run down, to chase till caught, to censure, to traduce.

To run on, to continue. To run out, to exhaust, to empty.

To run over, to overflow. To run riot, to indulge in excess.

To run through, to expend. To run up [a bill], to add purchase to purchase without paying ready money.

To run up [a house], to build it hastily and clumsily.

In the long run, taking the whole course from first to last.

Running fight; running-fire, a firing of guns in rapid succession; running-knot, -not, a slip knot; running title, the title of a book repeated at the top of the pages.

Old English renn[an] or reonn[an], past ran, runung, ryne, a run.

Runagate, rūn'ā.gate (corruption of renegade), a runaway, an apostate. (Fr. renégat; Lat. re-nego, to deny again.)

Runaway, rūn'ā.way, a fugitive, one who runs away.

Rūne (1 syl.) Ruin, ru'in. Rūn, a course (see Run).

Rune, a runic letter or song; Runic, rū-nīk.

"Rune," Old English rūn, rūnlic, runisc. "Ruin," Latin ruīna.

Rung, a step of a ladder, did ring. Wrung (of v. wring).

Iceland. raung, a staff; O. Eng. hring[an] to ring, wring[an] to wring.

Runnel, rŭn' nĕl, a small brook. (O. E. rinel, rynel, or runol.)

Rupee, rŭ.pee', E. Ind. coin; the gold rupee = 20s, silver = 2s.

Rupture, rŭp'.tchŭr, a fracture, a breach, open hostility, to break, to burst; ruptured, rŭp'.tchurd; rup'tur-ing (R. xix.)

Fr. rupture; Lat. ruptŭra, rumpĕre supine ruptum, to break.

Rural, ru'rŭl, pertaining to the country; ru'ral-ly, ru'ral-ness.

Rurality, rŭ.rŭl'.ĭ.ty. Ruralise (R. xxxi.), rŭ'rŭl.ĭze, to ramble about the lanes and fields of the country; ru'ral-ised (3 syl.), ru'ralis-ing (R. xix.), ru'ral-ist. Rural dean.

Lat. rŭrŭlis; Fr. rural (Lat. rus gen. rŭris; Gk. aroura, arable land).

Ruse, rŭze, a little artifice, a clever stroke of policy. (Fr. ruse.)

Rŭsh, a reed, a violent movement onwards, to run violently; rushed (1 syl.), rush'-ing, rush'-ing-ly, rush'-er. Rush-like, rush'-y, abounding in rushes; rush'-i-ness.

"Rush" (a plant), Old Eng. ricse, hrysede, resce, risce, or rixe.

"Rush" (to run eagerly), O. E. hreds[an], past hreda, past part. hroren or reds[an], past reda, past part. roren; v. hrys[an], -ede, -ed.

Rŭsk, a hard biscuit (corruption of crust, Latin crusta).

Russ, a Russian, the Russian language; Russian, rŭsh'.ŭn.

Russet, rŭs'.sĕt, a reddish-brown colour, home-spun.

Russeting or russet, an apple. (Lat. russus or russeus.)

Rŭst, a coating formed by damp on tin, iron, &c., to gather rust; rust'-ed, rust'-ing, rust'-y, rust'-i-ness, rust'-i-ly.

Old English rust, v. rust[ian], past rustede, past part. rusted.

Rustic, rŭs'.tĭk, rural, a countryman, a peasant; rustical, -tĭ.kŭl; rustical-ly, rustical-ness. Rusticity, -tĭss'.ĭ.ty.

Rusticate, rŭs'.tĭ.kate, to reside in the country for change, to banish from college for a time; rust'icāt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), rust'icāt-ing. Rustication, rŭs'.tĭ.kay''.shŭn.

Latin rusticus, rusticitas, rusticatio, rusticari (rus, the country).

Rustle, rŭs'.l, to rattle, to crepitate; rustled, rŭs'.l'd; rustling, rŭs'.ling; rustling-ly; rustler, rus'ler.

Old English hrist[an], hrisc[ian] or ræsc[ian], hristlung, hruzle.

Rŭt, a line cut in the earth by a wheel, the track of a wheel, to cut a rut, to mate [as deer]; rutt'-ed, rutt'-ing (Rule i.); rutt'-ish, wanton; rutt'-y, full of wheel ruts; rutt'-i-ness.

"Rut" (of a wheel), Lat. rota. "Rut" (as deer), Fr. rut, v. ruler.

Rŭth, sorrow, regret; ruth'-ful (Rule viii.), ruth'ful-ly, -ness; ruth'-less, pitiless; ruth'less-ly, ruth'less-ness.

Old English hreoþw, grief, v. hreoþw[an], 3 sing. [he] hrynoth.

Rye, rĭ, a cereal; rye-grass. Wry, rĭ, twisted, wrung.

"Rye," O. E. rige or ryge. "Wry," O. E. wriþ[an] to twist, wriþen.

Ryot, rĭ'.ot, a tenant farmer in Hindŭstan. Rĭ'ot, a rebellion (q.v.)

S. We retain about 500 native words beginning with this letter, nearly twice as many as come under any other letter. Only F, H, and O exceed 200. Of native words beginning with S, the largest number (79) begin with St-, next comes Sh- (56), then Sp- (40). This home character makes the words under this letter very interesting.

Sabaoth, săb'ă.oth, hosts, armies, applied to Jehovah called the Lord of Sabaoth (Rom. ix. 29).

Hebrew saba, plu. saba-oth, TZ[a]BAOT[h], James v. 4.

Sabbath, săb'.bŭth, the Jewish "sacred day," our Saturday (the seventh day, on which God rested from his work and commanded man to rest (Gen. ii. 2, 3; Ex. xx. 8-11)).

Sabbatic, săb.băt'ik; Sabbatical, săb.băt'ik.kăl.

Sabbatarian, săb'.ba.tair'rĕ.ăn, a rigid observer of the Sabbath; Sabbatarian-ism. (Heb. shabath, rest, to rest.)

Sable, să'.bl, an animal of the weasel kind, the black fur of the sable. Suit of sables, a rich courtly dress.

24 Hen. viii. c. 13 ordains "that none under the degree of earl shall wear sables." (Danish sabel or zobel.)

Sabot, să.bŏ', plu. sabots, să.bŏze', a wooden shoe (French).

Du latin sapinus, sans doute parce qu'on les faissait en sapin.

Sabre, să'.ber, a sword, to kill with a sabre; sabred, să'.brĕd; sabring, să'.bring (not să'.ber.ing).

French sabre, from the German sabel, v. sabeln.

Sabretasche or sabretache, să'.ber.tash, a pocket suspended from the sword-belt. (German sabel tasche.)

Saccharine, săk'.ka.rĭn, sugar, pertaining to sugar, of a sugary nature; saccharometer, -rŏm''.ĕ.ter, an instrument for gauging the quantity of saccharine matter in a liquid.

Latin saccharum; Greek sakchar or sakcharon, sugar.

Sacerdotal, săs'.er.dŏ''.tăl (not say'.ser.dŏ''.tăl), adj. priestly; sacerdo'tal-ly; sacerdo'tal-ism, priestly pride.

Old Eng. sacerd; Lat. sacerdotālis, sacerdos (sacer, sacred).

Sachem, să'.tchĕm, an Indian chief (North America).

Sack, a bag, a coarse cloak, a loose upper garment, a dry white wine, to besiege, to plunder, to bag; sacked (1 syl.), sack'-ing, sack'-er. Sack'-ful (Rule viii.), sack'-cloth. Sack-posset. Sack'-age, the act of storming and plundering, state of being sacked; sack'-er. To give [one] the sack, to dismiss from service. To get the sack.

Sack'-ing, a coarse cloth of which beds and sacks are made.

"Sack" (a bag), Old English sac, sacc, or sæc; sæccing, sacking

"Sack" (wine), French sec, dry; Latin siccus: as canary sack, &c.

"Sack" (to besiege), French saccager; Spanish saquear.

"To get the sack." Tradition says that "sack" was the last word uttered before the confusion of tongues. It is found in all the Aryan family of languages. To get the sack, is to get the last word.

Sackbut, a wind instrument (corruption of sacbut).

Lat. sacra buccīna, a sacred trumpet; Span. sacabuche; Fr. saquebute.

Sacrament, sāk'.rā.ment (not sā'.kra.ment), a religious rite; sacrament-āl, sacramental-ly, sacramental-s; sacramentary, sāk'.rā.mēn''.tū.ry; sacramenta-'rian.

Latin sacramentum, sacramentālis (sācra). Originally the word "sacramentum" was the money paid into court by plaintiff and defendant before a suit commenced; the one who gained the verdict had his money returned. It was next applied to the oath made by every Roman soldier on entering the army. Baptism is the "oath" or sacrament of a Christian to fight manfully against the world, the flesh, and the devil. The eucharist is a symbolical mutual pledge between God and man.

Sacrarium (Latin), sā.krair'.rī.um, a vestry where holy things were kept by the Roman priests, a shrine.

Sacred, sa'.krēd, holy; sa-cred-ly, sa-cred-ness. (Latin sacer.)

Sacri- (Latin prefix), holy, sacred (sacer gen. sacri, holy).

Sacrifice, (noun) sāk'.rī.fice, (verb) sāk'.rī.fize, an offering of a victim to a deity, a loss incurred for some specific object, to make a sacrifice; sacrificed, sāk'.rī.fizd; sacrific-ing, sāk'.rī.fizing; sacrific-er, sāk'.rī.fizer. Sacrificial, sāk'.rī.fish''.āl, employed in sacrifice; sacrificial-ly.

Obs.—Both the noun and verb are spelt with c, because the noun is the Lat. sacrificium, and verb is sacrifico [facio], to make an offering. The words which change c into s are not derived from facio: as "advise," advise; "device," devise; "practice," practise; "prophecy," prophecy; "choice," choose; "licence," license.

Latin sacri-facio (for "sacrifico"), sacrificālis, sacrificium.

Sacrilege, sāk'.rī.lēdge (not sa'.krī.leəj), profanation of holy things; sacrilegious, sāk'.rī.lee''.djūs; sacrilegious-ly, sacrilegious-ness; sacrileg-ist, one guilty of sacrilege.

Latin sacrilegium, sacrilegius (qui sacra legit, i.e., furatur).

Sacristan, sāk'.rīs.tān (not say.kris'.tan), one who has charge of the church movables. Sacrist, sāk'.rist, one employed in cathedrals to copy out music for the choir and to take charge of the music books. (Sexton, contr. of sacristan.)

Sacristy, plu. sacristies, sāk'.rīs.tiz, the vestry.

Spanish sacristan, sacristia; Italian sagrestano, sagrestia.

Sacrum or Os-sacrum, -sā'.krum, the bone which forms the basis of the vertebral column; sacral, sa'.krāl.

This bone is called sacred from a rabbinical notion that it resists decay and will be the germ of the "new body" at the resurrection (See Hudibras, pt. iii. c. 2). The Jews called it luz.

Sād, sorrowful; (comp.) sadd'-er, (super.) sadd'-est (Rule i.); sad'-ness, sad'-ly. (Welsh sad, sedate.)

Sadden, sad'n, to become sad (-en converts adj. to verbs); saddened, sad'nd; sadden-ing, sad'n.ing (v.s.)

Saddle, săd'.d'l, a seat placed on a horse's back, a block to hold a saddle, a block for the boom of a ship to rest on, to put a saddle on a horse, to harness for riding, to load or burden; saddled, săd'.d'ld; saddling, săd'.d'ling. Saddler, săd'.ler, one who makes or sells harness; saddlery, săd'.lěry, articles sold by a saddler.

Saddle of mutton, two loins cut together.

Saddle-bow, the pieces which form the bow of a saddle.

Saddle-tree, the frame-work of a saddle. To put the saddle on the right horse, to impute blame to the right person.

The double d in saddle is a blunder, it has no connection with sad. Old English sadel, sadol, or sadul, v. sadel[ian], past sadclode, past part. sadelod, sadel-boga saddle-bow.

Sad'ducees, a Jewish sect; Sad'ducee, one of the sect.

Sadducean, săd'.du.see''.ăn; Sadduceism, -see''.izm.

So named from Sadoc, the founder of the sect, B.C. 250.

Săfe, plu. săfes (1 syl.) noun; săve, 3 sing. saves (1 syl.) verb.

Safe, secure, a cupboard to keep meat in, a strong money-box; safe'-ly, safe'-ness (rarely used).

Safety, safe'.ty. Safe con'duct, a convoy. Safe'-guard, safety-belt, safety-lamp, safety-valve.

Save, saved (1 syl.), săv'-ing (R. xix.), saving-ly; sav-er, săv.ver. Saviour, save'.yer, the Redeemer, &c.

A common way of converting nouns to verbs is by lengthening the vowel. This is sometimes left to pronunciation only as in close = cloce (noun), close = cloze (verb); use = uce (noun), use = uze (verb); but not unfrequently a change of consonants helps to mark the lengthened vowel: as "c" changed to s, "s" to z, sometimes a final e is added as breath (noun), brcathe (verb), sheath (noun), sheathe (verb), and sometimes "f" or "fe" is changed to ve: as behoof, behove; belief, believe; disproof, disprove; grief, grieve; proof, prove; reproof, &c.; safe, save; thief, thieve; wife, wive. N.B. life, live, is abnormal.

French sauf, sauver, sauveur; Latin salvus, v. salveo.

Saffron, săf'.frôn, a plant, yellow like saffron. (French safran.)

Săg, to bag down, to droop; sagged, săgd; sagg'-ing (Rule i.)

To sag to leeward, ...lu'.ard, to drift leeward.

Old Eng. sag, a sack, or v. sig[an], to fall, to fail ("swag").

Saga, să'.gah, plu. sagas, the heroic tales and myths of Scandinavia. (Saga, goddess of history. Scand. Myth.)

Sagacious, să.gay'.shŭs, acute, discerning; saga'cious-ly, saga'cious-ness. Sagacity, să.gŭs'.i.ty, acute intelligence.

Adjectives formed from the Latin -ax end in -ious, not -cous.

Lat. săgax, săgacitŭs, v. săgio, to be sagacious (săga, a wise woman).

Sagan, săh'.gan, the vicar of the Jewish pontiff.

Săge, wise, prudent, a wise man, a venerable old man, a philosopher, a herb; sage'-ly, wisely; sag-y, sā'.gy, like sage; sage'-ness. (See above, Sagacious.)

"Sage" (wise), Old Eng. sage, Lat. sagis, to be sagacious; Fr. sage.

"Sage" (a herb), Old Eng. salwie or salwige; Fr. sauge.

Sagittarius, sādg'.īt.tair'ri.ūs, one of the twelve signs of the zodiac (an archer). Sagittary, sādg'.īt.tā.ry, a centaur, pertaining to an arrow. Sagittal. Sagittate, sādg'.īt.tā.te.

Latin sagittarius, sagittalis, sagitta, an arrow.

The "sign" is meant for the centaur Chiron (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21).

Sago, plu. sagoes, sa'.gōze (Rule xlii.), a starch obtained from several species of palm. (French sagou, Malay sagu.)

Saic, say'.ik, a Turkish or Grecian sailing vessel. (Tur. shaika.)

Sail (of a ship). Sale, exchange of goods for cash.

Sail, the canvas of a ship by which it is impelled, to move by the force of wind acting on the sails; sailed (1 syl.), sail'-ing. Sailer, a sailing vessel. Sailor, a seaman.

To set sail, to start. To strike sail, to lower the sails.

"Sail," Old Eng. sægel, sægl, segel, segelung, sailing, segellian, past segelode or segelede, past part. segelod, sætida.

"Sale," Old Eng. sell[an] or syll[an], past sealde, past part. seald.

Sain-foin, sān'.foin, a plant. (French sain foin, sacred hay.)

Saint (when the name is added it is pronounced sēnt, and when forming part of a proper name sīn'), a holy or canonised person; saint'-ed, canonised; saint'-ly; saint'-hood (-hood, state of); saint'-ship (-ship, rank of).

O. E. sanct; Fr. saint; Lat. sanctus. Cont. into St. or S., plu. SS.

Sāke (1 syl.), out of regard to, purpose of obtaining, effort to obtain. (O. E. sac, sace, contention; v. sac[an], to strive.)

The idea is to strive for, effort to obtain, object or purpose of obtaining, and lastly the "regard" or motive for making the effort.

Salaam or Salam, sā.lāme' (not sā.lām'), salutation, a bōw. (Pers.)

Salacions, sā.lay'.shūs. Silicious, sī.lish'.ūs.

Salacious, lustful; salaciously, salacious-ness.

Silicious, containing silex or flint.

"Salacious," Latin silax gen. -acis, lustful (sal, salt, salio).

"Silicious," Latin silex gen. silicis, a flint; Greek chalcis.

Salad, sāl'.ād, vegetables eaten raw with a "dressing" of oil, vinegar, pepper, salt, &c.; sal'ad-ing, vegetables designed for salads. Salad oil, olive oil for salads.

Fr. salade, from the Ital. insalata (insalato, salted, seasoned).

Salam or Salaam, sā.lāme', a salute. (See Salaam.)

Salamander, sāl'.a.mān''.der, a reptile, a fabulous animal said to live in fire; salaman'drine, sāl'.a.mān''.drīn.

Salaman'der's hair, amianthus, asbestos.

Latin salamandra; Greek salamandra (Plin. x. 86).

Sal-ammoniac, sāl-am.mō'.nī.āk, chloride of ammonia.

Ammonia, so called from the Temple of Ammon in Egypt, where it was first made by burning camels' dung. There is a native salt also.

Salary, plu. salaries (Rule xlv.), sāl'.ā.rīz, wages, to pay wages (it is applied to the wages of persons whose employment is not menial); salaried, sāl'.ā.red, receiving a salary.

Latin salarium (sal, salt), the rations of salt and other necessities (or their equivalent in money) served out to the Roman soldiers and civil servants.

Sale, transfer of goods for money. Sail (of a ship, &c.)

Saleable or salable, sāl'.ā.b'l (the only word, not in -ce or -ge, which retains its -e before -able); sa'leably or sa'lably; sa'leable-ness or sa'lable-ness.

Sales-man, plu. sales-men, a dealer in beasts, a commercial traveller, one who attends to the sale of goods.

Sale-room. Bill of sale, plu. bills of sale.

"Sale," Old Eng. sell[an] or syll[an], past sealde, past part. seald.

"Sail," Old Eng. sægel, sægt, v. segel[ian], p. segelode, p. p. segelod.

Salic law, sāl'.īk..., the law which excludes females from succeeding to the lods or lands given for military service.

It is the 6th of the lxii. title of the famous Salian code compiled by Clovis. In 1316 it was extended to the crown also.

Salient, sāl'.ī.ent, conspicuous, prominent; salient-ly.

Lat. sālientis gen. sālientis, v. sālio, to leap up; Gk. hallōmai.

Saliferous, sāl'.īf'.ē.rūs, yielding salt. (Latin sāl fero.)

Salify, sāl'.ī.fy, to form into a salt; salifies, sāl'.ī.fize; salified, sāl'.ī.fide (R. xi.), salifi-er, salify-ing, salifi-able.

Salification, sāl'.ī.f.ī.kay''shūn, state of being salified.

Latin sāl ficio[facio], to make salt; French salification, salifier.

Saline, sa.līnē' (not sa.leen'), consisting of salt, impregnated with salt; saline'-ness. Salination, sāl'.ī.nay''shun; saliniferous, sāl'.ī.nīf''.ē.rūs; salinometer, sāl'.ī.nōm''.ē.ter.

Fr. salin, salifère; Span. salino (Lat. sal; Gk. hals, salt).

Saliva, sāl'.ī.vah, spittle; salivary, sāl'.ī.vā.ry (adj.); salival; salivate, sāl'.ī.vate, to produce an abnormal flow of saliva; salivāt-ed (R. xxxvi.), salivāt-ing (R. xix.); salivation, sāl'.ī.vay''shūn; salivous, sāl'.ī.vūs.

Latin sāliva, sālīvārius, sālīvātio, sālīvāre; Greek siālōn, spittle.

Sallow, sāl'.lō, a greyish yellow, a shrub or tree [genus sālīx]; sallow-ness, tinged with a dirty yellow colour.

Old English salo, salwi, salwig; Latin sālīx (sālīo, to shoot up).

Sally, plu. sallies, sāl'.līz, a sortie, a flight of fancy, wit, or humour, to make a sally; sallies; sallied, sāl'.led; sally-ing; sally-port, the postern gate of a fortified place.

Fr. sallie; Lat. salire, to leap; Gk. hallōmai, to spring forwards.

Salmagundi, säl'.mä.gŭn''.dī, sundry meats minced and mixed with pickled herrings, onions, oil, and lemon-juice.

French salmigondis, a corruption of Spanish salpicon (salpicar).

Salmon, sām'.on, a fish; salmonet, sam'.o.net.

Salmon fry, the young fish recently hatched from the spawn.

Sam'let, the fry so long as it retains its brown marks.

Smolt, the fry when it leaves the river for the sea.

Grilse, the smolt when it reseeks the river for spawning.

Parr, a salmon in the second year or two years old.

Mort, a salmon in the third year or three years old.

Foul-fish, a salmon during the time of spawning.

Kelts or spent-fish, the salmon after spawning.

Kipper, a spent male salmon.

Called kipper from the kip or hook in the under jaw.

Shedder or baggit, a spent female salmon.

Salmon trout, a sea trout, next in value to salmon.

Latin salmo gen. salmōnis (Latin sālio, to leap), the leaping fish.

Saloon, sū.loon', a state room, a spacious reception room.

French salon (-oon, augmentative; added to salle, a room).

Saloop, sa.loop'. Shallop. Sloop. Sca'lop. Scol'lop.

Saloop' [or salop, säl'.ōp], an article of diet, a beverage.

"Saloop" or "salop," Turkish sallab.

"Shallop" (a boat with two masts), Germ. schaluppe; Fr. chaloupe.

"Sloop" (a vessel with one mast), Dutch sloop; German schaluppe.

"Sca'lop" (a bivalvular mollusc), Danish skal; Dutch schulpe.

"Scol'lop" (a method of cooking veal and oysters), French escalope.

Sal-prunella. Prunella. Prunello.

Sal-prunella, säl-pru.nēl'.lah, or Salt prunella, a mixture of refined nitre and soda for sore throats.

"Sal prunella," Fr. sel de brunelle; Germ. breune, sore throat, bräune, quinsy, a medicine for sore throats.

"Prunella" (a genus of plants very astringent), German breune, &c.

"Prunello" (a species of plum), Fr. prunelle, a little prune or plum.

"Prunello" (stuff for shoes, &c.), corruption of Brignoles, in France.

Salsify, säl'.sī.fī, purple goat's-beard (a garden plant).

French salsifis (Lat. salax gen. salācis, goatish, facio[facio], to make).

Goat's beard, or tragopogon (Greek tragos pōgōn, goat's beard), so called from its long down somewhat resembling a goat's beard.

Salt, sōlt, a mineral used for seasoning food (called by chemists chloride of sodium), in Chemistry an acid with an alkaline base, (figuratively) wit, piquancy, tasting of salt, to season with salt, to pickle with salt; salt'-ed (R. xxxvi.), salt'-ing; salt'-ish, rather salt; salt'ish-ness, salt'ish-ly, salt'-ly, salt'-ness; salt'-less, without salt; salt'-cellar, a vessel holding salt for table use; salt junk, hard salt beef for voyagers; salt-marsh, salt-mine, salt-pan.

Salt of lemons, binoxalate of potassa.

Salt of sorrel, oxalate of potash.

Salt of tartar, carbonate of potassa.

Salt of vitriol, sulphate of zinc.

Salt of wormwood, carbonate of potash.

Salts, a cathartic medicine. Epsom salt, sulph. of magnesia.

In Chemistry, -ate denotes a salt formed by an acid ending in -ic (with a base): as sulphate of zinc (sulphuric acid and zinc); carbonate of soda (carbonic acid and soda); nitrate of silver (nitric acid and silver). (-ic implies the maximum of oxygen.)

¶ -ite denotes a salt formed by an acid ending in -ous (with a base): as bi-sulphite of lime [two equivalents of sulphurous acid to one of lime]. (-ous denotes an acid with a minimum of oxygen.)

¶ If the acid of a salt is in excess of the base, the excess is notified by the Lat. prefixes bi- or bin- (two), ter- (three), quadr- (four), quin- (five).

If the base is in excess of the acid, the excess is notified by the Greek prefixes prot- or proto- (one), di- or din- (two), tri- or tris- (three), tetra- (four), penta- (five). Thus, din-iodide of copper means a compound containing two atoms of copper to one of iodine; but bin-iodide of mercury means two atoms of iodine to every atom of mercury. So tris-acetate of lead means three atoms of [the oxide of] lead to every atom of acetic acid; but ter-acetate of lead means three atoms of acetic acid to every atom of lead.

¶ Sub indicates simply that the base named is inferior in quantity to the acid, without denoting the proportion. Per indicates simply that it is superior in quantity, without denoting the proportion.

Sesqui- means one-and-a-half: thus sesqui-chloride of iron means there are three atoms of chlorine to every two of iron (that is, in the proportion of $1\frac{1}{2}$, for an atom being indivisible cannot be halved).

Old Eng. salt or sealt, v. sealt[an], sealt[er] a salter; sealt-fet a salt-vat, sealt-hús, sealt-merse ..marsh, sealt[nes] salt[ness], salt[en] adj.

Saltatory, sál'tă.tō.ry, leaping or dancing, a leaper.

Saltatores, sál'tă.tō.rěz, insects like the grasshopper noted for their leaping powers. Saltation, sál.tay'.shūn.

Lat. saltatio, saltator plu. saltatores, saltatorius, saltatōre.

Saltpetre, salt pee'ter, rock salt, a salt formed by nitric acid and potassa. (A hybrid: Fr. sal pêtre, Lat. sel petra.)

Salubrious, sál.lū'.brī.ūs, healthy, promoting health; salubriously, salubriousness. Salubrity, sál.lū'.brī.ty.

Salutary, sál'lu.tā.ry, wholesome, good for health; salutari-ness, Rule xi. (See Salutatory, under Salute.)

Latin sālūbrītas, sālūbris, sālūtāris (sālus gen. sālūtis, health).

Salute, sál.lū'té', a greeting, a kiss, an outward sign of respect, to salute; sālūt'-ed (R. xxxvi.), sālūt'-ing, sālūt'-er.

Salutation, sál'lu.tay''.shūn, greeting. Saltā'tion, leaping.

Salutatory. Saltatory. Salutary.

Salutatory, sál.lū'.ta.tō.ry, speaking a welcome.

Saltatory, sál'tă.tō.ry, leaping or dancing.

Salutary, sál'lu.tā.ry, conducive to health.

Lat. sālūto, sālūtātōrius, sālūtatio (sālūtem dicere, to wish health).

"Saltatory," Lat. saltatōrius (saltare, to leap or dance often).

"Salutary," Lat. salūtāris (sālus genitive sālūtis, health).

Salvable, sāl'.vā.b'l, a state in which salvation is possible.

Salvability, sāl'.va.bīl''.ī.ty; salvably, sāl'.va.bly.

Theological words derived from "salvation." (Lat. salvāre, to save.)

Salvage, sāl'.vage. Selvage, sēl'.vidge. Savage, sāv'.age.

Salvage, goods saved from a wreck, recompense given to those who save stores in a wreck.

Selvage, the edge of cloth which will not unravel.

Savage, ferocious, an uncivilised man.

Salvor, sāl'.vōr. Salver, sāl'.ver. Salver, sāh'.ver.

Salvor, one who saves the goods of a wreck.

Salver, a metal tray with feet. (Spanish salvilla.)

Salver = sāh'.ver, one who salves wounds. (O. E. salfere.)

"Salvage," French salvage now sauvelage (v. sauver; Latin salvāre).

"Selvage," corruption of selvedge, i.e., "self edge."

"Savage," Fr. sauvage (Lat. silva, a forest), one living in a forest.

Salvation, sāl'.vay'.shūn, redemption of man through the blood of Christ, preservation, deliverance. (Latin salvātio.)

Salve, sāhv (to rhyme with halve, calve). Save, sāve, to rescue.

Salve, an ointment for healing, to apply a salve; sālvēd (1 syl.); salv-ing, sāl'.ving; salv-er, sāh'.ver.

Old Eng. salf or sealf, v. sealf[ian], past sealfode, past part. sealfod.

There is also salvēd used as an adjective: Latin sālus, health.

"Save" (to rescue), Latin salvo (sālus, health, safety).

Salver, sāl'.ver (not sāh'.ver), a tray on which things are presented or offered to others. (Spanish salvilla.)

Salvia, plu. salvias, the sanative plant, a garden flower.

Latin salvia, sage (salus, health). "Cur moriatur homo cui salvia crescit in horto?" according to the school of Salernum.

Salvo, plu. salvos (Rule xlii.), sāl'.vōze, firing guns by way of salute, an exception, reservation, proviso.

Salvo jure (Latin), without prejudicing a lawful right.

Salvo pudore (Lat.), -pū.dōr're, without offending modesty.

Salvo sensu (Latin), without perverting the meaning.

Latin salvo, to be in health; salve, all hail! salvo, to save.

Sal-volatile, sāl'.vo.lūt''.ī.le (sometimes sal.vōl'.ā.tile), carbonate of ammonia. (The volatile salt.)

Sam- (native prefix sām-), Latin semi-, half. It is not uncommon, and some of the words might be restored: as sam-burnt, sam-quick (half alive and half dead), sam-green, sam-learned, sam-witted, sam-wrought (half done), but the only example we have is sam-blind ["sand-blind"].

Samaritan, sa mār'ri.tān, an inhabitant of Samā'ria, the ancient Hebrew letters or alphabet, pertaining to Samaria.

A good Samaritan, a very benevolent person (Lk. x. 30-35).

Sambo, săm'.bo, the issue of an Indian and a Negro. (Span. zambo.)

Mulatto, the issue of a white man and a Negress. (Ital.)

Quadroon, four removes from Negro blood. (Fr. quateron.)

Sāme (1 syl.), identical; same'-ness. (Old Eng. sama or same.)

Samian, sā'.mī.ăn, adj. of Samos. The Samian sage, Pythagoras.

Samiel, sā'.mī.ěl, a hot pestilential wind of Arabia, the simoom'.

Turkish sam-yeli, poison wind; Arabic samm, poison.

Samite, săm'.ite. Psammite, săm'.ite, fine sandstone.

Samite, a fine silk cloth with six threads.

"Samite," Gk. hexamītos, six threads (hex six, mītos a thread). So

"dimity" is two threads (di- two, mītos a thread).

"Psammite," Greek psammos, sand (psao, to crumble).

Sam'let or salmonet, săm'.đ.nět, a young salmon. (See Salmon.)

Samphire, săm'.fire (not san'fer), the herb St. Peter.

Cri'thum is called St. Pierre or rock samphire, from its growth on rocks, as on Dover Cliffs [Lear iv. 6], (petros, a rock).

Sample, săm'.p'l, a specimen; sam'pler, a piece of ornamental needle-work. (Contr. of ensample. Latin exemplum.)

Sanable, săn'.a.b'l, curable. Sanability, săn'.a.bil''.i.ty; san'-able-ness. Sanative, săn'.ă.tiv; san'ative-ness.

Sanatory, săn'.ă.tō.ry. Sanitary, săn'.ă.tă.ry.

Sanatory, conducive to health. (Latin sanatio, healing.)

Sanitary, pertaining to health. (Latin sanitudo, health.)

Latin sănābilis, v. sănāre. There is no such word as sanible, and no such Latin verb as sanire. (See Sanitary—"ERRORS OF SPEECH.")

San benito, plu. san benitos, sahn bēn'.ă.tōze, a short linen dress with demons painted on it, worn by persons condemned by the inquisition. (French bénitier, an aspersorium.)

Sanctify, sănk'.tīfy, to make holy, to consecrate; sanctifies, sănk'.tī.fize; sanctified, sănk'.tī.fide; sanctifi-er (R. xi.), sanc'tify-ing. Sanctification, sănk'.tī.fī.kay''.shūn.

Latin sanctificatio, sanctificatio (sanctus ficio[ficio], to make holy).

Sanctimonious, sănk'.tī.mō''.nī.ūs, having the semblance of sanctity; sanctimo'nius-ly, sanctimo'nius-ness.

Sanctimony, sănk'.tī.mō.ny. Sanctimonial, sanctimonious.

Latin sanctimōnia, sanctimōniālis (sanctus, holy).

Sanction, sănk'.shūn, countenance, approval, to corroborate by approval; sanctioned (2 syl.), sanction-ing, sanction-er.

Latin sanctio, a penal statute, permission, authoritative right.

Sanctity, sănk'.tī.ty, holiness, inviolability. (Latin sanctitas.)

Sanctuary, plu. sanctuaries (Rule xlv.), sănk'.tū.ă.riz, a holy place, a place of refuge. (Latin sanctuārium, sanctus.)

Sanctum, sănk'.tum, a private room, a place not to be violated.

Sanctum sanctōrum, the holy of holies.

Sanctus, the ter-sanctus or tris-ag'ion of the Milan church.

It consists of the words "Holy, holy, holy, Lord God of hosts, heaven and earth are full of thy glory. Glory be to thee, O Lord, most high." Lat. ter-sanctus, thrice holy; Gk. tris-ag'ion, thrice holy.

Sănd, stones reduced to powder, to sprinkle with sand; sand'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), sand'-ing, sand'-y, (comp.) sand'-i-er, (super.) sand'-i-est, sand'-i-ness (Rule xi.)

The sands, the sea beach. Sand-bag, sand-bath, sand-box, sand-drift, sand-eel, sand-paper, sand-stone.

Old English sand or sond, sand-hyll, sandiht sandy.

Sand-blind, partially blind. (Corruption of sam-blind.)

Old English sam-, half; Latin semi-. (See Sam-.)

Sandal, săn'.d'l, a shoe with straps round the ankle; sandaled, săn'.d'ld, wearing sandals; sandal'iform. Scandal, q.v.

Lat. sandalium; Gk. sandalion, sandalon (sănis gen. săntdos, a board).

San'dal-wood (corrup. of santal wood, which should be restored), a wood which becomes highly odoriferous when dry.

Genus santalum, order santalaceæ. Arabic sonadilin.

Sandwich, sănd'.wîch, a slice of meat between two very thin slices of bread. (So called from the noted John, Earl of Sandwich, usually called Jemmy Twitcher, 1718-1792.)

Săne, sound, of sound intellect; sane'-ly, sane'-ness.

Sanity, săn'.ă.ty. (Latin sănitas, sănus; Greek saôs.)

Sang froid, sahng frivah (French), indifference, coolness.

Sangreal, sahn grăle, the cup used by Christ at the last supper and brought to England by Joseph of Arimathæa. Other legends say it contained blood from the wounds of Christ.

Either Old Fr. grasal, a cup, or a corruption of Lat. sanguis realis.

Sangui-, sanguini- (Latin prefix), blood (sanguis, sanguinis).

Sangui-ferous, săn.gwîf'.ě.rûs, conveying blood.

Latin sangui-[sanguis, gen. sanguinis]fěro, I carry the blood.

Sangui-fy, săn'.gwě.fy, to produce blood, to convert chyle [kîle] into blood; sanguifies, săn'.gwě.fize; sanguified, săn'.gwě.fide (Rule xi.); sanguifi-er, săn'.gwě.fî.er; sanguify-ing. Sanguification, săn'.gwî.fî.kay''.shûn.

Latin sanguificatio (Latin sanguis ficio[făcio], to make blood).

Sanguinary, săn'.gwî.nă.ry, bloody, bloodthirsty; sanguinari-ly, Rule xi. (Latin sanguinarius, sanguis.)

Sanguine, săn'.gwîn (not săn'.gwîne), eager, hopeful; sanguine-ly, sanguine-ness.

Sanguineous (Rule lxvi.), săn.gwîn'.ě.ûs, bloody.

Latin sanguiněus, v. sanguinäre (sanguis, gen. sanguinis, blood).

Sanguini-vorous, săn'.gwî.nîv''.ě.rûs, feeding on blood.

Latin sanguis genitive sanguinis voräre, to devour blood.

Sangui-suge, săn'.gwî.sûdge, the blood-sucker, a leech.

Latin sanguisuga, the horseleech (sanguis sûgere, to suck blood).

Sanhedrim, săn'ĕ.drĭm, the great Jewish council of seventy elders which heard appeals from other courts.

A corruption of the Greek sunēdrion, συνέδριον (not συνέδριον), sun-edreuo, to sit in council together. The h cannot be expressed.

Sanitary, săn'ĭ.tŭ.ry. Sanatory, săn'ĭ.tŏ.ry.

Sanitary, pertaining to health, conducing to health.

Sanatory, curative, healing. (Latin sănāre, to cure.)

Sanitarium, săn'ĭ.tair''rĭ.ŭm, a convalescent home.

Sanity, săn'ĭ.ty, soundness of mind. (Latin sănĭtas.)

"Sanitary," Latin sănĭtas. "Sanatory," Latin sănāre, to cure.

ERRORS OF SPEECH—

The sanatory arrangements of our village are excellent [sanitary].

The sanatory commissioners [sanitary].

Our sanatory laws require amendment [sanitary].

Many herbs are sanitary [sanatory].

I am a subscriber to the sanatarium [sanitarium].

The sanatory condition of the town [sanitary].

Sanskrit, săn'.skrit, the sacred language of the Hindŭs.

Like the Persian Zend it is a "dead" language. Colbrooke says it means "the polished language" (Asiatic Researches, vii. 200).

Săp, the circulating fluid of plants, to undermine; sapped, săp't; sapp'-ing, sapp'-er (R. i.); sapp'ers and miners.

Sap'-less, without sap; sapp'-y (R. i.), sapp'i-ness (R. xi.)

Sap'-ling, a young tree (-ling diminutive). Sap'-green, a pigment obtained from buckthorn berries. Sap'-wood.

"Sap" (of plants), Old Eng. sæp or sæpp, sæpig sappy, sæpleas.

"Sap" (to undermine), Fr. sape, v. saper, from Ital. zappa, a spade.

Sapajou, săp'.ă.joo, a S. American monkey. (Braz. sajuassu.)

Sapid, săp'.id, flavorful. Insipid, in.sĭp'.id, flavorless.

Sapid-ness, flavorsomeness. Insipid-ness, mawkishness.

Sapĭd'ity, fulness of flavour. Insipĭd'ity, absence of flavour.

Latin săplĭdus, v. săpio, to savour. Insplĭdus, insptĭdtas.

Sapient, să'.pi.ent, wise (used ironically); sa'pient-ly; sapience, să'.pi.ense. (Latin săpiens gen. săpientis, săpio.)

Saponaceous (R. lxvi.), săp'.o.nay''.shŭs, resembling soap, soapy.

Lat. săpo gen. săpŏnis; Gk. săpŏn; Old Eng. săpe; soap.

Saporific, să'.po.rĭf''.ĭk. Soporific, so'.po.rĭf''.ĭk.

Saporific, giving flavour. (Lat. săpor facio, I give flavour.)

Soporific, producing sleep. (Lat. sŏpor facio, I produce sleep.)

Sapphic, săf'.fĭk, a classic metre, so named from Sappho.

Sapphire, săf'.fire, a precious stone of a blue colour.

Hebrew sappir; Greek sappheiros; Latin sapphĭrus.

Saraband, săr'ră.bănd, the Spanish minuet. (Span. zarabanda.)

French sarabande, de la comédienne espagnole Zarabanda, qui la première dansa cette danse en France (Bouillet).

Saracen, săr' rŭ.sĕn, a Mussulman, an Arabian; Saracenic, săr' rŭ.sĕn'' ĭk, adj. of Saracen.

(The "Saracens" were Arabians, the "Turks" are Tartars.)

Arab. sharkeyn, the eastern people. Mag'haribĕ, the western people.

Sarcasm, sar'.kazm, a taunt; sarcastic, sar.kŭs'.tik; sarcastical, sar.kŭs'.tĭ.kŭl; sarcas'tical-ly, in a gibing manner.

Gk. sarkasmŏs, v. sarkazo, to tear the flesh from the bones (sarx, flesh).

Sarcenet, sarce'.net, a fabric used for ribbons, linings, &c.

Italian saracinetto, Saracen-silk; called in French florence.

Sarco- (Greek prefix), flesh, fleshy (sarx gen. sarkos, flesh).

Sarco-carp, the fleshy part of fruits. (Gk. karpos, fruit.)

Sarco-cele, -seĭ, a fleshy tumour. (Gk. kĕlē, a tumour.)

Sarco-col, a substance resembling gum. (Gk. kolla, glue.)

Sarcode, sar'.kŏde, the fleshy mass of a protozŏa.

Greek sarkŏdĕs (sarx eidos), like flesh, fleshy.

Sarco-derm, the fleshy covering of seed. (Gk. derma, skin.)

Sarco-lemma, -lem'.mah, the tubular sheath of muscular fibre. (Greek [sarx gen. sarkos] lemma, rind, husk.)

Sarcoline, sar'.kŏ.lĭn, flesh-coloured. (Gk. sarx gen. sarkos.)

Sarco-lite, sar'.kŏ.lĭte, a flesh-coloured stone.

Greek sarco-[sarx gen. sarkos] lĭthos, flesh [coloured] stone.

Sarco-logy, sar.kŏl'.ŏ.dgy, that branch of anatomy which treats of the fleshy parts of the body; sarcological, sar'.kŏ.lodgy''.ĭ.kŭl; sarcolog'ist, one skilled in...

Greek sarco-[sarx gen. sarkos] lŏgŏs, treatise on the flesh.

Sarcoma, sar.kŏ'.mah, a flesh tumour not inflammatory; sarcomatous, sar.kŏ'.mă.tŭs, of the nature of sarcoma.

For sarcodĕ'ma. A corrupt compound of the Greek sarx genitive sarkos (flesh), and oidĕma, a swelling.

Sarco-phagus, sar.kŏf'.ă.gŭs, a stone coffin; sarcophagous, sar.kŏf'.a.gŭs, feeding on flesh; sarcophagy, sar.kŏf'.ă.djy, the practice of eating flesh (-us, noun; -ous, adj.)

Greek sarco-[sarx gen. sarkos] phăgŏ, I eat flesh.

The stone coffins so called were made of lapis Assius, said to have the property of decomposing bodies in a very short time (eating away the flesh), Pliny xxxvi. 27.

Sarcosis, sar.kŏ'.sĭs, generation of flesh: sarcotic, sar.kŏl'.ĭk, that which promotes the growth of flesh.

Greek sarkŏsis, v. sarkŏŏ, to make fleshy (sarx gen. sarkos).

Sardine stone, sar'.dĭn... Sardine, sar.deen', a fish.

Sardine stone, a brownish red carnelian or chalcedony.

Sardine, a species of pilchard usually potted.

Sardius, sar'.dĭ.ŭs, a ruby (Ex. xxviii. 17; Rev. xxi. 20.)

"Sardine stone," first found in Sardis, of Asia Minor.

"Sardine," French sardine, caught in the Sardinian Sea.

Sardian, sar'.dī.ăn, adj. of Sardinia, a native of Sardinia.

Sar'dian laugh. Sardonic laugh, sar.dōn'ăk lâhf.

Sardian laugh means crying.

Sardonic laugh means a Satanic grin of contempt.

"Sardian laugh." The ancient Sardians used to get rid of their old relations by casting them into deep pits, and expected the victims to "laugh with gratitude" at their release from suffering.

"Sardonic laugh" or "smile." The herb Sardonia is so acrid that it produces a sort of convulsive laugh or grin.

Sardonyx, sar'.dō.năx, the most valued of the onyx stones, consisting of stripes of red and white.

A stone combining the sardine and onyx (Pliny xxxvii. 6).

Sark, a shirt; sarked (1 syl.), covered with thin deals; sark'-ing.

Old English syr or serc, a shirt. Only used in Scotland.

Sarmatian, sar.may'.shē.ăn, a native of Sarmatia, adj. of Sarmatia (from the Vistula to the Don).

Sarment, sar'.ment, a runner (like that of strawberries) which gives off roots and leaves at intervals; sarmentous.

Sarmentose, sar'.mên.tō".sē, sarmentous plants.

Latin sarmentum, a twig or shoot. French sarment sarmenteux.

Sarsaparilla, sar'.să.pă.ril'.lah (not săs'.ă.pă.ril'.la), the root of an Indian plant used in medicines.

Span. zarzaparilla; Fr. salsepareille; Ital. salsapariglia. The French word is the worst. Span. sarza or zarza, a bramble, and parilla, a vine. The l and e of the French salse- are indefensible.

Sar'sen stones, large blocks of sandstone in Wiltshire and Berks.

Popularly called grey wethers, and once supposed to be connected with Druidical worship. The Christians of the middle ages called every one a Saracen who was not a Christian. Hence Robert Ricart says Duke Rollo was "a Sarasyu out of Denmark."

Sartorius, sar.tō'.ră.ăs, the muscle of the thigh which enables us to sit "tailor fashion," i.e., with one leg across the other.

Latin sartor genitive sartōris, a botching tailor.

Săsh, a belt with long ends, sometimes worn round the waist and sometimes over one shoulder and across the breast, a sliding window-frame, to fit with sashes; sashed (1 syl.), sash-ing, sash-bolt, sash-fastener, sash-frame, sash-line, sash-saw, sash-window.

"Sash" (a belt), an Arabic word. "Sash" (a frame), Fr. châssis.

Sassafras, săs'.sa.frăs, the root of a tree used in medicine.

Fr. sassafras; Germ. sassafrass; Lat. saxifraga (saxum frangere), I break the stone (i.e., the calculus), which it is supposed to break up).

Sastra, Shastra, or Shaster, săs'.trah, shăs'.trah, shăs'.ter, the sacred books of the Hindûs. (Hind. shastr or shastra.)

The six great sastras are (1) the Vedas, (2) the Upa-vedas, (3) the Vedāṅga, (4) Upāṅgas, (5) the Puranas, (6) the Dharma-shastra.

Satan, sā'tan (not sāt'an). Saturn, sāt'urn. Satin, sāt'īn.

Satan, the chief of the fallen angels, the devil; satanic, sa.tān'īk; satanical, sa.tān'ī.kāl; satan'ical-ly.

Gk. sātdnas; Lat. sātdnas, from the Heb. S[a]T[a]N, an adversary.

"Saturn," the father of Jupiter, same as the Gk. Chronos, Father Time.

"Satin" (a glossy silk cloth the warp of which shows only on the wrong side), Fr. satīn (Lat. sēta, hair, or Arab. sadin, tissue).

Sāte (1 syl.), to satisfy the appetite, to surfeit; sāt'-ed (R. xxxvi.), sāt'-ing, R. xix. (Lat. sātiāre, to cloy; Gk. satto, to burden.)

Old English sad[ian], to sate, past sadode, past part. sadod.

Satellite, sāt'ēl.lite, a small planet [as the Moon] which accompanies a large one [the Earth] and revolves round it.

Italian satellite; French satellite; Latin satelles, a pursuivant.

The Earth has 1, Jupiter 4, Saturn 8, Uranus 6, Neptune (?).

Satiate, sā'-shē.ate, to cloy; sa'tiāt-ed (R. xxxvi.), sa'tiāt-ing; satiable, sā'.shē.a.b'l; sa'tiably. Satiety, sa.ti'.ē.ty.

Latin sātiētas, sātiāre (Greek satto, to load or burden).

Satin, sāt'īn, a glossy silk cloth. Satan, sā'tān, the devil. Sat'in-y. Satin-wood, wood of an East Indian tree.

French satīn; Arabic sadin, tissue, or Latin sēta, hair, or thread as fine as hair, hence setāba [sudaria], a fine cambric handkerchief obtained from Sētābis, in Spain (Pliny).

Satire, sāt'tire, a caustic censure. Satyr, sāt'r, a sylvan god.

Satiric, sā.tīr'īk; satirical, sā.tīr'ī.kāl; satir'ical-ly.

Satirise (R. xxxi.), sāt'ī.rize, to censure satirically; sat'irised (3 syl.); satiris-ing, sāt'ī.ri.zing; sat'irist.

"Satire," Latin sātīra, sātūra, or sātūra. The sātūra was a hotch-potch or gallymawfry, and hence poems without method.

"Satyr," Lat. sātyrus (from Gk. sathé). If satire is the same word it is "quod in hoc genere carminis res ridiculæ pudendæque scribantur."

Satisfy, sāt'īs.fy, to content; satisfies, sāt'īs.fize (Rule xi.); satisfied, sāt'īs.fide; sat'isfi-er, sat'isfy-ing, -ing-ly.

Satisfaction, sāt'īs.fāk''.shūn; content, amends, atonement.

Satisfactory, sāt'īs.fāk''.tō.ry; satisfac'tori-ly (Rule xi.), satisfac'tori-ness. Self-satisfied, -sāt'īs.fide.

Lat. sātisfacio, sātisfactio, sātisfio to be satisfied (sātis, enough).

Satrap, sāt'rāp, a Persian viceroy or provincial governor.

Satrapy, sāt'rā.py, the province of a satrap; sat'rapal.

Greek satrapēs, satrapeia; Latin satrapa (a Persian word).

Saturate, sāt'.ū.rate, to sop, to impregnate to fulness; sat'urāt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), sat'urāt-ing (Rule xix.), sat'urable.

Saturation, sāt'.u.ray''.shūn; sāt'urant, satu'rity.

Latin sātūratio, sātūritas, sātūrāre (satur, full of food).

Saturday, sāt'.ur.day, the last day of the week.

Old English Seater dæg, Seater's day (one of the Norse deities).

Saturn, săt'urn, Old Father Time of Roman mythology, one of the planets, in heraldry black; saturn'ian, happy, pure; saturnian age, the golden age. Saturnine, săt'ur.nine, under the influence of Saturn, dull, gloomy, phlegmatic. Saturnist, săt'ur.nist, one born under the planet Saturn and therefore dull and grave. Saturnalia, săt'ur.nay''.hah, the annual festival of Saturn, a period of unrestrained festivity even for slaves.

Latin Saturnus, saturninus. (Cicero says: quod satur annis.)

Satyr, săt'r, a sylvan god. Satire, săt'tire, caustic criticism.

Satyr, half a man and half a goat (the upper half being man, with long ears); satyrian, săt'tir'ri.ăn, relating to Satyrs; satyric, săt'tir'rik. Satyriasis, săt'ä.ri''.ăsis, lascivious insanity, elongation of the bones of the temple.

Latin sătýrus; Greek sătýrös, sătýriasis (sathé, Beeman).

"Satire," Latin săttra, sătura or sătýra. (See Satire.)

Sauce (1 syl.), a condiment for food, insolence, pertness.

Saucy, impertinent, rude, (comp.) sau'ci-er, (super.) sau'ci-est, sau'ci-ness, sau'ci-ly Sauce-pan, a cooking vessel.

French sauce; Latin salsus, salted (sal, salt).

Sauerkraut, sour'.kröwt, cabbage cut fine, pickled, and allowed to ferment. (German sauer kraut, sour cabbage.)

Saunter, sahn'.ter, to wander about listlessly, to loiter; sauntered, sahn'.terd; saunter-ing, saunter-er.

Trench says it is derived from la sainte terre, and means one who wasted time by visiting the Holy Land, a fashionable amusement of the middle ages. This, however, is very doubtful. It is more likely a corruption of the Germ. schlentern to lounge, schlenderen to saunter, schlender an easy lounging walk.

Saurian, saw'.ri.ăn, a scaly reptile of the lizard or crocodile kind, pertaining to the saurian family.

Sauria, saw'.ri.ah, a sub-order of reptiles.

-sauria (postfix), an order: as Enalio-sauria, Dino-sauria.

-saur, plu. -*saur*s or -saurus, plu. -sauri, a genus, species, or single specimens of the saurian family.

As the words belonging to this class are generally long and difficult, -saur, -*saur*s are preferable to -saurus, -sauri.

Sauro-, saur- before vowels. (Greek sauros, a lizard.)

(i.) -saur, -saurus, plu. -*saur*s, -sauri, -sauria.

Acro-saur or -saurus, ăk'.ro-sör, South Africa. (Gk. akros).

Archego-saur or -saurus, ar.kée'.go- (of the coal era).

Gk. archēgos sauros, the first type or ancestral root of the saurians.

Cap'ito-saur or -saurus (a genus, order Labyrinthodontia).

A hybrid coined by Münster. Lat. capito, a cod-fish [saurian].

Cetio-saur or -saurus, sē'.tī.o- (a blunder for Ceto-saur), the cetaceous saurian (found in the Wealden).

Greek kētos sauros, the whale lizard or saurian.

Saurian (continued).

Con'chio-saur or -saurus (a genus, order Enalio-sauria).

A word coined by Von Meyer, derivation not obvious.

Con'ia-saur or -saurus, saurian fragments (Wealden).

Greek kōnta sauros, dust or fragments of a saurian.

Dino-sauria, dī'.nō.saw''.rī.ah, an order of saurians; dino-saur or -saurus, one of the above group or order.

Greek deinos sauros, the dread saurian, so called not only from its great size but also for its blood-thirsty nature.

Dolicho-saur or -saurus, long saurian (order Lacertilia).

Greek dōlīchos sauros, the long saurian.

Enalio-sauria, ēn.āl'.ī.o..., the sea-saurian group.

Enalio-saur or -saurus, one of the above group or order.

Greek ēnalios sauros, marine saurian (en hals, in the sea).

According to our usual system this word ought to be enhalio-saur.

Hylæo-saur or -saurus (a genus, order Dinosauria).

Gk. hulaios sauros, the forest saurian. (Found in the Wealden.)

Ichthyo-saur or -saurus, īk'.rhī.o... (a genus of sea saurians, order Enalio-sauria. Of the Lias). Gk. ichthus, a fish.

Macroscelo-saur or -saurus, māk'.ro.skēl''.o.sōr (a species, genus Tangstrophæus, order Enalio-sauria, a sea-saurian of the muschelkalk), long-legged saurian (v. Scelido-).

Greek makro-[makros]skēlōs sauros, long-legged saurian.

This name is a blunder. Count Münster mistook certain bones of the vertebral column for bones of the leg.

Mas'tōdon-saur or -saurus (a genus, order Labyrinthodontia).

Gk. maslos odous gen. odontos, sauros, the nipple-toothed saurian.

Meg'ālo-saur or -saurus (a genus, order Dinosauria), the monster saurian (of the Oolite and Wealden strata).

Greek mēgas genitive mēgālou sauros, the huge saurian.

Mōsa-saur or -saurus. (Better mosæ-saur.)

Latin Mōsa, the Meuse (of Germany); Greek sauros, saurian of the Meuse. Found in the upper chalk near Maestricht.

Mystrio-saur or -saurus, mīs'.trī.o.sōr or -saw'.rūs (a genus, order Labyrinthodontia), the doubtful saurian.

An ill-compounded word by Prof. Goldfuss, to express a doubt of the fossil. Greek mustērikos sauros, mystical saurian. A far better word would be apēro-sauros, a doubtful saurian.

Notho-saur or -saurus, nō'.rtho.sor (a genus of sea-saurians, order Enalio-sauria, from the New Red Sandstone).

Greek nōtho-[nōthos]sauros, a non-legitimate saurian.

Odon'to-saur or -saurus (a genus, order Labyrinthodontia).

Gk. odous gen. odontos sauros, the toothed saurian. A name devised by Von Meyer from part of a lower-jaw containing fifty teeth.

Palæo-saur or -saurus, pāl'.e.o.sor (a genus, order Thecodontia. From the Permian). Greek pālaos, antique.

Saurian (continued).

Phyto-saur or -saurus, fi'.to.sōr (a species, genus Bel'odon, order Thecodontia). A word devised by Jaeger.

Greek phuton sauros, a descendant of a saurian, one of the stock.

Pisto-saur or -saurus (a genus of sea-saurians, order Enalio-sauria. From the muschelkalk). Greek pistos, true.

Ple'sio-saur or -saurus (a genus of sea-saurians, order Enal'io-sauria), amphibious, noted for its long neck.

Greek plesios sauros, approximating a saurian or true lizard. Found in all strata from the muschelkalk to the close of the chalk.

Plio-saur or -saurus (a genus of sea-saurians, order Enal'io-sauria), similar to the plesio-saur, but with shorter neck. (Found in the Kimeridge and Oxford clays.)

Greek pleion sauros, more of a saurian than the plesio-saur, though not equal to the ichthyo-saur, the most perfect of the race.

Prōt'ōro-saur or -saurus (a genus, order Thecodon'tia), the Thuringian monitor. (From the Permian strata.)

An ill-compounded word by Von Meyer. There is no such word as protoros. The Greek is protos (first), prōtērōs (prior). The word should be prōto-saur, the first saurian, being for a long time the earliest known specimen of the saurian family.

Ptero-sauria, tēr'ro-saw'.ri.ah, the winged-saurian group or order; ptero-saur or -saurus, tēr'ro.sor, one of the pterosauria. (Found in the Wealden.)

Greek ptero-[ptērōn]sauros, a wing [furnished] saurian.

Raphio-saur or -saurus (a genus, order Lacertilia).

This word, coined by Professor Owen, is incorrect. The Greek is raphis gen. raphidōs, a needle or pin, and the word should be raphidō-saur. It refers to little fragments of bones about the size of pins and needles.

Rhyncho-saur or -saurus, rīn'.ko.sōr (a genus, order Cryp'todon'tia, found in the New Red Sandstone).

Greek rhynchos sauros, a saurian with a snout like a beak.

Scelido-saur or -saurus, skēl'.ĭ.do.sōr (a genus, order Dī'no-sauria), the saurian with legs. (v. Macroscelo.)

Greek skēlōs gen. skēlīdōs sauros, the saurian [furnished] with legs [for walking on land]. This word was coined by Professor Owen.

Sīmo-saur or -saurus (a genus of sea-saurians, order Enal'io-sauria). Greek simos sauros, the flat-nosed saurian.

Spheno-saur or -saurus, sfēn'.o.sōr (a genus of sea-saurians, order Enal'io-sauria. From a Sandstone in Bohē'mia).

Greek sfhēn gen. sfhēnōs sauros, the wedge-[bone] saurian, referring to the wedge-bones between each "centum."

Stēn'eo-saur or -saurus (a blunder for steno-saur. A genus, order Crocodilia. Found in the Chalk and Greensands.)

Greek stēno-[stenos]sauros, the narrow-[snouted] gavial.

There are several Greek compounds for models: as steno-pōros, &c.

Saurian (continued).

Sucho-saur or -saurus, sū'.ko... (a species, order Crocodilia. Of the Wealden). Etymology and meaning not obvious.

Tel'ōo-saur or -saurus (a genus, order Crocodilia. From the Lias to the Chalk). Gk. tēlios, complete.

Thecodonto-saur or -saurus, thē'.ko.dōn''.to.sūr (a genus, order Thecodon'tia. Found in the Lias).

Greek thēké, a case, box, or socket, odous gen. odontōs sauros, a saurian with teeth fixed in [distinct] sockets.

Tremato-saur or -saurus, trē'.mū.to.sūr (a genus, order Labyrinthodon'tia. Carboniferous and Triassic periods).

Gk. trēma gen. trēmātos sauros, a saurian with a hole bored through [the parietal walls]. Braun thought this a peculiarity, but it is now known that all saurians have the "parietal foramen."

Zy'go-saur or -saurus (a genus, order Labyrinthodon'tia. Found in the Permian beds). Gk. zugo, a yoke.

In anatomy, the "zygomat'ic arch" is the bony arch under which the "temporal" muscle passes. The bone is called zygō'ma or os jugal'e. In the zygo-saur the "temporal fossæ" are large and bounded by strong zygomatic arches, not roofed over.

The ORDERS of reptiles run thus, beginning from the most remote: (1) Gano-ceph'ala, (2) Labyrin'thodon'tia, (3) Thecodon'tia, (4) Enal'io-sauria, (5) Di'no-sauria, (6) Ptero-sauria, (7) Crocodi'tia, (8) Lacertil'ia.

(ii.) Sauro-, saur- before vowels. (Greek sauros, a lizard.)

Saur-ichthus, saw.rīk'.rhūs, a genus of fossil fishes.

Greek saur-[sauros]ichthus, a saurian fish.

Sauro-cephalus, -sēf'.ū.lūs, a genus of fossil fishes.

Greek sauro-[sauros]kēphalē, having a lizard's head. The present sword-fish is a degenerate representative of this family.

Saur-odon, saw'.rō.dōn, a genus of fossil fishes.

Greek sauro-odous gen. odontos, having crocodiles' teeth.

Sauroid, saw'.roid, having some saurian characteristic; sauroid'-āl. Sauroidei, saw.roi'.dē.i, a family of fossil sauroid fishes. (Greek sauros eidos, like a saurian.)

Saur-opsis, saw.rōp'.sis, a genus of sauroid fishes.

Greek sauro-opsis, of a saurian appearance, especially in the character and arrangement of the teeth.

Sauro-pterygia, saw.rop'.tē.ridg''.ā.ah, the family of flying-saurians, a sub-order of the order Enal'io-sauria.

The sauropterygian family contains the seven genera: Nō'tho-saurus, Pis'to-saurus, Con'chio-saurus, Si'mo-saurus, Sphē'ro-saurus, Ple'sio-saurus, and Plū'o-saurus.

Sauro-pus, saw'.rō.pūs, a genus of saurians whose footprints were noticed by Mr. Lea, of Philadelphia.

Greek sauro-[sauros]pous, the foot [prints] of a saurian.

Sauro-stomus, saw.rōs'.tō.mūs, a genus of fossil fishes. (Family sauroid'ei.) Greek sauros, stomos a mouth.

Sausage, sōs'sage, [pork] chopped very fine, seasoned, and stuffed into the gut of a pig. (Fr. saucisse; Lat. salsus.)

Savage, sāv'age, an uncivilised person, fierce, wild; savage-ly, savage-ness; savagery, sāv'.age.ry.

French sauvage, sauvagerie; Latin silvaticus (silva, a forest).

Savannah or savanna, savān'.nah, the great central plain of North America. In Canada a forest of pine trees. In the French colonies any extensive plain.

Pampas, the savannahs of South America.

French savane; Spanish sabana, a sheet [of pasture land].

Savant, sāv'.ahn, a man of learning. Sav'ants, the literati.

French savan, v. savoir; Latin sāpio, to be wise.

Sāve (1 syl.), to rescue, to deliver, to preserve; saved (1 syl.), sāv'-ing (R. xix.), saving-ly, saving-ness, sāv'-er.

Savings, sā'.vings, money laid by from time to time.

Savings bank (not saving bank), a bank for the deposit of small savings. Save-all, a holder for candle ends.

Saviour, save'.yer, the Redeemer, one who saves.

Sāfe (1 syl.), secure, free from danger; safe'-ly, safe'-ness; safety, sāfe'.ty. Salvation, sāl.vay'.shūn.

The following nouns change f to v in the verb: behooft, behave; belief, believe; disproof, disprove; grief, grieve; life, live; proof, prove; reproof, reprove; safe, save. [Add gift, give.]

French sauver, sauveur, sauf; Latin salvus, v. salvāre, salvātio.

Saveloy, sāv'.ē.loy, a kind of sausage sold ready cooked.

Fr. cervelas, the "marbled" sausage. "Cervelas" is marble streaked like the brain (cerveau or cervelle, the brain). Our word misleads.

Saviour, save'.yer, the Redeemer. Savour, sā'.vor, relish.

"Christus" Jesus, id est Christus Salvator, hoc est enim Latinè. Aug. "Jesus." "Salus" Latinum nomen est. Salvare et salvator non fuerunt hæc Latina antequam veniret Salvator; quando ad Latinos venit, et hæc Latina fecit. Hoc verbum Latina lingua antea non habebat, sed habere poterat, sicut potuit quando voluit (August. Serm. 299, 6).

Sa'vory, a herb. Savoury, say'.vo.ry, full of flavour.

"Savory," Fr. savorée; Lat. satureia. "Savoury," Fr. savoureux; Lat. sāpor, sāpōrus, v. sāpōrāre, sāpio, to savour.

Savour. Saver. Saviour. Savory. Savoury.

Savour, say'.v'r, flavour, taste, relish, to have a flavour; savoured, say'.v'rd; savour-ing, savour-less.

Savoury, say'.vō.ry, sapid. Sa'vory, a pot-herb.

Savouri-ly, say'.vō.rī.ly; sā'vouri-ness.

Saver, sā'.ver, one who saves. Saviour, save'.yer, Jesus Christ.

"Savour," Fr. saveur, v. savourer, savoureux; Lat. sāpor, sāpōrus.

"Saver," Fr. sauveur; Lat. salvāre. "Saviour," Lat. salvātor.

"Savory," Fr. savorée; Lat. satureia. "Savoury," Fr. savoureux; Lat. sāpor, sāpōrus, v. sāpōrāre, sāpio, to savour.

Savoy, plu. savoys, sǎ.voy', plu. sa.voyz', a winter cabbage.

German savoyen-kohl, the cabbage brought from Savoy (Sardinia).

Saw. Soar, sō'r. Sōre (1 syl.) Sour. Sower. Sewer.

Saw, a toothed instrument for cutting, a proverb or saying, to cut with a saw; sawed (1 syl.), saw'-ing; saw-yer, one whose occupation is to saw timber; sawn, past part. of saw. Saw-dust. Saw-fish, a fish with a long bony snout toothed like a saw. Saw-fly, saw-mill, saw-pit; saw-gin, an engine used in dressing cotton; saw-wrest, -rest, an instrument used for turning the teeth of a saw when it is "set;" saw-wort, -wert.

ERROR OF SPEECH. I saw him for I saw him.

"Saw" (an instrument), Old Eng. saga; Fr. scie; Lat. secare, to cut.

"Saw" (a saying), Old Eng. saga, v. sagan, to say. (See Proverb.)

"Saw" (verb see), O. E. seōr, past sedh, past part. ge-sewen or ge-sawen.

"Soar" (to mount like a hawk), Ital. sorare; Fr. essorer.

"Sore" (a wound, greatly, painfully), Old Eng. sār.

"Sour" (acid), Welsh sur.

"Sower" (one who sows seed), Old Eng. sawere, v. saw[an].

"Sewer" (one who sews with a needle), Old Eng. stwere, v. siw[ian].

"Sewer," su'er (a drain), a contraction of issuer, v. issue.

Saxifrage, sǎx'ǎ.frage, a plant; saxifragous (not saxifrageous), sax'ǎf'rá.gūs. (Lat. saxum, gen. saxi, frango, to break.)

The stone-breaker, i.e., what is medically termed calculus.

Calculos e corpore [saxifragum] mire pellit frangit-que (Plin. xxii. 30)

Sax'on, the language of the Saxons, adj. of Saxon; Saxon-ism, Saxon idiom; Saxon-ist, a Saxon scholar; Saxony, part of Germany; Saxon blue, sulphate of indigo for dye.

Old English Seaxa, Seaxan, or seacsa, seacsan (from seax, a dirk).

Say, something said, a remark, to speak, to utter words; said, sed, (past part.) said, sed; says, sêz; say'-ing, say'-er.

That is to say, which means (i.e. or id est, Latin, that is.)

Old English sæg[an], segg[an], or sag[an], past sêd, sêde, or sêgde, past part. ge-sêd or ge-sêgd.

REMARK (1) When that follows "said" only the substance of what the speaker said is required, otherwise the exact words should be quoted. Thus: "And God said: Let there be light. And there was light." "God said that Sarah should have a son." (2) In the Bible a comma follows "said" (when the exact words are given), but a colon (:) is more modern, after the French method. When that follows "said" no stop is needed.

Scab, a cicatrix, the crust formed over a wound, the sheep-mange; scabb-y, (comp.) scabbi-er, (super.) scabbi-est (R. i.), scabb'i-ness (R. xi.), scabb'i-ly; scabbed (1 syl.), having the sheep-mange; scabbed-ness, scāb'ed.ness.

(The following have only one b and the "a" pure.)

Scabies, skā'.bī.eze, the itch; scabious, skā'.bī.us, affected with the itch; scabiose, skā'.bī.ose (-ose, Latin -osus, full of); scabiosa, skā'.bī.ō''sah, a genus of plants.

Old English scæb, scēb, sceabb; Latin scābies, scābīōsus.

Scabbard, skāb'brd, the sheath of a sword; scab'bard-ed.

A corruption of scale-board (scale, a lamina or thin slice, as the scale of a fish). Made of a lamina of wood.

Scabrous, skā'brūs. Scabious, skā'bi.ūs.

Scabrous (in Bot.), rough, harsh, covered with fine hair.

Scabious, affected with the itch. (See above.)

Scabious-ly, scabious-ness. (Lat. scabiōsus; scāber, rough.)

Scaffold, skāf'fōld, a platform temporarily erected for workmen employed in building. Scaffolding, skāf'fōld.ing, a complicated scaffold for buildings of great height, adj. of scaffold; scaffold-ed, having a scaffold or scaffolding erected; scaffoldage, skāf'fōld.age (-age, collective).

Brought to the scaffold, put to death, hanged.

Fr. échafaud anciennement chaffaut, d'italien catafalco (Bouillet). The last syllable is the Latin fāla, a scaffold.

Scaglia, skāl'yē.ah, a red variety of chalk, an Italian rock.

Scagliola, skāl'yē.ō'.lah, imitation marble.

Ital. scaglia, a chip of marble; scagliuola diminutive of scaglia.

Scalade, ska.lade', or escalade, es'.ka.lade, mounting the walls of a besieged city by ladders: (French scalade.)

Scald, skōld, a Scandinavian bard, an injury from hot water, to burn by hot water, to expose to the action of boiling water; scald'-ed (R. xxxvi.), past part. scald'-ed or scalt.

Scald-head (not scalt-head), a pustular eruption which spreads over the hairy scalp and destroys the hair.

"Scald" (a bard), Icelandic skald; Norse skjald; German skalde.

"Scald" (burn with hot water), Dan. skolde; Lat. cāleo; Gk. kéleos.

"Scald head," Norse skolde-hoved, -blegn, skolde-kopper chicken-pox.

Scale, the dish of a balance, one of the laminae of a fish, lamina, a series of steps, (in Mus.) a regular series of notes, to take off the scales of a fish, to ascend or climb; scaled (1 syl.), scāl'-ing (Rule xix.); scal-er, skā'.ler; scal-y, skā'.ly, (comp.) sca'li-er, (super.) sca'li-est, sca'li-ness (R. xi.), scale'-less. Scales (1 syl.), a balance. Scal-able, skā'.lä.b'l, capable of being scaled (only -ce and -ge retain the -e before -able). Sca'ling-lad'der.

The scale of an instrument, its compass.

Diatōnic scale, the ordinary scale by tones.

Chromāt'ic scale, a series of notes by half tones.

Enharmōn'ic scale, a series of notes by quarter tones.

"Diatonic scale." It is not strictly a fact that a diatonic scale proceeds throughout by tones, as the intervals between E and F, B and C, are only half of those between C and D, F and G, A and B, but practically they are considered as tones.

The ancient Greeks used these terms in a slightly different sense.

- "Diatonic," a mode which proceeds by major-tones and semi-tones.
 "Chromatic," a mode which proceeds by semi-tones and minor thirds.
 "Enharmonic," which proceeds by quarter-tones and major thirds.
 "Scale" (a balance), Old English scalu or sealu.
 "Scale" (of a fish), Old English sciell or scel, plu. sceala.
 "Diatonic," Greek dia tōnōs, a tone throughout.
 "Chromatic," Greek chrōmātikōs (chrōma, colour), so called from the intermediate notes being displayed in colours.
 "Enharmonic," in Greek ēvapōvīkos not ēvāpōvīkos. The insertion of h in the middle of a word is not possible in Greek, except when an unaspirated consonant like t or p can be changed for an aspirated one, as th (θ) or ph (φ).

Scalene [triangle], ska.leen', a triangle with three unequal sides.

Isosceles [triangle], ī.sōs'.kē.leze, with two sides equal.

Equilateral [, ,], ē'.kwī.lāt''ē.rāl, with all three sides equal.

"Scalene," Gk. skālénōs limping, skālénōs arithmos an odd number.

"Isosceles," Gk. isos skelōs, [having] equal legs.

"Equilateral," Lat. equus lātus, [having] equal sides.

Scallop. Scollop. Shallop. Salop or Saloop. Sloop.

Scallop, skāl'.lōp, a bivalvular mollusc, a dish made to resemble a scallop shell.

Scollop, skōl'.lop, to cook in a scallop, to pectinate the edge of work; scolloped, skōl'.lōpt; scollop-ing; scollop-oysters, oysters cooked in a scallop with bread crumbs.

"Scallop," Dan. skal; Dutch schulpe. "Scollop," Fr. escalope.

"Shallop" (a boat with two masts), Germ. schaluppe; Fr. chaloupe.

"Salop" or "saloop" (a beverage), Turkish salleb'.

"Sloop" (a vessel with one mast), Dutch sloop; Germ. schlupe.

scalp, skālp, the skin of the pate on which the hair grows; the skin with its hair; to tear or cut off the scalp; scalped (1 syl.), scalp-ing; scalp'-er, a surgical instrument for scraping carious bones; scalping-knife, -nife, a sharp knife used by American Indians for scalping.

Scalpel, skāl'.pēl, a dissecting knife.

Latin scalpellum, scalprum, scalpēre to scrape; Greek skallo.

In scalping, each tribe has its special custom: Thus the Cheyennes remove a piece not larger than a shilling from the left side of the scalp, near the ear. The Arvapahoes take a similar portion from the right side. The Utes take the entire scalp from ear to ear, and forehead to neck. Others take from the crown, the forehead, &c.

Scammony, skām'.mō.ny, a plant used in medicine; scammoniate, skām'.mō.nā.te, containing scammony.

Old Eng. scamonia; Lat. scammōnia; Gk. skammōnia (from Gk. skapto, quia intestina fodit acrimonia sua, Isidorus).

Scamp, a worthless fellow, to do work superficially so as to pass muster and that is all; scamped, skāmp't; scamp-ing, scamp'-ish (-ish added to nouns means "like").

Scamper, skām'.per, to run about like children; scampered (2 syl.), scam'per-ing, scam'pering-ly, scam'per-er.

Fr. escamper, to scamper off; Ital. scampare, to save oneself by flight; s- priv. and camp (qui exit ex campo), a deserter; so "snob" is s- priv. and nobilis noble; "scape" is s- cāpēre, not to take; "sober" is s- ebrius, not tipsy; so se-grego, se-paro, se-cerno, se-jungo. In Ital., s- calzare is to take your shoes off, s- fornito is unfurnished, s- flottare to withdraw a ship from a fleet, s- brigliare to unbridle. So "scant" is s- kant (Dan.), without margin, &c.; "scorn," Ital. s- cornare, without a horn. (s-, Lat. se-[seorsum], asunder.)

Scān, to scrutinise, to read verses metrically; scanned (1 syl.), scann'-ing, scann'-er. (Lat. scandēre, to climb or scan.)

Scandal, skān'.d'l, calumny, detraction, ill-natured remarks.

Scandalize (R. xxxii.), skān'.dā.lize, to offend by improper actions, to give offence; scan'dalized (3 syl.), scan'dalizing, scan'daliz-er. Scandalous, skān'.dā.lūs; scan'dalous-ly, scan'dalous-ness. Scandal-monger.

Scan'dālum magnā'tum (in Law), calumnious remarks on magnates or peers. (Written scan. mag.)

Greek skandālōn, skandālizo to lay a snare for an enemy, hence a stumbling-block which proves a scandal or snare by which others fall, and hence remarks derogatory to one's reputation.

Scānt, short measure or quantity, sparse, to straiten, to stint; scānt'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), scant'-ing. Scant'y, barely sufficient; scan'ti-ly, scan'ti-ness; scant'-ness, narrowness. Danish s- privative, kant margin, without margin. (See Scamp.)

Scantling, skānt'.ling, a small piece, the pattern to which pieces of timber are to be cut, small pieces of timber.

Fr. échantillon, a pattern (du grec canthos, coin de l'œil, Roquefort).

Scāpe (1 syl.), in Bot. a stalk from the root bearing the flower but without leaves, as in the hyacinth; scape-less, without scape. (Lat. s- priv., cāpēre to take. See Scamp.)

Scape'-ment, a mechanical contrivance in clocks and watches.

'scape for escape. Scape-goat. Scape-grace.

"Scape," (in Botany) Lat. scāpus, a stem; Gk. sképōn, a prop.

Scapula, plu. scapulæ, skāp'pū.lah, plu. skāp'pū.lee, the shoulder-blade; scapular, skāp'pū.lar, adj. of scapula; scapulary, skāp'pū.lā.ry. Scap'ulars, the arteries near the shoulder-blade. (Latin scūpūla, scūpūlāris.)

Scar, skar. Shah. Czar. Scare. Score. Scaur. Scour.

Scar, the mark left by a wound which has healed, to leave a scar; scarred, skard; scarr'-ing (Rule i.)

"Scar," Fr. escarre, Gk. eschara, the scar from a burn.

"Shah," the title of the Persian sovereign (Persian shah, protector).

"Czar," zar, the title of the Russian sovereign (same as Caesar).

"Scāre" (1 syl.), to terrify (Ital. s- priv., and careggiare to allure).

"Scōre" (20), O. Eng. scor, v. scor[an] or scēr[an], to notch, to cut.

"Scaur," skōr, a naked detached rock (Scotch).

"Scour," skōw'r, to rhyme with shower, Old Eng. scūr, a shower.

Scarabæus, skār'rā.bec''.ūs, a beetle (especially the Hercūlēs beetle and the elephant beetle), an Egyptian hieroglyphic. Latin scarabæus; Greek kārābos; French scarabée.

Scaramouch, skär'rá.mouch (-mouch to rhyme with couch), a braggadocio and poltroon, a Spanish Bobadil.

From the Italian scaramuccio, a skirmisher; French scaramouch.

Dyche says it is the name of an Italian posture-master, who came to England in 1673; but this cannot be correct, as Tiberio Flurelli, the prince of scaramouches, was in his glory in 1608.

Scarce, skairce, rare, not plentiful, scattered; scarce'-ly, scarce'-ness. Scarcity, skair'.sī.ty, deficiency, want.

Ital. scarso ((?) s- priv., carco a load, not a load); Port. escaso.

Scaro, skair, to terrify; scāred (1 syl.); scār'-ing (Rule xix.), but scar, to leave the mark of a wound; scarred, scarr'-ing.

Scare'-crow, something to frighten away the birds.

Italian s- priv., careggiare, not to wheedle or allure. See Scamp.

Scarf, plu. scarfs (not scarves), a shawl, to notch two pieces of timber together; scarfed, skarft; scarf'-ing.

Old Eng. sceorp; Fr. écharpe. "Scarf" (timber), Span. escarpar.

(With one exception (thief, thieves), the only words which change "f" into -ves are the eleven which end in -af or -lf.)

Scarf-skin, the outer and visible membrane of the skin.

The skin consists of two distinct layers: (1) the outer or visible layer called the cuticle, epidermis, or epithelium, and (2) the corium or skin proper. Between these is the retē Malpighii, which is not an independent layer, but part of the epidermis, and its net-like appearance is due to the tearing away of the nervous papillæ.

Scarify, scār'ri.fy. Scarify, skare'-ī.fy, to frighten.

Scarify, skār'ri.fy, to scratch or cut slightly the skin so as to draw blood, to rake land with a scarifier; scarifies, skār'ri.fize; scarified, skār'ri.fide; scarifi-er, an agricultural instrument for cleaning land of weeds and roots; scarificator, skar'ri.fī.kā.tor (R. xxxvii.), a medical instrument for cupping, &c.; scarify-ing, skār ri.fy.ing.

Scarification, skār'ri.fī.kay''shūn, the act of scarifying.

Scarify, skāre'ī.fy, to scare or frighten; scarifies, skāre'ī.fize; scarified, skāre'ī.fide; scarify-ing, scārifi-er.

Latin scārficatio, lancing or opening a sore, scārficāre; Greek skārfismōs, a scratching or scraping up (skāpheus, a digger).

"Scarify" (to scare) has no pretension to a correct formation. It is a playful diminutive of "scare," but is in general use.

Scarlatina, skar.lā.tēc'.nah (ought to be skar.lūt'.īnah), rosālia, a mitigated form of scarlet fever; scarlatinous, skar.lūt'.īnūs, of the nature of scarlatina, adj. of scarlatina.

A very barbarous Italian word, scarlattina; French scarlatine.

Scarlet, skar'.let, a colour; scarlet-fever, scarlet runner, scarlet oak, -beech, &c. (Italian scarlatto, French écarlate.)

Scarp, that side of a ditch which slopes towards the fort, to cut down so as to make a rock or mound nearly perpendicular. Counter-scarp, the opposite slope of a scarp: thus in V one slope is the scarp, and the other the counterscarp (the scarp being next the building and the counter-scarp towards the foe); scarped (1 syl.), scarp'-ing.

Italian scarpa, contra-scarpa; French escarp, contrescarp.

Scath, skāth, injury; scāth'-less, scāthless-ness.

Old English scæth, sceathen, v. sceath[an] or sceth[an].

Scatter, skāt'.ter, to disperse; scattered, skāt'.tērd; scat'ter-ing, scat'tering-ly, scat'ter-er. Scatter-brains, a madcap.

Old Eng. scater[an], p. scaterde, p. p. scatered (Sax. Chron., 1137).

Scavenger, skāv'.ēn.djer (a blunder for scavager), one employed in cleaning streets, to clean streets; scavengered, skāv'.ēn.djerd; scav'enger-ing.

Old English scafan, to scrape. Scafager or scavager, originally a petty officer whose duty it was to see that the streets were clean. Latin scābēre, to scrape or scratch; Greek skapto, to dig. There was another word in ancient use scavage, a toll taken from vendors who exposed their stores in the street; Low Lat. scavagium, from the Old Eng. v. sceaw[ian] to inspect, scavagers inspectors.

Scene. Seen. Seine. (All seen.)

Scene, a prospect, a stage painting, part of a dramatic act, a painful exhibition of feeling; scenic, see'.nik; scenical, see'.nī.kāl; scenical-ly.

Scena (Italian), shā'.nah, a scene of an opera.

Scenery, plu. sceneries, see'.nē.rīz, the general view of a prospect, the painted representation of a prospect.

"Scene," Latin scēna, scēnicus; Greek skēnē; French scène.

"Seen" (beheld), Old English seōn, past sedh, past part. ge-sewen.

"Seine" (a fishing net), Old English segne (Lye's Dict. Sax.)

Scenographic, see'.no.grāf''.īk, drawn in perspective; scenographical, see'.no.grāf''.ī.kāl; scenograph'ical-ly.

Scenography, see.nōg'.rā.fy, the art of perspective.

Greek skēnē grapho, I draw scenes. (η and \omicron in composition are interchangeable, as $\pi\upsilon\rho\eta$ - $\phi\acute{o}\rho\omicron\varsigma$ for $\pi\upsilon\rho\omicron$ - $\phi\acute{o}\rho\omicron\varsigma$, $\theta\epsilon\eta\rho\acute{o}\kappa\omicron\varsigma$ for $\theta\epsilon\acute{o}\rho\omicron\kappa\omicron\varsigma$ and vice versa (Matthiæ Glk. Gr. p. 24).

Scent. Sent. Cent. (All sent.)

Scent, per'fume, to perceive by the organs of smelling, to perfume; scent'-ed, scent'-ing, scent'-less.

"Scent," French senteur, v sentir; Latin sentīre, to perceive.

"Sent" (p. and p. p. of "send"), O. E. send[an], p. sende, p. p. sendel.

"Cent." contrac. of Lat. centum (100), per cent. (for each hundred).

Sceptic, skēp'.īk. Septic, sēp'.īk. Anti-septic, an'.tī-sēp''.īk.

Sceptic, an infidel, a disbeliever; sceptical, skēp'.ī.kāl; scep'tical-ly, scep'tical-ness. Scepticism, skēp'.ī.sīzm.

Septic, tending to promote putrefaction.

Anti-septic, tending to arrest or prevent putrefaction.

"Sceptic" would be better skeptic, but we have borrowed our Greek from the French sceptique; Greek skēptikos, one who examines or thinks for himself and does not take upon trust.

"Septic," Greek septikos, v. sepo, to make rotten, to putrefy.

"Anti-septic," Greek anti-septikos, the antidote of putrefaction.

Sceptre, sep'ter (not skep.ter), a staff symbolical of royalty; sceptral, sep'trāl; sceptre-less; sceptred, sep'tr'd.

Latin sceptrum; Greek skēptrōn; French sceptre.

(There are 117 words beginning with sc-, in 40 of which sc = s, and in the other 77 it equals sk.)

In sca-, sc-, sco-, scr-, and scu-, sc always = sk.

In sci- (with one exception) and scy-, sc always = si.

In sce- and sch- the c is lost in eight examples, ch is lost in one example, and in ten examples sc- or sch- = sk.

See = se: scene, scenograph, scent, sceptre.

= sk: sceptic.

Sch = sh: schedule, Scheele's green, Schiller's spar, schist.

= s: schism (sizm).

= sk: scheme, schene, scheroma, schizopod, scholar, scholastic, scholiast, school, schooner.

Sci = sk: scirrus. In all other cases sci = si.

Schedule, shēd'ūle, an inventory, an annex to a document, a category or class list, to put in a schedule, to catalogue, &c.; sched'uled (2 syl.); schedul'ing, shēd'du'ling.

Lat. schēdūla (shēda, a sheet of paper, a sheet of notes; Gk. schēdē).

Scheele's green, sheel's..., a green pigment (arsenite of copper).

First prepared by C. W. Scheele, the Swedish chemist (1742-1786).

Scheererite, sheer'rē.rite, a mineral resin occurring in peat, &c.

Discovered by Von Scheerer, after whom it is named.

Scheme, skeem, a contrivance, a plan, a project, to intrigue, to form a scheme; schemed (1 syl.), schēm'-ing (Rule xix.); schem-er, skee'mer. (Latin schēma; Greek schēma.)

Scheroma, skērō'mah, inflammation of the eye arising from deficient lachrymal secretions. (A blunder for xērom'ma.)

Greek xērōs omma, a dry eye; xērōtēs omma, dryness of the eye.

The double o coalesce into a long o, but the double m is required.

Schiller-spar, shil'ler.spar, an iridescent mineral.

German schillerspath, schillern, to exhibit a play of colours.

Schism, sizm, a division in a sect (especially a religious sect).

Schismatic, siz.māt'ik, one who separates from a sect from difference of opinion, adj. of schism.

Schismatical, siz.māt'ikāl; schismat'ical-ly.

Schismatise (Rule xxxi.), siz'mā.tize, to take part in a schism; schismatised (3 syl.), schis'matīs-ing (Rule xix.)

Latin schisma, schismāticus, v. schismāticare; Greek schisma.

Our pronunciation of this word is from the French schisme.

Schist, shist, certain slate-rocks which split into thin lamina (as gneiss [nice] and mica-schist); schistic, shis'tik.

Schistose, shis'tōse. (Greek schistos, split; schizo.)

This word should be pronounced skist, as "schism" should be skizm.

Schizopod, skiz'ō.pōd, a cleft-footed crustacean, like the opossum shrimp. (Greek schistos pous gen. pōdos, cleft-foot.)

Schist and shizopod both come from the same Greek word schistos, but the former we pronounce shist and the latter skiz-. We obtain both from the French: schist, French schiste, and it was P. A. Latreille, the French naturalist, who coined the word schizopod.

Scholar, skōl'er, a student, one under tuition, one who has obtained a scholarship; scholar-ly, skōl'er.ly.

Scholar-ship, a premium for proficiency derived from money funded for the purpose, learning.

Scholastic, sko.lās'tik. adj. of school; scholastical, sko.lās'-.tī.kāl; scholas'tical-ly; scholasticism, sko.lās'tī.siz.m.

Scholas'tic philosophy, fī.lōs'ō.fj, the philosophy of Aristotle and Plato applied to Christianity.

Scholastic divinity, rationalism, philosophic divinity.

School, skool, a place for tuition, a philosophic sect, to instruct, to reprove; schooled (1 syl.), school'-ing.

School'-man, plu. school'-men, one versed in speculative philosophy and divinity, one of the philosophical divines of the middle ages. (From the 9th to the 14th cent.)

School'-master, fem. school'-mistress, a tutor, the master [or mistress] of a school. Ush'er, an undermaster.

School'-boy, fem. school'-girl, a boy or girl who attends school, one of a school-boy or school-girl age.

School'-days; school'-fellow, one of the same school and at the same period of time.

School'-mate, school'-house, school-room, school-teacher.

School inspector, an officer appointed by government to examine elementary schools.

Boarding school, bord'.ing..., a [private] school where boys or girls are boarded and taught.

Boys' school, a school for boys only.

Charity school, a foundation school where poor children are taught [clothed and fed] gratuitously.

Class'ical school, a private school for middle-class boys in which Latin and Greek are taught.

College, one of the separate institutions of a university, a private school in which boys are trained for the university.

Commer'cial school, a private-school for the lower middle-classes in which boys are taught a plain English education, but not Greek and Latin.

Dame's school, a day-school for poor children under the charge of a dame or woman.

Schools (continued).

Day-school, a school where boys or girls are daily taught, but are not boarded.

Diocesan school, di.ōs'sě.săn..., a parish day-school under the inspection of the bishop of the diocese.

District school, a day-school for the poor children of two or more parishes of a district, where they are taught for very small payments.

Elemen'tary school, a school where the rudiments of school literature are taught.

Endowed school, one in which the funds arise wholly or partially from endowments.

Evening school, one opened after the day's work is over for the instruction of those who wish to improve themselves.

Free' school, a foundation school for the middle classes, where those "on the foundation" are taught gratuitously what the founder or founders specify.

Girls' school, a school exclusively for girls.

Gram'mar school, a foundation school for the middle classes in which Greek and Latin are taught.

Indus'trial school, a school where children who are in danger of becoming criminals are fed, clothed, and lodged that they may be removed from evil influences.

In'fant school, a school for very young children.

Kindergarten, an improved play school, where young children are amused and taught.

Mixed school, a school where both boys and girls are admitted and taught.

National school, a school under the National Education Society, with the advantage of purchasing the Society's books, &c., at reduced prices.

Night school, a school for the use of those occupied during the day who wish to improve themselves.

Nor'mal school, a school for training teachers.

Parochial school, pa.rō'.kī.ăl..., a parish day-school for the children of the poor.

Pri'mary school, a school where the rudiments of school learning are taught.

Pri'vate school, a school kept by a person (as a profession) on his own responsibility.

Proprietary school, a school belonging to a board of proprietors who are responsible for the needful funds, and select the master or masters.

Schools (continued).

Public school, one of the great school foundations (as Eton, Harrow, Rugby, Shrewsbury, Winchester, &c.), for the sons of noblemen and men of fortune.

Ragged school, răg'.ged..., a day school for street Arabs and gutter children.

Reformatory, plu. reformatories, re.for'mă.tō.riz, a training institution for the reformation of young criminals.

Technical school, tēk'n.ă.kăl..., a school where handicrafts, arts, and sciences are taught practically.

Old English scōlu, scōlu, or sceolu, scōl-mægistre school master; scōlere, scōlman; Latin schōla, schōlāris, scholasticus; Greek skōlē, leisure [for literary pursuits], hence a place for literary pursuits. So Latin ludus (pastime), means also a school, as ducere filium in ludum, to put one's son to school; ludus literarius, a grammar school (Quint. i. 4), ludus gladiatorius, a fencing school (Suet. J. Cæs. 31). Dionysius dicitur Corinthi ludum aperuisse. It is said that Dionysius opened a school at Corinth (Cicero, Fam. ix. 18).

Scholiast, skō'.l.ăst, a commentator, an annotator.

Scholiastic, sko'.l.ăs''.ăk. Scholastic, sko.lăs'.ăk.

Scholiastic, pertaining to a scholiast or his pursuit.

Scholastic, pertaining to a school or scholar.

Scholium, plu. scholiums, sko'.l.ăm, &c., an explanatory note, a criticism on the margin of a MS. by one of the ancient critics. (Latin schōlium, plu. schōlia.)

Schooner, skoó'.ner, a small vessel with two masts and no tops.

Fore-and-aft schooner, one with only fore and aft sails.

Topsail schooner, one which carries a square topsail.

Main-topsail schooner, with square topsails fore and aft.

German schoner; Dutch schooner.

Sciatica, si.ăt'.ă.kah, hip-gout, hip-rheumatism; sciatic, si.ăt'.ăk; sciatical, si.ăt'.ă.kăl; sciaticăl-ly.

Latin sciatica or ischias, ischiadicus (Greek ischion, a hip-joint).

Science, si'.ence, a systematic digest of any branch of philosophy.

Natural science, a digest of the laws of natural phenomena with their application.

Pure [or abstract] science, a digest of the laws of phenomena without their application.

Practical science, experiment and its application to facts or phenomena.

Scientific, si'-en.ăf''.ăk; scientificăl, scientificăl-ly.

The seven sciences, the triv'ium and quadriv'ium, or grammar, rhetoric, and logic, with arithmetic, music, geometry, and astronomy (the former being the three roads to eloquence, and the latter the four roads to philosophy).

Latin scientia (sciens gen. scientis, v. scire; Greek iskô or isêmi).

Scilicet, sī'īl.sēt, namely, to wit. (Latin from scire licet.)

Scintillate, sīn'tīl.late (not sīn'īl.late). to sparkle, to glisten; scin'tillāt.ed (Rule xxxvi.), scin'tillāt-ing (Rule xix.), scintillating-ly; scintillant, sīn'tīl.lant.

Scintillation, sīn'tīl.lay''shūn, emitting sparks, &c.

Latin scintillatio, v. scintillāre, scintilla a spark, a corruption of spintilla; Greek spīnthēr, a spark.

Sciolism, sī'o.līzm, superficial knowledge; sciolist, sī'o.list, one who has a smattering of many things.

Latin sciōlus, dim. of sciūs, skilful, knowing, v. scīre, to know.

Sciomancy, sī'o.mān'.sy, divination by shadows.

This would be far better pronounced skī'o.mān''sy.

Greek skia manteia, shadow divination.

Scion, sī'ōn, a twig, a slip for grafting, a young member of a noble family. (French scion; Latin scindo, to cut.)

Scirrhus, skīr'rūs. Cirrus, sīr'rūs, a cloud like a tendril.

Scirrhus, a hard tumour often terminating in cancer;
scirrhus, skīr' rūs (adj.); scirros'ity, skĕ.rōs'ī.ty.

Latin scirrus; Greek skīros. Liddell says "the form skirrhus arose from ignorance." The Greeks cannot express h in the middle of a word, and the Latin scirrus might in this case have saved us from an absurdity (Plin. vii. 13). This is the only instance in the language of sci = ski. (See Sceptre, note.)

"Cirrus" for cirrus (a curl, applied to clouds) is indefensible.

Scissile, sīs'sīl. Sessile, sēs'sīl.

Scissile, that may be cut off with an instrument.

Sessile, [a leaf] seated on the main stem.

Scissel, sīs'sēl, a waste clipping of metal, the refuse metal out of which coin has been cut.

Scission, sizh'ăn. Insition, in.sish'ăn. Session, sēs'shūn.

Scission, the act of cutting with a sharp instrument.

Insition, ingrafting. (Quite another root.)

Session, the sitting of parliament or law courts.

Scissors, sīz'.zere, a cutting instrument with two blades.

(If a pair is composed of two articles joined together it has no sing., but if it consists of two separate articles each article may be referred to in the sing. number: Thus scissors, shears, nippers, tongs, &c. have no sing., but gloves, socks, shoes, hinges, &c. have glove, sock, shoe, hinge, &c.)

Scissure, sīzh'ur, an opening made by cutting.

"Scissile," Latin scissilis, scissio, scissor, scissūra; Greek schizo, Latin sci[n]do supine scissum, to cut.

"Sessile," Latin sessilis, sessio, v. sedeo supine sessum, to sit.

"Insition," Latin insitio, v. insēro supine institum, to sow in.

Slave, sklāve (to rhyme with calve, halve, starve), a native of Slavō'nia. Slavonian, skla.vō'nīăn.

Latin Sclavi or Slāvi (the illustrious or noble). This is a striking instance of degeneration. In the lower ages of the Roman empire vast multitudes of these Sclavi were spread over Europe in the condition of captive servants, insomuch that Slave and captive servant became synonymous terms. Similarly "Goth" (the good or godlike men), has become a synonym of barbarous.

Sclerotic, skle.rõt'.ík, the firm white outer coat of the eye, (adj.) hard, firm [applied to the tunic of the eye].

Scleroma, skle.rõ'.mah, induration.

Greek sklérōs, hard. "Scleroma" is an ill-compounded word. It can only be Greek sklérōs omma, a hard eye, but the word is applied to any induration of the body, and should be sclerōtes, σκληρότης.

Scoff (Rule v.), skõf, mockery, to treat with contempt, to mock; scoffed, skõft; scoff'-ing, scoff'-ing-ly, scoff'-er.

Greek skõpto, to scoff at (kopto, hence kõπτω ῥημασι, to revile).

Scõld, a nagging woman, to rail at; scold'-ed; scold'-ing, a reprimand, reprimanding; scold'-ing-ly, scold'-er.

Old Eng. s- priv. and gallan, past gól, to sing, to enchant; (to make an unmusical noise, to howl, to rail) see Scamp.

Scoll'op, to cook oysters in a scallop-shell with bread crumbs, to pectenate the edge of cloth, &c.; scolloped, skõl'.lõpt; scollop'-ing, skõl'.lõp'-ing. (See Scallop.)

Sconce, skõnce, a candelabrum, a branch to support a candle or candlestick, the socket of a candle, the head, to mulct; sconced (1 syl.), sconce'-ing (Rule xix.)

Ensconce, to lurk concealed; ensconced' (2 syl.), ensconce'-ing.

German schanze, a sconce, a stake, an entrenchment, v. schanzen.

Scoop, skoop. Scope, skõpe (see below).

Scoop, a hollow shovel, to hollow out; scooped (1 syl.), scoop'-ing, scoop'-er. (Old Eng. sciop; Germ. schüppe.)

Scope, skõpe, gist or drift, room, licence. Scoop (see above).

Lat. scõpus; Gk. skõpos, object or purpose (v. skõpéo, to look at).

Scorbutic, skor.bũ'.tík, affected with scurvy, subject to scurvy, resembling scurvy; scorbutical-ly, skor.bũ'.tĩ.kål.ly.

Latin scorbūtus. E. Coles says: a Dan. schorbeck, oris depravatio; and Roquefort endorses the same derivation.

Scorch, to parch, to singe; scorched (1 syl.), scorch'-ing.

There is the same word in the Norse, skorsteen (a chimney), and we have the Ang.-Sax. part. scorcned (scorched); the Dutch schrooken (to scorch) has the r preceding the vowel; Ital. scottare, which is s- priv. and cotto cooked; Lat. coquo sup. coctum. (See Scamp.)

Scõre (1 syl.), twenty, a tally mark, a debt scored or tallied, the entire draught of a concerted piece of music with all the parts ranged perpendicularly under each other, to score; scored (1 syl.), scõr'-ing (Rule xix.), scõr'-er.

In score (in Music), all the parts arranged under each other with perpendicular bars running through them all.

Full score, a score containing all the vocal and all the instrumental parts with line bars running throughout.

Pianoforte score, pe.ăn'.o.for''ty skôr, a score containing all the vocal parts arranged above the piano part.

A long score, a heavy debt. A short score, a small debt.

Old English scor, a score; Norse skære, to cut or notch.

Scoria, plu. scorîæ, skô'.rî.ah, plu. skô'.rî.ê, the slag of melted ores, the matter discharged from an active volcano.

Scoriaceous (R. lxvi.), skô'.rî.ă''shûs; scoriform, -rî.form.

Scorify, skô'.rî.fy, to reduce to slag; scorifies, skô'.rî.fize; scorified, skô'.rî.fide (R. xi.); sco'rify-ing. Scorification, skô'.rî.fi.kay''shûn, the reduction of metal, &c., to scoria.

Lat. scôria, plu. scôriæ (Gk. skôr, dross); Fr. scorifier, scorification.

Scorn, contempt, to contemn; scorned (1 syl.), scorn'-ing.

Scorn'-er, scorn'-ful (R. viii.), scorn'-ful-ly, scorn'-ful-ness.

To laugh to scorn, to deride, to make a mock of.

In Ital. corneo, a horn; s-corno, to dis-horn or shame. To lower the horn was in the East a symbol of sorrow, but to take it away was a personal disgrace and public dishonour.

Scorpio, skôr'.pî.o, the scorpion (one of the signs of the zodiac).

Scorpion, an insect shaped like a lobster. Scorpion-fly,

plu. scorpion-flies, an insect with a scorpion-like tail.

Latin scorpio, Greek skorpîos (skorpio, to scatter [poison]).

Scot, skôt, a tax; scot and lot, parish rates; scot-free.

To pay one's shot, to pay one's "scot" or quota of expense.

Scôt, native of Scotland; Scotch, adj. of Scot and Scotland.

Scotchman, plu. -men, fem. Scotch-woman, plu. -women.

Scotticism (Rule i.), skôt'.tî.sizm, a Scotch idiom.

Scott'-ish, pertaining to Scotland or the Scotch. Scotchmist, fine rain. Scotch thistle, the emblem of Scotland.

Scotch, a slight wound, a drag or skid, to wound slightly, to put a drag on [a wheel]; scotched (1 syl.), scotch'-ing.

Scotched collops, veal cut into small slices or scored.

Scotia, skô'.shê.ah, a poetic name for Scotland.

Scotchman, plu. Scotchmen, The Scotch. The proper names of a people ending in ch (soft), sh, or x have two plurals, one definite by affixing -man, plu. -men, and one collective by placing The before the word: as The Scotch, two, three, &c., Scotchmen.

"Scot," same as Scythian; Greek skuth-ai [skoths]; Welsh ysgod; Ang.-Sax. Scot. When Edward I. laid claim to Scotland and Boniface VIII. was arbiter, Edward pleaded that Brute, the British king in the time of Eli and Samuel, conquered it. The Scots, on the other hand, pleaded independence by virtue of descent from Scotia, daughter of Pharaoh, from whom the country received its name.

"Scot" (payment), Old Eng. scot; scot-free, payment free.

"Scotch" (to wound), Old Eng. scôti[an], to shoot an arrow.

"Scotch" (a skid or drag), Fr. accotoir, a prop; accoter, to prop, &c.

Scoundrel, skōwn'.drəl, a villain, a rascal; scoun'drel-ism.

Irish scandarouole, a lurker; Latin abscondo, to keep out of sight.

Scour (to rhyme with our), to scrub, to clean by rubbing, to pass quickly over, to purge; scoured (1^{syl.}); scour'-ing, laxity, the business of a scourer, part. of scour; scour'-er.

Old Eng. scūr a shower, scūrum with scouring; Germ. scheuren.

Scourge, skurge (not skorge), a whip, a national visitation, a person who afflicts others, to lash, to chastise, to afflict; scourged (1^{syl.}), scourg'-ing (Rule xix.), scourg'-er.

Fr. escourgee; Lat. corrigia, a thong (cōrium, leather), v. corrigere, to correct, i.e. cōrium regere, to rule with a leather [strap].

Scout, one sent before an army or before settlers to spy out the country, a vedette; a college servant, to reject with disdain, to condemn, to lie in watch; scout'-ed scout'-ing.

"Scout" (a spy), Fr. escouter now écouter, to listen; Ital. scolla, a watch, a listener; Lat. auscultare, to listen (ausēs, i.e. aures colo).

"Scout" (to reject with scorn), s- priv. Fr. écouter, not to listen to.

Scowl, skōwl (to rhyme with howl), a frown, to frown; scowled (1^{syl.}), scowl'-ing, scowl'-ing-ly, scowl'-er.

Old English scūl; Danish skule, skulen scowling.

Scrabble, skrāb.b'l, to scratch with the nails, &c.; scrabbled, skrāb.b'ld; scrabbling, skrāb'ling (1 Sam. xxi. 13).

Norse skrabe, to scratch; scrawl, or scrape.

Scrag, thin and bony. Crag, a steep and rugged rock.

Scragg'-y (Rule i.), comp. scragg'-i-er, super. scragg'-i-est, scragg'-i-ness, scragg'-i-ly; scraggedness, skrāg'.ed.ness.

A scrag of mutton, the bony part of the neck nearest the head.

"Scrag," Old Eng. hracca, the neck; Gk. hrachis a chine, hrachos a shred, strip, or piece cut from the chine (Liddell).

"Crag" (a steep rough rock), Welsh craig; Gk. hrāch[ia], a crag.

Scramble, skrām'.b'l, an eager and tumultuous competition, a disorderly meal eaten in a hurry, to climb by the hands and feet, to strive tumultuously and eagerly to obtain; scrambled, skrām'.b'ld; scrambling, skrām'.bling; scam'bling-ly, scam'bler. (German krabbeln.)

Scrap, skrāp. Scrape, skrāpe (see below).

Scrap, a fragment, a morsel. Scrap-book, an album for extracts or any odds and ends. Scrap-iron, fragments of iron to be worked up in the puddling furnaces.

Same word as scrape, "things scraped together."

Scrape (1^{syl.}), a difficulty from imprudence, to pare slightly, to scratch, to play badly on the fiddle; scraped (1^{syl.}), scrāp'-ing, scrāp'-ing-ly; scrāp'-er, one who scrapes, an instrument for scraping dirt from boots and shoes.

To scrape together, to collect by small savings.

To scrape acquaintance [with], to make acquaintance accidentally or without regular introduction.

Old Eng. scryp[an], past scrypde, past part. scryped; Germ. schrabe. "Scrape" (difficulty), Fr. escapade. R. Chambers thinks it is borrowed from a term in golf. A rabbit's burrow in Scotland is called a "scrape," and if the ball gets into such a hole it is so difficult to get it out that some licence is allowed to the player.

Scratch, a skin wound by something pointed, to tear the skin with the nails or something pointed; scratched (1 syl.), scratch'-ing. Scratches, ulcers between the heel and pastern-joint of a horse. To scratch out, to erase.

To come to the scratch, to come to the point, to be willing to act. To come up to the scratch, to be ready to join in.

To bring to [or up to] the scratch, to win over.

Germ. kratzen, kratzer; Fr. grater. "To come to the scratch," a term in boxing, meaning to come up to the line scratched on the ground to mark where the toe of the fighter is to be placed.

Scrawl, a scribble, to scribble; scrawled (1 syl.), scrawl'-ing, scrawl'-ing-ly, scrawl'-er. (Fr. escrivaille; Lat. scribo.)

Scream, skreem, a shriek, to shriek; screamed (1 syl.), scream'-ing, scream'-er. (O. E. hrym[an], p. hrynde, p. p. hrymed.)

Screech, skreetch, a piercing cry more acute than a scream, to utter a screech; screeched (1 syl.), screech'-ing, screech'-er.

Screech owl, the night owl. (Welsh ysgrech, v. ysgrechio.)

Screen, a light movable article to ward off draughts or heat, anything to afford concealment, &c., a coarse sieve or riddle, to shelter, to conceal, to ward off draughts or heat; screened (1 syl.), screen'-ing, screen'-er. Screenings, the refuse matter left after sifting coals or ashes.

Screened coals, coals sifted from the dross

Fr. écran; Lat. cerno; Gk. krino, to separate, to sift. A screen or riddle separates the coal from the dross. An organ-screen separates the organ arrangements from the church: i.e., keeps them out of sight. A screen to keep off draughts separates the part screened from the rest of the room. A hand-screen intervenes between the fire and one's face to separate them.

Screw, one of the six mechanical powers. Male screw, a screw with the thread; female screw, a screw with an indented spiral to receive the thread; a niggard; to insert a screw, to press tightly, to twist, to make contortions, to worm out information; screwed (1 syl.), screw'-ing, screw'-er. Screw'-bolt, a bolt with a screw at one end. Screw'-driver, a blunt chisel for turning screws. Screw'-jack, screw'-nail, screw'-pile, screw'-plate, screw'-press.

Screw propeller, an iron shaft with a spiral wing used for propelling ships. Screw-steamer, screw'-wrench.

Endless screw or Perpetual screw, a screw used to give motion to a toothed wheel.

- Right screw, a screw turned home from left to right.
 Left screw, a screw turned home from right to left.
 To screw down. To screw in. To screw out. To screw up.
 To put under the screw, to subject to a severe trial.
 A screw loose, something wrong, not quite compos mentis.
 Norse skrue, skrue-bolt; Fr. écrou; Germ. schraub; Lat. scrobs.
 Scribble, skrib' b'l, a scrawl, bad and hasty writing, to write fast and carelessly, to card wool with a wire comb; scribbled, skrib' b'ld; scribb'ling, scribb'ling-ly, scribb'ler.
 Scribb'ling-paper, damaged writing-paper or outsides.
 Lat. scribillo (scribo, to write); Welsh ysgrifo (Gk. grapho); Fr. écrire.
 Scribe (1 syl.), a clerk, an amanuensis, a copyist, (among the ancient Jews) an expounder and copyist of the law.
 Lat. scriba, scribo to write; Gk. grapho. So sculpo = glupho.
 Scrimp, skrimp, a niggard, to stint, to straiten; scrimped (1 syl.), scrimp'ing. (Welsh crimpio; Ger. schrumpfen, to pinch.)
 Scrip, a wallet, a bag, a certificate of stock or of shares in some company, a bond or other marketable security.
 Script, type in imitation of hand-writing; script'ory.
 Latin scriptum, v. scribere supine scriptum, to write. (See Scribe.)
 Scripture, skrip'tchūr. The Scriptures, the Bible; scriptural, skrip'tchūr rāl; scriptural-ist, anti-scriptural.
 We say You should not quote scripture irreverently; He talks scripture; We have scripture authority for the practice; Scripture is on our side; but generally we speak of the Bible as The Scriptures.
 Latin scriptūra, "the Writing." Al Koran means "the Reading."
 Scrivener, skriv'n.er, a money-lender, one whose business it is to place out money at interest, originally a notary.
 Italian scrivano, a notary, a writer; Welsh ysgrifenydd.
 Scrofula, skröf'fu.lah, king's evil; scrofulous, skröf'fu.lūs; scrofulous-ness, scrofulous-ly.
 Latin scrofula, a little pig, the king's evil (scrofa, a sow), "quod sues præcipue hoc morbo vexantur" (Celsus v. 38).
 Scroll (corruption of skrō), a roll of paper or parchment, an ornamentation consisting of convolutions, a circular flourish with a pen; scrolled (1 syl.), formed like a scroll.
 Icelandic skrd, a skin, a parchment; Old Danish shraa (= skro), a written ordinance; Norman-English escrow.
 Locke every man's name thou wryte
 Upon a scrowe of parcheymen (Rich. Coer de Lion).
 Payntid in a scrow (MS. Laud. 416, f. 53).
 Scrotum, skrō'tum; scrotal, skrō'tāl, &c. (Latin scrōtum.)
 Scrub, a sorry or inferior fellow, anything mean and puny, to rub hard with a coarse brush; scrubbed (1 syl.), scrubb'ing (R. i.), scrubb'-er; scrubb'-y, mean and puny, (comp.) scrubb'i-er, (super.) scrubb'i-est. Scrubbing brush.
 German schrubben, schrubber; Danish skrubbe, to scrub.

Scruple, skrū'p'l, twenty grains, the third of a Roman drachma, a small quantity, a conscientious doubt, to hesitate from doubt or feeling of aversion; scrupled, skrū'p'ld; scrū'pling, scrū'pler. Scrupulous, skrū'.pu.lūs; scrū'-pulous-ness, scrū'pulous-ly. Scrupulōs'ity.

Latin scrūpulositas, scrūpulosus, scrūpulum, scrūpulus (scrūpus, a little sharp stone). A scruple means [having] a stone in one's shoe, hence halting, and hence being in doubt.

Scrutiny, plu. scrutinies (Rule xlv.), skrū'.tī.nīz, investigation, examination of votes given at an election, close search.

Scrutineer, skrū'.tī.neer, one appointed to examine the votes given at an election. Scrutinise (R. xxxi.), skrū' tī.nīze; scrutinised (3 syl.), scrū'tinīs-ing, scrū'tinīs-er.

Old Eng. scrudn[ian] or scrutn[ian], past scrutnede, p. part. scrutned; Lat. scrutāri, scrutinium; Fr. scrutin, v. scruter.

Scrutoir or Escrutoir, skru.twar' or es'.krū.twar' (a blunder for scritoir or escritoir), a writing desk.

French escritoir now écritoir; Latin scriptōrius (scribo, to write).

Scud, skud, loose thin clouds driven swiftly by the wind, to run before the wind, to run rapidly; scudd'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), scudd'-ing (Rule xix.) A scud of rain, a rapid shower driven before the wind. To scud along, to go swiftly.

Scudding under bare poles, running before the wind without any sails set. (O. Eng. sceōt[an], p. sceat, p. p. scoten.)

Scudo, plu. scudi, sku'.do, plu. sku'.di, an old Italian coin. The silver scudo = 4s., the Roman gold scudo = 65s. nearly.

Italian scudo, a shield or buckler, a scudo; Latin scutum.

Scuffle, skūf'.f'l, a struggle, to struggle, to tussle; scuffled, skūf'.f'ld; scuff'ling, scuff'ler.

Old English scūfan or sceōfan, past sceof, past part. scofen.

Scull. Skull. (Both skull.)

Scull, a cock-boat, a short oar, to row with sculls; sculled (1 syl.), scull'-ing, scull'-er.

Skull, the bony part of the head, the head.

"Scull" (a blunder for ceol), Old Eng. ceol, a small boat, a scull.

"Skull," O. E. scale, a shell; Dan. skaal a bowl or cup, skal, a shell.

Scullery, skūl'.lē.ry, a place where skols or skulls (i.e., bowls) are washed. Scullery maid, one to wash crockery, &c.

Scullion, skūl'.yūn, a drudge, a scullery-maid.

Fr. écuale, Lat. scūtula, a platter, dish, &c. (See above, Scull.)

Sculpture, skūlp'.tchūr, the art of carving stone or marble so as to represent objects or ideas, to carve in stone or marble; sculptured, skūlp'.tchūr'd; sculp'tur-ing (Rule xix.), skūlp'.tchūr-ing; sculptural, skūlp'.tchūr.āl, adj.

Sculptor, fem. sculpturess, one whose vocation is...

Sculpturesque, skūlp'.tchūr.esk, of the character of...

Lat. sculptor, sculptūra, sculpēre supine sculptum (Gk. gluphō).

Scum, skŭm, impurities which float on the surface of liquids, to clear off scum; scummed (1 syl.), scumm'-ing (Rule i.), scumm'-er. Scummings, the scum skimmed off boiling liquids; scumm'-y, covered with scum, containing scum.

Fr. escume now écume, écumer; Lat. spuma, spuo; Gk. ptuo.

Scuppers, skŭp'-perz, holes cut in the water-ways for the water to run from the decks of a vessel. (Span. escupir, to spit.)

Escupir les estopas, to work out the oakum from the seams.

Scurf, skurf, white flaky particles thrown off by the skin (especially from the head); scurf'-y, scurf'i-ness (Rule xi.)

Old English scurf, scoorf; German schorf, schorfig.

Scurrile, skŭr'ril, grossly opprobrious, befitting a buffoon.

Scurrility, plu. scurrilities, skŭr'ril'x.tiz, buffoonery.

Scurrilous, skŭr'ril.ŭs; scur'rilous-ly, scur'rilous-ness.

Latin scurrilis, scurrillas (scurra, a buffoon; Greek skōmma).

Scurvy, a disease, contemptible; scur'vi-ness (R. xi.); scur'vi-ly, dishonourably, basely; scurvy grass, a plant used to cure scurvy. (Fr. scorbut; Lat. scorbŭtus. See Scorbutic.)

Scutage, skŭ'tage, a tax levied in feudal times on those who held lands by knight-service. (Low Latin scutagium.)

Scuttle, skŭt'tl, a coal scoop, a small hatchway in a deck, to bore or open a hole at the bottom of a ship so as to sink it; scuttled, skŭt.tl'd; scutt'ling.

"Scuttle" (a scoop), Old English scutel or scuttel.

"Scuttle" (applied to a ship), Spanish escotillas hatches, escotillon; Old English scyttel, a bolt or bar. A plug in the bottom of a ship.

Scylla, sŭl'lah, a rock between Italy and Sicily. Scilly Isles. Opposite the rock Scylla is the whirlpool of Charybdis, kā'rib'dis. Between Scylla and Charybdis, between two difficulties. Avoiding Scylla we fall into Charybdis, out of the frying-pan into the fire.

Lat. Scylla; Gk. skulla (v. skullo, to mangle, to tear apieces).

"Scilly," a corrupt contraction of the Phœnician word Cassiterides: thus 'siteri, s'eri, s'illy, Scilly (tin islands).

Scythe, sŭthe, a blade for mowing; scythed (1 syl.), armed with scythes; scythe-man, a mower. (Old Eng. sithe.)

Scythian, sŭth'x.ən, adj. of Scythia, a native of Scythia.

Greek Skuthiké or Skuthia, the Skōlōtoi or Slavonians.

Se-, sed- before vowels (Latin prefix), apart from (seorsum).

-se added to native adjectives converts them into verbs, and means "to make": as cleanse, to make clean.

Sea. See (both see). Ocean, ŏ.shŭn. Main.

Sea, see, a large expanse of water land-locked.

Ocean, one of the great outward seas.

Main, one of the great seas or oceans.

Sea (continued).

See, the diocese of a bishop, to behold, to view.

Sea-acorn, sea-adder, sea-air; sea-anemone, anēm.ō.ne.

Sea-beach, sea-bear, sea-beaten; sea-blubber, the jelly-fish; sea-board, the coast line; sea-boat, sea-breeze.

Sea-cabbage; sea-calf, plu. -calves; sea-captain.

Sea-coal, coal from a pit contiguous to the sea, opposed to inland-coal; sea-coast; sea-cob; sea-cow; sea-cucumber.

Sea-devil, a fish; sea-dog. Sea-ear, sea-elephant.

Sea-farer; sea-faring; sea-fennel; sea-fight; sea-fowl.

Sea-gage; sea-girkin, gur'.kin, a radiate animal akin to the sea-cucumber. sea-girt, sea-god, sea-going; sea-grass the sea-wrack; sea-green; sea-gudgeon, gudg'on.

Sea-hare, a mollusc; sea-hedgehog, the sea urchin; sea-hog, the porpoise; sea-horse, the walrus.

Sea-jelly, plu. -jellies, one of the genus medūsa.

Sea-kale, a vegetable; sea-king, a pirate-chief.

Sea-lark, a sandpiper; sea-legs, ability to walk on deck when the ship is rolling; sea-leopard, -lēp'pard; sea-level, sea-life; sea-lion, a seal.

Sea-man, plu. sea-men; able-seaman, one who thoroughly understands his duties and is able to perform them; ordinary seaman, seaman-ship, sea-mark, sea-mew, sea-monster; sea-mouse, plu. sea-mice.

Sea-needle, a fish; sea-nymph, a sea-goddess.

Sea-onion, see-un'.yun, the squill; sea-ooze, sea-otter.

Sea-pad; sea-pie, the oyster-catcher, a meat pie with a thick crust; sea-piece, sea-pike, sea-plant, sea-port.

Sea-risk, sea-rocket; sea-room, well clear of the coast.

Sea-salt, -sōlt; sea-serpent, sea-shell, sea-shore, sea-sick, sea-sickness; sea-side, land near the sea; sea-slug, sea-snake; sea-swallow, -swol'.lo.

Sea-tangle. Sea-tossed, ...tōst. Sea-unicorn, ...ū'.nī.korn, the narwhal; sea-urchin, the sea-hedgehog.

Sea-wall, -wawl; sea-ward, see'w'rd; sea-wards, sea-ware, weeds, &c., thrown on shore by the sea; sea-water, -waw'.ter; sea-weed; sea-wolf, plu. -wolves, a species of seal; sea-worthy, quite sound; sea-wrack, sea-grass.

At sea, on the sea. Beyond seas or Beyond the sea, in another country severed off by the sea.

A chopping sea, waves moving in different directions.

Half-seas over, partially intoxicated. Heavy-sea.

On the high seas, on the main ocean.

Sea (continued).

Out at sea, puzzled, unable to see one's way through a difficulty. To go to sea, to follow the occupation of a seaman. In a troubled sea, in affliction, &c.

"Sea," Old Eng. sē, sé, seo, or sieg, sē-cliff, sē-cōl sea-coal, sē-fisc sea-fish, sē-flōd; sē-mann, sē-water, sē-weal sea-wall.

"See" (to behold), Old Eng. seón, past sedh, past part. ge-sewen.

"Ocean," Gk. ókēānos; Lat. ocēānus. "Main," Old Eng. māgen.

Seal, Seel, Ceil (all seel). Zeal, zeel. Sell. Cell.

Seal-ing. Seel-ing. Ceil-ing.

Seal, an amphibious animal, a stamp, to fasten with a seal, to authenticate with a seal; sealed (1 syl.), seal'-ing; seal'-er, one who seals, a seal catcher. Sealing-wax.

The Great Seal, the state seal of the British empire.

The Privy Seal, the personal seal of the sovereign.

"Seal" (the animal), Old English seal, seol, seolh, or syl.

"Seal" (a stamp), Old English sigel or syggel, v. sigell[an] or sēll[an], past sēlde, past part. sēled; Latin sigillum.

"Seel" (to hoodwink), Ital. ciglio, the eye; Fr. cil, the eye-lash, ciller.

"Ceil," "Ceiling," French ciel, Latin cælum, heaven.

"Zeal," Latin zēlus; Greek zēlōs; French zèle.

"Sell," Old English syll[an], past sealde, past part. seald.

"Cell," Old Eng. cellas, cells; Lat. cella (Gk. koilē, a hollow).

Sebaceous (Rule lxvi.), se.bay'.shūs, fatty, secreting fat, tallowy.

Seam, Seem (both seem).

Seam, eight bushels of corn, a load, a suture, a sear, tallow or grease, hogs lard, to unite by sewing; seamed (1 syl.), seam'-ing; seam-less, without a seam.

Sempster, sēm'.ster, one who works with the needle.

Sempstress, sēm'.strēs, a woman whose vocation is sewing.

Sempstressy, sēm'.strēs.sy, the trade of sewing.

"Seam" (of coal), O. Eng. sedm. "Seam" (a hem, to hem), O. Eng. seam or sem, v. sedm[ian], past sedmode, past part. sedmod or sedm[an], past sedmde, past part. sedmed, seamstre a sempstress.

"Seem" (to appear), Germ. ziemen, to become, to suit; Fr. sembler.

(Why seamster and seamstress have been changed to sempster and sempstress it would be difficult to say. The p is quite abnormal, and the words should be restored to their more ancient forms.)

Seance, sā'.ahnce, a sitting for some special object, as a seance given to an artist, a seance for some scientific object, a "spiritual" sceance. (Fr. séance; Lat. sedeo, to sit.)

Sear, Seer (both sēr). Cere, sere.

Sear, sēr, dry, withered, to scorch, to wither from drought; seared (1 syl.), sear'-ing; seared-ness, sērd'.ness; sear-leaves, withered leaves. The sear and yellow leaf, old age. To sear up, to close by cauterising.

Seer, see'r, one who foresees future events (v. see).

Cere, sere, to cover with wax, waxen. (Latin cera, wax.)

"Sear," Old English sear[ian], past searode, past part. searod,

Search, serch, a seeking to find, to seek for something diligently; searched (1 syl.), search'-ing, search'-ing-ly, search'-er.

Search warrant, right of search. (French chercher.)

Season, see'z'n, a suitable time, the time when a thing is fashionable or plentiful, one of the four quarters called spring, summer, autumn, and winter, to mature, to flavour with seasoning; seasoned, see'z'nd; season-ing, flavouring with condiments, condiments for giving piquancy to food; season-less, without seasoning.

Season-able, see'z'n.ă.b'l, suitable to the time of year; sea'sonable-ness, sea'sonably. Sea'son-ăl, adj. of season.

In season, at the right time. Out of season, too late.

Season ticket, a ticket of entrance to an exhibition or for the use of a railway for a stated time.

Fr. saison, assaisonner [la viande avec des épices], saison dérivé par Ménage du latin statio (station); par Le Duchat de sectio (division), et par Roquefort de salio.

Seat, seet, a bench or stool, anything to sit upon, a country mansion, to cause to sit, to settle, to assign seats to; seat'-ed (R. xxxvi.), seat'-ing; seat'-less, without a seat.

Old Eng. sæth, selth, sæld, or seld, v. sett(an), past settle, p. p. gsct.

Sebacic acid, se.băs'ik ăs'sid, acid obtained from oil or fat (-ic denotes an acid with the maximum quantity of oxygen).

Sebate, sē.bate, a salt of sebacic acid (-ate denotes a salt from an acid in -ic; but -ite from an acid in -ous).

Latin sebaceus, sebacum a tallow candle, sebum tallow, suet.

Secant, sē.kănt, cutting, a right line which divides another, a line from the centre of a circle drawn beyond the circumference till it meets a tangent. (Lat. sēcans, gen. sēcantis.)

Secede, se.seed', to withdraw from an association, sect, or party; seced-ed, se.seed'.ed; seced-ing, se.seed'.ing; seced'-er.

Latin se[seorsum]cedo, to go apart. Three derivatives of "cedo" are spelt -ceed, and nine -cede. The three are exceed, proceed, and succeed. The nine are cede, accede, and concede, antecede, intercede, and retrocede, precede, recede, and secede. It would be far better if all were spelt -ceed. "Supersede" is from sedeo, to sit.

Se-cern, se-tern', to secrete (as mucus); discerned' (2 syl.), discern'-ing. Secern'-ents, those vessels which secrete for the reproduction of animal matter. Secern'ment, the process or act of secreting. (Latin se[seorsum]cerno.)

Se-clude. Exclude. Preclude. Include. Conclude. Recluse.

Seclude, se-klude', to shut in a separate place, to keep apart; seclud'-ed, seclud'-ed-ly, seclud'-ing (Rule xix.)

Seclusion, se-klū'.shūn, retirement; seclusive, se-klū'.siv.

"Seclude," Lat. se[seorsum]clūdo, to shut up apart from others.

"Exclude," Latin ex clūdo, to shut out or turn out one who has obtained admission, hence to reject.

- "Preclude," Latin præcludo, to shut out before [admission has been obtained], hence to hinder, to oppose.
 "Include," Latin includo, to shut in, hence to comprise.
 "Conclude," Latin concludo, to shut up altogether, hence to complete, to finish, to determine.
 "Recluse," Lat. recludo, to shut back. (In Lat. this means to throw back the doors, that is, to open them wide, but we have taken the French meaning "to sequester," "to shut out the world.")

Second, sěk'kõnd, next to the first in order, merit, or value, one who backs another in a duel, &c., inferior, the sixtieth part of a minute, to back, to befriend; to back the measure of a proposer; second-ed (Rule xxxvi.), second-ing; second-er, a backer. Second is the ordinal of two [2].

The second (in Mus.), the harmonised part nearest the "first" or air ("the intervals of a conjoint degree").

There are four kinds of seconds called (1) The diminished second; (2) The minor second; (3) The major second; (4) The redundant second. The diminished second contains four commas or sensible intervals; the minor second five, the major second nine, and the redundant second a whole tone and a minor semitone.

Secondo, fem. seconda, se.kõn'.dah, the male and female second part in music. Seconds, flour containing a portion of the meal, the finest flour is called pastries, or pastry whites, thirds is a flour containing more meal than seconds.

Second cousin, the son or daughter of a cousin. Great cousin, a father's or mother's cousin is "great cousin" to their children.

Second distance (in Painting), between the foreground and the background.

Second Estate of the realm. The three estates are the peers, the clergy, and the commons, but we erroneously consider the sovereign as the first estate, the peers the second, and the commons the third.

In the collect for Gunpowder Treason we thank God for "preserving the king and the three estates of the realm," from which it is evident that the king is not one of the "three estates."

Second hand, for sale a second time, not new, not original.

Second rate, inferior, not the best quality, size, &c.

Second sight, site, the power of seeing things invisible to others, the power of foreseeing coming events by the shadow cast before them; second sight'-ed.

Secondary, sěk'kõn.dă.ry. Second-ly, sěk'kõnd.ly.

Secondly, the second item, head, or consideration.

Secondary, subordinate, not of the first order.

Sec'ondari-ly (Rule xi.), sec'ondari-ness.

Secondaries, sěk'kõn.dă.riz, the quills which rise from the second bone of a fowl's wing. (See Rectrix.)

Secondary colour, any two of the primary colours mixed together in equal proportions.

Second (continued).

Secondary fever, a fever arising after the crisis of another attack has been tided over.

Secondary qualities, qualities which may be severed from a body without destroying its integrity.

Secondary Rocks, those strata which lie between the primary or palæozoic and the tertiary rocks.

They contain the Triassic or Upper New Red Sandstone, the Oolitic, and the Cretaceous or Chalk.

Secondary planet, a planet (like the moon) which revolves round a primary planet.

Secondary tints, those of a subdued kind, as greys.

Fr. second, secondaire; Lat. secundus, secundarius (sequor, to follow).

Secret, se'.krët, something not to be repeated, something unknown to the general, private, hidden, occult; secret-ly.

Secrecy, se'.krë.sy. In secret, privately.

Latin secretus, n. secretum (v. severno sup. secretum, to separate).

Secretary, sek'krë.tü.ry. Secretory, se.kree'.tö.ry (see below).

Secretary, plu. secretaries, sek'krë.tü.riz, an amanuensis, a confidential assistant, a minister of state entrusted with a special department of public business, a bird which feeds on snakes; secretary-ship (-ship, Old Eng., office).

Latin secretarius (from secretum, a secret). "The Secretary" [bird] is so called from a tuft of feathers behind its head resembling a pen stuck behind the ear of a clerk or secretary.

"Secretary," French secrétaire; Latin secretor, secretio a secretion.

Secrete, se.kreet', to hide, to separate from the blood [or sap] substances different from the blood [or sap] itself; secret'-ed (R. xxxvi.), secret'-ing (R. xix.); secretive, se.kree'.tív, of a secret temperament, causing secretion; secret'-ive-ness, secret'-ive-ly. Secretitious, se'.krë.tisk'nis.

Secretion, se.kree'.shün, a substance secreted (as bile, saliva, &c.), or the process by which secretions are made.

Secretory, se.kree'.to.ry. Secretary, sek'krë.tü.ry.

Secretory, performing the office of secretion.

Secretary, a clerk, an amanuensis, a minister of state.

Lat. secretis, secretor, se-[scorsum] cerno sup. secretum to separate.

"Secretary," Lat. secretarius; Fr. secrétaire; but secrétoire, secretory.

Sect, a religious or philosophical party, a party separated from the Anglican church, a party separated from the Latin church; sectarian, sek.tair'ri.än, a dissenter, adj. of sect. Sectar'-ian-ise (Rule xxxi.), to imbue with sectarian notions; sectar'-ianised (5 syl.); sectarianis-ing, sek.tair'ri.än.ize'.ing. Sectar'-ian-ism, Sec'täry.

Latin secta, sectarius (sēco supine sectum, to cut off; Greek schisma, a schism); French secte, sectaire.

Section, sĕk'.shŭn, a division of a book, &c., a part cut off, the representation of any object as it would appear if cut through. In the United States 640 acres. Section-āl, sec'tional-ly. Sector, a mathematical instrument for measuring zenith distances, &c. Sector of a circle.

Lat. sectio, sector (seco supine sectum; Gk. schizo, to split or cleave).

Secular, sĕk'ku.lar, temporal, worldly, not spiritual, not bound by monastic vows, not ecclesiastical; secularist, sĕk'ku.lărist, one who directs all his attention to the objects of this present life. Sec'ular-ness, worldliness.

Secularity, sek'ku.lar'ri.ty, attention to this world only.

Secular games, ancient Roman games held once an age (seculum). Secular refrigeration, periodical cooling of the earth. Secularise (R. xxi.), sĕk'kŭ.lă.rize, to convert from religious to ordinary uses; sec'ularised (4 syl.), sec'ularis-ing. Secularisation, sĕk'ku.lăr rĭ.zay'.shŭn.

Lat. seculāris, seculārĭtas; ludi seculāres, secular games (seculum).

Secure, sĕ.kŭrĕ', (comp.) secŭr'-er, (super.) secŭr'-est, safe, confident, not vigilant, to make safe, to fasten up [doors, &c.]; secured' (2 syl.), secŭr'-ing (Rule xix.); secŭr'-er, one who secures; secure'-ly, secure'-ness.

Security, plu. securities (Rule xliv.), se.kŭ'.rĭ.tiz.

Lat. securus, securitas (se-[seorsum]cura, free from anxiety or care).

Sedentary, sĕd'.ĕn.tă.ry, passing much time seated, inactive; sed'entari-ly (R. xi.); sed'entari-ness, a sedentary state.

Sedentaria, sed'.en.tair''rĭ.ah, a tribe of spiders.

Latin sedentarius (sĕdeo, to sit; Greek hēzo, 2 f. hedo, to seat).

Sedge (1 syl.), the water-iris or river-flag; sedgy, overgrown with sedge; sedged (1 syl.) (Old English segg or secg.)

Sediment, sĕd'.ĭ.ment, dregs, lees; sedimentary, sĕd'.ĭ.mĕn''.t'ry.

Sedimentary rocks, strata formed from the depositions of water. (Latin sedimentum, sĕdeo, to settle.)

Sed-ition. Insurrection. Rebellion. Revolt. Tumult. Mutiny.

Sedition, se.dish'.ŭn, a local factious disturbance of the public peace, either political, personal, or religious.

Insurrection, in'.sŭr.rĕk''.shŭn, a general uprising of a people against the government or the laws.

Rebellion, re.bĕl'.yŭn, outbreak of a people subdued by war.

Revolt', a hostile renunciation of constituted authority.

Tumult, tu'.mŭlt, a noisy commotion arising from some supposed grievance or offence personal or civil.

Mutiny, rising of soldiers or sailors against their officers.

Seditious, se.dish'.us; seditious-ly, seditious-ness.

"Sedition," Lat. seditio, sed-[seorsum]itio, a going against [the peace].

"Insurrection," Latin insurrectio, in surgo sup. surrectum, to rise-up against [the government or laws].

"Rebellion," Latin rebellio (re bello, to make war again).

"Revolt," French revolter; Latin re-volvere, to turn round [from one party to another], to seek to change masters.

"Tumult," Lat. tumultus, tumeo, to swell [with passion]; Gk. thumos.

"Mutiny," Fr. mutiner; Lat. muto, to change. Desire of change.

Se-duce, se.dūce', to lead astray, to entice from the path of virtue; seduced' (2 syl.); seduc-ing (R. xix.), se.dū'sing; sedu'cing-ly; seduc-er, se.dū'ser; seducement.

Seduction, se.dūk'.shūn; seductive, se.dūk'.tīv; -tive-ly.

Latin seductio, se-[scorsum]duco, to lead astray.

Sedulous, sēd'.u.lūs, diligent; sed'ulous-ly, sed'ulous-ness.

Sedulity, se.du'.li.ty. (Latin sēdūlitas, sēdūlus.)

Se'dum, plu. se'dums, stone-crop. (Latin sēdeo, to sit.)

See, a diocese, to behold, to perceive. Sea, an ocean.

Sees, beholds. Seas, oceans. Seize (all seze), to catch.

See, (past) saw, (past part.) seen; see'-ing; sē'-er, one who sees future events. See to it, attend to it, look after it. See about it, consider it, think about it. Let me see, let me consider or think on the subject.

"See," O. Eng. seón, past seðh [or sawe], p. p. ge-sewen [or ge-sawen].

"See," a diocese (a blunder), Fr. siège; Lat. sēdes, a [bishop's] seat.

Seed, the fruit which is sown. Cede, seed, to yield.

Seed, to shed seed; seed'-ed (R. xxxvi.), seed'-ing; seed'-y, running to seed, exhausted, shabby; seed'i-ness (R. xi.), seed'i-ly. Seed-bud, the embryo of the fruit; seed-cake; seed-coat, -kote; seed-corn, seed-down; seed-leaf, plu. -leaves, -leaf, -leevs, the lobes or cotyle'dons of a plant; seed-ling, a little plant reared from seed (-ling dim.); seed-pearl, -purl; seeds-man (not seed-man), plu. seedsmen; seed-time, seed-vessel.

"Seed," Old Eng. sēd or sēd, sēd-tīma; v sēd[an], p. -de, p. p. -ed; Lat. sēro supine sātum, to sow. "Cede" (to yield), Lat. cēdere.

"Seedy" (weary, worn out, out of sorts), Old Eng. sædre, "a seedy coat" or man.

Seek, to search, to endeavour to obtain; (past and past part.) sought, sawt; seek'-ing, seek'-er. To seek for, to look for. To seek after, to endeavour to obtain. To seek out.

We seek for a thing lost; we seek after a situation; we seek out a companion.

Old Eng. sēc[an] or sēc[an], p. sōhte, p. p. ge-sōhl (-g- is interpolated).

Seel. Seal. Ceil (all seel). Zeal, zeel. Sell. Cell.

Seel, to hoodwink (in Falconry); seeled (1 syl.), seel'-ing.

"Seel," Fr. ciller, as ciller l'oiseau, to seel a hawk, to run a thread through its eyelids, cil, an eyelid; Lat. cilium, an eyelid.

"Seal" (the animal), Old Eng. seal, seol, seolh, or syl; (a stamp), Old Eng. sigel or sygel, v. sæl[an] or sigel[an]; Lat. sigillum.

"Ceil," Fr. ciel; Lat. cælum, heaven. "Zeal," Lat. zēlus; Gk. zēlos.

"Sell," Old Eng. syll[an]. "Cell," Old Eng. cellas; Lat. cella.

Seem, to appear. Seam, seem, a suture, a scar, to seam; seemed (1 syl.), seem'-ing, seeming-ly; seem'-ly, becoming, comme il faut; seem'li-ness (Rule xi.) It seems to me, mihi videtur, as I think, in my opinion.

"Seem," O. E. sem[an], p. -ode, p. p. -od; or sem[ian], p. -ede, p. p. -ed.

"Seam," Old Eng. seam, a suture, v. seam[iam], p. -ede, p. p. -ed.

Seen (v. See). Scene, part of an Act, a view. Seine, seen, a net.

"Seen," Old Eng. seon, past sedh [or sawe], past part. ge-sewen.

"Scene," Latin scena. "Seine," Old Eng. segne.

Seesaw, see'-saw, a tittermy-totter, to balance, to swing, to vacillate, to play tittermy-totter; see'sawed (2 syl.), -saw-ing.

"Seesaw," a ricochet word, of which we have a large number (R. lxix.)

Seer. Sear (both see'r). Cere, sere.

Seer, one who sees future events. (O. E. sewere or seware.)

"Sear" (dry, withered), Old Eng. sear[ian].

"Cere-cloth," Old Eng. sér-cláth; Latin cera, wax.

Seethe (1 syl.), past seethed (1 syl.), past part sodden or seethed, to boil. (O. E. seáth[an] or seóth[an], p. seáth, p. p. soden.)

Segment, a part cut off. Segment of a circle, the part of a circle cut off by a chord [i.e., any line less than the diameter]; segmental, seg.mén'.tál, adj. of segment. Segmentation, seg'.mén.tay''.shún.

Latin segmentum (segmen, a little piece; seco, to cut off).

Seg'no, sen'yo (in Music marked thus S), a sign; al segno, [return] to the sign; dal segno, [repeat] from the sign.

Se-gregate, seg'grè.gate, to isolate; seg'regát-ed (Rule xxxvi.), seg'grè.gay''.shún, isolation.

Lat. segrégatio, segrégare (se[seorsum]grex, apart from the flock).

Seid, sá'id, an emir or scherif. (Arabic, a prince or emir'.)

Seidlitz, síde'.litz (not séd'.litz), as seidlitz water, saline water from Seidlitz, in Bohemia; seidlitz powder, a powder for making seidlitz water (an effervescing draught).

Seignior, seen'.yor = Mr. in Italy, Mon. in France, and Herr in Germany. Grand Seignior, the sultan; seigneurial or seigniorial, pertaining to the lord of the manor, manorial; seignior-age, seen'.yor.age, a royalty on bullion given at one time to the crown. Seignior, plu. seigniories, seen'.yor.íz, a lordship, feudal superiority.

We never place Mr. before a superior title, but the Germans say Herr doctor, the French Mon. le docteur, and so on.

Seignior, monsieur, sir, herr, meinheer, and the Greek anax (a king) are merely varieties of the same word: thus Greek anax [a king].

Latin senex [= sanax], senior, seignior, sieur [Mon-sieur], sr, herr, Dutch Mein-heer.

The spelling of seignior is quite indefensible. The Ital. is signore, the Fr. seigneur, and the Lat. senior. "Seignior" is a Franco-Latin form of the Italian, and ought to be abolished.

Seine. Seen. Scene (all seen).

Seine, a fishing-net. Seen, beheld. Scene [of a play], a view.

"Seine," Old Eng. segne; Gk. sāgéné, a drag-net; Fr. seine.

"Seen," O.E. ge-sewen, p. p. of seon. "Scene," Lat. scena; Gk. skéné.

Seismo-graph, sice'mō.graf, an apparatus for registering the shocks and undulatory motions of earthquakes; seismo-graphy, sice'mōg'.ra.fy, a description of earthquakes, a treatise on earthquakes; seismographic, sice.mo.grăf''ik, [maps, &c.] to indicate the centres and areas of disturbance from earthquakes.

Seismo-logy, sice.mōl'.ō.djy, that part of science which treats of earthquakes; seismo-meter, sice.mōm'.ē.ter, an instrument for measuring the force and direction of an earthquake; seismometry, sice.mōm'.ē.try, the mensuration of certain phenomena of earthquakes. Seismoscope, sice'mo.scope (Rule lxiii.), an instrument for rendering visible the very feeblest impulses of an earthquake.

Greck seismos graphō, I describe an earthquake; seismos logos, a treatise on earthquakes; seismos metron, an earthquake gauge; seismos skōpeo, I view earthquakes.

(It is quite indefensible to spell these words with z instead of s.)

Seize. Seas. Sees. Sice, six of dice (all seez).

Seize, seez, to catch hold of violently or suddenly; seized (1 syl.); seiz-ing (Rule xix.), see'.zing.

Seiz-er, see'.zer. Seiz-or, see'.zor. Sizar, sī'.zar.

Seizer, one who seizes or lays hold suddenly.

Seizor (in Law), one who seizes or takes possession.

Sizar, a student admitted to the Univ. of Cambridge on reduced terms, his "sizings," &c., being gratuitous.

Seiz-able, see'.zū.b'l, capable of being seized.

Seizure, see'.zher, the act of taking forcibly, the thing seized, grasp, [in Law] possession.

(The following are spelt by Wharton in his Law Dict. with s.)

Seisin, see'.sin, possession. Season, see'.zn [of the year].

Livery of seisin, delivery of possession.

Seisin of heriots, taking the best beast when a heriot is due at the death of a tenant.

Seisin-ox, a perquisite due at one time to the sheriff of Scotland for giving infeftment to an heir, but now converted into a money-fee.

Seisin in fact, when there is actual possession.

Seisin in law, when actual possession is not given but only what the law accounts possession.

"Seize," Fr. saisir, saisine, possession; Low Lat. sacire, to seize.

"Seas" (oceans), Old Eng. sæs. "Sees," Old Eng. seeth.

"Size," to obtain extra food or drink from the buttery. "Sizings," the allowance of bread, &c., to each student in the University of Cambridge; extra food and drink from the buttery.

Sel'dom, (comp.) sel'domer, (super.) seldom-est, rarely.

Old Eng. seld, comp. seldor, super. seldost; also seldsyn, &c.

Se-lect, choice, chosen, to choose; select'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), select'-ed-ly, select'-or (Rule xxxvii.), select'-ness.

Selection, sĕ.lĕk'.shŭn; select-ive, sĕ.lĕk'.tĭv.

Natural selection, that process in nature by which those plants and animals which are best fitted for the conditions of life survive and propagate their races, while others less fitted for the purpose die out and disappear.

Latin selectio, selectus, se-[seorsum]lēgo, supine -lectum, to pick out.

Selenium, sĕ.lee'.nĭ.ŭm, an elementary substance.

Selenic acid, sĕ.lee'.nĭk as'sĭd, an acid with a maximum quantity of oxygen (one of selenium to three of oxygen).

Selenious acid, sĕ.lee'.nĭ.ŭs as'sĭd, an acid with an inferior quantity of oxygen (one of selenium to two of oxygen).

Seleniate, sĕ.lee'.nĭ.āte, a salt of selenic acid.

(The following change the accent to the first syllable.)

Selenide, sĕl'.ĕ.nĭde, a non-acid compound of selenium.

Selenite, sĕl'.ĕ.nĭte, crystallised sulphate of lime.

Selenitic, sĕl'.ĕ.nĭt'.ĭk, adj. of selenite.

"Selenium" (the moon element), Greek selēnē, the moon. The name was selected to correspond with tellurium (the earth element): Latin tellus, the earth.

-ic, the termination which denotes a maximum of oxygen.

-ous, the termination which denotes an inferior portion of oxygen.

-ate denotes a salt formed from an acid in -ic.

-ite denotes a salt formed from an acid in -ous.

-ide denotes a non-acid combination of oxygen with a base.

Seleno-graphy, sĕl'.ĕ.nŏg''.ră.fy, a description of the moon; selenographic, sĕl'.ĕ.no.grăf''.ĭk; selenographical, sĕl'.ĕ.no.grăf''.ĭ.kăl; selenographist, sĕl'.ĕ.nŏg''.ră.fĭst, one who studies or describes the moon.

Greek selēnē graphō, I describe the moon.

Self, plu. selves, one's own person, the person who signs a document (thus a cheque for self is one for the drawer).

My-self; our-self (only used by sovereigns), plu. our-selves; thy-self, your-self, plu. your-selves; him-self, her-self, it-self, plu. them-selves (called reciprocal pronouns), used with and without a personal pronoun preceding, as I myself, we ourselves; you yourself, you yourselves; he himself, she herself, the [dog] itself, they themselves, Cæsar's self, Tarquin's self, in propria persona, or the propria persona of Cæsar, &c.

"Himself, herself, itself, themselves," are of a different character to "myself, ourself, ourselves; thyself, yourself, yourselves." Him, her, it, them, being the old dative (our modern objective) cases; but my, our, thy, your, Cæsar's, Tarquin's, are possessive cases.

"My-self" is the propria persona of me; "himself" is the propria persona to [belonging to] him.

"I myself" is I in propria persona, (so with the others).

Self- (prefixed), self'-ish, influenced by motives of personal advantage; selfish-ness, selfish-ly.

— prefixed to nouns is resolved by of: as "self-conceit" (of self); prefixed to part. is resolved by by: as "self-taught" (by oneself); prefixed to participial nouns and adj. (i.e., words in -ant, -ent, -ance, -ence) it is resolved by in: as "self-evident" (in itself); prefixed to words which draw a preposition after them it is resolved by the preposition usually attached: as (to confide-in) "self-confidence" (confidence-in oneself); (to impose-on) "self-imposed" (imposed-on oneself).

Self-abased', -abasement; self-acting; self-abuse; self-admiration; self-aggran'disement; self-applause; self-approbation. Self-banished; self-begotten.

Self-command; self-conceit, -conceit'ed, -conceit'edness; self-condemned (-con.dem'd'), -condemning (con.dẽm'.ing); self-con'fidence, -con'fident, -confid'ing; self-conscious, -con'sciousness; self-consu'ming; self-contradiction; self-convic'ted; self-created.

Self-deceit', -deceived', -decep'tion; self-defence'; self-degrada'tion; self-delu'sion; self-deni'al, -deny'ing; self-destruc'tion, -destruc'tive; self-deter'mined, -determina'tion; self-devo'ted, -devo'tion; self-distrust'; self-doomed.

Self-ed'ucated; self-elec'ted; self-enjoy'ment; self-esteem', -estima'tion; self-ev'ident; self-exalta'tion; self-examina'tion; self-exis'tence, -exis'tent.

Self-impor'tance; self-indul'gence, -indul'gent; self-in'terest, -in'terested; self-invi'ted. Self-jud'ging.

Self-knowl'edge. Self-love, -lov'ing; self-lu'minous. Self-made; self-mo'tion, -mo'ving; self-mur'der, -mur'derer.

Self-neglect'. Self-opinioned, o.pĩn'.yũnd; -opinionated.

Self-pleas'ing; self-posses'sion; self-praise, -prais'er; self-preserva'tion, -preserv'ing; self-prop'agating.

Self-registering; self-reg'ulating, -reg'ulated; self-reliance, -rely'ing; self-repell'ing, -repell'ant; self-reproach', -repro'ving, -reproved'; self-respect'; self-restraint', -rostrain'ing, -restrained'; self-righteous (ri.tchũs), -righteously, righteousness (ri'tchũs.ness).

Self-sac'rifice, -sac'rificing; self-same; self-sat'isfied, -satisfying; self-seek'er, -seek'ing; self-slaughter, -slaw'ter; self-subdued'; self-sufficient, -sufficiency.

Self-taught, -tawt; self-tormen'ting; self-tor'ture.

Self-upbraid'ing, -upbraid'ed. Self-vi'olence.

Self-will, -willed; self-worship; self-wrong, -wronging.

"Self" was originally an adj. meaning same. Chaucer says "in that selve moment," and Shakespeare has "that self mould" (R. II. i. 2.) Old Eng. sylf, silf, self, seolf or sælf; sylf-cwala self-killer, sylf-lic selfish, sylf-licung self-liking or love, sylf-myrrhra self-murder, sylf-myrrhrung, sylf-willa a vow, sylf-wille self-willing, syf-willende voluntary, syf-willes (adv.) obstinately.

"Selfish" was coined by the Presbyterians. See Hacket, Life of William III. p. 144; but we had already self-lic, its equivalent.

Sell. Cell. Seller. Cellar. (See Seal or Seel.)

Sell, (past) sold, (past part.) sold; sell-ing, to vend.

Seller, one who sells. Cellar, a cave for wine, &c.

"Sell," Old Eng. sell[an] or syll[an], p. sælde or sealde, p. p. seald.

"Cell," Old Eng. cellas pl.; Lat. cella; Gk. kollê, a hollow.

Seltzer water, sel'tzer waw'ter, a mineral water from Seltzer, in Germany. (See Seidlitz.)

Selvage, sel'.vêdge (corruption of self-edge, that is, an edge made at the same time as the cloth was woven, and not hemmed down afterwards); selvaged (2 syl.), having a selvage.

Selvagee, sel'.vũ.dje', a skein of rope marled together.

Old Eng. self or syf ecg, self or syf ecged; Dutch selfegge.

Semaphore, sẽm'.ũfore, a kind of telegraph, an instrument for making signals. (Gk. sẽma phẽro, I carry signals or signs.)

Semblance, Resemblance; sẽm'.blance, rẽ.zẽm'.blance.

Resẽmblance, actual likeness, sensible or otherwise.

Sẽmblance, an assumed likeness, hence manners, show.

§ That portrait bears a strong resemblance to Napoleon I.

Poetry and painting bear a strong resemblance to each other.

The English character bears a greater resemblance to the German than to the French.

§ Hypocrisy wears the mask and semblance of virtue.

This ship-boy's semblance hath disguised me quite (Kg. John iv. 3).

Cheerful semblance and sweet majesty (Hen. V. iv. chorus).

An ill-beseeming semblance of a feast (Rom. and Jul. i. 5).

Semée (in Heraldry), powdered promiscuously about, scattered thickly: as semée de lis, semée d'étoiles.

Semée is the French, powdered the English term; but the French word is more generally used than the English.

Semen; sẽ'.mẽn, animal seed; seminal, sẽm'.ũ.nũl, adj. of semen, radical. Seminary, plu. seminaries, sẽm'.ũ.nũ.riz, a school for young ladies. (A most objectionable word.)

Semination, sẽm'.ũ.nay''.shũn. Sementation.

Semination, the act of sowing, natural dispersion of seeds.

Sementation [sẽ'.mẽn.tay''.shũn], a bringing forth of seed.

Latin sẽmentatio, sẽminatio, sẽmen genitive sẽminis (sẽro, to sow).

Sẽm'i- (Lat.), hẽm'i- (Gk.), dẽm'i- (Fr.), half (sẽmĩ, hẽmĩ).

Sẽm'i-acid, -ũs'sid, half-acid. (Latin sẽmi acidus.)

Sēm'i-barbarian, sēm'.i-bar.bair'ri.ăn, half-civilised; semi-barbarous, bar'.bă.rūs. (Latin sēmibarbārus.)

Sēm'i-breve, -breev (in Mus.), an open note without a tail. The breve is either a square note or a semibreve paled in ſ. (Italian semibreve.)

Sēm'i-circle, -sur'.k'l, half a circle; semi-circular, sēm'.i-sur'.ku.lar. (Latin sēmicircūlus, -circulāris.)

Sēmi-colon, sēm'.i-kō'.lōn, a stop made thus [;].

Latin sēmi cōlon, half a colon. Introduced in 1599. The colon was in use nearly twenty years earlier (1580).

Sēm'i-conscious, -kōn'.shūs, half-conscious; semi-consciousness, -kōn'.shūs.ness, partial stupefaction.

Lat. sēmī conscius (scio, to know), half knowing [what takes place].

Sēm'i-diameter, -di.ām'.ē.ter, the radius of a circle.

Latin sēmidiamēter, half of a diameter.

Semi-floscular, -flōs'.kū.lar, having all the florets ligulate, as in the dandelion. (Latin sēmi flosculū.)

Sēm'i-fluid, -flu'.id, partially fluid. (Latin fluidus.)

Sēm'i-lu'nar, crescent-shaped, shaped like a half-moon.

Latin sēmīlūna, -lūnāris (lūna from lucinare, to shine).

Sēm'i-membranous, -mēm'.bră.nūs, half membranous.

"Membranous" is a corrupt form of the Lat. membrānāceus, like membrane, or the debased Lat. membrāneus, made of membrane.

Sēm'i-nude, -nūde, half naked. (Latin sēmīnūdus.)

Sēm'i-palmate, -pāl'-mate, with the feet partially webbed.

Latin sēmi-palmātus, half palmed (palma; Greek pādmé).

Sēm'i-quadrate, -kwōd'.rate, [planets] 45° asunder from each other. (Latin quadrātus, quadrate.)

Sēm'i-qua'ver (in Music), a black note with a tail having two hooks. (Latin sēmi, Welsh chiwibio, to quaver.)

Sēm'i-quintile, -kwīn'.tīl, [planets] 36° asunder.

Latin sēmi-quintilis, the fifth of 180° (the half of 360°).

Sēm'i-savage (better demi-savage), half a savage.

French demi-sauvage (Latin sylvāni, wild men of the woods).

Sēm'i-sextile, -sex'.tīl, [planets] 30° asunder.

Latin sēmi-sextilis, the sixth of 180° (the half of 360°).

Sēm'i-tendinous, -tēn'.dī.nūs, half-tendinous.

Italian sēmi-tendinoso (Latin tendon genitive tendinis, a tendon).

Sēm'i-tone, -tōne (1 syl.), half a tone (the smallest interval of modern music); semi-tonic, -tōn'.ik.

Latin sēmītōnium, sēmītōnus, a half-tone; French demiton.

Sēm'i-transparent, -trans.pa'rent, not quite transparent; sēm'i-transparency, -trans.pa'rēn.sy.

Latin sēmī-transpārens gen. -entis (trans pāreo, to show through).

Sēm'i-vocal, -vō'.kāl, adj. of semi-vowel. (See below.)

Latin semivocalis, half a vowel (that is, a liquid).

Sēm'i-vowel, -vōw-el (not vōw-el. "Vōw" to rhyme with nōw, not with grōw), a liquid or half-vowel.

Latin semi-vocalis; French voyelle. Liquids occupy a place midway between vowels and mutes.

The words beginning with the Greek hēmi- are hemi-cycle, hemi-plegy, hemi-ptera [he.mip'.tē.rāh], hemi-sphere, hemi-stich [hēm'.l.stick].

Those beginning with the French demi- are demi-bastian, demi-god, demi-goddess, demi-lune, demi-semiquaver, and demi-volt.

Semitic or Shemitic, sēm'.it.ik, shēm'.it.ik, adj. of Shem, son of Noah. Semitic languages: the Chaldee, Syriac, Arabic, Hebrew, Samaritan, Ethiopian, and old Phœnician.

Semolina, sēm'.ō.lec'.nah (a blunder for semolino, Italian), the grits of rice, large hard grains left after bolting flour.

Sempervivum, sēm'.per-vi'.vūm, house-leek. (Lat. sempervivum.)

"Ever-alive," so called (1) because it survives the longest droughts;

(2) it continues to live after it has been pulled up and thrown away; and (3) it has a marvellous reproductive power.

Sempiternal, sēm'.pī.ter'.nāl, everlasting; sempiternity, sēm'.pī.ter'.nā.ty. (Latin sempiternus; semper, always.)

Sempster, fem. sempstress, sēmp'.stēr, sēmp'.strēs, one who works with a needle; sempstressy, sēmp'.strēs.sy, the vocation of a sempstress.

It is a great error to suppose that -ster is a female suffix, indicating the vocation of a woman, and hence the following remark of Dr. E. Adams is quite erroneous: "In early times brewing, baking, weaving, spinning, fulling, &c., were carried on exclusively by women. Hence such names [words] as maltster, brewster, baxter, spinster, kempster, whitster," &c. The truth is that -ster is added to nouns quite irrespective of gender, some of the nouns with this suffix being masculine, some neuter, and some others feminine. Its force is to denote "skill obtained by practice," "a vocation." So that "maltster" does not mean a female malt[ing] person, but one whose vocation is to malt, one skilled in malting. Even spinster refers to young women only accidentally, because spinning was at one time their chief vocation.

"Sempster," "sempstress," should be seamster, seamstress.

Old Eng. sedm, to hem or sew; sedmere, a tailor; seamestre, a seamstress.

("-ster suffix from stēdre, direction," Bosworth, Anglo-Sax. Dict.)

Senary, sēn'.ā.ry. Scenery, sec'.nē.ry.

Senary, containing six. (Latin senārius.)

Scenery, the picturesqueness of a locality. (Latin scēna.)

Senate, sēn'.ā.te. Sennight, sēn'.nīt. Sennit, a flat plaited cord.

Senate, a legislative assembly; senat-or (Rule xxxvii.), sēn'.ā.tor; sen'ator-ship (-ship, office, rank of); senatorial, sēn'.ā.tor'.rī.āl, adj. of senator; senato'rial-ly.

Senate-house, the house where a senate assembles.

"Senate," Old Eng. senat; Lat. senātus (senex, an old man, because the senate consisted of "old men," so the Greek gērōusia [a council or senate] is from gerōn, old men.

"Sennight," a contraction of seventh-night [se'n-night], a week hence.

"Sennit" (a flat rope), seven-knit, a rope with seven strands.

Send, (past) sent, (past part.) sent; send'-ing, to despatch; send'-er. To send for, to despatch a messenger for something. To send to. To send forth, to put out.

Old Eng. sēnd[an] or send[an], past sende, past part. sended.

Sendal, a thin silk or thread fabric. Sandal, a shoe, a wood.

"Sendal" is a blunder for cendal. Spanish cendal.

"Sandal" (a shoe), Lat. sandaliūm; Gk. sandālōn (santis, a board).

"Sandal tree," Arabic sandal or sonadilil.

Seneschal, sēn'ēs.shāl, a high steward, a superintendent of banquets, a judge (as the high seneschal of England); sen'eschal-ship (-ship, office, rank of).

French sénéchal (Gothic sineigs skalk, an old servant).

Sengreen, sēn'.green, house-leek. (German sinngrün.)

Senile, see'nīle, imbecile from old age; senility, se.nīl'ī.ty.

Latin senilis (senex genitive senis, an old man or woman).

Senior, see'nīor. Seignior, seen'.yer, or Signor, sin'.yer.

Senior, older, elder (opposed to ju'nior, younger).

As Mr. John Smith, senr., Mr. John Smith, junnr., the "senr." means Smith pere, and the "junnr." Smith fils.

Seignior or Signor, the Ital. equivalent of Mr., Mon., or Herr.

Seniority, see'nī.ōr'ri.ty, priority of age or office.

"Senior," Lat. senior, comp. of senex, old. "Seignior," Ital. signore.

Our spelling of seignior is quite indefensible. It is a corrupt mixture of the Franco-Italian seigneur and the Latin senior.

Senna, sēn'.nah, a purgative drug. (Ital. sena, Fr. séné.)

Sennight, sēn'.nīt. Sen'nit (see below). Senate, sēn'.āte.

Sennight, sen'nit, a week hence, week ago. Similarly fortnight, fort'nīt, two weeks hence, two weeks ago.

"Sennight or se'nnight," a corruption of seventh-night [se'n-night], a relic of the ancient Celtic custom of beginning day at sunset. This custom was observed by the ancient Greeks, Babylonians, Persians, Syrians, and Jews, and is still observed by their modern representatives. In the Bible a day is described as "The evening and the morning" (Gen. 1.)

"Senate," Latin senātus, a council of elders (senes, old men).

Sen'nit, a braid of yarn or plait of straw. (See above.)

Seven knit, i.e., seven strands knit together. A sennit of rope now consists of three or four "foxes" plaited together, a "fox" being a twist of three or four rope-yarns rubbed with tarred canvas.

Sense. Cense, sense, a tax. Scents, sents, perfumes. Cents.

Sense, intelligence, consciousness, perceptibility. The senses, the five organs of perception (viz., hearing, sight, smell, taste, touch). Sense-less, senseless-ness, -less-ly.

Sensation, sēn.say'.shūn; sensation-āl, startling, adapted to excite emotion of feeling; sensational-ly.

Sensational-ism, the doctrine that the five senses are the only doors of knowledge, and that "soul" is vox et prætera nihil. Sensational-ist, one who believes in the above.

Sensible, sĕn'si.b'l, having sound common sense, having feeling; sensible-ness; sensibly, perceptibly.

Sensibility, sen'si.bil'i.ty; sensitive, sĕn'si.tiv, impressionable; sen'sitive-ly, sen'sitive-ness.

Common sense, good practical intelligence.

Moral sense, consciousness. Sensitive plant.

Sensorium, plu. sensoria; sĕn.sĕr'i.ĕh, the central seat of sensation or of consciousness said to be in the brain; sensory, sĕn'sa.ry, nerves. Double sensories, dub'l sĕn'sĕ.riz, two eyes, two ears, &c., for one service.

In his senses, sane. Out of his senses, insane.

Fr. sensation, sens; Lat. sensibilis, sensibilitas, sensitivus, sensus, v. sentio, to perceive; Gk. sunĕtio, sunĕsis, sense, understanding.

"Sense," with cense, dense, tense, condense, immense, and the four compounds of "-pense," viz., dis-pense, en-pense, pre-pense, and recompense, are the only ten words in the language ending in -ence; more than twenty times that number end incorrectly in -ence.

"Cense," Latin census, a valuation, a numbering of the people.

"Scents," French senteur, odour; Latin sentio, to perceive.

"Cents," (in the U.S.) 100th part of a dollar; Lat. centum, 100.

Sensual, sĕn'shŭ.ĕl. Censual, sĕn'sŭ.ĕl.

Sensual, pleasing the senses, self-indulgent, carnal.

Censual, pertaining to the census. (Lat. censuĕlis, census.)

Sen'sual-ly, sen'sual-ness, sen'sual-ist, sen'sual-ism.

Sen'sual-ise (Rule xxxi.), to make sensual; sen'sualised (4 syl.); sensualis-ing, sen'su.ĕl.iz.e.ing (Rule xix.)

Sensualisation, sĕn'su.ĕl.iz.e.ing "shun, sensual debasement.

Sensualism, sĕn'su.ĕl.izm, the opposite of intellectualism.

Sensuous, sĕn'sŭ.ŭs, addressed to the senses, carnal.

Latin sensuĕlis, sensuĕlitas, sensus, v. sentio (see above).

Sent. Scent. Cent (all sent).

Sent, past and past part. of Send, to despatch, to transmit.

"Sent," Old Eng. scnĕtan, past sende, past part. scnded.

"Scent" (perfume), Fr. senteur; Lat. sentio, to perceive by the senses.

"Cent," (in the U.S.) the 100th part of a dollar; Lat. centum, 100.

Sentence, sen'tense, judgment passed on a criminal, a phrase, a clause, an opinion, to pass sentence; sen'tenced (2 syl.); sentenc-ing (Rule xix.), sĕn'tĕn.sing; sentential, sĕn'tĕn'shĕl; sentential-ly; sententious, sĕn'tĕn'shŭs; sen'tentions-ness, sen'tentions-ly.

A dark sentence, a saying difficult to be understood.

Lat. sententia; sentio, to perceive by the senses or by the mind.

Sentient, sen'shŭ.ent, susceptible of feeling; sentient-ly.

Lat. sentiens gen. sentientis, sentio, to feel; Gk. sunĕsis, intelligence.

Sentiment, sĕn'ti.ment, opinion based on feeling, an aphorism; sentimental, sĕn'ti.mĕn'tĕl, mawkish tenderness of heart; sentimen'tal-ly. Sentimentality, sĕn'.tĭ.mĕn'.tăl'-.i.ty, affectation of fine feeling and mawkish sensibility.

Sentimen'tal-ism; sentimen'tal-ist, one who affects exquisite sensibility and exemplary fine feeling.

Sentimentalise (Rule xxxi.), sĕn'.tĭ.mĕn''.tăl.ize, to affect fine thoughts and clothe them in fine language; sentimen'talised (5 syl.), sentimen'talis-ing (Rule xix.); sentimentalis-er, sĕn'.tĭ.mĕn''.tăl.i.zer.

Fr. sentiment, sentimental; Lat. sentio, to feel; Gk. sunĕsis.

Sentinel, sĕn'.tĭ.nĕl, one who keeps watch and guard; sentinelled, having the sentinels set or supplied.

Sentry, sĕn'.try. Century, sĕn'.tŭ.ry. Cen'taury.

Sentry, a sentinel. Sentry-box, a shed for a sentry.

Century, a period of 100 years. (Latin centum.)

Centaury [sen'-tau.ry], a herb. (Latin centaurĕa.)

Fr. sentinelle; Ital. sentinella. Bouillet says: "fait de sentire [Lat.], sentir, entendre"; Archdeacon Smith says, "from the Latin sentina, one placed to watch the hold of a ship"; but the Fr. sentier, a path or "beat," seems to be the natural and correct source of the word.

Sepal, seĕ'.păl, (in Bot.) the leaf which forms the perianth or calyx of a flower. Sometimes the perianth is cleft into two or more leaves, then each leaf or cleft is a sepal.

Sepaloid, seĕ'.păloid, having some resemblance to a sepal.

Sepalous, seĕ'.pă.lŭs, adj. of sepal.

Mono-sepalous, the calyx or perianth all one piece.

Di-se'palous, the perianth in two sepals or leaves.

Tri-se'palous, the perianth in three sepals or leaves.

Tetra-se'palous (four), penta-se'palous (five), &c.

Poly-se'palous, having an indefinite number of sepals.

If "sepal" is derived from Latin sĕpes, a hedge, these Greek prefixes are inconsistent, and should be changed to the Latin uni-, bi-, ter-, quarti-, quinti-, and multi-. If it is a blunder or fanciful variety of the Greek pĕtālōn, a petal or leaf, it is inconsistent with the general nomenclature of botany, which is of Latin structure.

Separate (not seperate, a very common error), sĕp'.ă.rate, disunited, individual, detached, to disunite, &c.; sep'arāt-ed (R. xxxvi.), sep'arāt-ing (R. xix.), sep'arāt-or (R. xxxvii.), sep'arate-ly, sep'arate-ness.

Separation (not seperation), sĕp'.ă.ray''.shŭn.

Separable (not -pe-), sĕp'.ă.ră.b'l; sep'arably, sep'arable-ness. Separability, sĕp'.ă.ră.bĭl''.i.ty.

Separatist, sĕp'.ă.ră.tĭst, a dissenter; sep'aratism.

Separatory, sĕp'.ă.ră.t'ry, a vessel for separating liquids.

Latin sĕpărabilis, sĕpărātio, sĕpărātor, sĕpărātus (sĕpărāre, that is, se-[seorsum]parare, to make separate).

Sepia, plu. sepiaë, sĕ'.pĭ.ah, plu. sĕ'.pĭ.ee, the cuttle-fish; a brown pigment; sepic, sĕ'.pĭk, adj. of sepia.

Sepiadæ, sĕ'.pĭ'.ă.dĕe, the tribe represented by the cuttle-fish.

Lat. sepia; Gk. sepia (from sepo, to corrupt), because the cuttle-fish when pursued troubles the water by ejecting a dark liquid.

Sepi-adæ, -adæ and -idæ, Gk. patronymics meaning a family line.

Sepoy, see'.poy, a native of India employed by the British government as a soldier. (Hind. sipah, sipahi, sip, a bow.)

Sept-, septi- or septem- before consonants (Lat. prefix), seven.

Latin septem. In one example (septu-ple) the prefix is septu-.

Septi- (Lat. prefix), a sept or division. (Lat. septum, a partition.)

Sept-angular, sĕp.tăn'.gŭ.lar, having seven angles.

Latin sept-[septem]angŭlus, [having] seven angles.

Septem-ber, sĕp.tĕm'.ber, the seventh month from March;

Septem'brist, one of those engaged in the dreadful Paris massacre, September 2nd, 1792. (Latin septem[b]er.)

Sept'enary, -tĕ.nă.ry, consisting of sevens. (Lat. septenārius.)

Septenate, sĕp'.tĕ.nate (in Bot.), a leaf with seven leaflets.

Sept-ennial, sĕp.tĕn'.nĭ.ăl, occurring once in seven years.

Latin septennium (septem annus, seven years). In composition the a of "annus" is changed to e, as in bi-ennial, tri-ennial, &c.

Septic, sĕp'.tĭk. Sceptic, skĕp'.tĭk, a disbeliever, an infidel.

Septic, provocative of putrefaction. Anti-septic, arresting...

Septical, sĕp'.tĭ.kăl. Sceptical, skĕp'.tĭ.kăl.

Septical-ly, sĕp'.tĭ.kăl.ly. Sceptically, skĕp'.tĭ.kăl.ly.

Septicity, sĕp'.tĭs'.i.ty, tendency to putrefaction.

Lat. septicus, putrefactive; but scepticus, a sceptic, or one who thinks for himself, and does not surrender thought to faith.

Septi-cidal, sĕp'.tĭ.sĭ''.d'l (in Bot.), applied to seed-vessels which open by dividing the septa of the ovary.

Latin septi-[septum]cado, to divide or cut the septum.

Septi-ferous, sĕp'.tĭf'.ĕ.rŭs, containing septa or partitions.

Latin septi-[septum]fero, I bear septa or partitions.

Septi-form, sĕp'.tĭ.form, resembling septa or partitions.

Latin septi-[septum]forma, [of the] form of septa.

Septi-lateral, sĕp'.tĭ.lăt''.ĕ.rŭl, having seven sides.

Latin septi-[septem]lătus gen. lătĕris, seven sides.

Septillion, sĕp.tĭl'.yŭn, a million raised to the seventh power, a unit with forty-two ciphers (i.e., $6 \times 7 = 42$).

Septuagenarian, sĕp'.tu.ă.djĕ.nair''rĭ.ăn, one who has reached or passed his seventieth birthday. Septuagenary, sĕp'.tu.ă.djĕ.nă.ry, consisting of seventy or seventies.

Latin septuagenārius, septuagĕnus, septuaginta, seventy.

Septuagesima [Sunday], sěp'.tu.ă.djěs''.ĩ.mah..., the third* Sunday before Lent, or seventy days before Easter; septuagesimal, sěp'.tu.ă.djěs''.ĩ.māl; septuagesimal-ly.

Latin septuagēsimus, the seventieth (septem, seven).

Septuagint, sěp'.tu.ă.djint, a Greek version of the Old Testament made by order of Ptolemy [Philadelphos], B.C. 275.

So called, not because seventy persons were employed in making the translation, but because it was issued under the sanction of the Jewish sanhedrim, which contained 70 [72] members.

Septuple, sěp'.tu.p'l, sevenfold, to make sevenfold; sep'tupled (3 syl.), sep'tupling. (Latin septuplex.)

Septem plico, I fold in seven [folds], a debased Latin word.

Sepulchre, sěp'pūl.k'r, a tomb, to entomb; sepulchred, sěp'pūl.k'rd; sepulchring, sěp'pūl.kring; sepulture, -tehūr.

(The following change the accent to the second syllable.)

Sepulchral, se.pūl'.krāl, adj. of sepulchre; sepul'chral-ly.

Latin sēpulchrum, sēpulchrātio, sēpultūra (sēpelio, to bury).

Sequel, sē.kwěl, a book which carries on the subject of a preceding work. (Lat. sēquēla, sequor, to follow.)

Sequence, sē.kwence, order of succession, series, a set of cards following in a series, a succession of similar chords; sequential, se.kwēn'.shāl; sequential-ly.

Latin sēquentia, sēquens gen. sēquentis (sēquor, to follow).

Sequester, se.kwēs'.ter, to isolate, to retire [from the world]; seques'tered (3 syl.), seques'ter-ing. To sequester oneself. Sequestrate, sěk kwēs'.trate, to set aside certain property or income to pay legal claims; sequestrāt-ed (R. xxxvi.), sequestrāt-ing (R. xix.) Sequestrat-or, sěk'kwēs.tray''.tor. Sequestration, sěk'kwēs.tray''shūn, taking possession of the annual "tithes" in order to appropriate a part to the payment of lawful debts.

Latin sēquestrātio, sēquestrātor, sēquestrāre (sēquester, an arbiter).

Seraglio, plu. seraglios, se.rahl'.yo, plu. se.rahl'.yoze, a harem, the palace of the Shah of Persia. (Rule xlii.)

Italian serraglio, an enclosure; Latin sērāre, to lock up.

We have corrected the Italian error in suppressing one r.

Seraph, plu. seraphs or seraphim (Chaldee seraphin), sěr'räf, sěr'räf.fīm, an angel of the highest order. Cherub, plu. cherubs or cherubim. Seraphic, se.räf'.ik, adj. of seraph; seraphical, se.räf'.ikāl; seraphical-ly, sublimely.

Seraphine, sěr'räf.fīm, a musical instrument.

Heb. S[a]R[a]PH, to burn; "the rapt seraph that adores and burns" (Pope). Seraphim is the Hebrew plural, but seraphims, found in our Bible translation (Isa. vi. 2, 6), is quite indefensible.

Serapis, sē.ray'.pīs, a chief divinity of ancient Egypt. (Gk. serāpis.)

Serenade, sĕr'ĕ.nāde', music performed in the open air after night-fall under the window of one's lady-love, to serenade; serenād'-ed (R. xxxvi.), serenād'-ing, serenād'-er.

Serenata, sĕr'ĕ.nāh''tāh, serenade music.

Fr. sérénade (Lat. sera [vesper], late in the evening); Ital. serenata.

Serene, (comp.) seren-cr, (super.) seren-est, se.reen', se.reen'.er, se.reen'.est, calm and clear, still, peaceful; serene'-ly.

Serenity, se.rĕn'.i.ty. (Latin sĕrĕnus, sĕrĕnitas.)

Serf, a slave attached to the soil. Surf, the foam of billows.

Serf-dom, serf'.dum, the state or condition of a serf; serf'-age (-age, condition, state of). See Soc, Soccage.

Fr. serf; Lat. servus, a slave. In the middle ages, a serf was a farm labourer who belonged to the lord of the soil as much as the huts or cottages attached to it. All he possessed belonged to the lord, and the serf himself went with the estate. (See Soc-man.)

"Surf," Norman etchurfer, to foam; French échauffer, to chafe.

Serge. Surge (both surge).

Serge, a woollen fabric. Surge, the great rolling billows.

"Serge," Fr. serge, "du latin sĕrica (tunique), ou de sĕrica (vêtement de soie)," Dict. des Arts, &c. "Surge," Lat. urgere, to rise.

Sergeant, sar'.djent (of the army). Serjeant, sar'.djent (at law).

Sergeant, a non-commissioned officer whose duty is to assist young officers generally.

Sergeant-major, a non-commissioned officer whose duty is to assist the adjutant.

Colour-sergeant, a non-commissioned officer whose duty is to assist the officer in charge of the "colours."

"Sergeant," Old Eng. sergeant (Lye, Dict. Sax.); Fr. sergent, -major.

"Serjeants" (at law), Fr. frères serjens, a corruption of [Lat.] fratres servientes [of the Templars]. The "coif" is a relic of the "lunar coif" of the old "frères serjens." (See Serjeant.)

Led by the French sergens, used for both sergeant and serjeant, we find these words, out of the two professions, very unsettled:

In military despatches, gazettes, and army lists, sergeant is the spelling almost uniformly adopted.

In Wharton's Law Dictionary, which may be assumed as authority in the legal profession, we find serjeant is invariably employed. (The more correct spelling, no doubt.)

Series (sing. and plu.), see'.rĭ.eze, a regular succession of things having one mutual object, several numbers each increasing or decreasing from the preceding in a uniform ratio.

Serial, see'.rĭ.āl, a periodical; serial-ly.

Seriate, see'.rĭ.ate, arranged in a series. Ce'rate, ointment.

Seriatim, sĕr'rĭ.ā''.tĭm, in regular succession.

"Seriatim et verbatim, sĕr'rĭ.ā''.tĭm et ver.bay''.tĭm, in the same order as and word for word like [the original].

Lat. series, sĕriātĭm. In Eng. we always say series, but sĕriātĭm.

Old Eng. v. serian, past serede, p. p. sered, to make a series, to array.

Serio-comic, see' rĭ.o-kŏm' ĭk, a combination of the serious and comic; serio-comical, see' rĭ.o-kŏm' ĭ.kăł.

When an adjective is agglutinated with a hyphen to another word we almost invariably terminate the word prefixed with the vowel -o-. The Greeks and Latins did this to some extent, regardless of the orthography of the word prefixed, but far more generally they preserved the radical vowel unchanged: Thus we say the Franco-Prussian [war], the Anglo-Saxon [language], politico-religious, serio-comic. Our language not being inflectional, like the Latin and Greek, we are free to use any vowel we like.

Serious. Cereous. Serous. Ceruse. Series.

Serious, see' rĭ.ŭs, grave, solemn, important; se'rious-ness, se'rious-ly. (Lat. sĕrĭus, "a serendo, asserendo," Perottus.)

Cereous, see' rĭ.ŭs, waxen, pertaining to wax. (Lat. cera, wax.)

Serous, see' rus, a fluid like whey. (Lat. sĕrum, butter-milk.)

Ceruse, see' ruze, white lead. (Latin cerussa, white lead.)

Series, see' rĭ.eze, a connected succession. (Latin sĕries.)

Serjeant, sar' djent (at law). Sergeant, sar' djent (in the army).

Serjeant-at-law or Serjeant of the coif, the highest degree in common law, as doctor is the highest in civil law.

Serjeant-at-arms, an officer who attends the sovereign to arrest persons of distinction, and attends the Lord High Steward when he sits in judgment on a traitor.

Serjeant-of-the-household, an officer of the royal household.

The common serjeant, a judicial officer who attends the Lord Mayor and court of Aldermen (in London).

Inferior-serjeant, a serjeant of the mace in corporations.

Serjeant's Inn, a law society (Chancery Lane).

Serjeanty, sar' djĕn.ty, a service at one time due to the crown for crown-lands.

§ Sergeant, a non-commissioned infantry officer or in a troop of dragoons whose duty is to help young officers.

Sergeant-major, a non-commissioned officer whose duty is to help the adjutant. Colour-sergeant, a non-commissioned officer whose duty it is to assist the officer who has charge of the colours of a regiment.

These two words ought to be kept distinct: (1) Because all our military terms are French, like colonel, major, lieutenant, &c., and sergent is French; but all our law-terms are Latin or Franco-Latin, and serviens gen. servientis [ser'jent] is Latin; (2) Because the army, the gazettes, and the military dispatches, &c., adopt the Fr. sergeant; but lawyers and law dictionaries the Lat. serjeant.

"Serjeants," French frères serjens; (Latin) fratres servientes [of the Templar Knights]. The coif is a relic of the "lunar coif" (or halo) of the old frères serjens.

"Sergeant," Old English sergeaunt (Lye, Dict. Sax.); French sergent.

Ser'mōn, an address from the pulpit or suitable for the pulpit founded on some text of scripture. Sermonise (R. xxxi.), ser'mō.nize; ser'monised (3 syl.), ser'monis-ing (R. xix.); sermonis-er, ser'mo.nī.zer. (Lat. sermo; Fr. sermon.)

Serous, see'r.us, adj. of serum (which see).

Ser'pent, a creeping reptile, a musical instrument, a malicious person; serpent-like; serpent's-tongue, ...tung, a fossil.

Serpentarea, ser'pĕn.tair''rĭ.ah, snake root.

Serpentarious, ser'pĕn.tair''rĭ.ūs, a northern constellation.

Serpentry, ser'pĕn.try. Serpentiform, ser.pĕn'.tĭ.form.

Serpentine, ser'pĕn.tine, winding; serpentine-ly.

Lat. serpens gen. serpentis, serpentaria, serpentinus, serpo; Gk. herpo.

Serrate, sĕr'rāte (in Bot.), notched like a saw; bi-serrate, having the notches notched. Serration, sĕr ray'.shĭn.

Serrature, sĕr'rā.tchūr, a notching on the edge [of a leaf].

Serrulate, sĕr'rū.late, same as serrate; ser'rulāt-ed.

Serrulation, sĕr'rū.lay''.shĭn, same as serration.

Latin serrātus, serrātūra (serra, a saw).

Serried, ser'rĭd, in close rank, compacted. (Fr. serrer.)

Serum, see'r.um, a thin fluid like whey which separates from the blood on coagulation; serous, see'r.ūs, adj. of serum; serous membrane. Serosity, se.rōs'.ĭ.ty, serous state.

Latin sĕrum, butter-milk; Greek orrōs. (See Serious.)

Serve (1 syl.), to work as a servant, to do one a service, to wait on a customer, to worship and obey, to present a writ; served (1 syl.), serv'-ing (R. xix.), serv'-er.

Servant; male-, female-servant, plu. -servants; maid-servant, plu. maid-servants; but man-servant, woman-servant, plu. men-servants, women-servants (both parts being pluralised according to the French method).

Service, ser'.vĭs, the condition of a servant, under a master as a servant, obligation, a good turn, public worship, religious office or rite, a set of crockery; service-able, ser'.vĭs.ă.b'l, serviceably, serviceable-ness. (Only -ce and -ge retain the -e before -able.) Service-book; service-pipe, a pipe connecting a house with the main gas or water pipe. Active service; Home...; Foreign service.

High service, delivery of water to the upper rooms.

Low service, delivery of water to the basement only.

Servile, ser'.vĭle, pertaining to a slave or servant, characteristic of a slave or servant; servile-ly, ser'.vĭl ly.

Servility, ser.vĭl'.ĭ.ty, cringing slavishness, meanspirited.

Servitor, ser'.vĭ.tor, a sizar at Oxford; servitor-ship (-ship, office, condition of); servitude, ser'.vĭ.tude.

To serve out, to dole out. To serve one out, to retaliate.
To serve up [dinner], to set the food on the table.

To serve a writ, summons, or warrant, to leave the document at the person's place of abode.

To serve an execution, to apprehend a person or take possession of his goods [as may be].

To serve an office, to undertake its duties.

Servus servōrum, the style adopted by a pope.

Time-server, a trimmer. Service tree, for sorbus tree.

The style of concluding a letter when an inferior writes to a superior, or a superior to an inferior, is very formal and arbitrary: g.e.

To a SOVEREIGN.

Your Majesty's most faithful subject and dutiful servant.

To a PRINCE or PRINCESS, a ROYAL DUKE or DUCHESS.

Your Royal Highness's most dutiful and most obedient servant.

To a DUKE or DUCHESS [not royal].

Your Grace's most devoted and obedient servant.

To a MARQUIS or MARCHIONESS.

Your [Lordship's] most obedient and most humble servant.

To an EARL or COUNTESS, VISCOUNT or VISCOUNTESS.

Your [Lordship's] most obedient and very humble servant.

To a BARON or BARONESS.

[Sir] Your most obedient and very humble servant.

To a BARONET, KNIGHT, or the WIFE.

[Sir] Your most humble and obedient servant.

To one of the PRIVY COUNCIL or an ESQUIRE.

[Sir] Your most obedient and very humble servant.

To an ARCHBISHOP.

Your Grace's most devoted obedient servant.

To a BISHOP.

Your Lordship's most obedient humble servant.

To a LORD MAYOR or LADY MAYORESS.

Your [Lordship's] most obedient humble servant.

To an AMBASSADOR.

Your Excellency's most obedient humble servant.

To all OTHER SUPERIORS.

Your humble servant; Your obedient servant; Your humble and obedient servant. (To an equal, Your's truly; Your's faithfully.)

To an INFERIOR.

Your's, &c., Your's obediently, Your humble servant.

Of course all these formalities are abandoned by ladies and gentlemen who claim any degree of social intimacy with the person addressed. An equal writing to an equal whom he wishes to "snub" uses the style of a superior "to an inferior," the most offensive being Your's, &c., the Pharisaic style of "stand back, &c."

Old English serviende, serving (Lye, Dict. Sax.), servis, service; Latin servus, servi, servilis, servitium, servitudo, v. servire.

Sesame, sēs'.ā'my, a grain. Open sesame, a talisman employed to bring about any object desired, a fee which is the "open sesame" to almost everything.

Latin sesamum, an Indian grain; Greek sesamon.

Sesqui- (Latin prefix), more by a half, one and a half (sesqui-).

In Chemistry it means a compound in which there are three atoms of one to two of the other ingredient.

Sesqui-bromide [of potassium], -bro'.mide, three equivalents of bromine [bro'.mine] to two of potassium.

Greek brómōs, fetid odour (-ide, a substance containing only two elements, one to which -ide is affixed, and the other the base).

Sesqui-carbonate [of ammonia], -kar'.bō.nāte, three equivalents of carbonic acid to every two of ammonia.

Latin carbo, charcoal, which combined with oxygen makes carbonic acid. (-ate, a salt from an acid in -ic.)

Sesqui-chloride [of silver], -klō'.ride, a compound containing three equivalents of chloride to every two of silver.

Greek chlōrōs, green (-ide, a substance containing only two elements, one to which -ide is affixed, and the other the base). Similarly sesqui-cyanide, sesqui-iodide, sesqui-sulphide, &c.

Sesqui-pedalian [words], sēs'.quī-pē.dāy'.tī.ăn, very long words. (Latin sesquipedālis, a foot and a half)

Sessile, sēs'.sīl. Scissile, sīs'.sīl.

Sessile [leaf], one that issues directly from the main stem without footstalk.

Scissile, that may be cut with a sharp instrument.

"Sessile," Latin sessilis (sedeo, supine, sessum, to sit).

"Scissile," Latin scissilis (scindo, supine, scissum, to cut).

Session, Cession (both sēs'.shūn).

Session, the sitting of a court of legislative assembly:

Cession, surrender of property, territory, or rights.

Session-al, sēs'.shūn.ăl. Quarter Sessions.

"Session," Latin sessio gen. sessionis, a sitting, v. sedeo, to sit.

"Cession," Latin cessio gen. cessionis, a surrender, v. cedo, to yield.

Sess'pool (more correct than cesspool), a sewer for drainage.

Old English sess[ian], to settle; sesse-pōl, a settlement-pool.

Sesterce, sēs'.terce, an ancient Roman coin = 2d. (sestertius); sestertium, sēs.ter'.shū.ăm, 1000 sesterces, about £8.

Set, a complete assortment, a clique, a young plant, the decline of a heavenly body below the horizon, to place, to plant, to frame, to adapt to music, to sharpen, to settle.

Set, (past) set, (past part.) set, sett'-ing, sett'-er (Rule i.)

Sun-set; set-bolt, a pin or bolt for planks. Set-fair.

A set off, an equivalent. A set speech, a prepared speech.

A set-to, a boxing match, a rebuff. Setting coat [of plaster].
 To set against one, to create an aversion. To set agoing.
 To set a saw, to bend the teeth alternately right and left.
 To set a knife or razor, to give it a fine edge.
 To set aside. To set at defiance. To set at ease.
 To set at nought, to despise, to disregard. To set a trap.
 To set before one. To set by, to reserve, to store in safety.
 To set down, to place on the ground, to snub. To set eyes on.
 To set forth, to start on a journey, to display.
 To set forward. To set free. To set in to begin.
 To set in order. To set off, to display, to start, to efface.
 To set one's cap at, said of a woman who tries to captivate one of the other sex. To set on fire, to ignite.
 To set on foot, to introduce, to start an enterprise.
 To set out, to start on a journey, to assign.
 To set over, to appoint as the master of others.
 To set right, to correct. To set to rights, to reduce to method. To set one's teeth on edge, to offend the sensibilities, to irritate the nerves. To set the fashion.
 To set to, to begin in earnest. To set up, to start in trade.
 "Set" (a plant), Old English set, seten, or setin; setere, a setter,
 v. set(an) or sett(an), past sete, sete, or sitte, past part. ge-set.
Setian beforan, settan ofer, settan on, settan uppan.

Setaceous. Cetaceous (both se.tay'.shūs).

Setaceous, bristly, resembling a bristle. (Latin sētāceus.)

Cetaceous, pert. to whales. (Lat. cētē a whale, cētāceus.)

Seta, plu. setæ, see'.ta, plu. see'.tee (in Bot.), a bristle.

Setiferous, se.tif'.ĕ.rūs, bearing bristles; sētiform.

Setigerous, se.tidg'.ĕ.rūs, furnished with bristles.

Latin seta, plu. setæ, a bristle; seta fero, seta gero.

Seton, see'.t'n (in Surg.), an ulcer made by passing a twist of silk under the skin to promote the discharge of humours.

French séton; Latin seta, a bristle, a fishing-line.

Settee, sēt.tee', a long seat with a back to it. (From set, seat.)

Settle, sēt'.tl, a bench, to establish, to calm, to pacify, to pay;
settled, sēt'.tld; settling, sēt'.ling; settler, settle-ment.

Settling-day, when brokers balance time bargains.

Old Eng. seotel, setl, sedl, or sætel, a seat; sæta, a settler, v. sæht[ian].

Seven, sēv'n, a numeral; seventh, sēv'.enth, its ordinal; seventeen, sēv'n.teen, 7 + 10; seventeenth, sēv'n.teenth, its ordinal; seventy, sēv'n.ty, 7 × 10; sev'enti-eth (R. xi.), its ordinal; seventh-ly, seventeenth-ly, seventieth-ly.

Seventh (in Mus.), a dissonant interval formed of six diatonic degrees or seven sounds.

Minor seventh, composed of four tones and two major semitones. (The four tones = three majors and one minor.)

Major seventh, composed of five tones and a major semitone. (The five tones = three majors and two minors.)

A diminished seventh consists of three tones and three major semitones. (The 3 tones = 2 minors and 1 major.)

A superfluous seventh consists of five tones, a semitone-major, and a semitone-minor. (The 5 tones = 3 minors and 2 majors.) Defective seventh, same as diminished...

"Seven," O. Eng. seofan, seofen, seofon, siofon, siofun, syfan, or syfon.

"Seventh," Old Eng. seofotha, syfotha, syfelha, or seofethende.

"Seventeen," Old Eng. seofantene, seofantine, or seofantjme.

"Seventeenth," Old Eng. seofanteoitha, siofonteotha, or syfonteotha.

"Seventy," Old Eng. hundseofanteg or hundseofantig.

"Seventieth," Old Eng. hundseofantegthe or hundseofantigetthe.

(Hund = 10 is prefixed for 70 up to 120 inclusive.)

Sever, *sēv'.*er, to sunder; severed, *sēv'.*erd; sever-ing.

Several, *sēv'.*ē.rāl, divers, a number [of objects] each taken separately; sever'al-ly, separately, one by one; severality, *sēv'.*e.rāl'.ī.ty, a state of separation.

Severance, *sēv'.*ē.rance, separation, partition.

French sevrer; Italian sevrare; Latin sēpārāre, sēpar, distinct.

Severe, *sē.*veer', (comp.) sever'-er, (super.) sevēr'-est, austere; severe'-ly. Severity, *sē.*vēr'.rī.ty, rigour.

Lat. sēvēritas, sēvērus (se-[seorsum]verus, [error] severed from truth).

Sew. Sow (both sōw). So. Sough. Sewer. Sower. Sour.

Sew, sōw, (past) sewed, sōwd; (past part.) sewed [or sewn]; sew-ing, *sōw'.*ing; sew-er, *sōw'.*er (with a needle).

Sōw, (past) sowed, sōwd; (past part.) sowed or sown; sōw-ing, sōw-er (of seed). Sōw, the dam of swine.

Sewing-machine, *sōw'.*ing ma.sheen'; sewing needle.

Sewing-thread, *sōw'.*ing-thrēd; sewing silk.

"Sew," Old English sew[ian], past sewede, past part. seowed; or siw[ian], siow[ian] or siw[ian], sūwode, ge-siwed (not siwen).

"Sow," Old English sāw[an], past seow, past part. sāwen, seōwere, a sewer, sāwere, a sower. "Sōw" (a pig), Old English sūg.

"So," Old Eng. sūd, thus, in this manner. "Sour" (acid), Welsh sur.

"Sough," sūff (sighing of the wind), O. E. swég, the howling of wind. ("Sewn" (with a needle) is a corrupt form, but very generally used.)

Sewer, *sū'.*er. Sure, shure. (Sewer, Sōwer, Sour, see above.)

Sewer, *sū'.*er, a drain for the surface water of a street.

Sewage, *sū'.*age. Sewerage, *sū'.*er.age.

Sewage, the offscouring which runs into a sewer.

Sewerage, drainage by sewers.

§ Sewe, su, to taste and carve meat before it is handed to a guest; sew-er, sū'er, a taster and carver of meat.

The sewer, in ancient times, was an upper servant who presided over the meats, as the botteler [butler] presided over the drinks.

"Sewer" (a drain) ought to be suer. It is a contraction of issue-er, the grate for the issue or egress of surface water.

"Sewer" (a carver), a corruption of the French écuyer [trenchant].

"Sewer," sōw'er (with a needle), Old English siwere or seōwere.

"Sure" (certain), French sûr (Latin secûrus, secure).

Sex, the distinction between male and female, (in Bot.) the distinction between stamens and pistils (the male and female organs of plants); sexless. The fair sex, woman.

Sexual, sex'u āl, adj. of sex; sex'ual-ly, sexuāl'-ity, sexual system; sexual-ist, sex'u.āl.ist. The sex, woman.

Latin sexus (v. secûre supine sectum, to divide); French sexe.

Sex- (Lat. prefix), six. (Lat. sex. Gk. hex, Fr. six.)

Sexagenarian, sex'.ā djĕ.nair''rĭ.ăn, one who has reached or passed his sixtieth birthday; sexagenary, sex'.ā djĕ.nair ry, containing sixty. (Latin sexāgenārius.)

Sexages'ima Sunday, the second Sunday before Lent (about sixty days before Easter); sexagesimal, sex'.ā djĕs''ī.māl, pertaining to the number sixty, computed by sixties.

Latin sexāgesimus (sexāgeni, sixty).

Sex-ennial, -ĕn'.nĭ.āl, once in six years, lasting six years; sex-en'nial-ly, (Latin sexennis, sexennium.)

Annus in composition changes a to e: as bi-ennial, tri-ennial, &c.

Sextant, the sixth part of a circle (or 90 deg.)

Latin sextans gen. sextantis, the sixth part of anything.

Sextile, sex'.tĭl, the relative position of planets 60° apart from each other. (Latin sextilis, sex, six.)

Sextillion, sex.tĭl'.yŭn, a million raised to the sixth power (a unit with thirty-six ciphers, that is 6×6).

Sextuple, sex.tŭ'p'l, six-fold. (Latin sextus plicāre.)

Sexton, sex'.tŏn, an inferior officer of the church whose duty it is to ring the bell, dig the graves, keep order, see that the building is clean, &c.; sexton-ship (-ship, office of).

A contraction of sacristan (Latin sacrista; French sacristain).

Shab'by, (comp.) shab'bi-er, (super.) shab'bi-est, not in good condition, not smart, torn and worn, mean, paltry, &c.; shab'bi-ly (R. xi.), shab'bi-ness. (Germ. shäbig, mangy.)

Shabrack, shab'.rāk, the cloth furniture of a soldier's horse.

Hungarian csabrag, Turkish tshaprak, caparison.

Shack, grain which remains on the ground after the gleanings are over, liberty of free winter pasturage from harvest to seed-time, a shabby shiftless fellow, buck and other mast for hogs, to shed [grain-corn], to feed in stubble; shacked (1 syl.), shack'-ing. To go ashack, to feed at large.

Old Eng. seac[an] or seac[an], p. seōc or seōc, p. p. seacen or seacen.

Shackle, shāk'k'l, a fetter, to fetter, to bind; shack'led (2 syl.), shack'ling. (Old English sceacul or scacul, a shackle.)

Shād (sing. & plu.), a fish. (Welsh ysgadan, herrings.) See Shade.

Shaddock, shād'dōk, a very large variety of orange.

Named after Capt. Shaddock, who introduced it into the W. Indies.

Shāde (1 syl.), protection from the sun, obscurity, a glass cover, an abatjour (ab'.a.joor), to screen from the sun, to over-shadow; shād'-ed (R. xxxvi.), shād'-ing (R. xix.), shād'-er, shād'-y, shā'di-ly, shā'di-ness, shade'-less. The Shades, shādz, wine vaults. The Shades below, the infernal regions of classic mythology.

Shadow, shād'do, the silhouette of an object intercepting the sun, obscurity, a slight or faint appearance, a subservient companion, a person very much emaciated, to shadow; shadowed, shād'dōde; shad'ow-ing, shad'ow-er.

Shad'ow-y; shadowi-ness, shād'dō'ness; shadow-less.

Shadow of death, -dēth, near approach of death.

"Shade," Old Eng. scād[an] or scedd[an], past sceōd, p. part. sceaden; noun scēd, sceddow shadowy, scēdu, sceādo, or scēdu.

"Shadow," v. scādeu[ian], past scādeuode, past part. scādeuod or scēduw[ian], past scēduode, past part. scēduod.

Shaft, the pole of a cart, &c., a dart, a column [between the base and the capital], the handle [of an axe, &c.], shaft'-ed.

Old English scaft, scaft, or sceft, a shaved stick.

Shāg, a tobacco, coarse nap; a woolly cloth, to make rough; shagged, shāgd; shagg'-ing (R. i.); shāgg'-y, having long coarse hair; shagg'i-ness (Rule xi.), shagged-ness, 'shūg'.ed.ness. (O. E. sceaega, a bush of hair, a snag.)

Shagreen, shā.green'. Chagrin, shāg'grīn, v. shū.grīn'.

Shagreen, the skin of sharks, &c., made into leather; shagreened, shū.green'd, covered with shagreen.

Chagrin, vexation, to vex; chagrined (2 syl., one n).

"Shagreen," made originally from the skin of the shagreen whale.

"Chagrin," Fr. chagrin, v. chagriner. ("Chagrin," both meanings.)

Shah, the sovereign of Persia. (It means "protector.")

Shāke (1 syl.), a grasp [of the hand in welcome], a musical trill, to vibrate, to tremble, to cause to waver, to shiver; (past) shook (to rhyme with cook); (past part.) shaken, shū.k'n; shāk'-ing; shāk'-er, one who shakes, one of the "Shakers" (a religious sect which appeared in England in 1747); Shaker-ism, the tenets of the Shakers.

To shake hands with one, to express a welcome by grasping and shaking the right hand.

To shake hands on [a promise], to ratify.

No great shakes, not very good, not of much account.

Old Eng. scac[an], p. scōc, p. p. scacen; or sceac[an], p. sceōc, p. p. scacen.

Shakespearian, shāks'pee'.ri.ăn, in the style of Shakespeare.

Shako, plu. shakoes (Rule xlii.), a military cap worn by the infantry of the line. (Fr. shako or schako; Hun. csako.)

Shāle (1 syl.), husk, (in Geol.) argillaceous strata of laminated structure. (Old English scala or sceala.)

Shall. Will. These words are both independent verbs and also auxiliaries, but in both cases they stand in regimen with other verbs without the intervention of to.

In the sense of simple futurity (or as a sign of the future tense) shall is used only in the first person (sing. or plu.), and will in the other two persons.

In the first person will denotes intention or expresses a promise, and in the other two persons shall (sceal, to compel) denotes compulsion (moral, legal, or physical).

I shall [come to-morrow]. We shall [come to-morrow]. [He or she] will [come to-morrow]. They will [come to-....]

WILL stands for an auxiliary and two active verbs (to intend, and to bequeath). As an auxiliary it is employed only in the second and third persons. As an active verb it is employed in all persons. Omitting the verb "Will" (to bequeath), the idea of Will in the Future is this:

I will [come to-morrow], I intend to come, I promise to come.

You will [hear from me to-morrow]

The sun will [rise at six to-morrow] } simple futurity.

The horses will [start in an hour]

SHALL, as a simple sign of the future tense, is used only in the first person (sing. or plu.); in all other persons it denotes compulsion (moral, legal, or physical).

(It cannot mean compulsion in the first persons, because I cannot compel myself to do anything against my will. I may force my will, it is true, but the will must be on the side of the act.)

1. I shall [write to-morrow], We shall [all die], future.

2. Thou shalt [love thy neighbour as thyself], command.

3. [I say] he shall [do it], compulsion.

4. You shall [have a cheque to-morrow], promise.

Exam.: (2.) implies legal compulsion, (3.) physical compulsion, (4.) moral compulsion or obligation.

RULE—

1 person. WILL expresses the intention or pleasure of the speaker.

SHALL is the auxiliary of the future tense.

2 & 3 per. WILL is the auxiliary of the future tense.

SHALL expresses compulsion (moral, legal, or physical).

"Shall," O. Eng. sceal, past sceolde or scolde (to compel), shall, should.

"Will," Old Eng. will[an], past wolde, will, would.

ERRORS OF SPEECH—

I will be too late for the train if I stay longer [shall].

He shall arrive to-morrow by noon [will].

I will be very glad to see your brother also [shall].

They shall be waiting for me at the station [will].

"What a lucky thing it was, I will certainly be promoted now" [shall] (Helena's Household, ch. ix.)

"Must I live without you? Will I never see you more?" (ditto, xxix.)

"I will come and see you, said Julius, soon I will be able to stay at home" [shall] (Helena's Household, ch. xxix.)

"I am sure I will be thanked by all the brotherhood" [shall] (Jas. Grant, Newspaper Press, ii. 142).

"Inform Mr. — that I will be home the first week in June" [shall] (Notes and Queries, 1876, p. 460).

Shalloon, shāl.loon', a worsted ribbon, fine serge (Chalons, in Fr.)

Shallop. Scallop. Salop or Saloop. Sloop.

Shallop, shāl'.lōp, a large boat with two masts, used chiefly for transport of merchandise. (Fr. chaloupe.)

Sloop, a light fast vessel with one mast. (Fr. chaloupes.)

Sal'op or Saloop', a beverage made from salep (a plant).

Scallop, skāl'.lōp, a mollusc with a bivalvular shell.

"Shallop," Fr. chaloupe; Ital. scialuppa; Germ. schaluppe.

"Sloop," Fr. chaloupes; Dutch sloop; Germ. schlupe.

"Salop or saloop," Turkish salleb or salep, name of the plant.

"Scallop" and "Scollop," Fr. escalope; Dan. skat; Dutch schulpe.

Shallot, shāl.lōt', a species of onion. (French eschalotte.)

Shallow, shāl'.lo, having little depth; superficial; shallow-ly, shallow-ness; shallow-brained, shāl'.lo-braind.

Shām, a pretence, to pretend. Shāme (1 syl.), disgrace, to...; shammed, shāmd; shamming; shamming'er (of sham); shamed (1 syl.); sham-ing, shā.ming; shām-er (of shame).

Welsh siom, a balk or disappointment. See North's Examen, p. 574.

Shamble, shām'.b'l, to walk as if the knees were weak; shambled (2 syl.), shambling, sham'bler.

Shambles, a slaughter-house, a meat-market, shelves on which ore is thrown by miners.

"Shamble" (in walking), Dutch schampelen; Swiss tchampelen.

"Shambles," O. Eng. scamel, scamol, or scamul, also seamel, seamol; seamul, a bench or counter. "Bank" also means a bench.

Shāme (1 syl.), disgrace, to disgrace. Shām, pretence. (See Sham.)

Shāmed (1 syl.); sham-ing, shā'.ming (R. xix.); sham-er, shā'.mer. Shame'-face, shame'-faced; shame-faced-ly, -fā'.sēd.ly; shame-faced-ness, -fā'.sēd.ness, mauvaise honte; shame'-ful (R. viii.), shame'ful-ly, shame'ful-ness.

Shame'-less, shame'less-ly, shame'less-ness.

For shame, you should feel ashamed. To put to shame.

"Shame," Old Eng. scam, scamu, or seamu, scam-fest shamefaced, scamfæstnes, v. scam[ian] or seam[ian], past -ode, p. part. -od.

It will be seen that "shame-face" is a corruption of shamefast (like stead-fast, steadfastly, steadfastness), see 1 Tim. ii. 9, Edit. 1611.

In this word the corrupt form is the more expressive.

Sham'my (corruption of chamois), antelope-leather or its imitation. (It will bear soap without damage.)

French chamois; Spanish gamuza, a species of antelope.

Shampoo, shām.poo', to rub and press the limbs and joints in connection with the Turkish bath; shampooes' (2 syl.), shampooed' (2 syl.), shampoo'-ing (R. xix., double vowels, except -ue, are retained before -ing), shampoo'-er.

Said to be from the Hind. tshampna, to press, to squeeze.

Shamrock, shām'.rōk, wild trefoil, the emblem of Ireland.

The rose is the emblem of England, the thistle of Scotland. Gaelic seamrag or seamrog, a generic name for the trefoils.

Shank, the leg from knee to ankle, the haft of a key between the handle and the wards, the plain space between the two channels of a Doric triglyph, the metal loop of a button.

Old English scanca, sceanca, sconca, or sceonca, the shank.

Shan't (to rhyme with aunt). A contraction of shall-not [sha'-n't]. So can't (to rhyme with aunt) can-not [ca'-n't].

Shanty, plu. shanties (Rule xlv.), shǎn'.tíz, an Irish cabin.

Said to be Irish sean-tig, an old house.

Shāpe (1 syl.), form, to reduce to form, to suit, to direct; shāped (1 syl.), shāp'-ing (Rule xix.); past part. shapen, shǎ'.p'n (not shapened): as "I was shapen" [not shapened] "in iniquity" Ps. li. 5); shape'-less, shape'less-ly, -less-ness.

To take shape, to become methodised and reduced to form.

Ship-shape, in good trim, in apple-pie order.

("Ship-shape." Ships are sometimes put to sea, before they are quite complete, with jury (temporary) masts and rigging. During the voyage these temporary arrangements are changed, and when all is complete, the vessel is called "ship-shaped.")

"Shape," O. Eng. scap[an], p. scóp, p. p. scapen or scap[ian], -ode, -od.

Shard, the wing-cover of an insect. Sherd, a fragment of pottery.

Shard'-ed, sheath-winged: as "the sharded beetle."

"Shard" and "Sherd," O. Eng. sceard, v. sceran, to divide, to break.

Shāre (1 syl.). Shear, Sheer (both sheer).

Share, a portion, the blade of a plough, to divide in shares; shāred (1 syl.); shar-ing, shair'-ing; shar-er, shair'-er.

Share broker, a dealer in shares. Share-holder.

Plough-share, the blade which cuts the earth, &c.

Shear, to cut the wool of sheep. Shears, a clipping inst.

Sheer, pure, entire, a vessel's position when riding by a single anchor, the line of plank under the gunwale.

"Plough share," O. E. scear, scer, scer; (portion) scear, scearu, scaru.

"Share," Old Eng. scér[an], p. scér or scear, p. p. scoren or ge-scoren.

"Shears" (clipping inst.), sceare. "Shear" (to clip with shears), scér[an].

"Sheer," Old Eng. scír, sheer, pure, brilliant, glorious.

Shark, a voracious fish, a swindler, a greedy unprincipled parasite, to prey on one, to practise shifts and tricks to get money; sharked (1 syl.), shark'-ing, shark'-er.

Latin carcharias; Greek karcharias (karchārōs, sharp-pointed).

Sharp, (comp.) sharp'-er, (super.) sharp-est, keen-edged, fine-pointed, acute, acid, shrill, angry, a mark in music [#].

Sharp-en, sharp'n, to make sharp (-en, to make); sharpened, sharp'nd; sharpen-ing, sharp'n-ing; sharpen-er, sharp'-ly, sharp'-ness. Sharp-edged. Sharp-set, hungry.

Sharp-shooter, a soldier once employed to shoot individuals in the enemy's army (riflemen now take the place of the old sharp-shooters). 'Sharp-sighted,' having a keen sight or quick perception. 'Sharp-witted.'

Sharper, shāp'ēr, a swindler, more sharp.

Old English scarp, scærp, or searp, scearplīc, scearplīce 'sharply,' scearpnes, scearp-syn sharp-eyed, v. scyrpan.

Shaster or shastra, The shasters or shastras, shās'trahs, the sacred laws or ordinances of the Hindūs.

Sāstra is the more correct spelling. Hindū s'āstra (Sāns. s'ās, to teach).

Shatter, shāt'ter, to break into fragments, to frustrate hopes; shattered (2 syl.), shatter-ing, shatter-er.

Shatters (no ing), fragments. (We say: break into shatters; but tear into tatters.)

Shattery, shāt'te.ry, fragile. Shatter-brained.

Dutch schateren, to crack. Connected with tatter (O. E. teran, to tear).

Shāve (1 syl.), a carpenter's tool, to pare off in thin slices, to remove hair with a razor, to extort, to skim the surface; shāved (1 syl.); shāv'-ing (Rule xix.), removing the hair with a razor, a thin paring of wood, paper, &c.; (past part.) shaven, sha'v'n; shāv'-er, a barber, an extortionate dealer; a young shaver, a sharp lad. Shave'-ling, a monk (a term of contempt). Shaving-brush.

Shaven and shorn, with beard shaved and hair cropped.

"Shave," Old Eng. scafa or sceafa, v. scaf[an], p. scōf, p. p. scafen.

"Shavings," Old English scaftha, scafthe, or sceofotha.

"Shaver," Old English scafere, scafa, or scafo.

Shawl, an article of dress; shawled (1 syl.), wrapped in a shawl. (Corruption of the Indian word duchala, a fabric made of the shawl goat or cashmere; French châle.)

She, mas. he, (plu. of both) they, personal pronoun.

Old Eng. heo, seo, or scæ; Gen. and Dat. hire, Acc. hi.

Plu. Nom. hi, Gen. hira or heora, Dat. hem, Acc. hi, heo, or hem.

Shea, shē'ah. Sheer. Shear. Shāre (1 syl.)

Shea, the butter-tree, vegetable butter.

Sheer, pure, without admixture. (Old Eng. scīr, pure.)

Shear, to clip with shears. (O. E. n. scære, v. scēr[an].)

Share, of a plough (O. E. scær), a portion (O. E. scear.)

Sheading, shee'ding, one of the six divisions of the Isle of Man.

Old English scēddan, to divide; scēat, a division.

Sheaf, plu. sheaves, sheef, sheevz, a bundle of wheat or arrows, to collect into a sheaf; sheafed, sheeft; sheaf'-ing, sheaf'-y. Sheaved, sheevd, made of straw.

Old Eng. sceaf or scaf, (plu.) sceafas or scafas. Of the sixty words ending in f, twelve form the plural by changing "f" into -ves, and all but two of these twelve end in -af or -lf. In no one case is the change justifiable. As we had no v in the language before the Conquest, the plural sheaves is wholly indefensible.

Shear, sheer. (Sheer; Shea, shē'ah; Share. See Shea.)

Shear, (past) sheared, she'rd, (past part.) sheared or shorn; shear'-ing, to cut with shears; shear'-er.

Shearling, a lamb that has been sheared (-ling, dim.)

Shear-man, plu. shearmen, one whose business it is to shear or dress cloth. Shear-bill, a bird.

Shear-steel (not sheer [or pure] steel), steel for shears, &c.

Shears (no sing.), a clipping instrument.

(When a pair consists of two parts united, it has no sing., but if the two parts are merely assorted, one of the parts is referred to in the singular number: as shears, scissors, clippers, tongs, nutcrackers, &c. "Stockings," a stocking; "Gloves," a glove; "Shoes," a shoe.

Old Eng. scēran, past scēd or scear, past part. scoren, n. sceare.

Sheath, plu. sheaths (noun); sheathe, 3 sing. sheathes (verb).

Sheath, sheerh, (plu.) sheaths, sheerhs (rhyme with teeth), a scabbard, a case for scissors, &c., a wing-case, the petiole (3 syl.) of grasses; sheath-less, sheath-winged.

Sheathe, sheeth, (3 sing.) sheathes, sheethz (to rhyme with breathe), to put into the scabbard or sheath; sheathed (1 syl.) Sheath-ing, (noun) sheerh'ing (to rhyme with teething), the casing or covering of a ship's bottom; sheath-ing, (part.) sheethe'ing (to rhyme with breathing), putting into a scabbard or sheath; sheath'-y, forming a...

(One way of converting a noun into a verb is by lengthening the vowel, shown sometimes by changing "c" into s, "s" into z, "f" or "fe" into -ve, and "th" into -the; as in "cloth," clothe; "bath," bathe; "breath," breathe; "loath," loathe; "mouth," mouthe; "sheath," sheathe; "shelf," shelve; "wreath," wreathē.)

Old Eng. scēth, sceath, or scēd, v. scēddan, to cover, to separate.

Shechinah, shē.ki'nal, the presence of God on the mercy seat between the cherubim in the first Jewish temple.

Hebrew SH[e]CH[i]N, to dwell. (See Lev. xvi. 2.)

Shēd, a temporary hut, a roof without walls, to let fall, to scatter; shēdd'-ed (R. xxxvi.), shēdd'-ing (R. i.), shedd'-er.

Old English scēd, a shade; v. scēd[an], to shed.

Sheen, the shining, the brightness; sheen'-y.

Old English scēn, scēne, sceone; v. scīn[an], to shine.

Sheep (sing. and plu.) Ewe = u, the dam. Ram or Tūp, the sire. Lamb, lām, the offspring till it is weaned [or shorn]. Shearling, a lamb which has lost its first fleece. Dinmont, a male sheep intended for the butcher (before the removal of its second fleece); after that a wether.

Sheep'-ish, shy, bashful; sheep'-ish-ness, sheep'-ish-ly; sheep'-cūt or -cote, a pen for sheep; sheep's eye, a look askance. To throw a sheep's eye at one, to look at one askance. Sheep-fold. Sheep-shank, a hitch or knot to shorten a rope. Sheep's-head, a fish. Sheep'-shear-er, sheep'-shear-ing. Sheep'-skin, a leather. Sheep's-sorrel, a herb. Sheep-tick, an insect. Sheep'-walk, -wawk. Shepherd, fem. shepherdess, shĕp'.erd, shĕp'.er.dess.

Old English sceap, scep, sceðp, sceop, sciop; sceaphyrde or scephyrde, a shepherd; scepen-steall, a sheep-stall; sceþ-scere, sheep-shearing; sceap-fald, a sheep-fold.

Sheer. Shear, sheer. Shāre (1 syl.) Sheers. Shears.

Sheer, pure, unalloyed, the line of plank on a vessel's side running fore-and-aft under the gunwale, a vessel's position when riding at anchor, the longitudinal line or curve which a ship presents to the eye, to deviate from the proper course, to turn aside; sheered (1 syl.), sheer'-ing.

Sheers, spars raised at angles and lashed together near the upper ends (used for taking in masts).

Shears, clippers with a spring.

To sheer off, to move off, to sneak off. To sheer up, to approach a ship or place in a parallel direction.

Sheer-hulk, an old ship permanently fitted with sheers into which the masts of other vessels are fitted. (It does not mean a bare or mere hulk.)

"Sheer" (pure), Old Eng. scĕr; v. scĕran, p. scĕr or scear, p.p. scoren.

"Shear" (to cut with shears), O. E. scĕr(an), p. scĕr or scear, p.p. scoren.

"Share" (a portion), scear, scearu, or scaru. "Shears," O. E. sceare.

Sheet, a linen or cotton cloth for a bed, a broad expanse, a piece of paper cut off some standard size.

The unusual sizes not folded are the following:—

	Ins.	Ins.		Ins.	Ins.
Wove Antiquarian ..	53	by 31	Elephant	28	by 23
Double Elephant	40	„ 26	Super Royal	27	„ 19
Atlas	34	„ 26	Royal	24	„ 19
Colombier	34	„ 23	Medium	22	„ 17
Imperial	30	„ 22	Demy'	20½	„ 15½

Sheets of paper packed in parcels are called as follows:—

A Quire, 24 sheets; but a printer's quire, 25 sheets, and an outside quire only 20 sheets.

A Ream, 20 quires; but a printer's ream, 21½ quires.

A Bundle, 2 reams. A Bale, 10 reams.

	Size.
¶ A sheet of paper once folded is a	folio	= 2 leaves.
A sheet of paper twice folded is a	quarto	= 4 leaves.
A sheet of paper four times folded is an ..	octavo	= 8 leaves.
A sheet of paper six times folded is a	duodecimo	= 12 leaves.
A sheet of paper nine times folded is an ..	octodecimo	= 13 leaves.
A sheet of paper twelve times folded is a ..	24mo	= 24 leaves.
Foolscap writing-paper is folio ; Post is quarto ; Note is octavo .

N.B.—The sum of any two opposite pages of a fold is always equal:

Thus, in a newspaper the two opposite pages are respectively $1+8=9$; $2+7=9$; $3+6=9$; $4+5=9$; therefore a person who has the outer half-sheet of a newspaper has pp. 1, 8; 2, 7. A person who has the inner half-sheet of a newspaper has pp. 4, 5; 3, 6. "Leaders" are printed on the fourth and fifth pages that the reader may hold the whole in hand when the paper is cut.

"Sheet," Old English scæte, scyte, or scite.

Sheik, sheek (in Arabia). Sikh or Seik (of Hind.) Seek.

Sheik, lord or chief of a tribe, (among Mahometans) the head of a religious house, the preacher in a mosque.

Sikh or Seik (in Hindūstan), one of the Seiks of the Punjab.

"Sheik," Arab. sheikh, a patriarch. "Seik," Hindu. a lion.

"Seek," Old Eng. sēc[an], p. sōhte, p. p. ge-sōht (-g- is interpolated).

Shekel, shēk'ēl, an ancient Jewish weight = $\frac{1}{2}$ oz. avoirdupoise; a shekel of money was about half-a-crown.

Shelf, plu. shelves (1 syl.), a board against a wall forming a sort of table on which articles may be placed, a sea-bank, a ridge.

To shelve (1 syl.), to place on a shelf, to set aside an employé and not employ him again, to be sloping; shelved (1 syl.), shelv'-ing (R. xix.) Shelv'-y, full of dangerous shoals or shelves; shelv'-i-ness (R. xi).

Of the sixty nouns ending in -f, twelve form the plural by changing "f" into -ves, and all but two of these twelve words end in -af or -lf. The two exceptions are "thief," plu. thieves; "beef," plu. beeves. Only one word ending in -lf ("gulf," gulfs) deviates from the rule. The other ten are "leaf," leaves; "sheaf," sheaves; "loaf," loaves; "staff" (a stick), staves. "Calf," calves; "half," halves; "elf," elves; "self," selves; "shelf," shelves; "wolf," wolves. As these are native words, and no v existed in the language before the Conquest, the change of "f" into -ves is much to be deplored.

Old English scylfe, plu. scylfan; later scylfen, scylfes.

Shell, the hard woody covering of nuts, the bony covering of crabs, lobsters, muscles, cockles, oysters, snails, &c., the pod of peas and beans, an explosive missile, a coffin, to divest of its shell, to cast shells into; shelled (1 syl.), shell'-ing. Shell-proof, proof against injury from explosive shells. Shell-jacket, an undress military jacket.

Old Eng. scale, scel, scell, scyll; scell-fisc, a shell-fish or crustacean.

Shell-lac (should be Shale-lac or Schell-lac), lac in shales.

Shell-lac is produced by melting seedlac over a fire in a thin bag and allowing it to fall on any smooth surface, when it spreads in shales.

Seed-lac is produced by pounding stick-lac with water and drying the granular parts. Stick-lac is a resinous substance produced on the twigs of the Indian fig, &c., by the punctures of insects.

German schell-lac, for schale-lac, also platt-lac or tafel-lac.

Shelter, shēl'ter, that which protects or covers from external injury, a refuge, a temporary shed, to shelter; shel'tered (2 syl.), shel'ter-ing, shel'ter-less. (Welsh celt, a shelter.)

Shemitic, shēm'īt.ĭk, or Semitic, sēm'īt.ĭk, derived from Shem, the son of Noah. Shemite, shēm'īte, a descendant of Shem.

Shemitism, shēm'īt.ĭzm, Shemitic peculiarities.

The Shemitic languages are the Chaldee, Syriac, Arabic, Hebrew, Samaritan, Ethiopian, and Phœnician. It may perhaps be remembered by the initial letters SHE' SPAC (Shem spake).

Sheol, shee'ole, Hades, the abode of departed spirits (Hebrew).

Shepherd, fem. shepherdess, shep'.'erd, shep'.'er.dess, one who has charge of sheep. Shepherd's crook. ...dog. (v. Sheep.)

O. Eng. scēdp-hyrde, a sheep-keeper or custodian (hyrde-nes, custody).

Sherbet, sher'.bēt, a beverage made of fruits. (Pers. sharbat.)

Sherd, a piece of broken crockery. Shard, a wing-sheath.

Pot-sherd, a fragment of pottery. (O. E. sceard, v. scean)

Sheriff, shēr'rif, plu. sheriffs. Scherif, shēr'rif, plu. sherifs.

Sheriff, the chief officer of a county (reeve of the shire).

Scherif, a descendant of Fatima, daughter of Mahomet.

Shrievalty, shree'.vāl.ty, the office of sheriff. Sheriffalty.

Sheriff's officer. Sheriff officer (Scotland).

Sheriff's officer, a "posse" man.

Sheriff officer, a tipstaff or constable.

Sheriff's clerk. Sheriff clerk.

Sheriff's clerk, the clerk of the county sheriff.

Sheriff clerk, clerk of the sheriff's court.

When a sheriff is attached to a corporation it is because the borough is a county also, and he is reeve of that county or shire.

"Sheriff" ought to be spelt with double r and one f, and the vowels should change places (schir-ref).

Old Eng. scr-geréfa, reeve or governor of the shire. The scr-mann was a provost or bailiff of a hundred; scr-gemot, the county-court.

Sherry, plu. sherries, Rule xlv. (a corruption of Xeres, pronounced shēr'.rēs), a wine from Xeres in Spain. Sherry-cobbler, sherry mixed with pounded ice, sugar and lemon; it is sucked up through a straw. Sherry sac, dry sherry.

Shetland pony, plu. Shetland ponies, -pō'.nīz, sometimes called a Sheltie, shēl'.te, a pony of small breed from Shetland.

Shew, (past) showed, (past part.) shewn, shōw, shōwd, shōwn, to exhibit. Shew-bread, shōw-brēd, twelve loaves placed on the golden table of the Jewish sanctuary every Sabbath and left there for a week when they became the perquisite of the priest. (See Show, the more modern word.)

"Shew-bread" means the bread shown to the Lord, or set before Him in the sanctuary, called in Matt. xii. 4, ἄρτοι προσθέτews.

Shibboleth, shīb'.bō.lēth (not shīb.bō'.leth), a watchword, a secret mode of recognising one of the same party.

In Hebrew the word means both an ear of corn and a flood of water. It was the test word of the Gileadites to find out those who belonged to the tribe of Ephraim. The Ephraimites called it "shibboleth" (Judges xii. 6). In the Sicilian vespers the French were detected by their pronunciation of the word cicert.

Shield, sheeld, a buckler, the escutcheon or field on which the device of coat-armour is blazoned, a protector, to defend, &c.; shield'-ed, shield'-ing, shield'-less, shield'less-ness.

Old English scēld, sceold, scild, scield, or scyld; scyldere, a defender; v. scyld[an], past scyld, past part. scylded.

Shift, an expedient, a last resource, a woman's garment, to put off, to change; shift'-ed (R. xxxvi.), shift'-ing, shift'-ing-ly, shift'-er. Shift'-y, given to change; shift'i-ness (R. xi.)

Shift'-less, without expedients; shift'less-ness, shift'less-ly.

To shift about, to veer, to vacillate. To shift off, to put off by some dodge or expedient. To make shift, to make do, to manage by economy or expedients. Scene-shifter.

Old English scyft(an), to appoint, to verge, to depart.

"Shift," an expedient, i.e., a departing from the direct course.

"Shift" applied to body linen means change of linen. The body linen is changed often, not so the gown. Shirt is the short robe.

Shiite, shī'īte. Sunnite, sun'nīte.

Shiite, a heterodox Mohammedan who rejects the oral law, and deems Ali the rightful successor of his father-in-law.

Sunnite, an orthodox Mohammedan who considers the sunna or oral law as binding as the Koran.

"Shiite," Arab. shīah, a sect, from shāda to follow [Ali].

"Sunnite," a believer in the sunna or oral law. Abulpharagius asserts that Ali was set aside because he refused to admit the sunna to be as binding as the Koran. The Persians are shiites.

Shillalah, shīl.lay'.lah, an Irishman's bludgeon, a cudgel.

So called from a wood of the same name near Arklow (in Wicklow), noted for its oaks and blackthorns, often written Shillelah.

Shilling, a silver coin equal to twelve pence. Its half is a silver sixpence, its third a silver four-pence, its fourth a silver three-pence, its twelfth a copper penny, its twenty-fourth a copper half-penny, its forty-eighth a copper farthing.

The advantage of our money system is its divisibility: A shilling can be divided into five parts (2, 3, 4, 6, 8), but a "franc" into three only (2, 4, 6); hence if articles are 3, 6, 7, or 8 for a franc, one of them cannot be bought without loss; but with our money system only those at 5 or 7 a shilling would involve a loss.

Old English scelling, scilling, or scylling.

Shilly-shally, a ricochet word of which we have a large number, an irresolute person, irresolution, to be irresolute; shilly-shallies, -shāl'.līz; shilly-shallied, -shāl'.lēd; shilly-shally-ing, yea-naying, not making up one's mind.

It is simply shall I repeated with a slight change, similar to dilly-dally, tilly-vally, chit-chat, clitter-clatter, ding-dong, &c. (R. lxix.)

Shiloh, shī'.lo, the name given by Jacob to the Messiah, Gen. xlix. 10. (Heb. SH[i]L[o]H, the peaceful one, verb rest.)

Shin, the fore-part of the leg from the knee to the foot; shin'-bone. (O. E. scin or scina, scin-bán, the shin-bone.)

Shine (1 syl.), to give light, to exhibit gloss or lustre, (past) shone, shōn (not shōne, 1 syl.), past part. shone; shin-ing (Rule xix.), shī'.ning; shin-er, shī'.ner; shin-y, shī'.ny.

Sheen, brightness, glistening; sheen'-y.

This verb shews the utter worthlessness of the e final as a guide. In

"shine" it lengthens the preceding vowel, but not in "shōne." It is quite as often wholly effete as not: thus in the 445 words ending in -ive it lengthens 5 monosyllables, omitting give and live. With the latter it shilly-shallies, the i in "live" being short, but long in alive; short in live-long, but long in live-ly: short in out-lived, but long in long-lived, &c. In above 430 of the words the -ive is short: as in active, fugitive, &c.

"Shine," Old Eng. scin[an], past scdn or scean, past part. scinen.

Shingle, Shingles, shĭn'.g'l, shĭn'.g'ls.

Shingle, plu. shingles, a thin board or wooden tile for roofing.

Shingle (a collective noun, no plu.), water-worn pebbles.

Shingles (no sing.), herpes or tetter (ought to be Cingles).

Shingle, to cover with shingle; shingled (2 syl.); shingling, shĭn'.gling; shingly, shĭn'.gly. Shingle-roofed.

Shingling (in iron works), the process of expelling scoræ and other impurities from iron. Shingling-hammer.

Latin scindĭla, a lath or shingle (scindĕre, to cut or cleave).

"Shingles" (herpes (her'.peez)), Latin cingulum, a girdle, so called because it spreads round the part affected like a girdle.

-ship (native prefix), form, condition, state, office, dignity.

Old English -scipe or -scype: frēond-scipe, ealdor-scipe, &c.

Ship, a vessel with three masts each mast being furnished with tops and yards, to embark, to fix in its place; shipped (1 syl.); shipp'-ing (Rule i.), embarking, &c., (noun) ships and other vessels for navigation taken collectively; tonnage, (adj.) pertaining to ships: as shipping concerns.

Shipp'-er, one who puts goods on board ship for exportation; ship'-ment, the act of shipping goods or the finished work.

Shipful, plu. shipfuls, enough to fill a ship.

Ship-like, ship-less; ship-biscuit, -bĭs'.kĭt.

Ship-board or aship-board (the better word), adv. on board ship, generally aboard or aboard-ship. (The a- is the prepositional adverbial prefix.)

Ship-broker; ship'-builder, -bĭl'.der; ship'-building.

Ship'-canal', a canal connecting two seas or rivers through which ships can navigate. Ship'-car'penter.

Ship'-chandler, -tchĭn'.dler, one who supplies ships with cordage, canvas, and other furniture.

Ship'-holder; ship'-owner, the holder or owner of one or more ships. Ship's husband, one who provides a ship (while in port) with stores and provisions.

Ship'-load, plu. ship'-loads. Ship'-master, ship'-mate.

Ship'-money, a tax imposed without authority of parliament for keeping up the royal navy. (It was revived by Charles I., and repealed 17 Car. i. c. 14.)

Ship'-shape, comme il faut, all temporary or "jury" fittings replaced by regular equipments.

Ship'-worm, -wurm, the torēdo. Ship-yard.

Ship'-wreck, -reck, the loss of a vessel at sea by storm, foundering, or shoals; ruin, to destroy, to frustrate hope, to ruin; ship'-wrecked, -rect; ship'-wreck-ing.

Ship'-wright, -rite, a ship-carpenter.

A ship of the line, a ship belonging to the fleet.

Shipping articles, articles of agreement between a captain and his crew. Ship's papers, the necessary documents: as the register, the charter-party, bills of lading, log-book, bill of health. To ship oars, to place them in the rowlocks.

To ship a sea, to have a large wave dash over the deck.

To ship off, to send off in a ship.

Old English scip, scipp, or scyp; scip-hlæder, a ship's ladder; scip-rōðer, a ship's rudder; scip-wyrhta, a ship-wright; v. scip[ian], past scipode, past part. scipod.

-shire, shēr (native prefix and postfix), a county:

Prefix: sheriff, shēr'rīf, i.e., "shire-reeve" scir-gerēfa [scir-réf]; Sherborne and Sherburn.

Postfix: York-shire, Lancashire, Cheshire, Hampshire, &c.

Shire, shīre, a county. Shire-hall, the county court; shire-clerk, a petty officer to keep the county court. -mote.

Old Eng. scir, scyr, or scire; v. scir[an], to divide, p. -de, p. p. -ed.

Shirk, sherk, to shuffle off, to neglect in an underhand way. Shark.

Shirked (1 syl.); shirk-ing, shēr'-king; shirk'-er.

Germ. schurke, a knave, a scoundrel; schurkeret, "shirkery."

"Shark" (a sea fish), Lat. carcharias; Gk. karcharias (karcharos, sharp-pointed), the "sharp-pointed fish," alluding to its snout.

Shirt, body linen worn by boys and men; shirt'-ing, cloth for shirts; shirt'-less; shirt'-front (a false front is a dicky because it is removable like the dicky of a coach).

Old Eng. serce, sirce, or syrce (scyrst, short; Lat. curtus). See Shift.

Shittim, shīt' tīm [wood], acacia. It is the plu. of shittah. The tabernacle was made of shittim wood. It was rare in Palestine, but common in the Desert (Dean Stanley).

Shive (1 syl.), a thin slice, a little piece broken off: as the shives of flax, odds and ends broken off.

Shiver, shīv'er, a thorn in the flesh, a splinter, a fragment, a shaking fit or tremor, to break into shivers, to tremble with cold or fear; shivered, shīv'rd; shiv'er-ing; shivery, shīv'ēry, inclined to shiver, loosely coherent.

The shivers, the ague.

"Shiver" (a thorn, a fragment), German sciefer, a flake, a splinter.

"Shiver" (to tremble), German schauer, a shivering-fit.

Shoal, shole, a shallow; a sand-bank, a swarm of mackerel, herrings, people, &c. (In this sense often used in the plural: as immense shoals of people, shoals of herrings, i.e., a vast number swimming together.) The word is called School when referring to whales and porpoises: as a school of whales, a school of porpoises.

Shoal, to become shallow; shoaled (1 syl.), shoal'-ing, shoal'-y, shoal'i-ness (Rule xi.)

It would be better for the sake of distinction to spell shoal (a swarm) shole, and leave "shoal" for a sand-bank.

Old English scōlu, sceolu, or scālu, a swarm, a shoal, a school.

"School" (a place of instruction) is the Latin schōla; Greek schōlē, leisure (leisure time for literature).

Shock. Shough, shok, a shaggy dog.

Shock, a violent collision, a concussion, a pile of sheaves, to receive a shock to the body, mind, or feelings; shocked, shōkt; shock'-ing, receiving a shock, terrible, appalling; shocking-ly.

A shock of hair, a thick or bushy head of hair.

An electrical shock, the effect produced on the nerves by a discharge of electricity.

"Shock" (to shake violently), Old Eng. scac[an], p. scōc, p. p. scacen.

"Shock" (a pile), Dutch schokke, a heap; Germ. schock, a heap containing three score.

Shoddy, shōd'dy, an inferior woollen cloth made from old woollen fabrics torn into fibres and worked up again with an admixture of new wool.

This cloth was originally made of the flue "shod" or thrown off in the process of weaving. "Shod" is a provincial pret. of shed, so the verb scdd[an], to divide, makes past sceod. "Shoddy" is therefore cloth made of "shoddings" or "shod" [cast off] wool.

Shoe, plu. shoes, shoo, shooz, archaic plu. shoon, a covering for the foot (two assorted shoes are called a pair of shoes), to furnish with shoes, to put on a shoe or a pair of shoes, (past) shōd, (past part.) shōd; shoe-ing (verbs ending in any two vowels, except -ue, retain both before -ing.)

Shoe'-less; shoe'-black, a boy who cleans shoes in the street; shoe'-leather, lēth'er; shoe'-maker (a botcher of shoes is a cobbler); shoe'-tie, shoe'-string, shoe'-ribbon, shoe'-buckle, shoe'-latchet (all fastenings for the shoes).

O. Eng. scēo, plu. sceōs or sceōn; scō, plu. scōs or scōn, &c.; v. sceō[ian], past sceōde, past part. sceōd or scōd; sceō-nægel, a shoe-nail.

Shōle (1 syl.) The better spelling of shoal, a swarm or crowd.

Old English scōlu, sceolu, or scālu. (See Shoal.)

Shoot, a twig, an incline down which coals are "shot," a pipe to carry off the water of a house-gutter, a vein of metal &c. running in the same direction as the strata, a sudden access of pain, to discharge a gun or bow, to kill or wound by the discharge of a gun, &c., to empty coals &c. from a bag or sack, to discharge a load from a tumbrel, to discharge water through a shoot, to germinate; (past) shōt, (past part.) shōt; shoot'-ing, shoot'-er. A shoot-ing-box. A shooting-stick, a tapering piece of wood or iron for driving up the quoins in the "chase." A shoot-ing star, a meteor called "a falling star."

Old English scōt[an], past sceat, scēt, or scōt, past part. scōten or scōt[ian], past scēotode, past part. scēotod; scēōta, scēōtung, or scōtung, shooting.

Shōp, a place where goods are sold by retail, a building in which mechanics work, to visit shops for the purchase of goods; shopped (1 syl.); shopp'-ing (R. i.), visiting shops..., the act of visiting shops... Shoppings, articles purchased by visiting shops for the purpose of buying goods. Shop'-bill, shop bill'-head. Shop'-board, -bord, a counter. Shop'-book. Shop'-keeper. Shop'-man, plu. shop'-men, (fem.) shop'-woman, plu. shop'-women, -wīm'n, one who attends to the shop. Shop'-lifter, one who steals from a shop; shop'-lifting, stealing from a shop. Shop'-walker, -waw'-ker, one who walks about a shop to direct customers where to go, to see that they are served, and to attend to their inquiries. To talk shop, to use phrases or words peculiar to one's trade or profession.

Old English scypen, a stall; sceoppa, a depôt or treasury.

"Shop-lifter," Gothic hlifan to steal, hlīflus a thief; Lat. lŕvo, to rid one of a thing: as ego hoc te fasce levābo (Virg. Ecl. ix. 65).

Shōre (1 syl.), the coast (land contiguous to a river is its bank), a stanchion (either shore or shoar), a sewer, to prop with shores or shoars, (old past tense of shear); shōred (1 syl.), shōr'-ing. Shore'-less. Sea-shore.

"Shore" [of the sea], Old Eng. score (from scoren, divided, separated).

"Shore" (a prop), Spanish escora, v. escorar, to wedge or prop.

"Shore" (a sewer), a corrupt contraction of issuer, v. issue.

Short, (comp.) short'-er, (super.) short'-est, not long, crisp.

The shorts (Stock Exchange), dealers deficient in those stocks which they have undertaken to deliver.

Shorts (no sing.), fine bran, a sort of pollard.

Short'-ly, short-ness. Short'-cake. Short'-coming, failure of duty. Short'-dated, -day'-ted, [a bill] due soon after its signature. Short'-drawn. Short'-hand, a system of writing. Short'-hand writer, -rī'-ter. Short'-head, -hēd, a whale less than a year old. Short'-lived, līvd. Short'-rib. Short'-sight, -site, near-sight; short-sighted, -sī'-ted, having near sight, not wise for the future, inconsiderate; short sight'-ed-ness. Short-spoken, -spō'-k'n, abrupt, brusque. Short-waist'ed. Short-winded, -wɪn'.dɛd, having shortness of breath. Short-witt'ed, of small intellect. At short notice. In short, briefly. The short and long of the matter, the gist of the subject. To cut short, to abridge. To eat short, to be crisp. To fall short, to be deficient. To come short, to fail to fulfil. To sell short (Stock Exchange), to sell for future delivery what the broker has not in possession, but hopes to obtain.

To stop short, to cease before the end.

To shorten, shōr'.t'n, to make short (-en converts adj. to verbs); shortened, shōr'.t'nd; shorten-ing, shōr'-t'n-ing, making short, butter or lard used to make pastry crisp.

To shorten sail, to reduce the size of sails.

Old English sceort or scort; scortlic, scortlice, or sceortlice, shortly; scortnys or sceortnes, shortness; v. scortian or sceortian, past scortede, past part. scorted.

Shōt, metal pellets for guns, reckoning, a young swine.

Bar shot, an iron bar with a knob at each end.

Canister shot, a number of small shot in a canister or case.

Chain shot, two balls chained together.

Grape shot, shot so arranged as to resemble a bunch of grapes.

Langrel, pieces of iron of any shape.

Red-hot shot, shot discharged in a red-hot state.

Round shot, balls of iron for cannons, and of lead for guns.

Small shot, shot for muskets, pistols, &c.

Shoot, past shōt, past part shōt. Shoot'-er, shot'-tower.

To shot the guns, to load them; shott'-ed, shott'-ing (R. xi.)

To shoot [the guns], to discharge them.

Shotten-harring, one that has thrown off its spawn:

Sceat or scot, quota of money apportioned to any one individual.

Scéot[an], to shoot, past sceat, past part. scoten; scotend, a shooter.

Should, Would, past tense of shall, will.

Both these words are signs of tenses, and also independent verbs, which stand in regimen with other verbs without the intervention of to.

§ As a simple sign shall and should are employed only in the first person (sing. and plu.); in the other persons they imply constraint (moral, legal, or physical).

Shall is used (in the first person) as the auxiliary of the future tenses. Should (or should with auxiliaries) in every tense of the conditional or subjunctive mood.

§ As a simple sign will and would are employed only in the second and third person (sing. and plu.); in the first person they imply intention or inclination.

Will is used (in the second and third person) as the auxiliary of the future tenses. Would (or would with auxiliaries) in every tense of the condit. or subj. mood.

The great difficulty of these words consists in this: as independent verbs they are used in every person: thus

I shall be glad to see you	- - - - }	signs of the future
He (or they) will be glad to see you	- - - - }	tense.
I should be glad to see you, if....	- - - - }	signs of the present
He (or they) would be glad to see you, if....	- - - - }	condition.
I will do it. We will come to-morrow	- - - - }	(promise).
He shall do it. They shall come to-morrow	- - - - }	(promise).
I would if I could. We would come if....	- - - - }	(willingness).
He should do it. They should come if....	- - - - }	(duty, promise).

Used as independent verbs:

§ I will that thou give me John Baptist's head in a charger [I desire or wish] (Mark vi. 25).

Jesus said: Wilt thou be made whole? [Is it your desire] (Jn. v. 6).

Let her go whither she will [wishes] (Deut. xxi. 14).

Whoever will, let him take of the water of life freely (Rev. xxii. 17).

Ye will not come unto me that ye may have life [you are not willing, not desirous] (John v. 40).

§ What I do not, but what I hate that I do (Rom. vii. 15).

Sacrifice and offering thou wouldst not [dost not desire] (Heb. x. 5).

They would none of my counsel [they desired] (Prov. i. 30).

Whom he would he slew, and whom he would he kept alive, and whom he would he set up, &c. (Dan. v. 19).

Shall, Should, independent verb.

I shall come to-morrow (promise, moral compulsion).

You shall come to-morrow (promise).

He that believeth shall be saved (promise).

In questions, "shall" in the first person denotes doubt. In the second person demands the intention of the person addressed.

In the third person asks permission.

Shall I write to him [or shall I not]? (doubt).

Shall you write an answer? (is it your intention).

Shall he write it out for you? (is that your wish).

Commands and predictions, as well as promises, are expressed by shall, because they are of the nature of obligations.

¶ IN DEPENDENT SENTENCES.

§ In dependent sentences Shall and Will follow the present (indefinite and incomplete) and the future (indefinite). Should and Would follow the past tenses and the present (complete).

Present (indefinite)—

I fear - - - - - I shall be too late.

I fear - - - - - He will be too late.

Future (indefinite)—

If you will send me the book I shall be glad.

If you will do so - - - You will much oblige me.

Present (incomplete)—

I am thinking - - - We shall be too late.

I am thinking - - - They will arrive to-morrow.

§ Present (complete)—

He has promised me a long time That I should succeed him.

I have long desired - - That you would join our club.

Past (indefinite)—

I knew - - - That we should be too late.

I knew - - - That he (you) would be too late.

Past (complete)—

I had hoped - - That I should have had the appointment.
 I had hoped - - That you would have had the appointment.

Past (incomplete)—

He was fearing - - I should not come.
 I was fearing - - You would not come.

¶ (1) Contingent willingness in both clauses.

All Persons—WILL followed by WILL or WOULD.

WOULD followed by WILL or WOULD.

¶ (2) Promise based on a contingent uncertainty.

1st Person—SHOULD followed by WILL or WOULD.

(Modern) AM followed by WILL.

2nd and 3rd Persons—SHOULD followed by SHALL or SHOULD.

(Modern) IS or ARE followed by SHALL or SHOULD.

EXAMPLES:

1. § I will, if you will (or would) let me.

He will, if you will (or would) let him.

They will, if you will (or would) let them.

§ I would, if you will (or would) let me.

They would, if you will (or would) let them.

2. § If I should be in town to-morrow I will call and see you.

If I should be in town to-morrow I would call.... (it is not likely I shall be).

Should I be in town to-morrow I will (or would) call.... (it is not likely I shall be).

(Modern) If I am in town to-morrow I will call and see you.

§ If you should be in town to-morrow you shall fetch it.

Should you be in town to-morrow you shall see the house.

(Modern) If he is in town to-morrow he shall fetch it.

If you are in town to-morrow you shall see the house.

"Will," "Would," Old Eng. will[an], to wish, past wolde, would.

"Would" (when it is present or future) is a corruption of our native verb wolen; present wol, preserved in won't (wo'-n't).

"Will" (to bequeath), Old Eng. wiln[ian], p. wilnode, p. p. wilnod.

(It is not the verb will[an], to wish, which forms the auxiliary.)

"Shall," "Should," Old Eng. sceal[an] = sheal, to compel, past, sceolde = sheold-e, scolde = sholde.

ERRORS OF SPEECH—

Philip, how would you like to go to St. John's? I've no doubt I can get you a chance. But in what capacity would I go? [should] (The Gilded Age, p. 154).

I would like him better to be angry than indifferent; and yet would I--- it would be very dreadful [should] (Too Soon ii. 1).

Suppose it had been otherwise, would I have been held responsible for the failure? [should] (Never Again).

I am back, but too much fatigued to come to you at the office, as I would have liked to have done [I should like to....] (The Times).

I told Mr. Reuter that I would not feel justified in giving up existing arrangements [should] (Jas. Grant, Newspaper Press ii. 328).

I would be glad to recover the tune "Welcome Hame, my Dearie" [should] (Memoirs of R. Chambers, by William).

I should very much have liked to see young Butts [I should very much like to have seen] (Tichborne Trial).

The claimant had to sell his ring. How I should have liked to have seen it [How I should like to....] (Tichborne Trial).

I certainly should have liked to have had a little conversation with Mr. Glyn [should like to....] (Tichborne Trial).

In the last three examples "like" expresses a desire begun in time gone by and still existing.

Shoulder, shōwl'.der. Soldier, sōwl'.djēr.

Shoulder, the joint connecting the arm to the trunk, the fore-leg of a quadruped, a prominence, a support, to put on the shoulder, to bear on the shoulder, to push with the shoulder; shouldered, shōwl'.derd; shoul'dering.

Shoul'der-belt, shoul'der-blade; shoulder-knot, -not; shoul'der-strap. Shoulder of mutton, shoulder of lamb,

To put your shoulder to the wheel; to do your best to overcome an obstacle. Shoulder arms.

Old English sculder; German schulter.

Shout, an outcry, a hallooing, to cry aloud, to halloo; shout'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), shout'-ing, shout'-er.

Welsh ysgethru, to iterate (ysgeth, a dart).

Shove, shūv, a push, a thrust, to push, to thrust; shoved, shūvd; shov-ing (R. xix.), shūv'.ing; shov'-er, shūv'.er.

To shove past, to shove by, to thrust aside; to shove off.

Old Eng. scedf, v. scūf[an] or sceof[an], past scēdf, past part. scōfen.

Shovel, shūv'.ēl, a scoop, a sort of spade, to use a shovel; shovelled, shūv'.eld; shov'el-ing, shov'el-er.

Shov'elful, plu. shovelfuls (not shovelsful), two or three shovelfuls, that is, a shovelful repeated two or three times, but two or three shovelsful means two or three shovels all full; shovel-board, -bōrd, a game; shovel-hat, a hat turned up at the brim worn by dignified clergymen.

Old English scobl, scōft, or sceoft; German schaufel.

Shōw, exhibition, display, to point out, to display, to exhibit; shōwed (1 syl.), shōw'-ing, past part. shōwn.

Shōw'-y, shōw'i-ness, shōw'i-ly (Rule xi.). Show'-bill.

Show'-bread (see Shew). Show'-case. Show-room.

Show'-man, plu. show'-men. To show forth, to manifest.

To show off, to set off, to display oneself with vanity.

To show up, to expose. Show of hands, hands raised up to signify approval of the question propounded.

Old English sceawe, v. sceaw[ian], past sceawode, sceawod; also sew[an], past sewte or sewde, past part. sewen.

Shower, shōw'.er (to rhyme with our), a fall of rain, a downfall of anything, to pour down, to bestow liberally; show'ered (2 syl.), shower-ing, showering-ly. Shower-bath.

Showery, shōw'.e.ry; shōw'eri-ness (Rule xi.), shōwer-less.

Old English sceor or scūr. Sure [shūre], Latin secūrus.

Shrap'nel, a sphere filled with musket balls and a bursting powder.

So called from General Shrapnel, the inventor.

Shred, a strip of cloth for fixing fruit-trees to walls, a fragment, to tear into long strips. To mince, is to cut into minute morsels. Shredd'-ed, shredd'-ing (Rule i.), shred'less.

Shreds and patches, odds and ends.

Old Eng. screade, v. scread[ian], past screadode, past part. screadod.

Shrew, a nagging vexatious woman, a scold; shrew'-ish (-ish added to nouns means "like," added to adj. it is dim.); shrew'ish-ly; shrew'ish-ness, petulance, ill-temper.

Shrew'-mouse, plu. shrew'-mice, a field mouse that lives on insects. It is perfectly harmless, and not a mouse at all.

(The "mouse" belongs to the genus mus, the "shrew" to sorex.)

"Shrew," German schreier, a brawler, v. schreien, to brawl.

"Shrewmouse," Old English screowa or screawa.

Shrewd, acute, sagacious, sharp-sighted; shrewd'-ly, -ness.

Germ. bescheien, to beshrew, to bewitch. Witches were called shrewd or cunning women, and much of their art consisted in "shrewdness."

Shriek, shreek, a scream, to scream; (past) shruck or shrieked, shreekd; shriek-ing, shreek'-ing; shriek'-er.

Welsh ysgrechio, to scream; Norse skrige, to shriek.

Shrivealty, shree'.vål.ty, for sheriffalty, the office or jurisdiction of a sheriff. (See Sheriff.)

Shrift, the confession of a person dying. (O. E. scrift.) See Shrive.

Shrike (1 syl.), the butcher-bird. (French pie-grièche.)

A corruption of the Latin pica gracula, or Greek pie.

Shrill, (comp.) shrill'-er, (super.) shrill'-est, acute in sound, piercing in sound; shrill'-y, shrill'-ness (R. viii.)

Welsh grill, a creak or chirp; grilliaw, to make a shrill sound.

Shrimp, a horny crustacean, a puny creature; shrimp'-er, shrimp'-ing, catching shrimps; shrimp'-net.

German schrumpel, v. shrumpfen, to shrivel; Danish skrumppe.

A "shrimp" is a puny lobster, a puny [shrivelled-up] man.

Shrine (1 syl.), a reliquary, a decorated tomb; shrined (1 syl.) or enshrined' (2 syl.) placed in a shrine; shrīn'-ing (R. xix.)

Old Eng. scrin; Germ. schran; Lat. scrinium, a coffer; Gk. grónē.

Shrink, (past) shrank, (past part.) shrunk [or shrunken], to contract, to diminish; shrink'-ing, shrinking-ly, -er.

Shrink'-age, a fissure in clay caused by drying.

Old English scrinc[an], past scranc, past part. scruncen.

Shrive (1 syl.), to make confession to a priest, to receive absolution after confession; shrived (1 syl.), shriv'-ing, (past part.) shriven, shriven; shriv'-er, a father confessor.

Shrift, confession to a priest [on a death bed].

Observe the short i in the past part. shriven.

Old English scrif[an], past ge-scrīf, past part. ge-scryfen, to shrive; scrift, a confession or confessor; scrift-bōc, a confessional.

Shrivel, shriv'el, to shrink and wrinkle; shrivelled, shriv'eld; shriv'ell-ing (Rule iii., -EL).

Old English gerifled or geriflod, shrivelled or wrinkled.

Shroud, a dress for a dead person, to dress in a shroud, to conceal, to envelop; shroud'-ed (R. xxxvi.), shroud'-ing, shroud'-less. Shrouds (no sing.) ropes forming a ladder from the deck of a ship to the mast-heads on each side.

Old English scrūd, a shroud, clothing.

Shrove- (1 syl.), the past tense of shrive (q.v.), but only used in Shrove'-tide, Shrove-Tuesday, and Shroving, shrō'ving, the festivity of Shrove-tide ("tide" Old Eng. tīd, season).

Shrüb, a bushy plant, a beverage; shrub'-less, without shrubs.

Shrubb'-ery, plu. shrubberies, shrüb'.ë.riz, R. i. (-ery [Latin postfix], a place for); shrubb'-y, shrubb'i-ness.

"Shrub" (a plant), Old English scrob, scrobb, or scrybe.

"Shrub" (a drink), Arab. shurb or shurbon, akin to "sherbet."

Shrüg, a drawing up of the shoulders expressive of doubt or disapproval; shrugged (1 syl.), shrugg'-ing (Rule i.)

Danish skrugge, to stoop; skruk-rygget, hump-backed.

Shudder, shüd'.der, a tremor, a quiver, to quake with fear or cold; shuddered, shüd'.derd; shudder-ing, shuddering-ly.

German schauder, shuddering; schaudern, to shudder.

Shuffle, shűf'f'l, a mingling, an evasion of the truth, an irregular gait, a step in dancing, to mingle [cards], to evade the truth, to make a shuffle with the feet; shuffled, shűf'f'ld; shuff'ling, shuff'ling-ly; shuffler, shűf'f'ler.

To shuffle off, to get out of an engagement or duty in an underhand manner, to get rid of awkwardly.

To shuffle up, to put things together confusedly.

Old English syfeling (syfe or sife, a sieve), not shove with diminutive.

Shumac, an erroneous spelling of sumach (q.v.)

Shün, to avoid; shunned (1 syl.), shunn'-ing (Rule i.)

Old Eng. scun[ian], past scunode, past part. scunod, scunung,

Shünt (railway term), to shift a carriage, &c., from one line of rails to another; shunt'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), shunt'-ing.

A contraction of shun-it, amalgamated into shun't.

Shüt, (past) shüt, (past part.) shüt, to close; shutt'-ing (R. i.)

Shutt'-er, a cover for a window; shuttered, shüt'.t'rd, furnished with shutters. To shut in, To shut out, To shut off, To shut up, to close, to confine, to terminate.

Old Eng. scittan or scyttan, to shut or lock up (scyttel, a lock or bolt).

Shuttle, shüt'.t'l, an instrument used in weaving for shooting the thread through the warp; shuttle-box, a box to receive the shuttle after it has run through the warp; shuttle-race; shuttle-cock (a corruption of shuttle-cork), a cork stuck with feathers and beaten with a battledore.

Old English secathel (from secat, shot; secotan, to shoot).

Shy, (comp.) shy'-er or shi'-er, (super.) shy'-est or shi'-est, timid, to start aside in fear [as a horse]; to throw at an object; shies (1 syl.); shied, shide (1 syl.); shi'-er (R. xi.), shy'-ing, shy'-ly, shy'-ness. (Germ. scheu, shy, shyness.)

"Dry," "Shy," and "Sly" are unsettled, especially in their degrees of comparison: thus

Dry, dry'-er, dry'-est, dry'-ly, dry'-ness, dry'-ing, dry'-ish; and dri'-er, dri'-est, dri'-ly, dri'-ness, dries, dried.

Shy, shy'-er, shy'-est, shy'-ly, shy'-ness, shy'-ing, shy'-ish; and shi'-er, shi'-est, shi'-ly, shi'-ness, shies, shied.

Sly, sly'-er, sly'-est, sly'-ly, sly'-ness; or, sti'-er, sti'-est, sti'-ly, sti'-ness.

The i (except before -ing and -ish) is the more correct form. The Rule is, that words ending in -y after a consonant, change y into i when any suffix is added (except -ish, -ism, -ing, and agglutinated affixes, such as -hood, -ship, -like; -man, -woman, -maid; -faced, -guard, -horse, -bird, -fold, &c.: as clergy-man, dairy-maid, lady-bird, sixty-fold, baby-hood, body-guard, &c.

Si, see (in Musie). This was added (in the 17th cent.) by Le Maire, a Frenchman, to the six notes of Guido, ut (subsequently dō), re, mi, fa, sol, la.

Siberian, si-bee'-ri-ăn, adj. of Siberia, bleak, northern.

Sibilant, sib'-i-lant, hissing. Sibilation, sib'-i-lay'-shăn. The sibilants, s and z. "S" has four sounds (1) s as in sin, (2) z as in rise, (3) sh as in sure, (4) zh as in pleasure.

Latin sibilans gen. sibilantis, hissing; sibilare, to hiss.

Sibyl, sib'-il, a fortune-teller, a gipsy, one of the noted prophetesses of ancient Greece; sibylline, sib'-i-line, adj. of sibyl.

Sibylline books, certain books purchased of the Cumæan sibyl by Tarquin the Proud (king of Rome).

Latin sibylla, sibyllinus; Greek sibylla (sion bulla [bolla], i.e., theou boulé, [one who knows] the will or counsels of God).

Martian Capella says there were but two sybils, one of which was the famous Cumæan Sibyl. Ælian says there were four, but tradition usually assumes the number to be ten; and hence the phrase "an eleventh sibyl or second Cassandra."

Sic, sik (Lat.) Is this right? So it is in the MS. [although it does not seem to be correct], as the Sybils [sic] were ten...

Siccative, sik'-kă-tiv, that which promotes drying.

French siccatif; Latin siccāre, to dry up, to make dry.

Size, size, the number six at dice. Size (1 syl.), magnitude.

"Size," Fr. six; Lat. sex, six. "Size," contraction of assize, an old statute regulating the measure and price of commodities.

Sicilian, si-sil'-i-ăn, adj. of Sicily, a native of Sicily.

Sicilian Vespers, the great massacre of the French in Sicily on the eve of Easter Tuesday, 1282.

Sick, unwell, inclined to vomit, weary, disgusted; sick'-ish (-ish added to adj. is dim., added to nouns it means "like"); sick'-ish-ly, sick'-ish-ness. Sick'-ly, sick'-li-ness (R. xi.); sick'-ness, plu. sicknesses (one of the few words in -ness which have a plural. About 1400 have none).

Sick'-bed; sick-headache, -hēd'-āke; sick'-list; heart'-sick.
The sick, those not well collectively considered.

Sicken, sĭk'n' (-en converts adj. to verbs), to droop prior to an illness, to make disgusted; to languish; sickened; sickening, sĭk'n'ing; sickening-ly; sicken-er, sĭk'-ner.

Old English sic, sioc, sedc, seoc, or sec, seōenes sickness, v. sic[li]an or sæcl[ian], past sæclode, past part. sæclod.

Sickle, Scythe, sĭk'l, sĭthe.

Sickle, a reap hook. It has a short handle for one hand, and the blade is curved like a hook, the edge being in the inside or shorter curve of the blade.

Scythe has a long handle for both hands, and a long blade slightly curved, the edge of the blade being in the inside or shorter curve also.

"Sickle," Old Eng. sicel or sicol; Lat. sicula, a sickle (sēco, to cut).

"Scythe," Old Eng. sithe. The y is a blunder, sĭthe means "lately."

Side (1 syl.), the margin, edge, a party, descent, &c., &c.

To side with, to join one party in opposition to another;
sid-ed, sĭ'dēd; sid-ing (Rule xix.), sĭ'ding.

Sider, sĭ'der. Cider, sĭ'der.

Sider, one on a particular side: as an out-sider.

Cider, a beverage made from apples. (French cidre.)

Side'-arms, weapons worn at the side, as a sword, &c.

Side'-board, -bōrd, a piece of furniture for one side of a room. Side'-cut, an indirect blow. Side'-dish.

Side'-glance. Side'-long, oblique, not directly in front.

Side'-pocket. Side'-posts. Side'-saddle, for ladies.

Sides'-man or side'-man, plu. -men, an officer in a church to assist strangers to a sitting and aid the Churchwardens.

Side'-table. Side'-view, -vu. Side'-walk, -wawk.

Side'-ways (better side'-wise) adv., on one side.

Side'-wind. By the side of, close to. Side by side.

To choose sides. To take sides. To select sides.

Old English side; side-wah, side-wall; side-wise, side-wise.

Sidereal, sĭ-dee'.rē.āl, pertaining to the stars, containing stars, starry, measured by the apparent motions of the stars.

Side'real day = one revolution of the earth on its axis.

Side'real year, the time which elapses between the sun's leaving any fixed star and his return to it again.

Side'real heavens, the starry heavens.

Latin sidereus, siderālis (sidus gen. sidēris, a star).

Sider-, sīdēro- before cons. (Gk. prefix), iron. (Gk. sīdēros, iron.)

Siderite, sīd'.ē.rite, sparry iron ore (-ite, fossil, ore).

Greek sīdēros, iron, containing iron, made of iron.

Sidero-graphy, sīd'.ē.rōg''.rū.fy, the art of engraving on steel. (Greek sīdēros grapho, I engrave on iron.)

Sidero-lite, sīd'.ē.rō.lite, a meteoric stone.

Greek sīdēro-[sīdēros]lithos, iron-stone.

Sidero-mancy, sīd'.ē.rō.mān'.sy, divination by burning straw, &c., on red-hot iron. (Gk. manteia, divination.)

Sidero-scope, sīd'.ē.ro.skōpe, an instrument for detecting the presence of iron in substances.

Greek sīdēro-[sīdēros]skōpēo, I behold [the presence of] iron.

Sidle, sī'.d'l, to move sidewise, to push [through a crowd].

To sidle up to one, to creep up to one little by little.

Sidled, sī'.d'ld; sidling, sī'.d'ling; sidler, sī'.d'ler.

A verb formed of the word side. Old English side.

Siege, seedge, investment of a town; v. besiege, be.seedge', to invest a town; besieged' (2 syl.), besieging (R. xix.)

Siege'-train. To raise a siege, to abandon the attempt.

Old Eng. sige; Fr. siege (Lat. sedēre, to sit down [before the walls]).

Sierra, sē.ēr'rah, a ridge of peaked mountains.

Span. sierra, a saw, referring to the saw-like appearance of the peaks.

Siesta, sē.ēs'.tah, a mid-day or after-dinner nap.

Span. siesta, v. sestar, to take a siesta. Ménage and Rochefort say: du latin sesta [hora], parce que la sieste se faisait chez les Romains à la sixième heure, qui est leur midi.

Sieve, siv (not seev), a riddle, a bolter, a measure.

Sift, to shake through a sieve; sift'-ed (R. xxxvi.), sift'-ing, sift'ing-ly, sift'-er. (Old Eng. sife, or syfe, v. sift[an].)

Sigh, sī, a deep-drawn and audible respiration, to heave a sigh; sighed, side; sigh-ing, sī'ing; sighing-ly; sigh'-er.

Old English sic[an] and seaf[ian], n. siccet.

Sight. Site. Cite (all site). Sighted. Cited (both sī'.ted).

Sight, sīte, perception by the eyes, a spectacle, a small aperture to look through, a large number, to look at through a sight-hole, to gain by means of a "sight" the proper elevation, &c.; sight'-ed; sight-ing, sī'.ting.

Sight'-less, sight'less-ly, sight'less-ness.

Sight-ly, sīte'-ly, pleasing to the sight; sight'li-ness.

To come in sight. To heave in sight; hove in sight.

At sight, on presentment for payment. A sight, an unsightly object. Sight'-seeing; sight-seer, sīte'-see.cr.

"I saw a sight of men" (a vast number) has the sanction of Morte d'Arthur, where we read of "a syght of monkes."

"Sight," Old Eng. syth, ge-sith, or ge-siht, v. ge-sihan, to see.

"Site" (a situation), Lat. situs, a situation. "Cite," Lat. cito, to quote.

Sigillaria, sĭdg'ĭl.lair''rĭ.ah (in Geol.), a genus of fluted tree-stems in the coal-measures having scal-like punctures (or leaf-scaurs) on the ridges. (Lat. sigillārius, sigillum.)

Sign, sine. Sine (1 syl.), a mathematical term.

Sign, a symbol, a token, a wonder, a miracle, a significant gesture, a device [now limited to public houses, but at one time common to shops generally], a zodiacal cluster, to attach one's name to a document, to ratify by a signature, to indicate by a gesture; signed, sĭnd; sign-ing, sĭ'ning; sign'-er, sĭ'ner. Sign-board, sine'bord.

Sign-man'ual. Sign'-post, a pillar to support a [public-house] sign. Signs of the Zō'diac.

Signs of the times, indications of coming events.

"Signs of the Zodiac": A'ries, Tau'rus, Gem'ini; Cancer, Le'o, Vir'go; Li'bra, Scor'pio, Sagitta'rius; Capricor'nus, Aqua'rius, Pis'ces.

Old Eng. segn, an ensign; Lat. signum, a sign; Dan. signe, to make the sign of the cross. O. Eng. v. sign[ian], p. signode, p. p. signod.

"Sine" (in mathematics), Lat. sinus; Fr. sinus, a sine.

Signal, sĭg'nāl, a sign to give notice, memorable, to give notice by signals; signalled, sĭg'nald; sign'all-ing (R. iii., -AL), sign'all-er; sign'all-ly, eminently. Sign'als.

(The "i" is doubled only with the affixes -ed, -er, and -ing.)

Signal-ise (R. xxxi.), to make signal or noted; signalised, sĭg'nāl.izd; signalis-ing (R. xix.), sĭg'nāl.izing.

French signal, signaler; Latin signum, v. signāre.

Signatory, plu. -ries, sĭg'nāl.tō.rĭz, one who signs a document.

Latin signātor, plu. signātores, v. signāre, to sign.

Signature, sĭg'nāl.tchūr, the name of a person subscribed to a document; (in Music), the sharps, flats, &c., placed after the clef to indicate the key; (with Printers), the letter or figure placed at the bottom of the first page of each sheet to mark the number and order. (Fr. signature; Lat. signāre.)

Signet, sĭg'nēt. Cygnēt, sĭg'net, a young swan. (Lat. cycnus.)

Signet, a seal used by a sovereign for private purposes.

Signet-ring, a finger-ring with a stone bearing one's crest, &c.

Latin signum, a sign; signāre, to sign, with -et diminutive.

Significant, sĭg'nĭf'ĭ.cānt, expressing a secret meaning, important; significant-ly. Significance, sĭg'nĭf'ĭ.kance; significancy, sĭg'nĭf'ĭ.kān.sy, meaning, force, &c.

Signification, sĭg'nĭf'ĭ.kay''shūn. Significative, sĭg'nĭf'ĭ.cay.tĭv; significative-ly, significative-ness.

Significatory, sĭg'nĭf'ĭ.kā.t'ry, betokening.

Signify, sĭg'nĭfy, to mean; signifies, sĭg'nĭfize; signified, sĭg'nĭfide; signify-ing (Rule xi.)

Latin significans genitive significantis, significantiā, significātiō, v. significo (signum ficio[facio], to make significant).

Signor, fem. signora, seen'yor, seen'yō.rah. Senior, see'nī.or.

Signor, signora = (French), Monsieur, Madame, or English Mr. and Sir, Mrs. and Madam (Miss is signorī'nā).

Senior. When a son bears the same name as his living father Senr. is added for distinction sake to the father's name, and Junr. to the son's: as Mr. John Smith, Senr. (Father), or John Smith, Esq., Sen., Mr. John Smith, Junr. (Son), or John Smith, Esq., Junr. (It is not usual in private letters to add Senr., but Junr. must be added.)

Signory, plu. signories (Rule xlv.); seen'yō.riz, a lordship; signor-age, seen'yor.rage; signoral, seen'yor.rāl.

These words are spelt in divers ways, but the spelling given above is the best. Signior, signiora, signiory, signiorage and signioral are objectionable, because they are partly Italian and partly Latin. Similarly signior, signiora, signiory, signiorage, and seigneurial or seigniorial, are still more objectionable, being partly Franco-Italian and partly Latin.

Ital. signore, signōra, signoreggiare; Fr. seigneur, seigneurie.

Sikh or Seik, seek (of Hindus.) Sheik, sheek (of Arab.) Seek.

Sikh or Seik, one of the Sikhs [a warlike people] of the Punjab forming part of our Indian empire.

Sheik, an Arab prince, head of a Mahometan religious house, a preacher in a mosque.

"Sikh" (a lion). "Sheik" (a patriarch). "Seek," O. E. sēc[an].

Silence, sī'lence, absence of sound, cessation of speaking, stillness, to still, to appease, be quiet! hold your tongue! silenced (2 syl.); silenc-ing (Rule xix.), sī'lēn.sing.

Silent, sī'lent; si'lent-ly, si'lent-ness.

Latin silens gen. silentis, silentium, v. silere, to be silent.

Silésian, sī.lee'.sī.ăn, adj. of Sile'sia, a native of Silesia.

Silex, sī'.lex or silica, sīl'ī.kah, flint-earth, the chief ingredient of rock-crystal, quartz, flint, &c.

Silicon or silicium, sīl'ī.kōn, sī.līs'ī.ūm, the base of silex or silica (an elementary substance).

Silicic acid, sī.līs'ī.k a compound of silicon and oxygen.

Silicate, sīl'ī.kate, a salt of silicic acid (-ate denotes a salt formed by the combination of an acid in -ic with a base, -ic means most highly oxidised); silicated, sīl'ī.kā.ted, impregnated with silica.

Silicious, Cilicious (both sī.lish'ūs). Salacious, sa.lay'.shūs.

Silicious (not siliceous, adj. from the Latin in -x are -ious not -eous in English, R. lxvi.), flinty. Silicious sinter, a deposit from springs holding silex in solution.

Cilicious, hairy, made of hair. (Latin cīlūm, cīlicium.)

Salacious, lustful. (Latin sālar, gen. sālūcis, sal, salt.)

Silicio, sī.lis'ik, adj. of silex or silica.

Silici-calcareous, sī.lis'ī-kāl.kair'rē.ūs, consisting of silica and calcareous matter, cherty.

Siliciferous, sīl'ī.sif''.ēr.ūs, producing silex.

Silicify, sī.lis'ī.fy, to render silicious; silicifies, sī.lis'ī.fize; silicified, sī.lis'ī.fide (R. xi.); silicify-ing, sī.lis'ī.fy.ing.

Silicification, sī.lis'ī.fī.kay''.shūn. Silicon (see above).

Latin silex gen. silicis, flint stone; Greek chalix, gravel-stone.

"Silicify," silex gen. silicis scio[ficio], to make into silex.

"Siliferous," silex gen. silicis fēro, to produce silex.

Silhouette, sīl'.oo.ett, a black profile or contour (either coloured black or cut out of black paper with scissors).

So called from Etienne Silhouette, contrôleur des finances under Louis XV., who made great savings in the public expenditure of France.

Silk, a fine glossy filament produced by silk-worms, a fabric made of silk filaments; silk'-en, silk'-y, silk'i-ness (R. xi.)

Silk-gown, the dress badge worn in law-courts by a queen's counsel. Silk'-mercer, a dealer in silks. Silk'-throwster [or thrower], one who prepares silk for weaving. Silk-weaver, -wee'.ver: Silk'-worm.

Old English seolc, seoloc, solc, or stalc, seolcen, seolc-wyrm.

Sill Sell. Cell.

Sill, the basement or threshold of a door or window frame.

"Sill," Old Eng. syl. "Sell" (to vend), O. Eng. sell[an] or syll[an].

"Cell" (of a dungeon, a honeycomb, &c.), Welsh cel; Latin cella.

Sillabub, sīl'.la.būb, a food made of cream and wine.

French sillabub [du vin, du cidre, et du lait] (Spiers, p. 544).

Silly, (comp.) sill'i-er, (super.) sill'i-est, foolish; silli-ly; silli-ness (Rule xi.) sīl'.lī.ness. Scilly, sīl'.ly [isles].

"Silly," Germ. selig, holy, blessed, happy. Hence the infant Jesus is called "the harmless silly babe," and sheep are "silly sheep."

As the "holy" are easily taken in by worldly cunning, silly came to signify gullable and foolish. (See Simple.)

"Scilly" [isles], a corrupt contraction of the Phœn. cassiterides, tin-islands. (Cassiteri, 'ssiteri, 'ssiri, scilly.)

Silt (not siltth), granulated stones scraped from roads, fine mud collected at estuaries. To silt up, to choke up or obstruct with accumulated silt; silt'-ed, silt'-ing.

Old Eng. syth or syll, a plough. Silt is ploughed-up surface-soil.

Silurian, sīlū'.rī.ăn (in Geol.), the fossiliferous strata between the Cambrian schists and the Old Red Sandstone.

The name was given to these strata by Sir Roderick Murchison because he worked them out in that part of England and South Wales formerly inhabited by the Silures.

Silva. Silvas. Silver (see below).—Silva. Flora. Fauna.

Silva, sīl'.vah, the forest trees of any country or district.

Flora, flō'.rah, all the plants peculiar to a country.

Fauna, faw'.nah, all the animals peculiar to a country.

Silvas, sĭl'vǎhz. Pampas, pam'pǎhz. Llanos, lǎh'noze.

Silvas, the woodland region of the great South American plain luxuriant with primeval forest-growth.

Pampas, the vast treeless plains of South America pastured by herds of wild cattle and horses.

Llanos, the flat treeless plains along the banks of the Orinoco in South America.

"Silva," Lat. silva or sylva, a wood; Gk. hulê, a wood, a forest.

"Flora," Lat. Flōra, goddess of flowers, hence flowers generally.

"Fauna," Lat. Faunus, one of the woodland deities of ancient Rome.

"Silvas," Lat. silva, a wood. "Pampas," Peru. pampa, a field.

"Llanos," Span. llano, a level tract of land, a flat.

Silver, sĭl'ver, a precious metal, to cover with silver. Silver articles for domestic uses and those coated with silver or in imitation of silver go by the general name of Plate.

To silver, silvered (2 syl.), also called plated, plā'ted; silver-ing or plat-ing, plā'ting; silvery, sĭl'very.

Silver-smith, a dealer in silver and plated goods.

Fulmina'ting silver, an explosive compound prepared from the oxide of silver and ammonia.

German silver, an alloy of copper, nickel, and zinc.

Born with a silver spoon in his mouth, born to luck.

Silver wedding, the twenty-fifth anniversary of one's wedding-day, when (in Germany) the woman has a silver wreath presented to her. A golden wedding, the fiftieth anniversary, when the wreath is of gold.

Old Eng. seolfer, seolfor, sylfor, silfer, or siluer, seolferen; seolfering, silvering; seolfer-smith; sylfren, made of silver.

Simia, plu. simiæ, sĭm'ī.ah, sĭm'ī.ē, the systematic word for apes and monkeys; simious, sĭm'ī.ūs, adj. of simia.

Latin simia, an ape (simus, Greek simos, flat-nosed).

Similar, sĭm'ī.lar, like; sim'ilar-ly, in like manner.

Similarity, plu. similarities, sĭm'ī.lār'ri.tiz.

Latin similāris, similāritas (similis, Greek hōmālōs, like).

Simile, sĭm'ī.lē, plu. similes, sĭm'ī.leez (v. Parable), a direct parallel between two essentially different sets of actors, either drawn out in words or suggested to the imagination: as a busy city compared to a bee-hive.

Similitude, si.mĭl'ī.tude, resemblance.

Latin similis, simile, similitudo (Greek hōmālōs, like).

Sim'mer, to keep near boiling point; simmered, sĭm'merd; simmer-ing. (? Greek zūmé, v. zūmōō, to ferment.)

Simony, sĭm'ō.ny, buying church preferment for personal presentation, giving or receiving money for church preferment; simoniacal, sĭm'ō.nĭ'ā.kāl (adj.); simoniacal-ly.

From Simon [Magus], who offered money for the "gift of miracles."

Simoom, sī.moom' or Samiel, say'.mī.əl.

Simoom, a hot suffocating wind laden with sand from the deserts of Arabia or Africa. (Arab. samūm, samma, to poison.)

Sim'per, an affected smile, to smile affectedly; sim'pered (2 syl.); sim'per-ing, sim'pering-ly, sim'per-er.

Welsh simp, a flutter, v. simplaw; simer, levity; simera, to dally.

Simple, sīm'.p'l, not complex, elementary, artless, true to nature; (comp.) sim'pler, (super.) sim'plest, sim'ply, simple-ness.

Simplicity, sīm'.plīs'.ī.ty. Simple-hearted, -har'.tēd; simple-minded, simple-minded-ness. Simple equation.

Simplify, sīm'.plī.fy, to make plain and easy; simplifies, sīm'.plī.fize; simplified, sīm'.plī.fide; sim'plify-ing.

Simplification, sīm'.plī.fī.kay''.shūn, making easy.

Simpleton, sīm'.p'l.tōn, a silly person.

Latin simplex gen. simplicis, simplicitas, simplus (sine plica, without a fold). Duplicity is duplex plica, a double fold. Thought without a fold is mere childishness. It is "tortuosity of thought" which constitutes wisdom. A simpleton is one whose thoughts are just as they arise, without reflection or "fold."

Simulate, sīm'.u.late. Dis-simulate, dis.sīm'.u.late.

Simulate, to pretend to be what you are not.

Dissimulate, to pretend not to be what you really are.

Simulat-ed, sīm'.u.lā.tēd; sim'ulāt-ing (Rule xix.), sim'u-lāting-ly, sim'ulāt-or (Rule xxxvii.)

Simulation, sīm'.u.lay''.shūn. Dissimulation.

Latin simulatio, simulātor, simulāre, dissimulatio, dissimulātor, dissimulāre. "Simulo" (similis, like [what you are not]), but "dissimulo" (dissimilis, unlike [what you are]).

Simultaneous, sīm'.ūl.tay''.nē.ūs, synchronous, at the same time; simulta'neous-ly, simulta'neous-ness.

Simultaneity, sīm'.ūl.ta.nee''.ī.ty, synchronism.

French simultané, simultanéité (Latin simul, at the same time).

Sin, transgression, either omission of one's duty to God, or commission of some act forbidden by God, to violate God's law; sinned, sīnd; sinn'-ing (R. i.), sinning-ly, sinn'-er, sin'-ful (Rule viii.), sinful-ly, sinful-ness, wickedness; sin'-less, sinless-ly, sinless-ness, freedom from sin.

Actual sin, āk'.tchū.āl..., personal violation of God's law.

Deadly sin, dēd'.ly..., one of the seven sins: viz., murder, lust, covetousness, gluttony, pride, envy, and idleness.

Mortal sin, same as deadly sin. (Rom. Cath. dogma.)

Orig'inal sin, the taint which man inherits as the offspring of disobedient Adam his federal head.

Venial sin, vē'.nī.āl..., a sin not "deadly," but pardonable.

Old Eng. sin, syn, or synn, v. syn[gian], past synode, p. part. synod; synlic, sinful; synfull; synleas, sinless (synnig [sinny], obsolete).

Sinaitic, sī.na.ĭt'ik, adj. of Mt. Sinai, given from Mt. Sinai.

Sinapis, sīn.ă'pīs, the mustard genus of plants; sinapism, sīn'.a.pizm, a poultice of mustard and vinegar.

Sinapisine, sīn.ă'pī.sīn, a principle found in mustard seed.

Latin sināpis (Greek sinēpi), sināpismus, made of mustard.

Since (1 syl.), from the time when, from, ago, seeing that, inasmuch as. Ever since, without cessation.

"Since" (from the time when, adv.), O. Eng. sīn, sith, or siththan.

"Since" (seeing that, inasmuch as), Old Eng. sith or sithen. Sithence was used for since to the middle of the 16th century.

Sincere, sīn.seer', honest, genuine, truthful; (comp.) sīncēr'-er, (super.) sīncēr'-est, sincere'-ly; sincere'-ness.

Sincerity, sīn.sēr'rī.ty. (Latin sincērus, sincēritas.)

Sine cera, without wax. The ancient Romans wrote on parchment the testaments which they had no intention of altering, but on tablets covered with wax what was not intended to be permanent, hence a testament written sine cera was genuine and truthful, but the tabulae ceratae were not to be relied on, as the wax could be effaced and something else written at any moment. Two other suggestions are: Honey sine cera from which all the wax has been carefully extracted, hence unadulterated; or Pottery sine cera, in allusion to the Roman custom of hiding flaws in pottery with wax, hence genuine or what its appearance bespeaks.

Sine (1 syl.) Sign, sine. Sine, sī.ne (2 syl., see below).

Sine, a trigonometrical term. Versed sine, verst...

Sign, a symbol, an indication, to subscribe one's name, &c.

"Sine," Fr. sinus; Lat. sinus. "Sign," O. Eng. segen; Lat. signum.

Sine-, sī.ne- (Latin prefix), without. Only one example exists.

Sine-cure, sī.ne.kūre. Cynosure, sī.no.shure.

Sinecure, official pay without official work.

Cynosure, the pole-star or the star in the tail of the "dog."

Sine die, sī.ne dī.e, [adjourned] indefinitely, i.e., dismissed.

Sine qua non, sī.ne..., an indispensable thing or condition.

"Sinecure," Latin sine cura, [wages] without a charge or work.

"Cynosure," Latin cynōsūra (Greek kynos oura, [a star in] the tail of the "dog," that is, the lesser bear).

Sinew, sīn'nu, a tendon to unite a muscle to a bone.

Sinews (no sing.), sīn'nuze, strength, vigour, nerve.

Sinew-y, sinewi-ness (R. xi.), sinew-less. Sinew-shrunk.

Old Eng. sinewe, sinue, sinwe, sinu, seonow, sewu, or seona.

Sing, (past) sang, (past p.) sung. Singe (1 syl.), sīnged (1 syl.)

Sing'-ing, uttering vocal music. Singe-ing, scorching.

Sing'-er, one who sings. Sing-er, sīn'djer, one who sings.

Sing-song (a ricochet word, of which we have several), a monotonous half-singing manner of speaking.

"Sing," Old English sing[an], past sang, past part. sungen.

"Singe," Old English sang[an], past sengde, past part. sanged.

Singe, sɪnj, to scorch. Sing, to utter vocal music.

Singes, sɪn'.dʒes; singed, sɪndʒd; singe-ing, sɪn'.dʒɪŋ; sing-er, sɪn'.dʒɪr, one who sings; but

Sing, sings, sang, sing'-ing; sing'-er, one who sings.

"Singe," Old English sæng[an], past sængte, past part. sænged.

"Sing," Old English sing[an], past sang, past part. sungen.

The -e of singe and dye is retained before -ing to distinguish the words from sing-ing and dy-ing.

Single, sɪn'.g'l. Gingle, sɪn'.g'l, a horse-girth.

Single, only one, unmarried, to pick out; singled, sɪn.g'ld; singling, sɪn'.g'lɪŋ. Sing-ly, sɪn'.g'li. Sin'-gle-ness.

Singular, sɪn'.gu.lər, unique, peculiar; singular-ly.

Singularity, plu. singularities, sɪn'.gu.lər''rɪ.tɪz.

Singular Number (in Gram.) Plu'al Number.

§ The Singular Number of a noun denotes only one object.

The Plural Number denotes two or more objects.

§ The Singular Number of a verb is that which is used when a single object is its nominative case: as I, thou, he, she, it, or any sentence which can be referred to by the pronoun it.

The Plural Number of a verb is that which is used when more than one object is its nominative case: as we, you, they, any noun in the plural number, more than one noun, &c.

Singulativ, sɪn'.gu.lay''tɪm, each article one by one.

Latin singŭlus, singŭlāris, singŭlārĭtas, singŭlārĭus, singŭlātĭm.

"Plural," Latin plurālis (plus gen. plūrĭs, more than one).

Sinister, sɪn'.ɪs.tər, inauspicious, indirect censure, on the left hand (opposed to dexter, on the right hand).

Sin'-ister-hand'-ed, left-handed, unlucky; sinister-ly.

Sinistral, sɪn'.ɪs.trəl (in Conchol.), the spiral of a shell turning to the left. Sinistrous, sɪn'.ɪs.trʊs, perverse, inclined to the left; sin'-istrous-ly. (Latin sinister.)

Sink, a brick table on which plates and dishes are washed (It should be skeenk), a reservoir for the reception of waste water, to drop to the bottom of water, to subside.

Sink, (past) sank, (past part.) sunk, (adj.) sunken or sunk, sink'-ing, sink'-er. Sink'-ing-fund, money set aside by government for decreasing the public debt.

To sink in, to penetrate, to become absorbed.

"Sink" (for washing crockery), Old Eng. sænc (sænc, a cup).

"Sink" (to fall to the bottom), O. Eng. sinc[an], p. sanc, p. p. suncen.

"Cinque" (sink), five: as the cinque ports: viz., Hastings, Romney, Hythe, Dover, and Sandwich (Winchelsea, Rye, and Seaford added subsequently). French cing, five.

Sinter, sɪn'.tər, incrustations from silicious or calcareous springs.

Silicious-sinter, Calc-sinter, Pearl sinter.

Sinter and Tufa. "Sinter" has a hard ringing sound when struck with a hammer. "Tufa" is porous.

German sinter (sintern, to petrify, to run or trickle out).

Sinuate, sin'.u.ate. Insinuate, in.sin'.u.ate.

Sinuate (in Bot.), applied to leaves with a wavy edge, to wind or wave in and out; sinuat-ed, sin'.u.ā.ted; sin'uāt-ing (Rule xix.) Sinuation, sin'.u.ā''.shūn.

Insinuate, to hint, to wind into favour, to edge in little by little. Insinuation, in.sin'.u.ā''.shūn.

Sinuuous, sin'.u.ūs, wavy; sinuous-ly, sinuous-ness.

Sinuosity, plu. sinuosities (Rule xlv.), sin'.u.ōs''.ī.tīz.

Sinus, sī'nūs, a bend or recess in a coast or in a bone.

Lat. sinuatio, sinuosus, sinuositas, sinuare (sinus, a bay, a gulf).

Sip, a very small draught, a taste with the lips, to drink or imbibe small quantities with the lips; sipped, sīpt; sipp-ing (Rule i.), sipping-ly, sipp'-er.

Sippet, sīp'.it, toasted bread served with stews, &c.

Old English sip[an], past sīpte, past part. sīped.

Siphilis, sīf'ī.līs (better syphilis), a disease. (Gk. sus philia.)

Siphon, sī'fōn, a bent tube for emptying casks, vats, &c.; siphonic, sīfōn'īk. Siphon-barometer.

Siphon-gauge, ...gāge, for gauging air-pumps.

Siphonia, sīfō'nī.āh, a genus of fossil sponges; siphoniferous, sī'fo.nīf''.ē.rūs. (Greek siphón)

Siquis, sī'kwīs (Lat.), an announcement made in church of the intention of a parishioner to offer himself for ordination.

Si quis, if anyone [objects, let him speak to the bishop].

Sir, fem. mad'am. (As forms of address these useful words are now used only by servants, schoolboys, and inferior tradespeople.) They would be very useful in addressing strangers whose names are unknown: as Will you allow me, Sir [or Madam] to..., as the Fr. use Mon. and Mad.

Sir, fem. lady. . As a title, "Sir" is placed before the Christian name of a baronet or knight in addressing him, and the wife is called Lady with or without the surname. In the address of letters and in public announcements, Bart. is added after the name of a baronet to distinguish him from a knight: as Sir John Smith, Bart., Lady Smith or Lady John Smith; Sir John Smith, Lady Smith or Lady John Smith (for a knight).

In speaking to a baronet or knight we put Sir before his Christian name, as Yes, Sir [John], and No, Sir [John]; but in speaking to their wives the rule is different: Inferiors say Yes, my lady, and No, my lady; but equals say Yes, Lady [Smith], and No, Lady [Smith], or more familiarly Yes, Lady [John], and No, Lady [John].

"Sir," Gk. anax, king; Lat. senex [= sanax]; Span. señor; Ital. signore; Fr. sieur; Norm. sire; Eng. sir. Chaldee zar, prince. We still use the word Sire in speaking to a king.

Sire, sîr, a title by which a king is addressed. Sigh'-er, sî'er.

Sire, fem. dam, the father and mother of a horse, sheep, and other quadrupeds. (Fr. sire; Gk. anax, a king; v. Sir.)

Siren, sî'ren, a mermaid who entices seamen with her song and then kills them, a dangerous but fascinating woman, bewitching, fascinating.

Sirene, sî'reen, an instrument for determining the number of vibrations made by any given note.

Sirenia, sî'ree'nî.ah, an order of mammals; sîre'nian, adj. of sirenia, one of the sirenia.

Latin siren; Greek seirén. Hebrew sîr, to sing.

Sirius, sîr'ri.ûs, the dog-star, called canicula [ka.nîk'ku.lay] by the Romans, and sothis by the Egyptians.

The dog-star rises soon after the summer solstice, and its ascension corresponds with the period of greatest heat.

"Sirius," Gk. seiros, hot (seir, the sun, Suidas); zêô, to be hot.

Sirloin, sur'.loin, a loin of beef.

James I., on his return from a hunting excursion, so much enjoyed a loin of roast beef set before him that he laid his sword across it and dubbed it Sir Loin. At Chingford, in Essex, is a place called "Friday Hill House," in one of the rooms of which is an oak table with a brass-plate let in it recording this incident.

The "Ballad of the New Sir John Barleycorn" ascribes the knighting to Charles II.:

The second Charles of fame facete

On loin of beef did dine;

He held his sword pleased o'er the meat,

"Arise, thou famed Sir Loin."

Sir-name. (An error for surname, q.v.) It does not mean the sire-name (i.e., the father's name), but sur-, i.e., extra[name].

Sirocco, sî.rôk'.ko, a hot parching wind loaded with fine dust which blows over Italy, Sicily, and Malta. The sola'no of Spain, the Harmat'tan of Guinea, the Simoom of Western Asia, the Khamsin of Egypt, and the Puna of Peru, are very similar.

Italian sirêcco, a south-east wind; Greek seirios, hot, dry.

Sirrah, sîr'rah, the word sir used in anger or contempt.

The derivation usually given Sir ha! is simply ridiculous.

Sirup (better than syrup), sîr'rûp, vegetable juice sweetened; siruped, sîr'rûpt, sweetened with sirup; sîr'up-y.

Fr. sirop (dérivé de l'arabe siroph or sirab), potion (Bouillet).

Sister, (male) brother, one born of the same parents; sister-ly.

Sister-in-law, a wife's sister is the husband's sister-in-law, and a husband's sister is his wife's sister-in-law.

Half-sister, a sister by one parent only.

Step-sister, a half-sister or one made sister by a second marriage (Old English steop, an orphan); sister-less.

Old English suster, swuster, sweôstor, or swûstor (bróthor).

Sisyphean, sis'if'ān, adj. of Sisyphus, sis'if'ās, incessantly recurring, no sooner done than it has to be done again.

(Incorrectly sisyphæan, sis'ī.fē'ān.)

Latin sisyphus ("sisyphio saxa labore geram," Propert. ii. 20, 32).

Sit, Cit (both sīt). Sēt.

Sīt, (past) sāt, (past part.) sāt (ought to be set), to take a seat, to brood on eggs, to hold a session, to represent in parliament, to fit (as the coat or frock sits well); sīt'-ing (Rule i.), sīt'-er.

Set, to place, to plant, to sharpen [a knife], to sink below the horizon (as the sun sets in the west).

Cit, a citizen. (Latin civitas, civit, cit.)

"Sit," Old Eng. sitt[an], past sæt, past part. seten, sittend, a sitter.

"Set," Old Eng. set[an], past sette, past part. ge-set, setere, a setter.

ERRORS OF SPEECH—

The hen is setting on thirteen eggs [sitting].

That dress sets well [sits].

When he had set down a murmur was heard [sat].

A mist sets on the downs before rain [sits].

Set down, gentlemen, if you please [sit].

The sun sets on yonder hills before he sinks out of sight [sits].

The wind sets in that quarter [sits].

The wind has set in that quarter for three weeks [sat].

The wind sets sore upon our sails [sits].

The chief meanings of set are to place or fix, to decline or sink.

The chief meanings of sit are to take a seat, to brood, to fit.

Site, Sight. Cite (all sīte).

Site, a situation, a ground plot. (Latin situs, a situation.)

Sight, view, vision. (Old Eng. syth, v. ge-sihan, to see.)

Cite, to quote, to summon. (Lat. citāre, same meaning.)

Situate or situated, sīt'ū.ate, sīt'ū.ā.ted, located.

Situation, sīt'ū.ā'tiōn. (Fr. situé, situation; Lat. situs.)

Siva, see'vah, the avenger, one of the persons of the Hindū trinity. (The other two are Brahma and Vishnu.)

Seva's wife is Parbutta [the auspicious], Indian.

Six, one more than five; six-fold, six times repeated.

Sixpence, sixpennies. Sixpence is a silver coin equal to half a shilling or the fortieth part of a pound sterling; six pennies is six copper [or silver] penny-pieces.

Sixpenny (adj.), worth sixpence, costing sixpence.

Sixteen, six + ten; sixteenth, the ordinal (16th).

Sixteen'mo, plu. sixteen'mos, sixteen leaves to a sheet.

Words descriptive of the size of a book add -s, not -es (R. xlii.)

Sixty, six'ty, six × ten; sixtieth, six'ti.eth, its ordinal.

Sixth, ordinal of six; sixth-rate, sixth-ly.

At sixes and sevens, in disorder, in great confusion.

Old English six, sex, siez, syz, or seox; sixta or sixte, sixth; sixtēne, or sixtyne, sixteen; sixteotha or sixteothē, sixteenth; sixteg or sixtig, sixty; sixteagotha, sixtieth; six hundred, six hundred; six hundrath, six hundredth; six-feald, six-fold; sixtēne-feald, sixty-fold; six hunduelle, six hundred-fold; sixteen-mo, an English numeral with a Latin termination (sixto-decimo).

Size (1 syl.), bulk, thin glue. Sice, size, the six of dice. (Fr. six.)

Sizing, sī'zing (at Camb. Univer.), extra food and drink from the butteries. To size, to wash with thin glue, to obtain sizings; sized (1 syl.); siz-ing (R. xix.), sī'zing.

Sizar, sī'zar, a student at the Camb. Univer. received on reduced terms; sizar-ship (-ship, condition of).

Sizable, sī'zā.b'l, bulky: as pretty sizable, rather bulky.

O. Eng. assize, a statute to regulate the measure and price of goods.

Skate, a fish, a shoe for skating, to move on skates; skated, skā'ted; skat-ing (R. xix.), skā'ting; skat-er, skā'ter.

"Skate" (the fish), Old Eng. sceadda; Lat. squātus or squātina.

"Skate" (a patin), Dutch schaats.

Skedaddle, ske.dād'd'l, to run away from the post of danger, to decamp; skedaddled, ske.dād'd'ld; skedaddling, -ling; skedaddler, -ler. (Gk. skēdannumi, to disperse; O.E. scedan.)

Skein, skain, 80 threads of silk, cotton, yarn, &c. (360 yards).

Welsh ysgaing, a skein or branch.

Skeleton, skēl'ētōn, the bony frame-work of an animal, the frame-work of anything, the outline [of a sermon]; skeleton-key, ...kee, a key for picking locks, &c.

Fr. squelette; Gk. skēlēōs, dry, v. skello (meaning "a mummy").

Skēp, a basket. Skīp, a jump, to bound.

"Skip," O. Eng. sceþ or sciop. "Skip," Welsh cip, v. cipio, to whisk.

Skētch, a rough draught or plan, to make a sketch; sketched (1 syl.), sketch'-ing, sketch'-er, sketch'-y (adj.), sketch'-i-ly, sketch'i-ness, sketch-book.

Italian schizzo, v. schizzare; French esquisse.

Skew or askew, a.skū', out of plumb, distorted, oblique, to sly or start aside; skewed (1 syl.), skew'-ing.

Gk. skaios, on the left, oblique, v. skazō, to limp; Lat. scœvus.

Skew-bald. Pie-bald (applied to horses, &c.)

A skewbald horse, white spotted with black.

A piebald horse, white spotted with brown.

"Skew," Old Eng. scua, a shadow, hence a dark spot. "Pie," pied, Span. pío, variegated; Lat. picus, a pie (a spotted bird); "bald" is a corrupt spelling of balt (Gaelic) mark, baltach speckled.

"Ball" (with a white spot on the face), "Dun" (brownish-yellow), and "Flavel" (bay) are common names of cows.

"Ball" is the name of a horse both in Chaucer and Tusser. In the Privy Purse Expenses of Henry VIII., p. 43, a dog is so named, and a sheep in the Promptorium.

Skewer, skū'er, a wooden pin for meat. Sewer, sū'er, a drain.

To skewer, to fasten with skewers; skewered, skū'rd; skewer-ing. (Danish skjæve, a shive, a splinter.)

Skjæve i din Broders Æie, a mote in thy brother's eye. Danish.

Skid, a drag, to check with a skid; skidd'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), skidd'-ing, Rule i. (Welsh esgid, a shoe.)

Mr. Skeat says it is an Indo-European root, skad and skid, to cleave. Old English scid, a billet of wood, a log, is of the same family.

Skiff (R. viii.), a small light boat, to skim or pass over in a skiff; skiffed (1 syl.), skiff'-ing. (O. Eng. scægth; Lat. scapha.)

Skil (Rule viii.), dexterity; skilled, skild, expert; skilful, skil'-ful-ly, skilful-ness (Rule viii.)

(When full is added as prefix or postfix to a word ending in double l, both the double letters are made single: as "skill," skilful; "will," wilful; "fill," fulfil.)

Old English scyle, v. scyl[an], to distinguish, to separate.

Skillet, skil'let, a metal boiler for fish and other culinary uses.

Danish skylle, as in skylle-bad a shower-bath, skylle-kar a rinsing-tub, &c.; French escuellette now écuellette; Latin scutella, a platter. In French écuelle "exprime un vase un peu creux, suffisant pour recevoir la portion d'une personne," -ette diminutive.

Skilly-golee, skil'.ly.go.lee', slip-slop, twaddle, gruel-talk.

"Skilly," prison gruel or the water in which meat has been boiled thickened with oatmeal, and golee talk or jaw.

Skim, the film of boiled milk, scum, to take off the scum, to pass over lightly, to run through [a book]; skimmed, skimd; skimm'-ing (Rule i.), skim'-ming-ly, skimm'-er.

Skin-milk or skimmed-milk, milk from which the cream has been taken. (Germ. schäumen; Fr. écume, écume.)

Skimble-skamble, rigmarole, rambling (a ricochet word, R. lxix.)

Skin, the hide, the bark of a tree, the husk or rind of fruit, to flay; skinned, skind; skinn'-ing (R. i.), skinn'-y, thin, emaciated; skinn'-i-ness, emaciation; skin'-less, skin'-ful.

Skin-flint, a pinch-farthing, a niggard.

Skins, the pelts of small animals. Hides, of large animals.

Skin-deep, slight, superficial. (Old English scin.)

The skin consists of the corium or true skin, covered externally with the epidermis or cuticle. The inner layer of the epidermis (called the rete Malpighii) is not a third skin nor essentially different from the epidermis. Its net-like appearance is due to the tearing out of the nervous papillæ of the corium. In Negroes, the rete Malpighii has a black pigment adhering to it.

Skip, a jump, to bound or leap. Skēp, a basket, a ped.

Skipped, skipt; skipp'-ing (R. i.), skipping-ly; skipp'-er, one who skips, the master of a trading vessel. Skip-jack, an upstart, an interloper, a skipping toy. Skipping-rope.

"Skip," Welsh cip, v. cipio, to whisk. "Skep," O. E. scēp or sciop.

"Skipper" (master of a trading vessel), Danish skipper.

Skirmish, skir'mish, a slight and confused combat between several persons, to have a skirmish; skir'mished (2 syl.), skir'mish-ing, skirmish-er.

Welsh ysgarm an outcry, v. ysgarmain, ysgarmes a shouting.

French escarmouche, v. escarmoucher, from the Italian scaramuccia. ("Le mot escarmouche a été introduit en France lors des expéditions de Charles VIII. en Italie," Bouillet).

Skirt, a lady's gown from the waist downwards, a margin; (in butcher's meat) the midriff; to border, to live near the extremity; skirt'-ed (R. xxxvi.), skirt'-ing. (O. E. sceata.)

Skit, to frisk, to shy; skitt'-ed (R. xxxvi.), skitt'-ing, skitting-ly.

Skitt'-ish, frisky; skittish-ly, skittish-ness.

Old Eng. scyte-rase; scyte, headlong, wilful (to become wilful).

Skittles, skit't'ls, ninepins; skittle-ball. (O. Eng. scyte, v.s.)

Skulk, one who slinks about, one who shirks his duty, to slink about, to shirk, to sneak; skulked, skülkt; skulk'-ing, skulk'-ing-ly, skulk'-er. (Dan. skulke, to slink or sneak.)

Skull (Rule viii.), the bony part of the head. Scull, a short oar, to row with sculls, to impel with one oar at the stern.

"Dan. skaal a bowl, skal a shell; Germ. hirn-schalle, the brain-shell or brain-pan. "To quaff from a skull" (to drink from a bowl).

"Scull," Old English ceol, a small bark or oar.

Skür'ry, confused haste, to rush wildly; skurries, skür'riz'; skurried, skür'rid; skurry-ing, skurrying-ly.

Hurry-scurry (a ricochet word, of which we have many).

Old English scür, a downfall [of rain]; Danish skure, to scour.

Sky, plu. skies, skize, the vault of heaven; skyed, skide, enveloped by the sky; sky'-ey; sky-ish, like sky (-ish added to nouns means like, added to adj. it is dim.)

Sky-blue, -blu, milk and water; sky-colour, -kül'ler; sky-coloured, -kül'lerd; sky-high, very high up. Sky-lark, a bird, a mischievous piece of fun; sky-larking, running sportively among the rigging.

Sky-light, -lite; sky-rocket; sky-sail, sky's'l, a sail sometimes set above the royal; skyward, ski'wüd (adj.), skywards (adv.) Open sky, a sky without clouds.

The use of skyward adverbially is an error. It is the -s which makes it an adverb (Old English postfix -es: as nighes by night).

Danish sky cloud, skye cloudy; Old Eng. scüa or scüwa a shade; Gk. skia a shadow. The skies are the clouds.

"Sky-lark," a corruption of 'sci-lark. The Westminster boys used to style themselves Romans, and the town they called the Volsci, contracted into 'sci and corrupted into sky, skies. A town and gown row was called a lark with the skies, or a sky-lark.

Släb, a [marble] shelf, the outer cut of a tree when sawn into planks, a small block of melted tin, pasty, viscous.

Welsh llab, a slip, a thin strip.

Slabber (generally pronounced slobber, slōb'.ber), to mess one's clothes in eating, to drivel or drop spittle like an infant when teething; slabbered (2 syl.), slabber-ing, slabber-er (generally pronounced slōb'.ber.er).

Slabb'-y, thick, viscous, called slab in Macbeth iv. 1.

German schlabbern, schlabberer; schlabberig, slabby.

Slack, loose, not busy, small broken coal; slack'-ly, slack'-ness; slack'-dried, partially dried; slack'-rope, loose, not tight; slack-water, -waw'.ter, the interval between ebb and tide.

Slack'-en, to make slack (-en converts nouns and adj. to verbs); slackened, slāk'n'd; slacken-ing, slāk'n'ing; also slacked, slākt; slacking, slāk'ing. (See Slake.)

Old Eng. slæc, or slæc, slæclīce slackly, slæcnes slackness, v. slacian, past slacode, past part. slacod, or slæcan, slæccede, slaced.

Slade (1 syl.), open country, in the names of places. (O. E. slād.)

Släg, dross of metallic ores after smelting, vitrified cinders; slagg'-y (Rule i.), adj. of slag. (Dan. slag, Swed. slagg.)

Slake (1 syl.), to quench [thirst], to reduce [lime] to powder by pouring cold water on it, to abate; slaked (1 syl.), slak-ing (Rule xix.), slā'king; slaked lime or slack lime, lime slaked or reduced to powder by water.

Danish slukke to quench, slukke tørsten to quench one's thirst; Swedish släcka; Icelandic slækka. (See Slack.)

Slām, a winning of all the tricks in one hand, to make a slam at cards, to shut a door with violence and noise; slammed, slāmd; slamm'-ing.

O. E. hlem or hlemm a crash, v. hlemm[an] to crash, to make a noise.

Slander, slūn'.der (not slāhn.der), a discreditable but false report, defamation; to utter or spread a slander; slandered, slūn'.d'rd; slander-ing, slūn'.d'r'ing; slander-er.

Slander-ous, slūn'.d'r'ūs; slan'derous-ly, slan'derous-ness.

Fr. escandre (from Gk. skandālon a stumbling-block, from skazo to make to limp); Germ. schande, schänden, schänder.

Släng, piquant words not yet naturalised, professional words used in common conversation, argot, words adopted from gipsy language or other jargon.

Said to be from Slangenbergh, a Dutch general noted for his abusive epithets in addressing his troops. Another suggestion is Ital. s- (neg.), lingua, not a [received] word. More likely it comes from "slangs," the greaves with which the legs of convicts are fettered, hence the convicts themselves, and hence the language of convicts.

Slānt, an incline, to slope; slant'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), slant'-ing, slanting-ly; slant-wise, in a slanting direction.

Welsh ysglint, a slide; Swedish slinta, to slip.

Slăp, a blow given with the open hand, to give a slap; slapped, slăpt; slăpp'-ing, slăpp'-er. Slap-dash, precipitately, an ostentatious display. Slap-jack, a kind of pancake.

Welsh yslapiad, a slapping; Germ. schlappe, a slap, v. klappen.

Slash, a cut with a sword, knife, &c., a long gash, to gash, to strike with the sword, &c.; slashed (1 syl.), slash'-ing, slashing-ly, slash'-er. Slashed [sleeves], sleeves cut with slits in which some bright colour is inserted.

German lasché, a stripe; v. laschen, to strike.

Slăte (1 syl.), an argillaceous stone (capable of being split into thin laminæ) used for roofing and school ciphering, to cover with slates; slat-ed, slă'ted; slat-ing (Rule xix.), slă'ting; slat-er, slă'ter; slat-y, slă'ty; slă'ti-ness (Rule xi.) Slate-coal, -kôle. Slate-pencil, soft slate-stone for writing on slates. Slate-spar, calcareous spar.

French esclat now éclat, a splinter; éclater, to splinter.

Slattern, slăt'tern, a sloven, an untidy woman; slattern-ly.

German schlottern, to hang loosely, to draggle; schlotterig, sloven.

Slaughter, slaw'ter, butchery, killing beasts for food, a great destruction of animal life, to slaughter; slaughtered, slaw't'rd; slaughter-ing, slaughter-er; slaughter-ous, slaw'ter'ūs; slaughterous-ly, slaughter-house.

Old English slage, past sleht, past part. sliht.

Slăve (1 syl.), a bond-servant, to drudge, to toil without remission; slăved (1 syl.), slăv'-ing; slaving-ly, slă'ving-ly.

Slavery, plu. slaveries, slă'vē.riz; slav-er, slă'ver.

Slavish, mean, servile (-ish added to nouns means "like," added to adj. it is dim.); sla'vish-ly, sla'vish-ness.

Slave'-born, slave-catching, slave'-coast, slave-driver, slave-holder, slave-owner, slave'-ship, slave'-trade.

The Slavi were a tribe which dwelt at one time on the banks of the Dnieper, and were so called from slav (illustrious, noble). In the latter ages of the Roman empire vast multitudes of them spread over Europe and were reduced to the condition of captive servants, and hence slave (illustrious) came to mean bondsman, mean, and servile. Similarly Goth (good) has come to signify rude, barbarous.

Slaver, slăh.ver or slăv'er (a corrupt contraction of saliva), to slobber; slavered, slăh'.v'rd or slăv'.rd; slaver-ing, slăh'.ver-ing or slăv'.er-ing; slaver-er, slăh'.ve.rer or slăv'.e.rer. Slaver, slăy'.ver, a slave ship.

German schlabbern, to slabber; schlabberer, a slabberer.

Slavonic, sla.vŏn'ik, adj. of Slavŏnia; Slavonian, sla.vŏ'.nĭ.ăn.

Slay, to kill, to slaughter; slay, (past) slew, (past part.) slain, slay'-ing, slay'-er.

Slaie or Sley (slay), a weaver's reed.

"Slay," O. E. slag[an], slān, or slēdn, past slōh or slōg, p. p. slegen; slaga, a slayer. "Slaie" or "Sley" (a weaver's reed), O. E. slæ.

Sleave. Sleeve. (Both sleev).

Sleave, tangled silk or thread, the refuse of a cocoon, a raw edge; sleave-less, bootless, random, unmeaning.

Sleeve, a covering for the arms. (Old English sléf.)

"Sleave," Old Eng. slif[an], past sláf, past part. slifen, to split. The spelling of this word was long doubtful, but now the distinction is always observed: Chaucer has sleeveless words [sleeveless = random]; Bishop Hall, sleeveless rhymes; Milton sleeveless reason [sleeveless = profitless, proving nothing]; Taylor, the water poet, sleeveless message [sleeveless = bootless].

Sleazy, sleaz'y, wanting firmness of texture, flimsy.

German schleissen, to split or tear; schleisse.

Slēd, a sledge, to ride in a sledge; slēdd'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), slēdd'-ing, Rule i. (Welsh ysled, a drag or dray.)

Sledge, a sled or carriage without wheels to be drawn over snow, a large hammer used by blacksmiths, to beat with a sledge; sledged (1 syl.), sledg'-ing. Sledge-hammer.

"Sledge" (a carriage without wheels), Welsh ysled, a drag, a dray.

"Sledge" (a hammer), Old Eng. slecge or slege (-d- interpolated).

Sleek, smooth, glossy, to smoothe; sleeked (1 syl.), sleek'-ing, sleek'-ly, sleek-ness, sleek'-y, sleek'i-ness. The Scotch sleekit, "flattering but deceitful," is a useful word.

German schlichte, sleek; schliche, clandestine practices.

Sleep, (past) slept, (past part.) slept; sleep'-ing, slumber, to take rest in sleep; sleep-er; sleep'-y, (comp.) sleep'i-er, (super.) sleep'i-est (Rule xi.), sleep'i-ness, sleep'i-ly.

Sleep-less, sleep'less-ness, sleep'less-ly. Sleep'-walker, -waw'.ker; sleep'-walking. Sleeping partner, one who gives his money but not his services to a firm.

Old English slēp, v. slēp[an], past slēp, past part. slæpen, slæpere a sleeper, slæpfulness or slæpfulness, slæpot sleepy.

Sleet, fine rain mingled with fine snow or hail, to fall in sleet; sleet'-ed, sleet'-ing, sleet'-y, sleet'i-ness. (O. E. slíht.)

Sleeve, sleev, a covering for the arms. Sleave, sleev, ravels.

To sleeve, to supply with sleeves; sleeved (1 syl.), sleev'-ing (Rule xix.), sleeve'-less, sleeve'-link. To laugh in one's sleeve, to laugh secretly (hiding laughter by your sleeve). To hang on one's sleeve, to pin to one's sleeve, to be dependent on one.

"Sleeve," Old English sléf, stief, or slíf, sléfeas sleeveless.

"Sleave" (refuse silk or thread), O. Eng. slif[an], p. slif, p. p. slifen.

Sleeveless (better sleaveless, q.v.), bootless, profitless, futile, without even the refuse called sleave, not only without substantial good but without even pickings (see above).

Sleigh, slay, a sledge. Slay, to kill. Sley or Slaie, a weaver's reed.

To ride in a sleigh; sleighed, slāde; sleigh-ing, slay'ing.

"Sleigh," German schleife, a sledge, v. schleifen. (See Sledge.)

"Slay" (to butcher), Old Eng. slēdn, past slōh, past part. slagen.

"Sley" or "slaie," Old Eng. slæ, a weaver's reed.

Sleight, slite, dexterity. Slight, slite, trifling, unimportant.

Sleight of hand, legerdemain.

"Sleight," Germ. schlich, cunning, artifice. "Slight," Germ. schlecht.

Slen'der, slim, slight, (comp.) slen'der-er, (super.) slen'der-est, slender-ly; slender-ness. (Old Dutch slinder.)

Sleuth, slooth, a track known by scent; sleuth-hound, a blood-hound. (Old Eng. slæting, slotting, or hunting by scent.)

Slew, slu, did slay. Slue, slu, to turn round [a māt, &c.]

"Slew," Old English slag[an], past slōh or slōg, past part. slagen.

"Slue," Old English slith[an], to slide or slip, past slāth, p. p. sliden.

Sley or slaie, slay, a weaver's reed. Slay, to kill. Sleigh, q.v.

To sley, to arrange in a sley; sleyed, slāde; sley'-ing.

"Sley" or "slaie," Old Eng. slæ. "Slay," O. E. slag[an] (see above).

Slice (1 syl.), a piece cut from a joint of meat, loaf of bread, &c., to cut a slice; sliced (1 syl.); slic-ing (R. xix.), slī'sing; slic-er, slī'ser. (O. E. slit[an], Germ. schleisen, to slit.)

Slick, smooth, wholly, a slap or flick, to slap or flick; slicked, slīkt; slick'-ing. (Old English slīc[an], to smite.)

Slide (1 syl.), a path on ice for sliding, an inclined plain, to glide along ice or down an incline, to slip.

Slide, (past) slīd, (past part.) slīd'en; slid'-ing (R. xix.); slid-er, slī'der. Slī'ding-scale, tax varying as the market price varies. Slī'ding way, a sort of tramway.

Old English slide, slīd[an], past slād, past part. sliden.

Slift, a slip or cutting from a tree for planting, to make a cutting.

Old English slīf[an], to cut or cleave, past slāf, past part. slifen.

Slight, slite. Sleight [of hand], slite, legerdemain.

Slight, flimsy, not thorough, not deep, inconsiderable, a discourtesy, to neglect, to treat with discourtesy; slight-ed (R. xxxvi.), slīte'-ed; slight-ing, slīte'-ing; slighting-ly, discourteously, flimsily; slight'-ness, slight'-ly.

"Slight," Germ. schlecht. "Sleight," Germ. schlich, dexterity.

Slim, slender, unsubstantial, slight. Slime (1 syl.), mud (see below.)

Slim, (comp.) slīm'-er, (super.) slīm'-est (R. i.), slīm'-ly, slīm'-ness. (German schlīm; Dutch slim, thin.)

Slime (1 syl.), mud, sticky earth; slim-y, slī'my; slimi-ness (R. xi.), slī'mā-ness. Slimes (1 syl.), mud containing ore.

Slim, greasy mire, slīmīg; Lat. limus, mud. "Slim," thin (see above).

Sling, an instrument for hurling stones, a support suspended round the neck for a wounded arm, a rope &c. for swinging [bales] out of a ship, to hurl, to hang by a rope.

Sling, (past) slung, (past part.) slung, sling'-ing, sling'-er.

Slang (past tense) is quite obsolete. See Slang, argot.

Old English sling[an], past slang, past part. slungen.

Slink, to steal or sneak away; (past) slank or slinked, slinkt; (past part.) slunk, slink'-ing, slink'-er.

Old English slinc[an], past slanc, past part. slyncen.

Slip, a mistake, a twig cut from a tree, an unintentional error, a movable noose, a leash for dogs, a proof in a long column, to glide involuntarily, to stumble, to make a slip; slipped, slipt; slipp'-ing. Slipp'-er, one who slips, an easy shoe for indoor wear; slipped, slip'p'rd, wearing slippers. Slip'-knot, -nōt. Slip'-shōd. Slip'-slop, an insipid beverage, weak wishy-washy composition (a ricochet word, like wishy-washy, R. lxix.) Slip'-shoe, a slipper.

Slippery, slip'pēry, not affording firm footing, not easily held, not holding fast; slip'peri-ness (Rule xi.)

Slipp-y, adj. of slip; slipp'i-ness.

To slip on, to put on hastily. To slip off, to throw off hastily.

To slip out of, to extricate oneself with a fluke.

To slip a cable, to loose it, to let go the end of it.

Old English slipe, sliege slippy, slēpan on to slip on, slip[an] or slipp[an], past slipte, p. part. sliped, slype scō a slip-shoe, slipper.

Slish-slosh, very wet mire, the noise and splashing made by walking through very wet mire. (A ricochet word, of which we have many, Rule lxix.)

Slit, a cleft, a rent, to make a slit; (past) slīt, (past part.) slit; slitt'-ing (Rule i.), slitt'-er. Slitting-mill.

Old English slite, v. slit[an], past slāt, past part. sliten.

Slobber, slōb'ber, to slabber, to mess one's face and clothes with saliva, &c., to kiss with a wet kiss; slobbered, slōb'b'rd; slobber-ing, slobber-er. (German schlabbern.)

Sloe, slō. Slōw. Slough, slōu.

Sloe, the fruit of a wild plum. (O. E. slā, slāg, or slāh.)

Slōw (to rhyme with grōw), not fast. (O. E. slāw or sleaw.)

Slough, slōu (to rhyme with nōw), a deep miry place.

Old English slog, but slough (slūf), Old English slōh, cast off.

Slogan, slō'gān, a Highland war-cry, a gathering cry of certain Highland clans. (Gaelic sluagh-ghairm.)

Slō-fair, a fair held in October [at Chichester, &c.], the slay-fair, i.e., the fair at which oxen and sheep slain for winter use are sold. The beasts were slain in autumn and put down for store, none being brought to market after this month. (Old English sleān, past slōh.)

Sloop. Slōpe (1 syl.) Saloop'. Shal'lop. Scal'lop. Scol'lop.

Sloop, a small vessel with one mast. (Dutch sloop.)

Slope, an incline, to incline. (Old Eng. slipor, slippery.)

Shallop, a large boat with two masts. (Germ. schaluppe.)

Saloop' or sal'op, a beverage. (Turkish salleb.)

Scallop, a bivalvular mollusc. (Dutch schulpe.)

Scollop, to dress food in a scallopshell. (French escalope.)

Slōp, a mess of water or other liquid; slops (no sing.), refuse water and rinsings, a loose outer dress, a smock-frock.

To slop, to spill water, &c.; slopped, slōpt; slōpp'-ing (Rule i.), slopp'-y, slopp'i-ness.

Slop'-basin, a basin to receive the dregs and rinsings of tea and breakfast cups. Slippy-sloppy, miry and slippery (a ricochet word, of which we have many, R. lxix.)

Slop'-seller, a seller of ready-made clothing.

Slop'-shop. Slop'-work, wurk. (See Slope.)

O. Eng. slup[an], past sleep, p. p. slopen. "Slop" (a dress), O. E. slōp.

Slōpe (1 syl.), an incline, to incline. Sloop, a one-master.

Slōped (1 syl.); slop-ing (Rule xix.), slō'ping; slō'ping-ly; slop-er, slō'per. But slip, slipped, slipping, slipper, slippery, slippy, with double p.

"Slope," Old Eng. slipor, slippery or slippery, v. slip[an], to slide.

"Sloop" (a vessel with one mast), Dutch sloop; German schlupe.

Slosh (see slush), in the ricochet compound slish-slosh, sludge, very wet mire, the noise and splashing made by wading through very wet mire. (Old Eng. slog, Germ. schlott.)

Slōt, the track of a deer, a mortise. Slūt, a slattern.

The slot of a hill, the valley between two hills or ridges.

"Slot," Old Eng. slating. "Slut," Germ. schlotterig; Dan. sludske.

Slōth (to rhyme with both, but often made to rhyme with Goth), indolence, a South American quadruped; slōth'-ful, slōth'-ful-ly, slōth'-ful-ness (Rule viii.) Sleuth, slot.

"Slōth," Old English slēwth or slēwth.

"Sleuth" (the slot of a deer), Old English slæt[ing].

-oth is very unsettled and irregular in pronunciation. We have:

(1) = ōth: Goth.

(2) = o[r]th: broth, froth, sometimes pronounced brōth, frōth.

(3) = ōth: betrōth, bōth, quōth slōth [or slōth], trōth [or trōth].

(4) = awth: wroth (noun); verb generally pronounced wrōth, and both occasionally called ra[r]th.

Slouch (to rhyme with couch, pouch), a clownish gait and manner, to slouch; slouched (1 syl.), slouch'-ing.

A slouch hat, a limp hat with large brim.

A slouch coat, an easy coat for domestic wear.

Slouch shoes, large easy shoes used for slippers.

Old Eng. slēc slack, v. slac[ian] to relax; Danish slukøret, limp.

Slough (to rhyme with nōw). Slough, slūf. Slōw. Sloe. slō.

Slough (to rhyme with nōw), a miry pit or place, a bog; slough'-y, full of sloughs, boggy, miry.

Slough, slūf, the cast-off skin of a serpent, &c., the part which separates from a foul sore, to throw off sloughy matter, to cast its skin as a serpent; sloughed, slūfd; slough-ing, slūf'-ing; slough'-y, -fy. To slough [slūf] off.

"Slough" (a mire), Old Eng. slog, a slough or hollow in the ground.

"Slough," slūf, Old Eng. slōh cast away, sledn, p. slōh, p. p. slegen.

"Slow" (not fast), Old Eng. slāw or sleaw.

"Sloe" (a wild plum), Old Eng. slā, slāy, or slāh.

(For the ten ways of pronouncing -ough see Rough.)

Sloven, slūv'n, a trollop, a slatternly woman or girl; sloven-ly; slov'enli-ness (Rule xi.), untidiness; slov'enry.

Dutch slof careless, sloffen to neglect; German schlumpe a slut.

Slōw (to rhyme with grōw), not fast. Sloe, slō, a wild plum.

Slōw'-ly, slōw-ness. (Old Eng. slāw, see above, Slough.)

Slow-worm, slō'wurm, the blind worm. (O. E. slāw-wyrm.)

Slubber, slūb'ber, to work carelessly, to do a job without pains-taking; slubbered (2 syl.), slubber-ing, slubber-er.

To slubber over, to do work in a slovenly and hasty manner.

Slubberdegullion, -de.gūl'-yun, one who slubbers work.

German schlumpen, schlumpig, slovenly; schlumpe, a slut.

Sludge, slush, wet mud, mire; sludg'-y (R. xix.), sludg'i-ness, sludge'-hole. (Old English slog, German schlott.)

Slūg, a mollusc of the Limax or snail genus. Slugs, plu. half-roasted ore, pieces of metal for the charge of guns.

Sluggard, slūg'g'rd, one habitually lazy, a lie-abed.

Sluggish, slūg'gish, lazy, indolent; slug'gish-ly, -ness.

Danish slugen, voracious. Slugs are very voracious and destructive.

"Sluggard," -ard a native suffix meaning species, kind: as sluggard, drunk-ard, dōt[e]ard, haggard, dull-ard, &c.

Sluice, slūce, a flood-gate, a river-lock, to wash with a large quantity of water, to wet thoroughly; sluiced (1 syl.); sluic-ing (Rule xix.), slūce'-ing; sluic-y, slūce'y.

German schleuse, Dutch sluis.

Slūm, a low neighbourhood, a back-street containing the poorest of inhabitants. The back slums [of London].

It means a sleeping place for vagrants. Old English sluma, slumber; slumere, a slumberer; slum[erian], to sleep.

Slumber, slūm'ber, a doze, a light sleep, to sleep lightly, to doze; slumbered, slūm'b'rd; slumber-ing, slumbering-ly, slum'ber-er; slumber-ous, inviting sleep.

Old Eng. sluma; v. slum[erian], past slumode, past part. slumod.

Slūmp, to tumble unexpectedly into mire, to plump down, plump, fully but unexpectedly; slumped, slūmpt; slump-ing. (German schlumpfen, to slip.)

Slur, a slight reproach or disgrace, a curve in music joining two or more notes, to slander, to join with a slur.

To slur over, to do work negligently and inefficiently.

Slurred, slurd; slurr'-ing (Rule i.), slurring-ly.

(?) Danish slør, a veil; v. sløre, to veil.

Slūsh or slōsh, wet mire, to smear with slush; slushed, slūsh; slush'-ing; slush'-y, miry, muddy. (Old Eng. slog.)

Slūt, a sloven, a trollop. Slöt, the track of a deer.

Slutt'-ish (-ish added to nouns means "like," added to adj. it is dim.), slutt'-ish-ly, sluttish-ness, slutt'-ery.

"Slut," Germ. schlotterig; Dan. sludske. "Slot," Old Eng. slæting.

Sly, artful, cunning; (comp.) sly'-er or sli'-er; (super.) sly'-est or sli'-est; sly'-ly or sli'-ly; sly'-ness or sli'-ness; sly'-ish (-ish added to adj. is dim., added to nouns it means "like"); sly'-ish-ly, sly'-ish-ness. (Germ. schlau, sly.)

Cry, dry, shy, sky, and sly are uncertain in their spelling, some retain the -y throughout, and some change the -y to -i, except before -ish and -ing. The general rule is this: Words ending in -y preceded by a consonant change y to i when any suffix is added, except -ish, -ism, -ing; or a word agglutinated, as -hood, -like, -ship; -man, -maid, -woman, &c. The normal spelling therefore is:

Cry, cries, cried, cri'-er, but cry'-ing.

Dry, dries, dried, dri'-er, dri'-est, dri'-ly, dri'-ness, but dry'-ing, dry'-ish.

Shy, shies, shied, shi'-er, shi'-est, shi'-ly, shi'-ness, but shy'-ing, shy'-ish.

Sly, sli'-er, sli'-est, sli'-ly, sli'-ness, but sly'-ish.

Smack, flavour, a small portion just for a taste, a slap, a flip with a whip, a noise with the lips in eating, a loud kiss, a fishing or coasting vessel, to slap, to smack the lips, to flip; smacked, smäkt; smack'-ing, smack'-er.

"Smack" (flavour, a taste), Old English smæc, smæc, v. smacig[an], smæcc[an], or smecg[an]; German schmacke; Danish smag.

"Smack" (a fishing boat), Old Eng. smace; Fr. semaque; Dan. smakke.

"Smack" (a buss), German schmatz, v. schmatzen.

"Smack" (a blow), German schmach, an insult, a reproof.

"Smack" (noise with the lips in eating), Danish smaske.

Small, smawl, little; (comp.) small'-er, (super.) small'-est, small'-ish (-ish added to adj. is dim., added to nouns it means "like"); small'-ness; small'y, smawl'-ly.

Small'-arms, arms like pistols and rifles, as distinguished from cannon. Small'-beer. Small'-clothes (no sing.) nether garments of men as drawers. Small-coal, -kōle. Small-craft, vessels of a small size. Small-debts' court. Small'-hand, Text, Large hand, three sorts of school penmanship. Small pica, -pī'-kah, Pica, and Double pica, three sorts of type used in printing. Small'-pox. Small'-talk, gossip. Small'-wares, -wairz, such textile articles as tapes, braids, fringes, &c.

Smalls, the "Little-go" or previous examination. The final examination for degree is the Great-go or Greats.

Old Eng. smel or smæl; smallung, reducing in size (a useful word).

Smalt, smölt, a glass coloured with cobalt of an azure blue; smalto, plu. smaltos (R. xlii.), the small regular squares of coloured glass used in mosaic. (Italian smalto.)

Smart, dressy, witty, a vivid pain or grief, to feel a smart; (comp.) smart'-er, (super.) smart'-est, smart'-ly, smart'-ness, smart'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), smart'-ing, smart'-ing-ly.

Smart'-en (-en converts nouns and adj. to verbs), to make smart; smartened, smart'-nd; smart-en-ing, smart'-n-ing.

Smart money, money paid to obtain exemption from some disagreeable office. (Old Eng. smeort[an]; Germ. schmerz.)

"Smart" means acute [pain], then acute [in words] or sharp witted, then pliquant [in dress].

Smash, a breaking into fragments, failure, to break into fragments; smashed (1 syl.), smash'-ing, smash'-er.

Greek massô, to squeeze with the hand; to crush; or a contraction of the German zerschmeißen, to smash.

Smatter, smät'-ter, to talk superficially; to have a superficial knowledge; smatt'-ering, a slight superficial knowledge; smatt'-er-er, one who has a superficial knowledge.

German schmatzen; to smack, to relish. A smatterer has a souppçon or smack of knowledge.

Smear, smee'r, a daub, a soiled place, to daub, to soil; smeared, smee'rd; smear'-ing, smear'-er.

Old English smér[ian], past smérede, past part. sméred, smérung.

Smell (Rule viii.), odour (good or bad), one of the five senses, to perceive odours by the sense of smelling, to emit odour, &c.

Smell, (past) smelt, (past p.) smelt, smell'-ing, smell'-er.

To smell a rat, to suspect. To smell out, to find out by sagacity. Smelling salts, carbonate of ammonia.

It is very strange that this word which pertains to one of the five senses and is one of the commonest words in the language cannot be traced. Its derivation is wholly unknown. The only suggestion at all plausible is the Danish smul, dust, as if perfume was due to fine particles thrown off from the odoriferous substance; but this seems too philosophical for so elementary a word.

Smelt, a sea-fish, to melt ore, did smell; smelt'-ed (R. xxxvi.), fused; smelt'-ing, smelt'-er, smelt'-ery.

"Smelt" (a fish), Old English smelt or smylt.

"Smelt" (to fuse), German schmelzen, schmelzer; Dutch smelten.

Smile (1 syl.), a wreathing of the face from pleasure, an incipient laugh, to smile; smiled (1 syl.); smil'-ing (R. xix.); smi'-ling; smil'-ing-ly; smil'-er, smi'-ler. (Dan. smil, v. smile.)

Smirk, a pert or affected smile, to smirk; smirked (1 syl.), smirk'-ing, smirk'-ing-ly, smirk'-er.

Old Eng. smérc[ian] or smeare[ian], past smercode, past part. smercod.

Smite (1 syl.), a blow, to beat; (past) smit, (past part.) smit'-en; smit'-ing (R. xix.), smi'-ting; smit'-er, smi'-ter. (See Smith.)

Old Eng. smit[an], past smát, smate, smeat, or smit, p. p. smiten.

Smith, a worker in metal [one who smites or beats metal into shape]; smith'-y, a smith's workshop; smith'-ing.

Black-smith, a worker in iron.

White-smith, a maker of locks and keys. Lock-smith.

Gold-smith, a worker in gold. Silver-smith.

Old English smith, smiththe; v. smitan, to smite. (See above.)

Smithsonite, smith'.sŏn.ĭte, a silicate of zinc.

So called from Smithson, a chemist, who discovered it.

Smitt, fine clayey ore used for marking sheep. (O. E. smitta.)

Smöck, a sark or shift. Smöke (1 syl.), fumes from a fire.

Smock-frock, a blouse [blūze]. (Old English smoc.)

Smoke. Soot. Blacks. (Smöck, see above.)

Smöke (1 syl.), the unconsumed volatile matters of a burning substance buoyed upwards by the air.

Soot (to rhyme with foot), condensed smoke.

Blacks, smoke condensed into flakes in the open air and falling downwards by their own weight.

To smöke, to inhale smouldering tobacco through a pipe, to emit smoke, to drive smoke into a room, to cure meat by hanging it in smoke, to apply smoke to; smöked (1 syl.); smök-ing (R. xix.), smö'.king; smök-er, smö'.ker, one who smokes tobacco; smoke'-less; smök-y, smö'.ky; smöki-ness (R. xi.), smöki-ly. Smoke'-black, a sooty substance obtained from resinous substances by burning and used for printers' ink, &c. Smoke-board, -börd, a "blower" or board to increase the draught of a fire. Smoke-consum'ing. Smoke'-jack, a contrivance in a chimney for turning a spit. Smoke'-quartz. Smoke'-sail, a sail for warding off the wind from a ship's funnel. Smök'ing-room, a place set apart for those who smoke. Smök'ing carriage, a railway carriage for smokers.

To end in smoke, to fall through, to fail of success.

Old English smeóc or smóca, v. smócian, p. smede, p. p. smócen.

Smölt, a young salmon that has acquired its silver scales.

Old English smolt, fat. (See Salmon.)

Smooth (adj.), smoothe (verb). Smother, smüth'er (q.v.)

Smooth, sleek, having an even surface; (comp.) smooth'-er, (super.) smooth'-est, smooth'-ly, smooth'-ness.

Smooth-bore, -böre (1 syl.), not rifled; smooth-bored.

Smooth-chinned, -tchĭnd, beardless.

Smooth-faced, having a mild or sleek expression of face.

Smooth-paced, moving with an even movement.

Smooth-spoken, or Smooth-tongued, -tĭngd, plausible.

Smoothe (1 syl.), to make smooth, to stroke, to appease;
smoothed (1 syl.), smooth'-ing, smooth'-er.

Old English smoeth or sméthe; v. sméth[ian], sméthnys smoothness.
(One way of converting nouns and adjectives into verbs is by lengthening the final vowel. This is shown sometimes by changing c into s or z, and s into z; sometimes by changing f into v; and sometimes by an arbitrary elongation of the vowel without any change of letters, as use (noun = uce, verb = uze), and sometimes by adding a final -e to words ending in "th": clóth, clóthe; báth, báthe; breath, breathe; loath, loathe; mouth, mouthe; sheath, sheathe; smooth, smoother; wreath, wreathe.)

Smother, smúth.er, to suffocate. Smooth'er, more smooth.

Smothered, smúth'.r'd; smoth'er-ing, smoth'ering-ly;
smoth'er-y, stuffy, suffocating. (Old Eng. smorian.)

Smould'er, to burn slowly; smouldered, smoul'-d'rd; smould'ering, smould'ering-ly, smould'ry.

Danish smuldre, to moulder away (smul, fine dust).

Smudge (1 syl.), a smear, to smear, to blot; smudged (1 syl.), smüdg'-ing (Rule xix.), smüdg'-er, smudg'-y.

Smudge'-coal, coal partially converted into coke.

German schmutz, v. be-schmutzen, schmutzig. (See Smut.)

Smüg, snug, neat, tidy, spruce. (German schmuck.)

Smuggle, smüg'.g'l, to import goods clandestinely to avoid paying duty, to foist in; smuggled, smüg'.g'ld; smuggling, smüg'.ling; smugg'ling-ly; smugg'ler, one who smuggles; a smuggler's ship.

German schmuggelei, v. schmuggeln, schmuggler.

Smüt, a spot of soot, the soot which makes the spot, to foul with smut; smütt'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), smütt'-ing (Rule i.), smütt'-y, (comp.) smutt'i-er, (supcr.) smutt'i-est, smütt'i-ness (Rule xi.), smütt'i-ly.

Smütch or smudge (1 syl.), a dirty mark; smutched, smücht; smütch'-ing, smütch'-er or smudged (1 syl.), smüdg'-ing (Rule xix.), smüdg'-er.

Old Eng. smitta; Germ. schmutz, v. be-schmutzen, schmutzig.

Snäce (1 syl.) not snēce, the snuff or burnt wick of a candle.

Old English snds or sncs, a spear. (See Snast.)

Snäck, a door-latch, a small and hasty meal, a share.

To go snacks, to share. Snack the door, latch it.

"Snack" (a hasty meal), O. E. snæd or snid (a morsel, a slight meal).

"Snack" (a door latch), Old Eng. snæd, a handle, a catch, &c.

A snag is a tooth or stump. "Sneck the door," Scotch.

Snaffle, snäf'.f'l, a bridle consisting of a slender bit with a single rein and no curb. (Germ. schnabèl, Dan. snabel.)

Snäg, a short rough branch, a tooth, a short protuberance, to hew roughly; snägged (1 syl.), snägg'-ing (Rule i.), snägg'-y. (Old Eng. snæd, a handle, &c. See Snack.)

Snail, snāle, a mollusc with a shell (Slugs have no shells), one who moves sluggishly; snail'-like, snail'-shell. Snail'-clover, a trefoil, the pods of which resemble snail-shells.
 Old English snægel, snægl, or snæl (from snican, to creep).
 ("Snail" means the crawler. "Slug," the glutton.)

Snake. Serpent. Viper. Adder. Slow-worm, slō'-wurm.

Serpent, general term for the ophid'ian order of reptiles.

Snake, the "natrix torquata" a species of ophid'ian without poison-fangs, feeds on mice, frogs, lizards, young birds, and eggs. Often used as synonym of serpent.

Viper, a genus of venomous reptiles of the ophid'ian order. Its head is broader than its neck. It has no pits behind the nostrils, and the nostrils are very large. It is the only poisonous serpent in Great Britain.

Adder, the black viper, often called the death-adder.

The Slow or slow-worm (anguis fragilis), about 1 ft. long.

Colour: smooth shining brownish gray above, redder on the sides, and bluish black on the under surface.

Food: insects, snails, and molluscs.

(Called fragile because it often divides in two when seized.)

"Serpent," Latin serpens gen. serpentis (serpere, to creep).

"Snake," Old English snacu or snæce (snican, to creep).

"Viper," Latin vipera (quod vi pariat cum matris interitu).

"Adder," Old English nædre or næddre (ættor, poison).

"Slow worm," Old English slōw-wyrm.

Snap, a sudden and eager bite, a sudden fracture or breaking asunder, a small catch, a thin crisp cake, to snap; snapped, snāpt; snāpp'-ing (Rule i.), snapp'-ing-ly, snapp'-er, snapp'-y; snapp'-ish, peevish, eager to bite; snapp'-ish-ness, snapp'-ish-ly.

Snap-dragon, a genus of plants. Snap-dragons, plums steeped in brandy snapped from a dish while still blazing.

To snap off, to break suddenly.

To snap up, to gobble up, to take one up short.

To snap at, to attempt to bite, to snub.

Dan. snappe; Germ. schnapp, schnapper, schnappen, schnäppish.

Snare, snair, a springe, a gin, to entangle, to catch in a snare, to lay a snare; snared, snaird; snar-ing, snair'-ing; snar-er, snair'-er; snar-y, snair'-ry.

Old English snear or sneare; Danish snare.

Snarl, to growl angrily, to grumble, to scold; snarled, snarld; snarl-ing, snarl'-ing-ly, snarl'-er.

German schnarchen and schnarren, to snarl; schnarcher.

Snāst (to rhyme with hūste), the snuff of a candle.

German schnauze, a snout or nozzle. (See Snace.)

Snatch, an attempt to seize, a catching at, to seize abruptly; snatched (1 syl.), snatch'-ing, snatch'-ing-ly, snatch'-er.

A body snatcher, one who digs dead bodies from their graves to sell. Snatch'-block, a block with an opening to receive the bight of a rope. (Dutch snalken.)

Sneak, sneek, a mean servile time-server, a truckler, a crouching paltry fellow, to sneak; sneaked, sneekt; sneak'-ing, sneak'-ing-ly. (Old English snic[an], to sneak.)

Sneer, a grimace of contempt, to turn up the nose in scorn; sneered (1 syl.), sneer'-ing, sneer'-ing-ly, sneer'-er.

Germ. schnarren, to snarl (Lat. nāris, the nose), to turn up the nose.

Sneeze (1 syl.), sneezed (1 syl.), sneez'-ing (R. xix.), a convulsive effort to relieve an irritation in the nostrils, to sneeze.

Old English nies[an], to sneeze, past nieste, past part. niesed.

Snick, snik, a notch. Snicker-snee, a large clasp-knife.

Snick-snack-snee, chop-knives (a boy's game).

Snick-snack, gibberish, nonsensical twaddle.

Dan. snik-snak, a ricochet of snak, nonsense; Germ. schnick-schnack.

"Snee" is Danish snit, a cut; Germ. schnitt.

Snicker, snik'.ker. Snigger, snig'.ger. Sniggle, snig'.g'l.

Snicker, a whinnying, a half-suppressed laugh, to snicker; snickered, snik'.k'rd; snicker-ing.

Snigger, to jeer, to sneer at one, to whimper, to snivel.

Sniggle, to fub at marbles or croquet, to creep up to one.

"Sniggle," Dan. snige, to smuggle, to act in an underhand manner.

"Snicker," German kichern, to titter, to snicker.

Sniff (R. viii.), to scent, to snuff up; sniffed, snift; sniff'-ing.

Snift, to snort; snift'-ed (R. xxxvi.), snift'-ing. Sniffing-valve, the escape valve of a steam-engine.

Sniffle, snif'.f'l, to keep on sniffing. Sniv'el, to blubber.

Sniffled, snif'.f'ld; sniff'ling, sniff'ler.

"Sniff," "Sniffle," Danish snive; German schnuffeln.

"Snivel," "snivelling," Old English snýfling.

Snigger, snig'.ger, to jeer, to sneer at. Snicker. Sniggle.

Snig'gered (2 syl.), snigger-ing, snigger-er. (v. Snicker.)

Sniggle, snig'.g'l, to creep up to one as an infant does to its mother, to fub at marbles, to push your ball [in croquet] unfairly, to fish for eels by thrusting bait into their holes, to entice; sniggled, snig'.g'ld; sniggling; sniggler.

Dan. snige, to sniggle, to smuggle, to act in an underhand manner.

Snip, a shred, a small cut, a bit cut off, to snip; snipped, snipt; snipp'-ing (Rule i.), snipp'-er. Snip-snap, a game, a dialogue in which each speaker vies in smartness and quickness of reply (a ricochet word, Rule lxix.)

Danish snip; Dutch snippen, to snip; German schnippen.

Snipe (1 syl.), a bird with a long bill

Old English snite; Danish sneppe; German schnepfe.

Snivel, sniv'.l. Sniffle, snif'.f.l. Snuffle, snuf'.f.l.

Snivel, to whimper, to cry and sniffle at the same time; snivelled, sniv'ld; snivell-ing (R. iii., -EL), snivell-er.

"Snivel," "snivelling," Old English snýfling.

"Sniff," "sniffle," Danish snive; German schnuffeln.

"Snuffle," to sniff energetically to draw back the secretions of the nose. Old English snofel, mucus of the nose.

Snøb, a pretentious vulgar person, one who shows arrogance on the score of high birth, wealth, or learning; snobb'-ish (-ish added to nouns means "like," added to adj. it is dim.), snobb'ish-ly, snobb'ish-ness (s priv. nobilis, noble.)

Similarly "scant" is s-kant (Danish), without margin; "scape" is s-capere (Latin), not to take; "scamp" is s-camp, a deserter from the camp; "sober" is s-ebrius (Latin), not tipsy; so in Latin se-grego, se-paro, se-cerno, se-jungo, and many others. In Italian calzare to put on your shoes, s-calzare to take them off; fornito furnished, s-fornito unfurnished; flotta a fleet, s-flotta to withdraw a ship from a fleet; briglia a bridle, s-brigliare to unbridle, &c., &c.

Snöd. Snood.

Snöd, trim, smooth, demure, crafty. (Scotch.)

Snood, a ribbon or fillet for binding the hair.

"Snood," Old English snod; Welsh ysnoden, a fillet, cap, or hood.

Snooze (1 syl.), a doze, to doze; snoozed (1 syl.), snooz'-ing (Rule xix.), snooz'-er.

Snöre (1 syl.), a noise during sleep caused by breathing through the nose, to snore; snored, snörd; snör'-ing (Rule xix.) snör'-er. (Old English snora, snoring.)

Snort, to force the breath through the nostrils as a horse does in impatience or playfulness; snort'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), snort'-ing, snort'-er. (Germ. schnarchen, schnarcher.)

Snout, the projecting nose of a pig, &c., the nozzle of a pair of bellows, &c. (Welsh ysnid, Norse snude.)

Snow (to rhyme with grōw), congealed vapour precipitated from the clouds in flakes, to fall in snow; snowed, snōwd (not snew). "It snowed yesterday," not "It snew yesterday"; snow'-ing, snow'-y, snow'-less; snow'-ball, -bawl, snow kneaded into a ball, to pelt with snowballs; snow'balled (2 syl.), snow'ball-ing, snow'ball-er.

Snow-blanket, a covering of snow. Snow'-blindness, dimness of sight from the glare of snow. Snow'-capped, -kapt. Snow'-drift. Snow'-drop, a spring flowering plant. Snow'-light or snow'blink, the reflexion of snow on the clouds. Snow'-line, the limit of perpetual snow. Snow'-plough, -plōw, a plough for turning snow off a thoroughfare. Snow'shoes. Snow'-slip. Snow'-storm. Snow'-white, -wīte. Snow'-wreath, a long drift of snow.

Old English snd or sndw, v. sndw[an], past sndwede, sndw-hwīt.

Snūb, a covert reproof, a sarcastic "setting down," to snub; snubbed, snūbd; snubb'-ing, snubb'-er (Rule i.)

A snub or snub' nose, a small short flat nose; snub'-nosed, having a snub-nose. (German schnauben.)

Snūff (R. viii.), powdered tobacco-leaf to be inhaled through the nostrils, the exhausted wick of a burning candle, to take off the snuff of a candle-wick, to inhale air or odour audibly by drawing the air into the nostrils; snuffed, snūft; snuff'-ing, snuff'-er.

Snuffers, an instrument for taking off the snuff of candles.

Snuff'-y. Snuff'-box. To take it in snuff, to take it in a huff.

Up to snuff, not likely to be imposed upon, acute.

German schnupfen to take snuff, schnupfer a snuff-taker, schnuppe candle-snuff; Danish snøfte to snuff.

"To take it in snuff." Old English snoffa loathing, in dudgeon; Spanish chufeta a taunt, v. chufear to taunt or mock.

"Up to snuff." In Norwegian and Danish snu means cunning, crafty, shrewd, and snue as well as snøfte "to snuff, to snort," snuus "snuff." Up to snuff is the word snu (cunning) running in harness with snuc and snøffe.

Snuffle, snūf'f'l, a drawing up of the mucus of the nose, to speak through the nose, to draw up the mucus of the nose; snuffled, snūf'f'ld; snuff'ling, snuff'ler; snuffles, snūf'f'lz, obstruction of the nose by mucus.

Old English snoft or snofel, snoftig, oppressed with phlegm.

Snūg, cozy, retired, right and tight; (comp.) snugg'-er, (super.) snugg'-est (Rule i.), snug'-ly, snug'-ness.

Snugg-ery, plu. snuggeries, snūg'ē.rīz, a cozy room, a private room fitted up for personal comfort.

To lie snug, to lie concealed. To be snug, to be cozy.

Danish snige to slink, our snic[an] to creep or sneak. The snuggery is the room where a person "sneaks" or keeps himself private.

An infant is snug when it sniggles up to its mother and lies warm.

So, used substitutionally.

Self-interest makes men friends and keeps them so [friends].

France is highly cultivated, but England is more so [cultivated].

So, used adverbially, sufficiently, to such a degree.

Be so kind as to tell me what this means.

Why is his chariot so long in coming [acoming].

So, used conjunctively.

So, Naaman was a leper.

So, correlatives AS-AS, SO-AS, AS-SO, SO-THAT, SO-BUT.

- (1) AS-AS, AS-SO. In affirmative and corresponding sentences: As white as snow. One is as good as the other. As tall as his brother. AS-SO. As with the buyer, so with the seller (Isa. xxiv. 2). As the stars, so shall thy seed be (Rom. iv. 18).

§ SO-AS. In negative or adversative sentences: It is not so cold as it was. This is not so good as that. Not so tall as his brother.

- (2) SO-THAT, SO-BUT, or SO-BUT THAT.

SO-THAT in confirmative or corresponding sentences: He is so wise that all men honour him. God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten son. . . . (John iii. 16).

§ SO-BUT or SO-BUT THAT in adversative or contrasted sentences: No man is so wise but [that] he may sometimes err.

ERRORS OF SPEECH—

Few can draw animals as well as Landseer [so well as]. Here "few" means not many, and the sentence is negative.

Even the wise Plato was not as wise as Socrates [so wise as].

None are as good as they ought to be [so good as].

Value is just so much as articles fetch in the market (ellipsis).

So so, not very good, passably good. (Italian così, così.)

Soak, sōke, to saturate. Soke (1 syl.), jurisdiction. Sōck.

Soaked (1 syl.), soak'-ing, soak'-er, soak'y.

Soak-age, state of being soaked. Soccage, sōk'hage, tenure of land for services otherwise than military.

"Soak," Old English soðian. "Soke," Old English sōc, a charter or privilege granted by a king to a subject or city.

"Sock," Old English socc. "Soccage," Law Latin soccagum (sōc).

Soap, sōpe. Soup, soop. Swoop. Swōp. Sōp.

Soap, sōpe (not soop), an article used in washing, to use soap; soaped (1 syl.), soap'-ing, soap'-y, soap'i-ness (R, xi.)

Soap'-boiler, one whose trade is to make soap; soap'-boiling, making soap. Soap'-bubble. Soap'-suds.

Soap'-bubble, a bubble made by blowing soapy water through a tube.

Soap'-suds, water impregnated with soap.

Soap'-stone, steatite, a soft variety of magnesian rock.

Soft-soap, a semi-fluid soap made with potash not soda.

"Soap," Old English sāpe, v. sāp[an], past sāpde, past part. sāped.

"Soup" (soop not sōpe), Fr. soupe; Germ. suppe (our verb sup).

"Swoop" (to pounce down on), Welsh chwap a sudden stroke, v. chwapiog to strike suddenly, to pounce upon.

"Swap" (to exchange), O. E. ceap a bargain, ceap[an] to chop or bargain.

Soar. Sōre (1 syl.) Saw. Sour. Soared. Sword. Sward.

Soar, sō'r, to mount up on the wing, to rise in imagination; soared, sō'rd; soar'-ing, soar'ing-ly.

"Soar," Italian sordre to soar as a hawk (Latin aura, Greek aura).

"Sore" (a diseased place, a wound), Old Eng. sār a sore, sāre sorely.

"Saw" (did see), O. E. sāwe from sēon, p. sāwe or sēah, p. p. ge-sewen.

"Sour" (acid), Old English sūr.

"Sword," sōrd (a weapon), Old English sweord, sword, sweird, &c.

"Sward" (a grass plat), Old English sweard, grass.

Sōb, a convulsive sigh, to sigh convulsively from grief; sobbed, sōbd; sōbb'-ing (Rule i.), sōbb'-ing-ly, sōbb'-er.

Old English scobgend sobbing. (See Sober.)

Sober, sō'ber, not intoxicated, to free from intoxication; sobered, sō'b'rd; sober-ing, sober-ly, sober-ness.

Sobriety, so.brī'ē.ty, temperance. Sober-mind'ed; sober-minded-ness, equanimity.

Old English sýfer or sífer; Latin sobrius (s-[seorsum]ebrius), the reverse of tipsy. (See Scamp.)

Sobriquet (not soubriquet), sō'.brē'ka, a nickname.

Ménage derives it from the Latin subridiculum. Moysant-de-Brieux from the Greek hubristikon, insolence. Count de Gebelin from the Romance sopra quest, "parce que c'est un nom acquis en sus de celui qu'on portait." Leglay de soubriquet, "mot qui désignait au xiv^e siècle, une espèce de soufflet injurieux qu'on donnait à quelqu'un en lui relevant brusquement le menton."

Soc, jurisdiction, a privilege to administer justice and execute laws, a circuit or district. Soca, sōk'a, a seignory or lordship, enfranchised by the king with liberty of holding a court of his tenants. (See Sock.)

Soc'age, a tenure for service not military.

Soccager, sōk'ka.djer, a tenant by soccage.

Soc-man, plu. socmen, a soccager. (The service to be performed was distinctly defined, and not left to caprice.)

Old Eng. sóc; Low Lat. soka lordship, soccagium soccage, sockmannus a socman, socna franchise. (See Serf.)

Social, sō'shāl, friendly, disposed to mix in society, pertaining to society; so'cial-ly, so'cial-ness.

Sociality, so'shāl'ē.ty. Sociability, so'shīb'l'ē.ty.

Sociality, good fellowship, social enjoyment.

Sociability, a sociable disposition.

Many from an innate sociability love sociability.

Many from a sociable disposition love society.

Sociable, so'shā'b'l; sociably, so'shā'bly; sociable-ness, so'shā'b'l-ness. Sociability (see above).

Socialise, so'shāl.ize (R. xxxi.), to make social; socialised, so'shāl.izd; socialis-ing, so'shāl.izing; social-ism, so'shāl.izm; social-ist, so'shāl.ist; socialist-ic, -shāl.iz'ē.tik.

Associate [with], as.so'shī.ate, to be in fellowship with; asso'ciāt-ed [with], asso'ciāt-ing (Rule xix.)

Society, plu. societies (Rule xlii.); so.sī'ē.tiz, fellowship, a club or association, mankind as a civilized community.

Not in society, not on visiting terms with the "gentry."

In society, on visiting terms with the "gentry."

Social plants, such as grow naturally in masses.

Social science, sociology (which see).

Latin sociālis, sociālitās, sociētas (sōctus, a companion).

Socinian, sō.sīn'ān, a religious sect; socin'ian-ism.

The Christian community is divided into two great groups, Trinitarians and Unitarians, both of which are subdivided into sects. Trinitarians believe there is only one God, but that this God consists of three persons (Father, Son, and Holy Ghost), all of which are equal, and mysteriously constitute a Unity. Unitarians agree in believing that there is but one God omnipotent, and from this point branch off into three sects: Arians, Socinians, and Humanitarians. Arians do not deny the divinity of Christ, but maintain that he is neither equal to the Father nor united to him, but has an individual and wholly separate existence. Socinians assert that Christ had no existence till his human birth, when he received a double nature, divine on the father's side and human on the mother's. Humanitarians go one step further, and maintain that he had only a human nature like any other man.

Arians are so called from Arius, of Alexandria (died 336).

Socinians, so called from Laetius Socinus, of Tuscany (1525-1562).

Sociology, sō.sī.ōl'ō.djy, the science which treats of man in his social condition; sociological, sō.sī.ō.lodg'ā.kāl.

A hybrid: Latin socius, an associate; Greek lōgōs, a treatise. An ill-formed word which can only mean a discourse upon one's friend, as "sociofraudus" means a deceiver of one's friend, not a deceiver of man in his social condition.

Sock, Soc (both sōk). Soke, Soak (both sōke).

Sock. Stock'ing. A stocking is a hose with a leg-piece extending above the knee. A sock is a half-hose. The shoe formerly used by comic actors.

Tragic actors wore a Buskin, and hence sock and buskin are representative words of comedy and tragedy.

"Sock," Old English socc. "Stocking," German stock, a stump, "covering for the stumps." "Soc," Old English soc (which see).

"Soke," another spelling of soc. "Soak," O. Eng. soc[ian], to steep.

Sock'et, the hollow into which something is fitted: as the socket of a candlestick, the socket of a tooth or joint. Ball and Socket, a socket with a movable knob fitting into it. Socket-chisel, -tchis'l, a chisel for mortising.

"Socket," a little sock. A candle socket fits the "foot" of a candle like a sock, the socket of a tooth fits the fangs of the tooth, &c.

Socratic, so.krāt'āk, adj. of Socrates [sōk'krā.tecz].

Socratical, sō.krāt'ā.kāl; Socrat'ical-ly; Socratist, sōk'krā.tist, a disciple of Socrates. Socratism, sōk'krā.tizm.

Sócrates, an Athenian philosopher, B.C. 468-399.

Sōd, turf, a piece of turf, to cover with turf; sodd'-ed (R. xxxvi.), sodd'-ing (R. i.); sodd'-y, turf. (German sode.)

Soda, sō.dah, the protoxide of the metal sodium.

Hydrate of soda, caustic alkali, soda dissolved in water.

Carbonate of soda, a salt from carbonic acid and soda.

Soda water, an effervescing beverage highly charged with carbonic acid. (German soda.)

Sodden, sōd'n, saturated, moist and sticky, boiled.

Old Eng. seōth[an], to seethe or boil, past sedth, past part. sodden.

-soever, -so.év'.er, added to who, what, where, when, whence, &c., or used with these words but severed from them by something intervening: as Whatsoever or What [things] soever you undertake... In modern speech the so- of "soever" is generally omitted.

Sofa, sō.fah, a couch with two raised ends. Sofa-bed, a sofa which can be converted into a bed. (See Sofi.)

French sofa, "mot emprunté de la langue turque" (Dict. des Arts).

Soffit, sōf'.fīt, the under side of an arch or cornice.

French soffite, "de l'italien soffitta, soupente, partie suspendue," Dict. des Arts et des Sciences. (Latin suffitum.)

Sofi. Sofa. Softa. Sofism. Sophism.

Sofi, plu. sofis, sō'.fīz, a Persian priest or monk.

Softa, plu. softas, the Turkish "university" men.

Sofa, sō'.fah, a Turkish lounge or seat.

Sofism, sō'.fizm, the mystical tenets of the sofis.

Sophism, sōf'.izm, a specious but false argument (q.v.)

Sōft, not hard, tender, easily yielding; (comp.) soft'-er, (super.) soft'-est, soft'-ly, soft'-ness, soft'-ish (-ish added to adj. is dim., added to nouns it means "like.")

Soften, sōf'.n (not sōf'.ten), to make soft, to mollify (-en converts nouns and adj. to verbs); softened, sōf'.nd; softening, sōf'.ning; soften-er, sof'n.er.

Soft-headed, -hēd'.ed, of weak intellect.

Soft-hearted, -hart'.ed, tender-hearted, compassionate.

Soft-saw'der, flattery, complimentary words.

Soft-spoken, affable, of gentle speech.

Old English seft or soft, soflic, softnes or seftnes.

Soh! an exclamation used to dumb animals to allay fear or disquiet. So, thus, therefore, to such a degree. (O. E. swā.)

Soho! sō.hō', a sportsman's halloo, a call to arrest the attention of one at a distance. (French ho! ho!)

Soi-disant, swoy-de.zāhn, self-styled, pretended. (French.)

Soil, soyl, mould, land, filth, stain, dung, to defile; soiled, soyl'd; soil'-ing. Soil-pipe. To take soil, to run into the water as a deer does when pursued.

Old English sol, v. sēlan, past sēlede, past part. sēled; Welsh swl, Latin solum, the soil or ground.

Soiree, swār'ry, an evening party for conversation.

Soiree-musicale, swār'ry mū'.sī.kāhl, an evening entertainment of music. (French soirée.)

Sojourn, so'.djern, a temporary residence, to sojourn; sojourned, so'.djern'd; so'journ-ing, so'journ-er.

French séjourner (séjour a stay, Italian soggiornare).

Sol, sōle (in Music) = G, the fifth note of the singing gamut.
(Do, re, mi, fa, sol, la, si = dō, ray, me, fah, sole, lah, see.)

Sol-fa, sole-fāh, singing exercises, to practise the sol-fa; sol-fa-ing, sole-fāh-ing; sol-faed, sole fāhd.

Solfeggio, plu. solfeggios, sole-fědg'.gŭ.ōze (singing exercises). (Italian solfa, a musical gamut; solfeggio.)

Ut (or Dō), re, &c., are the first syllables of a Latin hymn addressed to St. John by Paulus Diaconus in 770. They were first used as a gamut in the 11th century, by Guido, in teaching singing.

Ut queant laxis

Re-sonare fibris

Mi-ra gestorum

Fa-mulī tuorum

Sol-ve pollutis

La-bīs reatum

Sancte Joannis.

Ut-ter outcast tho' I be,

Re-creant of the worst degree,

Me permit thy praise to sing,

Fa-mous son of Zacharee.

Sol-emn be the strain and holy,

La-boured tho' the verse and lowly

Si-lent never be my string.

Weizius, in Heortologis, p. 263. [Imitation to show the syllables.]

Solace, sōl'ace, consolation, to console; sol'aced (2 syl.);
solac-ing (Rule xix.), sōl'.ă.sing; sol'acing-ly; solacer, sōl'.ă.ser. Solace-ment, sōl'.ace.ment. (See Console.)

Latin solātium; French soulas, soulager, soulagement.

Solander, so.lăn'.der, a disease in horses. (French solandre.)

Solander, a genus of American plants, named after Daniel
Charles Solander, the Swedish naturalist (1736-82).

Solan-goose, so'.lăn goos, the gannet. (Icelandic sula.)

Solano, so.lăh'no, the Spanish sirocco, which blows from the deserts of Africa. Solanum, so.lay'.num. (See below.)

Spanish solano (solana, sun-struck; sol, the sun). The Spaniards say No rogar alguna gracia en tiempo de Solano.

Solanum, so.lay'.nūm, a genus of plants, some of which (like the potato) are edible, and others (like the nightshade) are poisonous. (Latin sōlānum, nightshade.)

Solar, sō'.lar, pertaining to the sun, proceeding from the sun.

Solar day, 24 hours, the mean apparent time of one revolution of the earth on its axis or its return to any given meridian. (The time given is not absolutely invariable.)

A lunar day, 24 hours, 48 minutes.

A sidē'rial day, 23 hrs., 56 min., 3½ secs., being the real period of one revolution of the earth on its axis.

Solar month, 30 days, 10 hours, 20 min., 5 secs., the time required for passing through one sign of the zodiac.

A lunar month, 29 days, 12 hours, 44 min., 2.9 secs., the interval between two moons of the same phase.

A tropical month, 27 days, 7 hours, 43 min., 4.5 secs.,
being the time of the moon's revolution with respect to the movable equinox.

A sidereal month, 27 days, 7 hours, 43 min., 11.5 secs., the time required to repeat a conjunction with any given fixed star.

An anomalistic month, 27 days, 13 hours, 18 min., 37.4 secs., being a revolution from perigee to perigee.

A nodal month, 27 days, 5 hours, 5 min., 36 secs., the interval from a node to a node.

These periods are not absolutely invariable, and the time given is only the average of the variable periods.

A calendar month consists of 28 days (Feb.), 29 days (Feb. in Leap Year), 30 days (Apr., June, Sep., Nov.), 31 days (Jan., March, May, July, Aug., Oct., Dec.)

Solar flowers, flōw'rz, flowers which open and close at fixed hours of the day: thus the dandelion is open from 4 a.m. to 3 p.m.; the sowthistle from 5 a.m. to 11 p.m., &c.

Solar system, the sun with all the planets, satellites, and comets which move round it.

Solar year, 365 days, 5 hours, 48 min., 48 secs., being the time in which the earth completes one revolution of its orbit (or returns to any given point therein).

A sidereal year, 365 days, 6 hours, 9 min., 11.5 secs., being the time required by the sun to return to any given fixed star.

An anomalistic year, 365 days, 6 hours, 14 min., nearly, the time which the sun takes to return to its apogee.

A civil year, 365 days (except in leap years, when one day more is required, viz., 366).

A lunar year, 354 days, 8 hours, 48 min., 36 secs., being 12 lunar synodical months.

A Julian year, 365 days, 6 hours.

Latin solāris (sol, the sun). Cicero says, "quod solus appareat cæteris sideribus suo fulgore obscuratis" (de N. D. ii. 27); but more likely the Hebrew Elohim God, Greek hēlios the sun, Breton heol, Latin sol, German sonne, Anglo-Saxon sunne, our sun.

Solder, sōl'der. Soldier, sōlē'djer. Shoulder, shōlē'der (v.i.)

Solder, a metallic composition for cementing metals, to cement with solder; soldered, sōl'derd; solder-ing, solder-er. Hard solder, solder which fuses at red heat.

Soft solder, solder which fuses at a low temperature.

Soft saw'der, flattery, complimentary speeches.

"Solder" (often called sodder), Fr. souder (Lat. solidāre, to make solid).

Soldier, sōlē'djer. Shoulder, shōlē'der. Solder, sōl'der (v.s.)

Soldier, a military man, those not officers being called privates; soldier-ly, soldier-like; soldier-ship, military skill and bearing. Soldier-ing, playing soldiers, following the occupation of a soldier.

Soldier-y, sōlē'.djer.ry, soldiers collectively.

"Soldier," French soldat, which originally meant a mercenary; Latin solidus, the pay of a soldier. "Soldier," French souder.

"Shoulder" (the upper joint of the arm), O. Eng. sculdre or sculder.

Sōle (of a foot or shoe). Sōle, only. Soul, the spirit.

Sōle (1 syl.), the bottom of the foot or of a shoe, a fish, only, alone, to new bottom a shoe or boot, to beat or flog; soled (1 syl.); sol-ing, sō'.ling; sole-leather, -lēth'.er; sole'-ly, only; sole'-ness, singleness, oneness.

"Sole" (of the foot or shoe), O. Eng. sōl, a sole or sandal; Lat. sōlea.

"Sole" (a fish), Latin sōlea (from solum the ground, so called because soles hug the bottom of the sea).

"Sole" (only, alone), Latin sōlus; Greek hōlōs, the whole.

"Soul" (the deathless part of man), Old English swol or swol.

Solecism, sōl'.ē.sizm. Barbarism, bar'.ba.rizm.

Solecism (would be better solicism, being derived from Soli, in Cilicia), a deviation from the rules of syntax, an error of speech not limited to a single word.

Barbarism, a word which does not conform to the usual laws of a language or rules of derivation.

A solecism may become an established mode of speech, but a barbarism can never be otherwise than a barbarism. Such phrases as "I shall not go whiles [until] twelve," "He went to sleep like [as] you did," are solecisms. But such words as ospray, manacles, raillery, sempstress, sociology, seignior, &c., are barbarisms. They are radically wrong, and no custom will make them right.

Solecist, sōl'.ē.sist, one guilty of a solecism; solecistic, sōl'.ē.sis''.tīk; solecistical, sōl'.ē.sis''.tī.kāl; -ly.

Solecize (Rule xxxii.), sōl'.ē.size, to commit a solecism; solecized (3 syl.); soleciz-ing (Rule xix.), sōl'.ē.sī.zing.

Greek sōloikismos, sōloikizo (Sōloikoi, the Athenian colonists of Soli, in Cilicia, who greatly corrupted the Greek language. There would be no objection to the Latin form solecism[us], but as we dislike diphthongs, and æ is quite as often represented by i as by e (as indeed the very word soli serves to show) in this particular word the i would be preferable.

Solemn, sōl'm, grave, serious, devotional; sol'em-ness (quite indefensible). It should of course be sol'emn-ness, as modern-ness (not moder-ness, &c.); solemn-ly.

Solemnity, plu. solemnities, sō.lēm'.nī.tīz, gravity, religious ceremony. Solemnize, sōl'.ēm.nīze; sol'emnized (3 syl.); solemniz-ing, sōl'.ēm.nī.zing.

Solemnis-er, sōl'.ēm.nī.zer, one who solemnises.

Solemnization, sōl'.ēm.nī.zay''.shūn.

Solemn breathing, sōl'm breeth'.ing, having a serious or religiously impressive influence.

Latin sōlemnis, sōlemnitas, sōlemnizāre. The s in this Latin verb is a mark of debasement (RR. xxxi., xxxii.)

Solfeggio, plu. solfeggios (Rule xlii.), sōle.fedg'.gǎ.ōze, the singing gamut, consisting of the words do [or ut], re, mi, fa, sol, la, si (dō, ray, me, fāh, sōle, lāh, see), which are more vocal than the letters C, D, E, F, G, A, B.

Italian solfā, solfeggio, solfeggiare. (See Sol.)

Solicit, so.lis'.it, to apply for, to canvass; solicit-ed (R. xxxvi.), so.lis'.i.tay''shūn. Solicitation, so.lis'.i.tay''shūn.

Solicitor. Solicitant. Attorney. Lawyer.

Solicitant, so.lis'.i.tant, one who solicits.

Solicitor, one who solicits or petitions in the Courts of Chancery on behalf of his clients.

Attorney, āt.tur'.ny, one substituted for another, one to whom is assigned the right of acting for another.

Properly speaking, solicitors belong to the Chancery courts and attorneys to the other courts.

Lawyer is a general term and means any one learned in the laws. It includes attorneys, solicitors, barristers, counsellors, advocates, and serjeants, but is usually restricted to those who prepare briefs, draw out legal documents, and give legal advice to their clients.

Barristers, counsellors, advocates, and serjeants bear the same relation to lawyers (including attorneys and solicitors) as physicians do to surgeons and apothecaries. The profession is one, but the civil status is very different.

Solicitor-ship, the office of solicitor (-ship, rank, office).

Solicitor-general, the second law-officer of the crown.

Sollicitous, so.lis'.i.tūs; sollicitous-ness, solicitous-ly; solicitude, so.lis'.i.tude, anxiety, uneasiness of mind.

Latin sōlicitatio, sōlicitor, sōlicitudo, sōlicitus, sōlicitāre.

Solid, sōl'id, not liquid, not hollow, strong, valid, compact, a solid substance; sol'id-ly. Solidity, so.lid'.i.ty.

Solidify, so.lid'.i.fy, to make solid; solidifies, so.lid'.i.fize; solidified, so.lid'.i.fide (Rule xi.); solid'ify-ing.

Solidification, so.lid'.i.fi.kay''shūn.

The sol'ids, the bones, flesh, and muscles of the body as distinguished from the blood and the secretions.

Solid angle, an angle made by more than two plane angles meeting at a point.

Solid measure, -mez'h'.ur, a measure in which each of the units is a cube. (Used for measuring timber, stone, marble, and the contents of capacity.)

1728 cubic inches make a solid foot of wood or stone, and 27 cubic feet a solid yard.

§ In superficial or land measure:

144 square inches make a superficial foot, and 9 square feet a superficial yard.

§ In linear measure or the measure of length only:

12 inches make a foot in length, and 3 feet a yard in length.

Solidarity, söl'ä.där''rē.ty, entire unity of interests and responsibilities, international unity of interests. In companies it means that each member is responsible for the entire debt of the society, in which respect it differs from limited liability or the liability of every individual limited to the amount of property represented by the number of shares which he holds.

Latin sōliditas, sōlidus, sōlidāre: French solidarité, solidification.

Solidungulate, söl'.i.dün''.gū.late, whole hoofed like a horse (not cloven footed like an ox and sheep); solidungulous, söl'ä.dün''.gū.lūs. (Latin sōlidus ungūla.)

Soliloquy, so.lil'.o.kwy. Monologue, mön'.o.lög.

Soliloquy is a talking to oneself audibly, thinking aloud but not addressing anyone (although many may be present and hear what is said).

Monologue, a speech addressed to others.

(Hamlet's "To be or not to be" is a soliloquy, but his address to the players is a monologue.)

Soliloquise, so.lil'.o.kwize, to talk aloud to oneself, to put one's thoughts into audible words without addressing anyone; soliloquises, so.lil'.o.kwi.zēz; soliloquised, so.lil'.o.kwized; solil'oquis-ing, so.lil'.o.kwi.zing; solil'oquiser, so.lil'.o.kwi.zer.

The word soliloquy was invented by St. Augustine (Solid. ii. 7).

Latin soliloquus, soliloquium (solus loquor, to talk alone).

Solitary, söl'.i.tēr ry, living alone, remote from society, doleful, unique; sol'itari-ly (Rule xi.), sol'itari-ness.

Solitaire, söl'.i.tair, a game for a single player, an ornament for the neck, a hermit.

Solitude, söl'.i.tūde, a lonely place, a desert.

Latin sōlītāritus, sōlītūdo (sōlus, alone); French solitaire.

Solo, plu. solos, söl'.lōze (Rule xlii.), a piece of music for a single player or singer, a musical monologue.

Soli, only one instrument of each kind to perform and the rest to leave off playing. Thus if there are twenty violins, five flutes, five clarionets, two violoncellos, and three bugles, soli would mean one violin, one flute, one clarionet, &c. to play and the rest to leave off. (Ital. solo, soli.)

Solstice, söl'.stis, a day or two before and after the 22nd of June and the 22nd of December, when the curve of the ecliptic differs so little that no sensible variation is made in the length of time that the sun is above the horizon. (The sun or length of the day practically stands still.)

Solstitial, söl'.stish'.äl, adj. of solstice.

Solstitial points, the most northern point of Cancer and the most southern of Capricornus.

Solstitial colure, -ko'lure, a great circle which runs through the solstitial points, and cuts the equator at right angles.

Latin solstitium, solstitialis (sol[is] statio, stāre to stand still).

Soluble. Solvable. Solubility. Solvability (see below).

§ Soluble, sŏl'lu.b'l, that may be dissolved or melted.

Solvable, sŏl'.va.b'l, that may be guessed or explained.

§ Solubility, sŏl'lu.b'l''ĭ.ty, susceptibility of solution.

Solvability, sŏl'.va.b'l''ĭ.ty, susceptibility of being explained.

Solution, sp.lu'.shĭn. Solutive, sŏl'lu.tĭv.

Latin solutio, solubilis, solubilitas (solvēre supine sŏlūtum).

Solve (1 syl.), to loose, to guess, to explain; sŏlved (1 syl.); solv-ing (R. xix.), sŏl'.ving; solv-er, sŏl'.ver (see above).

Solvable. Soluble. Solvability. Solubility (see above).

Solvableness, sŏl'.va.b'l.ness. Solubleness, sŏl'lu.b'l.ness.

Solvableness, susceptibility of being explained.

Solubleness, susceptibility of being melted.

Solvent, having enough to pay every claim, anything that dissolves another; solvency, sŏl'.ven.sy.

Latin solvēre supine sŏlūtum. The wrong conjugations, as usual, come from the French solvabilité, solvable, dissolvant (1).

Sŏ'lus (stage direction), left on the stage alone. (Lat. sŏlus.)

Sombre, sŏm'.b'r, gloomy, dusky; (comp.) sŏm'brer, (super.) sŏmbrest; sombre-ness, sŏm'.b'r.ness. Sombrous, -brŭs; sombrous-ness, sŏm'.brŭs.ness; sŏm'brous-ly.

French sombre (Latin sub-umbra, under a shadow or shade).

Sombrero, plu. sombreros (Rule xlii.), sŏm.bree'.rŏze, a broad-brimmed Spanish hat. (Sp. sombrero a hat, sombra shade.)

-some, sŭm (a native adjective termination), full of, possessed of.

Some. Sum (both sŭm).

Some, sum, a few, certain persons; somebody, sŭm'.bŏ.dy; some'-how, some' such. Some'-time, formerly, at a time indefinite; some'-times (2 syl.), occasionally. (-s is the adverbial suffix, and not the plural number).

Some'-thing, a matter, a thing unknown, a little.

Some'-what, -wŏt; some'-where, -ware; some'-whith'er.

"Some." Old English som or sum, som-hwile.

"Sum" (amount, an exercise in figures), Latin summa.

Somersault or somerset, sum'.er.solt or sŭm'.er.set, a leap head over heels. (Old French soubresault.)

The spelling of this word is indefensible. The word is the Latin supra or super saltus. The Latin subsultus [saltus] means a jump or leap. "Supersult" or "subsult" would be more correct.

Somn-, somni- before cons. (Lat. prefix), sleep (somnus).

Somn-ambulist, sŏm.năm'.bŭ.list, a sleep-walker.

Somnambulism, sŏm.năm'.bŭ.lîzm, walking during sleep.

Somnambulic, sŏm.năm'.bŭ.lîk, adj.

Somnambulation, sŏm.năm'.bŭ.lay''.shŭn.

Fr. somnambulisme (Lat. somnus ambulare, to walk in sleep).

Somni-ferous, sŏm.nîf'.ĕ.rŭs, inducing sleep.

Latin somnifer (i.e., somnus ferens), bringing sleep.

Somni-fic, sŏm.nîf'.îk, tending to induce sleep.

Latin somnificus (i.e., somnus ficio [facio], making sleep).

Somni-loquism, sŏm.nîl'.ŏ.kwîzm, talking in sleep; somnil'oquist; somniloquous, sŏm.nîl'.ŏ.kwîs.

Latin somni-[somnus]loquor, to talk in sleep.

Somni-pathy, sŏm.nîp'.ă.rhî, sleep from mesmeric or other sympathetic influence; somnipathist, sŏm.nîp'.ă.rhîst, one in a sympathetic sleep.

A hybrid: Latin somni[somnus], Greek páthos sensibility.

"Hypnopathy" (hîp.nŏp'.ă.rhî) would be Greek.

Somno-lent, drowsy; somnolent-ly; somnolence, sŏm'.nŏ.lense; somnolency, sŏm'.nŏ.lĕn.sy.

Debased Latin somno lentus, heavy with sleep. Classic Latin would be somnilent.

Son. Sun (both sŭn). Soon, in a short time.

Son, fem. daughter, daw'.ter, male and female offspring of a father and mother.

Son-in-law, a daughter's husband.

Step-son, the son of one parent only. A second marriage having been made (an orphan son).

Grand-son, the son of one's son or daughter.

Great-grandson, three removes; and for every further remove another great is added.

Son-ship, the state of being a son (-ship, rank, condition, &c.) Son of God. Son of Man.

"Sun," Old English sunna. "Soon," Old English sona.

"Son," Old English sune or sunu; steop-sunu, a step-son (steop, bereft of a parent, an orphan). Grand-son is a ridiculous compound for the French petit-fils. "Grand-father" is all very well, but that the offspring should become greater and greater as it retreats from the grand-parents is somewhat absurd.

Sonata, son.ăh'.tăh (Italian), a musical composition of several movements for a single instrument.

Overture, ŏ.ver.tchŭre, an introductory symphony to a dramatic performance or oratorio.

Symphony, sîm'.fŏ.ny, a piece of music for a full orchestra, the instrumental part before and after a song.

§ Cantata, kăn.tàh'.tâh, a vocal sonata, a composition containing several airs, recitatives, and movements.

Aria, air're.ah, a musical air: Aria concerta'ta has elaborate orchestral accompaniments. Aria fugata has the accompaniments in the fugue style. Aria Tedesca is a Tudesque or German air.

§ Concerto, plu. concertos, kôn'tcher'.toze, a musical composition to display the powers of some particular instrument, the instrument displayed is called concerti'no, as oboe concertino, violino primo [or secundo] concertino. If several instruments have solos for the display of their powers the piece is a Concertante (4 syl.)

Sång, a short poem to be sung. Ballad, a tale in verse to be sung or read. Sång of Birds, the succession of two or more notes continued without break (adagio).

Only male birds sing, and no song-bird exceeds a blackbird in size, unless indeed the crowing of a cock is called singing. The song of very few birds is capable of imitation on any musical instrument because the pitch is so high and the intervals so minute. The cuckoo sings with an ordinary interval. The nightingale has sixteen different methods of beginning and closing its refrains, the intermediate notes being arranged in endless variety, and sometimes sustained for twenty minutes. The skylark comes next in variety of note, execution, and in the length of time which it sustains its song. No other bird (except some canaries) can execute more than four or five changes or sustain its song above a few seconds without pausing.

Sång-less. For an old song, for a very small outlay.

Sångster, fem. songstress, a male and female singer.

(-ster does not denote a female, as most grammars assert. It is added to any gender, and simply denotes that skill which arises from practice. Even spinster is no exception, and is applied to unmarried women only from their skill and practice in spinning.)

Sing, (past) sang, (past part.) sung, sing'-ing, sing'-er.

Old English sing[an], past sang, past part. sungen, sanc, sang, or sång, sang-bóc; sangere, a singer; sangistre, a songstress.

Soni-, sonōri- (Latin prefixes), loud, conveying sound.

Soni-ferous, son'f'.ĕr'ŭs, giving sound, sonorous.

Latin soni-[sōnus], ferens, conveying sound.

Sonnet, a poem not exceeding fourteen lines. It contains two four-line stanzas and two of three-lines each. The rhymes should interlace, and the conclusion be epigrammatic.

French sonnet, from the Italian sonnetto.

Sono-meter, an instrument for showing the relations between musical notes, a medical instrument used in treatment for deafness.

A hybrid borrowed from the French sonomètre (Latin sonus and Greek metron). Not only is it hybrid it is ill-compounded. Sound-gauge would do quite as well and be less objectionable.

Sonori-fic, so.nō.rīf'ík, sonorous.

Latin sonori-[sōnōrus]ficio[facio], making or being sonorous.

Sonorous, so.nōr'ūs, yielding sound; sonorously, sono'rous-ness. (Latin sōnōrus, sōnus sound.)

Soon, in a short time. As soon as. So soon as.

As soon as, in affirmative or corresponding sentences.

As soon as you have done your lessons you may go.

They go astray as soon as they be [are] born (Ps. lviil. 3).

So soon as, in negative or adversative sentences.

I shall not have done so soon as you.

The sun does not rise in winter so soon as it does in spring.

The young must not expect to overcome difficulties so soon as those of greater experience. (Old Eng. sōna, sūno, or sones.)

Soot. Smōke (1 syl.) Blacks.

Soot, condensed smoke hanging to flues, &c.

Smoke, small fragments of burning fuel mixed with gases, &c., buoyed up by the air.

Blacks, flakes of condensed smoke which fall to the earth.

Soot'-ed; soot'-y, foul with soot; soot'i-ness, soot'i-ly.

Old English soot, sooth, or sōt; sōtig, sooty.

(The pronunciation of the word soot is not determined. Some make it to rhyme with foot, some with root, boot, and some with but, cut. Perhaps those who make it to rhyme with foot preponderate.)

Of the seven words in -oot five are long: boot, coot, hoot, root, shoot; one is short, foot = put (both which words are sui generis); and the doubtful word soot.

Sooth, sooth, truth, true. Soothe, soothe (see below.)

Sooth'-sayer, one who foretells future events; sooth'-saying.

Sooth to say, to speak the truth dogmatically.

Old English sōth, sooth or truth; sōth-saga, soothsayer.

Soothe (1 syl.), to calm, to tranquillise; soothed (1 syl.); soothing (Rule xix.), soothe'-ing; soothing-ly, sooth'-er.

Old English ge-sōth[ian], past ge-sōthode, past part. ge-sōthod.

(It is rather complimentary to our forefathers that they could think truth pacifying to the temper. No doubt prevarication irritates; but alas! truth (of a personal nature) is not often soothing.)

Sōp. Soap, sōpe. Soup. Sūp.

Sop, bread, &c., saturated with milk or some other liquid, something given to pacify or win over, to steep in a liquid; sopped, sōpt; sopp'-ing (R. i.), sopp'-er, sopp'-y.

Sops in wine, cake, &c., sopped in wine, a variety of pink.

Bacon says "Sops in wine inebriate more than wine itself."

Soap (for washing), soaped (1 syl.), soap'-ing, soap'-y.

"Sop," Danish sup a sip, suppe soup; Dutch sop.

"Soap," Old English sāpe; Latin sāpo genitive sāpōnis.

"Soup," French soupe; German and Danish suppe.

"Sup" (to suck up), O. Eng. sup[an] or supp[an], p. scap, p. p. soyen

Soph, sŏf, a student at Cambridge University. He is called a Freshman for the first term; a Junior Soph in his second year; a Soph or Senior Soph for the third year. (Contraction of sophister, a sophist.)

At one time these students had to maintain in Latin a given question in the schools by opposing the orthodox views. These "opponencies" are now restricted to the Law and Divinity degrees.

Sophi, sŏ'fi. Sofi, sŏ'fi. Softa, sŏf.tàh. Sofa, sŏ'fàh.

Sophi, a title of the shah of Persia. (Arabic sufi.)

Softi, a Persian monk or priest, a religious. (Persian sofi.)

Softa, an Osmani student for the Ulema degrees (sŏkhtah).

Sofa, a couch with two raised ends. (Arab. sofah.)

Sophism, sŏf'izm. Sofism, sŏ'fizm, tenets of the sofis.

Sophism, a specious but false argument, a subtle fallacy in reasoning; sophist, sŏf'ist; sophistic, sofis'.tik; sophistical, sofis'.tì.kāl; sophistical-ly.

Sophisticate, sofis'.tì.kate, to adulterate, to debase; sophisticat-ed (Rule xxxvi.), sofis'.tì.kā.ted; sophisticat-ing (Rule xix.), sofis'.tì.kā.ting; sophisticat-or.

Sophistication, sofis'.tì.kay'.shŭn. Sophister, sŏf'.s.ter.

Sophistry, sŏf'.s.try, specious by false reasoning.

These words have quite run from their original meaning. Before the time of Pythag'oras (B.C. 586-506) the Greek sages were called sophists (wise men). Pythagoras out of modesty called himself philo-sopher (a wisdom lover). A century later Protag'oras, of Ab'dera, resumed the old title, and a set of quibblers appeared in Athens who professed to answer any question on any subject, and from that moment sophos and all its family of words have been restricted to "wisdom falsely so called."

Soporiferous, so'.po.rif''.ĕ.rŭs, tending to produce sleep; soporiferous-ness, soporiferous-ly; sopor, so'.por; soporific, so'.po.rif''.ik, a medicine to produce sleep.

Latin sopor, sŏpŏrifer, sŏpŏrus, v. sŏpŏrāre; Greek hupar.

Soprano, plu. sopranos or soprani, so.pràh'.no, -nŏze, the highest female voice. Contralto, plu. contraltos, con.trāl'.toze, the lowest female voice; sopranist, so.pràh'.nist, one who sings soprano. Mezzo Soprano, mĕd'.zo so.pràh'.no, between a contralto and a soprano.

2nd oct.	3rd oct.	4th oct.	Alto.
F. G. A. B,	C. D. E. F. G. A. B,	C. D. E. F. G. A. B,	C.
..... Contralto.
..... Soprano.
..... Treble or Alto.

Sorbonist, sor'.bŏn.ist, a doctor of the Sorbonne [sŏr.bŏn], a famous theological college of Paris; sorbon'icā.

Founded by Robert de Sorbonne, of Cambrai (1201-1274).

Sorcerer, fem. sorceress, sōr'.sē.rer, sōr'.sē.ress, a magician.

Sorcery, plu. sorceries, sōr'.sē.rīz (R. xlv.), enchantment.

Fr. sorcier, sorcellerie (du bas latin sortiarius, nom que l'on donnait à ceux qui prédisaient le sort ou qui jetaient des sorts), Bouillet.

Sordid, sōr'.dīd, base, avaricious; sordid-ness, sordid-ly.

Latin sordidus (sordes, the sweepings of a house, v. sordēre).

Sōre (1 syl.) Soar, sōre. Saw. Sōur. Sōwer. Sewer.

Sore, a wound, a grief, greatly; sore'-ness, sore'-ly.

"Sore," Old English sār, sārlic (adj.), sārlice (adv.)

"Soar" (as a bird), Italian sorāre (Latin aura, Greek aura).

"Saw," Old Eng. scōn to see, past sawe or scāh, past part. ge-sewen.

"Sour," Old Eng. sūr, sūrness sourness, v. sūr[ian]; Welsh sur.

"Sower," from O. Eng. v. sūw[an] to sow seed, p. seow, p. p. sūwen.

"Sewer," from O. E. v. sūw[ian] or sūw[an], to sew with a needle.

Sorel, sōr'rēl, a buck of the third year. Sōr'rel, a herb.

Fr. saur or sor, a young falcon whose plumage is of a sorrel colour, a buck of the fourth year; (with -el dim.) a buck of the third year (de celtique saur, couleur rousse) Dict. des Arts et des Sciences.

"Sorrel" (a reddish colour), Italian soro, French saure.

"Sorrel" (a sour-tasting plant), Old Eng. sūr, sour, with diminutive.

Doubling the r in these words is a blunder.

Sorites, so.rī'.teez, a syllogism with more than one middle term.

The famous sorites of Themistoclēs was That his infant son commanded the whole world. Proved thus: My infant son rules his mother. His mother rules me. I rule the Athenians. The Athenians rule the Greeks. The Greeks rule Europe. Europe rules the world. Therefore my infant son rules the world.

Greek sōreilēs (sōrōs, a heap); Latin sōrilēs.

Sororicide, so.rōr'rī.side, one who murders his sister.

Latin soror genitive sorōris cædo, I kill [my] sister.

Sōr'rel, a reddish brown, a plant. Sōr'el, a young buck.

Salt of sorrel, from the juice of the wood-sorrel.

"Sorrel" (reddish brown), Italian soro; French saure.

"Sorrel" (a plant of a sour flavour), Old Eng. sūr, sour, with dim.

"Sorrel" (a buck of the third year), French sor or saur, with dim.

Sorrow, sōr'ro, grief. Sōr'ry, grieved, vexed (q.v.)

Sorrow, to grieve; sorrowed, sōr'rōde; sor'row-ing, sor'-rowing-ly. Sorrow-ful (Rule lx.), sor'rowful-ness, sor'rowful-ly. Sorrow-less. Sorrow-stricken.

Old English sorg, sorh, or sorhg sorrow, sorhfull, sorhfulnes, sorhleas sorrowless, sorhung sorrowing, v. sorh[ian], p. sorhōde, p. p. sorhod.

Sorry, sōr'ry, vexed, mean. Sorrow, sōr'rū, grief.

Sorri-ly (Rule xi.); sorri-ness, meanness, poorness.

"Sorry," Old English sdrig (from sār, sore, sorrow), sdrigues.

"Sorrow," Old English sorh, sorg, or sorhg care, sorrow.

Sort, a kind, a species, to arrange, to separate into classes; sort'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), sort'-ing, sort'-er, sort'-able.

Sorts, varieties. Out of sorts, unwell, in disorder.

Latin sors genitive sortis a lot or sort, v. sortior; French sorte.

Sortie, sor'tee, a sudden rush from a besieged town against the besiegers, an unexpected attack made by a beleaguered army. (French sortie, v. sortir, to go out.)

Sostenuto, sos'te.nū'to, sustained, continuous (Italian).

Sot, an habitual drunkard; sött'-ed, stupid with drink; sott'-ish, generally enfeebled from drunken habits; sottish-ly, sottish-ness. Besot, to stupefy with drink; besott'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), besott-ing, besotted-ly, besotting-ly.

Old English sot, sollíc sottish, sollíce.

Sothic year, sōrh'ík yeer, the intercalary year once in 1460 years in the ancient Egyptian and Persian time system.

The old Egyptian year consisted of 365 days, so that a day was lost every four years, and in 1460 years these "losses" accumulated into a full year. The 1460 years was called a Sothic period, and the intercalary year made up of these fragments was called a Sothic year. So called from the dog star, at whose rising it commenced.

Sotto voce, sōtē'to votē'tcha, in an undertone (Italian).

Sou, soo, plu. sous, sooz, the twentieth part of a franc, about equal to our ha'penny. The word is still used in France, especially by the English and in the parts frequented by the English, but money accounts are kept by the French in francs and centimes. A "sou" is 5 centimes (cinq centimes); "2 sous" = 1d. is 10 centimes (dix centimes), 20 sous = 10d. is 100 centimes (cent centimes = 1 fr.)

Latin solidus [nummus], a solid piece of money, a coin, the unit of money calculations. With us "s" (shillings) is for solidus.

Soubahdar, soo'.bah.dar, the chief native commissioned officer in a Sepoy company.

Hind. subahdar (subah dār, holding a province).

Souchong, soo'.shōng', a good black tea

The black teas are Bohea, Congou, Souchong, and Pekoe.

The green teas are Twankay, Hyson, Imperial, and gunpowder.

Sough, sōf, a hollow sighing of winds or distant waves, to sigh or murmur as winds or waves; soughed, sōft; sough-ing, sōf'ing; soughing-ly, sōf'ing.ly.

Old Eng. swóg[an], to howl as the wind, past swógde, p. p. swoged.

The pronunciation of -ough is very irregular because we try to represent guttural sounds by letters: thus we have—

- (1) ough = off: cough [koff].
- (2) ough = ôf: sough [sôf], trough [trôf].
- (3) ough = üf: chough, enough, rough, slough, tough.
- (4) ough = ôw (as in grôw): dough, though, furlough.
- (5) ough = oo: through.
- (6) ough = ôw (as in nôw): plough, bough, slough, dough-ty.
- (7) ough = ôk: (?) hough, lough, shough.
- (8) ough = üp: hiccough.
- (9) ough = ürrah: borough, thorough.
- (10) ough = ort: bought, drought, fought, nought, ought, sought, thought, wrought. Add: caught, naught, taught.

Sought, sort (see Seek). Old English sóhte of sécc[an].

Soul, sōw'l. Sōle (1 syl.)

Soul, the immaterial part of a man; soul'-less, soul'-destroying; soul'-felt, deeply felt; soul'-stirring, exciting the sympathies; soul'-subduing, affecting.

"Soul," Old English saul or sawl.

"Sole" (a fish), Latin sōlea (from sōlum, the ground which it hugs).

"Sole" (of a foot or shoe), O. Eng. sól, Lat. sōlea (sōlum, the ground).

"Sole" (only, alone), Latin sōlus; Greek hōlōs, the whole.

Sound, whatever is heard by the ear, healthy, unbroken, a connecting arm of water more open than a strait, to make a sound, to fathom the sea, to try if the lungs, &c., are diseased or not; sound'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), sound'-ing, sound'-less, sound'-less-ly. Sounding-board, -bord; sounding post (of a violin).

The sound, a sea passage between the Baltic and the main ocean. Sounds (of a fish), the air-bladders.

Sound'-ly, heartily, thoroughly; sound'-ness, orthodoxy, entireness, the state of being solid and firm.

Sounding, plu. soundings, the act of proving the depth of the sea by a line, the result obtained thereby; sound'-able, capable of being fathomed; sound'-less, without sound, unfathomable.

Sounding-line, sounding-rod (see above).

"Sound" (healthy, unbroken), Old English sūnd; Latin sanus.

"Sound" (an arm of the sea), Old English sund.

"Sound" (to test, to fathom), Spanish sonda, v. sondar, or sondear, sondable; sondalésa, a sounding-line (sondar la bomba, to sound the pump). "Sound" (noise), Old Eng. son; Lat. sonus, v. sonāre.

Soup, soop. Swoop. Soap, sōpe. Swōp. Sūp.

Soup, soop (not sōpe), a rich broth. Soup-kitchen, a public establishment for giving soup to the poor.

Soupe-maigre, soup-mā'gr, vegetable or fish soup.

"Soup," O. E. sōp, sōp-cuppa a soup-cup; Fr. soupe; Germ. suppe.

"Swoop" (to pounce on a bird), Welsh chwap, v. chwapiog.

"Soap" (for washing), Old English sāpe, v. sāp[an]; Latin sapo.

"Swop," Old English cedp; v. cedp[an], to bargain [to chop].

"Sup," Old Eng. sup[an] or supp[an], past seap, past part. sopen.

Sour. Sōwer. Sewer, sōw'er. Sōre (1 syl.) Soar.

Sour, acid, not sweet, turned [as milk], morose, to make sour, to embitter one's temper; soured (1 syl.), sour'-ing, sour'-ly, sour'-ness, sour'-ish (-ish added to adj. is dim., added to nouns it means "like").

Sour'-dock, the plant sorrel. Sour'-krout, -krōwt.

"Sour," Old Eng. sūr, sūrnes sourness, v. sūr[ian], p. -ode, p. p. -od.

"Sower," Old Eng. v. sūw[an] to sow seeds, past seow, p. p. sūwen.

"Sewer," sōw'er, O. E. v. sūw[ian] or sūw[an], to sew with a needle.

"Sore" (a wound, grievously), Old Eng. sār a sore, sāre sorely.

"Soar" (to rise in the air as a hawk), Italian sordre (Latin aura).

Source, sō'urce, origin. Sauce, sū'wce, relish.

For monosyllables beginning with c- or s- and ending with -rce or -auce, -rse or -ause, the rule is this: Those beginning with c- end with -se, and those beginning with s- end with -ce: g.e.

Cause, clause, coarse, corse, course, curse.

Sauce, scarce, searce [a sieve], source (except sparse).

Souse, sō'wce. Sous, sooz, plu. of sou, soo, a French coin.

Souse, pickle made with salt, food parboiled in a salt pickle, the ears, feet, &c., of a pig pickled, a violent pounce, to steep in pickle, to plunge in water, to pounce on suddenly and with violence; soused (1 syl.); sous-ing (Rule xix.), sō'ws'-ing.

"Souse" (to plunge under water), French sous, under.

"Souse" (to pounce on), German sausen, to rush forth.

"Souse" (pickled with salt), Latin salsus, salted (sal, salt).

South, opposite the north. South-east, south-west, south-eastern, south-western, south-easterly, south-westerly.

Southerly, sūth'.er.ly, coming from or going towards the south. Southron, sūth'.rōn. Southern-most. South-ing, sō'wth-ing, tending to the south. Southward, sūth'.rd (adj.), southwards, sūth'.rds (adv.); south'ward-ly.

South-wester, sou'-wēs'.ter, a gale or storm from the south-west, a seaman's hat for coarse weather.

South frigid zone; south temperate zone.

South-pole. Southern cross, a constellation.

Southern hemisphere, sūth'.rn hēm'.ī.sfeer.

Southern-wood, an aromatic plant.

Old English sūth, sūthan southerly, sūthan-weard southward, sūth-east, sūth-eastern, sūthern, sūthern-wudu southernwood, sūthmwest southmost, sūthweard adj., sūthweardes adv., sūth-west, -western.

Souvenir, soo'.vē.neer', a keepsake, a memento (French).

Sovereign, sov'.rēn, monarch, a gold coin = 20s., supreme; sovereign-ty, sov'.rēn.ty. Sovereign state.

The spelling of this word is disgraceful, -reign is a mere blunder arising from the notion that the syllable is connected with reign (Latin regnum, a kingdom), with which it has no connection. The word is simply a corruption of supremus [superanus], supreme, through the Old French souverain now souverain, Italian sovrano. The older English form was soveraine then sovereigne.

Sōw (to rhyme with nōw). Sōw, Sew (both to rhyme with grōw.)

Sōw, male Boar, the dam and sire of pigs.

Sucking-pig, the unweaned offspring of a sōw.

Hog, a male pig intended for the butcher.

Litter or farrow, the whole brood of a sow at one birth.

Porkers, young pigs which have been weaned.

Pork, the flesh of slain pigs. Swine (sing. or plu.)

Sōw, an oblong lump of metal, a milleped.

Sōw, (past) sōwed (1 syl.), past part. sōwn; sōw'-ing, to scatter or plant seed; sōw'-er.

Sew, sōw, to ply the needle; past sewed (1 syl.), past part. sewed, but sewn is more usual; sew'-er.

"Sōw" (the dam of pigs), O. Eng. sūg or sūgu (from sūgan, to suck).

"Swine," Old Eng. sūn, i.e. sūg-ein, pigs collectively considered.

"Boar," Old Eng. bār. "Hog," Welsh hwch.

"Litter," French litière (lis a bed, Latin lectus, Greek lēchos).

"Pork," Fr. porc; Lat. porcus, a pig; Gk. porkos, i.e. kapros.

"Sōw" (of metal), Old Eng. sdu[an], to spread or scatter, liquid iron run off into a channel called a sow or diffuser. The branches of the sow are by a pun called pigs, and hence the term pig-iron.

"Sōw" (to scatter seed), Old English sdu[an], past seow, past part. sduen; sduere or sawere, a sower.

"Sew" (with a needle), Old English sdu[ian] or sūw[an], past sūwode, past part. ge-siwed (not siwen), siwere; Latin suere.

Sowans, sōw'-anz, a thick soup made from the husks of oats.

The spelling of this word is uncertain. It is spelt sowans, sowens, and sowins. Anglo-Saxon sduan, to scatter.

Soy, a sauce. (Japan. soja, made from soja-hispida, bean.)

Spa, spaw, a mineral spring. Spar, crystal or mineral spath.

Spa water. (So called from Spaa, in Belgium.)

"Spar" (spath), Old Eng. spæren, gypsum. "Spar" (a prop), Germ. sparren, a rafter.

"Spar" (to box, to dispute), Old English sparr[an], to spar.

Spāce (1 syl.), room, to make intervals between words; spāced (1 syl.); spac-ing (R. xix.), spā'-sing, adjustment of spaces.

Spacious, spā'-shūs, expansive; spacious-ness, spacious-ly.

French espace; Latin spāttum, spāttōsus, v. spāttor to spread.

Spāde (1 syl.), an instrument for digging, one of the two black suits of cards, to dig with a spade; spad-ed (R. xxxvi.), spā'-ded; spad-ing (R. xix.), spā'-ding.

Spadeful, plu. spadefuls (two or three spadefuls means a spadeful repeated twice or thrice, but two or three spades full would mean two or three different spades all full).

Spād'dle, a small spade. To call a spade a spade, to speak outright, not to smoothe over ill deeds with euphemisms.

Old English spād, spādu, or spāedu; German spaten.

"Spade" (in cards), a corruption of the Spanish spādos (pikes), and called by the French piques (pikes).

Spadille, spa.dill', the ace of spades at ombre [ōmē'-bray] and quadrille. (Spanish espadilla, French spadille.)

Spadix, plu. spadices, spā'-dix, plu. spā.dī'-sees (not spā'-dī.seez, as it is usually called), a term in Botany.

Latin spādix. gen. spadicis, a palm branch. In Botany a form of inflorescence in which the flowers are closely arranged round a fleshy axis, and the whole wrapped in a spathe.

Spahi, spâh'e, Ottoman horse-soldiers. Spahis, the native Algerian cavalry officered by Frenchmen. The infantry are called Tur'cos, tûr'.kôze.

Spän, a measure of nine inches, the space covered by extending the thumb and first finger, the spread of an arch, short duration, to measure with the thumb and forefinger outstretched, to measure by encompassing with the thumb and forefinger, to extend from one side to another as an arch; spanned, spänd; spänn'-ing (Rule i.), spänn'-er.

Span-new, quite new; span roof, a roof with two inclines.

Old Eng. span or sponn, v. spann[an], past spén, past part. spannen. "Span-new," German spann-nageln, new from the "spanners" or stretchers, just taken off the tenter-hooks.

Spancel, spän'sel, to tie the hind legs of a horse or cow with a rope; span'celled (2 syl.), span'cell-ing.

German spannen-seil, to fetter [with a] rope.

(Of the 50 dissyllables accented on the first syllable and ending in -el, all but 6 double the l when a suffix beginning with a vowel is added. Of the 6, only 2 are invariably spelt with a single l, viz. "an'gel," angel'-ic, angel'-ical, angelical-ly, and "parallel," parallel-ed, parallel-ing, parallel-ism, parallel-ogram, parallel-opiped. The 4 doubtful words are channel, chisel, inppannel, hansel.)

Spandrel, plu. spandrels, spän'.drelz, the two spaces between the upper arch of a door or window and the square moulding just above it. (Ital. spandere, to spread; Lat. pandere.)

A spandrel is a little piece spread beyond the curve of an arch.

Spangle, späng'g'l; a small thin slice of bright metal for ornamenting show dresses, to adorn with spangles; spangled, späng'g'ld; spangling, späng'g'ling.

Dutch spange, a spangle; Gk. phleggo (= fen.go), to make lustrous.

Spaniard, spän'.yard, a native of Spain.

Spän'-ish, adj. of Spain, the Spanish language.

Spanish-fly, cantharidês. Spanish-juice, liquorice

Latin Hispania, Hispanicus (Punic span, a rabbit).

Spaniel, spän'.yèl, a species of dog, a cringing person.

So called from Hispaniola (Hayti), noted for the best breed.

Spänk, a hard blow with the open hand, to give one a spank; spanked (1 syl.), spank'-ing; spanker, unusually large, the after-sail of a ship (it is the lowest of the five sails called (1) spanker, (2) mizen topsail, (3) mizen topgallant sail, (4) mizen royal, (5) mizen skysail). Spanking breeze.

Welsh ysponcio, to smack; ysponciad, a smacking; ysponc.

Span-new, quite new. Just taken from the spannans or stretchers. (See Span.)

Spar. Spa, spâw, a mineral spring. (Spaa, in Belgium.)

Spar, spath, as: calc-spar, fël-spar, brown-spar, Iceland-

spar, fluor-spar, cubic spar, gypseous spar, &c.; sparr'-y, resembling spar, consisting of spar, &c.

Spar, a boom, yard, or gaff; spar-deck.

Spar, to jangle, to wrangle, to box in gloves, &c.; sparr'd (1 syl.), sparr'-ing (Rule i.), sparr'-er.

"Spar" (spath), Old English spæren, gypsum.

"Spar" (a boom, yard, or gaff), German sparren, a rafter.

"Spar" (to wrangle, to box), Old English sparr[an], to spar.

Spar hawk or sparrow hawk, a small short-winged hawk.

Old English spear or sper hafoc; Latin sparsus, thin. A small ignoble hawk. The Gerfalcon was for a king, the Tercel gentle for a prince, the Rock falcon for a duke, the Mertyn for a lady, the Goshawk for a yeoman, the Spar hawk for a priest, and the Kestrel for a knave.

Spāre (1 syl.), thin, not generally used, extra. Spear, speer.

To spare, to refrain from using, to part with, to treat with forbearance, to live frugally; spared (1 syl.); spar-ing (R. xix.), spāre-ing; sparing-ly, sparing-ness, spare'-ly, moderately, insufficiently; spare'-ness.

Spare-ribs [of pork], the ribs of a hog are divided into two parts, the long-bones with less meat called spare ribs, and the short-bones with more meat called griskins (gris, a pig).

"Spare," Old English spær, spærlice sparely, spærnes spareness, v. spær[ian], past spærode, past part. spærod; Latin parcere.

"Spear" (a weapon of war), Old English speare or spere.

Spark, an ignited fragment thrown off from burning fuel, a lively dressy young man, a pretender.

Sparkle, spar'.k'l, to glitter, to glisten, to bubble like effervescing drinks; sparkled, spar'.k'ld; sparkling, -kling; sparkling-ly, spark'ler.

Old Eng. spærc or spearca. "Sparkle," Dutch spartelen.

Sparrow, spär'ro, a bird. Sparrow-hawk, a corruption of Sparhawk, a small short-winged hawk.

Sparrow-grass, a vulgarism for asparagus. So also Grass for asparagus is indefensible.

"Sparrow," Old English spearwa, spærewa, or speara.

"Sparhawk," Old English spear or sper hafoc.

Sparse (1 syl.), thinly scattered; sparse'-ly, sparse'-ness.

Latin sparsus, v. spargo, supine sparsum, to scatter.

Spar'tan, a Lacedæmonian, hardy, simple, and brave.

Spartan dog, a blood-hound, a bloodthirsty man.

Said to be named from Sparta, the wife of Lacedæmon.

Spasm, spāz'm, a sudden contraction of some muscle or muscles of the body; spasmodic, spāz.mōd'.ik; spasmodical, spāz.mōd'.i.kāl; spasmodical-ly.

Latin spasmus; Greek spasmos; French spasme.

Spatter, spăt'ter, to sprinkle with dirty water, to asperse, to defame; spattered, spăt't'rd; spatter-ing.

Spatter-dashers, coverings to keep the legs of one's trousers clean. (Italian sporcadre, to dirty; sporco, filthy.)

Spatula, spăt'tu.lah, a blunt pliant knife used by apothecaries for spreading plasters, &c. (Latin spatula.)

Spavin, a hard excrescence on the inside of a horse's hough [hök] causing lameness; spavined, späv'ind.

Italian spavento, the spavin; French éparvin.

Spawn (sing. and plu.), the eggs of fish or frogs, the spores (1 syl.), of fungus, (in contempt) any offspring or partisan, to deposit spawn; spawned (1 syl.), spawn'-ing; spawner, a female fish, the male fish is a milter. (Welsh ysporion.)

Speak, speek, to utter words, to talk; past spöke (1 syl.), past part. spoken, spö'k'n; speaking, speek'ing; speaking-ly.

Speaker, speek'er; speaker-ship (-ship, office of).

Speak'-able, negative Un-speak'able.

Speaking-trumpet, speaking-tube. To speak a ship, to hail and speak to its captain or commander.

To speak with [another person], to converse together.

To speak to [another person], to address another.

Speech, the power of speaking, uttered words, an oration

(We say to speak a word, a sentence, a speech, to speak a man's praises, to speak several languages, &c., but we never say to speak an argument, to speak a sermon, to speak a story.)

There is no just reason why speak should be spelt with ea and speech with double e, one is the Anglo-Saxon noun spréc (speech) and the other the Anglo-Saxon verb sprécan.

Old Eng. spréc, v. sprécan, past spræc, past part. sprocen or sprecen.

Spear, speer, a weapon of war. Späre (1 syl.), thin, to save.

To spear, to stab with a spear; speared, speerd; spear-ing, speer'ing. Spear'-man, plu. spear'-men.

Spear'-mint, a mint with a spear-shaped leaf.

"Spear," Old Eng. speare, spére, or speore; spéreleas, spearless.

"Spare," Old Eng. spær, v. spárian, past spárode, p. part. spárod.

Special, spësh'äl (not spee'.shel), particular, confined to some particular subject or department, extraordinary.

Special-ly, spësh'äl.ly. Especially, ës.pësh'äl.ly.

Specially, signally, for some particular object.

Especially, chiefly, foremost, principally.

Speciality, spësh'äl'.i.ty. Specialty, spësh'äl.ly.

Speciality, forte, what a person prides himself on.

Specialty, an obligation, bond, a contract given under seal, called a contract by specialty in contra distinction to a simple contract.

Specialise (Rule xxxi.), spěsh'ăl.ize, to particularise; specialised, spěsh'ăl.izd; specialis-ing, spěsh'ăl.iz-ing. Specialisation, spěsh'ăl.izay''shŭn.

Special administration, limited and not general.

Special agent, one employed to transact some "special" business for his employer.

Special case, a new statement of a case on which a jury has been unable to find a special verdict in consequence of some legal difficulty.

Special constable, one appointed by the magistrates to act on some special emergency.

Special jury, plu. special juries, spěsh'ăl jŭ'.rĭz, a jury of good social standing chosen for some special trial.

Special licence, one granted by the archbishop of Canterbury to authorise a marriage at any time and place convenient to the parties interested.

Special pleader, -plee'.der, one who devotes himself to the drawing of Common Law pleadings.

Special pleas, -pleez, pleas such as infancy, coverture, statute of limitation, &c., which are not in the form of general issues.

Special pleading, the specious arguments of one whose object is victory and not truth.

Special verdict, a special finding of the facts of a case, leaving the court to apply the law.

Latin specialis, specialitas; French spécial, spécialité, spécialiser.

Specie, spee'.shey. Species, spě'.shĭ.ēze.

Specie, gold and silver coin as distinguished from bank-notes and other paper money.

Species, (sing. and plu.) a group, a class, one of a particular sort or all belonging to the same sort.

In science the word species has an arbitrary meaning. All the productions of nature are divided into three groups called KINGDOMS: (1) the animal, (2) the vegetable, and (3) the mineral. Each kingdom is subdivided into an indefinite number of CLASSES. Each class into an indefinite number of ORDERS. Each order into an indefinite number of GENERA. Each genus into an indefinite number of SPECIES. And each species into an indefinite number of VARIETIES. Illustrate by the race of man, thus:

Kingdom - man.

Classes - nations: as France, Spain, &c.

Orders - tribes or clans: as the Macgregor clan, &c.

Genera - families.

Species - individuals.

Varieties - black, copper, white skins, &c.; tall, short, &c.

"Specie," Latin species (the visible form of things; specio, I see), that which the eye sees. When paper money was introduced, the visible coin was called "specie," a bank note being only a promise to produce the sum set down, if required.

Specify, spēs'ā.fy, to state specially, to designate distinctly; specifies, spēs'ā.fize; specified, spēs'ā.fide; specify-ing, spēs'ā.fy.ing; specifi-er, spēs'ā.fy.er; specification, spēs'ā.fi.kay''shūn, statement of particulars. Specific, spe.sif'āk, distinct, definite, an infallible remedy, a nostrum; specifical-ly, spe.sif'ākāl.ly.

Specific centre, -sēn'.ter, the original locus of a species from which it spreads as from a centre.

Specific character, -kūr'rak.ter, individuality.

Specific gravity, the ratio which the weight of any substance bears to the weight of an equal bulk of pure water.

Specific name, the name of the genus added to the name of the species.

Latin spēcificāre, spēcificus (species fictio[ficio]).

Specimen, spēs'ā.mēn, a sample, an instance.

Latin spēcimen (from spēcio, to behold), a part "shown" as a sample.

Specious, spē'shūs, plausible; specious-ly, specious-ness.

Latin spēciosus (v. spēcio, to behold), commended to the sight.

Speck, a spot, a stain, to spot; specked (1 syl.), speck'-ing.

Speckle, spēk'k'l, a small spot, to mark with spots; speckled, spēk'k'ld, variegated, spotted; speckling, spēk'k'ling, Old English specca, a speck or spot.

Spectacle, spēk'.tā.k'l, a sight, a pageant, a gazing-stock.

Spectacles, spēk'.tā.k'lz, glasses mounted on a frame and worn astride the nose to assist the sight; spectacted, spēk'.tā.k'ld, furnished with spectacles.

Spectacular, spēk.tāk'kū.lar, adj. of spectacle; spectacullarly, spēk.tāk'kū.lar.ly. (Latin spectāculum.)

Spectator, spēk.tā'tor (Rule xxxvii.), fem. specta'tress, an observer, a looker on. (Latin spectātor.)

Spectre, spēk't'r, an apparition; spectral, spēk'.trāl, adj.

Spectrum, plu. spectra, spēk'.trum, plu. spēk'.trah, the image of an object seen after the eyes are closed, an image of some luminous ray thrown on a screen, after refraction by a prism or prisms.

Solar spectrum, the image of a sunbeam cast on a screen after refraction by a prism or prisms.

Spectrum analysis, -a.nāl'ā.sīs, the art of ascertaining the character of luminous or burning substances by causing a ray therefrom, after passing through a prism, to be thrown on a screen.

As each substance has its own characteristic "lines," its nature can be easily read from the shadow on the screen.

Spectro-logy, spēk.trāl'.ō.djy, the science of chemical analysis by spectra after volatilisation.

Spectro-scope, spĕk'.tro.skōpe, an instrument to determine the composition of bodies from their spectra.

Except in phanta-scope, tele-scope, peri-scope, polaris-scope, and poly-scope, the vowel before -scope is always -o-.

Latin spectrum, an apparition, the visible form of anything.

Speculate, spĕk'kū.late, to adventure in hazardous undertakings under hopes of making large profits; speculat-ed (Rule xxxvi.), spĕk'kū.lā.ted; speculat-ing, spĕk'kū.lā.ting; speculat-or, spĕk'kū.lā.tor.

Speculation, spĕk'kū.lay''.shŭn; spec'ulative, -kū.lā.tiv; speculative-ly, spĕk'kū.lā.tiv.ly; speculatory, -kū.lā.t'ry.

Latin speculātor, spĕculātorius, spĕculātio, v. spĕculāri.

Speculum, plu. specula, spĕk'kū.lŭm, plu. spĕk'kū.lah, a metallic reflector, a medical instrument.

Speculum metal, -mĕt'l, an alloy of copper and tin with a little arsenic. Specular iron, spĕk'kū.lar i.ŏn.

Latin spĕcŭlum, plu. spĕcŭla, a mirror (spĕcto, to behold).

Speech, language, an oration, the faculty of speaking; speech-less, speech'less-ness, speech'less-ly, speech-maker.

Speechify, speech'.i.fy, to make a speech; speechifies, speech'.i.fize; speechified, speech'.i.fide (Rule xi.); speech'ify-ing. Speechification, speech'.i.fi.kay''.shŭn.

Speak, speek, to express by speech; (past) spōke (1 syl.), (past part.) spoken, spō'.k'n; speaking, speek'-ing.

Old English spæc, v. spæc[an]; or spræc, v. spræc[an], past spræc, past part. sprocen; spræca, a speaker.

(It is to be regretted that the same vowels have not been employed in speech and speak, as they were originally.)

Speed, haste, to hasten, to fare; (past and past part.) spĕd; speed'-ing, speed'-y, speed'i-ness (Rule xi.), speed'i-ly.

I wish you God's speed, a corruption of ...good speed.

God speed you, good speed [be] to you!

Speedwell, a species of plant (genus veron'ica).

Old English spēd, v. spēd[an], past spēde, past part. spēded or spēdan, &c.; spēdig speedy, spēdiglic, spēdignes.

Spell, a turn, a job, a charm, to charm by magic, to analyse a word 'into letters; (past) spĕlt, (past part.) spĕlt, spell'-ing. Spelling-book.

Spell'-bound, made powerless by magic.

"Spell" (a turn or bout), Germ. spiel, a game [of cards, bowls, &c.]

"Spell" (lettering words), Old English spell, spell-bóc a history: v. spell[ian], past spellode, past part. spellod. -spel (postfix), history: as go'-spel, good history or God's history.

Spelt, German wheat. (Old English spelt.)

Spelter, spĕl'.ter, zinc unrefined. (German spiauter.)

Spēn'cer, a short over-jacket.

Named from Earl Spencer [Geo. John], who wore such a dress.

Spend, to lay out money, to waste, to squander, to exhaust;
(past) spēnt, (past part.) spēnt; spend'-ing, spend'-er.

Spent ball, a ball from a fire-arm exhausted by the distance which it has traversed.

Spend'-thrift (not spen-thrift), a prodigal.

Old English spend[an], past spende, past part. spēnt.

"Spend-thrift." Thrift is the noun of the Danish v. trives, to prosper. "Spend-thrift" is one who spends thrivings or savings.

Sperm, animal semen.

Sperm oil, oil obtained from the sperm whale.

Spermaceti (not spermicetti), sper' ma.sēt' .ĭ, a fatty substance obtained from the sperm whale.

Spermatic, sper.măt' .ĭk, adj. of sperm; spermatical, .ĭ.kăl.

Spermato-logy, sper' ma.tōl' .o.djy, a treatise on "sperm."

Spermato-phorous, sper' ma.tōf' .ō.rŭs, sperm-producing or sperm-bearing. Sper'mo-derm, the covering of seed.

Gk. sperma, seed, germ of anything (v. speiro, to sow); Lat. sperma.

"Spermaceti," Latin sperma ceti, sperm of a whale.

"Spermatology," "Spermatophorous," Gk. sperma gen. spermatos logos, a treatise about sperm; spermatosphērō, I produce sperm.

"Spermo-derm" (the covering of seed), Greek spermo-, derma skin.

Spermo- for spermat- is very objectionable.

Spew, to vomit; spewed, spewd; spew'-ing, spew'-er.

Old English sptw[an], past spaw, past part. spiwen.

Sphere, sfeer. Glōbe (1 syl.) Globule, glōb' būle. Orb. Ball.

Sphere, a poetic and scientific word for globe.

Globe, a solid sphere or ball, this earth. (Latin glōbus.)

Globule, a little globe (-ule, dim. Latin glōbŭlus.)

Orb, a circle, hence the disc of a planet, hence a planet.

Latin orbis, a wheel or anything circular.

Ball, a round mass: as a ball of cotton, a cricket ball.

German ball; Latin pila, some balls are not globes.

Spherical, sfer' rĭ' .k'l; spher'-ical-ly, spher'-ical-ness.

Sphericity, sfer' rĭs' .ĭ.ty, rotundity. Sphericle, sfer' rĭ' .k'l.

Spherics, sfer' rĭks (in Geom.), mathematical problems based on the sphere considered as a geometrical body. Spherical angle. Spherical geometry. Spherical trigonometry.

Music of the spheres, as music depends on the rapidity of vibrations, Pythag'oras supposed that sounds accompany the movements of the planets.

Sphero-graph, sfer' rō.grăf, an instrument for the practical application of spherics to navigation.

Spheroid, sfēr'roid, an imperfect sphere; spheroid'-al, spheroid'al-ly. Oblate spheroid, a flattened sphere.

Spheroid-icity, sfēr'roi.dis'ī.ty, a spheroidal state.

Sphero-meter, sfēr'röm'.ē.ter, an instrument for measuring small curves as the curve of optical glasses.

Spherule, sfēr'rūle, a little sphere. (-ule diminutive.)

Latin sphæra, sphæralis, sphæriticus, sphærola; Greek sphaira.

Sphinx, sfīnks, one who propounds a riddle.

The Theban sphinx propounded riddles to travellers and tore to pieces those who failed to solve them. (Edipus [ē.dī.pus], who solved the famous riddle, has become a synonym for one who guesses a mysterious question.

The Egyptian sphinxes are represented as lions couchant, with human heads and breasts.

Latin sphinx; Greek sphigx (v. sphiggo, to throttle), the throttler.

Spicate, spī.kāte (in Bot.), arranged in a spike like an ear of corn. (Latin spica, an ear of corn; spicātus.)

Spice (1 syl.), an aromatic vegetable used for seasoning food, to season with spice; spiced (1 syl.); spic-ing (Rule xix.), spī.sing; spic-y, spī.sy; spici-ly, spī.sī.ly (Rule xi.); spī-ci-ness. Spic-er, spī.ser, a dealer in spices.

Spicery, spī.sē.ry, all sorts of spices, a dépôt for spices.

Fr. épice, épices, épicerie, "du latin species (espèce) nom sous lequel on désigna d'abord les diverses espèces de drogues."

Spices were first sold by chandlers, who combined the trades of grocer, apothecary, and druggist, but in the middle of the 18th century the trades were separated. In France a grocer is still called a spicer (épicier), and his goods spicery (épicerie).

Spick and span [new], quite new, bright and shining.

First applied to cloth just taken off the spikes (hooks) and spannans (stretchers). As we have "spink-spank new" also, probably "spick" is a corruption of the Anglo-Saxon v. spinc[an], to emit sparks, so that "spick" [new] is really bran-new (q.v.), and "spick span new" means new burnt or sparkling, and new span or spun, the cloth is new and the metal ornaments are new.

Spicula, spī.kū.lah (in Bot.), a little spike; spī'cular (adj.)

Spiculate, spī.kū.late, covered with fine-pointed fleshy "spikes," having a spike composed of several smaller ones.

Spicule, spī.kūle, a minute point. (-ule diminutive.)

Spiculum, plu. spicula, spī.kū.lūm, plu. spī.kū.lah, a small piece of bone or other hard matter; (in Zool.), minute, needle-shaped silicious or calcareous particles embedded in sponges, &c. (Latin spicūlum, plu. spicūla.)

Spider, spī.der, an insect; spidery, spī.de.ry, like a spider.

Danish spind, a web; v. spinde, to spin; spindelvær, a cobweb.

Spigot, spġg'öt, a peg for the vent-hole of a cask.

Welsh yspigawd, a spigot; v. yspigo, to spike; yspig, a spike.

Spike (1 syl.), an ear of corn, the seedy flower of barley, a rod of wood or iron for "nailing," to fasten with a spike; spiked, spikt; spik-ing (Rule xix.), spi'-king; spik-er, spi'.ker; spik-y, spi'.ky. Spike'-let, a little spike.

Old English spicyng; Latin spica, an ear of corn, a spike.

Spikenard, spike'.nard, the "spike" or ear of the plant nardus which is highly aromatic, the plant itself, its oil.

Latin spica nardi (Adrianus Junius).

Spill, a vent-peg, a small roll for lighting lamps, &c., a fall, to shed, to let [something] fall over, to overthrow; (past and past part.) spilt, spill'-ing, spill'-er. Spilling-line, a rope used for "spilling" a sail. To spill a sail, to shake the wind out by bracing the sail.

"Spill" (a vent peg) is often called a spile peg, German speiler a skewer, spille a pin; Irish spile; Scotch spyle.

"Spill" (for lighting a candle), Old English speld, a torch.

"Spill" (to drop over), Old Eng. spill[an], past spillde, p. p. spilled.

Spin, to twist, to cause to whirl round; (past) spān, (obsolete) spān, (past part.) spūn, spinn'-ing (Rule i.), spinn'-er.

Spinneret, spin'.ĕrĕt, the spinning organ of insects.

Spinster, spin'.ster, a maiden, a woman who has never been married. Widow, a woman who has lost her husband.

Spinning jenny, a spinning machine ("jenny" is engine with dim. 'gennie). Spinning mill.

To spin a yarn, to tell a tale. To spin out, to protract.

Old English spinn[an], past span, past part. spinnen.

Spinach, spin'.idge, a vegetable; spinaceous, spin.ă'shŭs.

Latin spinācea; Italian spinace; Spanish espinaca.

"Spinage" for spinach is a corruption to be avoided.

Spinal, spi'nāl, pertaining to the spine. (See Spine.)

Spindle, spin'.d'l, the pin or rod used in hand-spinning, long and thin, as spindle-shanks, having long thin legs.

Spindle-half, spin'.d'l ha[r]f, the female line.

The male line is called the spear-half.

Spindle-side, descent from the mother.

Spear-side, descent from the father.

Old English spindel; Danish spindel (the older and better spelling).

Spine (1 syl.), the back-bone or ver'tēbral column, a spike.

Spin-y, spi'.ny, full of thorns; spi'ni-ness (Rule xi.)

Spinal, spi'.nal, adj. of spine; spinal column, -kōl'ŭm.

Spinescent, spi'nēs'sĕnt (in Bot.), terminating in a spine, tapering to a leafless point. Spinous, spi'.nŭs, full of spines.

Spinule, spī'nūle, a minute spine. Spinulose, spī'nū.lūse, full of minute spines. Spinulous, spī'nu.lūs. Spinal cord, the spinal marrow.

Spinal marrow, the "marrow" of the backbone.

Canā'lis Spinā'lis, canal' for the spinal cord.

Spinal chord. As we use "chord" for a musical combination of sounds, it is better to write spinal cord than spinal chord, although ch- is more strictly correct. (Lat. chorda, Gk. chordē.)

Latin spina the backbone, spinālis, spinōsus, spinūla.

Spinet, spī.nēt', a sort of harpsichord. (Italian spinetta.)

Spiniferous, spī.nīf'.ĕ.rūs, bearing or producing thorns.

Spiniferites, spī.nīf'.ĕ.rites (in Geol.), minute spherical bodies beset with spines (found in the chalk and flint).

Latin spinifer (spina gen. spinæ fēro. The old genitive was spinat, contracted into spinī). Thus we have terri-genus, earth-born, &c.

Spink-spank [new], same as spick and span new (which see).

Old English spine[an], to emit sparks.

Spinozism, spī.nō'.zīzm, the tenets of Benedict de Spino'za.

Spinoza taught that God is not only the creator but also the substance of all created things. In a word that whatever is is God.

Spinster, a maiden, one whose occupation is spinning.

-ster is of all genders, and it is a mistake to suppose that words with this ending indicate the female sex, and therefore that kempster, webster, dryster, baxter, salster, &c., were originally female occupations. The affix -ster is found with nouns of all genders, and denotes "skill derived from practice," so that spinster means one "skilled in spinning from practice"; webster, one "skilled in weaving from practice." Bosworth, in his Ang.-Sax. Dict., says: "-ster [stēre, direction] as a termination to nouns denotes direction, guidance." It is rarely, if ever, a contraction of the female suffix -estre, -istrc, -stre, Norman-French -ess.

Robert of Brunne uses sangster for a male singer; Wicliffe uses webbestere as a masculine, and the Elizabethan writers have drugster, hackster (a swordsman), seedster (a sower), teamster, throwster, rhymester, whipster, &c., all masculine.

Spiracle, spī' rŭ.k'l, a breathing-pore, a very minute passage through which air passes.

Latin spirāculum, a breathing hole (spirāre, to breathe).

Spire (1 syl.), a steeple tapering to a point, a blade of grass (generally called a speer of grass); spir-y, spī'.ry.

Spiral, spī'.rŭl, winding like a screw; spiral-ly.

Latin spira, a coil; Greek speira; French spirale.

Spirit, spī[r]rīt, an intelligent being without a material body, the vital "imāgo" of the human body, energy and courage, essence, a beverage obtained by distillation.

To spirit away, to allure away clandestinely; spirited, spī[r]rīt.ed, vivacious, animated; spirited-ly, spirited-ness, spirited away, spirit-ing away.

Spite (1 syl., not spight), a grudge, an ill-turn, to injure from ill-will; spited, spi'ted (R. xxxvi.); spit-ing (R. xix.), spi'ting (Spit makes (past) spitt-ed, (part.) spitt-ing); spite'-ful (R. viii.), spiteful-ly, spiteful-ness.

In spite of, notwithstanding, in defiance of.

To owe [one] a spite, to entertain a grudge against another.
French dépit; Latin despicio supine despectum, to look down on.

Spittle sermon, a sermon preached formerly at the Spittle, in a pulpit erected for the purpose. Subsequently these sermons were preached at Christchurch (City), on Easter Monday and Tuesday. 'Spital or 'spittle, the place where the Knights Hospitallers had estates or residences, a charitable foundation for the care of the poor, hence Spitalfields (London), fields of the almshouses, founded in 1197, by Walter Brune and his wife Rosia.

Splanchno-, splānk'.no-, (Greek prefix), the viscera.

Splanchno-graphy, splānk.nōg'.rū.fy, an anatomical description of the viscera. (Greek splanchnon grapho.)

Splanchno-logy, splānk.nōl'.ō.djy, a description of the viscera. (Gk. splanchnon logos, a discourse on the viscera.)

Splash, a spurt of water, to bespatter; splashed (1 syl.), splash'-ing, splash'-y.

Splashers, guards placed over wheels. Splash-board or dash-board, a screen in front of a carriage.

German plütschern, to splash (pla'sch'), with initial s-.

Splatter, splāt'.ter. Splutter. Sputter. Spatter.

Splatter, to knock water about, to splash.

Splutter, to talk without enunciating distinctly.

Sputter, to spit in speaking, burning greenwood sputters.

Spatter, to bespatter or dash with dirty water.

Splattered, splāt'.terd; splatter-ing, splatter-er.

Splitter-splatter, the noise made by water splashed about. (A ricochet word of which we have many.)

Splatter-dash, an uproar. Splatter-dashers or Spatter-dashers, leggings to ward off splashes.

German plütschern, to splash (plat'scher'), with initial s-.

Splay-foot, a flat-foot; splay foot-ed, having a flat-foot.

Splay mouth, a wide mouth; splay-mouthed, having a...

Splay window, one of a V shape, the wide part opening outside to admit the greatest possible amount of light with the least possible exposure.

Contraction of displayed, spread. Latin dis plicare, to unfold.

Spleen, the milt, a spongy viscus near the large extremity of the stomach formerly supposed to be the seat of melancholy, ill-humour, sullenness; spleen-ful (Rule viii.); spleen'-ish, inclined to melancholy or ill-humour; spleen'-ish-ly, spleen'-ish-ness; spleen'-y.

Splenetic, splē.nēt'.ik, troubled with spleen.

Splenic, splē'.nik, adj. of spleen. Splenous, full of spleen.

Spleen-wort, a herb supposed to be a cure for spleen.

Splenitis, splē.nī.tis, inflammation of the spleen (-itis denotes inflammation: as carditis, pneumonitis, &c.)

Latin splēn, splēnētīcus, splēntīcus, splēnōsus; Greek splēn.

Splen'dent (applied to minerals), lustrous. (See Resplendent.)

Latin splendens genitive splendentis, shining bright.

Splen'did (not splended), brilliant, magnificent; splendid-ly.

Splendour, splēn'.d'r, magnificence, brilliancy.

Latin splendīdus, splendor, v. splendeo.

Splice (1 syl.), a piece joined on, to join together, to join two ropes together by interweaving their strands, to join wood or metal by overlapping the ends; spliced (1 syl.); splic-ing, splī'.sing. To get spliced, to get married (sailors' slang). To splice the main brace, to give out an extra glass of grog after unusual hard work.

Germ. splissen, die splissung; Dan. splidse or spledse, to splice.

Splint, a small thin piece of wood cut off from a larger; (in Surgery) a thin piece of wood to confine in its proper place a broken bone, to confine a broken bone with splints; splint'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), splint'-ing.

Splint'-er, a shiver, a thorn in the flesh, to cut off splints; splintered, splīn'.t'rd; splinter-ing. Splīn'tery.

Splinter-bar, the cross-bar of a coach which supports the springs. Splinter-proof, capable of resisting the splinters of bursting shells. (German splint.)

Split, a fissure, a crack, a breach, to rive, to break up; (past) split, (past part.) split, splitt'-ing (Rule i.), splitt'-er.

To split one's sides with laughing [or with laughter].

Danish split, v. splitte; German splittern, splitter a fragment.

Splutter. Sputter. Stutter.

Splutter, to speak as if the mouth were full of saliva; spluttered, splūt'.t'rd; splutter-ing, splutter-er.

Sputter, to scatter spittle in talking. A bad pen sputters ink over the paper; an apple sputters in roasting, green wood sputters while it is burning.

Stutter, to stammer, to repeat parts of words out of a difficulty in uttering the entire word.

Splitter-splatter (a ricochet word of which we have many).

A corruption of sputter, Latin spūto to spit often, sputum spittle.

Spoil, spoyl, plunder, to plunder, to destroy, to waste; (past) spoilt, (past part.) spoilt, spoil'-ing, spoil'-er.

Old English spill(an), past spillde, past part. spilled spilt.

"Spoil" (plunder), Latin spōliāre, spōlium plunder.

Spōke (1 syl.), a bar of a wheel reaching from nave to felly, a rung of a ladder. Spoke-shave, a plane for dressing spokes or curved wood-work. (Old English spāca.)

Spokesman, plu. spokesmen, one who speaks for a deputation, &c. (See speak, past spoke, past part. spoken.)

Spoliate, spō'.li.ate (not spoil-i.ate), to pillage, to plunder; spoliat-ed, spō'.li.ā.ted (Rule xxxvi.); spoliat-ing, spō'.li.ā.ting (Rule xix.); spoliat-or (Rule xxxvii.)

Spoliation, spō' li.ā''.shūn. Spoliatory, spō'.li.ā.t'ry.

Latin spōliatio, spōliator, spōliāre, spōlium spoil, plunder.

Spondee, spōn.dee', two long syllables or vowels composing a poetic "foot" [— —]; spondaic, spōn.dāy'ik, adj. of spondee. (Latin spondēus; Greek spondeiōs.)

"Spondaic" is not correctly formed: it should be spondiac, Latin spondiācus. The Greek word is not spondaios, nor even spondaios.

Sponge, spūnge, the skeleton of a marine protozōa used for domestic purposes, dough with a ferment, to wipe or bathe with a sponge; sponged, spūngd; spong'-ing (Rule xix.), spūn'.ging; spong-y, spūn'.djy; spongi-ness (Rule xi.), spūn'.djī.ness. Sponge-cake, a light sweet cake.

Sponging-house, the house of a prison-warder where debtors were at one time lodged and fleeced.

Sponging on one's friends, overtaxing hospitality.

To set a sponge, to set a mass of dough (mixed with yeast) in a favourable place for its fermentation.

Spongiform, spūn'.djī.form, soft and porous.

Old English sponge or spinge; Latin spongia; Greek spoggos.

Sponsor (Rule xxxvii.), spōn'.sor, a godfather or godmother, a surety; sponsorial, spōn.sūr'.ri.āl, adj. of sponsor.

Sponsor-ship (-ship, office, rank of). Spon'sal.

Latin sponsor, a surety; sponsālis, pertaining to marriage, &c.

Spontaneous, spōn.tay'.nē.ūs, unsuggested, from impulse, of itself and without external aid; sponta'neous-ly, sponta'neous-ness. Spontaneity, spōn'.tā.nē''.ty.

Spontaneous combustion, combustion generated per se.

Spontaneous generation, the generation of animal life without any known or visible means.

Lat. spontāneus (sponte, of oneself); Fr. spontanéité, spontané.

Spool, a reed on which yarn is wound in order to slake it and wind it on the beam. Quill (smaller than a spool) on which yarn is wound for the shuttle. To spool, to wind on a spool; spooled (1 syl.), spool'-ing.

Germ. spule, a spool or bobbin; Dan. spole. "Quill," Germ. kiel.

Spoon, a domestic instrument. Gravy-spoon, a spoon with a long handle and large bowl to serve out gravy:

Vegetable spoon, a large spoon for serving vegetables.

Table spoon, a smaller spoon for eating soup, &c.

Dessert spoon, a still smaller spoon for eating puddings, &c.

Tea-spoon, a small spoon for stirring tea, &c.

If the bowl is deep and large the spoon is called a ladle.

Mustard spoon; salt-spoon; marrow-spoon, a long narrow spoon for extracting marrow from a marrow-bone.

Medical spoon, a spoon for feeding patients when recumbent.

A spoon, knife, and fork (laid on a table for the personal use of an individual) we call a cover (French couvert).

The wide hollow part of a spoon is the bowl (bōle, not bōwl to rhyme with hōwl).

Apostle spoon, a spoon with the figure of an apostle at the end of the handle, in former times given at a christening by sponsors to their godchild.

Wooden spoon, (in the Univ. of Camb.) the last on the list of mathematical honours.

A tea-spoon, £5,000. A dessert-spoon, £10,000. A table-spoon, £15,000. A gravy-spoon, £20,000.

To spoon, (in rowing) to skim the surface with the oar; spooned (1 syl.), spoon-ing.

Spoon'-y, love-sick, foolishly fond; spoon'i-ly (Rule xi.)

Spoon'ful, plu. spoonfuls (not spoonsful), 2 or 3 "spoonfuls" means a spoonful repeated 2 or 3 times, but 2 or 3 "spoonsful" would mean 2 or 3 spoons all full.

Spoonbill, a wading bird with a bill like a spoon.

Spoon-drift. Spray. Surf.

Spoon-drift, water swept by the wind from the top of the waves and driven along the sea like a cloud of dust.

Spray, sprinklings from billows tossed about in all directions but not drifted like spoon-drift.

Surf, the foam of breakers, or billows breaking on the shore.

Spoon-meat or spoon-food, food eaten with a spoon, as broth, &c., in opposition to solid food.

Born with a silver spoon in one's mouth, born to good luck.

O. Eng. spón, a chip, hence a wooden spoon and a spoon generally.

"Wooden spoon." It is said that at one time the head honour-man was presented with a gold spoon, the last with a wooden spoon, and the rest with silver spoons, as their prix de mérite.

"Spoon" (foolishly fond), a sea-term. A ship is said to "spoon" when she is unable from the force of the wind to continue her course, and is therefore put about to drift in the direction of the gale.

"Spoon" (a sum of money). When Streatfield and Laurence, in 1860, were on the point of failing, an offer was made to accommodate them with £5,000, whereupon Laurence exclaimed "Come, come, that will never do! you are feeding me with a tea-spoon." The other terms are of later date.

"Spoon-drift," a corruption of spume-drift, foam-drift.

"Born with a silver spoon in the mouth," in allusion to the gift of a silver-spoon as a prix de mérite and at christenings. The lucky person gets the silver spoon as a gift, and needs not to earn it.

Spoor, the trail of an animal pursued as game. (O. Eng. spór.)

Sporadic, Epidemic, Endemic, Contagious [diseases].

Sporadic disease, spō.răd'ik, one which breaks out here and there promiscuously. (Greek spōradikōs, scattered.)

Epidemic disease, ēp'i.dēm'ik..., one of a temporary character which attacks many persons at the same time.

Gk. epi-dēmos, upon the people, diffused throughout the nation.

Endemic disease, en.dēm'ik..., a temporary disease limited to a particular locality. (Gk. endēmos, at home, local.)

Contagious disease, kōn.tā'.djūs..., a disease communicated by contact. (Lat. contāgio; con tango, to touch together.)

Spōre (1 syl.), one of the minute grains of flowerless plants (as ferns and club mosses) which perform the functions of seeds. Sporule, *spō'rūle, minute spores (1 syl.)

"Spores" and "sporules" are almost synonymous words.

Sporidium, plu. sporidia, spō.rīd'ī.ŭm, plu. spō.rīd'ī.ah, the membranous case which contains the granules (2 syl.) of algæ which resemble sporules (2 syl.)

Sporocarp, spō'.rō.karp, the sac which contains the organs of reproduction in flowerless plants.

Sporophore, spō'.rō.for, the stalk which supports a spore.

Sporozoid, spō'.rō.zō'īd (not spō'.ro.zoid), a moving spore furnished with cilia or vibratile processes.

Gk. spōrōs, seed. "Sporule" (-ule, dim.) "Sporidium," Gk. spōrōs eidos, like spores. "Sporocarp," Gk. spōrōs karpōs, seed fruit.

"Sporophore," Gk. spōrōs phērō, I support or carry the spores.

"Sporozoid," Gk. spōrōs zōon eidos, spores resembling a living animal.

Sport, diversion, play, frolic, fishing, fowling, or hunting, to enjoy sport, to toy, to jest, to show off; sport'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), sport'-ing, sport'-ing-ly. Sport'-er, one who sports.

Sports'man, plu. sports'men, one who indulges in hunting, shooting, fishing, or fowling, &c.; sports'man-ship, skill in field-sports; sports'man-like, as a sportsman would act. Sport'ful (Rule viii.), sport'ful-ly; sport'ful-ness, merriment. Sportive, spôr'tiv; sport'ive-ly; ...ness.

Field sports, hunting, shooting, and coursing.

To sport one's oak, (in the Univ.) to shut the outer door of one's room to prevent intrusion.

Italian disporto now diporto, sport, diversion.

"To sport a door" is to show the door, so to "sport an equipage," to "sport a new hat," to "sport an egret," &c. Latin supporto, to support, to carry about, and hence to show.

Sporule, spôr'rûle, a minute spore. (See Spore.)

Spôt, a mark, a blemish, a locality, to make a spot, to mark; spött'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), spott'-ing (Rule i.)

Spot'-less, spot'-less-ly, spot'-less-ness. Spött'-y, full of spots, blemished with spots; spott'i-ness (Rule xi.)

Spotted fever, typhus fever accompanied with eruption.

To live on the spot, to reside in the locality.

Old English splot; Danish spætt, a spot or speckle, adj. spættet.

Spouse, spôwz, a wife or husband, one betrothed; (verb)

Espouse, ës.pôwz, to betroth; espoused (2 syl.), espous'-ing (Rule xix.); spousals, more often espousals, es.pôw'.zalz, betrothal, nuptials, marriage. Spousal, spôw'.zäl, nuptial.

Fr. espouse now épouse; Ital. sposa a wife, sposo a husband.

Spout, a tube or small channel for directing the out-pour of liquids, to throw off water forcibly, to speechify (word of contempt); spout'-ed, spout'-ing, spout'-er.

Dutch spuit; Old English spæt[an], to spit.

Sprain, a strain of some muscle or ligament accompanied with pain, to sprain; sprained (1 syl.), sprain'-ing.

French espreindre now épreindre, to strain, to wring.

Sprät, a small fish of the herring family. (German sprotte.)

Sprawl, to stretch one's limbs about; sprawled (1 syl.), sprawl'-ing, sprawl'-ing-ly, sprawl'-er. (Fris. sprawle.)

Spray, scattered foam, a twig, to splash or spurt; sprayed, spraid (Rule xiii.), spray'-ing. (See Spoon-drift.)

The pen sprays, the pen trips and spurts the ink about.

Italian sprazzo, a watering; v. sprazzare, to water.

"Spray" (a twig), Old English sprec or spranca, a sprig.

Spread, sprêd, (past) spread, (past part.) spread, to diffuse, to extend, to scatter over a surface; spread'-ing, spread'-er.

Old English spræd[an], past spræde, past part. spræded.

Spree, a merry frolic, a mischievous bit of fun.

French esprit, spirit. A "spree" is an outlet of high spirits.

Born with a silver spoon in one's mouth, born to good luck.

O. Eng. spón, a chip, hence a wooden spoon and a spoon generally.

"Wooden spoon." It is said that at one time the head honour-man was presented with a gold spoon, the last with a wooden spoon, and the rest with silver spoons, as their prix de mérite.

"Spoon" (foolishly fond), a sea-term. A ship is said to "spoon" when she is unable from the force of the wind to continue her course, and is therefore put about to drift in the direction of the gale.

"Spoon" (a sum of money). When Streatfield and Laurence, in 1860, were on the point of falling, an offer was made to accommodate them with £5,000, whereupon Laurence exclaimed "Come, come, that will never do! you are feeding me with a tea-spoon." The other terms are of later date.

"Spoon-drift," a corruption of spume-drift, foam-drift.

"Born with a silver spoon in the mouth," in allusion to the gift of a silver-spoon as a prix de mérite and at christenings. The lucky person gets the silver spoon as a gift, and needs not to earn it.

Spoor, the trail of an animal pursued as game. (O. Eng. spór.)

Sporadic, Epidemic, Endemic, Contagious [diseases].

Sporadic disease, spō.răd'ik, one which breaks out here and there promiscuously. (Greek spōradikōs, scattered.)

Epidemic disease, ēp'ī.dēm'ik..., one of a temporary character which attacks many persons at the same time.

Gk. epi-dēmos, upon the people, diffused throughout the nation.

Endemic disease, en.dēm'ik..., a temporary disease limited to a particular locality. (Gk. endēmos, at home, local.)

Contagious disease, kōn.tā'.djūs..., a disease communicated by contact. (Lat. contūgio; con tango, to touch together.)

Spōre (1 syl.), one of the minute grains of flowerless plants (as ferns and club mosses) which perform the functions of seeds. Sporule, spō'rūle, minute spores (1 syl.)

"Spores" and "sporules" are almost synonymous words.

Sporidium, plu. sporidia, spō.rīd'ī.ŭm, plu. spō.rīd'ī.ah, the membranous case which contains the granules (2 syl.) of algæ which resemble sporules (2 syl.)

Sporocarp, spō'.rō.karp, the sac which contains the organs of reproduction in flowerless plants.

Sporophore, spō'.rō.for, the stalk which supports a spore.

Sporozoid, spō'.rō.zō'īd (not spō'.ro.zoid), a moving spore furnished with cilia or vibratile processes.

Gk. spōrōs, seed. "Sporule" (-ule, dim.) "Sporidium," Gk. spōrōs eidos, like spores. "Sporocarp," Gk. spōrōs karpōs, seed fruit.

"Sporophore," Gk. spōrōs phērō, I support or carry the spores.

"Sporozoid," Gk. spōrōs zōon eidos, spores resembling a living animal.

Sport, diversion, play, frolic, fishing, fowling, or hunting, to enjoy sport, to toy, to jest, to show off; sport'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), sport'-ing, sport'-ing-ly. Sport'-er, one who sports.

Sports'man, plu. sports'men, one who indulges in hunting, shooting, fishing, or fowling, &c.; sports'man-ship, skill in field-sports; sports'man-like, as a sportsman would act. Sport'ful (Rule viii.), sport'ful-ly; sport'ful-ness, merriment. Sportive, spōr'tiv; sport'ive-ly; ...ness.

Field sports, hunting, shooting, and coursing.

To sport one's oak, (in the Univ.) to shut the outer door of one's room to prevent intrusion.

Italian disporto now diporto, sport, diversion.

"To sport a door" is to show the door, so to "sport an equipage," to "sport a new hat," to "sport an ægro'tat," &c. Latin supporto, to support, to carry about, and hence to show.

Sporule, spōr'rule, a minute spore. (See Spore.)

Spōt, a mark, a blemish, a locality, to make a spot, to mark; spōtt'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), spott'-ing (Rule i.)

Spot'-less, spot'-less-ly, spot'-less-ness. Spōtt'-y, full of spots, blemished with spots; spott'i-ness (Rule xi.)

Spotted fever, typhus fever accompanied with eruption.

To live on the spot, to reside in the locality.

Old English splot; Danish spætt, a spot or speckle, adj. spættet.

Spouse, spōuz, a wife or husband, one betrothed; (verb)

Espouse, ēs.pōuz', to betroth; espoused (2 syl.), espous'-ing (Rule xix.); spousals, more often espousals, ēs.pōw'.zālz, betrothal, nuptials, marriage. Spousal, spōw'.zāl, nuptial.

Fr. épouse now épouse; Ital. sposa a wife, sposo a husband.

Spout, a tube or small channel for directing the out-pour of liquids, to throw off water forcibly, to speechify (word of contempt); spout'-ed, spout'-ing, spout'-er.

Dutch spuit; Old English spāt[an], to spit.

Sprain, a strain of some muscle or ligament accompanied with pain, to sprain; sprained (1 syl.), sprain'-ing.

French espreindre now épreindre, to strain, to wring.

Sprāt, a small fish of the herring family. (German sprotte.)

Sprawl, to stretch one's limbs about; sprawled (1 syl.), sprawl'-ing, sprawl'-ing-ly, sprawl'-er. (Fris. sprawle.)

Spray, scattered foam, a twig, to splash or spurt; sprayed, spraid (Rule xiii.), spray'-ing. (See Spoon-drift.)

The pen sprays, the pen trips and spurts the ink about.

Italian sprazzo, a watering; v. sprazzare, to water.

"Spray" (a twig), Old English sprec or spranca, a sprig.

Spread, sprēd, (past) spread, (past part.) spread, to diffuse, to extend, to scatter over a surface; spread'-ing, spread'-er.

Old English spræd[an], past spræde, past part. spræded.

Spree, a merry frolic, a mischievous bit of fun.

French esprit, spirit. A "spree" is an outlet of high spirits.

Sprig, a small shoot or twig, a scion (as a sprig of nobility, &c.), to adorn with sprigs; sprigged (1 syl.), sprigg'-ing (R. i.), sprigg'-y. (Old Eng. sprec, a twig or small branch.)

Spright (better sprite, 1 syl., a corrupt contraction of spirit, sp'rit), a spirit, a hobgoblin, a ghost.

(The following retain -gh- always.)

Spright-ly, sprite'-ly, lively; spright'li-ness (Rule xi.)

"Spirit," Latin spīritus (v. spīro, to breathe). So "ghost" is the Anglo-Saxon gast, the breath; "gust" is from the same word.

Spring, one of the four seasons (Winter, Spring, Summer, and Autumn), a bound, elasticity, an elastic body, a fountain, the lower part of an arch, the early part, to jump, to arise, to burst, to proceed from; (past) sprang, (past part.) sprung, spring'-ing. Spring'-y, elastic, spongy, full of springs; spring'i-ness (Rule xi.), spring'-er.

Spring-balance. Spring-board. Spring-gun.

Spring-head, the source of a fountain or spring.

Spring-tide, a high tide at the time of new and full moon. The low tides at the two quarters are called Neap tides.

Spring-time. Spring water. Spring wheat, -weet.

Intermittent spring, one not always active.

Mineral spring, one impregnated with mineral substances.

Oil-spring, oil proceeding from the interior of the earth.

To spring a leak, -leek, said of a ship when one or more of its planks start and let in water.

To spring a mast, when a mast starts from its fastenings.

To spring a mine, to cause it to explode.

To spring a rattle, to use it as an alarm.

To spring at, to leap towards. To spring on or upon, to assault or rush upon one suddenly.

Old English sprinc[an], past spranc, past part. sprync; or spring[an], past sprung, past part. sprungen;

n. spring; spring wurt, spring-wort. (See Springe.)

We have no native word for autumn, like the Germans our forefathers recognised only three seasons.

Springe, sprinje, a snare for birds, &c. Spring (see above).

Springe, (past) springed (1 syl.), springe-ing; but

Spring, (past) sprang, (past part.) sprung, spring-ing.

Similarly we have Dye, dyed, dye-ing (to tinge); but die, died, dy-ing (to expire).

Singe, singed, singe-ing (to burn); but sing, (past) sang, (past part.) sung, sing-ing.

Swing, swung, swing-ing; but [swinge, swinged, swinge-ing].

German sprengel, a springe or snare.

Sprinkle, sprīn'.k'l, to scatter, to asperse; sprinkled, sprīn'.k'ld; sprink'ling, a small scattered number; sprink'ler, &c.

Old English spræncan, sprængan, or sprengan, past sprengde, past part. sprenged; Dutch sprengelen; German sprengen.

Sprit, a small boom or gaff used with some sails in small boats. A sprit sail, a sprit furnished with its sail. Bow-sprit, bo'-sprit, a large strong spar standing from the bows of a vessel. Sprit-sail yard, a yard lashed across the bow-sprit for the guys of the jib and flying jib-boom.

Old English spreot or sprit, a spear, a sprit.

Sprite (1 syl.), a ghost, a hobgoblin, an imp.

A corrupt contraction of spirit [sp'rit]. (See Spright.)

Sprod. Smolt. Parr. Mort. Sprag. Grilse, young salmon.

Sprag, the fry so long as it retains its brown marks, a samlet.

Smolt, the fry a little more than a year old, when it has just acquired its silver scales.

Sprod, salmon more than one year old, but less than two.

Parr, the salmon in its second year.

Grilse, a salmon not fully grown, under three years old.

Mort, the salmon in its third year.

Sprout, the shoot or bud of a plant, to bud, to germinate; sprout'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), sprout'-ing. Sprouts, young coleworts. Brussels sprouts, coleworts. (The best seed is obtained from Belgium.)

Old English spreot, sprit, or sprote, v. sprit[an] or spritt[an].

Spruce (1 syl.), trim, dressed with smartness and neatness, to make oneself spruce; spruced (1 syl.); spruc-ing, sprū'.sing; spruce'-ly, spruce'-ness. To spruce up.

To spruce up a bit, to make oneself a little more trim.

Spruce, a species of fir-tree.

Spruce-beer, a liquor flavoured with spruce-fir.

"Spruce-beer," Germ. sprossen-bier. "Spruce-fir," Span. pruche.

Spry, smart, nimble, alert. (Corruption of sprightly.)

Spūd, a narrow spade for getting out weeds, a short dumpy person. (Contracted diminutive of spade.)

Spūme (1 syl.), foam, to froth or fume; spūmed (1 syl.); spum-ing (Rule xix.), spū'.ming; spum-y, spū'.my.

Spumous, spū'.mūs. Spumescence, spū.mēs'.sense, frothiness. Spumiferous, spū.mīf'.ĕ.rūs.

Latin spūma, foam; spūmōsus, spūmīfērus, v. spūmāre.

Spūn, past and past part. of spin. Spun-yarn.

Old English spinn[an], past spann, past part. spunnen.

Spur, an instrument worn on the heel of boots for urging horses to greater speed, a stimulus, a horny goad in the leg of certain birds, the leading root of a tree, a snag, a mountain branching off from the main range, to spur; spurred (1 syl.), spurr'-ing (Rule i.) Spur-wheel. Spur-less.

Old English spora, sporu, spor, or spura; spor-lether, spur-leather.

Spurge (1 syl.), a plant. Spurge-flax, Spurge-laurel, Spurge-olive, Spurge-wort, -wert, all plants.

French épurge (the Euphorbia), purgative plants. The spurge-laurel and spurge-olive are not Euphorbias but Daphnes.

Spurious, spū'ri.ŭs, not genuine, counterfeit; spurious-ly, spurious-ness. (Latin spurius, supposititious.)

Spurn, to reject with disdain, to kick away; spurned (1 syl.), spurn'-ing, spurn'-er. Spurn-water (of a ship).

Old Eng. spurn[an] or speorn[an], past spéarn, past part. spornen.

Spurt, a jet, a sudden and short effort, a splash, to spurt; spurt'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), spurt'-ing, spurt'-er.

Spurtle, spur'.t'l, to well; spurtled, spur'.t'ld; spurtling.

"Spurt" is often spelt spirt, but the Swedish word is spruta, the Danish sprude, sprudle. We have transposed the ru.

Sput'ter. Splut'ter. Stat'ter. Spat'ter.

Sputter, to sprinkle saliva from the mouth in speaking (deal in burning and apples in roasting sputter).

Sphutter, to talk indistinctly and thickly as if the tongue were too long or the mouth full of spittle.

Stutter, to stammer, to repeat parts of words from a difficulty in changing the muscular action of the mouth.

Spatter, to scatter dirty water, to defile, to defame.

"Sputter," Latin spūto, to spit often; spūtum, spittle.

"Stutter," German stottern, stotterer; stotterig, stuttering.

Spy, a prying person, one sent to examine [a country] clandestinely and report thereon to its enemy, to discover at a distance, to inspect clandestinely, to play the spy.

Spy, plu. spies, spize. To spy, spies (3 p. sing.); spied, spide; spy'-ing. Spy-glass, a small telescope, an eye-glass.

Italian spia, v. spidre; Latin spécio, in-spécio to inspect.

Squab, skwŏb, a soft stuffed cushion, a dumpy person, an unfledged bird, fat or plump; squabb'-y (Rule i.)

Squab-pie, a pie made of young pigeons, a pie made of mutton, apples, and onions. (German quabbelig.)

Squabble, skwŏb.b'l, a petty quarrel, a wrangling, to jangle, to wrangle; squabbled, skwŏb'b'ld; squabbling, squabbler.

Probably a corrupt form of the Welsh cwergl, to wrangle, to quarrel.

Squad, skwod, part of a "company" of soldiers commanded by a sergeant or corporal. A "company" contains three or four squads and is under the rule of a captain. A "regiment" is under the rule of a colonel.

French escouade, corruption of escadre; Latin quadra, a square.

Squadron, skwōd'ron, strictly speaking a number of soldiers or ships drawn up in a square, but in ordinary parlance a "company" of cavalry consisting of 160 men, subdivided into two troops (80 men each); a detachment of warships; squadroned, skwōd'roned, formed into squadrons.

Ital. squadrone; Lat. quadra, that is, composed of four companies.

Squalid, skwōl'id, poverty-stricken, filthy; squalid-ly, squalid-ness. Squal-or, skwōl'lor (not skwāller).

Latin squālidus, squālor, v. squaleo.

Squall, skwawl, a sudden gust of wind, a loud fretful cry of a young child, to bellow, to scream from fretfulness; squalled (1 syl.), squall'-ing, squall'-er. A white squall, a sudden gust of wind without rain or clouds. A black squall, one in which the sky is overcast. A thick squall, one accompanied with sleet, hail, &c.

Look out for squalls, be on the watch for sudden gusts.

Dan. squaldre, to clamour. "Squall" (of wind), Welsh chawlu, to strew.

Squalor, skwōl'lor, the dirt, &c., of great poverty. (See Squalid.)

Squama, plu. squamæ, skwā'mah, plu. skwā'mee, a scale.

Squamous or squamose, skwā'mōce, covered with scales; squamigerous, skwā'midg'.ērūs, having scales.

Latin squāma plu. squāmæ, squāmeus, squāmōsus.

Squander, skwōn'der, to spend lavishly; squandered (2 syl.), squander-ing, squan'dering-ly, squander-er.

German [ver]schwender, a spendthrift; v. [ver]schwenden.

Square, skwair, a figure with four equal sides any two of which make a right angle, without overplus, well set, honest.

On the square, just, fair-dealing, to make a square, to adjust, to balance, to assume the attitude of one about to box; squared (1 syl.), squar'-ing (Rule xix.), squar'-er, square'-ly, square'-ness; squar'-ish, nearly square.

Square' measure, for measuring land, paving, roofing, tiling, plastering, and whatever else has surface only.

144 inches = 1 foot, 9 feet = 1 yard, 4848 yards long and 4840 yards broad = 1 acre of land.

In long measure used for measuring length only:

12 inches = 1 foot, 3 feet = 1 yard, 1760 yards = 1 mile.

N.B.—A mile of hedge and ditch is about an acre.

Square number, the product of a number multiplied by itself: thus 4 is the square of 2, 9 is the square of 3, &c.

Square root, (the contrary process) or that number which being multiplied by itself will produce the given number: thus 2 is the square root of 4, and 3 of 9. (The symbol of the former is a little 2, as 2^2 , 3^2 , a^2 ; and of the latter the mark ($\sqrt{}$) as: $\sqrt{4}$, $\sqrt{9}$, \sqrt{a} , &c.)

Square sail, a temporary sail set at the fore-mast of a sloop or schooner when going before the wind.

To square a yard, to bring it in square by the braces.

Yards are squared when they are horizontal and at right angles with the keel.

Square rigged, rigd, having the principal sails extended by yards instead of stays.

Square toes, -tōze, an old fashioned formal person.

Hollow square, a body of infantry drawn up in a square with a space in the middle for the staff officers.

Two square yards. Two yards square.

Two square yards, two spaces or surfaces each being a yard long and a yard broad.

Two yards square, $2 \times 2 = 4$ yards long and 4 broad.

All square, all right, all settled.

"Square" and "squama" are the only two examples in which squa- preserves the ordinary "a" sound. In all the other words it is pronounced like o: as squab, squabble, squad, squadron, squalid, squall, squander, squash, squat, and squaw.

French esquarré now carré; Italian squadra; Latin quadra.

"Square" (to prepare for boxing), Welsh cwer[yll], strife.

Squash, skwōsh, a kind of gourd, a sudden fall of a soft pulpy substance, to press into pulp; squashed (1 syl.), squash'-ing, squash'-y, squash'-i-ly. squash'-i-ness.

Squish-squash, the noise made by paddling over swampy ground (a ricochet word, Rule lxix.)

German quatschen, to squash; n. quetsche, squash.

"Squash" (a gourd), North American asq, plu. asquash.

Squat, skwōt, snug, sitting on the hams or heels, cowering, short and thick, the act of settling on new lands without a title, to cower, to stoop and lie close so as to evade detection, to settle as a squatter; squatt'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), squatt'-ing (Rule i.), squatt'-er.

Italian quatto, squatting; v. quattare, to cower.

Squaw, an American Indian woman or wife.

Squeak, skweek. Squeal, skweel. Squall, skwawl.

Squeak, a sharp shrill abrupt cry.

Squeal, a sharp shrill continuous cry.

Squall, the loud blubbering cry of a young child.

A penny trumpet squeaks, hogs squeal when they are caught and detained, children squall when hurt.

"Squeak," Welsh gwich, v. gwichian or gwichio.

"Squeal" and "squall," Danish squaller, clamour.

Squeamish, skweem'ish, over-fastidious, easily disgusted, qualmy; squeam'ish-ness, squeamish-ly.

Old English cwealm, pestilence; cwealmnes, pain, with -ish dim.

Squeeze (1 syl.), a hug, a compression, pressure, to press tightly; squeezed (1 syl.), squeez'-ing (Rule xix.), squeez'-er. Squeez'-able. To squeeze out. To squeeze through.

Old English cwys[an], past cwysde, past part. cwysed.

Squelch, a crush, to crush; squelched (1 syl.), squelch'-ing, squelch'-er. (Corruption of Old Eng. cwel[an], to kill.)

Squib, a fire-work, a witty electioneering handbill less scandalous than a lampoon. (Welsh cwip, a quip.)

Squill, a genus of plants, a sea-onion, &c., a crustacean, an insect. (Latin squilla, Greek skilla.)

Squint, an obliquity of vision, to look obliquely; squint'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), squint'-ing, squinting-ly, squint'er; squint'-eyed, malignant, evil-eyed.

Old English winc[ian], to wink; French guigner, "to leer."

Squire (1 syl.) for esquire, a complimentary title. The landed gentry are termed by peasants and tradesmen Squire [So and So] if they have no real title. On letters and on printed documents Esq. is added to the surname of the following gentlemen provided they have no title:

The younger sons of the nobility, officers of the royal court and household, counsellors, justices of the peace, sheriffs, gentlemen (below captain) who hold commissions in the army or navy, graduates of the university not Dr. nor Rev. By courtesy it is given to attorneys and solicitors, surgeons, merchants, bankers, large farmers, gentlemen living on their means, and all who have their name in the "Court Directory."

Squire-archy, skwī'rar.ky, country gentlemen collectively.

French esquyer now écuyer (Latin scutum, a shield), the shield-bearer of a mediæval knight.

Squirrel, skwī'rĕl, a small quadruped with a bushy tail.

French escureuil now écureuil; Greek skiouros (skia oura), an animal making a shade with its tail.

Squirt, a syringe, to throw water in a jet; squirt'-ed, squirt'-ing.

Squirting cucumber. (Welsh ysgwd, a jet.)

St., contraction for Street or Saint, plu. SS., saints. Sts., streets.

Stäb, a wound from a thrust, a secret injury, to stab; stabbed (1 syl.), stabb'-ing (Rule i.), stabb'-er. To stab at.

Stabat Mater [dolorō'sa], Stäb'.bat Mäb'.ter. The first words of a famous Latin hymn set to music by Pergolese, Haydn, Handel, Rossini, and others:

Stabat mater dolorosa,	Drowned in sorrow for her loss
Juxta crucem lacrimosa,	Stood the mother by the cross
Dum pendebat filius!	While her son hung crucified.

Usually ascribed to Jacopone de Todi, a Franciscan of the 13th century; but in the catalogue of the library of Burgundy, No. 13993, is the following: "Item fol. 77. Benedictus papa XII. composuit hanc orationem: Stabat Mater dolorosa iuxta crucem lacrimosa, &c. (16th cent.)"

Stable, stā'.b'l, a house for horses, strong, fixed, steady, durable; sta'ble-ness. Stability, stā.b'l' .s.ty.

Stabling, stā'.bling, accommodation for horses.

Stabled, stā'.b'ld, put into the stable. Stable-man, foreman of the stables; stable-boy, an ostler.

"Stable" (firm, &c.), French stable; Latin stābīlis, stābīlitas.

"Stable" (for horses), French étable now étale; Latin stābūlum.

Staccato, stāk.kāk'.to (in Mus.), each note to be sounded separately. (Italian staccato, v. staccare, to separate)

Stack, a large heap, to pile into a stack; stacked (1 syl.), stack'ing. Stack'yard, a space set apart for corn and other stacks. Stack of arms, arms piled into a kind of sheaf. (Welsh ystac, Danish stak.)

Stadium, plu. stadia, stā'.dī.ŭm, plu. stā'.dī.ah, a Roman measure = 125 paces, or 625 Roman feet, one-eighth of a Roman mile. A place for gymnastic contests.

Greek stádion, 600 Greek, but 606½ English feet, a race-course.

Stadtholder, stād'.hōld.er, formerly the chief magistrate of the united provinces of Holland. (Dutch stad houder.)

Staff, plu. stāves (1 syl.), a stick or club; but staff, plu. staffs, a body of officers, a body of employés.

A staff of clerks, a staff of reporters, a staff of employés; the stave of a ladder, a round or rung. Cross-staff.

Distaff has the plural distaffs. The plural in -ves is especially absurd as there is no v in Anglo-Saxon. The word is staf, plu. stafas (not staves). We have 60 words ending in -f, 12 of which change "f" into -ves to form the plural, and all but 2 of these 12 ("thief," thieves; "beef," beeves) end either in -af or -lf: as "leaf," leaves; "sheaf," sheaves; "loaf," loaves; "staff" (a stick), staves; "calf," calves; "half," halves; "elf," elves; "self," selves; "shelf," shelves; "wolf," wolves. There is one word in -lf ("gulf," gulfs) which does not change "f" into -ves.

Stäg, fem. hind, a red deer in its fifth year, an unrecognised share-broker, one who applies for an allotment of shares in a joint-stock company under the hope of selling out at a profit. Stag'gard, a stag four years old. Stag'-beetle. Stag'evil, lock-jaw in horses. Stag'-hound. Stag'-worm.

Stäge (1 syl.), the actors' platform in a theatre, a temporary flooring, one degree of elevation, a landing-quay, a resting-place in a journey, the distance from one halting-place to another. An old stager, an experienced worldly-wise old man. Staging, stā'.ging, a temporary flooring. Stage'-box, the box nearest the stage, sometimes directly over it. Stage'-coach, -kōtch, a coach which runs daily between two places. Stage'-play, stage'-player.

French estage now étage, a storey, hence "a floor."

Stagger, stäg'ger, to reel; stag'gered (2 syl.), stagger-ing, stag'gering-ly, stagger-er. The staggers, giddiness in horses and cattle. (Dutch staggeren.)

Stagirite, sta.dji'rite. Aristotle is called The Stagirite because he was born at Stagira, in Macedonia.

This word is almost always called Stagrite by English poets: as "Plato, the Stagrite, and Tully joined" (Thomson, "Summer"). "As if the Stagrite o'erlooked each line" (Pope, Ess. on Crit.) "And all the wisdom of the Stagrite" (Wordsworth).

Stagnate, stäg'näte, to cease to flow, to be without activity; stag'nät-ed, stag'nät-ing (Rule xix.) Stagnation, stäg.nay'shün. Stag'nant, stag'nant-ly, stag'nancy.

Latin stagnans genitive stagnantis, v. stagnäre, stagnum a pool. Varro derives it from the Greek stegnon, water-tight.

Staid, steady, not giddy. Stayed, of the v. stay.

Staid'-ly, staid'-ness. (The same word as stayed.)

This word is formed on the corrupt pattern of laid, paid, and said [sädd], for "layed," "payed," and "sayed."

Stain, stäne, a blot, a spot, a taint of guilt, disgrace, to stain, to dye; stained (1 syl.), stain'-ing, stain'-er, stain'-less.

Stained glass. Paper stainer. To stain with...

Welsh ystaen, stained; ystaeniad, a staining.

Stair, a step of a staircase. Stare, to gaze at.

Stair-case, a series of steps leading to an upper storey.

Below stairs, on the basement. Up-stairs, the upper rooms, one of the bed-rooms. A flight of stairs, an entire block from one landing to another.

The front of a step is called the "rise," the flat part is the tread, and the projecting edge of the tread is called a "nose."

"Stair," Old English stæger, v. stig(an) to climb, to ascend.

"Stare," Old English stār[ian], past stārode, past part. stārod.

Staith, stūth, a hithe, a landing-place for merchandise, a place where coals are shipped, the end of a line of rails laid on a stage. (Old English stæth, German gestade.)

Stäke (1 syl.), a large stick. Steak, stake, a collop of beef.

Stake, a post to which martyrs were fastened, hence to die at the stake to suffer martyrdom, a deposit made pending the result of a wager. To stake, staked (1 syl.); stāk'-ing. Stakeholder. At stake, in jeopardy.

"Stake" (a post), Old Eng. stæca. "Steak" (a collop), Old Eng. sticce a piece, a slice, or Norse steg a roast (a collop roasted).

Stalactite, sta.läk'tite. Stalagmite, sta.läg'mite.

Stalactite, spar in the form of icicles hanging from the roof of a cavern. Stalactic, sta.läk'tik, adj. of stalactite.

Stalagmite, spar in the form of icicles on the floor of a cavern. Stalag'mitic, adj. of stalagmite.

Stalactiform, sta.lăk.tŭ.form, like a stalactite in shape.

"Stalactite," Greek stălaktŭs, that which trickles in drops.

"Stalagmite," Greek stălagma, a drop (v. stălazo, to distil).

Stale (1 syl.), fad, hackneyed. Stail, a stock or handle.

To stale (as horses, &c.), staled (1 syl.), stăl'ing (R. xix.)

Stale'-ly; stale'-ness, vapidness, faddiness.

"Stale" (vapid), German stellen, to place or set. "Stale beer" is beer which has been set by [or drawn] too long.

"Stail" (a handle), Old English stela.

Stalk, stawk, a stem, a stately gait, to walk with strides; stalked (1 syl.), stalk'-ing, stalk'-er. Stalking-horse, a sham horse represented as grazing and pushed forward by fowlers who thus deluded their game and got within shooting distance, a sham, a mask to conceal some design.

Deer stalking, approaching deer warily and stealthily as fowlers approached game with a stalking horse.

Stalk'-y, full of stalks; stalk'i-ness, stalk'-less.

Old English stalc[an], past stælde, past part. stælcēd; stælcung.

"Stalk" (a stem), Danish stilk; Greek stēlēkŭs.

Stall, stawl, a compartment in a stable, a booth, a reserved seat in a theatre, the seat in a cathedral for one of its dignitaries, to put into a stall; stalled, stawld; stall'-ing.

Stall-age, stawl'lage, the right of erecting stalls at a fair, offal from a stable. Stall'-fed, fed in a stall with a view of making fat. A stalled ox, a fat ox.

Old English stal, steal, steall, or stæl, v. still[an] or styll[an].

Stallion, fem. mare, sire and dam of horses; foal, the offspring irrespective of sex. Colt, a male foal; filly, a fem. foal. Horse, a male or female irrespective of sex.

"Stallion," Welsh ystalwyn. "Mare," Old English mare or myre.

"Foal," Old English foła. "Colt," Old Eng. cott. "Filly," French filie; Latin filia, a daughter. "Horse," Old English hors.

Stalwart, stŏl'wert, brawny and tall, brave and strong.

O. Eng. stæl-wyrth, worth stealing, i.e., worth pressing into the army.

Stamen, plu. stamens, stă'měnz, the male organs of flowers.

Pistil, the female or seed-bearing organ of flowers.

The stamen consists of filament, anther, and pollen.

The pistil consists of stigma, [style], and ovarium.

"Perfect flowers" have both stamens and pistils in the same plant.

Stamina, stăm'ă.nah, constitutional vigour; staminal, stăm'ă.năl, pertaining to stamens or stamina; stamineous, stă.mĭn'.ĕ.ŭs (R. lxvi.), having stamens, pertaining to the stamens, attached to the stamens; staminate, stăm'ă.nate, furnished with stamens; staminiferous, stăm'ă.nĭf'.ĕ.rŭs, having stamens without pistils.

Staminodium, plu. staminodia, stăm'ă.nŏ''.dĭ.ăm, plu. stăm'ă.nŏ''.dĭ.ăh (better staminoid, plu. staminoids, stām'ā.noids), an abortive stamen, an organ in cryptogamic plants serving the purpose of a stamen.

Latin stāmen, plu. stāmīna, the threads of a plant, the grain of wood; stāmīneus. "Staminodium," a hybrid: Latin stāmen genitive stāmīnis, Greek eidos, like a stamen.

"Staminoid" would be more in accordance with other similar compounds: as coraloid, ganoid, prismoid, rhomboid, spheroid, &c.

Stammer, stām'mer. Stutter, stūt'ter.

Stammer, to hesitate in pronouncing words or phrases.

Stutter, to repeat a letter or syllable from a difficulty of pronouncing the entire word.

Stammering generally arises from the tongue, stuttering from defective flexibility in the organs of the mouth, hence it is accompanied by a straining of those muscles and by facial distortions.

Old Eng. stāmor, a stammering; Dan. stamme, stammen; Germ. stammeln (from stammen, to resist or dam up) the flow of words.

"Stutter," German stottern, stotterer, stottering.

The stutterer is like a young child, always stumbling in its attempt at walking. A stammerer is like a lame man who does not walk with even gait.

Stamp, an instrument for making impressions, the impress itself, a paper bearing the stamp, a die, authority, current value, to stamp; stamped, stāmt; stamp'-ing, stamp'-er.

Stamp'-duty, plu. stamp'-duties, -dū'tiz. Stamp'-office.

Italian stampa, v. stampare; whence French estampe, estamper.

Stampede, stām'peed, a panic flight of men, horses, or cattle.

Spanish estampido, the report of a gun, flight on such a report.

Stanch, sta[r]nsh (not stawnsh), firm, steadfast, to stop the flow of blood; stanch'd (1 syl.), stanch'-ing, stanch'-er, stanch'-less; stanch'-ly, firmly, resolutely.

Welsh ystancio; French estancier now étancher.

Stanchion, stān'.shōn, a prop to support a falling wall.

French estaiçon now étaiçon, étancher, to arrest the flow of blood.

Ständ, a building or platform which commands a view of some public entertainment, a point beyond which one cannot proceed, a halt, that on which something rests.

Stand by! (on board ship), about equal to Make ready!

To stand, (past) stood, (past part.) stood (to rhyme with good not with food); stand'-ing, stand'-er.

To stand against, to resist. To stand anything, to endure without resistance. To stand by, to support, to back.

To stand fast, to remain firm. To stand fire, to receive an enemy's fire without giving way.

To stand for, to offer oneself as a candidate, to become a substitute, to sail towards.

To stand from, to sail away from. To stand it, to endure it. To stand off, to keep at a distance.

To stand off and on, to sail towards land and then away from it. To stand on, to continue the same course.

To stand [you] in, to cost. To stand out, to resist, to sail off.

To stand one's ground, to maintain one's position.

To stand to, to persevere. To stand together, to agree.

To stand to sea, to sail from land. To stand up, to rise up.

To stand up for, to justify, to back. To stand upon, to pride oneself on. It stands to reason, it must be so.

To make a stand, to halt in order to offer resistance to an enemy, to go no further in concession.

To put to a stand, to bother, to perplex.

A stand of arms, a firearm with its appendages.

A stand-point, a position in which something may be viewed. Come to a stand-still, come to a halt.

A stand-up [fight], a manfully contested fight.

A bystander, one standing near.

To withstand, to resist. To stand with, to side with.

Old English stand, v. stand[an], past stod, past part. ge-standen.

Standard. Ensign. Flag. Banner. Pennant. Stream'er.

Ensign, the national flag carried at the stern of a ship.

Since 1864, all men-of-war carry The St. George's ensign (a white flag with a red cross, and the Union Jack on the left-hand upper corner). The red ensign is used by government transports, but the blue ensign is abandoned by government ships.

∴ An ensign upside down is a signal of distress.

Banner, a flag under which men are united for some common object. The ordnance flag which is fixed on the carriage of the right-hand gun of the park.

The oriflamme of St. Denis [D'nce], was a banner, but is now the great standard of France.

Pennant, [corruption of pendant, more correctly pendent], a long narrow flag borne at the main-mast-head of a man-of-war to denote that she is commissioned.

Pennon, the flag of a mediæval knight not qualified to display a banneret. It was pointed.

Standard. The Royal Standard, a silk flag containing the arms of England, Scotland, and Ireland. An ordinary standard is a silk-flag about 18 inches square, containing the device of some colonel, &c., and carried by the cornet in the first rank of a squadron of horse.

In war, it is a signal for joining together the several troops belonging to the same head officer.

∴ In the Infantry, standards are called colours.

Flag, a general term for all sorts of displayed bunting or silk devices borne on a single staff. If borne on two staves the flag is termed a banner. On board ship a flag designates a vessel's nationality and employment. Flags are also used for telegraphing.

Telegraph flags are square, triangular, and cleft into burgees.

Streamer is not a technical word, but is used to denote any sort of flag, especially on board ship.

"Ensign," French enseigne; Latin insignia (signum, a sign).

"Banner," Fr. bannière (from bande; Low Lat. bannerium); Lat. bandum the general's standard, banderium (bandus flexible).

"Pennant," Latin pendens gen. pendentis, v. pendere to hang down.

"Standard," Old Eng. standard; Ital. stendardo; Fr. estendard now étendard (v. étendre, to extend), something displayed or extended.

"Flag," German flagge; Danish flag, v. flagen to flutter.

Hence ensign means "a sign"; banner, a "flexible thing"; pennant, something "hanging down"; standard, something "extended"; flag, a "flutterer"; streamer, something that "streams about."

Standish, stān'-dish, a dish or tray for pens, ink, &c.

If accidental, it is somewhat remarkable that "writing materials" are called stationery, and a "writing tray" a stand-dish.

Stang, a pole, a shaft. To ride the stang, to be carried on a pole in derision on men's shoulders.

This lynch punishment was formerly carried out against wife-beaters, hen-pecked husbands, scolds, &c.

Old English steng, a pole. "To ride the skimmington" was for the man to ride with his face to the horse's tail while the woman rode before with a "skimmington" or skimming-ladle, with which she was allowed to beat him about the jowls to her heart's content.

Stan'nary (not stannery), pertaining to tin. The Stannary Courts, courts of record in Cornwall and Devon for the administration of justice among the tinners. Stannate, stān'-nāte, a salt of stannic acid (-ate, a salt from an acid in -ic). Stannic, produced from tin. Stanniferous, stān.nīf'.ē.rūs, yielding tin. (Latin stannum, tin.)

Several dictionaries spell the word stannery, but the Latin stannarius decides the correct spelling.

Stanza, stān'.zah, a verse of poetry consisting of two, three, four or more lines the whole poem being written to the same pattern; stanzaic, stān.zay'ik, consisting of stanzas.

Italian stanza, v. stanzare, to prescribe.

A stanza is an example of any prescribed metre adopted in a poem.

Staphyl-oma, stāf'.ī.lō'.mah, a disease in the cornea of the eye.

An ill-compounded word. It ought to be staphylomma. Greek stāphülē omma, a [tumour like a] grape in the eye. ōma means like things, and staphulō homa is simply nonsense.

Staphylo-rhaphy, stāf'.ī.lōr'rā.fy, a surgical operation for uniting the edges of a divided palate.

Greek stāphülē raphē (suture). According to our usual way of spelling such words, it should be staphylorhaphy.

Staple, stay'p'l, an iron loop either to hold a lock or to fix into a [wall]; merchandise; the chief commodities of a merchant, city, district, or country; raw material; settled, established in commerce; wool-stapler, a dealer in wool.

"Staple" (an iron loop), Danish stabel, a hinge.

"Staple" (goods), Danish stabel, a pile; stabel-handel, staple-trade; stabel-plads, staple, mart, emporium.

Star, a luminous heavenly body. Fixed stars, fixt... those which constantly maintain the same relative positions in the heavens. Planets are wandering stars moving in an orbit round the sun. Star, anything made to resemble a star (with five, six, or eight points), a badge of knighthood, an asterisk (*) used for reference to a foot-note or to indicate that something is omitted, a superior actor acting temporally in an inferior company, to stud with stars, to crack glass, to appear as a prodigy; starred (1 syl.), starr'-ing (R. i.), starr'-y, star'-ness (R. xi.), star'-like. Star'-less. Star'-chamber, a civil and criminal court abolished in the reign of Charles I. Star'-fish.

Star'-gazer, gā'zer. Star'-light, -lite, stars luminous.

Star of India, an order of knighthood instituted by Queen Victoria in 1861 (motto: Heaven's light our guide).

Star'-stone, a variety of sapphire.

Star'-spangled, studded with stars.

Shooting or falling star, a meteor which shoots rapidly athwart the sky. Star'-wort, an aster.

Old English steorra or stiorra; Greek astér; Latin astrum.

Starboard, star'.bōd, the right side of a vessel to one looking forwards. The left side used to be called lar-board, but is now called port. Starboard the helm! turn the helm to the right. Port the helm! turn it to the left.

Starboardlines, star.bō'.līnz, mess in the starboard watch.

Without doubt the two words starboard and larboard, which have so puzzled etymologists, are merely corruptions of the Spanish estri-bord and ba-bord; French stri-bord and ba-bord (dextri-bord right-side, bas-board left-side), stri corrupted first into stir then into star; bā [bah] corrupted into lar, and bord (a ship's side) corrupted into board. The Danish word styr-bord is half-way between the French stribord and our star-board. (The usual derivation, may be seen under the word Larboard.)

The substitution of port for "larboard" is from the military phrase porting arms, that is carrying them in the left hand.

Starch, fecule (fēk'kūle), formal, to stiffen with starch; starch'-ing, starched (1 syl.); starched-ness, starch'.ēd-ness; starched-ly, starch'.ēd.ly; starch'-er, starch'-like.

Old Eng. stearc or sterc, rigid; Germ. stärke, starch, v. stärken.

Stare (1 syl.), a fixed gaze. Stair, the step of a staircase.

To stare; stared, staird; star-ing (Rule xix.), stair'-ing; staring-ly; star-er, stair'-er. To stare at.

To star, makes starred (1 syl.), starr'-ing, starr'-er.

"Stare," Old Eng. stær, v. stár[ian], past stádrode, past part. stádrod.

"Stair," Old Eng. stæger; v. stig[an], to climb, to ascend.

"Star," Old Eng. steorra or stiorra; Greek astér; Latin astrum.

Stark, stiff, wholly, as stark naked, stark mad.

Stark blind does not mean entirely blind, but blind from a cataract.

It is a corruption of the Anglo-Saxon stár-blind (star-blind), from stér, a cataract.

Sand-blind is a corruption of the Anglo-Saxon sam-blind (half-blind); sam half, Latin semi.

Pur-blind is a corruption of par-blind; Latin párum, somewhat.

Old English starc, sterc, or stearc, stark, (adv.) sterclíce.

Starling, star'ling, a bird. Sterling, genuine, standard.

Each feather is marked with a whitish triangular speck; these specks are the little stars from which the bird is named.

"Sterling," Easterling. The money coined in the east parts of Germany (Camden, The Britannia).

Start, a slight shock from some unexpected occurrence, the beginning of motion, advantage in the outset, to start; start'-ed (R. xxxvi.), start'-ing, start'-er. To start after.

To start against, to become a rival. To start for, to set out for. To start up, to rise up suddenly.

To get the start, to be first in the field, to begin first.

An upstart, an inferior rival. Starting-point.

Starting-post, the goal from which [races] begin.

Startle, star'.t'l, a slight shock from some unexpected occurrence; startled, star'.t'ld; start'ling, start'ling-ly.

French s'écarter, to swerve, to budge. "Startle," dim. of start.

Starve (1 syl.), to abstain from food, to be in want of food; starved (1 syl.), starv'-ing (Rule xix.), starv'-er.

Starvation, star.vay'.shŭn. Starve'-ling, an animal or plant feeble from defective nourishment.

Old Eng. stearf[ian] or steor[ian], past stearf, past part. storfen.

Stasis, sta'sis, stagnation of the blood or animal humours.

Greek stásis, a stationary position (kistēmi, to stand still).

Stāte (1 syl.), a condition, solemn pomp, dignity, a body politic, a community, a caste, one of the conventional degrees of society, to make a statement, to set forth; stat-ed, stā'.ted; stat-ing (Rule xix.), stā'.ting; stat-er, stā'.ter.

Stated-ly, stā'.ted.ly, at fixed or appointed times.

State-ly, lofty, grand; state'li-ness (Rule xi.)

Statesman, plu. statesmen, one skilled in public affairs and arts of government; statesman-like, statesman-ly, statesman-ship (-ship, office, qualification, skill).

The states general (Fr. history), the legislative assembly consisting of the nobles, clergy, and deputies; (in the Netherlands) the assembly consists of two orders.

State'-paper. State'-prisoner. State'-room. State'-trial.

French estat now état; Italian stato; Latin status (stāre, to stand).

Statics, stāt'iks. Dynamics, dī.nām'iks.

Statics, that branch of mathematics which treats of force affecting a body in a state of rest, as equilibrium, weight.

Dynamics, that branch of mathematics which treats of force affecting a body in a state of motion.

It considers four things: (1) the matter moved, (2) the space moved through, (3) the time taken in moving through a given space, and (4) the velocity with which it moved.

Greek [hē]stātikē [technē] or ta stātika (stātos, standing still).

"Dynamics," Greek dunāmis, power, force.

(-ic, -ics. Of the 50 or 60 sciences with these endings all but five, borrowed from the French, are plural. The five exceptions are arithmetic, logic, magic, music, rhetoric.)

Station, stā'.shūn, the place where a person or building stands, a post assigned, social class, the halting place of a railway, to place, to appoint to a post, &c.; stationed, stā'.shūnd; station-ing, stā'.shūn.ing.

Stationary, stā'.shūn.ă.ry. Stationery, stā'.shūn.ĕr.ry.

Stationary, fixed, immovable, not progressive.

Stationery, articles sold by a stationer.

Station-master, an officer in charge of a railway station.

Stationary engine, a fixed steam-engine for drawing carriages on rails by means of ropes.

Latin statio; French station; Old English stathol.

(It would have been better if we had preserved the Latin adjective stationālis instead of the Mediæval Latin stationarius for "abiding," and left "stationery" (in Latin stationārius) for the goods sold by a stationer.)

(As grocer-y, haberdasher-y, mercier-y, milliner-y, spicer-y, &c.)

Statistics, facts relating to political science illustrative of the condition and resources of a state, its population, wealth, power, &c.; statistical, stā.tis't.ĭ.kāl; statistical-ly.

Statistician, stā.tis.tish'ăn, one skilled in statistics.

French statistique; German statistik. (See "statics" note.)

Statue, stāt'tu. Statute, stāt'tute. Stature, stāt'tchūr.

Statue, the solid representation (in marble, stone, wood, &c.) of a living being life-size or larger. If in small size we call it an Image. If for worship an Idol.

Statute, a legal enactment, a law passed by act of parliament.

Stature, the height and size of anyone standing.

Statuary, stat'tu.erry, a sculptor, the works of sculptors.

Statuesque (French), stāt'tu.esk, having the character of a statue, posed like a statue.

Statuette (French), stāt'tu.ĕt', a small statue.

Latin stātua, stātūaria, statuarius. It would be better to call the artist a statuar, and his works statuary.

Stature, stăt tchŭr. Statue (see above). Statute (q.v.)

Stature, the height and size of anyone standing, full size.

Latin stătŭra, stătŭaria, stătŭarius (stäre, to stand); French stature.

Status, stă'tŭs, social condition, rank, position.

Stătus quo, the state things were in before some halt or suspension was made. In stătŭ quo, in the same state as things were before they were suspended.

In statu quo ante, in the state things were before the war [or truce] commenced.

Latin stătus, state, condition (stäre supine stătum, to stand).

Statute, stăt'tute. Statue, stăt'tu. Stature, stăt'tchŭr.

Statute, a legal enactment having force by act of parliament.

Many of our laws derive their force from custom only, as all those based on the imperial Roman code.

Statue, a life-size representation (in some solid substance) of a living being. (Latin stătua.)

Stature, the height and size of a living being. (French.)

Statutable, stăt'tu.tă'b'l. Statutory, stăt'tu.tŏr ry.

Statutable, indictable by law, coming under some statute or law, as a statutable offence.

Statutory, according to law, legal, as statutory release.

Sometimes these words are interchangeable: as statutable or statutory process; statutable or statutory remedy.

Statutes of limitation, laws fixing the period within which legal proceedings must commence.

Thus a debt not claimed for six years is statute-run, rent by lease is limited to twenty years, murder must be proceeded on within a year and a day of the offence, &c.

Statute-book, a book containing statutes, a code.

"Statute," Lat. stătŭtum. "Stature," Lat. stătŭra (stäre, to stand).

Staunch, trusty, firm in principle, firm in support; staunch'-ly, staunch'-ness (should be stanch).

Welsh ystancio; French estanch now étanch, air and water tight.

Stäve (1 syl.), one of the pieces of which a cask is made, a stanza, a bar of a rack, a step of a ladder.

To stave in, to break a hole in, to burst through; staved (1 syl.), stav-ing (R. xix.), stă'ving. To sing a stave.

(In music the five lines are now called a staff, but used to be called a stave, and are so given both by Dr. Busby and by John Bishop.)

Old Eng. staf, plu. stafas. "Stave" and "staves" are abnormal. The five lines of music are called a "stave" because they resemble the steps or staves of a ladder. (Italian staffa, a stirrup.)

Stay, plu. stays, continuance in the same place, a prop, a large rope to support a mast, to continue, to obstruct, to forbear to act, to stop, to tack a vessel or put her about; stayed (1 syl.), stay'-ing. Staid, not volatile.

The stays of a ship are:

The fore-stay, the main-stay, and the mizzen-stay.

The fore-top and the fore-top-gallant back-stays.

The main-top and the main-top-gallant back-stays.

The mizzen-top and the mizzen-top-gallant back-stays.

Back-stays, those ropes which run from a mast-head down to the sides of a vessel (slanting a little aft).

Fore-and-aft-stays, those ropes which lead from one mast to another.

Stay-sail, stay-s'l, a sail which hoists on a stay.

They are as follows:

Fore-top stay-sail;

Main-top, main-top-gallant, and main royal stay-sails;

Mizzen-top, mizzen top-gallant, and mizzen royal stay-sails.

Spring stays, assistant stays nearly parallel to the stays.

Main-stay, chief dependance.

Stay-bolt, a bolt connecting opposite plates to hold them in their places and prevent their bulging.

Stay-lace, a lace for ladies' stays. Stay-maker.

Stays (no sing.), a lady's corset.

In stays or Hove in stays (nautical), the situation of a vessel when she is "staying" or changing her tack.

To stay [a ship], to put her about.

To stay a mast, to incline it by the aid of the stays.

To miss stays, to fail in staying or tacking a vessel.

"Stay" (the rope of a ship), Old English stæg; Spanish estay.

"Stay" (state, condition), Welsh ystad.

"Stay" (to bide, to stop), German stehen; Latin stāre.

Stead, stēd. Staid. Stayed, staid. Steed.

Stead (preceded by in, as "in your stead"), place.

Bed-stead, bed frame to hold the mattress and bed.

Home-stead, the ground on which a farm-house stands, a farm-house with its garden and appointments.

Instead of, in the place of, in lieu of.

To stand in great stead, to be very serviceable.

Staid, grave, steady, not volatile.

Stayed, past and past part. of the verb stay.

Steed, a poetical word for a horse of high metal.

Stead'-fast, firm, constant; stead'-fast-ly, stead'-fast-ness.

Stead'-y, not tottering, not shaky, not volatile, to keep from shaking, to support; steadied, stēd'ed; stead'y-ing, (comp.) stead'i-er, (super.) stead'i-est, stead'i-ly; stead'i-ness, firmness, application to work.

Old Eng. stede, stæd, stæde, or stýde; stedfæst, stedig, stedigness.

Steak, stāke (not steek). Stake (1 syl.)

Steak, a collop of beef. A collop of mutton or pork is called a chop. A collop of veal is called a cutlet.

Stake, a large stick to fix in the ground, to wager.

"Steak," Old Eng. sticce, a piece, a slice. "Stake," Old Eng. stic[a].

"Steak" may be the Norse steg, a roast, meaning a piece of roast meat. If, as is most likely, sticce is the original word, the French bif-tik is quite as good as our beef-stake.

Steal, steel. Steel, iron refined and mixed with carbon.

Steal, (past) stole, (past part.) stolen, stōlē'n, to rob, to slip in or out unobserved; steal'-ing, steal'-er.

Stealth, stēlth, robbery. By stealth, clandestinely. Stealth'-y, stealth'-i-ly, stealth'-ful (Rule viii.)

To steal a march on [one], to gain an advantage unobserved.

To steal [men's] hearts, to win from allegiance.

"Steal," Old English stēl[an] or stæl[an], past stæl, past part. stolen; also stēl[ian], past stēlode, past part. stēlod; stælcþing, a stealth; stælung, a robbery; stæl-worth, worth stealing.

"Steel," Old English stīl or stāt; stīled, steelled.

Steam, steem. Vapour, vā'por. Reek. Smoke (1 syl.)

Steam, the vapour of boiling water.

(In its perfect state it is invisible, but being slightly cooled by coming in contact with the colder air it becomes cloudy.)

Vapour, an aeriform fluid into which liquid or solid bodies are converted by heat at ordinary temperature.

(A vapour may be recondensed and restored to its original liquid or solid state. A gas is far more reluctant to change its state.)

Reek, the vapour drawn by heat out of damp earth, &c.

Smoke, the vapours, gases, and fine particles of burnt charcoal buoyed upwards by the air from burning fuel.

(Smoke condensed is soot; and soot in flakes blacks.)

"Steam," O. E. steam or stēm. "Vapour," Fr. vapeur; Lat. vāpor.

"Reek," Old Eng. reóc. "Smoke," Old Eng. smēc, smēoc, or smēdc.

Stearine, stē'.ā.rīn, the tallowy part of animal fat;

Oleine, ō'.lē.īn or Elaine, ē'.la.īn, the oily part of fat.

Stearic, stē'.a.rīk, adj. of stearine. Stearic acid.

Stearate, stē'.a.rāte, a salt of stearic acid.

(-ate denotes a salt from an acid in -ic, that is an acid with the greatest possible amount of oxygen.)

Steatite, stē'.a.tīte, a mineral called soap-stone.

(Gk. stēar gen. stēatos, with -ite denoting a mineral.)

Steatitic, stē'.a.tīt'īk, adj. of steatite.

Greek stēar gen. stēatos, suet, tallow. "Oleine," Latin oleum, oil.

"Elaine," Greek elaion (3 syl., ē.lai'on), oil.

Stedfast (the older spelling of steadfast, q.v.) (O. E. stedfæst.)

Steed, poetical word for a horse of high metal. Stead, stēd, good service, place, &c. Steed'-less. (Old Eng. stēda.)

Steel. Steal, to purloin (both stēle). Still.

Steel, iron refined and combined with carbon, an instrument for sharpening carving knives and butchers' knives, to overlay with steel, to make obdurate and hard-hearted. Steeled (1 syl.), steel'-ing, steel'-er.

Steal, (past) stole, (past part.) sto'len, steal'-ing, steal'-er.

Still, up to this time, a vessel for distilling, calm, &c.

Steel'-y, like steel; steel'-clad, steel'-hearted, steel-pen.

Bes'sēmer steel, steel made from cast iron. So named from Henry Bessemer, born 1813 (patents 1856-8).

Blister-steel, steel made by interlaying wrought-iron with charcoal. Cast-steel, steel made by mixing iron with powdered charcoal and then melting it.

(When cast into bars it may be rolled or hammered.)

"Steel," Old English stȳl or stīl, stȳled, steeled.

"Steal," Old English stēla, past stēol, past part. stolen.

"Still," Old Eng. stille, quiet, v. still(ian), adv. stil; Lat. stillāre.

Steel-yard, stīl'-yard, the Roman balance, a steel beam.

Steep, elevated, precipitous, a hill, to soak, to imbue; steeped (1 syl.), steep'-ing, steep'ing trough, -trōf; (comp.) steep'-er, more precipitous; (super.) steep'-est, steep'-ly, steep'-ness, steep'-y. (Old English steāp, precipitous.)

We still call the inclination of a stratum its "dip," and to dip is to soak or steep, hence the connexion of the two meanings.

Steeple, steep'le. Stipple, stīp'pl. Stipule, stīp'pule. Stip'el.

Steeple, the tower or spire of a church, &c.

Stipple, to engrave by dots instead of lines.

Stipule (in Bot.), a small leaf-like appendage to a leaf.

Stipel, a small stipule at the base of a leaflet.

Steepled, steep'ld, having a steeple. Steeple-chase.

"Steeple-chase." This term arose from a party of fox-hunters on their return from an unsuccessful chase. They agreed to race in a straight line to the village steeple about two miles off.

"Steeple," Old English stēpel, steppel, or stīpel.

"Stipple," connected with stop, a point, and called in Fr. pointer.

"Stipule," Fr. stipule; Lat. stīpula, a stalk. "Stipel," Fr. stipelle.

Steer, fem. heifer, hēf'fer, a young bullock or cow, to guide a ship or boat by the helm; steered (1 syl.), steer'-ing.

Steer'-age, the steering of a ship, the manner in which a ship answers to the helm, the fore part of a ship.

Steer'-er, steers'man, plu. steers'men. Steer'-ing-wheel.

"Steer" (a young bullock), Old English steor or styre.

"Steer" (to direct a ship), Old English steōr(an), stȳr(an), or stīr(an), past steōrde, &c., past part. steōred, &c.; steōra or stīōra, a pilot.

Stegano-graphy, stĕg'.a.nŏg''.ră.fy, secret writing.

The private marks of tradesmen. Any word with ten different letters will indicate the price of an article: Thus, suppose the secret word is peculation (1=p, 2=e, 3=c, 4=u, 5=i, 6=a, 7=t, 8=s, 9=o, 10=n) and an article is marked a/i, it would mean 6/8, i.e. 6s. 8d. In secret writing the devices are infinite. One of the simplest is to turn the alphabet upside down, making z=a, y=b, x=c, &c.: thus "Adam" would be Zwzn.

Greek stegānos covered, graphē writing, i.e. concealed writing.

Stellar, stĕl'.lar, starry, relating to the stars; stellate, stĕl'.lāte, arranged like a star; stĕl'lāt-ed, radiated.

Stelliform, stĕl'.lĭ.form, in the form of a star.

Stelleridæ, stĕl.lĕr'.rĭ.dē, the family of fishes of which the star-fish is the type. Stelleridan, stĕl.ler'.rĭ.dăn, one of the star-fish tribe. Stelliferous, stĕl.lĭf'.ĕ.rūs.

Stellite, stĕl'.lĭte, a mineral (-ite denotes a fossil or mineral).

Stellular, stĕl'.lū.lar, marked with little stars, star-shaped.

Latin stella, stellāris, stellātus, stellifer, stelli-forma.

Stem, a stalk, a progeny, a prow. Steam, steem, vapour.

To stem, to resist, to make progress against, as to stem a current; stemmed (1 syl.), stemm'-ing (Rule i.)

From stem to stern, the whole length of a ship.

"Stem" (a stalk), Old English stēmn or stæmn; Welsh ystem.

"Stem" (race, lineage), Latin stemma; German stamm.

"Stem" (to resist), Danish stemme, to stem, to stop, to oppose.

The stem of a ship is a piece of timber forming the prow or fore-end, the piece which forms the hind-end is the stern-post.

Stench, an offensive smell. (Old English stenc or stencg.)

Stencil, stĕn'.sĭl, a thin plate on which the outlines of a pattern are cut out. This plate is laid on a piece of paper or a wall and the required colour being rubbed about the open spaces are left on the paper or wall; to stencil; stencilled, stĕn'.sĭld; sten'cill-ing, sten'cill-er.

There are about twelve dissyllables ending in -il not accented on the last syllable. Of these civil, devil, fossil, and [*imperi*l] do not double the l on receiving a postfix beginning with a vowel, but the other eight do, viz., argil, cavil, council, pencil, peril, pisil, stencil, and tranquil. For example:

"Civil" makes civil-ian, civil-ist, civil-ity, civil-ise, civil-iser; but

"Argil" makes argill-aceous, argill-iferous, argillite, argill-ous, &c.

"Devil" (to grill) makes devil-ed, devil-ing; to these add devil-ish, &c.; but "Cavil" makes cavill-ed, cavill-ing, cavill-er, cavill-ous, &c.

It would be far better to reduce all to Rule iii., or to make words ending in l a general exception.

Steneo-saur, plu. steneosaurs or steneo-saurus, plu. -sauri, stĕn'.ĕ.ŏ.saur, a genus of narrow-snouted saurians.

("Steneo-" is a blunder for steno-. Greek stenos, narrow.)

There are several Greek words as models, g.e. stĕno-sĕmon, stĕno-pŏrŏs, stĕno-chŏria, steno-porthmos, &c. (see below).

Greek stĕno-[stĕnos]sauros, the narrow [snouted] saurian.

Steno-graphy, stě.nǫg'.ra.fy, shorthand; stenographic, stě'n.o.-gräf''ik; stenographical, stě'n.o.gräf''i.käl; stenographical-ly; stenographer, stě.nǫg'.rǎ.fer; stenographist, stě.nǫg'.rǎ.fist. (Greek steno-[stenos]graphē.)

Stentorian, stě.n.tǫr'ri.an, having a loud voice, very loud.

Stentorian lungs, lungs of enormous power.

Stentoro-phonice voice, stě'n.to.ro.fǫn''ik..., a voice proceeding from a speaking trumpet or stentorophonic tube.

So called from Stentor, one of the Greek heralds in Homer's Iliad. Homer says his voice was as loud as that of fifty men combined.

Stěp, a pace, to make a pace. Steep, precipitous. Steppe, q.v.

Stepped, stěpt; stěpp'-ing. Steps (no sing.), a portable flight of stairs. Stepping-stone. To step aside, to remove a little way off. To step into, to walk into.

To take a step, to make a movement in any given direction.

Step by step, by a gradual and regular progression.

Old English stap, stedp, or stepe, v. stap[an], stepp[an], or stap[an], past stǫp; past part. stapen; steppung.

Step-, orphaned of one parent; step-child, the child of a husband or wife on a second marriage is step-child to the one not its parent; step-daughter, step-son.

Step-father, the husband of the child's mother on her second marriage. Step-mother, the wife of a child's father on his second marriage.

Old English steop[an], to bereave; steop-cild, a child bereft [of one parent]; steop-dǫhter, steop-fader, steop-mǫdor, steop-sunu.

Steppe, stěp. Stěp, a pace. Steep, precipitous.

Steppe, one of the vast flats or plains of Europe or Asia, corresponding to the savannahs or pampas of America.

German steppe, a heath; Russian stepi.

Stěp, a pace. (Old English stap, steap, or stepe.)

Steep, precipitous. (Old English steap.)

-ster (a native suffix), skill derived from practice (Rule lxii.)

Stercoraceous, stě'r.ko.ray''.shūs, pertaining to dung, full of defilement. Stercorarium, stě'r.ko.rair''ri.üm, a place where any sort of defilement or filth is deposited.

Latin stercōreus, full of filth, stercōrarium (stercus, dung).

Stereo-, stě'r.e.o- (Greek prefix), solid. (Greek stě'rěōs.)

Stereo-graphy, stě'rě.ǫg''.rǎ.fy, the act of delineating the forms of solid bodies on a plane; stereo-graphic, stě'rě.o.gräf''ik; stereo-graphical, -rě.o.gräf''i.käl; stereo-graphical-ly, stě'rě.o.-gräf''i.käl.ly.

Greek stě'rěo-[stereos]grapho, I describe solid forms.

Stereo-meter, stěr're.òm'' .ě.ter, an instrument for measuring the specific gravities of solid bodies as well as liquid; stereometry, stěr'rě.òm'' .ě.try; stereometrical, stěr'rě.ō-mět'' .ř.kāl; stereometrical-ly.

Greek stérō-[stereos]mētron, a gauge for solid bodies.

Stereo-scope, stěr'rě.ō.skōpe, an optical instrument which makes two photographs appear as one standing out in strong relief; stereo-scopic, stěr'rě.o.sköp'' .řk; stereoscopist, stěr'rě.ōs'' .kō.pist; stereoscopy, stěr'rě.ōs'' .kō.py.

Greek stérō-[stereos]skōpō, I behold solid forms.

Stereo-tomy, stěr'rě.ōt'' .ō.my, the art of cutting solids into figures and sections; stereotomic, stěr'rě.o.tōm'' .řk.

Greek stérō-[stereos]temnō, I cut solids [into forms].

Stereo-type, stěr'rě.o.type, a metal plate the size of a page cast from a mould, to print from such plates, to cast such plates, done from stereotype plates; stereotyped (4 syl.), stereotyp-ing (Rule xix.), stereotyp-er; stereotypic, stěr'rě.o.típ'' .řk; stereotypical, -típ'' .ř.kāl; -typical-ly.

Greek stérō-[stereos]typos, type in solid pages.

Stereo-typography, stěr'rě.o-tý.pōg'' .ř.fy, the art of stereo-type printing; stereo-typog'rapher.

Greek stérō-[stereos]typos grapho, I print stereotype.

Sterile, stěr'řl, barren; (super.) ster'il-est (the comparative is very rarely used). Sterility, ste.řl' .ř.ty, barrenness.

Latin stérilis, sterilitas. (Greek stérō, to be without).

Ster'ling, standard, genuine, excellent. Star'ling, a bird.

"Sterling." Spelman derives it from esterlings, merchants of the Hans Towns, who came over and reformed our coin in the reign of John. Camden says: "In the time of Richard I. monie coined in the east parts of Germany began to be of especiall request in England for the purtite thereof, and was called easterling monie, as all the inhabitants of those parts were called Easterlings; and shortly after some of that contrie, were sent for into this realm to bring the coine to perfection, which since that time was called of them sterling for easterling."

Others say it is a corruption of starling, in allusion to a little star impressed on the coin. Sir Matthew Hale refers it to Stirling Castle, where money was coined in the reign of Edward I.

"Starling" (the bird with little stars), the tip of each feather having a triangular white spot.

Stern, the hinder part of a ship, severe, harsh, unrelenting; (comp.) stern'-er, (super.) stern'-est, stern'-ly, stern'-ness.

Stern'-age, steerage. Stern'-board, the motion of a vessel going stern foremost, the backward motion of a vessel.

Stern'-frame, the frame composed of the stern-post transom and the fashion pieces.

Stern'-post, the piece of timber which forms the hind-end of a ship and supports the rudder. The piece of timber which forms the fore-end is the stem. Inner stern-post, a post on the inside corresponding to the stern post.

By the stern, said of a vessel when the stern is lower in the water than the prow. By the head, when the head or prow is lower in the water than the stern.

"Stern" (severe), O. E. stern, stearn, stirn, or styrn, styrnlíce sternly.

"Stern" (of a ship), Germ. stern; Old Eng. stefen, v. steór to steer.

Sternum, ster'num, the flat bone of the breast to which the ribs are joined in front, the breast-bone; ster'nal, adj. of sternum; stern-costal, attached to the sternum.

Latin sternum, the breast-bone; Greek sternon.

Sternutation, ster'nu.tay''shūn, the act of sneezing; sternutative, ster.nū'ta.tiv; sternutatory, ster.nū'tā.tō.ry.

Latin sternutatio, sternutatorius (sternuo, to sneeze).

Stertorous (not stertoreous), ster'.tō.rūs, deep-snoring as in apoplexy. (Latin sterto, to snore or snort.)

Stetho- (Greek prefix), the breast. (Greek stethos, the breast.)

Stetho-meter, stē.thōm'.ē.ter, an instrument for measuring the capacity and form of the chest.

Greek stetho-[stethos]metron, a chest measurer.

Stetho-scope, stēr'h'.ō.skope, a tube for listening to sounds produced in the chest and other cavities of the body; stethoscopic, stēr'h'.ō.skōp'.īk, adj. of stethoscope.

Stethoscopy, stē.rhōs'.ko.py, the use of the stethoscope.

Greek stetho-[stethos]skopco, I inspect the chest.

We have between 28 and 30 words ending in -scope, all but 5 of which take -o before -scope. The 5 are peri-scope, phanta-scope, polariscope, poly-scope, and tele-scope.

Stew, meat slowly boiled with but little water, a state of perplexity and confusion, a brothel, a vapour-bath, to stew; stewed, stūde; stew'-ing. Stew-pan. In a stew, in a mess, agitated with fear and confusion. Irish stew, a stew with potatoes and other vegetables.

Ital. stufare (stufa, a stove); Fr. estuver now étuver, n. étuve.

Stew'ard, fem. stew'ard-ess, one who has charge of passengers on the sea. Steward, one who has the management of a landed estate. Steward-ship (-ship, office of).

O. E. stiward (v. stiwan, to appear), the ward who looks after things.

Sthen'ic, morbid vitality. Asthen'ic, morbid debility.

Greek sthēnōs, strength; asthēnōs, weakness.

Stich, stik. Stick. Stitch.

Stich, a line of poetry; distich, dis.tīk, two connected lines of poetry. Stichomancy, stīk'.o.man.sy, divination by hitting on a line of poetry at hap hazard.

Stick, a small piece of wood. (Old English sticca.)

Stitch, one pass of a needle in sewing. (German stich.)

"Stich," Greek stichos, a row. Ch=k points to a Greek source.

Stick, a small piece of wood, a staff, to stab, to fix in a part, to fasten, to adhere, to scruple, (past) stüčk, (past part.) stüčk; stick'-ing, stick'-er; stick'-y, (comp.) stick'i-er, (super.) stick'i-est; stick'i-ness (Rule xi.)

Stick-lac, lac in its natural state. (See Shell-lac.)

To stick at, to stop at a difficulty, to hesitate.

To stick by, to be firm in supporting, not to desert.

To stick out, to continue without budging.

To stick to, to adhere to. Sticking plaster.

Old English sticca or stice; German stechen, to stick, to stab.

Stickle, stik'k'l, to be in doubt about the propriety or desirability of a proposal, to have qualms of conscience; stickled (2 syl.), stick'ling, stickler.

"Sticklers" were persons appointed to see that combatants had fair play. A corruption of stihlers, from the Anglo-Saxon verb stihtan, to arrange, to dispose.

Stickle-back (not stickle-bat), a small river-fish.

Old Eng. sticce, a spike, with dim, the fish with a small spiny-back.

Stiff (Rule viii.), rigid, starch, not pliant, not fluent; (comp.) stiff'-er, (super.) stiff'-est; stiff'ly, stiff'-ness.

Stiff-necked, -nekt, stubborn.

Stiff-hearted, -hart'.ed, hard to be persuaded.

Stiff-en, to make stiff (-en added to nouns converts them to verbs); stiffened, stif'nd; stiffen-ing, stif'n.ing; stiffen-er, stif'n.er. Stiff-ish (-ish added to adj. is dim.)

Old English stif, stifian, past stifode, past part. stifod.

Stifle, stif'l, to smother, to suffocate; stified, stif'ld; stifling, stif'ling, stifling-ly; stifler, stif.flër.

Latin stipäre, to stop up chinks; Greek stupë, tow.

Stigma, plu. stigmata, stig'mah, plu. stig'mä.tah, a mark of infamy; (in Bot.) the naked upper part of the pistil on which the pollen falls.

Stigmata, the breathing pores (1 syl.) of insects, the marks of the wounds of Christ, marks resembling those wounds.

Stigmatic, stig.mät'.ik, branded with a stigma; stigmatical, stig.mät'.ä.käl; stigmatical-ly.

Stigmatize (Rule xxxi.), stig'mä.tize, to brand with infamy, to disgrace; stigmatized (3 syl.); stigmatis-ing, stig'.ma.tiz.ing (Rule xix.); stigmatis-er, stig'.ma.tizer.

Stigmaria, stig.mair'ri.ah (in Geol.), root-stems of the sigillaria (plants abundant in the coal system).

Greek stigma, plu. stigmata; Latin stigma, stigmaticus; French stigmatiser. "Stigmaria" should be stigmata; the word is stigma gen. stigmätos, not stigmäros, and the Greek adj. is stigmätias.

Stilbite, stil'.bite, a mineral. (Gk. stilbé lustre, -ite mineral.)

Stile. Style (both stile). Still, peaceful, calm (q.v.)

Stile, steps for getting over a fence. Turn-stile, a bar which turns round to admit persons to pass either way.

Style, manner, the gnomon of a sun-dial.

"Stile," Old English stigel (from stigan, to climb).

"Style," Latin stylus a gnomon; Greek stulos.

"Style" (manner), German styl: as der alte styl, der neue styl, &c.

Stiletto, plu. stilettoes (Rule xlii.), stī.lēt'.tōze, a dagger with a round-pointed blade, a pointed instrument for piercing holes, to stab with a stiletto; stilettoed, stī.lēt'.tōde; stiletto-ing, stī.lēt'.tōing; stilettoes, stī.lēt'.tōze (3 sing. pres. tense) of verb. (Italian stiletto, v. stilettare.)

Still, an alembic, a vessel for distillation, silent, calm, not alive as still-born, till now, nevertheless, always, to quiet, to calm, to lull, &c.; stilled, stīld; still'-ing; (comp.) still'-er, (super.) still'-est; still'-ness, stil'-ly.

Still'-born, born dead. Still'-life, applied to paintings of flowers, vegetables, dead game, and other similar objects.

Come to a stand'-still, come to a stop or halt.

"Still" (quiet, quietly). O. Eng. stille, style, or stil; stille-boren, still-born; stillce, stilly; stillenes, v. still[ian], p. stillode, p. p. stilled.

"Still" (an alembic), Latin stillare, to drop; stillu, a drop.

Stilt, a pole with a foot-rest used in pairs for raising the walker above his usual height; stilt'-ed, raised on stilts, born-bastic. The stilt, the long-legged plover.

German stelze, v. stelzen. (Our word ought to be stelz.)

Stilton, stīl'.tōn, a rich white cheese.

So named from Stilton, a village in Huntingdon.

Stimulate, stīm'.u.late, to excite to action, to urge; stim'ulāt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), stim'ulāt-ing (Rule xix.); stim'ulāt-or (Rule xxxvii.) Stimulation, stīm'.u.lay''.shūn.

Stimulant, stīm'.u.lant. Stimulus, stīm'.u.lūs.

Stimulant, a medicine to increase vital energy; intoxicating liquors and high-seasoned foods are stimulants.

Stimulus, a motive to increased energy, a fillip; (in Bot.) a stinging hair (plu. stimuli, stīm'.u.lī).

Stimulative, stīm'.u.la.tīv, adj. of stimulant.

Latin stimulus plu. stīmīli, stīmūlātio, stīmūlātor, stimulans gen. stimulantis; stīmūlāre, to prick or goad on.

ERRORS OF SPEECH—

The hope of gain is a great stimulant to labour [stimulus].

You are very feeble and must take a stimulus [stimulant].

Hot foods are too stimulant [stimulative or stimulating].

The stinging nettle is furnished with stimulants [stimuli].

The feeble require a stimulus and take a stimulant [correct].

Sting, the goad of several insects as the wasp and bee, a wound made by a sting, a sharp pain from a whip, &c., a moral wound; (past) stang, (past part.) stung; sting'-ing, sting'-ing-ly; sting'-er, sting'-less, sting'-like.

("Stung" is fast superseding the normal past stang.)

"Sting," Old Eng. stinge, v. sting[an], past stang, past part. stungen.

Stingo, plu. stingoes, stīn'.gōze (R. xlii.), strong Yorkshire beer. So called from its stinging or stimulating properties.

Stingy, stīn'.djy, niggardly, sordid, (in Norfolk cross, ill-tempered); stingi-ly, stīn'.djily; stīn'gi-ness (Rule xi.)

Welsh ystang, v. ystangu to straiten.

Stink, an offensive smell, to stink; (past) stank; (p. p.) stunk, stink'-ing. Stink'-pot, a jar filled with coarse greasy matter and used for lighting booths at fairs, a jar filled with materials of an offensive smell and thrown into an enemy's ship about to be boarded. Stink'-stone, lime-stone which gives off a fetid smell when struck with a hammer. Stink'ard, a mean paltry fellow, an animal of most fetid odour found in Java and Sumatra.

Old Eng. stinc, v. stinc[an], past stanc, past part. stuncen.

Stint, quantity allowed, to allowance; stint'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), stint'-ing, stint'-er, stint'-less, stint'-ed-ness.

Old Eng. stint[an], past stant, past part. stunten.

Stipend. Salary. Wages. Allowance.

Stipend, a periodical sum of money given to one not in the service or employ of another, as to a dissenting minister, a Scotch clergyman, &c.

Salary, a periodical fixed sum paid to a professional in one's employ, as to a clerk, a teacher, an actor, &c.

Wages, a periodical fixed sum paid for manual labour.

Allowance, a periodical fixed sum allowed without regard to service, as by a father to a son, &c.

Stipendiary, plu. stipendiaries, stī.pēn'.dī.ā.rīz, a tributary, one who receives a stated stipend, thus bishops are stipendiaries of the state, adj. of stipend.

The adj. "stipendiary" would be better stipendial, Lat. stipendiālis. Lat. stipendiārium, stipendium (from stips g. stipis, a piece of money).

Stipple, stīp'pl. Stipule, stīp'pūlc. Stipel, stīp'el. Steeple.

Stipple, to engrave by dots instead of lines.

Stipule (in Bot.), a leaflet at the base of another leaf.

Stipel, a little stipule or leaflet at the base of a leaf.

Steeple, a tower or spire to a church, &c.

Stippled, stīp'pl'd; stīpp'ling, stīpp'ler.

"Stipple," probably a variety of stop (a point), in French pointer.

"Stipule," French stipule; Latin stipula, a straw, a stalk of corn.

"Stipel," Fr. stipelle. "Steeple," Old Eng. stēpel, stepl, or stīpel.

Stipulate, stīp' u.late, to agree for a certain sum, having a stipule, to bargain; stīp'ulāt-ed (R. xxxvi.), stīp'ulāt-ing (R. xix.), stīp'ulāt-or (R. xxxvii.)

Stipulation, stīp' u.lay'' shūn.

All bargains among the Romans were made by question and answer: One said, an stipem vis? and the other replied, stipem volo (do you require money? I do require money). So that "stipulate" is a compound of stipem-volo [stīp' u-lo], and Isidore's suggestion of stīpūla (a straw), from "the contracting parties breaking a straw between them," may be rejected.

Stipule, stīp' pūle, a leaflet at the base of a leaf. (See Stipple.)

Stipulate, stīp' u.late, having a stipule. (See above.)

Stipuled, stīp' pūled, stipulate. Stīp'ular, adj.

Stipulary, plu. stipularies (Rule xlv.), stīp' pu.lū.riz, a tendril, an organ occupying the place of a stipule.

French stipule; Latin stīpūla, a straw.

Stir, a movement, an excitement, to stir; stirred, stīrd; stīrr'-ing (Rule i.), stīrr'-ing-ly, stīrr'-er.

To stir up. To stir about. Stīr.about, porridge.

Old English stīr[ian], past stīrede, past part. stīred, stīrung.

Stirk, a young bull, ox, or heifer. (Old English stīrc.)

Stirrup, stīr'rūp (not stēr'rup nor stūr'rūp), a foot-rest suspended from a saddle, a rope with a thimble at the lower end through which foot-ropes are rove. Stirrup-cup, a parting cup taken on horseback. Stirrup-strap.

Old English stīrāp (stī-rāp, a path or foot rope). Our -rup is a blunder for rāp or rope.

Stitch, a single pass of a needle in sewing, a sudden pain in the side, to sew; stitched (1 syl.), stitch'-ing, stitch'-er

To stitch up, to mend a rent.

Old English stīc or stīce, a sting or pinch [in the side]; stīc[ian], to pierce or stab [with a needle], past stīcode, past part stīcod.

Stithy, stīth'y, a blacksmith's shop, an anvil.

Old English stīth with y dim., a little post or pillar.

Stiver, stī' ver, a Dutch penny, a penny.

Stoat, stōte, the red weasel. Ermine, the white weasel.

Stock, the trunk of a tree, lineage, a neck-gear the capital store, store in hand, money, cattle, the remainder of a pack of cards after a deal, to furnish, to fill, to store; stocked, stōkt; stock'-ing, storing, a hose.

The Stocks, government funds, a frame in which an offender is fastened, the frame on which a ship is built.

Stock'-broker, one who buys and sells the public funds

Stock'-dove, dūv, the wild pigeon of Europe, said to be the original stock of the domestic pigeon.

- Stock'-Exchange, where public-funds are bought and sold.
 Stock'-farmer, a farmer of live-stock.
 Stock'-gillyflower, a garden plant.
 Stock'-holder, a proprietor of a part of the public funds.
 Stock'-jobber, a middleman in the sale and purchase of stock, a gambler in stocks; stock'-jobbing.
 Stock'-fish, cod hard-dried and not salted.
 Stock'-man, plu. stock'-men (in Australia), one in charge of the live stock.
 Stock'-still, still as a stock or post, quite still.
 Stock-in-trade, goods kept on sale by tradesmen.
 Dead-stock, déd ..., implements of husbandry.
 Live-stock, the cattle, sheep, and horses of a farm.
 On the stocks, not yet finished. In the stocks, in durance.
 To take stock, to make an inventory of goods on hand.
 To stock an anchor, to fit it with a stock.
 To stock down, to sow grass-seed on ploughed land.
 To lie in the stocks, to be in hand.

Old Eng. stoc. From the v. stick [stician], to fasten or make firm : Thus Live-stock is the fixed live capital of a farm ; Dead-stock, the fixed implements of a farm , Stock-in-trade, the fixed capital shown by goods ; the Village stocks, a frame in which the feet of an offender are fixed ; a Gun-stock, the stock in which the gun is fixed ; The Stocks, money set fast in the funds
 "Stock" (the flower), so called from being first offered for sale in the Stocks-market, removed in 1787 to Farringdon Street, and called "Fleet Market." The "Stocks Market" was so called from a pair of stocks which formerly stood there. Gardeners occupied all but the north and south-west parts.
 "Where is such a garden in Europe as the Stocks Market?" (Shadwell).

STOCK-EXCHANGE AND CITY TERMS

- Backwardation, money paid to a purchaser by a speculator on a sale account for postponing the completion of the bargain till the next settling day, a fortnight later. The fact of there being a backwardation implies that money is more plentiful than stock.
 Bear account, a speculation on the chance of a fall in the price of stock sold, with the view of buying back at a lower price (or receiving the difference).
 Bears, brokers who try to depress or bear down the price of stocks. A bear, a speculator for a fall. To operate for a bear, to speculate under the expectation of a fall. To realise a profitable bear account, to realise a profit in a speculation for a fall. Bearing the market, using every effort to depress the price of a stock.
Dr. Warton says the term came from the proverb of "selling the skin before you have caught the bear." Others affirm it is selling what you are "bare of," under the hope of buying at a lower price.
 Berwicks, bér'riks, North-Eastern railway shares.
 Brums, London and North Western railway shares. "Brums" for "Birminghams," the L. & N. W. being the great Birmingham line.

Stock Exchange and City Terms (continued).

Bull account, a speculation on the chance of a rise in the price of stock bought, with a view of selling it again at a higher price (or realising the difference).

Bulls, brokers who try to raise or "toss-up" the price of stocks. A bull, a speculator for a rise. To operate for a bull, to speculate under the expectation of a rise. To realise a profitable bull account, to realise a profit on a speculation for a rise. Bulling the market, using every effort to raise the price of a stock.

The arena of bulls and bears, the Stock-Exchange.

("To bull," to toss up as a bull. Bull and Bear were used on 'Change in the time of Colley Cibber: Willing says to Granger (in the Refusal) "All out of stocks, puts, bulls, shams, bears, and bubbles.")

Cohens, Turkish '69 loan, floated by the firm of that name.

Contango, money paid to a person by a speculator on a purchase account for deferring the completion of the bargain till the next settling day, a fortnight later. The fact of there being a contango implies that stock is more plentiful than money. (See Backwardation.) (Spanish tango, a bone to pitch at.)

Dogs, Newfoundland Telegraph shares (Newfoundland dogs).

Dovers, dō.verz, South Eastern railway shares. The line runs to Dover.

Floated, brought out (said of a loan or company).

Floaters, exchequer bills and other unfunded stock.

Fourteen hundred, a stranger who has intruded on the Stock-Exchange. This term was in use in Defoe's time.

Guinea-pig, a gentleman of sufficient name to form a bait, and who allows himself to be put on a directors' list for the sake of the guinea and lunch provided for the board (City Phrase).

Kite, a bill. Flying a kite, trying to raise money on a bill.

Lame Duck, a member of the Stock-Exchange who defaults in his obligations (see Waddle; both terms obsolete).

Leeds, Lancashire and Yorkshire railway shares.

Morgans, the French 6 per cent. loan floated by the firm.

Muttons, Turkish '65 loan, partly secured by the sheep-tax.

Pots, North Staffordshire railway shares. Contraction of Potteries.

Settling-day, the day on which brokers settle or balance time-bargains (once a fortnight).

Singaporess (3 syl.), British Indian Extension Telegraph shares.

Smelts, English and Australian copper shares.

Spoon. A tea spoon, £5,000; A dessert spoon, £10,000; A table spoon, £15,000; A gravy spoon, £20,000. (Not in use except as a joke.)

Stag, one who applies for an allotment of shares under the hope of selling them at a profit; if he fails in so doing he flies away like a stag.

Time bargain, a speculation not an investment.

Waddle, to fail in meeting an obligation. (See Lame duck. The phrases are not in use, but they are known.)

Yorks, Great Northern railway shares.

Stockade, stōk.kāde', a line of stakes fixed in the ground as a barrier to the advance of an enemy, to make a stockade; stockād'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), stockād'-ing (Rule xix.)

Stoccado, plu. stoccadoes, stōk.kāh'.dōze (Rule xlii.), a thrust with a rapier. (Italian stocco, a rapier.)

French estocade, from the German stock, a stake.

Stocking, stŏk'ing. Sock. (Soc, q.v.)

Stocking, a hose for the foot and leg as far as the knee.

Sock, a half-hose reaching to the ankle.

A pair of stockings, two assorted stockings, one for each foot. A pair of socks, two assorted socks.

Stocking-frame. Stocking-knitter. Stocking-weaver.

Blue-socking, a female pedant.

"Blue Stocking." In 1400 a society of ladies and gentlemen was formed in Venice whose badge was the colour of their stockings, and hence they were called la società della calza. It lasted till 1500, when it appeared in Paris and was the rage among the lady savantes. From France it came to England in 1780, when Mrs. Montague [Mŏn'.tă.gu] displayed the badge of the bas-bleu club at her evening assemblies. The last of the blue stockings was Miss Monckton who died in 1840.

"Stocking," Old English stoc, a stump. "Sock," Old English socc.

Stoic, stŏ'ik, one of the disciples of Zeno [zee'no], a Greek philosopher who taught under the stoa or piazza of the Pe'cillê at Athens. His dogma was that men ought to be superior to emotion of either pleasure or pain; stoic, adj.; stoical, stŏ'ik.ăl; sto'ical-ly, stoical-ness.

Stoicism, stŏ'ik.ĭzm, the Stoic dogmas, apathy, phlegm.

Greek stŏikoi (ol êk tŏs stŏas), those of the stoa.

Stŏke (1 syl.), a place. It appears alone, as an affix, and as a postfix [in the names of places]: as Stoke in Nottingham, Stokes-ley in York, Basing-stoke in Hampshire.

Stŏke (1 syl.), a thrust with a poker, to poke a fire; stŏked (1 syl.), stŏk'-ing. Stŏk'-er, one who looks after the fire of a railway engine. Stoke-hole.

"Stoke" (a place), Old English stŏc. "Stoke" (to poke), Old English stoc, a stick, hence "a poker," and the verb "to poke."

Stŏle (1 syl.), a long narrow scarf worn crossed over the breast by Roman Catholic and "Anglican" clergymen; past tense of steal; stŏled (1 syl.), wearing a stole.

Groom of the stole, the first lord of the bed-chamber in the British court. (His original duty was to hand the king his shirt, and to invest him in his state-robcs.) The corresponding officer to a queen is Mistress of the robes.

"Groom," Low Latin grometus; Old Dutch grom = French garçon, Latin puer, an attendant or waiter on another; Anglo-Saxon guma a man, stŏl, a garment; Greek stŏlē; Latin stŏla.

Stolid, stŏl'ĭd, dull, stupid, heavy; stolid-ly, adv.

Stolidity, stŏ.lĭd'.ĭty, dulness of mind and sensibility.

Latin stŏlĭdus, stŏlĭditas (stŏlo, a blockhead or fool).

Stomach, stŭm'ăk, the belly, appetite, to brook, to take an offence without resentment; stomachcd, stŭm'ăkt; stomach-ing, stŭm'ăk.ing. Stomach-pump.

Stomacher, stŭm'ă.tchĕr, a woman's garment.

Stomachic, sto.măk'ĭk, strengthening the digestion, exciting the appetite. Stomach-ache, stŭm'ăk-ăke.

Greek stŏmăchŏs, the gullet (stŏma, the mouth); Latin stŏmăchus.

Epigastrium. Abdomen. Stomach. Belly.

The epigas'trium nearly coincides with the pit of the stomach.

The abdomen, ab.dŏ'men, is the lower part of the belly.

The stomach, stŭm'ăk, is the chief organ of digestion, where the food is prepared for distribution to all parts of the body.

The belly includes all the above, and popularly speaking is the whole front of the body from the ribs to the legs.

Stŏm'a- (Greek prefix), the mouth. (Greek stŏma.)

Stom'a, plu. stomates, stŏm'mătes or stomata, stŏm'a.tăh, (in Botany) minute pores in the epidermis of plants.

Stomatous, stŏm'ă.tŭs. (Greek stoma, a mouth.)

Stom'a-pŏd, plu. stom'a-pods, a crustacean of the stoma-poda order. Stomapoda, stŏ.măp'ŏ.dăh, an order of crustaceans with the "feet" in connection with their mouth. (Greek stoma pous, gen. pŏdos, plu. pŏda.)

"Stomates" as a plu. for stoma is detestable. If anglicised it should be stomas or the two should be stomate plu. stomates.

Stŏne (1 syl.), a mineral, a calcŭlus, 14 lbs. or 8 lbs., the kernel of stone-fruit, to pelt with stones, to take out the pips of raisins; stoned (1 syl.); ston-ing, stŏ'ning; ston-er, stŏ'ner; ston-y, stŏ'ny; (comp.) stŏ'ni-er, (super.) stŏ'ni-est; stŏ'ni-ness (Rule xi.)

Stone-like. Stone'-less. Stone'-blind, quite blind.

A stone's cast, the distance to which a stone may be thrown by the hand. Stone-chatter, a bird, so called because its notes resemble the noise of two stones knocked together. Stone-co'ping. Stone'-crop, a plant.

Stone'-cutter, stone'-cutting. Stone-dead, -dĕd.

Stone'-fruit, -frŭte. Stone-lily, plu. stone-lilies, -lĭ'lĭz, an encrinite [en'.krĭ.nĭte]. Stone-mason. Stone-pit.

Stone'-still, motionless. Stone'-ware. Stone'-work.

Stone'-hearted or stŏ'ny-hearted, -har'.tĕd. Stone's throw.

Meteor'ic stone, a concretion projected through the atmosphere from some region beyond it.

Philosopher's stone, fĭ.lŏs'ŏ.fers..., a substance which alchemists supposed would convert baser metals into gold. Rock'ing stone. A rolling stone gathers no moss.

To leave no stone unturned, to use every effort and expedient to accomplish an object.

Old English stān or stĕn, v. stĕn[an], past stānde, past part. stāned, stān-gaderung stone-gathering, stānig stony, stĕnnung.

Stonehenge, stōne.henj', a collection of upright and horizontal stones on Salisbury plain, incorrectly supposed to be the remains of a Druid temple.

Old English stān henge, a stone suspended. The outer circle was originally 105 feet in diameter, and contained 30 uprights 16 feet high with 30 imposts continuous; 9 feet from this outer circle was an inner circle with 30 uprights but no imposts; about 100 feet beyond the outer circle was a vallum 52 feet wide and 15 high, and within the smaller circle a stone (4 feet broad and 20 thick) called without sufficient reason "the altar" or "sacrificial stone."

Stool. Bench. Form. Chair. Arm chair. Sofa. Couch.

Stool, a seat without a back for one or two persons.

Bench, a fixed or permanent seat without a back, but generally against a wall, for two or more.

Form, a movable bench or stool without a back, for several persons, especially used in schools.

Chair, a stool with a back to it.

Arm chair, a chair with rests for the arms.

Sofa, a stuffed seat with back and two raised ends.

Couch, a stuffed seat with back and one raised end.

Ottoman, a stuffed stool without back.

"Stool," Old English stōl. "Bench," Old English bene.

"Form," Latin forum a market bench, forum a deck, forulus a shelf.

"Chair," Fr. chaire, a pulpit; Lat. cathedra; Gk. kata hedra.

"Sofa," Fr. sofa (a Turkish word). "Couch," Fr. couche, a bed.

Stoop. Stoup (both stoop). Stūpe (1 syl.) Stōp (see below).

Stoop, a bend forwards, to bend forwards, to swoop.

Stoup, a flagon, a basin for "holy water" at the entrance of Roman Catholic churches.

Stupe, flax used for fomentations, to dress with stupes.

Stop, a point, a stay, to stay, to punctuate.

Stooped, stoopt; stoop'-ing, stoop'-ing-ly, stoop'-er.

"Stoop," Old English stūp[ian], past stūpede, past part stūped.

"Stoup" (a flagon), Old English steop or stoppa, a drinking vessel.

"Stupe" (a fomentation), Latin stupa, tow; Greek stupé, hemp.

Stop, a pause, a point in punctuation, a prohibition, an instrument for regulating the sounds of an organ, &c., a vent-age of a wind-instrument, a failure, a bankruptcy, to stop; stopped, stōpt; stopp'-ing (Rule i.); stopp'-er, one who arrests the progress of something, the [glass] plug or mouthpiece of a bottle, to close with a stopper. Stop'-gap, a temporary expedient.

Stopple, stōp'.p'l, a plug to close the neck of a small bottle.

Danish stop, stoppe, stopper; German stopfen, &c.

Stōre (1 syl.), a stock, an abundance, a hoard, a dépôt. Stores (1 syl.), provisions; (in the army) food, clothing, arms, ammunition, and other necessities, to supply with stores;

stored (1 syl.), stōr'-ing (Rule xix.), stōr'-er, stōr'-age.

Store'-house. Store'-keeper. Store'-room. Store'-ship.

In store, in stock, for future use.

O. E. stōr; Welsh ystor store, v. ystorio; Lat. instaurāre; Gk. staurōō.

Storey, plu. storeys (R. xlv.) Story, plu. stories (R. xlv.)

Storey, stōr'-ry, the floor of a house.

Story, a tale, a falsehood.

Storeyed, having different floors as a two-storeyed house.

Storied [stōr'-rēd], famous in story, as storied urn.

Great diversity of opinion exists respecting the use of storey applied to a house: is the basement floor the basement storey, or is the first storey the floor above the basement? The Americans and probably most of our own countrymen would call a house with two tiers of windows, a house two storeys high; a house with three tiers of windows, a house three storeys high; and a house with four or five tiers of windows, a house four or five storeys high. But if the first storey is the flight above the basement floor, then the majority of English houses (which have but two tiers of windows) are only one storey high, and those houses which have only a basement above ground are not even one storey high.

Welsh ystordy, a store house; v. ystorio, to store. A "storey" is one house or flat stored or piled on another, and if so, the bottom flat belongs as much to the pile as any other.

Stork, a bird. Storks-bill, a plant. Stalk, stawk, a stem.

"Stork." Old Eng. storc. "Stalk" (a stem), Gk. stēlēkōs.

"Stalk" (to walk with measured strides), Old Eng. stalc[an].

Storm, a tempest, a violent assault on a fortified place, to rage, to attack by assault; stormed (1 syl.), storm'-ing; storm'-y, (comp.) storm'-i-er, (super.) storm'-i-est; storm'-i-ly, storm'-i-ness. Storm'-like. Storm'-beat.

Storm'-tossed, -tōst. Stormy-petrel, a sea-bird.

Storm-sail, storm'-s'l, a coarse strong sail for rough weather.

Storm'-window, an outer window to protect an inner one and keep the room warmer.

Storm in a teacup or teapot, much ado about nothing.

Storming party, plu. -parties, par'-tiz, a party of soldiers appointed to enter first into a breach.

Old Eng. storm, v. storm[an], past stormde, past part. stormed.

Stornel'lo verses, verses in which a word or phrase is harped upon and turned about and about. (Ital. tornare, to return.)

I'll tell him the white, and the green, and the red,

Means our country has flung the vile yoke from her head;

I'll tell him the green, and the red, and the white,

Would look well by his side as a sword-knot so bright;

I'll tell him the red, and the white, and the green,

Is the prize that we play for, a prize we will win.

Notes and Queries.

Storthing, stor'ing, the parliament of Norway.

Norwegian stor-thing [= ting], great court.

Story, plu. stories. Storey, plu. storeys.

Story, a tale, a falsehood, a narrative of events.

Storey, a flat, all the rooms on one floor.

Storied, stör'rēd, famous in story. Story-book.

Story-teller, story-telling. Storeyed, stör'rēd, having different floors, as a two-storeyed house.

Old Eng. stær, history, with dīm.; stær-writere, an historian.

Latin histōria; Greek histōria (histōr, istāmai to know).

Stōt, a steer. (Old English stotte, a jade, a worthless horse.)

The "stot-calf" is only for the butcher.

Stoup. Stoop (both stoop). Stūpe (1 syl.) Stōp.

Stoup, a flagon, a basin for "holy water" at the entrance door of Roman Catholic churches,

Stoop, to bend forward. (Old English stūp[ian], to stoop.)

Stupe, cloth or flax for fomenting. (Latin stūpa, flax.)

Stōp, a pause, to stand still. (Danish stop, v. stoppe.)

"Stoup," Old English steap or stoppa, a drinking cup.

Stour, dust, especially dust in cloud.

Old English styr[ian], to stir up. Burns uses stour for mould:—

Wee, modest, crimson-tipped flower,

Thou's met me in an evil hour,

For I maun crush amang the stour

Thy slender stem;

To spare thee now is past my power,

Thou bonnie gem.

Stout, lusty, corpulent, strong, valiant; (comp.) stout'-er, (super.) stout'-est, stout'-ly, stout'-ness. Stout'-built.

Stout'-made. Stout-heart'ed. (Dutch stout.)

Stōve (1 syl.) Grāte (1 syl.) Rānge (1 syl.) Fire-place.

Stove, an inclosed or partially inclosed apparatus for warming rooms, a small grate: as an Arnott's stove (entirely inclosed), a register-stove (partially inclosed), a Bath stove, an ironing-stove (small grates).

Grate, an open apparatus for warming rooms.

Range, a kitchen apparatus for cooking.

Fire place, the recess under the chimney where fire is made either on the hearth or in a grate, &c.

To stove, to heat or dry in a stove-room; stōved (1 syl.); stov-ing (Rule xix.), stō'-ving.

"Stove," Old Eng. stofa. "Grate," Italian grata, Latin crātes (in reference to the bars in front). "Range," Welsh rheng (in reference to the rows of apparatus for boiling, roasting, baking, &c.)

"Fire-place," Old Eng. fīr or fyr place, the place of the fire.

Stow, a place, a dwelling-place (used alone, and both as a prefix and postfix, in the names of places), as Stowe, in Northamptonshire, Stowmarket, Chepstow (market-place).

To stow, to pack close together; stowed (1 syl.), stow'-ing.

Stow'-age, room for stowing, money paid for stowing goods, the act or operation of stowing.

Old Eng. stow, a place. "To stow" is to pack things in a place.

Strabismus, stra.biz'mūs, a squint. (Latin strābo, to squint.)

Straddle, strād'.d'l, the legs wide apart, to walk, &c. with long loops; straddled, strād'.d'ld; stradd'ling, stradd'ling-ly, straddler. (Old English strād, a stride.)

Straggle, sträg'.g'l, to stray, to move in different directions; straggled, sträg'.g'ld; strag'gling, strag'gling-ly, strag'gler. (Old English stræg[an], to spread, to disperse.)

Straight, strāte, not crooked. Straight, narrow (which see).

(Comp.) straight'-er, (super.) straight'-est.

Straight'-ly, in a straight manner. Strait-ly, strictly.

Straight'-ness, evenness, directness. Strait-ness, narrowness.

Straighten, strait'n, to make straight. Straiten, to reduce to money difficulties or narrow circumstances (-en converts adj. to verbs); straightened, strait'nd; straight-en-ing, strait'n-ing; straighten-er, strait'n-er.

Straight-forward (adj.), straight-forwards (adv.)

Straight-for'ward-ness, straight-for'ward-ly.

Straight-way, immediately. Straightways (not in use).

"Straight," Old English strac or stræc; Latin strictus, straight.

"Strait," French estroit, now étroit; Latin strictus, strict or tight.

Strain, strāne, a violent effort, an injury from great exertion, force exerted in stretching, a clause of music, a song, a sound, to purify by filtration, to stretch, to force; strained (1 syl.), strain'-ing; strain'-er, a filter.

Straining-piece, a piece of timber to keep two others apart

A straining for effect, a forced effort to produce a sensation.

"Strain" (to stretch), Fr. estreindre, now étréindre; Lat. stringere.

"Strain" (of music), Danish stræng string, the sound of a stringed instrument, strængleg performance on a stringed instrument; German strung, a string.

"Strain" (to filter), is to pour liquids through a cloth strained over an open vessel, or through a strainer.

Strait, narrow, a neck of water. Straight, strāte, not crooked.

Strait-waistcoat, -vēs'-cūt, a contrivance for confining the arms of violent and refractory prisoners and lunatics.

Strait'-ly, strictly, narrowly. Straight'-ly, evenly.

Strait'-ness, narrowness. Straight'-ness, directness.

Strait'-laced, bigoted, prim, formal and severe.

- Strait'-en, to reduce to money difficulties or narrow circumstances. Straight'-en, to make straight. Straitened, strait'nd; straiten-ing, strait'n-ing (-en = to make).
 "Strait," French estroit, now étroit; Latin strictus, strict or tight.
 "Straight," Old English strac or stræc; Latin strictus, straight.
- Stränd, a beach, one of the strings of which a rope is composed, to drive on a shore or shallow, to run aground; strand'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), strand'-ing.
 "Strand" (a shore), Old English strand; German strand.
 "Strand" (of a rope), German strähne, a strand, hank, or skeln.
- Stränge (1 syl.), odd, not known before, foreign; (comp.) strang'-er, (super.) strang'-est, stränge'est; strange'-ly.
Strange'-ness. Strange'-looking. To feel strange, unfamiliar with surrounding circumstances.
- Stranger, a foreigner, a visitor, one not before known.
- Estrange, es.trange', to alienate affection, to make those once on good terms "strangers" to each other; estranged' (2 syl.), estrang'-ing (e- = en-, to make).
 French estranger now étrange, étranger; Latin extraneus, foreign.
- Strangle, străn'.g'l, to suffocate, to burke; strangled, străn'.g'ld; stran'gling, stran'gler. The strangles, străn'.g'lz, a throat disease in horses (under the jaw).
- Strangulation, străn'.gu.lay'.shŭn, suffocation.
- Strangulate, străn'.gu.late, to strangle; stran'gulāt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), stran'gulāt-ing ((Rule xiv.)
 Latin strangŭlātio, strangŭlātus, strangŭlāre; Greek straggālōō.
- Strangury, străn'.gu.ry, a disease; strangu'rious, adj.
 Latin strangŭria; Greek stragg-ouria (stragg that which oozes out in drops, oureo to stale, to stale by driblets).
- Sträp, a narrow band of leather, a thong, an iron plate for connecting two or more timbers to which it is bolted or screwed, to bind with a strap, to fasten together with sticking plaster or a band, to beat [with a strap].
- Strapped, sträpt; strapp'-ing (Rule i.), strapp'-er.
- Razor strap or strop, for setting razors and penknives.
- Strapping-great [fellow], very tall and strong.
- A strapping wench, a masculine bouncing woman.
- Strap'-shape (in Bot.); strap'-shaped, the length some five or six times greater than the breadth.
 Old Eng. stropp; Lat. strupus, the strap of an oar; Gk. strōphos, a belt or band (from stropho, to twist or turn).
- Stratagem (ought to be strategem, Greek stratēgēma from stratēgos, a general), strät'.ă.djem, generalship, a fluke.
 The spelling of this word ought at once to be amended, especially as all the derivatives are correct.

- Strate'gies, the science of military movements (Rule lxi.)
- Strategic, strā.tee'.djik; strategical, strā.tee'.djī.kūl; strategical-ly, strā.tee'.djī.kūl.ly. Strategical point, any position in war which aids the work in hand.
- Strategy, plu. strategies, strāt'.e.djiz, a complicated military operation; strategist, strāt'.ē.djist.
 Greek strātēgōs a general, strātēgikōs, strātēgia, strātēgēma (stratos hēgōmai, to lead an army; ago, imperative ēgon).
- Stratify, strāt'.i.fy, to dispose in layers, to lie in strata; stratifies, strāt'.i.fize; stratified, -i.fide; stratify-ing.
- Stratification, strāt'.i.fī.kay''shūn.
- Stratiform, strāt'.i.form, in layers or strata.
- Stratum, strā'.tūm, (plu.) strata, strā'.tah.
 Latin strātum, strāti-fīciō[faciō]; French stratification.
- Stratocracy, strā.tōk'.rā.sy, military government.
 Greek stratos krātēo, the army rules. (See Aristocracy.)
- Strā'tum, plu. strata, strā'.tah, a layer. (See Stratify.)
- Straw, a stalk of corn, stalks of corn collectively.
- Straws, definite plu. of straw, as two or three straws.
- To straw, to strew straw, to strew, to cover with straw; strawed (1 syl.), straw'-ing. Straw'-y.
- Straw'-colour; straw'-coloured, -kūl'lrd.
- Straw'-plait, -plāt. Straw'-paper. Straw'-rope.
 Old English stre, streaw, streow, or streu, v. streow[ian].
- Straw-berry, plu. strawberries, straw'.bēr rīz, a fruit.
 Old English streow-berie or strew-berie, the straggling berry. The reference being to the runners, which stray great lengths.
- Stray, gone astray, left by mistake, to wander, to err; strayed, straid (Rule xiii.); stray'-ing, stray'-er.
 Old Eng. stræg[an] to disperse, past strade, past part. stredde.
- Streak, streek, a long mark of a different colour to the "ground," to variegate with lines of a different colour, to stripe; streaked, streckt; streak'-ing, streak'-y, streaki-ness.
 Old English strica or strie, a stroke, v. strie[an]: German strich.
- Stream, stream, a current of [water], a river, to flow in a current, to issue forth abundantly; streamed (1 syl.), stream'-ing.
- Stream'-er, a pennon, ribbon on the hat of a recruit, any light article, as paper, ribbon, hair, &c., left to float in the air. Streamers, stream'.erz. Stream'-y.
- Stream'-let, a little stream. Stream-anchor, -ān'.kor, one used for warping (it is smaller than a bower, but larger than a kedge). Stream-ice. Stream-tin. Stream-works.
 O. Eng. stredm or stroom, v. stredm[ian], p. stredmede, p. p. stredmed.

Street. Road. High-way. Lāne (1 syl.) By'-way.

Street, a paved way (in a city, town, or village).

Road, a way for riders or horses and carriages.

High'-way, a main road for public use. The high-seas mean the main ocean for the use of all nations.

The sea three miles out belongs to the adjacent coast, and is called mare clausum; the "high-sea" is mare altum. So the high-road is public property, a private-road is the property of a private individual, a by-way is a borough road, by = borough, as in Der-by.

Street'-crossing. Street'-door. Street'-walker, a harlot.

Old English stræt, strat, or stret; Latin stratum, a pavement.

Strength, muscular power, great cohesive power, vigour, richness of quality, amount of force, military force.

-th added to adjectives converts them to nouns: as "long," length; "strong," strength; "broad," breadth; "true," truth, &c.

Strength'-en, to make strong (-en, to make, converts nouns and adj. to verbs); strength'-ened (2 syl.), strength'-en-ing, strength'-en-er. On the strength of, in reliance on, in consideration of, in confidence imparted by.

Strong, (comp.) strong-er, strong'-gur, (super.) strong-est, strong'-quest; strong-ly.

Old Eng. strengo, strengeo, strengtho, strengthu; strength, strencgth, or streneth, adj. streng or strang.

Similarly leneg or length, from the adjective leng or lang, &c.

Strenuous. strēn'-u ūs, energetic; stren'-uous-ly, -ness.

Latin strēnuus; Greek strénos, excess of strength.

Stress, force, importance, urgency. Stress of weather, unfavourable weather. (Fr. destresse now détresse, distress.)

Stretch, extension, the space covered by the open hand from thumb to little finger, to elongate, to strain, to exaggerate; stretched (1 syl.), stretch'-ing. Stretch'-er, one who exaggerates, a piece of timber to keep others extended, a frame for carrying a person hurt, a litter, an instrument for extending boots, shoes, gloves, &c.

Old Eng. strec or strac; v. strece[an], past strehle, past p. ge-strech.

Strew, to scatter; strewed (1 syl.), strew'-ing, (past part.) strewn or strewed ("strewn" is a corrupt form).

Old English strew[ian], past strewode, past part. strewod.

"Strewn," Old Eng. strewen, means made of straw, not scattered.

Striæ, strī'-ē, fine thread-like streaks; striate, strī'-ate, marked with striæ; stri'ated (Rule xxxvi.)

Striation, strī.-ā'.shūn, state of being streaked.

Latin stria plural striæ, striātus, v. striāre.

Strict, severe in discipline, exact, accurate, not indulgent; (comp.) strict'-er, (super.) strict'-est, strict'-ly, -ness.

Stricture, strĭk'ichŭr, a criticism, a morbid contraction of some passage of the body; strictured, strĭk'ichŭrd.

French strict; Latin strictus (stringo supine strictum, to strain).

Stride (1 syl.), a straddle, a long step, to stalk, to stand with the legs apart; (past) strōde (1 syl.), past part. stridden, strĭd'n; strid-ing (R. xix.), strĭ.ding; strid'-er, strĭ.der.

"Strid" and "rid," as past tenses of stride and ride, are mere vulgarisms, although chid and slid are the accepted past tenses of chide and slide. We have five words of the same category—

Abide	abode	[abidden]	from	bide	bidd	biden .
Chide	[chode]	chid	chidden	cide	edd	ciden .
Ride	rode		ridden	ride	rdd	riden .
Slide	[slode]	slid	slidden	dslide	dsidd	dsiden .
Stride	strode		stridden	stride	strĭth	strĭden .

Stridulous, strĭd'dŭ.lŭs, creaking. (Latin stridŭlus.)

Strife (1 syl.), contention; strife'-ful (Rule viii.), contentious.

Strive, (past) strove, (past part.) striven, strĭv'n; striv-ing (Rule xix.), strĭ.ving; striv-er, strĭ.ver.

Old English strith; Welsh ystrin, to strive; German stroben.

"Strive" is formed on the model of our native verbs drive, shrive, thrive, and rive, but is not a native. It therefore belongs to the weak conjugations, and ought to be strive, p. strived, p. p. strived.

Strike (1 syl.), past strŭck, past part. striken, strĭk'n; striking, strĭ.king, to give a blow, to make an attack, to beat the water in swimming, (noun stroke), to sound a bell, to coin or mint, to lower a sail or flag, to make [a bargain], to surprise, to occur to one's mind, to refuse to work on the same conditions; (noun) a bushel of pollard, bran, randan, &c., a flat piece of wood for levelling pollard, &c., with the top of the measure, a cessation of work by men who refuse to continue working on the same terms, the direction of a stratum (always at right angles to the dip).

Strik-er, strĭ.her, one who strikes. Striking-ly, remarkably.

Strōke (1 syl.), stroked (1 syl.); strok-ing, strō.king, to smoothe with the hand, to rub very gently.

Noun an attack [of palsy, apoplexy, &c.], a touch, a [masterly] act or effort, the sweep of an oar, the upward and downward motion of a piston, a gentle rub.

Strokesman, plu. strokesmen, the leader of a crew of rowers.

To strike a balance, to make up an account by striking out the smaller quantity of the credit or debit side.

To strike a jury, to constitute a jury by striking out the names not about to serve.

To strike hands, to make a compact.

To strike in, to join in a game after the sides are made up.

To strike off, to erase, to print.

To strike out, to efface, to devise, to swim.

To strike sail, to lower a sail. To strike colours.

To strike up, to begin to dance or play.

Strick'en in years, advanced in age. Well stricken...

Old English a-stric[an], past a-stride, past part. a-stricen; stric, strac, are found in White's Ormulum.

String, twine. the cord of a musical instrument, a series, to put strings on a musical instrument, &c., (past) strung, (past part.) strung, string'-ing; string'-y, full of fibre, ropy; string'-i-ness (Rule xi.), string'-less, string'-er.

String'-board (of a staircase).

String'-course, an outside band running along the walls of a house at the base of the first floor.

String'halt, a sudden twitching of the hind leg of a horse.

Old Eng. string, streng, or strengc. The verb is modern, and formed on the model of swing, wring. In Old Eng. the verbs cling, ring, sing, spring, sting, swing, and wring, made clang, hrang, sang, sprang, stang, swang, and wrang in the past tense.

Stringent, strin'.djent, severe, urgent, binding strongly; strin'-gent-ly. Stringency, strin'.djēn.sy, urgency.

Latin stringens genitive stringentis, v. stringere, to bind.

Strip, to undress, to make bare, to plunder, to take off; stripped (1 syl.), stripp'-ing, stripp'-er. (See below.)

Old Eng. be-stryp[an], past be-strypde, past part. be-striped.

Stripe (1 syl.), a long narrow line of a different colour to the ground, a streak, a blow in punishment, to streak, to punish; striped (1 syl.); strip-ing, stri'.ping. (See above.)

German streif, v. streifen, streifig streaky.

Stripling, strip'.ling, a lad (that is, strip'-ling, a little strip).

Strive (1 syl.), to make an effort, to struggle to obtain, to contend in emulation; (past) ströve, (past part.) striven, striv'n; striv-ing (Rule xix.), stri'.ving; striv'-er.

Strife (1 syl.), contention; (plu.) strifes (1 syl.)

Old Eng. strith; Welsh ystrin, to strive; German streben.

"Strive" is formed on the model of drive, thrive, shrive, and rive, but not being a native verb, should be strive, strived, strived.

Stroke (1 syl.), a blow, a dash, a touch, a masterly act, a mark with pen or pencil, the sweep of an oar, the upward and downward motion of a piston, a sudden attack, to smoothe, to smoothe with the hand, to rub gently; stroked (1 syl.); strok-ing (Rule xix.), strö' king.

Strokes-man, plu. -men, the man whose stroke leads the rest of the rowers in the same boat.

Old English stric or strica, v. stric[ian], stricung.

Strong, (comp.) strong'-er, strong'-gur, (super.) strong'-est, strong'-guest, having great muscular power, tough; strong'-ly. Strong'-box. Strong'-built. Strong'-hand. Strong'-hold. Strong'-minded. Strong'-set.

Strength. Strength'-en, to make strong; strengthened, strenght'n'd; strengthen-ing, strenght'n-ing; strength-en-er, strenght'n-er. (-th denotes an abstract noun.)

Old English strong, streng, strang, or straeng, strangle adj., strangle adv., strength, strengthu, strengcth, &c.

Strontian, strōn'.shū.ăn, an alkaline earth (it gives a red-colour to flame in fire-works).

Strontium, strōn'.shū.ăm, the metallic base of strontian.

Strontianite, strōn'.shū.ăn.ite, the carbonate of strontian.

Strontitio, strōn'tīt'.ik, adj. of strontian.

From Strontian, in Argyllshire. Also called strontia.

Strop, a strip of leather for sharpening razors and penknives, to sharpen on a strop; stropped, strōpt; stropp'-ing R.i. (Old Eng. stropp; Lat. strupus, a strap.) See Strap.

Strophē, strof'fy, (among the ancient Greeks) that part of a song or dance which was performed by turning from the right to the left of the orchestra, the first two stanzas of a heptameter choral ode. Antistrophe, ăn.tīs'.trōf.y, the an'tiphone (3 syl.) of a strophe and constructed in the same metre.

Greek strophē, antistrophē (v. strophō, to turn round); because the dancers turned round to one side of the orchestra.

Strōw (to rhyme with grōw), to strew; strowed (1 syl.), strow'-ing, (past part.) strown (to rhyme with grōwn).

Old Eng. streow[ian], past streowode, past part. streowod.

The past part. strown is a corrupt form, on the model of "blow," blown; "know," known; "mow," mown; "sow," sown; "throw," thrown. "Sew," sewn, is another corrupt form on the same model.

Structure, strūk'.tchūr. Texture, tex'.tchūr.

Structure, the condition in which the component parts of a substance are put together.

Texture, the manner in which the component particles of a substance are put together.

In granite the structure may be in large tabular masses; the texture may be hard or soft, close-grained or crystalline.

In cloth the structure pertains to the web and warp, the way they are arranged, and the strength of the thread employed; the texture has regard to the fineness or coarseness of the fabric, its smoothness or roughness, its harshness or flexibility.

In wood the structure regards the nature of the tree and its general build; the texture refers to its grain and visible appearance.

Structure, a building; structural, strūk'.tchūr.ăl.

Construction, kōn.strūk'.shūn, the putting together, make.

Latin structūra, a building; textūra, a weaving (v. struo).

Struggle, strŭg'g'l, a great effort, a wrestle, a convulsive action; to struggle; struggled, strŭg'g'ld; strugg'ling, strugg'-ling-ly, strugg'ler. (Welsh ystreiglo.)

Strŭm, to play badly on a musical instrument; strummed, strŭmd; strŭmm'-ing (R. i.), strumm'-ing-ly, strumm'-er.

German strumper, a smatterer, a bungler, v. strumpen. (Our word should be strump, not "strum.")

Struma, strŭ'mah, scrofula; strumous, strŭ'mŭs, adj.

Lat. strŭma, strumŭsus (Gk. strŭma, "quod gutturi substrata est").

"Struma est tumor, in quo subter concreta quedam ex pure et sanguine, quasi glandulæ, oriuntur."—Cels v. 23, 7.

Strumpet, strŭm'pĕt, a harlot, a prostitute. (Latin stuprum.)

Strŭt, an affected gait, a piece of slanting timber, to walk with affected dignity; strŭtt'-ed (R. xxxvi.), strutt'-ing (R. i.), strutt'-ing-ly, strutt'-er. (Danish strutte, to strut.)

Strychnine, stri'k'nĭn, or strychnia, stri'k'nĭah; the active principle of nux vomica; strychnic, stri'k'nĭk.

Greek strucnŭs; Latin strychnus, nightshade (Plin. xli. 52).

Stŭb, anything short and stumpy. To stub up, to grub up, to extirpate; stubbed, stŭbd; stubb'-ing (R. i.), stŭbb'-er.

Stŭbb'-y, stubb'i-ness. Stub'-end. Stub'-nail.

Danish stub, a stub or stump, v. stubbe; Old English, steb, a boll.

Stubble, stŭb'b'l, the stumps of cut corn; stubbled, stŭb'b'ld, covered with stubble. Stubble-fed.

Danish stub (with dim.); German stopfel.

Stubborn, stŭb'bŕn, obstinate; stub'bŕn-ly, stub'bŕn-ness.

Old English stŭb bŕyn, stock bearing; that is, "bearing" oneself as a "stock." Chaucer calls it stibborne.

Stucco, plu. stuccoes (Rule xlii.), stŭk'kŕze, a plaster in imitation of stone, to plaster with stucco; stuccoed, stŭk'kŕde; stucco-ing, stucco-er. (Italian stucco, Spanish estuco.)

"Mot que Ménage dérive de l'allemand stuck (fragment) parce que le stuc se fait avec des pierres concassées."

Stŭd, an ornamental knob, a double-headed button removable at will, a prop, a joist, a collection of horses, to gem, to adorn with studs; stŭdd'-ed (R. xxxvi.), studd'-ing (R. i.) (Studied, stŭd'ded, past tense of study.)

Studding-sail, a light sail set when the weather is fair at the outer edge of a square sail to increase its expanse.

Stud-horse, a stallion. Stud'-groom. Stud'-book.

Old Eng. studu, stuth, stutho, stŭde, or stŕd, stŕd-horse, stŕd-myre.

Student, stŭ'dent, one who studies. (See Study.)

Studio, plu. studios (Rule xlii.), the work-room of an artist.

Study, stŭd'dy, the book-room or library used for literary work and thought. (Italian studio.)

Study, plu. studies, stūd'dy, plu. stūd dīz, mental application, any branch of learning on which the mind is bent with a view of mastering it, a library set apart for study, a work to be studied and imitated, to study; studies, stūd'dīz; studied, stūd'ded, considered attentively (studded, adorned with studs); stud'dy-ing.

Student, stū'dent, one under literary training; student-ship (-ship, office or appointment, state or condition of).

Studious, stū'dī.ōūs (not stū'djūs), attentive to study; stu'dious-ly, stu'dious-ness. Studio (see above).

Lat. stūdiūm, stūdiōsus, v. stūdeo (Gk. speudo, Doric studeo).

Stufa, stū'fah. Tufa, tu'fah. Stupa, stū'pah. Stupor.

Stufa, a fissure from which jets of steam issue.

Tufa, a porous rock composed of scorise and ashes.

Stupa (in Bot.), a tuft of "hair" matted together.

Stu'por, torpor, extreme amazement, insensibility.

"Stufa," Italian stufa, hothouse fumigation, a hothouse stove.

"Tufa" (a blunder for tufo), Italian tufo, a porous stone.

"Stupa," Latin stupa, tow. "Stupor," Latin stūpor, amazement.

Stūff, the material of which anything is made, the woven fabric of cloth, something worthless and nonsensical, to cram, to fill with forcemeat, to fill out the skin of a dead animal and give it the appearance of life, to fill out a bed, chair-bottom, or cushion; stuffed, stūft; stūff-ing, cramming, that which is used for forcemeat, that which is used for filling cushions, &c.; stūff'er.

Household stuff, the furniture of a house.

Stuffing-box, the packed arrangement at the end of a piston-rod to make it close-fitting.

Stūff-gown, an outer barrister. Silk'-gown, an inner barrister or queen's counsel.

It is interesting to see how the different sorts of cloth have been applied to literary productions: thus, bombast (bombyx, the silk-worm), fustian, silken [words], stuff, shoddy, velvet [phrases], &c.

German stoff, v. stofften; stofflos, worthless. Danish stof.

Stultify, stultifies, stūl'.tī.fīze; stultified, stūl'.tī.fīde; stultify-ing (Rule xi.), to render of no effect, to cause to appear worthless, to counteract; stultify-er.

Stultification, stūl'.tī.fī.kay''shūn, contravention.

Latin stultus ficio [facio], to make foolish. The following might be introduced: stultiloquent, stultiloquence, and stultiloquous (Lat. stultiloquentia, stultiloquus, &c.)

Stumble, stūm'.b'l, a tripping, a blunder, to trip, to make an error; stumbled, stūm'.b'ld; stum'bling, stum'bling-ly, stum'bler. Stumbling-block. Stone of stumbling.

Danish stump, a stump, a fragment. To trip against a stump, &c.

Stūmp, the end left of a tree after the trunk has been cut down, (in Cricket) one of the three straight rods (27 inches high) set in the ground a little behind the poping crease.

The three stumps set up with two balls on the top constitute a wicket.

To stump, to walk clumsily and heavily, to spout political and sensational speeches, to lop or curtail; stumped, stūmpt; stump'-ing, stump'-er, stump'-y.

Stump' orator, one who stands on a stump or any temporary elevation to make a sensational harangue on some topic of the day. Stump oratory.

To stump out (in Cricket), to knock down a stump or wicket according to certain fixed laws of the game.

Stir [your] stumps, get on faster, bestir yourself.

German stump, the end of a broken mast; stumpf, a stump.

Stūn, to stupefy with noise or a blow; stunned, stūnd; stunn'-ing (R. i.), stunn'-er. (O. E. stun[ian], p. -de, p. p. -ed.)

Stūnt, to stop the growth; stunt'-ed, stunt'-ed-ness, stunt'-ing.

Old Eng. stunt blunt, v. stint[an], p. stant, p. p. stunten.

Stūpe (1 syl.) Stoop. Stoup. Stǔǔ.

Stupe, flax used for fomenting purposes, to foment with stupes; stuped (1 syl.); stup-ing (Rule xix.), stū'-ping.

Stupa, stū'-pah. Stupor, stū'-p'r. Stufa, stū'-fah. Tufa.

Stupa (in Bot.), a matted hair-like tuft. Stu'pose, -poze.

Stupor, insensibility from emotion or disease.

Stufa, hot vapour issuing from the earth.

Tufa, a porous rock composed of scorix and ashes.

"Stupe," Latin stūpa, flax, tow." "Stupor," Latin stūpor.

"Stufa," Italian stufa, hothouse fumigation, a hothouse stove.

"Tufa" (a blunder for tufo), Italian tufo, a porous stone.

Stupefy, stū'-pe.fy (not stupify, as it is often written), to make stupid, to deprive of sensibility or to blunt it; stupefies, stū'-pě.fize; stupefied, stū'-pě.fide; stupefi-ex, stu'pefy-ing (Rule xi.), stu'pefying-ly.

Stupefaction (not stupifaction), stū'-pe.fūk''-shūn.

Stupefactive, stū'-pě.fūk''-tīv, tending to stupefy.

Stupefactor (Rule xxxvii.), whatever causes stupefaction.

Latin stūpēfio, stūpēfactio, stūpēfactor, stupefactus, v. stupeo to astonish. Morland says it is from the Greek tupto, to strike.

Stupendous, stū.pěn'.dūs (not stū.pěn'.djūs), astounding, astonishing from its vastness, &c.; stupen'dous-ly, stupen'-dous-ness. (Latin stupendus.)

Stupid, stū'.pid, dull of intellect, foolish or careless.

Stupidity, stū.pid' .ā.ty. Stu'pid-ness, stu'pid-ly.

Stupor, stū'p'r, insensibility wholly or partial.

Stupefy, stupefier, stupefied, stupefy-ing. (See Stupefy.)

Latin stūpidus, stūpiditas; stūpor (v. stūpeo, to amaze).

Stur'dy, (comp.) stur'di-er, (super.) stur'di-est, tough, hardy; stur'di-ness, stur'di-ly. (Icelandic stídr, stiff.)

Sturgeon, stur'djūn, a fish; sturionian, stū'rī.ō'.nī.ān, adj. of sturgeon, one of the sturgeon family.

Old English stiriga; French esturgeon; Latin sturio.

Stutter, stūl'ler. Stam'mer.

Stutter, to repeat a sound several times before the required word is articulated.

Stammer, to hesitate in giving the full pronunciation of certain words, and occasionally to repeat syllables from a difficulty in pronouncing the word or words required.

Stuttered, stūl'terd; stutter-ing, stuttering-ly, stutter-er.

"Stutter," German stottern, stotterer, stotterig.

"Stammer," Old English stamor, v. stammen, to dam up.

Sty, plu. sties, stize. Sty, plu. sty, sty, plu. stize.

Sty, a place for pigs, a place filthy and disorderly, to shut up in a sty; sties, stize; stied, stide; sty-ing.

Stye, an inflamed tumor on the edge of the eyelid or border of the eye. Called in Norfolk styna, stī'nah.

"Sty," Old Eng. stige, v. stigan, past stigde, past part. stiged.

"Stye," a corruption of Old Eng. stīth-ic, a little stiff thing; hence stīth-ecg, a stiff-edge: stīthnes, stiffness.

Stygian, stīdg'ī.ān, infernal, adj. of Styx, the chief river of the infernal regions, round which it flows seven times.

Latin stygius, Styx; Greek stuglos, stux (slugos, hatred, abhorred).

Style. Stile (both stīle).

Style, mode, fashion, phraseology, title; a pointed instrument for writing on wax tablets, hence the character of a composition or of penmanship; the gnomon of a sun-dial which projects the shadow; (in Bot.) the stalk between the ovary and the stigma; to designate; styled (1 syl.); styl-ing (Rule xix.), stī'ling.

Stylar, stī'lar, pertaining to a gnomon.

Styl-ish, stī'lish, fashionable; styl-ish-ly, styl-ish-ness.

Stylite, stī'lite, a pillar-saint. Stylites, stī.lī'teez, an agnōmen given to pillar-saints.

We say Simeon the stylite or Simeon Stylites, Daniel the stylite of Constantinople or Daniel Stylites of Constantinople.

New Style, the present method of reckoning dates.

Old Style, the date-system of the unreformed calendar.

Stile, a step or short ladder over a fence. The gnomon of a dial is spelt either stile or style (y is preferable).

"Style," Latin stylus; Greek stûlē; French style, stylite.

"Stile," Old Eng. stigel or stighel (stig, a path; stigan, to climb).

Styptic, stîp'tîk, an astringent, something to stop local bleeding, Latin stypticus; Greek stûptîkos (stûpho, to act astringently).

Styrian, stîr'ri.ăn, a native of Styria, adj. of Styria.

Styx, the chief river of the infernal regions. Sticks (of wood),

Suasion, swā'.zhûn. Persuasion, per.swā'.zhûn.

Suasion, persuasive force, as moral suasion.

Persuasion, way of thinking, act of persuading.

Suasive, swā'.zûv, plausible, likely to convince; suasively.

Latin suādere supine suasum, to persuade (suavis, sweet).

Snavity, swāv'.x.ty, urbanity, sweetness of manners.

Latin suāvitās (suavis; Greek hêdus, sweet).

Suastika, plu. -kas, sū.ăs'.tî.kah, the sacred emblem of the A'ryrian race and about equal to the Greek eu-estî (God bless you)

or

Sub- (Latin prefix), under, below, inferior.

"Sub" always retains its b—

(1) Before the five vowels: a, e, i, o, u.

(2) Before three of the four liquids: l, n, r (not always before m).

(3) Before three of the five labials: b, v, w (not always before p: and before f it is always changed to s).

(4) Before one of the two dentals, d, t, but not always before t.

(5) Before both j and g.

Before c, in thirteen examples it is sub, in six suc, and in one sus (susceptible).

Before g, in three examples it is sub, and in one sug (suggest).

Before m, in ten examples it is sub, and in one sum (summon).

Before p, in two examples it is sub, in nine sup, and in one sus (suspend and suspense).

Before s, in seventeen examples it is sub, and in one sus [su'] (suspect and suspicion).

Before t, in nine examples it is sub, and in one sus (sustain and sustenance).

The following is a list of the words in which the b is changed:

Succedaneum, succeed and success, succinate, succinct, succour, succumb; susceptible. Suggest. Summon.

Supplant, supplement, suppliant, supply, support, suppose and supposititious, suppress, suppurate. Suspend and suspense.

Suspect and suspicion. Sustain and sustenance.

It will be observed that the change takes place in the verbs and their cognate nouns. Never in what is called nomenclature.

Sub- (in Nomenclature) denotes in chemistry an acid or substance named inferior in quantity to the base.

In words relating to family, order, genus, species, variety, organs, companies, and so on, it denotes one of the same class but inferior in size or importance, or one of the same class acting under the over-class.

In all these cases sub remains unchanged, whatever the vowel may be which follows it—

- ¶ Salts in which the base is in excess of the acid (a)
 Compounds in which the base is in excess of the substance named in the word (b)
 A board, agent, &c., acting under a superior management .. (c)
 An inferior of a family, order, genus, species, &c. .. (d)
 One of a set or class lower in order or inferior in functional importance to others of the same name, of the nature of .. (e)
 In a moderate or inferior degree or quantity, underhand .. (f)
 Verbs or their cognate nouns beginning with the letters c, f, g, m, p, s .. (g)
 Meaning under, below, in, joined to, dependent, following, next, negative (h)
 "Sub" for sup, that is, supra out of, above (i)

Sub-acid, -as'sīd, a substance moderately acid (f)

Sub-acrid, -āk'-rīd, a substance moderately acrid (f)

Sub-acute, -a-kūte, moderately acute (f)

Sub-aerial, -ā.ē'.rī.āl, in the open air (h)

Sub-agent, an agent acting under a superior one (c)

Subah, sū'.bāh, a province or viceroyship of India or Persia.

Subah-dah, sū'.bāh.dāh', governor of a subah (ranks as a captain); subah-ship, jurisdiction of a subahdah.

Sub-altern, sūb'.āl.t'n, a military officer below the rank of captain, a subordinate (Latin sub alter) (c)

Subalternate, sūb'.āl.ter''.nāte, succeeding in turn.

Subalternation, sub.āl.ter-nay''.shūn.

Sub-an'gular, slightly angular (f)

Sub-Apennines, -āp'.ē.nīnes (in Geo.), an extensive development of Pliocene (pli'.ō.seen) beds on both flanks of the Apennines (d)

Sub-aqueous, -ā'.kwě.ūs, immersed in water (h)

Sub-astringent, -as.trīn'.djent, moderately astringent .. (f)

Sub-axillary, -ax.āl.lū.ry (in Bot.), placed under the axil of a branch or leaf (h)

Sub'-base (2 syl.), the deepest pedal stop, or the lowest notes of an organ (lower than the base) (h)

Sub-carburet, -kar'.būr.ēt, a compound in which the base is in excess of the carbon; sub-car'burett-ed (a)

The extra t ought to be dropped in this word, and in epaulett-ed, rivett-ed, wainscott-ed. We write banquet-ed, carpet-ed, carrot-y, closet-ed, coronet-ed, gantlet-ed, garret-ed, helmet-ed, poss'et-ed (R. iii.)

Sub-cartilage, -kar'.tī.lage, partaking of the nature of cartilage; sub-cartilaginous, partially cartilaginous (e)

Sub-cau'dal, beneath the tail (Latin cauda, the tail) .. (h)

(For the meaning of the reference letters see pages 1233-4.)

Sub-class, a subordinate class (d)

Sub-clavian, -kla'.vī.ăn, under the clav'icle or collar-bone (h)

Latin cāvicūla clāvis, a key.

Sub-colum'nar, not perfectly columnar (f)

Sub-committee, -kōm.mīl'.tee (double m, double t, and double e), part of a larger committee named off to act independently and report to the committee (c)

Sub-conical, -kōn'.ī.kāl, slightly conical (f)

Sub-contract, -kon'.tract, a contract taken from a contractor and not from the original party (c)

Sub-contrary, plu. -contraries, -kōn'.tra.rīz (in Geom.), applied to similar triangles so placed as to have a common vertex, while the bases do not coincide (e)

In the famous pons asinōrum, Bk. I, prop. 5, of Euclid, the triangles ABG, ACF, have a common vertex A, but the base FC does not coincide with the base EG.

(In Logic), applied to propositions which agree in quantity, but not in quality, as some men are wise, some men are not wise.

Sub-cordate, -kor'.dāte, somewhat heart-shaped (f)

Sub-cos'tal, under the ribs (Latin costa, a rib) (h)

Sub-crystalline, -krīś'.tāl.line, imperfectly crystallised (f)

Latin crystallus; Greek krystallos. Hence the double l.

Sub-cutaneous, -ku.tay'ně.ūs, immediately under the skin;
sub-cuticular, -ku.tīk'.u.lar, under the scarfskin (h)

Sub-deacon, -dee'.kōn, an assistant deacon (c)

Sub-dean, -deen, a dean's substitute; sub-dean'ery (c)

Sub-divide, -dī.vīde', to divide a division; sub-division,
-dī.vīzh'.un. (Latin divīdēre, supine divīsum, to divide.)

Sub-dōm'inant (in Music), the note below the dominant or fifth note, the fourth note of a scale in any key, i.e., the dominant of the descending scale (sub, inferior) (h)

Sub-due, -dū, to conquer, to reduce under dominion; sub-dued,
-dūde; subdu'-ing (verbs ending with any two vowels, except -ue, retain both before -ing); subdu'-er, subdu'āl, subdu'-able, subdue-ment (h)

Latin subdo (sub-do, to give under). To "subdue" means really to submit, and not to vanquish or cause to submit. In fact, subdue and submit should change meanings. Subdo, to give under or yield; submit, to send under or conquer. Subdōmo or subduco would have supplied a more suitable verb.

Sub-duplicate, -du'.plī.kāte, having the ratio of the square roots of two quantities (e)

Thus, the sub-duplicate of $a : b$ is $\sqrt{a} : \sqrt{b}$.

(For the meaning of the reference letters see pages 1233-4.)

Sub-editor, ščǎ́tor, an assistant editor (c)

Sub-genus, plu. -genuses, -djě́.nus, plu. -djě́.nūs.ěz, a subordinate genus; sub-generic, -dje.ně́r'rik (d)

Sub-globular, sub-glǒb'.u.lar (not sub-glǒ'.bu.lar), somewhat globular (f)

Sub-granular, -grǎn'.u.lar, somewhat granular (f)

Subito, su'.bǐ.to (in Musie), suddenly. (Italian súbito.)

Sub-jacent, -jǎ́.sent, lying below but not directly underneath; sub-jacent-ly, (Latin sub-jaceo) (g)

Sub-ject, (noun) sub'jekt, (verb) sub-jekt' (Rule 1.) (h)

Sub'ject, one who owes allegiance to a sovereign, a theme, a topic, something to be designed by an artist, a dead body for dissection, the predicable of a proposition.

Subject', subject'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), subject'-ing, to bring under, to subdue, to expose, to render liable.

Subjection, sűb'jek'.shűn. Subjective, sűb'jěk'.tív; sub-jjective-ly, subjective-ness. Sub'ject-matter.

Subjectivity, sűb'jěk'.tív'.ít.y, individuality, that which constitutes a mental impression.

Latin subiectio, subiectum (sub-jěcio [jǎcio], to lie under).

Sub-join', to add at the end, to affix; subjoined' (2 syl.), sub-join'-ing (Latin sub-jungo, to subjoin) (h)

Sub-jugate, sűb'.dju.gate, to bring under control; sub'jugāt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), sub'jugāt-ing (Rule xix.) (h)

Subjugation, sűb'.dju.gay''.shűn. Sub'jugāt-or.

Latin subjūgatio, subjūgatus, subjūgo (sub jūgum, under the yoke).

Subjunctive mood, sűb-jűnk'.tív, the mood of dependent tenses.

Subjunction, sűb-jűnk'.shűn (h)

Latin subjunctivus, subjunctio (sub jungo, to subjoin).

Sub-lapsarian, -lǎp.sair'ri.ăn. Supra-lapsarian.

Sub-lapsarian, one who believes that the plan of redemption was to meet the emergency of the fall.

Supra-lapsarian, one who believes that the plan of redemption was devised before the fall occurred.

Sub-lēt', let by a tenant to another tenant. The first tenant is responsible to the landlord, unless the landlord accepts the new tenant and releases the first (h)

Sub-lieutenant, -lěf.těn'.ant, an officer in the artillery and fusiliers below the lieutenant, second lieutenant (c)

Sublimate, sűb'.k.māte. Distil, dis.tíl' (i)

Sublimate, to vaporise a solid substance by heat.

Distil, to vaporise a liquid by heat.

(For the meaning of the reference letters see pages 1233-4.)

Sub'limāt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), sub'limāt-ing (Rule xix.)

Sublimation, sŭb'.lĭ.māy".shŭn. Distillation, ā'.shŭn.

Sublimation, conversion of solids into vapour by heat.

Distillation, conversion of liquids into vapour by heat.

Blue sub'limāte, a preparation of mercury, sulphur, and sal-ammoniac (used in painting).

Corrosive sub'limāte, kŏr rŏ'.sĭv..., bi-chloride of mercury.

Latin sublimatio, sublimātus, v. sublimāre (limus, mud), raised out from the mud. ("Sub" for sup) (i)

Sublime, lofty in style, exceeding grand, inspired, to sublimate; sublimed' (2 syl.); sublim-ing (Rule xix.), sub.lĭ'.mĭng.

Sublime'-ly, sublime'-ness. Sublimity, sŭb.lĭm'.ĭ.ty (i)

Latin sublimis, sublimitas (suplimis, &c., i.e. supra limus).

Sub-lingual, -lĭn'.gwāl, situated under the tongue. (h)

Sub-lunary, sŭb'.lu.nĕr ry (not sŭb.lŭ'.nĕr ry), terrestrial (h)

French sublunaire; Latin sub luna, under the moon.

Sub-marine, -ma.reen', under the sea, submerged in the sea.

Submarine telegraph, -tĕl'.ĕ.grāf (h)

French submarin; Latin sub marinus (sub mare, under the sea).

Sub-maxillary, -max.ĭl'.lă.ry, situated beneath the jaw (h)

Latin sub maxilla, maxillāris (mala, the cheek).

Sub-me'diant, the sixth note of a scale. Me'diant, the third.

"Mediant," so called because it divides the interval between the tonic and the dominant into two thirds. The submediant is the mediant or third note of the descending scale; as the subdominant is the dominant of the descending scale (h)

Sub-merge' (2 syl.), to put under water, to sink under water; submerged' (2 syl.), submerg'-ing (Rule xix.) (h)

Submergence, sŭb.mer'.djence.

Sub-merse' (2 syl.), to submerge; submersed' (2 syl.) submers'-ing (Rule xix.) Submersion, sŭb.mer'.shŭn.

Latin submersio, submergo supine submersum, to submerge.

Sub-metal'lic, imperfectly metallic (f)

Sub-mission, sŭb.mĭsh'.ŭn, resignation, yielding (h)

Submissive, sŭb.mĭs'.sĭv; submis'sive-ly, -mis'sive-ness.

Submit', to yield, to cease to resist; submitt'-ed (R. xxxvi.), submitt'-ing (Rule iii.), submitt'-er.

Latin submitio, v. sub-mittere supine submitsum, to submit.

Sub-mit, to send under, and subdue, to give under, should change meanings; submit should signify to conquer or vanquish, and subdue to yield or give up. In Latin submitto means primarily to put in subjection, and subdo to lay down [arms], although, without doubt, they bear the secondary meanings also.

(For the meaning of the reference letters see pages 1233-4.)

Sub-multiple, -mŭl'.tī.p'l, an aliquot part (e)
21 is a multiple of 3 or 7, and 3 or 7 are submultiples of 21.

Sub-ordinate, -or'.dī.nate, inferior in rank or importance, to place in order or rank below another, to account of less value; subor'dināt-ed (R. xxxvi.), subor'dināt-ing (R. xix.)

Subordination, sŭb.or'.dī.nay''.shŭn; subor'dinate-ly (e)
French subordination; Latin sub ordinatio, ordinātus, v. ordināre.

Sub-orn', to employ a person to take a false oath, to incite one to perjury; suborned' (2 syl.), suborn'-ing, suborn'-er.

Subornation, sŭb'.or.nay''.shŭn, the crime of suborning (f)
Latin subornatio, subornātus, v. subornāre. To "suborn" is to furnish [with an answer or with information] in an underhand way.

Sub-pœna, -pee'.nāh, a writ commanding attendance as a witness in a law-court, to serve a subpœna; subpœ'naed (3 syl.); subpœ'na-ing (not sub.pee'.nah.ring) (h)

The writ runs sub pœna centum librōrum . . . , under penalty of £100.

There are several kinds of subpœna writs—

(1) Subpœna ad testificandum, the ordinary subpœna, to come and bear witness in a trial.

(2) Subpœna duces tecum, commanding a person to bring with him certain writings or books in his possession bearing on the case.

(3) Subpœnas to hear judgment; for costs; to name an attorney, &c.

Sub-pri'or, the under prior (c)

Sub'-salt, -sŏlt, a salt in which the base is in excess of the acid; super-salt, in which the acid is in excess of the base (a)

Sub-scapular, -skŭp'pu.lar, pertaining to a large branch of the axillary artery rising near the lowest margin of the scapula [skŭp'pu.lāh]. (Lat. scāpŭla, the shoulder-blade.)

Sub-scribe (2 syl.), to write one's name underneath, to contribute (and write down your name in proof thereof), to assent; subscribed' (2 syl.), subscrib'-ing (R. xix.), subscrib'-er.

Subscription, sub.skŕip'.shŭn (h)

Latin scriptio, subscribere (sub scribo, to write under).

Sub-section, -sĕk'.shŭn, a section of a section. (d)

Sub-sellia, -sĕl'.lī.ah (plu.), the small shelving seats in the stalls of cathedral and other churches. (They turn up on hinges so as to relieve the posture of kneeling) (h)

Latin subsellium, a bench. Varro says: "ut subsĕpere, quod non plane sapit, sic quod non plane erat sella, subsellium dictum."

Sub-semitone, -sĕm'.tītōne, the semitone below the key-note, or the sharp seventh of any key (h)

Sub-sequent, sŭb'.sĕ.quent, following in sequence, succeeding; sub'sequent-ly (h)

Latin subsequens gen. subsequentis (sub sequor, to follow next).

(For the meaning of the reference letters see pages 1233-4.)

Sub-serve' (2 syl.), to help forward; subserved', subserv'-ing (Rule xix.) Subservient, süb.ser'.vĩ.ent, subservience, süb.ser'.vĩ.ense; subser'viency (g)

Latin subserviens genitive -servientis; v. subservio, to subserve.

Sub-side' (2 syl.), to settle, to become calm; subsid'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), subsid'-ing (Rule xix.) Sub'sidency .. (g)

Subsidence, süb'.sĩ.dense, dregs, sediment.

Latin subsĭdens gen. subsĭdentis (sub-sĭdeo[sĭdeo], to subside).

Sub-sidiary, plu. -sidiaries (Rule xlv.), süb.sĩd'ĩ.ă.rĩz, an aid, any thing that contributes in a minor degree to a performance, secondary, inferior, aiding (c)

Subsidy, plu. subsidies (R. xlv.), süb'.sĩ.dĩz, money aid, supply of men or money in time of war, money paid by one nation to another for auxiliary troops.

Subsidise, süb'.sĩ.dize (Rule xxxi.), to furnish with a subsidy, to purchase the aid of foreign troops by a sum of money; sub'sidised, sub'sidis-ing (Rule xix.)

Latin subsĭdium; subsĭdior, to stand by ready to help.

Sub-sist', to keep in existence; to subsist on, to live or feed on; subsist'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), subsist'-ing, subsis'tent .. (g)

Subsistence, süb.sĩs'.tense, livelihood, means of living.

Latin subsistere, subsistens genitive subsistentis (sisto, to bide).

Sub'-soil, the under-soil, the soil next below the surface .. (h)

Latin sub solum, under the ground or surface.

Sub-species (sing. and plu.), -spee'.shĭ.eze, species of a species (d)

Sub-stance, süb'.stānce, that of which a thing consists, the main part, goods, wealth, means of living, material .. (g)

Substantial, süb.stăn'.shāl, solid, stout, well-off; substan'-tial-ly, in the main; substan'tial-ness.

Substantiality, süb.stăn'.shĭ.ăł''ĩ.ty, materiality.

Substan'tials (no sing.), essential parts.

Substantiate, süb.stăn'.shĕ.ăte, to establish by proof; substan'tiāt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), substan'tiāt-ing (Rule xix.)

Substantive, süb'.stăn.tiv, a noun, solid, essential, real; sub'stantive-ly.

Latin substantia, substantiālis, substans genitive -stantis (sub sto, to stand under, to sustain).

Sub-stitute, süb'.stĭ.tüte, one who acts for another, to put one person or thing for another; sub'stitüt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), sub'stitüt-ing (R. xix.) Substitution, süb'.stĭ.tü''shün; substitution-al. Substitutive, süb'.stĭ.tu.tiv, conditional.

Latin substitutio, substitütivus, substitütus (sub-stituo[statuo], to appoint [one] under [another]).

(For the meaning of the reference letters see pages 1233-4.)

Sub-stratum, plu. substrata, süb.strä'tüm, süb.strü'tah, an under stratum, the permanent qualities &c. of phenomena.

French substratum, Latin sub stratum (h)

Sub-structure, -strük.tchür, the foundation or under structure.

Substruction, süb.strük'.shün (h)

Sub-style (2 syl.), the right line on which a style or gnomon is erected. Substylar, sub.stī'lar, adj. (h)

Sub-tan'gent, a term in conic sections (c)

Sub-ten'ant, a tenant who holds under a tenant (d)

Sub-tend', to be opposite to [an angle]; subtend'-ed (R. xxxvi.), subtend'-ing (Latin subtendo) (i)

Sub-tepid, -tēp'äd, moderately warm (f)

Subter- (Latin prefix), beneath, under, underhand, underneath.

Subter-flu'ent, flowing underneath.

Latin subterfluo (-fluens genitive -fluentis), to flow under.

Subter-fuge (3 syl.), an artifice, an evasion, a fluke.

Latin subterfugium, an escape by some underhand process.

Sub-terranean, -ter.ray'.nē.än, underground; subterraneous, süb'.ter.ray'.nē.äs (Rule lxvi.)

Subterrane, sub'.ter.rain, a cave or room underground.

Subterrene, sub'.ter.reen, subterraneous.

Latin subterrāneus, subterrēnus (sub terra, under ground).

Subtile, süb'.t'l. Subtle, Subtile (both süt't'l). Supple, süp'.p'l.

Subtile, fine-drawn, thin, delicate. (Latin subtextilis.)

Subtle, artful, wily, crafty. (Latin subtilis.)

Subtle, net weight. (Latin subtilis, fine, hence "exact.")

Supple, flexible, pliant. (French souple.)

Subtile-ly, süb'.t'l.ly. Subtly, süt'.ly.

Subtile-ly, delicately, skilfully, finely.

Subtly, craftily, cunningly, artfully.

Subtile-ness, süb'.t'l.ness. Subtle-ness, süt'.t'l.ness.

Subtile-ness, thinness, fineness, delicacy of fabric.

Subtle-ness, artfulness, craftiness, cunning.

Subtil-ty, süb'.t'l.ty. Subtle-ty, süt'.t'l.ty (plu. -ties).

Subtilty, over refinement, delicacy of distinction.

Subtlety, artifice, cunning, craft.

Subtilise (R. xxxi.), süb'.t'il.äze, to spin into niceties, to make over-nice distinctions; sub'tilised (3 syl.), sub'tilis-ing.

Subtilisation, süb'.t'il.ä.zay'.shün, over-refinement.

The pronunciation of b in "subtile" and its derivatives is not quite fixed; but, as we have two other very similar words, it is desirable to retain it, as in the French words subtil, subtilité, subtiliser.

Subtle, süt't'l, (comp.) subtler, süt'ler, (super.) subtlest, süt'lest.

Subtler, more cunning. Suiler, a camp-follower, a victualler.

Subtle, crafty; subtly, süt'ly; subtle-ness, süt't'l-ness.

Subtle-ty, plu. subtleties, süt't'l.tiz, but Subtile, süb.til, fine, thin; subtile-ly, süb'.til.ly; subtile-ness, sub'.til-ness.

Subtilty, plu. subtilties, süb'.til.tiz.

Suttle, süt't'l, net weight. Supple, sup'p'l, pliant.

"Subtle," "subtile," and "suttle," all from Latin subtilis, subtilitas; subteltis (sub tēla, Greek tēle, [drawn out] beyond the end).

"Sutler," German sudel-koch, a paltry victualler, a "pie-man."

ERRORS OF SPEECH—

That is a very subtile [acute] argument (subtle).

Each subtle line of her immortal face (subtile).

The most opaque substance, if subtly [finely] divided, becomes transparent (subtilly).

The subtilty of the fox is proverbial (subtlety).

Glass may be made perfectly subtile (supple).

Now the serpent was more subtile than any beast (Gen. iii. 1).

Jonadab was a very subtile [artful] man (2 Sam. xiii. 3, subtle).

The same dealt subtily [artfully] with our kindred (Acts vii. 19).

Thy brother came with subtilty [artifice], and hath taken away thy blessing (Gen. xxvii. 35, subtlety).

The serpent beguiled Eve through his subtilty (2 Cor. xi. 3):

The young are very supple, the worldly wise are very subtle, and the exact distinction between right and wrong very subtile [correct].

Sub-tonic, -tōn'ik (in Music), the semitone next below the tonic, the sharp seventh. Tonic, the key-note.

Sub-tract' (not subtract), to deduct; subtract'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), subtract'-ing, subtract'-er; subtractive, -trāk'tiv.

Subtraction (not subtraction), sub.trāk'.shūn.

Subtrahend, süb'.tra.hend', the figures to be subtracted.

Min'uend, the figures to be diminished or subtracted from.

Difference, the answer in a sum of subtraction.

Compound subtraction, a sum in which the figures are divided into parcels of different denominations.

Simple subtraction, a sum in which all the figures are of one denomination.

	£	s.	d.
Compound:	436	16	4½	Simple:	43616 Minuend.
	321	5	6		32150 Subtrahend.
	115	10	10½		11466 Difference.

Latin subtractio, subtractus (sub-traho, to draw out of sight).

"Minuend," Latin minuendus, to be diminished or lessened.

"Subtrahend," Latin subtrahendus, to be taken away.

"Difference," Latin differentia (di-[dis]fero, to carry diversely).

Sub'-urb, outskirt of a town or city; suburban, süb.ur'.bān.

Latin sūburbia, sūurbānus (sub urbs). Suburbanity might be introduced, Latin sūurbānitas, meaning "cockneyfied provincialism."

Sub-vention, -vén'.shūn, a subsidy, a government grant.

Latin subventio, a grant (subventūre, to aid considerably).

Sub-vert', to overthrow; subvert'-ed (R. xxxvi.), subvert'-ing, subvert'-er, subvert'-ible (not -able).

Subversion (R. xxxiii.), süb.ver'.shün; subversive, -ver'.siv.
Latin subversio, sub-vertère; French subversion, subversif.

Sub'-way, an underground way. (A hybrid, Lat. sub, O. E. wæg.)
"Underway" would be a good compound, and of the same meaning.

Suc- for sub, preceding verbs beginning with c. (See Sub.)

Suc-cedaneum, sūk'.sē.dā''nē.üm, a substitute, a tooth-cement used as a substitute for gold; succedaneous, sūk'.sē.dā''nē.üs (Rule lxvi.)

Succeed, sūk'.seed', to follow next, to prosper; succeed'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), succeed'-ing. Success'-or (Rule xxxvii.)

Three words (exceed, proceed, succeed) terminate in -ceed; the other eight verbs derived from cedo (to go) end in -cede, viz., ac-cede and con-cede; ante-cede, inter-cede, and retro-cede; pre-cede, re-cede, and se-cede. It would be far better if all the eleven were uniform, and -ceed is the better form. N.B. Supersede is from sedeo (to sit).

Success, sūk'.sēs', a favourable or prosperous result; success'-ful (Rule ix.), success'-ful-ly, success'-ful-ness.

Succession, sūk'.sēs'.shün (Rule xxxiii.), succes'sion-äl, succes'sional-ly. Successive, sūk'.sēs'.siv; success'-ive-ly, success'-ive-ness. Success'-or.

Apostol'ic succession. Succes'sion duty, plu. -duties.

Latin succēdo (sub cēdo), successio, successor, successum or successus, succedāneum, succedaneus

Suc-cinct', concise; succinct'-ly, succinct'-ness.

Latin succinctus, v. suc-[sub]ingo, to truss or gird up.

Succory (a corruption of chicory [chūk'.d.ry]), wild endive.

Chicorée is the French corruption; Italian cicórea; Latin cichōrēa; Greek kichōria, kichōrēa, or kichoreia. Pliny calls it Egyptian

Suc-cour, sūk'ker. Sucker, sūk'.er, that which sucks.

Succour, aid, to aid in distress, to relieve; succoured, sūk'k'rd; suc'cour-ing, suc'cour-er, suc'cour-less.

Latin succurro (suc-[sub]urro, to run under, i.e., to relieve a burden); French secours, v. secourir.

Succulent, sūk'.ku.lēnt, full of juice or moisture; suc'culent-ly.

Succulence, sūk'.ku.lence. Succulency, sūk'.ku.lēn.sy.

Latin succulentus (succus moisture, sugo to suck; Greek hugros).

Suc-cumb, sūk'.kūm', to sink under, to submit; succumbed, sūk'.kūmd'; succumb-ing, sūk'.kūm'.ing.

Latin suc-[sub]umbo, to lie or fall down under (Greek kupto).

Sūch, like, as, of the same kind (followed by as).

Such a one (not such an one), the word one has a digamma and equals won.

Such and such [a one]. Such and such [a thing], of such a nature or kind. (Old Eng. swelc, swilc, or swylc.)

Suck, to draw milk with the mouth, to allow [sweets] to melt in the mouth. To suck up, to draw up by suction; sucked, sŭkt; suck'-ing. Suck'-er (see succour).

Sucking-bottle. Sucking-calf, plu. -calves; -pig, &c.

Suckle, sŭk'.k'l, to give suck to; suckled, sŭk'.k'ld.

Suck'ling, giving suck to, a young animal fed from the breast, a young shoot from the root of a plant.

Suction, sŭk'.shŭn, drawing into the mouth or into a pipe by removing the pressure of air.

Old English sŭc[an], past sēc, past part. socen, sŭcenge a suckling; Latin sugo supine suctum, to suck; Greek hugros, moisture.

Sudatory, plu. sudatories, sŭ'.du.tŏ.rŭz, a sweating bath, sweating. (Latin sūdātŏrium, sūdātŏrius.)

Sudden, sŭd'd'n, unexpected, hasty; sud'den-ly, sud'den-ness.

Sodden, overboiled. (O. Eng. seōth[an], to boil, p.p. soden.)

Old English soden, sodenlice suddenly; Latin subitus.

Sudorific, sŭ'.do.rŭf''ŭk, a medicine to promote perspiration; sudoriparous, sŭ'.do.rŭp''ŭ.rŭs, causing sweat.

French sudorifique; Latin sŭdor genitive sŭdŏris fŭcio [facio].

Sudra, sŭ'.drāh, lowest of the four Hindu castes.

(1) Brah'min, the highest or priestly caste.

(2) Shatri'ya, the second or military caste.

(3) Vais'ya, the third or merchant caste.

(4) Sudra, the fourth or artisan caste.

Suds (no sing.), a lixivium of soap and water.

Old Eng. ge-sod a seething, sedth[an] to seethe, past part. ge-soden.

Sue, sŭ, to prosecute. To sue for, to petition.

Sued, sŭde; sŭ'-ing (verbs ending in any two vowels, except -ue, retain both before -ing). Sue, pet cont. of Susan.

French suiure to follow, poursuivre to prosecute; Latin sequor.

Suet, sŭ'.ĕt, the hard fat of mutton, lamb, or beef (about the kidneys and the loins); su'et-y, like suet.

Welsh swyf or swyfedd, suet; swyfiad, yielding suet.

Suf-, for sub, before all words beginning with f. (See Sub.)

(We have but six examples, all borrowed from the Latin.)

Sŭf'-fer, to endure, to feel pain or distress; suffered, sŭf'.f'rd; suffer-ing, suffering-ly, suffer-er.

Suffer-able; sufferably, suf'.fer.ŭ.bly.

Suffer-ance. (This wrong conj. is the Fr. souffrance.)

Lat. sufferentia (not -rantia), sufferens (suf-[sub] fero, to bear with).

Sŭf'-fice' (2 syl.), to satisfy a want, to be enough; sufficed' (2 syl.); suffic-ing (Rule xix.), sŭf'.fŭ.sing.

Sufficient, sŭf'.fŭsh'.ĕnt, enough; sufficient-ly.

Sufficiency, sŭf'.fŭsh'.ĕn.sy. Self-sufficiency.

Latin sufficiens genitive sufficientis (suf-[sub] fŭcio[facio], to suffice). Here sub = sursum, as in sublime (sursum limus, above the mud).

Suf-fix, (noun) sŭf'fix, (verb) sŭf'fix' (Rule i.)

Suf'fix, a postfix, a particle added to the end of a word.

Pre-fix, a particle added to the beginning of a word.

Suffix, to add a suffix; suffixed, sŭf'fix't; suffix'-ing.

Latin sufficere, v. suf-[sub] figo supine fixum, to suffix.

Suf-focate, sŭf'fō.kāte, to throttle, to smother, to stifle; suff'ocāt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), suff'ocāt-ing, suff'ocating-ly.

Suffocation, sŭf'fō.kay''shŭn. Suffocative, 'kay''tiv.

Suffocat-or (Rule xxxvii.), sŭf'fō.kā.tor.

Latin suffocatio, suffocator, suffocare (suf-[sub] faux, under the gullet, that is, to throttle by pressure on the gullet).

Suf-frage, sŭf'frāge, a vote, aid, support.

Supfragan, sŭf'frā.g'n, a bishop. Suffragan bishop, a titular or assistant bishop.

Bishops are suffragans inasmuch as they are under an Archbishop.

"Suffrage." The primary meaning is a pastern, then a pastern-bone, then the bone used for a voting-tablet, then the vote itself.

Latin suffragium, suffrago, a pastern (suf-[sub] fringo[frango] quia subtus frangitur, i.e. flectitur, non supra, ut in brachiis.—Isidore). The joint bends under, not over.

Suf-fuse, sŭf'fūze, to overspread: as "a blush suffused her cheek"; suffused' (2 syl.); suffus-ing (R. xix.), -fū.zing.

Suffusion, sŭf'fū.zhŭn, the act of suffusing or that which is suffused. (Lat. suffusio, suf-[sub] fundo sup. fūsum.)

Sufi, sŭ'fy, a Persian priest; sufism, sŭ'fizm. (See Sofi.)

Sug- for sub. We have only one example, suggest.

Sugar, shoog'ar (oo short as in good, not drawled as in food), a sweet granular substance obtained from sugar-cane, to sweeten with sugar; sugared (2 syl.); sugar-ing.

Sugar-y, shoog'āry. Sugar-less, without sugar.

Sugar-baker. Sugar-boiler, sugar-boiling.

Sugar-barley. Sugar-candy, plu. candies, kān'diz.

Sugar-house. Sugar-loaf, plu. loaves (1 syl.)

Sugar-maple. Sugar-mite. Sugar-plum.

Sugar-refiner, sugar-refining.

Sugar of lead, ...lēd, acetate of lead in a powder. (It is poisonous but looks and tastes like white sugar.)

Alum-sugar; barley-sugar; brown-sugar; cane-sugar; coarse-sugar; crystallised-sugar; fine-sugar; granulated-sugar; grape-sugar; Lisbon sugar; loaf-sugar; lump-sugar; maple-sugar; muscova-do-sugar; powder-sugar; powdered-sugar; raw-sugar; refined sugar, double-refined sugar; stone-sugar; white-sugar; Turkey-sugar.

Loaf of sugar. Lump of sugar. Piece of sugar, &c.

Welsh sugr, v. sugro; German zucker; French sucre.

Sug-gest, sŭd.djĕst', to hint, to intimate, to introduce to the mind; suggest'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), suggest'-ing.

Suggestion, sŭd.djĕs'.tshŭn. Suggest'-er.

Suggestive, sŭd.djĕs'.tĭv; suggestive-ly.

Latin suggestio, suggĕro supine suggestum (sug-[sub]gero).

The original meaning of "suggest" is to support or hoist with something placed under (sub gero), then to hoist thoughts.

N.B. It will be observed that every word in succ-, suff-, and sugg- is from the Latin. "Suggest" is the only word with sug- for "sub."

Suicide, sŭ'.sĭdĕ, self-murder; suicidal, sŭ'.sĭ'.dŭi, adj.; suici-dal-ly. (Latin sui cædo, to kill oneself.)

Suit, sŭtĕ. Suite, sweet. Sweet. Suet, sŭ'.ĕt.

Suit of clothes, of armour, of curtains, of sails, of apartments, cards of a suit (a complete set).

We never say a suit of tea-things, dinner-things, or china, but a set of china, a set of tea-things or a tea-service, a set of dinner-things or a dinner-service.

We never speak of a complete suit of magazines or periodicals, but a complete set of "Cornhill" [from the beginning].

We say a set of apartments, a suit of apartments, or a suite of apartments (if the rooms open into each other).

A new suit of clothes. A new set of clothes.

A new suit means "trousers, waistcoat, and coat" all new.

A new set of clothes means all sorts of wearing apparel all new.

In women's apparel, a complete new set would mean six or a dozen of each sort.

Suit, sute, also means a petition, a legal process, a request, to fit, to correspond with something else; suit'-ed, sŭ'.ĕd; suit-ing, sŭ'.tĭng. Suit-able, sŭ'.tă.bĭ; suit-able-ness, suit'ably. To follow suit, to follow a lead.

Suit-or. Sutor (both sŭ'.tor). Suture, sŭ'.tchŭr.

○ Sutor, a wooer or lover, one who has a law-suit.

Sutōr, a shoemaker, a cobbler.

○ Suture, a seam uniting the bones of the skull.

Suite, sweet, a retinue, a body of attendants.

En suite, ahn-sweet, of one pattern; opening into each other. (English-French for de suite.)

Sweet, of a sugary flavour, pleasant. (Old Eng. swĕt.)

Suet, the hard fat of mutton, beef, &c., from the loins, &c.

"Suit" and "suite," French suite; Latin secutus (sequor, to follow).

"Sweet," Old English swĕt. "Suet," Welsh swyf or swyfed.

Sulk, to be sullen; sulked, sŭlkt; sulk'-ing.

Sulk'-y, sul'ki-ness, sul'ki-ly. Sulks, spleen.

A fit of the sulks or a fit of sulks, a bout of spleen or of sullen ill-temper. To be in the sulks.

Old English solcen, sulky; solcenes, sulkiness.

Sullen, sŭl.lĕn, morose, dismal, gloomy; sullen-ly, sullen-ness.

The sullens, a fit of sullen temper.

Old English solcen, sulky; solcenes, sulkiness or sullenness.

Sulph-, sulf-, sulpho-, sŭl'fo-, before consonants (prefixes).

Sulphur, sŭl'fur, a mineral element, brimstone.

Lat. sulphur gen. sulphŭris ("ex sal vel sul, et rup ignis." Isidore).

Black Sulphur or Sulphur of ivy, for dressing mouldy hops.

Flowers of Sulphur, sulphur vapour condensed in fine powder.

Milk of Sulphur, sulphur precipitated by hydrochloric acid from certain sulphuric compounds.

Refined Sulphur, sulphur purified by distillation and condensed.

Roll or Stick Sulphur, flowers of sulphur melted and run into moulds.

Sublimed Sulphur, flowers of sulphur. Sulphŭr vivum, black sulphur.

Sulphur-y, sŭl'fŭr-ry, adj. of sulphur.

§ Sulphur acid. Sulphur base. Sulphur salt.

Sulphur acid, an electro-negative sulphuret.

As the sulphurets of an'timony, ar'senic, molyb'denum, sele'nium, tellu'rium, tungsten, gold, and tin, with hydrosulphuric acid and the bisulphuret of carbon.

Sulphur base, an electro-positive sulphuret.

As the sulphurets of ba'rium, cal'cium, lith'ium, magne'sium, potas'sium, so'dium, and stron'tium, with the hydro-sulphate of ammonia.

Sulphur salt, a double sulphuret from the combination of a sulphur acid with a sulphur base.

§ Sulphur acid. Sulphuric acid. Sulphurous acid.

Sulphur acid, an electro-negative sulphuret.

Sulphuric acid [sŭl'fŭ.rĭk...], oil of vitriol, sulphur combined with a maximum quantity of oxygen.

(-ic denotes an acid containing a maximum of oxygen.

Oil of Vitriol, so called because it is of an oily consistency, and was originally distilled from green vitriol (sulphate of iron).

Sulphurous acid [sŭl'fŭ.rŭs...], a sulphur combined with a less quantity of oxygen than sulphuric acid.

(-ous denotes an acid containing less oxygen than an acid in -ic.)

§ Sulphate. Sulphurate. Sulphide. Sulphite.

Sulphate [sŭl'fate], a salt formed by sulphuric acid and a base. Thus, in sulphate of lime, "lime" is called the base. Sulphatic, sŭl'fŭt'ĭk, adj.

(-ate denotes a salt formed from an acid ending in -ic.)

Sulphide [sŭl'fide], a non-acid compound of sulphur.

(-ide denotes a combination with oxygen not forming an acid).

Sulphite [sŭl'fite], a salt formed by sulphurous acid and a base. In Sulphite of soda, "soda" is the base.

(-ite denotes a salt formed from an acid ending in -ous.)

Sulphurate [sŭl'fŭ.rate], belonging to sulphur, to impregnate or combine with sulphur; sulphurat-ed (Rule xxxvi.), sul'phurāt-ing (Rule xix.)

Sulphuration, sŭl'fu.ray''shŭn, the act of dressing with sulphur, the process of bleaching with sulphur.

§ Sulphuret, sŭl'fŭ.rĕt, a compound of sulphur with an electro-positive or inflammable body. Sulphurett-ed.

(The ores of iron, copper, lead, &c., are sulphurets of iron, &c.)

Doubling the t in "sulphuretted" and "carburetted" is abnormal.

Three other words have the same irregularity, epaulett-ed, rivett-ed, and wainscott-ed. We never double the t in banquetted, carpetted, closetted, coroneted, gantlett-ed, garrett-ed, helmetted, possett-ed, &c.

§ Sulphurous, sŭl'fŭ.rŭs. Sulphureous, sŭl'fŭ.rĕ.ŭs.

Sulphurous, like sulphur, made of sulphur, a technical word used in sulphurous acid meaning an acid with less oxygen than sulphu'ric acid.

Sulphu'reous, impregnated with sulphur.

ERRORS OF SPEECH—

The sulphurous waters of Aix-la-Chapelle, Harrogate, and Moffat (sulphureous; Latin aqua sulphŭrea).

Others from the wall defend

With dart and javelin, stones and sulphurous fire (correct; Paradise Lost xi. 658).

Stifled with the sulphureous fumes of burning brimstone (sulphurous).

§ Sulpho-cyanogen, sŭl'fo-sŷ.ăn''o.djĕn, a compound of sulphur and cyanogen; sulpho-cyanic acid, sŭl'fo-sŷ.ăn'ĭk..., an acid found in saliva and in the seeds, &c. of cruciform plants.

Sulpho-sel, a double sulphuret. (See Sulphur salt.)

Sulpho-glyceric acid, sŭl'fo-glĭ.see'.rĭk..., an acid formed from glycerine and sulphuric acid.

Sulpho-methylic acid, sŭl'fo-mĕ.rhĭ'.ĭk..., bisulphate of oxide of methyl.

Sulpho-naphthalic acid, sŭl'fo-năf.rhăl'ĭk..., an acid formed from naphthaline and sulphu'ric acid.

Sulpho-vinate, sŭl'fo-vĭ.nate, a double salt formed by the combination of sulpho-vinic acid and a base, as sulpho-vinate of étherole (3 syl.) or heavy oil of wine.

Sulpho-vinic acid, sŭl'fo-vĭn'ĭk..., an acid formed by the action of sulphuric acid on alcohol.

O is the favourite vinculum in English compounds, even when some other letter would better represent the last radical vowel: as electro-biology, politico-religious, concavo-convex, convexo-concave, Anglo-Saxon, Franco-Prussian, Ostro-goth, Turco-Servian, &c.

Latin sulphur, sulphŭrĕus, sulphŭrŏsus, sulphŭrătus: Old English sweft or sweġel.

Sultan, fem. sultana, sŭl'.tăn, sŭl.tăh'.nah, sovereign of the Ottoman empire. Sulta'na raisin or Sultanas, sul.tăh'.nahz, a fine variety of raisin without pips.

Sul'tan-ship (-ship, office, rank, condition of).

"Sultan" used to be called soldan. The word means "ruler."

Sul'try, (super.) sul'tri-est, (comp. not in use), close and hot;
sul'tri-ness, Rule xi. (Old English swoleth, swole heat.)

Sum (in Arithmetic). Some, sum, a small portion.

Sum, the amount of figures added together.

Prod'uct, the amount of figures multiplied together.

Quotient, kwō'shent, the answer of a sum in division.

To sum up, to add up; summed, sūmd; summ'-ing (R. i.)

Summary, plu. summaries, sūm' mā.riz, an abstract, a précis, concise; sum'mari-ly.

Summation, sūm.may'shūn. Consumma'tion.

Summation, an aggregate, a summing-up.

Consummation, a completion, an end.

"Sum," Old English somud or somod, together; Latin summa.

"Some" (a portion), Old English sum or som.

Sumach, shū'māk, a flowering shrub. (German sumach.)

(This is one of the few words having ch = k not from the Greek.)

Sum'mer, one of the seasons. (In Arch.) the first stone laid over a column to form a cross-vault, a horizontal beam or girder. (The architectural word ought to be sumer.)

After the usual summer, there is generally a second period of summerly weather late in the autumn. This "second summer" is called by various names: as

The Indian summer, a term used in North America.

St. Martin's summer, so called from St. Martin's day (Nov. 10).

All-Saints' summer, so called from All-Saints' day (Nov. 1).

All Halloween summer. "All-hallows," same as All-Saints.

St. Luke's summer, so called from St. Luke's day (Oct. 18).

To sum'mer, to pass the summer; summered, sūm'm'rd; sum'mer-ing. Sum'mer-house, an alcove or bower.

Summer solstice, ...sōl'etis, a day or two before and after June 22, when the sun obtains its highest northern point.

Bres'-summer (a corruption of bret-sumer), a beam over a shop-window, &c. to support the weight above.

Pliny says that the Germans had but three seasons, Winter, Spring, and Summer, and we have no native word for autumn (Latin).

"Summer" (a season), Old Eng. summer or somor, summerlic summerly.

"Summer" (a support), Welsh summer a supporter, v. summeru to prop up. "Bres-summer," "bres," German bret, a plank or beam.

Summersault, sūm'mer.solt, a jump in which the person turns his head over heels. Also summersault, somerset, summerset.

A corruption of the Old French soubre-sault, which is a corruption of the Latin supra saltus, v. salire to leap.

Sum'mit, the tip-top or highest point; summit-less.

Latin summit[as]; summus highest; French sommet.

Summon, səm' mūn. Summons, səm' mūnz.

Summon (verb), to cite, to give notice to appear.

Summons (noun), the notice given to appear.

Summoned, səm' mūd (not səm' mūnzd); summon-ing (not summons-ing); sum-mon-er.

"Summons" plu. summonses. The s of "summons" is not the plural particle, but the -ce of the Old French word semonce, v. semoncer; Latin submonitio, submonens.

Latin sum-[sub]mōnēre, to warn one privately, to summon.

Sumpter, sūmp'ter [mule or horse], one to carry the baggage.

Sumpter-saddle, a pack-saddle.

Latin sumo supine sumptum, to take or carry.

Sumptuary, sūmp'tu.ār'y, relating to expenses, regulating the cost of living. Sumptuary laws.

Sumptuous, sūmp'tu.ūs, costly, most bountiful; sumptuous-ly, sumptuous-ness.

Latin sumptuārius (lex sumptuāria), sumptuosus, sumptus expense.

Sun, the orb of day. Son, sun; a male child, (Old Eng. sunu.)

To sun, to bask in the sun, to expose to the sun; sunned, sūnd; sunn-ing (Rule i.)

Sunn-y, (comp.) sunn-i-er, (super.) sunn-i-est, sunn-i-ly, sunn-i-ness (Rule xi.); sun-like; sun-less.

Sun'-beam, -béem; sun'-burnt. Sun'-dial.

Sun'-down, sunset. Sun'-fish. Sun'-flower, so called because it resembles a picture sun.

It is quite an error to suppose it receives its name from turning towards the sun. It is not a "tourne-sol," which is heliotrope, but helianthus, sun[like] flower.

Sun'-rise, -rize; sun-rising, -ri'zing. Sun'-set, sun-sett-ing. Sun'-shine, sun-shi'ny. Sun'-stone.

Sun'-stroke, inflammation of the brain or medulla from the heat of the sun. Sun'-ward, adj.; sun'-wards, adv.

Sun of righteousness, -ri'tē.ūs.ness, Jesus Christ.

Under the sun, in this world.

Sun and plan-et wheels, a contrivance for converting the reciprocating motion of the beam of a steam-engine into rotatory motion.

"Sun," Old English sunne or sun, sun-bedm; sunlic, sunny; sun-set or sun-sett, sun-set; sun-setn, sun-shine.

It will be seen that "sun-set" is sun-settling not sun sitting. "The sun sets in the west," i.e. the sun settles in the west, not sits in the west. In the phrase "the sun sits on yonder hill before it sets or sinks from sight," the meaning is not that it settles on the hill before it settles in the western horizon, but that it rests awhile on the hills before it finally settles down.

Sun'day, the first day of the week dedicated to the sun.

Old English sunnan-dæg, the Sun's day, Sunday.

Sun'der, to separate; sundered, sūn'.derd; sun'der-ing; in sunder or asunder (a, adverbial prefix), in two parts.

Sun'dry (adj.), divers, several. Sundries, sūn'.drīz (noun), odds and ends, articles of several sorts.

Old Eng. sundr[ian], to sunder; sunder, divers; sundrig, sundry.

Sunnite, sūn'.nīte, an orthodox Moslem or one who deems the Sunna (or book of traditions) of equal authority to the Koran. Shiite, shī'.īte, a heterodox Moslem or one who rejects the authority of the Sunna.

Sunniah, sūn'.nī.ah, a believer in the Sunna. Sunnier (v.s.)

The Persians are shiites, the Turks sunnites. (See Shiites.)

Sūp-, for sub, before verbs, &c. beginning with p. (See p. 1233.)

Sup, a small draught, a sip, to take a sup, to eat supper; supped, sūpt; supp'-ing; supp'er, the evening meal; supper-less. The Lord's Supper, the eucharist.

To sup up, to drink up, to draw up with the mouth.

Old English sup[an] or supp[an], past seap, past part. sopen.

Super-, sū'.per- (Latin prefix), over, above, in excess.

(In Chem.) prefixed to a salt containing an excess of the acid (= bi).

Super-able, sū'.per.ă.b'l, that may be overcome; su'perably, su'perable-ness. (Latin sūpērābīlis.)

Su'per-abound', to be overabundant, to prevail; super-abound'-ed (R. xxxvi.), superabound'-ing, -abound'-ing-ly.

Super-abun'dant, superabun'dant-ly, superabun'dance.

Latin superabundantia, super-abundāre.

Su'per-add', to add more; superadd'-ed, superadd'-ing.

Superaddition, sū'.per-ăd.dīsh'.ŭn.

Latin sūpēraddītio; super-addere, to add over-and-above.

Super-angelic, sū'.per-ăn.djēl'.īk, having a nature more exalted than that of angels. (Latin angelicus.)

Super-annuate, sū'.per-ăn'.nu.āte, to allow a pension for service when old age or infirmity disqualifies a person for work; su'peran''nuāt-ed (R. xxxvi.), su'peran''nuāt-ing.

Superannuation, sū'.per-ăn'.nu.ă'.shŭn.

Latin super annus, [the work required] too much for one's years.

Superb, sū'.perb', splendid, magnificent; superb'-ly, superb'-ness. (Latin superbus, Greek huper-bios.)

Superb means possessed of overwhelming physical force or vital power, ὑπερ βίος or βία. This idea quite coincides with that of vir a hero, from vis strength.

Su'per-car'go, phu. -cargoes, a person in a merchant-ship to manage the sales and purchases of the cargo.

Super-ciliary, sū'.per-sil''.ī.ă.ry. above the eyebrows.

Super-cilious, -sɪl'jʊs, disdainful, haughty; supercilious-ness, supercilious-ly. (Latin sūpĕrciliōsus.)

"Supercilious" means "lifting up the eyebrows" with disdain.

Super-dominant, (in Mus.) the note above the dominant or fifth note of a scale. The sub-dominant is the fourth note, and the super-dominant the sixth note ascending or descending. Thus:

sub-D. Dom. sup.-D.

1	2	3	IV.	V.	VI.	7	8	Ascending.
8	7	VI.	V.	4	3	2	1	Descending.

sup.-D. Dom.

It will be seen at a glance that the subdom. of the ascending scale is the dom. of the descending, and in both cases the super-dom. is the 6th note, or one above the dom.

Super-em'inent, exceedingly eminent, surpassingly excellent; supereminent-ly. Superem'inence (5 syl.)

Latin sūpĕrēmīnentia, sūpĕrēminens gen. sūpĕrēminentis; super e-mīneo[maneo], to remain-over [others] in a superlative degree.

Super-erogation, sū'per-ēr'ro.gay''shūn, the performance of more than is required, a supernumerary deed; supererogatory, sū'per-e.rōg''ā'try, adj.

Latin sūpĕrĕrogālio, sūpĕrĕrogālōrius.

Su'per-ex'cellent, unusually good. Super-ex'cellence (5 syl.)

Latin super excellens genitive excellētis, excellentia.

Superficial, sū'per-fish''ūl, surface excellence, showy but not profound, pertaining to surfaces, as superficial measures; superficial-ly, superficial-ness.

Superficiality, sū'.per.fish'.i.ăl'.ă.ty.

Superficies (sing. and plu.), sū'per-fish''ī.ēze, a surface.

Latin superficies (i.e., super facies, above the face or surface);
Italian superficiale, superficialità; French superficiel.

Super-fine' (3 syl.), very fine or excellent. Superfine cloth, cloth of superior fineness. "Superfine" applied to wine unusually excellent. Superfine'-ness.

Low Latin finis fine, v. fināre to fine or refine, with super.

Super-fluous, su.per'flu.ŭs, redundant, needless, more than is required; superfluous-ly, superfluous-ness.

Superfluity, plu. superfluities, sū'.per.flū''.ī.tīz.

Latin sūperfluitas, sūperfluus; super-fluo, to flow over.

Super-human, su'per-you''măn, beyond what is human, extraordinary, divine. (Latin super humānus.)

Super-impose, sū'per-im.pōze'', to lay on the top of something; superimpōsed' (± syl.), superimpōs'-ing.

Superimposition, sū'.per-im'.po.zish''.ǔn.

Latin sūp̄erimpōsītus; super im[in]pono, to place-on a top.

Super-incum'bent, resting or pressing on something else.

Latin super incumbens gen. -bentis; incumbo, to lie-on atop.

Su'per-induce' (4 syl.), to 'introduce morally, as 'to superinduce new desires; su'perinduced' (4 syl.); superinduc-ing (Rule xix.), sū'per-in.dū''sing.

Superinduce-ment, sū'per.in.dūce''ment.

Superinduction, sū'per.in.dūh''shūn.

Latin superinductio; super in-duco, to bring-in over and above.

Super-intend', to direct, to have the oversight and charge of; su'perintend''-ed (Rule xxxvi.), su'perintend''-ing.

Superintend'ent (not -tendant, not 1st Lat. conjugation).

Superintendence, 'sū'per.in.tēn''dense, supervision;
superintendency, sū'per.in.tēn''dēn.sy.

Latin super intendens genitive intendētis; French surintendant, surintendance (wrong).

Superior, su.pē'ri.or, better, more excellent, preferable, one of higher rank, one of greater attainments, &c.

Superiors, (in Printing) marks above the type for references: as *man, *man, &c.

Superior planets, planets further from the sun than our earth. Those nearer the sun are inferior planets.

The SUPERIOR planets are Mars, [the Asteroids], Ju'piter, Sa'turn,
U'ranus, Ne'ptune. The INFERIOR are Ve'nus and Mer'cury.

Superiority, su.pē'ri.ōr''rī.ty. pre-eminence.

Latin superior; French supériorité, supérieur.

If the u in "honour," "valour," &c. is retained to show that we have borrowed them from the French, then superior ought for the same reason to be spelt superiour.

Super-lative, su.per'lä.tiv, most eminent; (in Gram.) the highest degree of comparison, a word in the superlative degree; super'lative-ly, super'lative-ness.

Latin superlatus, super fero supine latus, to bear above.

Super-lu'nar, above the moon, not earthly.

Latin super luna, above the moon, -lunālis.

Super-mun'dane (4 syl.), above the world, not earthly.

Latin super mundus above the world, super mundānus.

Super-naculum, sū'per-nāk''ku.lūm, the very best wine, entirely. To drink supernaculum, to leave no heel-taps.

Latin super, Old English naegel (Latin unguis), a man's nail.

The French say of first-class wine, it is fit (faire rubis sur l'ongle), meaning it is so good that what is left would only make a ruby-drop on the nail. It was an old drinking custom to insist on "no heel-taps," and any drinker might be commanded to empty the residue of his glass on his thumb-nail. If the wine rolled off it was a heel-tap, and a penalty was demanded.

Super'nāl, celestial; super'nāl-ly. (Latin supernas.)

Super-nā'tant, swimming or floating on the surface.

Supernatation, su'per.na.tay''shūn.

Latin supernatāre, to swim or float on the surface.

Super-natural, su'per-nāt''u.rāl, not according to the laws of nature, miraculous; supernat'ural-ly.

Supernatural-ism. Rational-ism.

Supernaturalism, the doctrine that the knowledge of God, revelation, and miracles are not to be explained by the common laws of nature.

Rationalism, the doctrine that the Bible and even miracles are to be tested by the laws of nature, and whatever is antagonistic to those laws is unworthy of belief.

Supernatural-ist, one who believes in supernaturalism.

Rational-ist, one who believes in rationalism.

German supernaturalism, supernaturalist; rationalist, &c.

Super-numerary, plu. supernumeraries (Rule xlv.), -nu'-me.rū.rīz, extra "hands"; supernumerary, adj.

Latin supernumerarii, extra soldiers beyond the full complement.

Super-phosphate, sū'per-fōs'fate, a substance containing the greatest quantity of phosphoric acid which can combine with the base named: as superphosphate of lime, i.e. the base [lime] in combination with phosphoric acid.

(Super- prefixed to a salt means "containing an excess of the acid.")

Super-pose, sū'per.pōze', to lay on the top, as one stratum is superposed on another; su'perpōsed' (3 syl.); super-pos-ing (Rule xix.), sū'per.pā''zing.

Superposition, sū'per.po.zish''ūn, (in Geol.) the order in which strata, &c. are piled together.

Latin superpōstus; super pōno, to place above [another].

Super-roy'al, a large sheet of paper (27 in. by 19 in.)

Super-salt, a salt in which the acid is in excess of the base.

Subsalt, a salt in which the base is in excess of the acid.

Thus "bin-oxalate of potassa" is a supersalt in which the oxalic acid is double the potassa; so "bi-sulphate of potassa," &c.

Super-saturate, -sāt'u.rate, to saturate to excess; super-sāt'urāt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), supersāt'urāt-ing (Rule xix.)

Supersaturation, sū'per.sāt'u.ray''shūn.

Latin super sātūrātio, sātūrāre (sātūr, full of food).

Super-scribe' (3 syl.), to write, engrave, or print on the top, to write one's name outside of a letter; su'perscribed' (3 syl.), su'perscrib'-ing (Rule xix.)

Superscription, sū'per.skrip''shūn, the impression of letters, &c. on coins, the legend of coins.

Sub'scribe', subscrip'tion. (See Subscribe.)

Latin superscriptio, superscriptus, super-scribo.

Supersede (-sede with s- not c-), sū'per.seed', to set aside, to oust; supersēd'-ed (R. xxxvi.), supersēd'-ing (R. xix.)

Supersedeas, sū'per.sec''dē.ūs, an order in law to suspend proceedings, &c.

Latin super-sedeo, to sit upon, to sit over one. This verb must not be confounded with the eleven verbs from cedo, to go: as proceed, precede; exceed, recede; succeed, secede, accede, &c.

Super-stition, sū'per.stish''ān, religious credulity, the caput mortuum of religion; superstitious, sū'per.stish''ūs; superstitious-ly, superstitious-ness.

Latin superstītio, superstītiōsus (supersto, to survive).

Those who escaped in battle were called by the Romans superstitēs, and superstition is that religious awe and veneration for externals which survives and expands when the "simplicity of faith" has given way.

Super-stratum, plu. -strata, sū'per-strā''tah, a stratum lying above something else.

Super-structure, sū'per-strūk'.tchūr, an edifice from the foundation upwards; superstructive, sū'per.strūk''.tīv.

French superstructure; Latin superstruo supine -structum.

Super-terrestrial, -tēr.rēs''.trī.āl (not -tēr.rēs'.tshāl), being above all earthly matters. (Latin terra.)

Super-tonic, sū'per-tōn'.īk, (in Music) the note above the tonic or key-note. Sub-tonic, a semitone below the octave note of a scale: thus

Ton.	Sup. T.						Sub T.	Ton.
G	a	b	c	d	e	f	f sharp	G

Super-vene, sū'per.veen'', to happen to, to come in succession; supervened (3 syl.), supervēn'-ing (Rule xix.)

Supervénient. Supervention, sū'per.vēn''.shūn.

Latin superventus, super-venio to come upon one (as ulcus ulcēri supervēnit, sore succeeds to sore).

Super-vise, sū'per.vīze'', to oversee, to superintend, to examine by inspection; supervised (3 syl.); supervising (Rule xix.), sū'per.vī''.zīng; supervis'-āl.

Supervision, sū'per.vīzh''.ān; supervis'-or (R. xxxvii.); supervisory, sū'per.vī''zō.ry, adj.

Latin super video supine visum, to over-see.

Supine, (noun) sū'pine, (adj.) sū.pine' (Rule l.)

Supine, part of a Latin verb. (There are two supines, one which ends in -um, and one which ends in -u.)

The supine in -um follows a verb of motion: as abiit visum (he is gone to look into the matter). The supine in -u follows nouns and adjectives, and has a passive force: as difficile dictu (hard to be described), facile dictu (easy to be told).

Supine', indolent, indifferent, lying on one's back, lying with the face upwards; supine'-ly, supine'-ness.

Supinate, sū.pī'.nāte (in Bot.), drooping from exposure to the sun; supination, sū'.pī.nay''shūn.

Supinator, sū'.pī.nā.tor, a muscle to turn the palm of the hand upwards. Pronator, prō'.nā.tor, a muscle to turn the palm downwards. (Med. Lat. pronāre.)

"Supine" (of a verb), sūpinum, (almost obsolete). It will hardly be credited that there are not 300 supines in the whole Latin language. A list is given in Johnson's Gram. Com. p. 383.

"Supine" (with the face upwards), supinus, Greek hūptiōs.

Sūp-plant', to oust, to take the place of another in an underhand way; supplant'-ed (R. xxxvi.), supplant'-ing, supplant'-er. Latin supplantāre, to trip up the heels (plantā pēdis).

Supple, sūp'.p'l. Subtle, Suttle (both sūt't'l). Subtile, sūb'.t'l. Supple, flexible, pliant. (French souple. See Subtle.)

Subtle [sūt't'l], artful. (Latin subtilis.)

Suttle, net weight. (Latin subtilis.)

Subtile [sūb'.t'l], fine, thin. (Latin subtilis.)

Supplement. Complement. Compliment.

Supplement, sūp'.plē.ment, an addition to a book carrying on the same subject or supplying additional matter. The supplement of a newspaper, an extra sheet. (In Math.) the difference between an arc or angle and 180°.

Two arcs or angles together-equal to 180° are the supplements of each other. If one angle is known, its supplement may be easily found by subtracting the known angle from 180°.

Complement (in Math.) The difference between an arc or angle and 90°. (90° is a quadrant, 180° a semicircle.)

This word is very often, for distinction sake, pronounced kōm.-plē.ment. If called kōm'.plē.ment the e of the second syllable should be made distinct.

Compliment, kōm'.plī.ment, an expression of courtesy.

To sup'plement, sup'plement-ed, sup'plement-ing, sup'plement'-al, sup'plement'al-ly, sup'plement'-ary.

"Supplement," Latin supplementum, sup-[sub]pleo to fill up.

"Complement," Latin complementum, con-[cum]pleo to complete.

"Compliment," Fr. compliment, i.e. complete observance of civilities.

Suppliant, sūp'.plī.ānt, a humble petitioner, entreating, supplicating; suppliant-ly. Supplicant, sūp'.plī.cānt.

Supplicate, sūp'.plī.kāte, to petition earnestly but humbly; sup'plicāt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), sup'plicāt-ing (Rule xix.), sup'plicating-ly. Supplicatory, sūp'.plī.kā.t'ry.

Supplication, sūp'.plī.kay''shūn, humble petition.

Latin supplicatio, supplicāre supine supplicātum; Fr. suppliante, sub plico to fold [the hands] under [the knees]. When Thetis entreated Zeus to honour Achilles she "clasped his knees with her left hand and held his beard with her right" (Hom. Il. i. 500).

Supply, plu. supplies, sŭp.plīze', stores, relief of wants, sufficiency of things for use. To supply, supplies (Rule xi.); supplied, sŭp.plīde'; supply-ing, suppli'-er.

Latin sup-[sub]plere, to fill up, to fill what is deficient.

Support, sustenance, food, a prop, an upholder, to sustain, to hold up, to provide for, to nourish; support-ed (Rule xxxvi.), support-ing, support'-er.

Support-able, supportable-ness, supportably.

Latin sup-[sub]portare, to carry by upholding the base, as a pedestal supports an image.

Suppose, sŭp.pōze', to conjecture, to assume data, to imagine; supposed' (2 syl.); suppos-ing (Rule xix.), sŭp.pō.zing'; suppos-er, sŭp.pō.zer. Supposable, sŭp.pō.zā.b'l.

Supreme, su.prem', highest, holding the highest place, autocratic; supreme'-ly. Supremacy, su.prem'.ā.sy.

Latin supremus (for superrimus). Superus (comp.) superior, (super.) superrimus (contracted into supremus) highest.

Sur- (French contraction of super), over, above, beyond.

Sur-base (2 syl.), a cornice or moulding above the base.

French surbaissé, sur la base, above the base.

Sur-charge, (noun) sur'.tcharge, (verb) sur.tcharge'.

Surcharge, an overcharge. Surcharge', to overload, to overcharge, to overstock, to exaggerate; sur-charged' (2 syl.), surcharg'-ing (Rule xix.) (French surcharger)

Sur-cingle, sur.sing g'l, a girth which passes over the saddle or saddle-cloth to bind it on the horse's back; surcingled, sur.sing g'ld, girt with a surcingle.

A hybrid: French sur, Latin cingulum an over-belt.

Sur-coat, -kōte, a short over-coat. (French sur cotte.)

Surd, a quantity in algebra which cannot be expressed by rational numbers; as $\sqrt{2}$, &c. (Latin surdus, deaf.)

Sure, shŭre, certain, firm, certainly, without doubt; sure'-ly.

Sure-ty, plu. sureties, shure'ty, plu. shure'tiz, security against loss, a bail; surety-ship (-ship, office, condition of.)

To be sure, certainly, without doubt, to be certain.

To make sure, to make fast or secure, to remove doubts.

French sûr, sûreté; Latin secŭrus, safe, secure; secŭritas.

Surf. Spray. Spoon-drift. Foam, fōme. Frōth.

Surf, the foam of billows breaking on the shore.

Spray, sprinklings from billows tossed about in all directions but not drifted like spoon-drift.

Spoon-drift, water swept by the wind from the top of the waves and driven along the sea like a cloud of dust.

Foam, white froth produced by the agitation of large bodies of water, as the foam of a cataract, the foam of agitated waves, also the foam of a horse's mouth, of a mad dog, of a raving madman, &c. (Old English fám.)

Fröth, the "head" of alcoholic beverages. (Greek aphros.)

Foam is the result of agitation, fröth arises from the escape of carbonic acid gas, suddenly liberated.

"Surf," contraction of surface, spray from the surface.

"Spray," from the Old English v. spræng(an) to sprinkle.

"Spoon-drift," corruption of spume-drift, drift of foam or spume.

Surface, sur'fase, the superficies, the outside, the upper soil of the earth, the length and breadth of anything.

French surface; Latin superficies [fácsies], the outside face.

Surfeit, sur'fít, satiety, excess, to eat or drink to satiety, to clog; surfeit-ed, surfeit-ing, surfeit-er.

French sur fait, over-done; Latin super factus.

Surge (1 syl.), a great rolling billow or swell of water, to swell, to rise high and roll as a billow; to slip back; surged (1 syl.), surg'-ing, surg'-y, surge'-less; surge'-beaten, beat'n. (Latin surgere, to rise.)

Surgeon, sur'djün, a medical man not a physician.

Sur'gery, the medical practice of a surgeon; the drug-room of a surgeon, a room where a surgeon sees patients.

Surgical, sur'dj.käl; surgical-ly.

Latin chirurgus, chirurgicus; (Greek cheir-ourgia, cheir-ourgos, [a medical man who does the] hand-work or operations); French chirurgien, chirurgie, chirurgical, chirurgique.

Our series of words are senseless contractions from the French, but surgeon is itself a French word meaning a sucker. Even accepting "surgeon" as a vocal representative of chirurgien, "surgery" is very objectionable. Mercer-y is from "mercere," confectioner-y from "confectioner," grocer-y from "grocer," milliner-y from "milliner," ironmonger-y from "ironmonger," &c., so surger-y should point to "surger." On the other hand, "mason" makes mason-ry not masory, "deacon" makes deacon-ry not deacory, "falcon" makes falcon-ry not falcory, "pigeon" makes pigeon-ry not pigery, &c. "Surgical" is all very well if we take it independent of "surgeon," but it is not a normal adj. of that word.

Surloin. (See Sirloin.)

Sur'ly, (comp.) sur'li-er, (super.) sur'li-est, gruff, morose; sur'li-ly (R xi.), sur'li-ness. (O.E. sûr, sour; sûrlíc, surly.)

Sur-mise, sur mîze', to suppose, to imagine, to suspect; sur-mised (2 syl.); surmis-ing (Rule xix.), sur.mî'zing; surmis-er, sur.mî'zer. (Norman surmys, sur mittre.)

Latin super mittere supine-missum, to send above. To surmise is to express a floating thought, one that "rises to the surface."

Sur-mount', to overcome; surmount'-ed (R. xxxvi.), surmount'-ing, surmount'-er, surmount'-able, surmount'able-ness, surmount'-ably.

Fr. surmonter, surmontable (Lat. super montem, over the mountain).

Sur-mullet, sur.mūl'.lēt. Sur-mulot, sur'.mū.lot.

Surmullet, the red mullet. (Fr. surmulet, Lat. mullus.)

Surmulot, the Norway rat. (French surmulot.)

Surname (not sir-name), noun sur'.name, verb surname'.

Sur'name, the family name. Christian name, kris'.tĕăn..., the personal name of each individual given at baptism or "christening." Surnamed'; surnam-ing, sur.nā.ming.

The word does not mean the sire-name, but the additional name or rather the over-name, the name written over the Christian or personal name. Surnames are not traced further back than to the 10th century. (French surnom, v. surnomer.)

Sur-pass', to excel, to go beyond; surpassed, sur.past'; surpass'-ing, surpassing-ly, surpass'-er, surpass'-able.

Fr. surpasser; Lat. passus a pace, v. pando sup. passum to stride.

Surplice, sur'.plis. Surplus, sur'.plūs.

Surplice, a white robe worn by clergymen and others on ecclesiastical occasions; surpliced, sur'.plĭst, dressed in a surplice; surplic-ing, sur'.plis.ing.

Surplus, the excess over; surplusage, sur'.plūs.sage.

"Surplice," Fr. surplis; Lat. super pellictum, over the fur-robe or bachelor's ordinary dress, anciently made of sheep-skin.

"Surplus," Fr. surplus; Lat. super plus, the excess which remains over.

Sur-prise, sur-prize', a wonder, an astonishment, an unexpected event, to surprise; surprised' (2 syl.); surpris-ing (R. xix.), sur.pri'zing; surpris-ing-ly; surpris'-er, sur.pri'.zer.

Fr. surprise, v. surprendre to take unawares; Lat. superprehendere.

Sur-ren'der, a cession, a giving over further contest, to deliver up [oneself], to resign something, to yield; surrendered, sur.rĕn'.derd; surren'der-ing, surren'der'-er.

Surren'der-or'. Surren'deree' (in Law). Surren'dry.

Surrenderor, one who gives up an estate to his "lord."

Surrenderee, one to whom an estate is surrendered.

French sur rendre, to render over, probably an English blunder for se-rendre. The use of up after "surrender" is redundant.

Sur-reptitious (not surrupitious), sur'rĕp.tish''.ās, stealthy, without authority, fraudulent; surreptitious-ly.

Latin surreptitius, sur-[sub]rĕpĕre supine reptum, to creep under.

Surrogate, sur'ro.gate, an officer authorised to issue marriage licences, the deputy of a bishop, chancellor, or judge, &c.; surrogate-ship (-ship, office of).

Surrogation, -ro.gay'',shŭn. Surrogātum (in Scotch law).

Latin surrōgātio, surrōgātus, sur-[sub]rogāre; French subrogation.

Sur-round', to encompass; surround'-ed (R. xxxvi.), surround'-ing. Surroundings, concomitant circumstances.

A blunder for cir-round, Latin circum rotundo to pile up all round.

Sur-tout, sur.too' (French), a frock-coat. Properly an over-all.

Sur-veillance, sur.vŭ'.yāhnsee (French), oversight, watch.

Sur-vey, (noun) sur'vey, (verb) sur.vey' (Rule l.)

Sur'vey, a view, an inspection, a careful examination of a district, &c., with a view of determining distances, &c.

Survey', to overlook, to inspect, to measure [land], to inspect a district, &c., to determine distances, &c.; surveyed' (2 syl.), survey'-ing (Rule xiii.)

Survey'-or, survey'-or-ship (-ship, office or vocation of).

Land'-surveyor, land'-surveying.

Surveyor-general, plu. surveyor-generals (not surveyors-general), surveyor of crown parks, &c.

French surveiller; Latin super-videre, to over-see.

Sur-vive' (2 syl.), to out-live, to remain alive; survived' (2 syl.), surviv'-ing (Rule xix.), surviv'-al, surviv'-or; survivor-ship, the right of a survivor to property so devised.

Fr. survivre; Lat. super vivo, to live beyond or outlive [the others].

Sus- for sub (Latin prefix to verbs, &c., beginning with c, s, p, t).

(We have only one example of each: sus-ceptible, su[s]spect, sus-pend, and sus-tain.)

Sus-ceptible, -sĕp'.tī.b'l, liable to take [cold], easily moved by passion or influence, impressible; suscep'tible-ness, suscep'tibly; susceptible, sŭs.sĕp'.tīv.

Susceptibility, plu. susceptibilities, sŭs.sĕp'.tī.bīl''ī.tīz.

(This is the only word with sus for sub before -c. There are 14 or 15 belonging to nomenclature with sub- before -c: as sub-carburetted, sub-cartilaginous, sub-caudal, sub-class, sub-clavian, sub-columnar, sub-committee, sub-conical, sub-contract, sub-contrary, &c.

"Susceptible," Fr. susceptible; su[s]ub[c]ipere[cāpēre] supine -ceptum.

Suspect, (noun) sŭs'.pekt, (verb) sŭs.pekt' (Rule l.)

Sus'pect, a person suspected [of some political offence].

Suspect', to think one guilty; suspect'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), suspect'-ed-ly, suspect'-ed-ness, suspect'-ing, suspect'-er, suspect'-able, suspect'-ful.

Suspicion, sŭs.pish'.ŭn, doubt, mistrust, incredulity.

Suspicious, sŭs.pish'.us; suspicious-ly, suspicious-ness.

(This is the only word with sus- for sub- before -s. It will be observed that the second s is absorbed in the first: sus-spect, sus-spicion.)

written with only one s. There are 18 words with sub before s, 10 of which belong to nomenclature, and 8 are general: as sub-scribe, sub-sequent, sub-serve, sub-side, sub-sidiary, sub-sist, sub-stance, and sub-stitute. The 10 are sub-scapular, sub-section, sub-semitone, sub-soil, sub-species, sub-stratum, sub-structure, sub-style, sub-sulphate, and sub-sultus.

Latin suspectus, suspicio, suspiciosus, sus-[sub]spicio[specio] supine -spectum to look under [to see if anything is concealed], to mistrust.

Sus-pend', to hang, to cause to cease, to cease for a time, to deprive of a privilege for a time; suspend'-ed; suspend'-ing. Suspend'-ers, straps for holding up trousers, &c., braces, supports on which things may be suspended.

To suspend payment, to become bankrupt.

Suspense' (2 syl.), doubt, uncertainty, indecision, expectancy. Suspense'-ible, sūs.pēn.sī.b'l (not -able).

Suspensibility, sūs.pēn.sī.bīl'ī.ty (not -ability).

Suspension, sūs.pēn.shūn. Suspens'-or (in Surg.), a bandage for medical purposes. (In Bot.) the cord which suspends the embryo. Suspensory, pēn'sō.ry.

Suspension-bridge. Suspension of arms, ... of payment.

(This is the only example of sus- for sub before -p. There are two examples, both belonging to nomenclature, of sub before p: viz. sub-pena and sub-prior.)

Latin sus-[sub]pendere sup. -pensum, to hang under [the suspender], suspensio, suspensus, suspensor.

Suspicion, sūs.pish'ūn. (See Suspect.)

Sus-tain', to bear up under, to keep from falling, to keep alive; sustained' (2 syl.), sustain'-ing, sustain'-er.

Sustain'-able (Rule xxiii.), sustain'-ment.

Sustenance, sūs.tē.nānce (ought to be sustenance, Latin sustinentia, sustenens, Rule xxiv.), support, food.

Sustentation, sūs.tēn.tay"shūn (Rule xxxiii.)

To sustain a loss means properly to bear it bravely; but it is generally used in the sense of "suffering a loss."

Latin sustentatio, sustinentia, sus-[sub]tinere[tēnere], to hold-up under. In our wrong conjugations sustenance, sustainable, we have been misled, as usual, by the French soutenance, soutenable.

This is the only example of sus- for sub before t. We have 9 with sub before t, 3 of which are general (sub-tile, sub-tile, and sub-tract), and the rest belong to nomenclature: viz. sub-terranean, sub-tonic, sub-trahend, sub-transparent, sub-transparent, and sub-triple.

Sutler. Subtler (both sūt'ler). Subtler, süb'tīl.er. Sup'pler.

Sutler, a camp-follower. (German sudler, a dirty fellow.)

Subtler, more subtle or artful. (Latin subtilior.)

Subtler, finer, more delicate. (Latin sub textilis.)

Suppler, more flexible or pliant. (French souple.)

Suttee, sūt.tee', a widow who voluntarily burns herself to death on the funeral pile of her dead husband.

(This practice was abolished in 1829 through British influence.)

Suttee-ism, sūt.tee'.izm, the practice above referred to.

Sanskrit sati, chaste, pure. A chaste and perfect wife.

Suttle. Subtle (both sūt'.t'l). Subtile, sūb'.tīl. Supple.

Suttle, the weight of goods minus the "tare."

Subtle, artful, crafty." (Latin subtilis.)

Subtile, fine-drawn, thin, delicate. (Latin sub textilis.)

Supple, pliant, flexible. (French souple.)

"Suttle," Lat. subtilis, fine drawn, exact. "Suttle" is the exact weight.

Suter, sū'.ter. Suit-or, sū'.tor. Suture, sū'.tchūr.

Suter, a cobbler, a shoemaker. (O. E. sutere, Lat. sutor.)

Sutor, a wooer, a lover, one who has a law-suit.

Suture, (in Surg.) the sewing up of a wound. (In Anat.) the union joint of the skull-bones; sutural, sū'.tchūr.āl; sutured, sū'.tchūrd. Ventral suture. Dorsal suture.

"Suture," Latin sūtūra, a seam; sutor, a sewer, a cobbler; v. suo supine sūtum, to sew.

"Sutor," Fr. suite, a lawsuit; Lat. secutus, sequor to follow.

Suzerain, suz'.ē.rane, an over-lord to whom fealty is due; suzerain-ty, suz'.ē.rane.ty, paramount authority.

French suzerain, suzeraineté. A suzerain is a lord who holds lands under the crown, and lets off parts to vassals or tenants for definite service prescribed in the lease. The vassals, at certain times, are obliged to pay homage in acknowledgment of fealty.

Swab, swōb, a mop made of unravelled rope for cleaning decks, to wipe with a mop; swabbed, swōbd; swabb-ing, swōb'.bing; swabb-er, swōb'.ber, a petty officer appointed to see that the ship is kept clean and tidy. (See Swap.)

Old English swāp[an] to sweep, past sweop, past part. swāpen; German schwabber, v. schwabbern to swab.

Swaddle, swōd'.d'l to swathe; swaddled, swōd'.d'ld; swaddling, -d'ling. Swaddling-band. Swaddling-clothes, -klōthz.

Old English swæthel, swelhil, swædil, be-swethan.

Swāg, money, a heavy thud, to sink by its own weight, to move as something heavy and pendent; swagged, swāgd; swagg'-ing (Rule i.)

Swagg'er, to bluster, to bully, to brag, to walk in an insolent conceited manner; swaggered, swāg'g'rd; swagg'-er-ing.

Swagger-er, one who swaggers. Swagg'-y, swaying to and fro.

"Swag," Old Eng. swēg a heavy sound, swēgan to howl as the wind.

"Swagger," Welsh swyddgar officious, swyddog one who holds office.

Swain, a shepherd, a lover, a pastoral youth (in poetry or jest).

Old English swein, swán, or suán, a youth, a herdsman.

Swallow, swól'.lo. Martin, mar'tin. Swift.

SWALLOW.

Colour.—General colour black with re-flections of greyish blue.

Breast, black in the upper part, but white in the lower part and in the belly.

Throat and forehead, orange-brown.

Wings long and pointed. It spends more time on the wing than any other bird.

Feet naked, three anterior and one posterior claw.

Beak short and pointed, less curved than a martin's and with a smaller gape.

Tail contains 12 feathers. The lateral tail-feathers very long, giving the tail a forked appearance, and on the inner web of each tail-feather (except the 2 short middle ones) is a white spot.

Size.—Whole length about 8½ inches, tail-feathers nearly 5 inches.

Arrival.—About 10th April, and leaves in the middle of October for Africa.

Nest.—Built in chimneys, under eaves, in outhouses, and in old ruins. Made of moist earth, saucer-shaped, lined with feathers, open at the top.

Eggs.—From 4 to 6, white streaked with ash-colour and dark red. It rears 2 broods in the season.

Food.—Insects.

SWIFT.

Has very short legs with 4 toes directed forwards. The middle and outer toes with only 3 articulations.

Enormously long primary wings of a sable colour.

HOUSE MARTIN.

Colour.—Plumage glossy and close.

Top of the head and back, bluish black above, white underneath.

Wing and tail dull black. Chin white.

Wings exceedingly long and narrow.

Feet clothed with feathers; claws curved, sharp, greyish brown; disposed to turn forwards.

Beak short, broad, depressed, slightly curved, and so deeply cleft as to give it a very wide gape.

Tail very much forked.

Size.—Smaller than the swallow, whole length about 5½ inches. From carpal joint to the end of the first quill-feather, 4½ inches.

Arrival.—Some 3 or 4 days later than the swallow; leaves about the same time for Africa.

Nest.—Built under eaves and in the upper angles of windows, whence it is called house or window martin. Made of clay, lined with hay and soft feathers.

Eggs.—From 4 to 5, smooth and white.

Incubates 13 days and rears 3 broods in the season.

Food.—Insects.

SAND MARTIN.

Head, back, and wing-coverts of a mouse-brown colour, with a few short buff-white feathers on the posterior edge of the tarsus, just above the junction of the hind toe.

Beak a dark brown. Irides hazel.

Size.—It is the smallest of the swallow tribe, its entire length being 4¾ inches.

It is the earliest to arrive.

"Swallow," Old English swalewe, sualwe.

"Martin," Fr. martinet, called in Germ. mauer-schwalle, wall-swallow.

Swallow, swŏl'.lo, to take down the throat, to receive with gullibility; swallowed, swŏl'.lode; swallow-ing, swŏl'.lo.ing; swallow-er, swŏl'.lo.er.

Old Eng. suelg[an] or swilg[an], past swealg, past part. swolgen.

Swamp. Fen. Bog. Meadow, Marsh. Moor, Morass'. Heath.

Swamp [swomp], spongy land too soft to be trodden on by cattle, but yielding bushes, willows, and herbage.

Fen, a tract of land with a deep rich moist subsoil. The surface is occasionally overflowed, but the water easily filtrates to the subsoil. Fens yield most excellent crops of corn and rich good pasture.

Bog, peaty earth mainly composed of decayed vegetable matter. The surface is too soft and uncertain to yield a footing for cattle, and though it yields herbage it produces neither trees nor bushes like a swamp.

Meadow [mēd'o], low lands contiguous to a river, lake, or mere. The surface is sometimes under water, but for six or eight months it is dry and firm enough for cattle to feed upon its rich grass. Meadow grass may be cut and made into hay. The word means mown land.

Marsh, an exaggerated meadow, more wet and spongy, and yielding inferior herbage.

Moor, a tract of poor hungry earth, without trees and bearing very inferior herbage. The surface consists of a thin layer of nearly-sterile soil; the sub-soil is gravel or clay.

Morass', an exaggerated moor, as a marsh is an exaggerated meadow. The word means moors.

Heath, waste land overgrown with heath (eri'ca).

To swamp, to overwhelm with water, to fill [a boat] with water, to sink in; swamped, swompt; swamp-ing, swomp'-ing; swamp-y, swomp'y.

"Swamp," German sumpf, sumpsig swampy, sumpf-land.

"Fen," Old English fen or fenn, fennig, fen-land, fen-mint.

"Bog," Gaelic bog; Irish bogach. "Heath," O. E. hæth, hæth-feld.

"Meadow," Old Eng. mædewe, a meadow or anything that is mown.

"Marsh," Old English mersc, from mere, a lake, pool, or mere.

"Moor," Old Eng. mór, mór-land. "Morass" is móras, plu. of mór.

Swan, swŏn, a web-footed bird. Swann'-ery (R. i.), a breeding-place for swans. (O. E. swan, swann, swon, or suan.)

Swap, swŏp, a blow, an exchange, to exchange, to strike with a smack; swapped, swŏpt; swapp'-ing, swŏp'.ping (R. i.)

Welsh chwap a slap, v. chwapiog; Germ. schwapp a smack or slap, v. schwappin to slap.

"Swap" (an exchange or barter), Old Eng. cedp a bargain, cedpthing.

Sward (to rhyme with sword). Sword, sŏrd.

Sward, grassy turf; sward'-y. (Old English sweard.)

Sword, a military weapon with a sharp edge. (O. E. sweord.)

Swarm, sworm, a multitude, a crowd of bees in flight, to throng; to flight; swarmed, sworm'd; swarm'-ing.

Old Eng. swearm, v. swearm[ian], past swearmede, p.p. swearmed.

Swart, swort, dark, fawny.

Swarthy, sworth'y; swarth'i-ness, swarth'i-ly.

Old English sweart, swart, sweort, or swert.

Swash, swosh, a swagger, a blustering noise made by something falling or blumping into water, to swash; swashed (1 syl.), swash'-ing; swash'-y, soft and wet. Swash-bucker, a bully who swashes or strikes his shield with great vigour.

German schwatzen to clatter, schwatzter, schwatzterer.

Swath (to rhyme with faith, not unfrequently called swöth), a row of grass cut by the mower and thrown into a ridge by the scythe, the whole sweep of a scythe in mowing.

Old Eng. swathu or swathu a swath (from swath a path).

Swathe (noun to rhyme with faith), (verb to rhyme with bathe).

Swathe (noun) a bandage, a swaddling band, (verb) to make into a bundle, to wrap in; swaddling bands; swäthed (1 syl.), swäth'-ing, R. xix. (Old Eng. suethe or suäthil.)

Sway, rule, influence, the sweep of a weapon, to rule, to bias, to swing backwards and forwards; swayed (1 syl.), sway'-ing. (O. E. sweg[ian] to prevail, p. -ode, p.p. -od.)

"Swa-." There are 17 words beginning with swa-, in 10 the a = o, and in one (swath) it is doubtful. The 10 words are swab, swaddle, swallow, swamp, swan, swap, sward, swarm, swart, and swash. The 6 in which the a = a are swag, swain, swam, sware, swathe, and sway. All but 3 of these (swamp, swap, and swash), are native words.

Sweal, sweel, to melt wastefully like a bad candle, to singe off the hair of a slain hog; swealed (1 syl.), sweal'-ing.

Old English swell[an], past swael, past part. swolen.

Swear, sware, to take an oath, to administer an oath, to declare on oath, to use profane language, to take God's name in vain; (past) swore, (past part.) sworn, swear'-ing, swear'-er. (Sware for swore is abnormal and obsolete.)

Old Eng. swar[ian] or swer[ian], past swor; past part. ge-sworen.

Sweat, swēt. Sweet. Suit, sute. Suite, sweet.

Sweat, perspiration, toil, to perspire, to drudge; sweat-ed, swēt'-ed; sweat-ing, swēt'-ing; sweat'-er; sweat-y, swēt'-y; sweat'i-ly, sweat'i-ness.

Sweat of the brow, hard personal toil. "In the sweat of thy face" (Gen. iii, 19)

Sweating-bath. Sweating-sickness. Sweating-room.

Sweet, not sour, sugary fresh, good-tempered.

Suit, a complete set, to fit, to accord with one's wishes, &c.

Suite, a train (as the ambassador and his suite), &c.

"Sweat," Old English sweat, sweat, or sweat, v. sweat[an], sweating.

"Sweet," Old Eng. sweet or sweete; *sweet*lyce sweetly, sweetnes sweetness.

"Suit," Fr. suite. "Suite," Fr. suite; Lat. sequor, secutus.

Swede, sweed, a native of Sweden, a variety of turnip.

Swedish, adj. of both. Swiss, a native of Switzerland.

Sverrig Sweden, Svensker a Swede, Svensk Swedish.

Swedenborgian, swē.dēn.bōr''dʒi.ān, a disciple of Emanuel Swedenborg, the Swedish philosopher (1688-1772).

Swedenborgian-ism, the tenets taught by Swedenborg.

Sweep, one who cleans chimneys, a rub with a broom, the range of a body held at one end as the sweep of a scythe, a rapid survey with the eye, to sweep, to drag for an anchor; (past) swept, (past part.) swept, sweep'-ing, sweep'-ly, sweep'-er.

Sweepings (no ing), refuse swept up. Sweeps, large oars used in a small boat to force it ahead.

Sweep'-net. Sweep'-washer. Sweep'-stakes, the whole money staked by different persons on some adventure.

Chimney-sweep, plu. chimney-sweeps, a ramoneur.

Old English swoop, v. swoop[an], past swoop, past part. swoopen swoope sweepings, swooping a sweeping, swoopende sweeping.

Sweet. Suite, sweet. Sweat, swēt. Suit, sūte.

Sweet, (comp.) sweet'-er, (super.) sweet'-est, not sour, sugary, not salted, fresh, not stale, a lollipop; sweet'-ly, sweet'-ness, sweet'-ish (-ish added to adj. is diminutive).

Sweeten, sweet'n (-en converts nouns and adj. to verbs); sweetened, sweet'nd; sweeten-ing, sweet'ning; sweeten-er, sweet'n-er. Sweet'-scented. Sweet'-smelling. Sweet'-tempered, tēm'p'rd. Sweet-bay, a laurel.

Sweet'-bread, -brēd, the pancreas. Sweet'-briar.

Sweet'-heart (a corruption of sweetard), a lover.

(Similar to drunk-ard, dot-ard, dull-ard, slugg-ard, &c.)

Sweet-herbs, -herbz (not ērbz), garden or kitchen herbs.

Sweeting, a sweetheart: as "my sweet sweeting."

Sweet'-meats, -meetz, confectionery made of sugar.

Sweet-milk. Sweet'-oil, olive oil. Sweet-pea, plu. peas, pē, pēze, a sweet-scented annual.

Sweet-pota'to, plu. -pota'toes, one of the convolvulus genus.

Sweet-william, wil'yūm, the bearded pink (dianthus barbatus, bearded Jove-flower).

"Sweet-William," named in honour of St. William of Norwich, the boy-saint, said to have been crucified by the Jews in 1137. "Dianthus," the flower of the gods.

Suite [sweet], a staff of attendants. (French suite.)

Sweat [swēt], perspiration. (Old English swet or swát.)

Suit, a set [of clothes], to be in accordance with. (Fr. suite.)

"Sweet," O. Eng. swét or swót, v. swétan; swétlice sweetly, swétnes.

Swelching heat, swelsh'ing heat, melting or burning heat.

Old English swoleth burning, swélan to burn, swole heat.

Swell, a fop, an exquisite, an aristocrat, to increase in bulk, to puff out, to increase gradually in sound; swelled (1 syl.), swell'-ing, (past part.) swollen or swóln, swó'ln.

Swell-mob, well-dressed thieves acting in concert.

Ground-swell, the heavy surging of the sea before or after a storm.

Organ-swell, a certain number of pipes inclosed in a box, the gradual opening of which produces an increasing sound. Great swelling words, brag.

(Although swollen is according to the original spelling, analogy and pronunciation require swolen.)

Old English swel[an], past swedl, past part. swollen, swellere.

Swelter, swél'ter, to suffer from intense heat; sweltered, swél't'rd; swelter-ing, swel'ter-ing-ly, swel'try.

Old Eng. sweltan, past swedlt, sweolt, or swulte, past part. swollen.

Swerve (1 syl.), to deviate; swerved (1 syl.), swerv'-ing (R. xix.)

Dutch zwerfen; Danish svæve, to flutter, to hover; at svæve i mellem haab og frygt, to waver between hope and fear.

Swift, a bird of the swallow tribe so called from its swift flight, quick; (comp.) swift'-er, (super.) swift'-est, swift-ly, swift'-ness. Swift'-footed, fleet of foot.

Swifter (a sea-term), the forward shroud to a lower mast, ropes used to confine the capstan bars to their places.

Old Eng. swift, swyft, (comp.) swifstre or swiftra, (super.) swifstost, swiftlice swiftly, swiftnes, v. swif[an], past swif, past part. swifen.

Swig, to guzzle drink, to drink immoderately; swigged, swigd; swigg'-ing (R. i.), swigg'-er. (O. E. swig[ian], to stupefy.)

Swill, pigs' wash, to slush with water, to drink immoderately; swilled, swild; swill'-ing, swill'-er.

Old English swill[ian], past swilede, past part. swiled, swiling.

Swim, a movement in water, to move in water by the aid of hands and legs, fins, &c., not to sink; (past) swam, (past part.) swum (not swam), swimm'-ing (Rule i.); swimm'-ing-ly, rapidly, without hinderance; swimm'-er.

Old English swima, v. swimm[an], past swam, past part. swimmen.

Swindle, swin'dl, a cheating transaction; to cheat in selling; swindled, swin'd'ld; swindling, swin'd'ling; swin'dler.

Dutch zwindelen; German schwindel a vertigo, schwindeler a giddy person, schwindeln to act unsteadily and hence dishonestly.

Swine (sing. or plu.), a pig, a sow, pigs collectively; swin-ish, swi'nish (-ish added to nouns means "like," added to adj. it is dim.); swi'nish-ly, swi'nish-ness. Swine'-herd.

Swine'-stone, a variety of limestone also called stink-stone.

Swine'-sty, plu. swine'-sties. The swinish multitude.

Old English sūg with Teutonic -ein collective, sūg[ein] a herd of pigs; swtn, swyn, or suin, swtn-hyrde swine-herd.

Swing, an apparatus for swinging, swinging motion, movement backwards and forwards in a swing, to swing, to suffer death on the gallows; (past) swung (not swang), past part. swung, swing'-ing, swing'-ing-ly, swing'-er. (See below, Swinge). Swing'-bridge. Swing'-plough, -plōw.

Swing'-tree, the bar of a carriage to which the traces are fastened. Swing'-wheel, the wheel of the pendulum.

A swing-swang, a double oscillation (one up and one down).

Old English swing[an], past swang, past part. swungen.

Of the seven corresponding verbs only four retain the a in the perfect tense; and one of these four is vacillating.

"Ring," rang, rung, hring[an], hrang, hrungen.

"Sing," sang, sung, sing[an], sang, sungen.

"Spring," sprang, sprung, spring[an], sprang, sprungen.

"Cling," clang or clung, clung, cling[an], clang, clungen.

The following have abandoned the distinctive past tense:—

"Sting," stung, stung, sting[an], stang, stungen.

"Swing," swung, swung, swing[an], swang, swungen.

"Wring," wrung, wrung, wring[an], wrang, wrungen.

Swingeing, swin'-ding, [blow] very violent, a blow at the full swing of the arm; swinge'-ing-ly.

Swingel, swin'-g'l, that arm of a flail which swings round.

Swingle-tree, swing g'l..., the cross-bar of a plough, &c., to which the traces are attached, a whiffle-tree.

Old English swing[an], to beat, to dash; swingel or swingle, a whip or lash; swinglung, a whipping.

Three verbs retain the final e before -ing to distinguish them from other words of a very different meaning:—

"Dye" makes dye-ing, to distinguish it from dying.

"Singe" makes singe-ing, to distinguish it from singing.

"Swinge" makes swinge-ing, to distinguish it from swinging.

Swink, toil-worn, as the swink ploughman (Milton, Comus).

Old Eng. swinc or sutnc, v. swinc[an], past swdnc, past part. swunccn, or swenc[an], past swencte, past part. swenced.

Swipe, a contrivance for lifting water, to drink hastily.

Swipes (1 syl.), very small beer.

"Swipe," Welsh ystwc, a bucket or pail; ystuff, a swipe.

"Swipes" (small beer), a corruption of sweepings [of the brewery].

Swiss, a native of Switzerland. Swede, a native of Sweden.

Swiss, the language of Switzerland, adj. of Switzerland.

Switzer, swit'-zer, a native of Switzerland.

Switch, a thin flexible branch or twig, the noise made by a blow with a switch, a short rail movable on joints for shifting carriages from one line to another, to strike with a switch; switched (1 syl.), switch-ing.

Welsh ystwyth, flexible, pliant; v. ystwytho, ystwythot.

Swivel, swiv'el, a fastening which allows the thing fastened to turn freely round as on an axis, a ring which turns on a staple, to turn on a pivot; swivelled (2 syl.), swiv'ell-ing, Rule iii., -EL. (Old English swifan, to turn round.)

Swollen or swoln, swō'ln, increased in bulk. (See Swell.)

Swoon, a sort of fainting fit. Soon, in a short time.

To swoon, swooned (1 syl.), swoon-ing.

Old Eng. a-swun[an], to swoon; past -swunde, past part. -swuned.

Swoop, a pounce on [a bird] from a higher position; swooped (1 syl.), swoop-ing. (See below, Swop.)

Old English a-swāp[an], to sweep; past -sweop, past part. -swopen.

Swōp, to exchange; swopped, swōpt; swopp-ing (Rule i.)

Old Eng. ceap, a bargain; v. ceap[an], to barter or sell. (See above.)

Sword, sord, a weapon. Sward, swōrd, turf grass.

Sword'-less. Sword'-arm. Sword'-bayonet. Sword'-bearer, a city officer who carries the emblematic sword.

Sword'-belt. Sword'-blade (2 syl.). Sword'-fight, fite.

Sword'-fish, plu. -fishes, a sea-fish with a very long upper jaw which forms a sword-like weapon.

Swords'-man, plu. swords'men, one skilled in sword exercise; swords'man-ship, skill in sword exercise.

Sword'-play, a combat of fencers; sword'-player, a fencer.

Sword'-stick, a walking-stick with a sword concealed.

Sword of state, the sword borne before a sovereign, mayor, and other high officers of state.

Broad-sword, a Scotch sword. Double-handed sword.

To surrender [one's] sword, to submit [in war], to resign some dignity to the crown.

To break [one's] sword, to degrade from rank.

Damas'cus blade, a sword-blade of Damascus steel.

Toled'o, Mil'an, Is'pahan', and Cairo, are also noted for sword-blades.

"Sword," Old English sweord, sword; sverd, or swurd; sweord-bora, a sword-bearer; sweord-hwita, a sword-whetter.

"Sward" (a grass-plot), Old English sweard.

-sy (prefix to nouns) an art, an act, a state: minstrel-sy. It represents the Greek terminations -sis, -sia, as in apostasy, catalepsy, epilepsy, &c.

Sybarite, sib'ă.rîte, an effeminate voluptuary, a native of Sybāris in Italy; Sybaritic, sib'ă.rî't'îk, adj.

A tale is told by Seneca of a Sybarite who complained that his bed was so uneasy he could not sleep. The cause was a rose-leaf doubled under him by accident.

Sycamine, sik'ă.mîne. Sycamore, sik'ă.more. Sycōmore.

Sycamine, the black mulberry-tree (Luke xvii. 6).

Sycamore, a tree of the maple family, the plane-tree.

Sycōmore, a large tree allied to the mulberry and fig.

"Sycamine," Greek sūkāmīnos; sūkāmīnon, the fruit of the tree.

"Sycamore." This word is altogether a blunder. It is neither the sycamine nor the sycōmore, but the acer pseudo-platanus.

"Sycōmore," Greek sūkōmōrōs, the Egyptian fig-tree (sukeē, a fig).

The "sycamore" into which Zaccheus climbed to see Christ pass by was not the plane or maple, but the figus sycōmōrus, and should be called the "sycōmore." Indeed, in every case, the word given sycamore in the Old and New Testament ought to be written sycōmore. In Anglo-Saxon the spelling is sicomor, Fr. sycōmore. Thus Lk. xix. 4, "[il] monta sur un sycōmore pour le voir." In the Old Test. the word is always rendered "wild-fig" [figue sauvage].

Sycophant, sik'ō.fănt, a toady, a human parasite, a mean flatterer for personal ends; sycophantic, sik'ō.fănt'îk, adj.; sycophant-ism, sik'ō.fănt.îzm; sycophant-ish.

Greek suko-phantēs, a fig-informer, one who informed against those who exported figs from Attica, a traffic which was forbidden by law.

A sycophant breeze or wind is a good Greek phrase, meaning a slanderous rumour, or rather a slanderous tale of toadism.

Syenite, si'ē.nite, a granite from Syene in Upper Egypt.

Syllablé, sîl'.lă.b'î, one limb of a word.

Mon'o-syllable, a word of only one syllable.

Dis-syllable, a word of two syllables.

Tri-syllable, a word of three syllables (should be tris-).

Poly-syllable, a word of more than three syllables.

(If "disyllable" has double s, being a compound of the Greek dissos sullabé a two-fold syllable, "trisyllable" should have double s also, being a compound of trissos sullabé a three-fold syllable. In this respect the Fr. words are consistent: dissyllabe, trissyllabe.)

Syllabic, sîl'.lăb'îk; syllabic-al, sîl'.lăb'î.kăl; syllab'ical-ly.

Syllabicate, sîl'.lăb'î.kâte, to divide into syllables; syllab'icāt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), syllab'icāt-ing (Rule xix.).

Syllabification, sîl'.lăb'î.fî.kay''shûn.

Syllabication, sîl'.lăb'î.kay''shûn, the act or art of dividing words into syllables.

Syllabus, plu. syllabuses, sîl'.lă.bûs.ēz (not syllabi).

Syllabatim, sîl'.lă.bû''tim, adv. syllable by syllable.

Latin syllaba, syllabatim; syllabicus, syllabus; Greek sullabé (sul-[sun]lamano, to take together), the letters taken together.

Syllabub, sîl'.lă.bûb (see sillabub, the correct spelling).

Syllepsis, sil.lěp'.sis, (in Gram.) accepting the intention of the author and over-riding strict grammatical precision.

As, "This is for your brother or sister, but they are not at home" [but neither of them is at home]. "A tenant is responsible for rent, and unless he pays...." [unless he or she pays]. "Tenants-in-common hold by unity of possession, because neither of them knows his own severally" [neither or none of them knows his or her own....].

Syllogism. Enthymeme, en'.rhi.mēm. Sorites, so.ri'.teez.

Syllogism [sil'.lo.djizm], a form of argument logically constructed in three parts, viz., the major premiss, the minor premiss, and the conclusion.

Enthymeme, a syllogism with one premiss suppressed, being self apparent to the mind. (For examp. see Enthymeme.)

Sorites, a syllogism with more than two premisses piled together. (For example see Sorites.)

In a syllogism, the "subject" of the conclusion is the minor term, and the "predicate" is the major term, and these must cross each other—that is, the subject of the major must be the predicate of the minor. The major and minor must never have the same predicate.

(1) (Major) .. Every plant has a root.

(Minor) .. The OAK is a plant.

(Conclusion) Therefore the OAK has a root.

(2) Every plant has a root.

The oak has a root.

Therefore the oak is a plant.

(3) Man has two eyes.

A cow has two eyes.

Therefore a cow is a man.

Number 2 is correct as a fact, but is not proved by the syllogism, and the absurdity of No. 3 shows that No. 2 is wrong also.

Syllogize (Rule xxxii.), sil'.lō.gize, to reason by syllogisms; syllogized (3 syl.); syllogiz-ing, sil'.lo.dji.zing; syllogiz-er, sil'.lo.dji.zer; syllogistic, sil'.lo.djis".tik; syllogistic-al, sil'.lo.djis".ti.kāl; syllogistic-al-ly.

"Syllogism," Gk. v. sullogizomai, -gismos; Lat. syllogismus, -gisticus.

"Enthymeme," Gk. enthymēma (en thumos, [one premiss] in the mind only). "Sorites" Lat. sōrites (Gk. sōros, a pile or heap).

Sylph, silf. Nymph, nimf. Fairy, fair'ry. Elf. Pe'ri. Fay.

Sylph. In Rosierusian mythol. an elemental spirit of the air.

Nymph, a Greek spirit, the personification of vitality in animated nature. Every department of animated nature had its special nymphs; hence there were wood-nymphs, river-nymphs, lake-nymphs, sea-nymphs, &c.

Fairy, plu. fairies [fair'riz]. A spirit of mediæval romance, especially English romance. The fairies dwelt in fairy-land, but took great interest in the affairs of man, being themselves etherealised human beings.

Elf, plu. elves (1 syl.) A Scandinavian fairy dwarf.

The good were white, and dwelt in the air.

The bad were black, and dwelt underground.

Pe'ri, plu. peris [pě'riz]. The Persian sylph, of human size and the female sex. Winged, possessed of the power of almost instantaneous change of place, and of super-human powers employed for benevolent purposes.

Fay, plu. fays. The English way of spelling the Norman fée. Fées were very handsome elves, fond of dancing by moonlight and of mischievous fun. The personification of joyousness and high animal spirits.

Sylph; sylph-ine, sĭlf'-ine, adj.; sylph'-id, a little sylph.

"Fr. sylphe; Gk. silphē a moth or butterfly. The y is a Fr. blunder.

"Nymph," Gk. numphē; Lat. nympha. (See Nymph.)

"Fairy," Persian pēri; French fée, féerie.

"Elf," Old Eng. ælf or elf. Säg, kännar du Elfvornas glada släkt?
(Say, know'st thou the Elves' joyous race). Stagnelius, the Swede.

Sylvan, sĭl'-van, inhabiting a wood, rural, shady.

Sylva, sĭl'-vah, the native forest trees of any country.

Flora, flō'-rah, the native plants and flowers of any country.

Fauna, fōr'-nah, the native animals of any country, &c.

Silvas, sĭl'-vāhs, the woodland region of the S. Amer. plain.

"Sylvan," Lat. sylva (Gk. hulē), a wood. Sylvānus in Latin means the god of woods; sylvestris or sylvester is the adj. of sylva; a dweller in a wood is sylvicola; and full of woods, sylvosus.

Sym- (Greek prefix sun- before b, m, and p), with, united to.

Sym-bol, sĭm'.bōl. Cymbal, sĭm'.bāl, a musical instrument.

Symbol, an emblem, a character to signify something.

Symbol-ic, sĭm'.bōl'ĭk; symbolic-al, sĭm'.bōl'ĭ.kāl; symbolical-ly. Symbolics, the science of symbolism.

(Of the 50 or 60 sciences with this ending, all but 5 are plural. The five exceptions are from the French: arithmetic, logic, magic, music, and rhetoric.)

Symbolise, sĭm'.bō.lize, to express by symbols; symbolised (3 syl.); symbolis-ing, sĭm'.bo.li.zing; sym'bolis-er.

Symbolisation, sĭm'.bō.li.zay''shŭn. Sym'bolism, -lĭzm.

Symbology (ought to be symbolology), sĭm'.bōl'lō.djy, the art of expressing words and phrases by symbols.

"Symbol," Old Eng. symbol or syml; Latin symbolus, symbolicus; Gk. sumbolē or sumbōlon, sumbōlikōs (sum-[sun]ballo, to put together). Symbols originally meant the two corresponding pieces of a coin or ticket. The person who presented the proper "piece" showed a "symbol" of his right to what he claimed.

"Cymbal," Gk. kumbōlon (kumbos, hollow); Lat. cymbalum.

Sym-metry, plu. symmetries, sĭm'.mē.trĭz, the due proportion of the several parts, harmony of parts; symmetrical, sĭm.mēt'.rĭ.kāl; symmet'rical-ly.

Symmetrise, sĭm'.mē.trize, to make symmetrical; symmetrised (3 syl.); symmetris-ing, sĭm'.mē.trĭ.zing.

Symmetrist, sĭm'.mē.trist, one who studies symmetry.

Greek summētria, v. summetrēo (sun metron, with measure); Latin symmetria. Vitruvius says: "Symmetria est ex ipsius operis membris conveniens consensus," i. 2.

Sympathy, plu. sympathies, sim'pă.rhiz, fellow-feeling; (in Medicine), the reciprocal feeling and influence of the several organs of the body with each other; sympathetic, sim'pă.rhêt'ik; sympathetical, sim'pă.rhêt'ik.kâl; sympathet'ical-ly. Sympathet'ic nerves.

Sympathise, sim'pa.rhize, to feel sympathy; sympathised (3 syl.); sympathis-ing (Rule xix.), sim'pă.rhî'zing.

Greek sumpătheia, v. sumpăthéo (sun pathos, feeling with [each other]); Latin sympathia; French sympathiser, sympathie.

Symphony. Overture. Sonata. Concerto. Cantata. Aria.

§ Symphony, plu. symphonies, sim'fō.niz, an instrumental composition with several movements for a full band, the instrumental parts of a song before and after the vocal portions; symphonious, sim'fō.ni.ūs; symphonise, fō.nize, to be in unison, to be in accord; sym'phonised (3 syl.); symphonis-ing (Rule xix.), sim'fō.nî.zing.

Symphonist, sim'fō.nist, a composer of symphonies.

§ Overture, ō.ver.tchüre, the introductory symphony of an oratorio or opera.

§ Sonata, son.dă'tah, a musical composition of several movements for a single instrument.

§ Concerto, plu. concertos, kôn.tcher'tōze, a musical composition to display the powers of some particular instrument. The instrument displayed has concerti'no added to it as oboe concertino, violi'no concertino.

§ Cantata, kan.tăh'tăh, a vocal sonata.

§ Aria, ă.rě.ah, a musical air. Aria concerta'ta, has elaborate orchestral accompaniments.

"Symphony," Greek sumphōnia, v. sumphōnéo (sun phónē).

"Overture," French, from the verb ouvrir, to open.

"Sonata," Italian. "Concerto," Italian. "Cantata," Italian.

Sym-posium, sim'pō'.zî.ŭm, a social feast.

Gk. sumposion (sun pino, to drink together), a drinking-party.

Sym-ptom, simp'tŭm, something that indicates incipient or active disease; symptomatic, simp'to.măt'ik; symptomatic-al, simp'to.măt'ik.kâl; symptomat'ical-ly.

Symptomatic disease, a disease indicative of some other disease. Symptomatology, simp'tō.măt'ōl'ō.djy, that part of medicine which treats of symptoms.

Gk. sumptōma gen. sumptōmătōs (sun pipto, to fall together).

A symptom is something that falls simultaneously with a disease.

Syn- (Greek prefix), with, united to.

Syl- before -l: as syl'-lable, syl'-lep'sis, syl'-logism.

Sym- before -b, -m, -p: as sym-bol, sym-metry, sym-pathy, sym-posium, sym-ptom.

Sy- before -s, -z: as sy[s]-stem, sy[s]-stolē, sy[s]-style, sy[z]-zygy (the two -ss- or -zz- coalesce).

Before any other letter, syn- remains unchanged. The letters are ac-de-got, which may serve for a memoria technica, as

(a) syn-erēsis, syn-agogue, syn-alē'pa, syn-an'thos, -arthrō'sis.

(c) syn-car'nous, syn'-chrony, syn-clī'nal, syn'-cōpē, syn'-crētism.

(d) syn-desmō'sis, syn'-dic.

(e) syn-ec'dōché, syn-ec'hia.

(g) syn-genē'sia.

(o) syn-oc'reate, syn'-od, syn'-onym, syn-op'sis, syn-o'via.

(t) syn'-tax, syn-tex'is, syn-ther'mal, syn'-thēsis.

Syn-æresis, sin.ē.rē.sis (in Gram.), the coalescing of two vowels, or the contraction of two syllables into one: as ne'er for "never," I'm for "I am," spheroid for "sphe-ro-id."

Dieresis, dī.ē.rē.sis is the reverse process, that is, pronouncing two vowels (generally diphthongs) as two separate vowels: as "poet" = pō.ēt, "zoology" = zo.ōl.ō.gy, "aerial" = ā.ē.rī.āl, "phaeton" = fā.ē.tōn.

"Syn-æresis," Gk. sunatrēsis (sun airēo, to take [the two] together).

"Dieresis," Gk. di-airēsis, to take [the two] as two.

Syn-agogue, sin'.a.gōg, the place of worship for Jews, the congregation itself; synagogical, sin'.a.gōdg'ī.kāl; synagogical-ly. (Gk. sunāgōgē sun-ago to bring together.)

This frightful French ending ought to be abolished; synagog monolog, dialog, prolog, eclog, &c., would be far better.

Syn-chronism, sin'.krō.nīzm, simultaneousness; syn-chronous, sin'.krō.nūs; syn'chronous-ly; synchronic, sin.-krōn'īk; synchronical, sin.krōn'ī.kāl; synchron'ical-ly.

Synchronise, sin'.kro.nīze, to happen at one and the same time; syn'chronised (3 syl.); syn'chronis-ing (R. xix.)

Synchronisation, sin'.kro.nī.zay''shūn.

Greek sun chrōnos, united in time.

Syn-cope, sin'.kō.py, a fainting fit, a swoon, the striking out of one or more letters in a word: e'er for "ever."

Greek sugkōpē (sug-[sun]kōpē; kopto, to strike together).

Syn-desmosis, sin'.dēs.mō'sis. Endosmose, en'.dōs.mōze.

Syndesmō'sis, the union of bones by ligaments (as the radius with the ulna). (Greek sundesmos, a bond, &c.)

Endosmose, the transfusion of liquids or gases through an animal or vegetable membrane from the exterior to the interior. Exdosmose, the transfusion the other way.

Greek endon ōsmōs, impulsion within [from without];

ex ōsmōs, impulsion without [from within].

Syn-dic, sin'.dik, an advocate, a recorder, an attorney who acts for a corporation or university, a procurator, an assignee; syndicate, sin'.dī.kāte; the office of a syndic, the council or board of syndics.

Greek sundikōs, an advocate (sun dikē),

Syn-ecdoche, sĭn.ĕk'.dĕ.kĕ (in Rhetoric), a trope in which the whole is put for a part, or a part for a whole: as a hundred sail (ships), a hundred head of oxen. The clergy followed the dean, i.e., the clergy present.

Greek sunekdōchē (sun-ek-dechōmai, to take out together), that is, to take out [a part to represent the whole] together.

Syn-od, sĭ'.nŏd, a convention, a council, a board consisting of several neighbouring presbyterians; synodal, -nŏ'.dāl; synodic, sĭ.nŏd'.ĭk; synodical, sĭ.nŏd'.ĭ.kāl, pertaining to that period of time which the moon takes in returning to any given phase; synod'ical-ly.

Old English seonath, sindĭth, seonōd, seonōth, sinath, synoth or sinod; Greek sunōdos (sun hodos, a united course).

According to our usual way of spelling similar compounds, "synod" should be synhod (Rule lxx.)

Syn-onym, sĭn'.ŏ.nĭm, a word of the same meaning, plu. syn'onyms (synon'yma is very rarely used); synonymous, sĭ.nŏn'.ĭ.mĭs; synon'y-mous-ly.

Synonymy, sĭ.nŏn'.ĭ.my, the use of synonymous words.

As: "Say why is this? wherefore?" "Stand dumb and speak not to him." "Within the book and volume of my brain" (Hamlet).

Greek sunōnimōs (sun ōnōma, a name with the name): ōnōma and ōnōma are dialectic forms, but ōnōma seems somewhat irregular, and it is by no means evident why the dialectic form should be used at all in the words under this group: as pseudonym, anon'y-mous, patronym'ic, &c. The Greeks have endorsed the forms, and we must accept them.

Syn-opsis, plu. synopses, sĭn.ŏp'.sĭs, plu. sĭn.ŏp' ēēz, an abridgment, a précis, a conspectus; synoptic, sĭn.ŏp'.tĭk; synoptical, sĭn.ŏp'.tĭ.kāl; synop'tical-ly.

Synoptic Gospels, the gospels arranged together chronologically and in order.

Greek sunōpsis (sun opsis, a view [of all] together).

Syn-tax, the arrangement of words and sentences according to fixed rules, the rules themselves; syntactical (not syntaxical), sĭn.tāk'.tĭ.kāl; syntac'tical-ly.

Greek suntaxis (sun tasso, to arrange together).

Syn-thesis, sĭn'.rhĕ.sĭs, putting parts together

Analysis, a.nāl'.ĭ.sĭs, separating the ingredients of a compound, taking the parts to pieces.

Synthetic, sĭn.rhĕt'.ĭk; synthetical, sĭn.rhĕt'.ĭ.kāl; -ly.

Greek synthesis (sun tithēmi, to put things together).

"Analysis," Gk. analsis (ana luo, a loosening or breaking up).

Syphilis, sĭf'.ĭ.lĭs, a disease; syphilitic, sĭf'.ĭ.lĭt'.ĭk, adj.

A word coined by Fracastor (16th cent.), who wrote a Latin poem bearing this title. It was introduced into nosology by Sauvages. Greek sus philia (amour immonde). The Italians call the disease le mal Français, and the French return the compliment by calling it le mal Napolitain.

Syriac, sir'ri.āk, adj. of Syria, the ancient language of Syria.

Syrian, sir'ri.ān, a native of Syria, adj. of Syria.

Suri, a delicate rose, hence Suristan, the land of roses (Richardson).

Syringa, sir'n'.gah, a genus of shrubs of which the lilac is one.

Greek surigx gen. suriggōs; Latin syrix gen. syringos, a reed or pipe, so called because the wood is hollow. (See below.)

Syringe, sir'ringe, a squirt, to use a syringe (see above); syringed (2 syl.); syring-ing, sir'n'.djing; syring-er.

Greek suriga gen. suriggos; Latin syrix gen. syringos, a pipe.

Syrup, sir'rup, treacle, refined molasses, a mixture of honey or sugar and water with some flavouring substance; syrup-y, sweet like syrup; syruped, sir'rupt.

French sirap; Italian sciropo; Spanish araba; Arabic siraph or strab. Some give the Greek Surias ὄπος, Syrian juice.

System, sīs'.tēm, a plan or scheme in which several parts are reduced to regular order and dependence; systematic, sīs.tē.māt'.ik; systematical, sīs'.tē.māt''.ā.kāl; -cal-ly.

Systematise, sīs'.tē.mā.tize, to reduce to a system; systematised (4 syl.); systematis-ing (R. xix.), -tē.mā.ti''.zīng; systematis-er, sīs'.tē.mā.ti''.zer; systematist, -mā.tist.

Systematisation, sīs'.tē.mā.ti.zay''.shūn.

Greek sustēma gen. sustēmātos (sun hīstēmi, to stand together).

Systole, sīs'.tō.ly, the shortening of a long syllable; as "plethōra" for plethō'ra, "orātor" for orātor, &c.

Syzygy, siz'.ā.djy, the point at which the moon (or a planet) in its orbit is either in conjunction with the sun or in opposition to it, as in new and full moon.

Greek syzygia (suz-[sun] zygon, a yoke together).

(All the words beginning with sy- are Greek; but sylean is a Latin form of the Greek hulé, syrup is doubtful, and if syph is Greek it ought to be spelt silph.)

-t terminal, (the Latin -t[us]), denoting a thing done: fac-t, ac-t, effec-t, perfec-t, &c.

Tāb, a shoe-latchet, the end of a shoe-lace. (Welsh tap.)

Tabard, tāb'.ard, a mantle worn by heralds; tab'ard-er.

Tab'ard-ar, a sizar of Queen's College, Oxford.

Low Latin tabardum; French tabard or tabart.

Tabby, phu. tabbies, tāb'.āz, an old maid, a tabby cat, a silk watered and figured; tabby, brindled with dark gray or black, to water silk; tabbied, tāb'.ād; tabby-ing.

French tabis, v. tabiser, to tabby; Persian retabi.

Tabernacle, tāb'.er.nāk k'l, a tent, a place of worship (chiefly applied to a chapel for Methodists), to dwell temporarily;

tabernacled, tāb'.er.nāk'k'ld; tabernacled, -er.nāk'ling;
tabernacular, tāb'.er.nāk'kū.lar; tabernacular-ly.

Feast of tab'ernacles, one of the three great Jewish festivals.

Latin tabernaculum, taberna a hut, with diminutive.

Tabes, tā'.beez, consumption, atrophy; tabetical, ta.bēt'.kāl;
tabid, tāb'.id; consumptive; tab'id-ly, tab'id-ness.

Latin tabes, tābitudo; tābidus, consumptive.

Tablature, tāb'.lā.tchūr. Entablature, en.tāb'.lā.tchūr.

Tablature, a painting on walls and ceilings.

Entablature, the architrave, frieze, and cornice combined.

"Tablature" in French is only a term in music, and is never applied to a painting on walls; Latin tābula, a writing-table, a picture, but the loss of the u (between b and l) is to be regretted.

"Entablature" is Latin tābūlatum, a stage or storey, with en- to make, that which makes a stage or complete part.

Table, tā'.b'l, a board supported on legs, fare, persons sitting round a table [at a meal], a tabulated entry of particulars.

Multiplication Table. Pence Table. Shillings Table, &c.

The two tables [of the law], the two divisions which contain the ten commandments (one the duty of man to God, and the other the duty of man to man).

The Lord's table, the sacrament of the eucharist.

Table-clōth. Table-land, a flat elevated tract.

Table-spoon, a spoon used at table for serving out vegetables, tarts, puddings, and other foods.

Table-talk, familiār chit-chat like that at meals.

Table-turning, movement of tables and other objects ascribed to the exertions of departed spirits.

Table of Pythag'oras, the multiplication table.

To lay on the table, to receive a written motion or report, but to postpone indefinitely its consideration.

To turn the tables, audi alteram partem, to rebut a charge by bringing forth a countercharge.

Thus if a husband accuses his wife of extravagance in dress, she "turns the tables on him" by accusing him of equal or greater extravagance in something else.

Table d' hôte, tāk'.b'l dôte (French), an ordinary.

The twelve tables, the laws of old Rome compiled by the decemvirs and engraved on brass.

Knights of the Round Table, a military order instituted by Arthur, "the first king of the Britons," A.D. 576.

Old English tæfel or tæst; Latin tābula; French table.

Tableau, plu. tableaux, tāb.lō, plu. tāb'.lōze, a picture representing a group disposed in dramatic order.

Tableau vivant, plu. tableaux vivants, tăb' lô vĕ' vâhn, plu. tăb' lôze vĕ' vâhn, the representation of a statuary group by living persons.

French tableau plu. tableaux, tableau vivant plu. tableaux vivants.

Tablet, tăb' lĕt, a small slip of some suitable material for memoranda, a small flat cake [of soap], &c. (Fr. tablette.)

Tablets of Moses, a variety of Scotch granite.

Tables of Moses, the two tables of the ten commandments. The Tablets of Moses are so called because they look when polished as if they were inscribed with Hebrew characters.

Taboo, tă' boo', to forbid the use of, to exclude, to hold aloof; tabooed, tă' bood'; taboo'-ing. (Polynesian, to set apart.) (Thus a burial-ground is tabooed for general purposes.)

Tabor, tă' bôr, a small drum beaten with one stick, to play the tabor; tabored, tă' bôrd; ta'bor-ing, ta'bor-er.

Tabret, tăb' rĕt. Tabouret, tăb' ôrĕt.

Tabret, a small tabor.

Tabouret, the right of sitting in the presence of a queen.

In the ancient French court, certain ladies had the droit de tabouret, as the chief ladies of the household, the wives of ambassadors, dukes, lord chancellor, keeper of the seals, &c. Gentlemen similarly privileged had the droit de fauteuil.

Tabular, tăb' bu. lar, set down in a synoptical form, having the form of laminae. Tabular spar.

Tabulate, tăb' bu. lâte, to reduce to a synopsis; tab'ulât-ed (Rule xxxvi.), tab'ulât-ing, tab'ulât-or (Rule xxxvii.)

Tabulation, tăb' bu. lây'' shŭn. Tab'ulæ Toleta'næ, the astronomical tablet of Alphonso X. of Castile.

Latin tabulâris, tabulârius, tabulâtor, tabulatio, tabulare.

Tace, tă' sy, hush! don't say what you were going to say.

Taisez vous, tă' zy voo (French), hush! keep silence, don't say any more, don't speak on that subject.

Tacet, tă' sĕt. Tacit, tăs' ĭt.

Tacet (in Music), the instrument is to cease playing.

Tacit [as tacit consent], consent given by silence.

"Tace," Lat. imper. of tăcere, to be silent. "Tacet," 3 sing. pres. tense, [the instrument] keeps silent. "Tacit," Lat. tăcĭtus, silent.

Tache, tăsh, a loop, a button (Exod. xxvi. 6, 11, 23; xxxvi. 13.) French attache, a tie or fastening; v. attacher, to fasten.

Tacit, tăs' ĭt, silent, implied. Tacet, tă' sĕt (see above, Tace).

Tacit-ly, consentingly but without verbal expression.

Taciturn, tăs' ĭ. turn, reserved in speech, not talkative.

Taciturnity, tăs' ĭ. tur'' nĭ. ty; taciturn-ly, tăs' ĭ. turn. ly.

Lat. tăcĭtus, tăcĭturnus, tăcĭturnitas (tăcere, to be silent).

Tack, tāk, a small nail with a flat head, the course of a ship with reference to the sails, the tackle by which the weather-clew of a course is hauled forwards and down to the deck, to put a ship about so that from having the wind on one side you bring it round on the other by the way of her head. The opposite of Wearing.

Starboard tack, star' b'd-tāk, sailing with the wind on the right side. On the starboard tack, with the wind on the right side as a vessel is sailing.

The tack of a fore-and-aft sail, the rope which keeps down the lower forward clew. The tack of a studding sail, the rope which keeps down the lower outer clew.

The outhaul, the tack of the lower studding sail.

To tack, to fasten with tacks, to veer, &c.; tacked, tākt; tack'-ing. Tact, discretion. Tax, government impost.

Dan. takke; Fr. attache, a fastening; Ital. attaccare, to fasten.

"Tact," Fr. tact. "Tax," Lat. taxatio, v. taxare.

Tackle, tay' k'l, a purchase formed by a rope rove through one or more blocks (Dana, Seamen's Manual).

Fishing tackle, -tāk' k'l, apparatus for fishing.

Ground tackle, anchors, cables, warps, and everything else used in securing a vessel at anchor.

Gun-tackle, the apparatus for manœuvring a gun.

Tackling, tāk' ling, the furniture of yards and masts (as the cordage, sails, &c., of a ship or other vessel).

Danish takkel; takling, rigging; takle, to rig a ship.

Tact, tākt. Tacked, tākt, fastened with a tack. (See Tack.)

Tact, adroitness in adapting oneself to circumstances.

French tact (jugement fin et délicat). See below.

Tactics, tāk' tiks (R. lxi.), evolutions and manœuvres of troops or ships in the presence of an enemy, the science of manœuvring...; tactical, tāk' tikāl; adj. tac'tical-ly.

Tactician, tāk' tish' ān, one skilled in tactics, an adroit manager.

Greek taktikós, pertaining to military tactics; [ra] taktika, military tactics (tasso, to set in order, to array).

Tactile, tāk' til, what may be touched, tangible; tactile-ly.

Tactility, tāk' til' i, ty, Taction, tak' shūn.

Tactual, tāk' tuāl, derived from touch; tac'tual-ly.

Lat. tactilis (tangere, to touch); Fr. tactile, tactilité, taction.

Tadpole, tād' pōle, a frog in its first state from the spawn.

Old Eng. tād-pōl, a young toad or frog (Lat. pullus, Gk. pólos, the young of any animal; Old Eng. folā, a foal).

Taëpings, tah' ē'' pings, Chinese rebels. (Universal Peace.)

Taffrail, tāf' rail, the rail round a ship's stern. (Dutch tafereel.)

Taffeta, tăf' fě.tah, a thin silken fabric with a wavy lustre.

Taffeta phrases, -fě.tah fră'.zěz, euphemisms, sleek phrases.

We use also the fabrics called buckram, fustian, lutestring, shoddy, silk [or silken], stuff, velvet, &c., for literary compositions.

French taffetas (mot tiré du persan taftah, tissu de soie, Bouillet).

Tăg, a metallic point at the end of a lace, to fit with a tag; tagged, tăgd; tagg'-ing, materials for tags, fitting with tags. Tăg-răg, the rabble. Tag-rag-and-bobtail.

Danish tag, a handle; Swedish tagg, a point.

"Tag, rag, and bobtail," slang terms for three sorts of inferior dogs.

Tagetes, tă.djee'.teez, one of the African marigold species.

Named after Tăges [gen. Tăgētis], grandson of Jupiter, who taught the Etruscans divination.

Tail, Tale (both tăle). Teal, Teil (both teel). Tell, těl.

Tail, the queue of an animal, a tag-end, limitation.

Tale, a story, a narrative of adventure, a tally.

Teal, one of the duck family. (Dutch teeling or taling.)

Teil, the linden or lime tree. (Latin tilia; Greek tělēa.)

Tell, to inform, to narrate. (Old English tellan.)

An estate tail, an estate limited to certain heirs.

Tenant-in-tail, the person who comes into an estate-tail.

Tail'-age, a share of one substance paid by way of tribute.

Taille, tail, the fee which is opposed to fee-simple, because it is minced or pared, i.e., not in the tenant's power to bequeath, being limited to the issue of the donor.

"Tail" (a queue), Old English tăgel, tăgl, or tėgl.

"Tail" (as "estate tail"), French taille; tailler, to cut.

"Tale" (a story), Old English tăl or tălu (v. tellan, to tell).

Tailor, fem. tailor-ess, tay' lor, tay'.lor.ess, one whose trade it is to make men's outer garments. The maker of women's outer garments is a Milliner. Tail'-lor-ing, doing tailor's work. Tailor bird. Taylor, a proper name.

French tailleur (v. tailler, to cut or snip).

Taint, a blemish, to sully, to defile. 'Tan't, taint, "it is not."

Taint'-ed (R. xxxvi.), taint'-ing, taint'-less, taint'less-ly; tainture, tain'.tchūr, tinge, defilement.

"Taint," French teindre, to dye; Latin tingo; Greek tego.

An't and 'tan't are interesting contractions inasmuch as they are relics of the obsolete form of as for "is," "am"=as-m, "art"=as-t, "is"=as-th, plu. "are"=as-e, the letters severed by hyphens being relics of personal pronouns, m is seen in Fr. moi, Lat. me, Gk. mou, &c.; t, in Fr. toi, Lat. and Gk. tu, &c.; so with the rest.

"An't" is am-not or as[is] not, and "'tan't" is it as[is] not.

Tăke (1 syl.), past took, past part. taken, tă'.k'n; tak-ing, tă'.king (R. xix.), to receive, to tolerate, to appropriate, to suppose, to entrap, to swallow, to choose, to go into, to capture, to accept as a tenant, to please, a catch.

Tak-er, tā'ker. To take advantage of, to make use of another's advantage to his prejudice.

To take after, to resemble. To take aim at.

To take up arms, to begin hostilities. To take away.

To take breath, brēth, to rest after exertion. To take care of.

To take down, to lower, to reduce to writing.

To take effect. To take fire. To take for, to mistake one person for someone else. To take heart, hart.

To take heed, to be cautious. To take heed to, to listen to.

To take hold of. To take horse, to ride on horseback.

To take in, to gull, to entertain, to comprise, to buy the numbers of a periodical as they come out. To take in hand.

To take leave, to bid adieu. To take my leave.

To take notice, to observe. To take off, to remove, to swallow, to mimic. To take [myself] off, to leave.

To take on, to assume, to give way to. To take out.

To take part in, to participate in. To take part with.

To take place, to happen. To take the place of.

To take root, to live as a plant, to become confirmed.

To take stock, to make an inventory of stock in hand.

To take up, to lift up, to arrest, to dig up, to select as a subject, to pay a bill of exchange, to resume.

To take up arms, to begin war. To take the air, to take out-door exercise. To take the field, to begin war.

To take to heart, to feel keenly. To take upon oneself.

To take up with, to become intimate with.

Old English ta[an], past toe, past part. tacen.

Talbot, taw'l.bōt, a hound with broad mouth, deep chops, and long hanging ears. Talbotype, taw'l.bōt.type, a photographic process discovered by Fox Talbot in 1839.

Talc, tālk, a foliated mineral. Talk, tawk, conversation.

Talc-k-y, tāl'ky; talcose, tāl'kōze, containing talc.

Talcite, tāl'site, a mineral also called nacrite.

Talcose granite, tāl'kōze grān'it. Talc schist, 'shist.

German talk; French talc, talcique. When a suffix beginning with e, i, or y (not a, o, u, or a consonant) is added to a word ending with c, "k" is always added to prevent the c being pronounced as s: thus "mimic," mimick-ed, mimick-ing; "physic," physick-ed, physick-ing; "traffic," traffick-ed, traffick-ing; "talc," talc-k-y; "colic," colick-y. The exceptions are "disc," disciform [dis'si'form].

All words in -c ended at one time in -ck. How much better it would have been if we had rejected the c and retained the k; but there is a prejudice in Latin, French, and English against "k," one of the best letters in the alphabet.

Tale, Tail (both tāle). Teal, Teil (both teel). Tell, tēl.

Tale, a story, a short narrative of adventure, a tally.

Tail, the queue of an animal, the fag end, a limitation.

Teal, one of the duck family. (Dutch teeling or taling.)

Teil, the lime or linden-tree. (Latin tilia, Greek tēlēa.)

Tell, to inform, to narrate. (Old English tellan.)

"Tale," Old English tdl, tdlu, tæl, ge-tel, ge-tæl, ge-tdl.

"Tail" (a queue), Old English tægel, tægt, or tēgt.

"Tail" (as "estate tail"), French taille; v. tailler, to cut, to limit.

Talent, tāl'ent, ability, natural endowment of mind; tāl'ent-ed (Rule xxxvi.), clever, possessed of good abilities.

The words talented and moneyed are unusual forms, seeing we have no such verbs as to talent, to money.

"Talent," applied to mental gifts, is borrowed from the Scripture parable (Matt. xxy. 14-30), and it would be more consistent to speak of a man "of many talents" than to speak of a man "of great talent," unless indeed the reference is to the Jewish gold and silver talent, one £5,475 and the other £396. The Attic talent was about £243 15s. (Latin talentum; Greek talanton.)

Tales, tā'leez, (in Law) a supply from bystanders to complete the complement of a jury; tales-man, plu. tales-men, a bystander selected to fill up a vacancy in a jury panel.

It is not unusual for a special jury to be short of the required number. When this is the case, either plaintiff or defendant may "pray a tales," and one or more of the common jury are selected as tales-men. (Latin talis plu. tales, of the like sort.)

Talisman, plu. talismans (not talismen), an amulet, a charm.

French talisman, "mot arabe qui signifie consécration" (Bouillet).

Talk, tawk. Talc, tǎlk, a foliated mineral. (Germ. talk, Fr. talc.)

Talk, conversation, chit-chat, to converse, to chat; talked, tawkd; talk-ing, tawk'ing; talk-er, tawk'er.

Talkative, taw'kǎ.tiv; talkative-ly, talkative-ness.

To talk shop, to introduce trade or business in conversation
Danish tolk; v. tolke, to interpret, to express; tolkning.

Tall, tawl, (comp.) tall'er, (super.) tall'est, high in stature; tall-ness, tawl'ness. (Welsh tal; taldra, tallness.)

Tallage, tǎl'lage, an impost or excise. (French tailage.)

Tallow, tǎl'lo, hard fat prepared for candles, &c., to smear with tallow; tallowed, tǎl'lo.de; tallow-ing; tallow-er.

Tallow-y, tallow-ish, like tallow. Tallow-grease.

Tallow-chandler, a dealer in tallow. Tallow-candle.

"Tallow chandler" ought to be chandeler, French chandelier.

German talg, talgicht tallowish, talgig tallowy; Danish talg.

Tally, plu. tallies (R. xlv.), tǎl'liz, a stick or lath for keeping a score, to correspond; tallied, tǎl'li.ēd; tally-ing; talli-er, one who keeps a tally (now called a teller).

Tallyman, plu. tallymen. Tallyshop, a shop where goods can be obtained by part payments at stated intervals.

The tally of the Exchequer court was a rod of wood marked on one face with notches corresponding to the sum for which it was an acknowledgment. Two other sides contained the date, the name of the payer, and so on. The rod was then cleft in such a manner that each half contained one written side and half of each notch. One part was kept in the Exchequer and the other was circulated. When payment was required the two parts were fitted, and if they "tallied" all was right, if not payment was refused. This custom was not wholly abandoned till 1834 (Fr. tailler, to cut; Lat. tālea.)

Tally-ho! a huntsman's cry to the dogs when a fox breaks cover.

French thisa hillaut! corruption of taillis au! to the coppice.

Talmud, tāl' mūd, the whole body of the Hebrew laws with comments thereon. It is divided into two parts: the Mishna and the Gemā'ra. The "Mishna" is the written law, and the "Gemā'ra" a collection of traditions and comments; talmudic, tāl' mūd' ik; talmudical, tāl' mūd' ik kāl; talmudist, tāl' mūd' ist; talmudist-ic. (See Targum.)

"Talmud," Hebrew lamad, to teach. [The book of] instruction.

"Mishna," Heb. shanah, to learn. "Gemara," Chal. for supplement.

Talon, tāl' ōn, the claws of a bird of prey, an o-gee moulding.

Spanish talon, the heel. "Talon" (a moulding), French talon.

Talus, ta' lūs, (in Anat.) the ankle-bone. (Latin tālus.)

Tamarind, tām' a. rīnd. Tamarin, tām' a. rīn. Tam'arisk.

Tamarind, the Indian date tree, the seed-pods of the...

Tamarin, a Sth. American monkēy with a long bushy tail.

Tamarisk, tām' a. risk, a flowering evergreen.

"Tamarind," Arab. taṃar-hindī, Indian-date. "Tamarin," Fr. tamarin.

"Tamarisk," Lat. tāmārice or tāmārix; Heb. T[a]M[a]RIK.

Tambour, tam. boor', a small drum; a [drum-shaped] frame used for embroidery, to make tamour-work; tamboured' (2 syl.), tambour-ing. Tambourine, tām' bō. reen', a musical instrument with a parchment head. (See Tabor.)

Fr. tambour, "de l'espagnol tambor, derivé de l'arabe al tambor."

Tāme (1 syl.), comp. tām'-er, super. tām'-est, not wild, not savage, spiritless, wanting vigour, dull, to tame; tamed (1 syl.); tam-ing (R. xix.), tā' mīng; tam-er, tā' mer; tam-able, tā' ma. b'l; ta'mable-ness. Tame'-ness, -ly.

Old Eng. tām, tāma, v. tām[ian], past tāmode, past part. tamod.

Tamper, tām' per (followed by with), to meddle with unfairly, to try little experiments on; tam'pered (2 syl.), tamper-ing.

A corruption of the Fr. tremper: as "tremper dans une conspiration."

Tam-tam or tom-tom, an East Indian drum.

Tān, the bark of certain trees used for turning hides into leather, to convert hides into leather, to make brown by exposure to the sun; tanned, tānd; tann'-ing (Rule i.), tann'-er, tan'něry, tan'-able. Tan'-bed. Tan'-pickle, brine for tanning. Tan'-pit. Tan'-yard. Tan'ning liquor.

Tan'nin, the principle of tan which converts hides into leather.

Tan'nic acid, the acid which exists in all tanner's bark.

Tannate, tăn'.nate, a salt of tannic acid (-ate, a salt).

Tanners' bark, bark of the oak, chestnut, willow, &c. used by tanners for converting hides into leather.

Old English ge-tanned, tanned; French tan, v. tanner, tannerie.

Tan'dem, two horses harnessed one before the other to a light vehicle. (University pun: tandem (Latin), at length.

Tangent, tăn'.djent, a straight line which touches a circle or curve but would not cut it even if produced; tangential, tăn'.djěn'.shāl; tangential-ly; tangency, tăn'.djěn'.sy.

Lat. tangens gen. tangentis, v. tangere, to touch; Fr tangente.

Tangible, tăn'.dji.b'l, that may be touched or realised, perceptible to the touch; tangible-ness, tangibly.

Tangibility, tăn'.dji.bil''ă.ty. (Latin tangibilis.)

Tangle, tăn'.g'l, hair or thread in a confused and knotted mass, to tangle; tangled, tăn'.g'ld; tan'gling, tangling-ly, tan'gly. (Danish tang, sea-weed, a tangle.)

Tank, a large cistern for storing water. (Portuguese tanque.)

Tankard, tank'.ard, a large metal drinking cup with a lid.

Irish tancaird, Gaelic tancard.

Tannin, tannic, tanner, tannery, &c. (See Tan.)

Tansy, plu. tansies, tăn'.ziz, a herb.

Latin tānācētum (Greek athēnsia, immortality), the everlasting.

Tan't, tăn't, contraction of It is not. (See Taint.)

Tantalise, tăn'.tālize, to balk; tan'talised (3 syl.); taltalis-ing (11. xix.), tăn'.tālizing; tan'talising-ly; tan'talis-er.

Tantalisation, tăn'.tālizay''shūn. Tantalism, tăn'.tālizm.

Tantālos (Lat. Tantalus) was punished by Zeus for revealing the secrets of the gods. He was cursed with intolerable thirst, and to make the punishment greater was placed in water to the chin, but whenever he stooped to drink the water flowed away from him.

Tan'tamount, -tāmout, equivalent. (Lat. tantus, with -amount.)

Tantivy, tăn'.tīv'.y (a hunting term), swiftly, at full speed.

To ride tantivy, to ride at the utmost speed.

Tantrums, tăn'.trūmz, a fit of ill-temper, a fit of passion.

Welsh tant trwm, an ill whim, a sad spasm.

Tăp, a plug or spill for stopping a hole pierced in a cask to force the liquor out, a place where liquor is served out, the liquor itself, a conical screw for cutting female threads, to broach a cask, to give a slight knock; tapped, tăpt; tapp'-ing (Rule i.); tapster, tăp'.ster, one whose business it is to draw liquor from a cask (-ster, Rule lxii.)

Tap'-bolt. Tap'-house. Tap'-room. Tap'-root. a spindle-shaped root like a carrot, &c. On tap, ready for use.

Old Eng. tap, tapere a tapster, tapestre a female drawer of liquors, v. tæppan, past tæpte, past part. tapped.

Tāpe (1 syl.), cotton or linen ribbon; tape'-line (2 syl.), a tape for measuring. Tape'-worm, wurm, an intestinal worm.

Old English tæppe, tape or a tape-worm.

Taper, Tapir (both tā'per). See below, Tapir.

Taper, a small wax candle, a long wick coated with wax, gradually narrowed to a point, long and slender [figure], to narrow to a point; ta'pered (2 syl.), ta'per-ing, ta'pering-ly. (Old English taper or tapur.)

Tapir, a thick-skinned mammal with short proboscis.

"Taper" (a candle), O. Eng. taper or tapur. "Taper" (to diminish), O. Eng. tæppe, a plug tapering to a point. "Tapir," Fr. tapir.

Tapestry, plu. tapestries, tāp'ēs.triz, a fabric with wrought figures (chiefly used for decorating walls), to adorn with tapestry; tapestried, tāp'ēs.trēd; tape'stry-ing.

Fr. tapisserie; Lat. tāpetum, tāpes gen. tāpētis, a carpet, hangings.

Tapioca, tāp'kō'kah, a farinaceous food from a Brazil plant.

French tapioca, a corruption of jatropha [manihot], the plant.

Tapir, Taper (both tā'per). See above, Taper.

Tapir, a thick-skinned mammal with short proboscis.

Taper, a small wax candle, to narrow to a point.

"Tapir," Fr. tapir. "Taper" (a candle), Old Eng. taper or tapur.

"Taper" (to grow to a point), O. E. tæppe, a plug tapered to a point.

Tapis, tāp'py, the table-cloth of a council table. On the tapis, on the cover of the council table, i.e. under consideration.

What's on the tapis now? what now engages public attention, what is the uppermost subject of conversation.

Fr. tapis, sur le tapis; Lat. tāpes gen. tāpētis; Gk. tāpēs, tāpētōs.

Tar, a resinous substance obtained from pine and fir trees, to smear with tar; tarred, tard; tarr-ing (Rule i.).

(1) Tarry, tār'ry. Tarry, tār ry, to delay (Welsh tariaw).

Tarry, tār'ry, containing tar, like tar, wet with tar, &c.

Old Eng. teor, tearo, or tyro, v. tyrw[ian], p. tyrwede, p.p. tyrwēd.

Tarantula (not Tarentula), tar'ān.tū.lah, a species of spider.

Latin tarantula (Alexander ab Alexandro).

This word, says Kircher, is derived either from Taranto, in Italy, or from Thara, a river in Apulia, in the vicinity of which places these venomous spiders abound (De Arte Mag.)

Italian tarantella; Spanish tarantula; but in French tarentule.

Tardigrade, tar'.dī.grade, one of the sloth family.

Tardigrada, tar'.dī.grā'.dah, the sloth family.

Latin tardigrādus, slow moving (tardus grādus, a slow step).

Tar'dy, (comp.) tar'di-er, (super.) tar'di-est, slow, backward, reluctant; tar'di-ness, tar'di-ly. Tardigrade (see p. 1284).

Tar'di-gate, slow; tardi-gā'ted, slow footed. (Lat. tardus.)

Tare, Tear (both tāre). Tear, Tier (both teer).

Tare, a weed, a vetch, an allowance made by merchants for packages, &c. Net or nett, the weight minus the tare.

Tear [tare], to rend; past tore (1 syl.), past part. torn.

Tear [teer], a drop of water flowing from the eye.

Tier [teer], a row, generally applied to different rows rising in elevation one above another.

"Tare," Fr. tare; Arab. tarah, to throw off. Net, clear of all deductions.

"Tear" (to rend), Old English tēran, past tær, past part. tōren.

"Tear" (from the eye), Old English tēar, tēr, or tēher.

"Tier," Old Eng. tier, Heb. TIR; Welsh tyru, to pile up.

Target, tar'-get, a small buckler, a butt for marksmen to aim at; tar'-get-ed, furnished with targets; target-eer, tar'-gē-teer". Targe (1 syl.), a buckler (only used by poets).

Old English targe; Welsh targed, a buckler, a shield.

Targum, tar'-gūm, a Chaldee free translation of the pentateuch or prophets; targum-ist, a writer of a targum.

There are ten targums extant. The two most esteemed are (1) a paraphrase of the pentateuch in Chaldee, by Onkelos, ascribed to the first Christian century; and (2) the targum of Jonathan (ben Uzziel), a paraphrase in Chaldee of the prophets, said to have been written in the third century. The two next in value are the targum of the Pseudo-Jonathan, and the Jerusalem targum, both on the pentateuch. (Chaldee T[a]RGUM, interpretation. See Talmud.)

Tariff, tār'-rif (not tair'-if), a tabulated list of rates or duties to be paid on goods exported or imported, a price-list, to make a tariff; tariffed (2 syl.), tariff-ing.

Tarifa, a promontory in Spain, where the Moors stationed excise officers to levy toll on every vessel passing through the Straits of Gibraltar. (French tarif; Spanish tarifa; Italian tariffa.)

Tarlatan, tar'-lātān (not tarl'-tān), a gauze-like fabric, so called from Tarare, in France, the chief centre of the manufacture. (Corruption of tarareton.)

Tarn, a small mountain lake or pool. (Icelandic tiörn.)

Tarnish, tar'-nish, a loss of lustre, soil on a lustrous surface, to sully, to stain, to dull a bright surface; tar'nished (2 syl.), tar'nish-ing. (French ternir, ternissant.)

Tarpanlin, tar-paw'-lin, a tarred pall or waterproof covering for the hatchways of ships; for loaded wagons, stacks, &c.

(The spelling of this word is indefensible; as well write paul for "pall" and baul for "ball.") O. E. tare pawl, tar pall; Lat. pallium.

Tār-rūgon, the herb-dragon, an aromatic plant used for perfuming vinegar in France; tarragon vinegar.

Tarragona, tă'r'a.gō''nah, a wine resembling port.

"Tarragon" (artemisia tracunculus) corruption of French estragon.

"Tarragona" (the wine), so named from Tarraco or Tarragō'na, in Catalonia (Spain), about 47 miles south-west of Barcelo'na.

Tarry, tă'r'ry, to stay. Tarry, tă'r'ry, adj. of tar.

Tarried, tă'r'rēd, stayed. Tarred, tărd, smeared with tar.

Tarry-ing, tă'r'ry.ing, staying. Tă'r'ring, smearing with tar.

Tarri-er, tă'r'rē.er. Terrier, tē'r'rē.er. Tă'r'er.

Terrier, one who stays behind, a dilatory person.

Terrier, a small dog that follows game into holes.

Tarrer, one who tars. Tarriance, tă'r'ri.ance, delay.

"Tarry," Welsh tariaw. "Tarry," Old English tare or tearo, tar.

"Terrier," Lat. terra, the earth; Fr. terrier, the terrier dog.

Tarsus, tar'sus. Meta-tarsus, mēt.ta-tar'sus.

The metatarsus, the foot from the toes to the instep.

The tarsus, the instep or part between the metatarsus and ancle (composed of seven bones), also the cartilage inside the eyelid. The last segment of an insect's leg.

Lat. tarsus; Gk. tarsōs a broad surface, tarsōs pōdōs the flat of the foot.

Tart, a delicate fruit pie, sour, saucy; (comp.) tart'-er, (super.) tart'-est, tart'-ly, tart'-ness, tart'-ish (-ish added to adj. is dim., added to nouns it means "like"). Tart'-let.

"Tart" (a pie), Fr. tarte and tourte. "Tart" (sour), O.E. teart, teartnes.

Tartan, tar'tăn, a Scotch plaid, a checkered cloth.

Fr. tiretaine. "Ce mot paraît venir de l'espagnol tiritana, que Ménage dérive lui-même de Turdetania, ancien nom du pays de Grenade, où l'on fabriquait cette espèce de drap" (Dict. des Arts).

Tar'tar, a vinous deposit on casks and vats, a native of Tartary, a fierce unmanageable fellow; tartaric acid, tăr.tă'r'rik ă's'sid, an acid found in tartar and in the juice of grapes, &c.

Tartarise (R. xxxi.), tar'tă.rize, to impregnate with tartar, to form a deposit of tartar; tar'tarised (3 syl.); tar'taris-ing.

Tartarous, tar'tă.rūs. Tartarus. Tartarean, tăr.tă'r'rē.ăn.

Tartarous (adj.), containing tartar, pertaining to tartar.

Tartarus (noun), the infernal regions of classic mythology.

Tartarean, adj. of Tartarus, infernal, pertaining to...

Tartralic [acid], tar.tră'l'ik or Tartrel'ic [acid], an acid formed by heat from tartaric acid.

Tartrate, tar'trâte, a salt of tartaric acid (-ate denotes a salt from an acid in -ic, i.e. with a maximum of oxygen).

Cream of tartar, kreem..., the tartar of wines and fruit.

Tartar emetic, e.mēt'ik, tartrate of potassa and antimony.

Salt of tartar, calcined cream of tartar.

Tartar of the teeth, a concretion deposited on the teeth.

(It consists of salivary mucus, animal matter, and phosphate of lime.)

To catch a Tartar, to assail an overmastering opponent.

Fr. tartre, tartre émétique, crème de tartre, sel de tartre, tartarique.

"Tartar" (a person), Fr. Tartare (Tartary).

Paracelsus says "tartar" (the deposit of wine) "is so called because it produces oil, water, tincture, and salt, which burn the patient as the fires of Tartarus burn" (Infernal stuff).

Tartuffe, tar.tūfē', an hypocritical devotee.

The principal character in Molière's comedy of the same name.

Task, a stated lesson, a compulsory and distasteful employment, to exact, to require of another a certain amount of labour;

tasked (1 syl.), task'-ing, task'-er. Task'-master. -work.

To take to task, to reprimand. (Welsh tasgiad, v. tasgu.)

Tasmanian, taz.mā'nī.ăn, a native of Tasmania, adj. of...

Tassel, tās.sēl (not taw'.sel, nor Worcester's tōs's'l), a pendent ornament; tas'selled, adorned with tassels.

Tassel-gentle (a corruption of tiercel...), the "tiercel" is the male of the goshawk, being a tierce or third less in size than the female Tasselled gentleman, a fop.

Welsh tasel, a fringe, v. taselu. "Tasselled gentleman" is a pun.

Tāste (1 syl.), the sensation produced by the organ of taste, the organ itself, flavour or that which produces the sensation, discrimination between what is suitable and what is not, to taste, to affect the taste; tāst'-ed (R. xxxvi.), tāst'-ing (R. xix.), tāst'-able (only -ce and -ge retain the -e before "-able"). Taste'-ful (R. viii.), taste'-ful-ly, taste'-ful-ness.

Taste'-less, taste'-less-ly, taste'-less-ness.

Tāst'-er, one who tastes [wines or teas] to judge of them; tāst'-y, (comp.) tast'i-er, (super.) tast'i-est; tast'i-ly.

French taster now tāter, tāte-rin; tāter une étoffe, to judge of a fabric by the sense of touch (A man or woman of taste means really one who discriminates nicely by the touch.)

Tātter, to tear into rags; tattered, tāt' terd; tātter-ing.

Tatters, rags. In tatters, in rags. To tear to tatters.

Tatter-demalion, tāt'.ter.dē.māl''.yăn, a ragamuffin.

Old English tættecan, tatters, rags. "Tatter-demalion," tatter de maillo [may'yô], long-clothes, swaddling-clothes.

Tattle, tāt'.t'l, prate, gossip, to tell silly gossiping stories; tattled, tāt'.t'ld; ta'ttling, ta'ttling-ly, ta'ttler.

Danish tater, a gipsy, with diminutive (gipsy prattle).

Tattoo', the beat of drum at night to call soldiers to their quarters, figures or lines cut on the skin and stained, to tattoo the face or body; tattooed' (2 syl.), tattoo'-ing (all double vowels, except -ue, are retained before -ing), tattoo'-er, tattoo'-age (-age, the act, custom, condition, state).

The devil's tattoo, drumming with the hand on furniture, tapping the foot on the floor monotonously so as to produce in others "the blue devils."

"Tattoo" (the beat of drum), a corrupt contraction of tapotez tous.

"Tattoo" (the skin), Fr. tatouer, tatouage. A New Zealand word.

Taught or taut, tight, not slack, properly ordered; instructed.

A broad pronunciation of the word "tight" (toit then taut).

"Taught" (instructed), O. Eng. tæc[an], past tæhte, past part. tæht.

Taurus, tau' rūs, the second of the twelve signs of the zodiac (it contains the Pleiads and Hyads); taurine, tau' rin, bovine; tauriform, tau' rī form. Taurocol, tau' rō kōl, glue made from bull's hide. (Gk. tauros kolla, bull glue.)

Latin taurus, taurinus, tauriformis; Greek tauros, &c.

Tauto- (Greek prefix), the same (to auton, the same thing).

Tauto-logy, tau.tōl' ō.djy, pleonasm, redundancy; tautological, tau'.to.lodj' ā.kāl; tautolog'ical-ly; tautologise

(Rule xxxi.), tau.tōl' ō.djize, to use redundancy of speech;

tautologised (4 syl.); tautologis-ing, tau.tōl' ō.djiz.ing;

tautologist, tau.tōl' ō.djist; tautologous, tau.tōl' ō.gūs.

Greek tautologia, tautologos (tō auto lego, I speak the same thing).

Tauto-phony, tau.tōf' ō.ny, repetition of the same tone; tautophonical, tau'.to.fōn' ā.cāl, monotonous.

Greek to auto phōnē, I sound the same thing.

Tavern, tāv' ern. Hotel, hō.tēl'. Public House. Inn.

Tavern, a house licensed to sell liquors to be drunk on the premises, and where entertainment is provided for large parties, but not lodgings.

Public house, an inferior tavern, or road-side house, where wayfarers can procure beer, with bread and cheese.

Hotel, a superior house for the accommodation of travellers, where board, lodging, and stabling are provided.

Inn, an inferior hotel.

"Tavern," Welsh tafarn; French taverne; Latin taberna. (Ulpian says it is from tabulae boards, "quibus clauditur aut contegitur")

"Public house," a house where beer is retailed to the public.

"Hotel," Fr. hôtel for hostel; Low Lat. hostelagium, the right of lodging and entertainment; Latin hospitium.

"Inn," Old Eng. inn, an inn, a house where strangers are taken in.

Taw, a large choice marble, a marble selected to be played with; the art or operation of preparing skins for white leather, rendered like tawed leather, to macerate skins. Tor, the scratch or mark from which the play of marbles begins.

Taw (a marble), plu taws [or tawse].

To taw, tawed (1 syl.), taw'-ing, taw'-er, taw'-ery.

"Taw," Old Eng. taw[ian], past tawode, past part tawod, tawere.

"Taw" (a marble selected to be played with), O. E. tawa, an implement.

"Tor" (the mark to be played from), called toy in Norfolk; as Go from toy. (Old English tor, a ridge.)

Tawdry, common but showy finery; taw'dri-ly, taw'dri-ness.

At the annual fair of St. Audrey, in the isle of Ely, common lacc, called St. Audrey lace, used to be sold. Henshawe says: "astrigmenta, timbria, seu fasciola, emptæ nundinis S. Ethelredæ."

Taw'ny, (comp.) taw'ni-er, (super.) taw'ni-est; taw'ni-ness (Rule xi.), brown, dark skinned, tanned by the sun.

This word is a muddle between our word taw (to dress leather) and the Fr. tanner (to tan leather). If from "taw" it should be tawy, and if from "tanner" tanny, a word already used in another sense.

Tax, plu. tax'es (2 syl.), government impost on property, to levy a tax; taxed, tāxt; tax'-ing, tax'-er, tax'-able.

Taxation, tax.ā.shūn. Tax'-gatherer. Tax'-payer.

Assessed taxes, ās.sĕst'..., government tax on articles in use, as carriages, men-servants, coats of arms, &c.

Latin taxatio, taxāre; French taxe, v. taxer, taxation.

Tacks, tax, small nails. (Danish takke, a jag, &c.)

Taxidermy, tax'.i.der.my, the art of preserving the skins of animals so as to preserve their natural appearance; taxidermist, tax'.i.der''mist; taxidermic, tax'.i.der''mĭk.

Fr. taxidermie (from the Gk. taxis derma, an arrangement of a skin or hide). An ill-compounded word, as taxis does not mean "to put in order" in the sense of *dress*ing, but in the sense of *array*ing: as ταξι-δρχης, where taxis means a company of foot-soldiers, and taxiarch is a brigadier; ταξι-λόχος, a commander of a lochos or fifth part of a mōra, a division of Spartan infantry, meaning the officer who has the ordering, &c., of these groups of men. "To dress skins" does not mean to array them in order, but to comb, clean, and preserve them, and the Greek verb is ζάλω, so that æno-dermy would be preferable to "taxidermy." (See Taxonomy.)

Taxis (in Surg.), a process by which parts deranged resume their normal situation without the aid of instruments.

Taxites, tax'ites (in Geol.), the fossil remains of yew-trees.

Taxodium, tax.ō'.dĭ.um, the N. Amer. deciduous cypress.

Taxodite, tax'.o.dĭtĕ, a fossil allied to the taxodium.

Latin taxus, a yew-tree (-ite denotes a fossil or mineral).

Taxonomy, tax.ōn'.ō.my, that department of natural history which treats of the laws of classification. (Gk. taxis nōmōs.)

Tea, tee, the dried leaves of the thea shrubs, an infusion of the leaves, an afternoon repast at which tea is served.

Tea caddy, plu. tea caddies, tee' kăd'.dĭz; tea-can'ister.

Tea-cup. Tea'-dealer, -dee'.ler. Tea'pot. Tea-service, tee' ser.vis, a complete set of articles for the tea-table.

Tea'-spoon. Tea'-table. Tea'-tray, plu. -trays. Tea'-urn. Chinese tea or tha; Russ. tshai; Fr. thé; Span. té; Ital. tè.

Teach, teech. Learn, lern.

Teach, to impart instruction, as a master to his pupils.

Learn, to receive instruction, as a pupil from a master.

Teach, (past) taught, (past part.) taught, tawt; teach'-ing.

Teach'-er, one who gives instruction. Learn'-er, one who receives or is picking up instruction.

Teach'-able, teach'-able-ness. Un-teach'-able, -ness.

"Teach," Old Eng. tæc[an], past tæhte, past part. tæht (the g is an interpolation), tæcing; tæcung, a teaching.

"Learn," O. E. leorn[ian], past leornode, past part. leornod, leornere a learner, leornigende learning (part.), leornung learning, wisdom.

ERRORS OF SPEECH—

(The use of "learn" for "teach" should be carefully avoided.)

Lead me in Thy path and learn me [teach] (Ps. xxv. 4, Prayer Book).

Such as are gentle, them shall He learn His way (Ps. xxv. 8, ditto).

O learn me true understanding [teach] (Ps. cxix. 66, ditto).

Hast thou not learned me how to make perfumes? [taught] (Shaks.)

Teak, teek, an East Indian tree. (Malabar tekka.)

Teal, teel, one of the duck family. (Dutch teeling or taling.)

Team, teem. Teem, to abound, to produce abundantly.

Team, a line of horses harnessed to a wagon, &c., two or more horses harnessed to a coach or other vehicle.

Teamster, teem'ster, one who drives a team.

It is an error to suppose that -ster is a feminine suffix, and that the nouns to which it is attached pertain to the female sex. It is attached to nouns of all genders, and denotes vocation, or that skill which arises from practice. Even spinster means an unmarried woman simply because the vocation of maidens was spinning. Teamster is a man whose vocation is to drive a team.

"Team," Old Eng. teām, v. teādm[ian], past teāmode, p. part. teāmod.

"Teem" (to abound), Old Eng. tjīm[an], past tjimde, past part. tjymed.

Tear, Tare (both tair). Tear, Tier (both teer). Tire.

Tear [tair], a rent, a rupture, to rend, to sever violently; (past) tōre (1 syl.), (past part.) torn; tear-ing, tair'-ing; tear-er, tair'-er. To tear from. To tear out. To tear up. (Past tare is the older form, but it is out of use.)

Tare, a weed, a sort of vetch, allowance made by merchants for casks, &c. The weight with the tare is called gross weight. The weight without the tare is the net weight.

Tear [teer], a drop of water flowing from the eye; tear'-ful (Rule viii.), tear'-ful-ly, tear'-ful-ness. Tear'-less.

Tier [teer], one of a row of seats [rising above each other].

Tire (1 syl.), an iron hoop to bind together the felloes of a wheel, to become weary or exhausted.

"Tear" (to rend), Old Eng. tēr[an], past tær, past part. tōren.

"Tear" (in weeping), Old Eng. tēr, téar, or tæher, v. tæher[ian].

"Tare" (weight), Fr. tare; Arabic tarah, to throw off.

"Tare" (the weed), from the Old Eng. v. tir[ian], to vex [the corn].

"Tier" (a row), Old Eng. tier; Heb. TIR; Welsh tyru, to pile up.

"Tire" (to weary), Old Eng. teor[ian], past teorode, past part. teorod.

"Tire" (of a wheel), from the Old Eng. v. tian, to tie or bind.

Tease, teez, to comb or card wool, to raise the nap of cloth, to reduce shreds to fragments, to torment, to annoy, to vex; teased, teezd; teas-ing (R. xix.), tee'.zing; teas'ing-ly.

Teasel (better than teazel), tee'.zel, a plant with a prickly head used for teasing cloth, to dress cloth with teasels; teaseled, tea'sel-ing, tea'sel-er (Rule iii. -EL).

As a rule, dissyllables ending in -l double it when a suffix beginning with a vowel is added, but there are six or seven exceptions in -el: as "angel," angel-ic, &c.; "channel," chann'eled, &c.; "chisel," chiseled, &c.; "impanel" [not panel], impaneled, &c.; "hansel," hans'eled, &c.; "parallel," paralleled, &c.; and "teasel," teased, &c. (The teasel used by clothiers is called "Fullers' teasel." There is a small teasel usually called "Shepherd's Rod." The largest teasel awns are called "kings," the smallest "mannikins," and the intermediate awns are called "middlings.")

Old English tésan, past tédde, past part. téded; tédel.

Teat, teet. Tit, a very small thing (Welsh titen, a midge).

Teat, a pap or nipple for suckling infant offspring.

Teat'-ed (in Bot.), having protuberances like nipples.

Old English tite or titte, a teat or nipple; tito or titto, teats.

Technical, ték'.nĩ.kāl, pertaining to the arts, associated with some particular trade or profession; technic, ték'.nĩk; technical-ly, ték'.nĩ.kāl.ly; tech'nical-ness, -nĩ.kāl.ness.

Technicality, plu. technicalities (R. xlv.), ték'.nĩ.kāl''ĩ.tĩz.

Technics, -nĩks, any branch of learning relating to the arts.

Technical education. ...word. In a technical sense.

Technology, ték'.nõl'.ð.djy, a treatise on any art or on arts in general, terms used in art, the science of arts; technological, ték'.no.lodg''.ĩ.kāl; technological-ly, ték'.no.lodg''.ĩ.kāl.ly. Technologist, ték'.nõl'.ð.djist.

Greek techné, handicraft; technĩkós, technõlögós, technolögĩa.

Techy, těch'.y (a corruption of touchy), irritable, snaggy; (super.) tech'i-est, (the comp. is rarely used); tech'i-ness, tech'i-ly. (French toucher, to touch.)

Te Deum, tě.dě'.ũm, a hymn of thanksgiving. (See Tedium.)

In the English Prayer Book it begins with the words We praise thee, O God. The Latin canticle (called the Ambrosian hymn) is generally ascribed to St. Ambrose, but probably it is of a much later date.

The te deum of architecture is a series of carved figures in niches: (1) angels, (2) patriarchs, (3) apostles and evangelists, (4) saints and martyrs, (5) founders. In Salisbury cathedral there is a te deum.

Tedious, tee'.dĩ.ũs (not tee'.djũs), wearisome, "long winded," irksome from length or repetition; te'dious-ly. te'dious-ness. Te'dium, wearisomeness. (See Te Deum.)

Latin tadium; the Latin adjective is tediũlus not tadius.

Teem, Team (both teem).

Teem, to abound, to be prolific; teemed (1 syl.), teem'-ing.

Team, any number of horses harnessed to a vehicle.

"Teem," Old Eng. tēm[an], tīm[an], or tym[an], p. tēme, p.p. tēmed.

"Team," O. Eng. teām, v. teām[ian], past tedmode, past part. tedmod.

Teens, numerals ending in -teen. Miss in her teens, a girl between thirteen and twenty.

Old Eng. -tyne, ten as a suffix: as threot-tyne, 13; feower-tyne, 14, &c.

Teeth, plu. of tooth. The teeth are divided into three groups.

(1) Incisors, in.sī'sorz, the front teeth used for cutting.

(2) Canines, ka.nīnes', the side teeth used for tearing.

(3) Molars, mō'.larz, the double teeth used for grinding.

Teething, tēthe'-ing, dentition. (Teeth is teerh.)

Eye'-teeth, the two canine teeth in a line with the eyes.

Milk'-teeth, the first teeth. Wis'dom teeth, two double teeth cut after persons have come to years of discretion.

Milk teeth are cut between the ages of 5 months and 20 months.

The second set between the ages of 5 years and 12 years.

The wisdom teeth between the ages of 17 and 25 years.

Teetotalism, tee.tō'.tāl.izm. Temperance, tēm'.pě.rance.

Teetotalism, total abstinence from intoxicating drinks.

Temperance, a moderate use of intoxicating drinks.

Teetotal, tee.tō'.tāl, adj. Teetotall-cr, tee.tō'.tāl.er.

Dissyllables accented on the first syllable and ending in -al are more irregular than even those ending in -el. It should be made a rigid rule that all words ending in -l double it when a suffix beginning with a vowel is added, or else that they conform to the general rule (Rule iii.) What can be worse than such spelling as:—

Coral, corall-aceous, corall-ine, corall-iferous, corall-ite, corall-oid.

Petal, petalled, petal-ine, petal-ism, petal-oid.

Equal, equalled, equal-ling; but equal-ise, equal-ised, equal-ising, equal-iser, equal-isation, equal-ity.

Crystal, crystallised, crystall-ing, crystall-ise, crystallised, crystall-ising, crystall-iser, crystall-isation, &c., &c.

"Teetotal." The most probable origin of this word is that Richard Turner (Dicky Turner), addressing a temperance meeting in Sept., 1833, reduplicated the word in order to increase its force. "We want not only total abstinence, but tee-total." The ludicrous but uncompromising word took the meeting by storm.

Teetotum, tee.tō'.tum, a spinning toy. (Titter-totter-um.)

Tegument, tēg'gū.ment, any natural envelope or covering; tegumentary, tēg'gu.mēn''.ta.ry. (Latin tēgūmentum.)

Teil, Teal (both teel).

Teil, the linden or lime-tree. (Latin tilia, Greek tēlēa.)

Teal, one of the duck family. (Dutch teeling or taling.)

Telamones. Atlantes. Caryatides. Perses. Gigantes.

Tel'amon, plu. telamones, tēl'.ā.mō''.nēze, figures of men usually of gigantic size supporting entablatures.

Atlas, plu. Atlantes, ăt.lăn'.tēze, gigantic figures of men used as supporters instead of pillars or columns.

Caryatid, plu. Caryatides, kar'ri.ăt''îd, plu. kăr'ri.ăt''î.deze, female figures used as supporters instead of pillars, &c.

Persis, plu. Perses, per'.seze, a Persian man used for a supporter. Gigas, plu. gigantes, dji'.gas, plu. dji.găn'.teze, a gigantic figure used for a supporter.

"Telamones," Gk. tēlāmōn gen. tēlāmōnos, a band or strap for supporting anything, from v. talad, to support (Latin tōlērāre).

"Atlantes," from Atlas, fabled to bear the world on his back.

"Caryatides." Praxit'ēlēs employed figures of Caryan women and Persian men instead of columns, and Vitruvius tells us the reason is because the Carians sided with the Persians in the battle of Thermop'ylæ.

"Perses" (see above). F. W. Fairhold, in his Dict. of Terms in Art, spells the word Perces, but this is evidently an error.

"Gigantes," Gk. gigantes, sons of Gē [earth], whence the name gē-gēnēs.

Tele-, tēl'.e- (Gk. prefix), at a distance, far off. (Gk. tēlē, far off.)

Teleo-, tēl'.ē.o- (Greek prefix), perfect, complete, final (tēlēōs).

Tele-gram, tēl'.ē.grām, a message sent by telegraph.

Tele-graph, tēl'.ē.grāf, an apparatus for conveying intelligence momentarily to a great distance, to telegraph; telegraphed, tēl'.ē.grāft; telegraph-ing, tēl'.ē.grāf.ing; telegraphic, tēl'.ē.grāf''îk; telegraphical-ly, -î.kāl.ly.

Telegraphic message. Telegraphic despatch (not dis...).

Elec'tric tel'egraph. Submarine tel'egraph, süb'.mă.reen''..., a telegraph which works under the ocean or a sea.

Needle telegraph, single-needle-telegraph, double-needle...

Telegraph cable, a cable used for telegraphic purposes. Those between Great Britain and America, France and America, &c., are called Atlantic Cables.

Telegraphist, te.lēg'.ră.fist, one who works a telegraph.

There is no such word as telegrapher [te.lēg'.ră.fer].

Telegraphy, te.lēg'.ră.fy (not tēl'.ē.grāf'.y).

Greek tēlē gramma, a word or communication from afar off.

"Telegraph," tēle graphō, I write from a distance.

Teleo-logy, tēl'.ē.ōl''ō.djy, the doctrine of the final causes of things; teleologist, tēl'.ē.ōl''ō.djist; teleological, tēl'.ē.ō.lodg''î.kāl; teleological-ly, tēl'.ē.ō.lodg''î.kāl.ly.

Greek tēlēo-[teleos] lōgōs, a treatise of final [causes].

Tel'eo-saurus, plu. tel'eosauri, or tel'eosaur, plu. tel'eosaurs, a saurian with long slender muzzle and pointed teeth.

Greek tēlēo-[teleos] sauria, a perfect lizard.

Tele-ponic, tēl'.ē.fōn''îk, conveying sound to a distance.

Greek tēlē phōné, [conveying] sound afar.

Tel-erpeton, tě.ler'.pě.tõn, a small fossil reptile from certain white sandstones near Elgin [El'.gin not El'.djin].

This word, according to our usual way of making these compounds, should be telherpeton (Rule lxx.)

Greek têle, herpēton a reptile of the far-distant [periods].

Tele-scope, těl'.ě.skõpe, an instrument for viewing distant objects; telescopic, těl'.ě.skõp''.ĭk; telescopical, těl'.ě.skõp''.ĭ.kũl; telescopically.

Telescopy, těl'.ěs'.kõ.py, the art of using or making telescopes.

Telescopic objects, objects visible only through a telescope.

Greek tělē skopeo, I view objects afar off. (Our word should be pronounced tee'.lě.skõpe (Gk. τηλε-, "far off"); těl'.ěs.kõpe would be (Gk. τελε- for τελεο-, "perfect") the perfect not the far-off sighter.

We have between 25 and 30 words ending in -scope, all of which except 5 have o- before -scope. The exceptions are peri-scope, phanta-scope, polaris-scope, poly-scope, and tele-scope (R. lxxiii.)

Tele-stich, těl'.ě.stĭk, an acrostic in which the name is spelt out by the last letter (not the first) of the respective lines.

Greek tělōs stichos, the end [of the] lines. (Better Telesstich.)

Suppose the word to be ANNE. If the stanza began with such words as Arise..., Now..., Nor..., Engage..., it would be an ordinary acrostic; but if the last words of the four lines were such as ...seA, ...natioN, ...suN, ...mE, it would be a telestich.

Tell, (past) told, (past part.) told; tell'-ing, to reveal, to narrate, to betray, to explain, to count, to produce an effect: as It was a telling speech, every word told.

Tell'-er. Tell'-tale, one who officiously blabs of another.

To tell off, to count off. To tell of [not on], to inform about. (To tell on is vulgar and quite incorrect.)

We say: tell a story or tale, but not tell a speech or lesson;

tell the reasons, but not tell the arguments;

tell the exact number of every article, but not tell an inventory;

tell the truth or tell a lie, but not tell a statement;

tell something, tell all about it, but not tell a history.

Old English tell[an] or tell[an], past tealde, past part. ge-teald.

Teller, těl'.ler, a clerk in a bank whose duty it is to pay money on cheques and bills, a person appointed to note the ayes and noes to any question submitted to a vote; teller-ship.

"Teller" (of a bank), Old Eng. taliere, tal a reckoning, v. tall[ian] to reckon. The tallier of the Exchequer had to keep the tallies and pay the sums over to those who established their claims. Exchequer tallies were not abolished till the reign of Wm. IV.

Tellurium, těl.lũ'.rĭ.ũm, a white metal resembling tin.

Telluric acid, těl.lũ'.rĭk ăssĭd, an oxide of tellurium containing three atoms of oxygen to one of tellurium.

Tellurous acid, těl'.lũ'.rũs..., an oxide of tellurium containing only two atoms of oxygen to one of tellurium.

If selenium makes selenic and selenious, then tellurium should make telluric and tellu'rious, or vice versa.

(-ic denotes an acid with a maximum of oxygen, -ous an acid with an inferior proportion of oxygen.)

Tellurate, těl'.lŭ.rāte, a salt of telluric acid.

Tellurite, těl'.lŭ.rite, a salt of tellurous acid.

If selē'nium makes selē'niate and selē'nite, then tellu'rium should make tellu'riate and tellu'rite, or vice versa.

(-ate, a salt from an acid in -ic; -ite, a salt from an acid in -ous.)

Tellurett-ed, těl'.lu.rět.ed, combined with tellurium.

Great irregularity exists in the spelling of words ending in -et, with the accent on the first syllable. Thus we have car'burett-ed, ep'aulett-ed, těl'lurett-ed with the t doubled; but scores of others in which the t remains single: as car'pet-ed, clo'set-ed, cor'onet-ed, gant'let-ed, hel'met-ed, &c. The double t should be abolished.

Temerity, te.měr'ř.ty, rashness, foolhardiness. (Lat. teměr'řtas.)

Tem'per, a due admixture of different ingredients, disposition, mood, passion [good or bad], irritation, to unite in due proportions, to make of a proper hardness, to soften, to mollify; tempered, těm'.perd; tem'per-ing.

Good'-tempered, amiable, not passionate, not irritable.

Bad'-tempered, sullen, irritable, not amiable. Ill'-temper.

Temperament, těm'.per.ă.ment, the mental and physical character of an individual, constitution of body.

There are five temperaments: (1) the bil'ious or chol'eric, (2) phleg'matic, (3) san'guine, (4) melanchol'ic, (5) ner'vous. The due admixture of the five makes good temper, but an unjust preponderance of any one makes bad temper.

Temperate, těm'.pě.rāte, moderate, sober, not excessive; tem'perate-ly; tem'perate-ness, moderation, calmness.

Temperance, těm'.pě.rance, habitual moderation.

Temperature, těm'.pě.ra.tchŭr, degree of heat or cold.

Temperate zone, plu. temperate zones [zones 1 syl.]

The North Temperate zone, lies between the tropic of Cancer and the arctic circle.

The South Temperate zone lies between the tropic of Capricorn and the antarctic circle.

Latin tempĕrāmentum, tempĕrāntia, tempĕratūra, tempĕrāre; Old English temprīan, past temprīode, past part. temprīod.

(Dis-temper, disturbance of the balance of the humours of the body.)

Tempest, těm'.pest. Storm.

Storm, a violent outburst of one or more of the elements, wind, rain, hail, snow, thunder and lightning. We speak of a snow-storm, a thunder-storm, a hail-storm, a storm of wind, a storm at sea, &c. Storm'-signals.

Tempest, a complicated storm accompanied with violent wind. We never speak of a snow-tempest (which is one thing), a hail-tempest, a thunder-tempest, &c.

Strictly speaking a storm is simply a disturbance in the equilibrium of the air, which spreads and behaves according to natural laws. Mr. Redfield says, that "storms whirl in a horizontal circuit round a vertical axis of rotation carried forward by the storm." A storm of wind is quite correct, but a snow-storm, hail-storm, and thunder-storm are not strictly so, as hail, snow, and thunder are only accidents or accompaniments of the storm and not the storm itself.

Tempestuous, tēm.pēs.tū.ūs (not tem.pes.tchu.us); tem-pes'tuous-ly, tempes'tuous-ness. Tempest tossed, tōst.

"Tempest," Latin tempestus, tempestuosus.

"Storm," Old English storm or steorm; stormig, stormy.

Templar, a law-student of the Temple (London).

Knight Templar, plu. Knights Templars, one of a military order established in the 12th century to protect pilgrims in Palestine and to guard the "Holy Sepulchre" at Jerusalem. The order was suppressed in the 14th century.

We have very few of these French double plurals: as Knights Templars, Knights Hospitallers, Lords Lieutenants, Lords Marchers. These Gallicisms are as silly as Lords Mayors would be.

Temple, a public edifice erected in honour of some deity, a church. In London two inns of court are so called.

Temple, part of the forehead; temporal, tēm'.po.rāl, pertaining to the temples of the head. (See below, Temporal.)

"The inns of court" are called The Temple because they were at one time the seat of the Knights Templars.

"Temple." The Roman augur, standing on the Capitoline Hill, marked out with his wand the space in the heavens he meant to consult. This space he called the templum (Gk. temno, to cut off).

"Temple" (an edifice), Old Eng. tempel or templ; Lat. templum.

"Temple" (of the forehead), Latin tempus or tempora, temporalis.

"Tempus" means time as well as the temples, and this part of the head is called the "time-gauge" or "age-tell-tale" because the hair of this part of the head turns white or falls off as age advances, hence cana tempus is about equal to hoary age.

Temporal, tēm'.pō.rāl, pertaining to the temples of the head (see above); pertaining to time, to this life, to this world, to this body; tem'poral-ly. Temporality, plu. temporalities, tēm'.pō.rāl''.ī.tīz, or temporals, tēm'.pō.rāl'z, secular possessions, clerical revenues (such as lands and tenements) attached to livings or church offices by kings and others wholly irrespective of ecclesiastical rights.

Temporary, tēm'.pō.rā.ry, lasting for a [short] time, transient; tem'porari-ly, tem'porari-ness (Rule xi.)

Temporise (Rule xxxi.), tēm'.pō.rīze, to veer with the times, to compromise according to circumstances; tem'porised (3 syl.); temporis-ing (Rule xix.), tēm'.pō.rīzing; temporis-er, tēm'.pō.rī.zer, one who temporises.

Temporisation, tēm'.pō.rī.zay''.shūn.

Latin temporalis, temporarius; French temporiser, temporisation.

Tempt, to allure, to seduce, to provoke; tempt'-ed (R. xxxvi.), tempt'-ing, tempt'ing-ly; tempt'-er, fem. tempt'ress.

The tempter, Satan.

Temptation, temp.tay'.shŭn; tempt'-able.

Lat. tentāre, tentatio, tentātor; Fr. tenſer, tentation, tentateur.

Temse, tēmz, a corn sieve. Thames, tēmz, the river.

Temse-bread, bread made of the best sifted wheat-flour.

Never set the Thames [temse] on fire, too lazy or too stupid to make a figure in the world.

"Temse," Dutch teme, French tamis, Italian tamiso, a sieve; with the verbs temsen, tamiser, tamisare, to sift. "Tammy," the name of a thin worsted fabric used for shoes and strainers.

"Thames," Latin tanēsis, the rivers Tame and Isis combined.

Tēn, one more than nine; tenth, the ordinal of ten; tenth'-ly; in the composition of numerals ten is written -teen; ten-fold. "Ten-hundred" we call a thousand.

Old Eng. ten, tien, or tyn, tyn-feald; ordinal tegetha, teotha, teothe.

Tenable, tēn'.a.b'l, held firm, capable of being held close.

Should be tenible, as it is not of the first conjugation. (Lat. tenēre.)

Tenace, tēn'.āce. Tennis, tēn'.nīs.

Tenace (in cards), the holding by the last player of the best and third best cards.

Tennis, a game played with ball and racket; tennis-court.

"Tenace," French tenace, "se dit au jeu de l'homme, et à quelques autres jeux, d'un joueur qui (voyant venir avec deux cartes) est assuré de les faire toutes." Thus we say "Il a les deux as noirs, et voir venir, il est tenace" (he has the two black aces and is the last in hand, he lays tenace), Fleming et Tibbins.

Tenacious, te.nay'.shŭs, adhesive, retentive, obstinate; tena'-cious-ly, tena'-cious-ness. Tenacity, te.nŭs'.ĭ.ty.

Latin tēnax, tēnācis, tēnāctas; v. tēneo, to hold fast.

Tenaille, tē.nail' (in Fort.), a low work between two bastions; tenaille-head. (French tenaille, tenaillon.)

Tenant, tēn'.ānt, one who holds real property under another; ten'-ant-ed, occupied by a tenant; ten'-ant-less.

Tenancy, plu. tenancies, ten'.ān.siz. Ten'-ant-able.

Tenantry, tēn'.ān.try, tenants collectively considered.

Ten'-ant in capite, -kăp'.ĭ.te, a tenant of the crown.

Ten'-ant-right, -rĭte, a claim set forth in Ireland to certain privileges in the tenure and rent of land.

All these words are of the wrong conj., and, as usual, come from the French (tenant, tenance); Latin tenens gen. tenentis, v. tenēre.

Tench, a fresh-water fish. Stench, an offensive odour.

"Tench," Old English tymce; Latin tinc[a], "propter colorem, quasi tingi videatur" (Aulus Gellius, Noctes Atticæ).

Tend, to move in a certain direction, to have a bias, to aim, to attend on, to watch, to take charge of; tend'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), tend'-ing. Tendance (should be tendence).

Tendency, plu. tendencies (not tendancy), těń'.děn.sız.

As usual, the wrong conj., tendance, is French; Latin tendens gen. tendentis, v. tendere to tend, to bend towards, to incline to.

Tender, a carriage attached to a locomotive to supply it with fuel and water, a small vessel which accompanies a larger one to supply stores, &c., an offer of money, the offer of a contractor, anything offered, not tough, susceptible, soft, pitiful, (comp.) ten'der-er, (super.) ten'der-est; ten'der-ly, tender-ness. Tender-hearted, -hearted-ness.

To tender, to make an offer; tendered (2 syl.), tender-ing.

"Tender" (adj.), O. E. tidder, teder, tedernes; Lat. tēner; Fr. tendre.

"Tender" (to offer), Fr. tendre; Lat. tendere, to stretch out, to offer.

Ten'don, the sinew which fastens muscles to a bone; tendinous, ten'.dī.nūs, full of tendons, consisting of... (Fr. tendon.)

Ten'dril, the twisting shoot of a vine. (Fr. tendron, v. tenir, to hold.)

Tenebrous [or tenē'brious], ten'.ē.brūs, full of darkness, gloomy; ten'ebrous-ness; tenebrosity, těń'.ē.brōs''ī.ty, darkness.

Latin tenebrōsus, tenebrōsitas; tēnebræ, darkness, gloom.

Tenement, těń'.ē.ment, a "holding," a building occupied by a family; tenement'-āl; tenementary, těń'.ē.měń''ā.ry.

Fr. tenement, a tenant's house; Low Lat. tenementum (tenēo, to hold).

Tenet, te'.nět, an article of belief, a dogma. (Lat. tenēo, to hold.)

Ten-fold, ten-times repeated. (Old English tyń-feald.)

Tennis, těń'.nīs. Tenace, těń'.āce.

Tennis, a game played with ball and racket; tennis-court.

Tenace, the holding of the best and third best cards by the last player. (French tenace.) See Tenace

"Tennis." The etymology of the names of games is for the most part very obscure. No satisfactory derivation is known of billiards, back-gammon, whist, piquet, tennis, chess, draughts, and a score other common games.

Tenon, těń'.ōń. Tendon, těń'.don.

Tenon (in Arch.), the piece which fits into a mortise; tenoned, ten'āńd, put together with mortise and tenon; tenon-saw, a saw for cutting out tenons.

Tendon, a sinew which fastens muscles to a bone.

"Tenon," Fr. tenon. "Tendon," Fr. tendon (Lat. tenēre, to hold).

Ten'or, a compass of voice between treble and bass, scope, purport.

"Tenor" (voice), Ital. tenore (from C (above G-gamut) to G treble).

"Tenor" (purport), Lat. tēnor; Fr. teneur (Lat. v. tenēre, to hold).

"Tenor" (scope, &c.), should be spelt tenour for distinction sake.

Tense (1 syl.), a division of a mood in verbs (indicating the time referred to, whether past, present, or future, complete or incomplete), drawn tight, stretched, not lax; tense'-ness, tense'-ly. Tension, ten'.shŭn. Tensible, ten'.sĭ.b'l.

Tensile, tĕn'.sĭl. Tensive, ten'.sĭv; tensive-ly. Ten'sity.

Ten'sor and laxā'tor, two correlative muscles.

Tension-rod, an iron rod to strengthen timber, &c.

Latin tensus, tensilis, tensibilis (tendĕre supine tensum, to stretch).

Tent, a movable lodge, a pavilion, to dispose in a tent, a deep red wine, a plug of lint to keep a wound open, to tent a wound; tent'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), tent'-ing, tent'-less.

Tent'-bed. Tent'ory, the awning of a tent.

Welsh tent; Latin tentōrkum, tentus, v. tendĕre to stretch.

"Tent" (wine), corruption of the Spanish vino tinto, tinted wine.

"Tent" (a plug of lint), French tente, lint-plug.

Tentacle, plu. tentacles or tentacula, ten'.tă.k'l, plu. ten'.tă.klĭz or tĕn.tăk'kŭ.lah, a feeler, an organ for seizing, attaching to other bodies, locomotion, exploring, &c.

Tentacular, tĕn.tăk'kŭ.lar, adj. of tentacle.

Tentaculate, ten.tăk'kŭ.lāte, having tentacles; tentac'ulated.

Tentaculite, ten.tăk'kŭ.lite, one of the tentaculites (4 syl.) or group of annulated fossils in the Silu'rian strata. (-ite denotes a fossil, being the Greek lithos, a stone.)

Latin tentăcŭlum, a little feeler; French tentacule.

Tentative, ten'.tă.tĭv, experimental, accidental success of one or two out of a large number attempted.

A tentative miracle is this: a large number of attempts (say to cure a disease) are made, and two or three of the persons experimented on recover; the recovery is ascribed to the operator, but may be due to a host of other causes. (Latin tentāre, to try.)

Ten'ter, a machine for stretching cloth. Tenter-hook, a hook in a tenter for hanging the cloth on, to tenter; tentered, ten'.terd; ten'ter-ing. To be on tenter-hooks, to be on the stretch, to be in a state of suspense or anxiety.

Latin tendo, to stretch; tentus, stretched.

Tenth, tenth'-ly, ordinal of ten. (See Ten.)

Tenuity, tĕ.nŭ'.ĭ.ty, thinness, lightness, rarity; tenuous, ten'.ă.ŭs; tenuous-ly. (Latin tenuitas; tĕnŭis, thin.)

Tenure, tĕn'.yur. Tenour, ten'.or. Tenor, ten'.or.

Tenure, the conditions under which a tenement is held, the holding of a tenement, the manner of holding an estate.

Tenour, scope, purpose. Tenor [voice].

"Tenure," French tenure; Latin teneo, to hold. "Tenour," French teneur, Latin tĕnor. "Tenor" (voice), Italian tenore.

Tepid, těp'íd, moderately warm; tep'id-ness. Tepidity.

Tepidarium, plu. tepidaria, těp'ídair' rě.ŭm, plu. -ah, the apartment in which the Roman tepid bath was placed, the boiler in which the water of the bath was heated.

Lat. tēpiditas, tēpidus, tēpidārium, v. tēpidare (Gk. thalpo, to heat).
-ter (the Latin -er preceded by t-), an agent, one who is.

After -t- and -s- the suffix is generally -or (as -tor, -sor).

-tery (the Lat. -erum preceded by t-), trade of, vocation of, effect of.

Ter- (Lat. prefix), thrice, in the third deg. (in scientific words).

Terebinth, těr'rě.bĭnth, the turpentine tree. Terebinthine, těr'rě.bĭn''.tĭĭn, adj. of terebinth. (Latin terebinthus.)

Terebratula, plu. terebratulæ, těr'rě.brăt' Ń.lah, plu. -lě, a genus of molluscs (so called because one of the valves is perforated to make a passage for a fleshy peduncle by means of which it attaches itself to rocks). Terebratulite, těr'rě.brăt' Ń.lite, a fossil terebratula (-ite, a fossil, being the Gk. lithos, with the l- absorbed). Lat. tērēbra, a wimple.

Teredo, plu. teredos [better teredoes] or teredines, te.rě.doze, te.rě.dĭ.neze, the sea-worm; teredina, te.rě.dĭ.nah, an extinct race of teredoes.

Musical terms and the sizes of books ending in "-o," with all nouns in "-o" pure, -lo, -mo, -so, -vo (with 10 of those in "-to"), add -s; all other nouns in "-o" add -es for the plural. There are 15 or 16 nouns in "-do," two are musical (rondo-s, secundo-s); the rest should form the plural in -es: as barricado-es, bastinado-es, bravado-es, carbonado-es, dado-es, desperado-es, grenado-es, inundo-es, renegado-es, stoccado-es, [teredo-es], tornado-es, and torpedo-es. Some of these words are spelt both ways, but a fixed rule is far better than uncertainty.

Latin tērēdo, plu. tērēdĭnēs, the wood-worm; Greek terédōn genitive terédōnōs (v. tērēo, to perforate), the worm which perforates [wood].

Tergiversation, ter'.djĭ.ver.say''.shŭn, a subterfuge, an evasion.

Latin tergiversatio (i.e., tergum vertĕre, to turn one's back).

Term, a limit, a stated time appropriated to the sitting of law-courts and to college lectures; (in Logic), one of the three component parts of a proposition, the subject or predicate of a proposition; (in Math.), a member of a compound quantity, to denominate, to call; termed (1 syl.), term'-ing. Term'-er, one who travels to attend a court-term. Terms, charges, conditions of a contract. To make terms. To bring to terms, to cause to agree.

Law terms were abolished, 1876. There are now four Sittings in the year, called Hilary, Easter, Trinity, and Michaelmas.

Hilary Sitting begins January 11 and ends April 12.

Easter Sitting begins April 25 and ends June 2.

Trinity Sitting begins June 13 and ends August 3.

Michaelmas Sitting begins November 2 and ends December 21.

UNIVERSITY TERMS. There are three terms at Cambridge, and four at Oxford, but the two middle Oxford terms are two only in name, as they follow each other without intercession. The Cambridge terms are: Lent, Easter, and Michaelmas. The Oxford terms are: Lent, Easter, Trinity, and Michaelmas. (About 25 weeks.)

Begins.

Ends.

LENT	Camb..	Jan. 13	Fri. before Palm Sun.
	Oxfd.	Jan. 14	Sat. before Palm Sun.
EASTER. ..	Camb..	Fri. of Easter week ..	Fri. nearest June 20.
	Oxfd.	Wed. of Easter week ..	Fri. before Whit-Sun.
TRINITY ..	Oxfd.	Sat. before Whit-Sun. ..	Second Sat. in July.
MICHAELMAS	Camb.	Oct. 1	Dec. 16.
	Oxfd.	Oct. 10	Dec. 17.

"Term," French terme; Latin terminus; Greek terma or termōn.

Termagant, ter'ma.gant, a virago; ter'magancy, bullying.

Out-doing termagant, tearing a passion to tatters.

The author of "Junius" says this was a Saxon idol and means "very mighty" (tyr magan); but probably it is the Persian tir magian (Magian lord or deity). The early crusaders called all pagans Saracens, and muddled together Magianism and Mahometanism, so that "Termagant" was called the god of the Saracens or the copartner of Mahound. Hence Ariosto makes Ferrau "blaspheme his Mahound and Termagant" (Orlando Furioso, xii. 59).

The change of sex arose from the stage custom of representing Termagant in Eastern robes, like those worn in Europe by women.

"Termagant" and "Herod" being the models of wickedness were represented in old plays as settling everything (like Punch) by club law, and ranting in the true "tyrant's vein."

Termes, plu. termites, ter'mēze, plu. ter'mīt.tēze, the white ant.

Often called termite, plu. termites, ter'mite, plu. ter'mītes (2 syl.), which is more in accordance with our language.

Latin termes plu. termites, or tarmes plu. tarmītes.

Terminate, ter'mī.nate, to bound, to finish; terminat-ed, ter'mī.nā.ted; terminat-ing, ter'mī.nā.ting (Rule xix.)

Terminable, ter'mī.nā.b'l; terminable-ness, ter'minably.

Terminal, ter'mī.nāl, forming the extremity; terminal-ly.

Termination, tēr'mī.nay''shūn; termination-al, ter'mī.nay''shūn.āl; terminational-ly. Terminative, -na.tiv; terminative-ly. Terminat-or (Rule xxxvii.)

Terminist, one who believes that God has assigned a certain "term" for repentance to every human being.

Terminology, ter'mī.nōl'.ō.djy, explanation of "terms" used in science; terminological-ly, ter'mī.nō.lodg''ī.kāl.ly.

Terminus, plu. termini, ter'mī.nūs, plu. ter'mī.nī, the first or last station of a railway, the central station of several railway-lines, a boundary-stone.

Latin terminālis, terminātio, terminātor, terminus, termināre (Greek terma or termōn, a boundary, a termination).

Termite, plu. termites, ter'mite, plu. ter'mītes, the white-ant.

Latin termes gen. termītis, plu. termītes. (See Termes.)

Tern (should be Stern), the sea-swallow. Tarn, a small hill-lake.

"Tern," Latin sterna; French sterne. "Tarn," Icelandic tiörn.

Terpsichore, terp.sĭk'.ō.rē (not terp'.sĭ.kōr), the muse of dancing; terpsichorean, terp'.sĭk'.ō.ree''.ān (not terp'.sĭ.kōr''rē.ān).

Greek terpsi-chōrē, delighting in the dance (terpō). See Muse.

Terra, tēr'rah, a Latin word meaning earth or clay.

Terra-cotta, -kōt'.tah, a fine clay used for works of art and burnt like bricks. (Italian cotto, fem. cotta, cooked.)

Terra-firma, -fir'.mah, the solid earth. (Latin.)

Used by sea-voyagers on landing. They set foot on terra-firma.

Terra incognita, -in.cōg'.nĭ.tah, a region unknown or unexplored. (Latin in cognitus, not known.)

Terra japonica, -ja.pōn'.ĭ.kah, catechu, supposed at one time to be a kind of earth from Japan.

Terra lemnia, -lēm'.nĭ.ah, Lemnian earth, a medical earth from the isle of Lemnos, detergent like soap.

Terra ponderosa, -pōn'.de.rō''.sah, bary'tes or heavy spar.

Terra sienna, -sĭ.ēn'.nah, a deep-orange pigment.

Earth from Sienna or Siena in Tuscany (Italy).

Terra verde, -ver'.de, a green pigment. (Ital. verde, green.)

Terra à terra, ter'rah āh ter'rah (in the menage), a series of low leaps forwards but bearing sidewise.

Terrace, tēr'rāce, a raised platform of earth for shrubs, flowers, or promenading, a line of continuous houses, a flat Oriental roof; ter'raced (2 syl.), made into a terrace.

French terrassie, Italian terrazzo.

Terraqueous, tēr'rā'.kwē.ūs, consisting of land and water.

Latin terra aqua, earth [and] water; French terraqué.

Terrene, ter.reen'. Tureen, tu.reen' (a blunder for terrine).

Terrene, pertaining to earth. (Latin terrēnus, earthly.)

Tureen, a deep vessel for holding soup, sauce, &c.

Terrestrial, Celestial (not terrestrial, tēr.rēs'tchāl, sĭ.lēs'.tchāl), tēr.rēs'.trĭ.āl, sĕ.lēs'.ĭ.āl. Terrestrial, existing on this earth, pertaining to earth and this present state of being; terres'trial-ly (not tēr.rēs'.tchāl.ly).

Celestial, existing in heaven, pertaining to heaven.

(Two of the most common errors of speech are height (for height), analogous to length, breadth, depth; and terrestrial (for terrestrial), analogous to celestial.)

Latin terrestris (terra, the earth); cælestis (cælum, heaven).

Terrible, tēr'rĭ.b'l, causing fear, dreadful, horrible; ter'ribly, ter'rible-ness. (Latin terribilis, v. terrĕo, to frighten.)

Terrier, tēr'rĭ.er, a dog which follows game into its burrow.

French terrier (Latin terra, the earth).

Terrify, těr'ři.fy, to alarm; terrifies, ter'ři.fize; terrified, ter'ři.fide; ter'řify-ing, ter'řifi-er. Terrific, těrřif'.ik.

Latin terrificus; terri-ficio [fácio], to make or produce terror (terri- is a contracted form of terrori-, terror genitive terrōris).

Terrigenus, těr ridg'.ĕ.nūs, earth-born. (Latin terri-gĕnus.)

Terra gigno (genĭtus), born on the earth (terri- contraction of terrai-).

Territory, plu. territories, těr'ři.tō.řiz, a district, the whole state of a sovereign; territorial, těr'ři.tōr''ři.ăl, adj.; territorial-ly. (Latin terrĭtōrium, terra, land.)

Těr'ror, great fear, consternation, that which produces terror; terror-less. Terror-ism, těr'ror.izm (not ter'ror.rizm), the state of being in bodily fear, rule by terror, a system of creating terror. Terror-ist, těr'ror.ist.

Reign of terror, rain ov těr'ror, the terrible period of the first French Revolution from Oct., 1793, to July, 1794.

Terror-struck; terror-smitten, -smit'n.

King of Terrors, death. (See -our, p. 769.)

Latin terror; French terreur, terrifier, terrible, &c.

Terse (1 syl.), concise; terse'-ly, terse'-ness. (Latin tersus.)

Tertials, ter'.sh'ăls, the third series of feathers in the wings of birds growing near the junction of the wing with the body.

Primaries, pri'.mă.řiz, the stiff quills in the last joint of a bird's wing. Secondaries, sĕk'.ŏn.da.řiz, the quills which rise from the second bone of the wings.

Tertial, ter'.sh'ăl. (Latin tertĭus, ter, thrice.)

Tertian, -sh'an, occurring every third day. (Lat. tertiānus.)

Tertiary, plu. tertiaries, ter'.shĕ.ă.řiz, the third or upper great division of stratified rocks. Pri'mary, the first great division. Secondary, sĕk'.ŏn.da.ry, the intervening division between the primary and tertiary rocks.

Post-ter'tiary system, the superficial accumulation above the boulder-drift. (Latin tertiarius, tertĭus.)

Terza-rima, ter'tsah rec'-mah (Italian), the triple rhyme.

Tessellate, tĕs'.sĕl.ăte, to form into checkers; tes'selăt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), tes'selăt-ing (R. xix.); tessellation, -sĕl.ă''shĭn.

Tessera, plu. tesserae, tĕs'.sĕ.rah, plu. tĕs'.sĕ.rĕ, a small six-sided solid of marble, glass, or earthenware, used in tesselated pavements; tes'serăl; tes'sular, cubical.

Latin tessera or tessella a little cube, tesselāre; Greek tessĕra.

Test, proof, trial, the vessel in which metal is tested, anything used to detect the purity of an article, criterion, to put to the test, to refine; test'-ed (R. xxxvi.), test'-ing, -less.

Test'-paper, paper used for detecting the presence of an acid, alkali, &c. Test'-tube, a tube for holding what is to be tested.

Test'-act, an act which enjoined everyone on accepting office to take an oath of allegiance, subscribe a declaration against transubstantiation, and receive the eucharist in the Church of England. Abolished 1828.

Latin testa, an earthen pot; testis, a witness; testāri, to test.

Testa, plu. testæ, tēs'.tā, plu. tēs'.tē, a shell, the outer covering of seed. Testacean, tēs.tā'.sē.ăn, one of the testaceans; testa'ceans, molluscs with shells, as oysters, cockles, mussels, periwinkles, &c.; testacea, tēs.tā'.se.ah, the testacean order. Testaceous, tēs.tā'.sē.ūs.

Testaceology, tēs.tay'.sē.ōl''.d.djy, testacean science.

Latin testa, plu. testæ, a shell, testacēus. "Testaceology," a hybrid and ill-formed: The English-Latin word testacea, and the Greek logos. Ostrakology would be a good compound of the same meaning: Greek ostrakōn the shell of molluscs, logos a treatise [on], with the pure Greek model ostrako-chrōōs the hard rind of seeds.

Testament, tēs'.tā.ment, a will, one of the two great divisions of the Bible, that called the Old Testament begins with "Genesis" and ends with the "prophets," that called the New Testament begins with the "gospels" and ends with the "revelation." Testamentary, tēs'.tā.mēn''.tā.ry.

Testate, tēs'.tāte, having a legal will at the time of death.

In-testate, not having a legal will at the time of death.

Testator, tēs.tay'.tor (Rule xxxvii.), a man who bequeaths.

Testatrix, plu. testatrices, tēs.tay'.trīx, plu. tēs.tay'.trī.sēze, a woman who leaves a legal will at her decease.

(The term "New Testament" was first used by Justin Martyr.)

Latin testamentum, testamentārius, testātor, testātrix plu. testātrices, testātus, intestātus, v. testāri (testis, a witness).

Tester, tēs'.ter, a flat canopy over a bed, sixpence.

Latin testa, a skull, a shell; Italian testa, a head; French tête.

The tester (6d.) was a coin in the reign of Edward VI. with a head of the sovereign on it. Bob (a shilling) is a contraction of bawbec. "Jennie's bawbee" is Jenny's marriage dot.

Testify, tēs'.tī.fy, to witness, to corroborate; testifies, tēs'.tī.fize; testified, tēs'.tī.fide; tes'tifi-er, tes'tify-ing.

Testification, tēs'.tī.fī.kay''shān, corroboration.

Latin testificatio, testificāri (testis, a witness).

Testimony, plu. testimonies (Rule xlv.), tēs'.tī.mō.nīz, evidence, declaration, attestation; testimonial, tēs'.tī.mō''nī.āl, a certificate in favour of the person named, a gift in acknowledgment of service, a token of respect.

Latin testimōnium, testimōnialis (testis, a witness).

Testudo, plu. testudoes (Rule xlii.), tēs.tū'.dōze, the shield or covering of the tortoise family, a Roman military device of attack formed by shields, a talpa; testudinal, -dī.nūl.

Testudinate, tēs.tū'.dī.nāte, vaulted like a tortoise's back;
testu'dināt-ed. Testudineous, tes.tu.dīn'.ē.ūs (R. lxvi.)

Latin testudo, testudinēus (testa, a shell, &c.)

Tes'ty, (comp.) tes'ti-er, (super.) tes'ti-est, peevish, irascible; tes'ti-ly, tes'ti-ness (Rule xi.)

French entester now entêter, obstinate, self-willed, wayward.

Tetanus, tēt'.ā.nūs, lockjaw, &c.; tetanic, te.tān'.īk, adj.

Tetanoid, tēt'.ā.noid, resembling tetanus.

Latin tetānus, cramp, a crick; Greek tetānos, from teino, to stretch.

Tete, tāte, a lady's false head of hair. Tête à tête, tāte ah tāte, plu. tête à têtes, tāte ah tātes, a chat, cheek by jowl.

Tête du pont, tāte du pōhn, a barbican (French).

Tether, tēth'.er, a rope by which a [horse, &c.] is tied so as to give it a fixed radius to graze on, to tether; tethered
(2 syl.), teth'er-ing. The length of his tether, the extreme limits to which a person can go.

Welsh tid, a draught-chain; tidiad, a chaining; tidmwy, a tether.

Tetra-, tēt'.ra-, tetr- before vowels (Greek prefix), four.

Tetra-branchiata, -brān'kī.ā'tah, the name given by Prof.
Owen to his second order of the class Cephalopoda
[sēf'.a.lōp''.o.dah]. (Greek tetra-branchia, four gills.)

Tetra-chord, tēt'.ra.kord, a series of four sounds in ancient music, the last note being a fourth of the first.

Greek tetra-chordé, a chord of four [notes].

Tetra-dactyl, tēt'.ra.dāk''.tīl, an animal with four toes;
tetra-dactylous, tēt'.ra.dāk''.tīlus, having four toes.

Greek tetra dactūlōs, four fingers or toes.

Tetra-dynamia, -dī.nām'.ī.ah, the fifteenth class in the Linnaean system of botany. These flowers have six stamens, four of which are longer than the others; tetra-dynam'- ian; tetra-dynamous, te'.ra.dīn''.a.mūs.

Greek tetra- dunamis, four [of the stamens have] strength.

Tetra-gon, tēt'.ra.gōn, any plane figure with four angles;
tetragonal, tē.trag'.ōnāl. (Gk. tetra-, gōnia, an angle.)

Tetra-gynia, te'.ra.djīn'.ī.ah, those plants which have four pistils; tetra-gynian, -djīn'.ī.ān.

Greek tetra- guné, four female organs or pistils.

Tetra-hedron, -hēd'.rōn, one of the five regular solids.

Greek tetra- hedra, [having] four sides. It is a triangular pyramid, having four equal and equilateral faces.

Tetra-hexahedron, -hex'.ā.hēd''.rōn (in crystals), a solid with twenty-four equal faces (i.e., six on each face of the cube); tetra-hexahedral, -hex'.ā.hēd''.rāl.

Greek tetra- hexa- hedra, four [ranges with] six sides [each].

Tetra-logy, plu. tetralogies, te.träl'.ð.djiz, a series of four dramas on one subject, the fourth being a comedy.

These tetralogies were exhibited on the Attic stage for the prize at the festivals of Dionysos. The three dramas without the comedy were called a trilogy, tri'l'.ð.djiz, as the three parts of Henry VI. (Greek tetralogia (tetra-logos), four discourses.)

Tetr-andria, te.trän'.drī.ah, the fourth class of plants in the Linnæan system, containing four stamens.

The three orders belonging to this class are the Mono-gyn'ia (teasel), Di-gyn'ia (dodder), and Tetra-gyn'ia (pond-weed).

Tetrandrian, te.trän'.drī.än; tetandrous, te.tän'.drūs.

Greek tetra-andra, [having] four male organs or stamens.

Tetra-petalous, -pët'.ä.lūs, containing four petals.

Greek tetra-petalôn, [having] four flower-leaves.

Tetra-phyllous, te.träff'.äl.lūs, having four leaves.

Greek tetra-phyllôn, [having] four leaves or leaflets.

Tetrapla, a copy of the Bible arranged by Origen in four columns, each containing a different Greek version.

The four versions are: (1) The Septuagint, (2) the version of Aquila, (3) that of Symmachus, and (4) that of Theodostan.

Greek tetraploos or tetraplous. There is no such Greek word as ploos, except in the compounds haploos, diploos, hexaploos, tetraploos, &c., where ploos means a fold, allied to pleko.

Tetra-pteran, te.träp'.të.rän, an insect with four wings.

Tetrapterous, te.träp'.të.rūs, adj. Tetrap'terus (noun), a fossil animal with four fins (found in the chalk system).

Greek tetra-pteron, [having] four wings.

Tetr-arch, tët'.rark, a Roman governor over one-fourth of a province; tetrarchate, të.trar'.käte, the jurisdiction of a tetrarch. Tetrarchy, plu. tetrarchies, tët'.rar.kiz, the office of a tetrarch, the fourth of a province.

Tetrarchical, të.trar'.kë.käl, pertaining to a tetrarchy.

Greek tëtrarchês (tetra-archos), a ruler over a fourth part.

Tetra-spermous, -sper'.mūs, having four seeds.

Greek tetra-sperma, [having] four seeds.

Tetra-spore, tët'.ra.spor, applied to sea-weeds with four spore-like cells. (Greek tetra-spörös, four seeds.)

Tetra-stich, tët'.ra.stik, a four-line stanza.

Greek tetra-stichos, [having] four lines [in a stanza].

Tetra-style, tët'.ra.stile, a porch with four columns in front. (Greek tetra-stulos, four columns.)

Tetra-syllable, -sil'.lä.b'i, a word of four syllables; tetra-syllabic, -sil.läb'.ik; tetra-syllab'icäl.

Greek tetra-sülläbé, [having] four syllables.

Tet'ter, the ringworm; tetterous, tët'.të.rūs. (O. E. teter or tetr.)

Teutonic, tu.tŏn'ik, pertaining to the ancient Teutons or Germans, the language of the Teutons.

Tew or taw, to dress leather or hemp; tewed or tawed (1 syl.); tew-ing or taw-ing. (O. E. taw[ian], p. -ode, p. p. -od.)

Text, the motto-subject of a sermon, that on which a commentary is written, the words of a book. Text-hand, a large handwriting. Text-book, a standard book on some given subject. Textual, tex'.tu.əl, contained in the text; textual-ly, tex'tual-ist; textuary, one who rigidly contends for the exact text of the sacred Scriptures.

Latin textus; French texte, textuaire, textuel (11).

Textile, tex'.til, capable of being woven, woven; textorial, tex.tor'ri.əl, belonging to weaving.

Latin textile, textilis; v. texĕre, to weave (Greek taxis, array).

Texture, tex'.ichūr. Structure, strūk'.ichūr.

Texture, tissue, the material woven.

Structure, the way the materials are worked up.

"Texture," Latin textūra, a weaving; texĕre, to weave.

"Structure," Latin structūra, a building; struĕre, to pile together.

Th-. Almost every word beginning with th- (except those from proper names) is either Anglo-Saxon or Greek.

(The only exceptions are thummim (Heb.), thump a corruption of "dump," thaler, and words beginning with thuri-, which are directly from the Latin and indirectly from the Greek thuos.)

-th (final) converts adjectives to abstract nouns of a positive character (-ness is used for abstract nouns of a negative character), as "broad," breadth; "dead," dea[d]th; "deep," depth; "five," fifth; "fore," forth; "high," height[h]; "long," length; "six," sixth; "strong," strength; "ten," tenth; "true," truth; "warm," warmth; "wide," width. We have not a single example of an abstract noun of a negative character so formed. This will be seen by trying the negatives of the above as "narrow," narrow-ness (not narrowth); "shallow," shallow-ness (not shallowth); "short," short-ness (not shorth); "weak," weak-ness: "cold," cold-ness; and so with the rest.

Thaler, tàk'.ler, the German dollar (nearly 3s.)

The counts of Schlick, at the close of the 15th century, extracted from the mines at Joachim's thal (or valley) silver which they coined into ounce pieces. These pieces, called Joachim's thalers, gained such high repute that they became a standard of silver coin, and all similar coins received the name of thalers.

Thalia, tha.lí'.ah (not thū'.lī.ah), muse of comedy.

Greek thaleia [mousa], the blooming muse. (See Muse.)

Thallium, thāl'.lī.ŭm, a metal discovered in 1861.

Greek thallos a green twig. So called because the spectrum of this metal furnishes a brilliant green line.

Thames, tēmz, a river so called. Temse, tēmz, a corn-sieve.

Setting the Thames [tēmse] on fire, achieving wonders.

"Thames," Old Eng. Tæmese, Temese, the Thamé and Isis combined.

"Temse," French tamis, Italian tamiso, Dutch teme, a sieve.

Thān (conj.), used after the comparative degree and followed by the object compared. Also used after other, otherwise.

DOES than EVER GOVERN THE OBJECTIVE CASE? Certainly not. But this answer in no wise meets the question whether the phrases than me, than him, than whom, &c., are absolutely incorrect.

We can say in French il est plus riche que moi, or il est plus riche que je ne suis, and may we not use the Gallicism He is richer than me, instead of the more normal construction He is richer than I?

The pronouns moi, lui, &c., are called in French disjunctive personal pronouns, and after que these pronouns are employed when the verb is suppressed. The real question is, therefore, not whether than ever governs the objective case, but whether we may use the pronouns him, her, whom, &c., as indeclinable disjunctive pronouns after the French fashion?

The answer must be obtained from the usages of standard writers, and there cannot be a doubt that numerous examples may be found to justify these Gallicisms. Take the following:

"He was a poet sublimer than me" (Prior).

"You are a much greater loser than me" (Swift).

"She suffers hourly more than me" (Swift).

"No mightier than thyself or me" (Shakespeare).

"A stone is heavy and [the] sand weighty, but a fool's wrath is heavier than them both" (Prov. xxvii. 3).

"The old martial stock than whom better men never did... draw sword" (Scott, Nigel xxvii.).

"Than whom a fiend more fell nowhere is found" (Thomson).

"Belial came last, than whom a spirit more lewd Fell not from heaven" (Milton).

"Which when Belzebub perceived, than whom (Satan except) none higher sat..." (Milton).

These examples might easily be multiplied; still it must be confessed that the preponderance of examples is on the other side. Thus we have the following:

"There is none greater in the house than I" (Gen. xxxix. 9).

"Only in the throne will I be greater than thou" (Gen. xli. 40).

"His younger brother shall be greater than he" (Gen. xlviii. 19).

"The people is greater and taller than we" (Deut. i. 28).

"The fourth shall be far richer than they all" (Deut. xi. 2).

The answer seems to be this: the more normal method is the ordinary pronouns in the nom. case, but the Gallicisms may be justified by many right reverend examples.

"Than," Old English thanne or thonne, than, then. When it is said You are richer than I am, the meaning is You first then I.

Thāne (1 syl.), a title of dignity below an earl (eorl); thane'-dom.

Thane'-ship (-ship, state, office, dignity of); thane'-lands.

Old Eng. thegn, thegen, thægn, or thagen, thegn-scipe thaneship.

"Thane," in Anglo-Saxon, meant originally a servant, then a servant of the crown or nobleman. Every one was a thane who had five hides of land, a church, a kitchen, a bell-house, a seat in the witenagemote, and a judicial seat in the burgh-gate.

Thank, to express gratification or gratitude for something offered or received; thanked (1 syl.), thank'-ing.

Thank'ful (Rule viii.), thank'ful-ly, thank'ful-ness.

Thank'-less, thank'-less-ly, thank'-less-ness.

Thanks, I am obliged to you; thank you; I thank you.

Thanks-giv'ing, thanks-giv'er. Thank'-offering.

Thank'-worthy; thank-worthi-ness, -wur'-thi-ness.

Old English thane, thances gratefully, with gratitude, thane-full, v. thaneian), past thancode, past part. thancod, thancung, thane-weorth thankworthy, thane-weorthlic, thane-weorthlice adv.

THANKS for I THANK YOU. Is this good English? The reply is (1) It is sanctioned by very general use; (2) "Thanks be to God" occurs four times in the Bible; (3) It is terse and expressive. "Thanks" is not I thank you, but thanks be to you, and the contracted form thanks is justified by several like expressions: as Good-day [be to you], Welcome [be to you], Hail [health be to you], and so on. "Thanks" (plural) occurs 55 times in Shakespeare.

That, a conjunction, and a pronoun relative and demonstrative.

This, that, plu. these, those, used in reference to two objects are thus distinguished: this, plu. these, refers to the object or objects nearest; that, plu. those, to the object or objects more remote.

1 What conscience dictates to be done,

2 Or warns me not to do,

This [2] teach me more than hell to shun,

That [1] more than heaven pursue.—(Pope.)

Referring to three distances, this plu. these refers to the nearest, that plu. those to the middle distance, and yon or yonder to the most remote: as this shore, that sea, yon ship.

Yon is used in the "Ormulum" (12th cent.) as a demonstrative.

To the end that, a conjunctive phrase indicating a purpose or intention. In order that, to the end that.

In that, because, for the following reason.

THAT for so is a vulgarism. Such phrases as these are indefensible:

I was that ill I could not go to work (so ill).

He was that drunk he could not stand upright (so drunk).

O. E. that or thæt, pron., adv., and conj.; athon thæt, to the end that.

Thatch, straw, &c., for covering the roof of houses, to cover a roof with straw; thatched (1 syl.); thatch'-ing, thatch'-er.

Old Eng. thæc, v. theccan), past theahte, past part. ge-theaht. The -h of this word is a blunder, thack is the right word.

Thaumatrope, thaw'-ma-trōpe, an optical toy for showing the persistency of impressions on the eye.

Greek thauma trōpo, (poet. trōpeo), I turn round marvellously.

Thaumaturgy, thaw'-ma.tur.djy, the power of working miracles; thaumaturgical, thaw'-ma.tur''.dji.kāl.

Thaumaturgist, thaw'-ma.tur''.djist, a wonder-worker.

Thaumaturgus, fem. thaumaturga, thaw'-ma.tur''.gus, thaw'-ma.tur''.gah, a title given to a thaumaturgist.

Thus we call Apollo'nius of Tya'na "Apollonius thaumaturgus," or "Apollonius the thaumaturgist." And Filumē'na we call "Filumena thaumaturga," or "Filumena the thaumaturgist."

Greek thauma gen. thaumātos ergon, a miraculous work.

Thaw, the melting of ice or snow, a change of weather causing a thaw, to melt ice or snow by heat; thawed (1 syl.), thaw-ing. (O. Eng. thaw[an], p. thawde, p. p. thawed.)

The, often called the definite article. Thee, pronoun.

"The," Old Eng. the, for se, seō in the corrupt Ang.-Sax. chronicles after the year 1138. Both an and the are adjectives. An [or a] is used only with nouns in the singular number, but the is used with nouns singular or plural.

The more we have the more we desire. Here "the" is the Old Eng. thī or thy used, as Lye says, "præcipue pro ablativo singulari." So in Latin, "quo plus bibunt eo plus sitiunt."

"Thee," Old English thē, dat. and acc. of thū; Latin tu acc. te.

Theatre, rhē'.ā.tr (not rhē.ā'.tr), a playhouse, a field of action, a large lecture room; theatric, rhē.āt'.rīk; theatrical, rhē.āt'.rī.kūl; theatrical-ly.

Theatricals (no sing.), dramatic performances.

Greek theatron, v. theāmai, to view.

Theban, rhē'.bān, a native of Thebes (1 syl.); the Theban year, same as the Egyptian year. (It consisted of 365½ days.)

Thebes (1 syl.), captain of the Thebais, in Upper Egypt. Another city of the same name was the capital of Boeotia.

Theca-, rhē'.ka, thēc- before vowels (Greek prefix), a sheath.

Theca, plu. thecæ, rhē'.kah, plu. rhē'.kē, the spore-case of moss, an organ inclosing another.

Theca-phore, rhē'.kū.for, the stalk on which the ovary of some plants (as the caper-bush) is elevated.

Greek thékē phéro, I support the sheath or theca.

Theca-sporous, rhē'.ka.spō''.rūs, having (like the fungi) the spores (1 syl.) in thecæ or cases.

Greek theca spōrōs, sheath-seed or seed in sheaths.

Thec-odont, rhē'.kō.dōnt, a saurian which has teeth planted in sockets. Thec-odontia, rhē'.ko.dōn''.shī.ah, one of the 13 orders into which Prof. Owen arranges the reptil'ia.

Greek thékē odontōs gen. odontōs, teeth [in a] sheath or socket.

Thec-odonto-saurus, plu. thecodontosauri or thec-odonto-saur, plu. thecodontosaurs, rhē'.ko.dōn'.to.saw''.rūs, plu. -rī, or rhē'.ko.dōn''.tō.sor, the socket-toothed saurian.

Greek thékē odontōs gen. odontōs, saurōs, socket-tooth saurian.

Thee, object. case sing. of thou. The, the "definite article."

"Thee," Old Eng. thē, dat. and acc. of thū; Latin tu, acc. te.

"The," Old English the, for se, seō, subsequent to A.D. 1138.

Theft, robbery, larceny, v. thieve, rhēev, to steal; thieved (1 syl.); thiev-ing, rhē'.ving (R. xix.) Thief, plu. thieves, rhēef, plu. rhēevz, one who steals.

Old English theof or thēf, plu. theofas, thief, thieves; theofih theft, v. theof[ian], past theofede, past part. theofed.

The plural thieves ought to be abolished for two reasons: (1) because it is wrong, as may be seen above, and (2) because it is the only word (except "beef," beevs) which violates this general rule:

"the only words ending in -f which form the plural by changing it into -ves are those which end in -AF or -LF" (Rule xxxviii.) Thus we have "belief," beliefs; "brief," briefs; "chief," chiefs; "clef," clefs; "fief," fiefs; "grief," griefs; "handkerchief," handkerchiefs; "misbelief," misbeliefs; "mischief," mischiefs; "relief," reliefs.

Theine, thē'īn (not tē'īn), a bitter principle found in tea.

Caffeine, kāf'fēīn, the same principle found in coffee.

"Theine," from thea, the tea-plant: Chinese tcha or tha.

"Caffeine," from the Turkish cahveh; Arabic cahuah or cahoeh.

Their, thare, belonging to them. There, thare, in that place.

Their is used adjectively, as their house, their own farms.

Theirs is used as an indeclinable pronoun in any case; as

1. Our farm is the largest, but theirs is the best (nom. to the verb is).
 2. The man who prunes my trees prunes theirs also (obj. after prunes).
 3. "Twixt our best actions and the worst of theirs (governed by of).
 4. Between my garden and theirs is a high wall (possessive case).
- To say that these sentences are elliptical and that theirs="of them" is to beg the question, and cannot be applied to No. 3 without a double "of."

¶ THEIR (for his or her). Is it correct to say "Neither John nor his sister knew their lesson"? or must we say "Neither John nor his sister knew his or her lesson"?

"Neither" sometimes unites in a negative predicable, and in that case may be followed by a verb or pronoun plural. In the example given above, the meaning is John and his sister were both unprepared with their [respective] lessons.

"Neither you nor I are in fault" (M'Culloch). That is, "You and I too are without fault."

"Neither physic nor law are practically known from books" (Fielding). That is, "Physic and law are not to be learnt practically from books."

§ Are the following correct or incorrect according to this law?

1. "A lampoon or a satire do not carry in them robbery or murder" (Addison, Spectator).
2. "Thersites' body is as good as Ajax' When neither are alive" (Cymb. iv. 2).
3. "I, whom nor avarice nor pleasure move, . . ." (Walsh).
4. "Either my brother or his son is king, And neither of them thirst for Edmund's blood" (Marlow).
5. "Neither he nor Broadhem smoke (Piccadilly, p. 31).
6. "Nor wood, nor tree, nor bush are there" (Scott, Waterloo).
7. "Hæc si neque ego neque tu fecimus" (Terence, Andria).
8. "There" (in that place), Old English thar, thar, or ther, adv.

Theist, thē'ist. Deist, dē'ist. Atheist, a'·rhe·ist.

Theist, one who believes that there is a God who superintends and governs all creation, but does not believe in the doctrine of a trinity or in revelation.

Deist, one who believes that there is a God who created all things, but does not believe in his superintendence and government. He thinks that the creator implanted in all things certain immutable laws, called the laws of nature, which act per se, as a watch acts without the interference of its maker. Like the theist he rejects revelation and the doctrine of a trinity.

Atheist, one who disbelieves even the existence of a God. He thinks that the elements of material things are eternal, and that creation is the result of the natural laws of matter. (Not of blind chance.)

Theism, thē'izm. Deism, de'izm. Atheism, a'the'izm.

Theistic, the'is'tik. Deistic, de'is'tik. A-theis'tic.

Theistical, thē'is'tikāl. Deistical. Atheistical.

Theis'tical-ly. Deis'tical-ly. Atheis'tical-ly.

"Theist," Gk. theos God. "Deism," Lat. deus. "Atheist," Gk. a-neg., &c.

Them, obj. case of they (plu. of he, she, it); themselves (2 syl.); them in propria persona. (No such word as theirselves.)

We say my-self, thy-self, your-self, her-self, our-selves, &c., but not his-self, its-self, and their-selves, the self of me, of thee, of you, of her, of us, but not of him, of it, of them. Probably the dative (not the objective) case was the original form: as "me-self" (corrupted into my-self), "the-self" (corrupted into thysel), "her-self," him-self plu. [them-selves (all datives). The gen. cases would be min-self, thín-self, her-self, his-self, hira-selves.

Theme, them, a subject to be written or spoken on, a topic of discussion; (in Music) a series of notes used as a text.

Gk. thēma, a subject proposed (v. tithēmi, to propose or set down).

Themis, thēm'is (th- as in thin), goddess of justice.

Gk. Themis, goddess of law and order, justice personified (v. tithēmi).

Thēn, at that time. By then, by that time. Till then, till that...

Old English thonne or thænne; thonne thonne, then when.

Thence (1 syl.), from that place, from that time; thence-forth, from that time; thence-forward, thence for'ward (not thence för'rüd), from that time continuously.

Old English thonon, thonon-weard, or thanon, thanonne, &c.

FROM THENCE. FROM WHENCE. The purists object to these pleonasm, but the Germans say von dannen, and the phrases are sanctioned by our very best writers.

"He" [Hezekiah] "was magnified in the sight of all nations from thenceforth" (2 Chron. xxxii. 23).

"From thenceforth Pilate sought to release him" (John xix. 12).

"I will send and fetch thee from thence" (Gen. xxvii. 45).

"From thence is the shepherd" (Gen. xlix. 24).

"From thence will the Lord gather thee, and from thence will he fetch thee (Deut. xxx. 4).

Theo-, thē'o (Gk. prefix), god, god-like, fit for the gods (thēōs).

Theo-broma, thē'o-brō'mah, a genus of plants producing the cacao and chocolate nut; theobromine, -o-brō'min, a peculiar principle obtained from the chocolate-nut.

Greek theo-[thēōs] broma, food [fit for] a god.

Theo-crazy, plu. theocracies (Rule xlv.), thē.ōk.rā.siz, a state under priestly rule (the priests being the earthly representatives of deity. The ancient Jewish kingdom and the more modern popedom were theocracies).

Theocratic, thē'o.krāt'ik; theocratical, thē'o.krāt'ākāl; theocratical-ly. (See Aristocracy.)

Greek theo-[thēōs] kratos, government of god.

Theodolite, ῥη.δὲ.δ.λίτε, an instrument for surveying.

Greek theōdōmai hōdos litos, I view or survey a smooth road. The usual etymology is theōdōmai dolichōs, I view a long way; or theōdōmai dolos, I view [by a] stratagem. If the new suggestion is correct the word should be (according to our usual method of spelling such compounds) thehodolite; if either of the other two suggestions is correct, the word is hopelessly ill-formed.

Theo- (continued).

Theo-logy, ῥη.δὲ.δ.λόγῃς, any religious system which takes deity into consideration.

Theologian, ῥη.δ.ο.λόγ.δῖ.αν; theological, ῥη.δ.ο.λόγ.ῖ.κῆλ; theological-ly. Theologise, ῥη.δὲ.δ.ο.λόγῖζε, to frame a system of theology, to convert to theological illustration; theologised (4 syl.); theologis-ing (R. xix.), -δ.δῖ.ζῖ.νγ.

Greek theōlōgōs, theōlōgia (thēōs lōgōs, the word of God).

Theo-machy, ῥη.δ.νμ.α.κῖ, a battle with gods; theomachist, ῥη.δ.νμ.α.κῖστ, one who wars with gods.

Greek theōmachia, theōmachōs (thēōs machōmai, I fight god).

Theo-mancy, ῥη.δ.ο.μᾶν.συ, prophecy by oracles, divination by sacred things. (Greek thēōs manteia.)

Theo-pathy, ῥη.δ.ὄπ.ᾶ.ῥηῖ, sympathy with divinity, morbid religious sensitiveness; theopathic, ῥη.δ.ο.πάῤῥῖ.ἰκ.

Greek thēōs pathos, God-feeling or sympathy.

Theo-phany, ῥη.δ.ὄφ.ᾶ.νῖ, a manifestation of deity to man.

Greek thēōs phaino, God made-to-appear.

Theorem, ῥη.δ.ῥῆμ. Problēm. Lenīma, λέν.μαῖ.

Theōrem, a proposition to be proved or capable of proof.

Problem, a proposition to be constructed, a question of doubt to be resolved.

Lenīma, a proposition assumed to be proved and taken to help out the proof of another proposition.

Theory, ῥη.δ.ῥῖζ, an ideal scheme, a speculative explanation of phenomena, &c., the abstract principles of an art or science, philosophical guess-work; theoretic, ῥη.δ.ο.ῥῆτ.ἰκ; theoretical, theoretical-ly.

Theorize, ῥη.δ.ῥῖζε (R. xxxii.), to explain by philosophical guess-work, to form any ideal system of philosophy, &c., theorized (3 syl.); theoriz-ing (Rule xix.), ῥη.δ.ῥῖζῖνγ; theorist, ῥη.δ.ο.ῥῖστ, one who forms theories.

Greek theōreia, theōrētikos, theōrizo (theōdōmai, to behold).

Theo- (continued).

Theo-sophy, ῥη.δ.ὄς.δ.φῖ, divine wisdom not the effect of inspiration but of direct intercourse with deity.

Theosophism, ῥη.δ.ὄς.ο.φῖζμ; theosophist, ῥη.δ.ὄς.δ.φῖστ; theosophic, ῥη.δ.ο.ὄς.ἰκ; theosophical, -ὄς.ἰκῆλ.

Greek theo-[thēōs] sōphisma, sōphōs, sophia, sophistēs.

Therapeutics, thēr'ri.pū.tīks, the art of curing diseases, the healing art; therapeu'tic, adj.; therapeu'tical, -ly.

Greek therapeutikós, [hē]therapeutik[technē], or [ta]therapeutika.

"Therapeutics." Of the 55 or 60 sciences with this ending, all but 5 are of the plural number. The exceptions are French forms: viz. arithmetic, logic, magic, music, and rhetoric.

There, thāre, in that place. Their, thare, belonging to them.

There, in that place. Here, heer, in this place.

Thereabout or thereabouts, about that number, near that place. Hereabouts, near this place.

There-after, thāre.ăf'.ter, in that manner, from that time.

Here-after, in this manner, in the life to come.

There-at, at that. There-by, on that, by that means, as a consequence of that. There-fore, thare'for, for this or that reason, consequently, as an inference.

There-from, from that or this. Herefrom, from this.

There-in, in this or that place, in this or that time.

There-into, into this or that place. Here-in, in here.

There-of, of this or that. There-on, on this or that.

There-out, out of this or that. There-to, to this or that.

There-unto. There-upon, on or upon this or that.

There-with, with this or that. There-withal.

"There," Old Eng. thær, thar, or ther, thær-after, thær-inne, thær-of, thær-on, thær-to, thær-upon there-upon, thær-on, thær-ūte there-out, thær-with. "Their," Old Eng. thēra, gen. plu. of se or seō.

Thermo-, ther'.mo-, therm- before a vowel (Gk. prefix), warm.

Thermal, ther'.māl, warm (applied to springs above 60° Fahrenheit). (Gk. thermē; hai thermai, hot-springs.)

Ther'midor, one of the months of the French Republic.

(From July 19 to August 17. "The hot month.")

Thermidorian, ther'.mī.dōr'ri.ănz, those who took part in the coup d'état which brought about the fall of Robespierre when the "Reign of Terror" ended (July 27th, 1794).

Thermo-electricity, -e.lēk.tris'.i.ty, electricity evolved by the unequal heating of metals.

Gk. thermo-[thermos]eléctron, electricity [developed] by heat.

Thermo-electrometer, an instrument for ascertaining the heating power of an electric current.

Greek thermo-[thermos]eléctron, metron a measure.

Thermo-meter, ther.mōm'.ē.ter, an instrument for telling the heat of bodies, the temperature of rooms, water, &c.; thermometric, ther'.mō.mēt'.rīk; thermometrical, ther'.mō.mēt'.rī.kāl; thermometrical-ly.

Greek thermo-[thermos]metrōn, a heat gauge. (See Barometer.)

Thermo-scope, ther'.mo.skōpe, Count Rumford's thermometer, Leslie's differential thermometer, &c.

Thermoscopic, ther'.mo.skōp''īk, adj. of thermoscope.

Greek thermo-[thermos]skopeo, I take-notice-of the heat.

Ther'mo-stāt, an instrument for regulating temperature; thermo-static, ther'.mo.stāt''īk, adj. of thermostat.

Greek thermo-[thermos]stātōs, standing heat, i.e., heat preserved at one uniform temperature.

Thermotics, ther.mōt'īks, the science of heating and the effects of heat on matter; thermot'icāl.

Greek thermos, heat. "Thermotics": Of the 55 or 60 sciences with this ending all but 5 are plural. The 5 exceptions (arithmetic, logic, magic, music, rhetoric) are from the French.

Thesaurus, the.saw'rus, a dictionary, a lexicon, a compendium of knowledge. (Gk. thēsaurōs, a store laid up, a treasury.)

These, theez, plu. of this, adj. pronoun called demonstrative.

Them is the objective plu. of he, she, it (not of this).

(For the distinction between "this," "these," "that," "those," see That.)

At one time "this, these" was declined like other adj., as follows:

	Mas.	Fem.	Neut.		PLU. Nom. thds	all genders.
SING. Nom.	thes	theōs	this		Gen. thissa	"
Gen.	thises	thisse	thises		Dat. thisum	"
Dat.	thisum	thisse	thisum		Acc. - thds	"
Acc.	thisne	thds	this		Abl. thisum	"
Abl.	thise	thisse	thise

THIS KIND OF SORT. THESE KIND OF SORT. THAT KIND OF SORT.

THOSE KIND OF SORT. The question is this: When a plurality of things is referred to, should this and that (followed by sort or kind) be sing. or plu.? Should we say this sort of things or these sort of things; that kind of flowers or those kind of flowers? The reply is this: Our best writers and speakers use these and those, making sort-of-things, kind-of-things, &c., a compound-word or sentence-noun. Examples:

"These kind-of-knaves I know" (Lear ii. 2).

"That crow so at these kind-of-fools" (Twelfth Night i. 5).

"These sort-of-authors are poor" (Pope).

Similarly we say: "All kind-of-fruits" (Ecc. ii. 5).

"All kind-of-riches" (Ezek. xxvii. 12).

Thesis, plu. theses, thē'.sīs, plu. thē'.secz, a theme or subject to be supported by argument, a school exercise on composition.

Gk. thēsis, a general question for argument (v. tithēmi, to propound).

Thespian, thēs'.pī.ăn, dramatic. (Thespis, inv. of the drama.)

Theurgy, thē'.ur.djy, magic, necromancy; theurgist, -ur.djist, a magician, a necromancer; theurgic, thē.ur'.djik; theurgical, thē.ur'.gī.kāl; theur'gical-ly.

Gk. theourgia (theos ergon, God's work or the work done by divine aid).

Thew, plu. thews, sinew, muscle. Thews, physical strength.

Old English thedw or thedu.

They, plu. of he, she, it; objective them.

Their is used adjectively. Theirs is used as an indeclinable pronoun of any case. (See p. 1311, Their.)

Thick, (comp.) thick'-er, (super.) thick'-est, not thin, dense, close, muddy, not clear, deep (as five inches thick), crowded together, stupid, intimate and attached to each other.

Thick'-ly, thick'-ness, thick'-ish (-ish added to adj. is dim. added to nouns it means "like"). Thick'-headed, -hēd'.ed.

Thick'-set. Through thick and thin, throo..., through whatever may befall whether good or evil.

Thick-en, thick'n, to make thick (-en converts adj. to verbs); thickened, thick'nd; thicken-ing, thick'n-ing.

Thick'et, a copse with thick underwood.

Old Eng. thio or thicc, thicce thickly, thiccetlu thickets, v. thiccian.

Thief, plu. thieves, theef, plu. theevz, a robber, one who steals.

Thieve, theev, to rob; thieved, theevd; thiev-ing, theev'ing (R. xix.); thiev-ish, theev'ish; thiev'ish-ly, thiev'ish-ness.

Theft, plu. thefts, a robbery. Thief-catcher.

O. E. theof or thef, plu. theofas, theofth theft, v. theof[ian], -ede, -ed. The plural thieves is quite abnormal, and is the only word (except "beef," beeves) which violates this general rule, viz., "the only words ending in -f which form the plural by changing it into -ves are those which end in -AF or -LF" (Rule xxxviii.) The other nouns in -ief are belief-s, brief-s, chief-s, sief-s, grief-s, handkerchief-s, misbelief-s, mischiefs, relief-s.

Thigh, thi (th as in thin). Thy (th as in the).

Thigh, the leg between the body and the knee. Thigh-bone.

Thy, your (singular number).

"Thigh," O. E. theoh. "Thy," O. E. *thi*n, gen. of thú, thou or you.

Thimble, thim'b'l, a metal cap for the tip of the second finger of the right hand in sewing; an iron ring with a groove round it to receive a rope. Thimble-rig, a sleight-of-hand trick; thimble-rigging, thimble-rigger.

A corruption of thumb-bell, Old Eng. thuma belle. Sailors wear the thimble on the thumb, tailors on the third finger.

Thin, (comp.) thinn'-er, (super.) thinn'-est, not thick, to make less thick; thinned (1 syl.), thinn'-ing (R. i.), thinn'-ish (-ish added to adj. is dim., added to nouns it means "like").

Thin-skinned, -skind, unduly sensitive. To thin out.

O. E. thin or thyn, comp. thynra or thynre, super. thynnest, thynnes thinness, v. thynn[ian], past thynnode, p. part. thynnod, thynnung.

Thine (1 syl.), thy or your (sing.) Used as an adjective and as an indeclinable pronoun of any case.

"Thine," "Mine" are used in poetry and in the Bible for thy and my before words beginning with a vowel: as thine own, mine ears.

"Thine" is also an indeclinable pronoun of all cases:

1. My farm is the largest, but thine is the best (nom. to verb is).
2. He who prunes my trees prunes thine (object, gov. by prunes).
3. 'Twixt his best actions and the worst of thine (gov. by of).
4. Between my garden and thine is a high wall (possessive case).

That the word thine does not equal of thee is certain from example 3, which would have double "of" by such a substitution.

Thing, properly means any material substance, a term of contempt, as what a thing you are, i.e. "how stupid you are."

Things, clothes, luggage, personal property, movables."

Old Eng. thing, thineg, or thinc. It is not true, as we are generally told, that thing and think are of the same stock, and that thing means "whatever we can think of." We can think of deity, but deity is not a thing. The word really means "whatever has weight," and the verb is not thinc[an] but thing[an], to be heavy (materially, morally, and metaphorically). As a universal rule, nouns are not formed from verbs, but verbs from nouns.

Think, (past) thought, (past part.) thought, thaut; think'-ing, to reflect over, to revolve in the mind, to suppose, to believe; think'-able, think'-er.

Methinks, it seems to me; methought, it seemed to me.

To think much of, to esteem highly. To think little of, to esteem lowly. To think nothing of, to set no value on.

Old English thinc[an], past thúte, past part. ge-thúht it seems.

"Methinks" does not mean I think, the verb thincan is impersonal, and me the dative not the accusative case of the pronoun, so that methinks is exactly equivalent to the Latin mihi videtur it seems to me. Old Eng. methinc[th], me gethúte methought. It will be seen that the g is an interpolation.

"To think" is the O. Eng. verb thenc[an], past thóte, past part. thólet.

There is also the verb theaht[ian], -ode, -od, to take thought.

Third, ordinal of three (3), the sixtieth part of a second.

(60 minutes=1 hour, 60 seconds=1 minute, 60 thirds=1 second.)

(In Music) the third interval from any given note; thirds, sounding a note simultaneously with the third from it.

The third estate, the Commons, the other two estates are the lords temporal and the lords spiritual. Thirdly.

(The sovereign is not one of the three estates of the realm; the press is often called the fourth estate.)

Thirteen', 3 + 10; thirteenth, its ordinal.

Thirty, 3 × 10; thirtieth, its ordinal.

Old English thrida or thrydda, thri or thry, three. "Third" is a corruption of thrid, and we might as well call three "thir" as thrid third. So with thirteen and thirty.

Thirst, want of drink. Hun'ger, want of food.

To thirst, thirst'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), thirst'-ing, thirst'-er.

Thirst'-y, (comp.) thirst'-i-er, (super.) thirst'-i-est (R. xi.), thirst'-i-ness, thirst'-i-ly. Blood-thirsty, cruel.

FAMISHED (or) STARVED WITH THIRST. Is this correct? Cicero says "cum cibo et potione fames sitisque depulsa est" (de Fin. i. 11), showing that "fames" could not be applied to both cibo and potione, and this is the general verdict, although we want a word stronger than parched but less exaggerated than dying [with thirst].

"Starve" is the Old English steor[an], to perish for want of sustenance. Milton says "starved with cold," and there seems no reason why we should not say starved with thirst (as drink may be called sustenance as well as food and genial warmth), but we never do.

Thirteen, thir'teen (a corruption of thridteen), 3 + 10; thirteenth, the ordinal of 13; thirteenth-ly.

Thirty, thir'ty (a corruption of thridty), 3 × 10; thir'ti-eth, the ordinal of 30. The thirty-years war, a great German Protestant war during the first half of the 17th century, terminated by the Peace of Westphalia, 1648.

"Thirteen," Old Eng. thrityne, thrytyne, thrittyne or thryttyne, 13; thritteotha, thritteothe, thrytteotha or thrytteothe, 13th.

"Thirty," O.E. thrittig or thryttig 30; thrittigotha 30th, thrittig-seald.

This, plu. these, theez, persons or things present.

That, plu. those, thōze, persons or things not present.

This book, the book I hold in my hand or am touching.

That book, the book I point at or am referring to.

This, That. This refers to what is nearest, that to what is more remote: as

"And (1) reason raise o'er (2) instinct as you can

In this (2) 'tis God directs, in that (1) 'tis man" (Pope).

The following sentence is not according to rule:

"Yeur (1) eyes contradict your (2) tongue. That (2) speaks of a protector..., but these (1) tell me you are ruined (Kentworth). Should be: This (2) speaks of a protector, but those (1) tell me....

Thistle, thi's'l (th- as in thin), a prickly weed. The thistle, emblem of Scotland, the rose of England, the shamrock of Ireland, the leek of Wales, the lily of France.

Thistly, thi's'ly. Thistle-down. Thistle-crown, a gold coin issued by James I. (Old English thistel.)

Thither, thir'h'er (first th like the, the second like thin), to that place. Hither, hir'h'er, to this place.

Thither-ward, thither-wards, towards that place.

"Thither," Old English thider, thider-weard, thider-weardes.

"Hither," Old English hider, hider-weard, hider-weardes.

Thole-pin, thōle... (1 syl.), plu. thole-pins, pins (instead of rowlocks) in the gunwale of a boat between which an oar is placed when rowing. (Old English thōl.)

Thomaism, tōm'aizm, the doctrines of St. Thomas Aquinas.

Thomist, tōm'ist, a follower of St. Thomas Aquinas.

Thomsonite, tōm'sun.ite, a mineral named after Dr. Thomson, the chemist (-ite for Greek lithos, denotes a mineral).

Thong, thong (th- as in thin), a leather strap. (O. E. thwong.)

Thor, thōr (th- as in thin), son of Odin, the god of thunder, &c., the Jupiter of Scandinavian mythology.

Thurs-day (a corruption of Thor's-day), the fifth day in the week being sacred to the god Thor. (O. E. thores-dæg.)

Thorax, tho'raz (th- as in thin), the chest, the part between the neck and the abdomen, the second segment of an insect (between the head and the abdomen), a breastplate, a cuirass, a corslet; thoracic, thō.rūs'ík (not thō.rūk'ík); thorac'ic-duct.

Greek thōrax from thōrō, to pulsate (as drōpax from drēpō).

Pliny says: "Pectus præ-cordiis et vitalibus natura circumdedit."

"Pectus" is often taken for cor, the Greek thōrō (Forcellini).

Thorn, a shrub, a prickle, a small splinter, a trouble; thorn'-y, thorn'i-ness, thorn'-less. Thorn'-apple, thorn'-bush, thorn'-hedge. Thorn'-back, a fish. Thorn'-but, a turbot.

Old Eng. thorn, thornih thorny; Germ. dornbutte, dorn, dornig, &c.

Thorough, thūr'rah, complete, through-out, from end to end; thorough-ly, thorough-ness. Thorough-bred, complete (as a thoroughbred horse or dog), of pure extraction.

Thorough-bass, thūr'rah bāse, the science of constructing harmony to any given bass (hence the fundamental rules of musical composition).

The Theory of thorough-bass comprehends a knowledge of the connexion and disposition of all chords, and of all the laws which regulate them. Practical thorough-bass is the knowledge of taking on a musical instrument the proper chords according to the figures placed over or under the bass part of a composition.

Thorough-bass was invented by Ludovico Viadana, in 1605.

Thorough-fare, thūr'rah-fair, a passage quite through.

Thorough-going, uncompromising, stanch, complete.

Thorough-paced, perfectly trained, uncompromising, stanch.

We say a thorough-going churchman, dissenter, quaker, &c., but thorough-paced horse, tory, whig, radical, &c.

Old Eng. thurh, thurh-faru thoroughfare. Our spelling is very corrupt. So "bur[gh]," būr'rah. Of all the ten irregularities of -ough, "thorough" is about the worst.

- (1) ough = off: cough (O.E. cohk', contraction of cohk[etan]), to cough.
- (2) ough = öf: sough, trough = söf, tröf (O. E. seof[ung], troch or trog).
- (3) ough = üf: chough, enough, rough, slough, tough (Old Eng. ecogh, genoh or genog, rüh, slog, toh).
- (4) ough = öw (as in gröw): dough, though, furlough (Old Eng. dah or dag, theah; Norse forlov, leave of absence).
- (5) ough = oo: through (Old Eng. throh).
- (6) ough = öw (as in nöw): plough, bough, stough, dough-ty (Old Eng. ploh or plog, boh or bog, slog (a bog), dohtig).
- (7) ough = ök: (?) hough, lough, shough (Old Eng. hoh, luh, seeag').
- (8) ough = üp: hiccough (Dutch huckup).
- (9) ough = ürrah: borough, thorough (Old English thurh, burh).
- (10) ought = ort: bought, drought, fought, nought, ought, sought, thought, wrought. Add fraught, naught, taught. (Old Eng. böhte (v. bycgan); drugath or drugoth; fohten (v. feohtan); nöht, öht, söhte (v. seccan); -thöhte (v. thencan); worhte corrupted into wrohte (v. weorcan). Add dht, (Germ. fracht), näht, tdhte (v. técan).

A glance at these words will show that ough has been made to represent nine different combinations: viz., -ag, -ah; -eag, -eog, -eof; -og, -oh; -uh, urh. Such an absurd device could not fail to produce absurdity in spelling and pronunciation.

THOROUGH WORKING ORDER, OR THOROUGHLY WORKING ORDER.

The qualifying word of nouns and adjectives is an adverb. Now although we have made thorough an adjective, and have coined the word thorough-ly for the adverb, yet originally thurh was an adverb. "Thorough-working" is therefore quite in conformity with old usage. Thus we had thurh-seled (thorough-lighted), thurh-beorht (thorough-bright), thurh-bitter (thorough-bitter), thurh-don (thorough-done), thurh-halig (thorough-holy), thurh-hefi (thorough-heavy), thurh-hlæne (thorough-lean), and scores of others.

Those, thoze (th- as in the), plu. of that (which see).

Thōth (th- as in thin), Egyptian god of eloquence and writing.

Thou, thōw (th- as in the, -ōw as in nōw), you (singular number).

Only used in poetry and prayer. Quakers use thee (for thou) as we use the word "you." (See Though.)

Old Eng. SING.: Nom. thū, Gen. thin, Dat. thē, Acc. thēc or thē.

PLU.: Nom. ge, Gen. cower, Dat. eow, Acc. cowie or eow.

Latin tu, Greek su. The use of you for thou dates from the close of the 13th century. "You," Greek humets (ὅυεῖς).

Though, thōw (th- as in the, -ōw as in glōw), notwithstanding, admitting that, even if. As though, as if. (See Thou.)

In most cases although may be substituted for though, but not when though closes a sentence: as

His book was successful though. Nell Gwynn was no model of propriety, she was very much liked though.

Old English theah. (For the spelling see Thorough.)

Thought, thawt, mental work, an idea, a conception of the mind, solicitude, a very little (as I am a thought better).

Thought'ful (R. viii.), thought'ful-ly, thought'ful-ness.

Thought'less, thought'less-ly; thought'less-ness.

Think (verb), past thought, past part. thought, think'-ing, think'-er. Methinks. (See Think.)

Old English thōht, v. thencan, to think, past thōhte, past part. thōht.

There is also theaht[ian] to "take thought," and the impersonal v. thinean, past thūhte, past part. ge-thūht "it seems" (which requires the subject to be in the dative case: as me-thineth).

Thousand, thōw'-zānd (th- as in thin, ōw as in nōw), ten-hundred; thousandth, the ordinal of thousand.

("th" postfix converts adj. to abstract nouns of a positive character. Abstract nouns of a negative character end in "-ness.")

A thousand fold, a thousand times repeated.

Old English thūsēnd, i.e. taihuns-hund ten-times-ten (10×10): thūsēndteotha or thūsēndteothe, thūsēnd-feald.

Thrall, thrawl, a bondsman; thrall'-dom, slavery.

Enthral', to make a slave (-en converts nouns to verbs); enthralled, en-thrawld'; enthrall'-ing (Rule iii.), enthrall'-er; enthral'-ment, the being caught in a snare.

Monosyllables ending in l and their compounds are very irregular.

When a prefix beginning with a vowel is added the double l is retained, but when a prefix beginning with a consonant is added no uniform system is followed. Happily the tendency of the present day is to retain the double l, but scores of words remain to be reduced to order, and some are hopeless.

Of the hopeless are such words as al-mighty, al-most, al-ready, al-so, al-though, al-together, al-ways; "full" in composition, especially at the close of words: as hopeful, fretful.

Of those which may be reformed are such as these: dul-ness for dullness, wil-ful for willful, skil-ful for skillful, wel-come for wellcome; distil, instil, &c., for distill, instill, &c.

We have ill-ness, still-ness, tall-ness, shrill-ness, small-ness, fell-ness, &c.; why then write dul-ness, ful-ness, and chil-ness?

We have well-bred, well-born, well-nigh, &c.; why write wel-come?

We have full-age, full-blown, full-fed, &c.; why write ful-ness?

∴ The rule ought to be that monosyllables ending in double l, and all their compounds, invariably retain the double "l," except when -ly is added. In Old English full not ful was the affix.

Thrash, to flog. Thresh, to beat out corn.

Thrashed (1 syl.), thrash'-ing, thrash'-er.

Threshed (1 syl.), thresh'-ing, thresh'-er.

Thresh'-ing machine, -ma.sheen'. Thresh'-ing-floor.

(This distinction is very general, especially with the upper classes.

We never say "I will give you a threshing," but some speak of "thrashing" and others of "threshing" corn.)

Both words are corrupt. The old form was tharsc[an] or tharsc[an], past tharsc, past part. tharscen; tharscol a threshing-instrument, tharscere or tharscere a thrasher, tharscol-flor a threshing-floor.

From which it is evident that thresh is preferable to thrash.

Thread, thrēd, flax, cotton, silk, &c., twisted into lengths for fabrication or sewing, the prominent part of a screw, a filament of a flower, a line of argument or discourse, to pass a thread through the eye of a needle, to make way through an intricate passage; thread-ed, thrēd'ed; thread'-ing, thread'-y, thread'-i-ness, thread'-er.

Thread'-bare (2 syl.), worn to threads, stale; thread'-bare-ness. Thread'-shaped. (Old English thrēd or thrēd.)

Threat, thrēt, a menace. Threat-en, thrēt'n, to menace (-en converts nouns to verbs); threatened, thrēt'nd; threaten-ing, threat'ening-ly; threaten-er, thrēt'n.er.

Old Eng. threat, v. threatian, past threatode, past part. threatod.

A "threat" meant originally a band of soldiers, brigands, or robbers. As these hordes used threats, the word lost its original meaning and acquired its present signification.

Three, one more than two; third (for thrid), its ordinal.

Thrice (1 syl.), three-times, very greatly, exceedingly.

Triple, trīp'l, three united, three-fold.

Thirteen (a corruption of thridteen), 3 + 10. Thirty (a corruption of thridty), 3 × 10. Three-fold. Three score (2 syl.), 3 × 20. Three-deep, three in a row.

Three'-coat-work, plastering with three layers: (1) the picking-up; (2) the roughing-in; (3) the floating and finishing. Three-pence, thrīp'nce, a silver coin equal in value to a quarter of a shilling or the sixtieth part of a pound sterling. Rule of Three, proportion.

Old Eng. thrī or thrý, thrittyne 13, thrittig 30, thri-fald three-fold.

We might introduce the adverb "threefoldly," thri-faldlice.

Threshold, *thresh'*old (only one h), a door-sill, the beginning.

Old Eng. thersc-wald, the door-wood; Ger. thürschwelle, thür, a door; Gk. thura, a door (from duó, to enter in). Thresh- for thersh-.

Thrice (1 syl.), three-times. Thrice-honoured, highly honoured.

So in Latin terque quaterque beati; Old Eng. thriwa or thriga.

Thrift, parsimony; thrift'-y, thrift'i-ly, thrift'i-ness (Rule xi.)

Thrift'-less, thrift'less-ly, thrift'less-ness.

Thrive, to prosper, (past) thrōve or thrived (1 syl.), past part. thriven, thriv'en; thriv-ing, thri'ving (Rule xix.); thriv'-er; thriving-ly, thri'ving-ly. (Danish trives.)

Thrill (th- as in thin). Trill. Drill.

Thrill, to pierce, to cause a shudder; thrilled (1 syl.), thrill'-ing, thrill'ing-ly, thrill'ing-ness.

Trill, an ornamental turn of the voice in singing.

Drill, an instrument for boring holes.

The primary meaning of "thrill" is to bore a hole, to pierce, to penetrate. As the instrument in boring is turned round, hence trill, a turn of the voice. "Thrill," a corruption of thirl.

Old Eng. thyrl, thyrel, or thirel a hole bored, v. thyrli[an] to bore a hole, past thyrilode, past part. thyrlod, thyrlung drilling or boring.

Thrive (1 syl.), past thrōve (1 syl.) or thrived (1 syl.), past part. thriven, thriv'en; thriv-ing, thri'ving (Rule xix.); thri'ving-ly; thriv'-er, thri'ver.

Thrift, thrift'y, thrift'i-ly, thrift'i-ness. (See Thrift.)

Throat, thrōte (th- as in thin), the fore-part of the neck.

He cut his throat, he murdered himself. (O. E. thrōte.)

Thrōb, a palpitation, to palpitate; throbb'd (1 syl.), throbb'-ing (R. i.), throbb'ing-ly. (Gk. thōrūbōs from tōrōs, audible.)

Three, thrō. Throw (as in grōw). Through, throo. Though.

Throe, a pain like that in child-birth. (Old Eng. thrōw.)

Throw, to cast. (O. E. thrāw[an], p. threow, p. p. ge-thrāwen.)

Through, from end to end. (O. E. throh, see Thorough.)

Though (to rhyme with grōw), notwithstanding. (O. E. theah.)

"Throe," O. E. thrōwere means a martyr, thrōwian to suffer martyrdom.

Thrōne (1 syl.), a chair of state for a sovereign. Thrōwn, cast, hurled. Enthrone' (2 syl.), to place on a throne; enthroned' (2 syl.); enthron-ing (R. xix.), en.thrō'ning; enthronement. Throne'-less. Dethrone' (2 syl.), &c.

Gk. thrōnōs (from thrōbō to seat, thrānos a bench, from thraō to sit).

"Thrown," Old Eng. thrāw[an], past threow, past part. ge-thrāwen.

Throng, a crowd, to crowd; throng'd (1 syl.), throng'-ing.

Old Eng. thring[an], past thring, past part. ge-thrungen, noun ge-thrang, ge-thring, or ge-throng a throng or crowd.

Throstle, thrōs'l, the song-thrush. (O. E. throstle or throsle.)

Throttle, thrōt'ul, to strangle, to suffocate by pressure on the windpipe; throttled, thrōt'uld; throttling, thrōt'ling.

Old English thrōte, the windpipe or throat.

Through, throo. Threw. Throe, thrō. Thrōw. Though. Thōu.

Through, from end to end. (O. E. throh, see Thorough.)

Threw, did throw. (Old English thrāw[an], past threow.)

Throe, pain of childbirth. (Old Eng. thrōw, martyrdom.)

Though (to rhyme with grōw), notwithstanding. (O. E. theah.)

Thou (to rhyme with nōw), you sing. (Old English thū.)

Thrōw (th- as in thin, -ōw as in grōw), a cast, a toss, a fling, to propel, to fling; (past) threw, (past part.) thrōwn, thrōw'-ing, thrōw'-er.

Thrōw'-ster, one who throws silk. (-ster is not a suffix indicating one of the female sex. It is added to any gender and means vocation or skill from practice, Rule lxii.)

To throw about. To throw away. To throw back, to retort, to reject. To throw by, to lay aside as useless. To throw in, to give as an extra, to cast in. To throw [oneself] on another, to attack. To throw [oneself] on another's mercy, to leave it to the mercy of another to decide what should be done. To throw up, to vomit, to resign a post. To thrōw silk, to twist singles into a cord. Thrown silk.

Old Eng. thrāw[an], past threow, p. p. ge-thrāwen. (See Through.)

Thrūm, a weaver's cutting. "Thrumms" are the odds and ends cut off by a weaver in weaving; thrumm'-y (Rule i.)

Iceland. thrawm; Germ. trumm, a thrum; Gk. thrumma, a fragment.

Thrūsh, the mavis, the throstle is the song-thrush, a disease in the mouth and fauces, aphthæ.

"Thrush" (the bird), Old Eng. thrisc; (a disease), Latin trīsum.

Thrūst, a lunge, to lunge; (past and p. p.) thrust, thrust'-ing.

Home'-thrust, a severe rebuke, a turning of the tables on another, an argumentum ad hominem (corrupt. for throsk.)

Greek thrōskō, to spring on one, to attack.

Thūd, a dead heavy sound. (Old English thoden, a thud.)

Thūg, one of a religious fraternity in India. The fraternity live by plunder and never halt at violence or even murder.

(The Thugs band together in gangs on horseback, assuming the guise of merchants, and having spotted their victim catch him with a lasso.)

Thugg'-ism. (Hind. t'hagnet, to deceive.)

Thule, thū'le (not one syl.), as in Ul'tima Thule, the most northern part of the habitable world.

Pliny, Solinus, and Mēla take it for Iceland. Pliny says: "It was discovered in the Northern Ocean by Pytheas after sailing six days from the Orcadēs." Camden considers it to be Thylen's Isle, one of the Shetlands, in which he agrees with Molinus, Ptolēmy, and Tacitus. Bochart calls it Phœnician meaning isles of darkness; but probably it is Gothic and means the most remote land.

Thumb, thǔm, the two-jointed finger of the human hand, to handle, to soil or injure with fingering; thumbed (1 syl.); thumb-ing, thūm'ing. Thumb'-screw, an instrument of torture. Thumb'-stall, a hutkin for a sore finger.

By rule of thumb, a rough and ready guess in weights and measures. A Tom Thumb, a dwarf. (See Thump.)

Old Eng. thūma, thūma-nāgel the thumb-nail, thūmel as big as the thumb. It will be seen that the -b is an interpolation.

Thummim, as Urim and Thummim, three stones in the pocket of the breast plate of the Jewish High Priest.

One stone represented Yes, one No, and one No answer is vouchsafed. When any question was to be decided by the High Priest he drew out one of these stones, and the "lot" was supposed to be the answer of God (Lev. viii. 8; 1 Sam. xxviii. 6).

Thūmp, a blow, to give a heavy knock; thumped, thūmpt; thump'-ing, thump'-ing-ly, thump'-er. (See Thumb.)

Thump, a knoll, to form a hillock. (Welsh tump.)

"Thump," a corruption of dump, "to knock heavily" (See Halliwell's Archaic Dict. Vol. I, p. 324). Danish dump plump, v. dumpe. This is an exception to the rule that "words beginning with th- are either from the Anglo-Saxon or the Greek."

Thun'dér, the noise which follows a lightning flash, to thunder; thundered, thūn'drd; thun'dér-ing, thun'dering-ly. thun'dér-er; thun'dér-clap, a peal of thunder; thun'dér-bolt, a bel'emnite. The thunderbolt of war, an impetuous and irresistible conqueror.

Thun'dér-cloud. Thun'dér-shower. Thun'dér-stone, a bel'emnite, a variety of crystalline, iron pyrites (2 syl.)

Thun'dér-storm. Thun'dér-struck, astonished.

Old English thunder, thuner, or thunor, v. thunor[ian], athun[ian], tonig[an] or ton[ian]; Latin tōno or tōnātruo, n. tōnitrus.

Thu'ri- (th- as in thin), Lat. prefix from thus, gen. thūris, frankincense, from the Gk. thuos, incense, thuō, to offer sacrifice.

Thurible, thū'ri.b'l (th- as in thin), a censer.

Latin thūrbūlum, from thus gen. thūris, frankincense.

Thuri-ferous, thū'rif'.ĕ.rūs (th- as in thin), producing frankincense, like frankincense, sweet-smelling; thurification, thū'ri.fī.kay'.shūn, fumigation with frankincense.

Latin thurifer, from thus gen. thūris and fēro to bear.

Thursday, thurz'day, the fifth day of the week, sacred to Thor, the god of thunder (the Jupiter of Scandinavian mythol.)

Thus (th- as in the), in such a manner, in this manner, in that manner, to this extent. (Old English thus.)

THUS MUCH or THIS MUCH [is evident]. Which is correct?

We should certainly say "thus far shalt thou go and no further," meaning up to this point, to this extent. "This much is evident" does not mean it is evident up to this point or to this extent, but it is evident to a point or extent about to be named, which is this.... "Thus much" means up to the limit stated. "This much," up to the limit now about to be stated [which is this....].

Thwack, another form of whack, a blow; a thwacking or a whacking, a flogging; to thwack, thwacked (1 syl.), thwack'-ing. A good thwacking, a severe beating.

We say "a box on the ears," where "box" is the Greek pux, a blow or cuff, and pux agathos is a good box or cuffing: by a pun the Anglo-Saxon hwæcca (a box) is made to signify a "box [on the ears]," a blow, a beating.

Thwart, thwort, a rowers' bench, to frustrate, to resist; thwart'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), thwart'-ing, thwart'-ing-ly, thwart'-er.

Athwart, a.thwart', across. Athwart'-ships, across the vessel from side to side (lengthwise would be fore and aft). Athwart'-hawse, across the cable, across the direction of a vessel's head.

Old English thweor, thweorh, or thweorg, diagonal, across; v. thweor[ian], to thwart or oppose. (The end -t is interpolated.)

Thy (th- as in the), your (sing.), thyself, used only in poetry and prayer. Thine (1 syl.), used in poetry instead of thy before vowels, as thine own.

"Thy" is a possessive pronoun, and "thine" a pronoun indeclinable used in all cases. (See Thine.)

Old Eng. SING.: Nom. thú, Gen. thín, Dat. thé, Acc. thé or thé.

PLU.: Nom. ge, Gen. ewer, Dat. cow, Acc. ewic or cow.

Latin Nom. tu, Acc. te. "You," Greek humeis (ὕμεις).

Thyme, time, a plant. Time, duration measured by the sun.

Thym-y, tí-my, fragrant like thyme.

Greek thumon or thumos, from thuó to burn incense.

Thysrus, thir'sūs (th- as in thin), a wand wreathed with ivy and vine-leaves carried by the votaries of Bacchus, a panicle very compact as in the lilac, or like a bunch of grapes.

Greek thursos, from thuó, to sacrifice.

Tiara, tí.air'rah, the head-dress worn by the kings of ancient Persia, the mitre of the Jewish high-priest, the pope's triple crown; tiaraed, tí.air'rah'd; tiaroid, tí.air'roid.

Greek tiāra "tiaroid," tiāro-eidēs tiara-like; Persian ār.

Pope Pius IX. said (1871) that the tiara was the symbol of his "three-fold royal dignity, in heaven, upon earth, and in purgatory."

Tibia, tíb'í.ah, the larger of the two leg-bones; tibial, tíb'í.āl.

Latin tíbia, the shin-bone, a flute. The shank resembles a flute.

Tic, tík, neuralgia [in the face and head]. Tick (see below).

Tic-douloureux, tík dōl'.oo.roo (should be doo'.loo.ro).

French tic douloureux, face-ache, painful neuralgia [of the face].

Tick, tík, a parasite on sheep, dogs, &c., a small bean, the click of a watch or clock, a small notch made with a pen or pencil, trust, a cloth for bedding (also called ticking), to tick; ticked, tíkt; tick'-ing. To tick a thing off, to mark an item entered on paper with a small notch or mark in the margin. To buy on tick, to buy on credit. To go on tick, to buy on credit. To take on tick, to take on credit. Tick-tack, the click-clack of a pendulum, the rat-tat of a small hammer driving tacks. (See Tic.)

"Tick" (a parasite), Fr tique. "Tick" (a small mark), Welsh twe. "Tick" (credit), so called from the custom of keeping scores on tallies. "Tick" (for bedding), Dutch teek; Latin tego, to cover.

Ticket, tik'ēt, a label, a small card of admission to some place of amusement, &c., the certificate given to travellers [by rail] in proof of their right of conveyance to the place named, to mark with a label; tick'et-ed, tick'et-ing.

Tick'et-porter. Tick'et-writer, one who writes and decorates show-cards for shop-windows.

Ticket-of-leave [man], a convict licensed to go at large before the expiry of his sentence.

That's the ticket, that's the right thing. (Fr. étiquette.)

Fr. étiquette, from the Greek stix gen. stichos, a row, range, order; v. steicho, to march in order. Some say it is a corruption of the words Est hic quest. [questio] inter N et N, formule que les procureurs mettaient autrefois sur leurs sacs de procédure.

Tickle, tik'.k'l (not tittle), to titillate, to please the fancy with some thing droll; tickled, tik'.k'ld; tick'ling, tick'ler (not tittler), tick'lish, tick'lish-ly, tick'lish-ness.

Old Eng. citel, citeling, citelung or tocelung a tickling, v. tincl[an] or citel[ian], past citeled, past part. citeled.

Tid-bit (not tit'.bit), a delicate morsel.

Old Eng. tidder, tiddr, or teder, tender, choice (a choice-bit).

Tide (1 syl.), the alternate ebb and flow of the sea (Tied, see Tie), to work as the tide serves; tided, tī'ded; tid-ing (R. xix.), tī'ding. Tidal, tī'dāl. Tī'dal basin, a dock which is full at high tide. Tī'dal river, a river affected by the tide. Tidal train. Tide-less. To tide over a difficulty, to surmount a trouble. Tide'-current. Tide'-day, the interval between two tides. Tide'-gate (2 syl.), a lock to keep up water in a dock when the tide recedes. Tide'-gauge, ...gāge. Tide'-mill, a mill moved by the tide-water. Tide'-tables. Tide'-water. Tide'-wave (2 syl.)

Tide'-way, the channel in which the tide sets.

Ebb'-tide, the receding of the sea from a shore.

Flood'-tide, the flow of the sea towards a shore.

Neap'-tide, the lowest tide. (When the moon is in her quarters her attraction crosses that of the sun.)

Spring-tide, the highest tide. (When the moon is new or full, her attraction coincides with that of the sun.)

Betide, be.tide', to befall; betī'ded, betī'ding.

-tide (native affix), season, time of.

Even-tide, the season or time of nightfall.

Noon'-tide, the season or time of noonday.

Shrove'-tide, the season of shriving (i.e. of confession, &c.)
(Tuesday before Ash-Wednesday or the season of Lent.)

Spring'-tide, the season or time of spring.

Twelf'-tide, the season of epiphany or twelfth-day.

O. E. tīd tide, tīd[an] to betide. "Twelf-tide" should be twelfth-tide.

Tidings, tī'dings. News, newz. Intelligence, in.tēl'.i.gense.

Tidings, information of some recent event.

("Tidings" is plural, and requires a plural construction: as "These are heavy tidings.")

News, information of anything about to occur, now occurring, or having recently taken place.

("News," a plural noun used generally with a singular construction: as "This is indeed good news.")

Intelligence, an official report of some recent event.

"Tidings," Danish tidende; Old English tīd[an], to happen.

"News," O. Eng. neowe or niwe. "Intelligence," Lat. intelligentia.

Tidy, (comp.) tī'di-er, (super.) tī'di-est, neat, arranged in good order, to put to rights, to clean up and put in order; tidied, tī'did; tidy-ing, tī'di-ly, tidy-ness.

Old English tīd season, tīdig, tīdlīc timely, tīdlīce fitly.

Tie, tī, a knot, an obligation, a restraint, a bond, to tie; tied, tīde, fastened. Tide, season, ebb and flow of the sea; tying. (So "die," dying; "lie," lying; "vie," vying; but "hie" makes hieing.) To tie down. To tie up.

Old Eng. tīge, teag, teagh, or teah; v. tī[an], tīg[an], or tīg[ian].

Tier, Tear (both teer). Tear, Tare (both tair).

Tier, a row ("tiers" are rows one above another).

Tear [teer], water from the lachrymal glands.

Tear [tair], a rent, to rend.

Tare, a deduction from the gross weight for packages, &c.

"Tier," Old Eng. tier; Heb. TIR; Welsh tyriad, a piling, v. tyru.

"Tear" (water from the eyes), Old Eng. téar, tár, or táher.

"Tear" (to rend), Old Eng. tér[an], past tær, past part. tóren.

"Tare," Fr. tare, from the Arabic tarah, to throw off.

Tierce, tē'erse, a cask = one-third of a pipe or 42 gallons, a sequence of 3 cards of the same colour, a thrust in fence.

"Tierce," French tierce, 42 gallons, a tierce of cards.

Tiercel, tē'er-sēl, a male goshawk (one-third of the female).

French tiercelet. Traditionally, the product of the third egg.

Tiers état, tē'erz' a-tah', the third estate, the commonalty (Fr.)

Tiff, a small draught of liquor, a slight altercation, a pet.

Tiff'in, luncheon. Tiffy, easily provoked to ill-temper.

"Tiff" and "Tiffin" (refreshment), Welsh distin[o], to be refreshed.

"Tiff" (ill-temper from annoyance), Welsh difiad, an annoyance.

Tiger, fem. tigress (not tiger-ess), tigress, a savage wild beast of the feline family; ti'ger-ish (-ish added to nouns means "like," added to adj. it is dim.), ti'gerish-ness, ti'gerish-ly; tigrine, ti'grin, adj. of tiger. Ti'ger-cat, a small tiger; ti'ger-footed; ti'ger-shell, a tiger-spotted cowrie-shell.

Old Eng. tigris (Glossary of Analecta Anglo-Saxonica), Latin tigris.

Tight, tite, (comp.) tight'-er, (super.) tight'-est, not loose, not leaky, close-fitting, ill-supplied (as the market was tight), scarce (as money was tight); tight'-ly, tight'-ness.

Tight-en, tite'n, to make tighter (-en converts adj. to verbs); tightened, tite'nd; tighten-ing, tite'ning; tighten-er.

Tights, tight-fitting pantaloons for stage dancers, &c.

Tight-rope, a rope suspended above the ground and tightened for someone to dance on.

Taut, (Sea-term) stretched, strained tight, trim.

German dicht, v. dichten. "Tight" (not leaky), Dan. digte, caulked.

Tike (1 syl.), a cur, a selfish ill-tempered boor, a rustic.

"Tike" (a clown), Celtic tiak or tiac. "Tike" (a cur), Iceland. tyk.

Tilbury, plu. tilburies, tīl'bēr rīz, a two-wheeled carriage without a hood. (So named from the original maker.)

Tile (1 syl.), a thin brick for roofing, flooring, lining, &c., to cover with tiles; tiled (1 syl.); til-ing, tī'ling (R. xix.), tiles collectively, covering with tiles; til-er, tī'ler.

Tyler, tī'ler, a brother freemason whose office is to see that the doors of a lodge are closed and properly secured.

To tyle a lodge, to secure the doors that no intruder may obtain admission. (Sometimes spelt tiler, tile, tiled.)

Old Eng. tiegl, tigel, tigol, tigal, tigle, or tygel; Latin tēgula.

Till, a drawer in a counter for cash, a money-box; to the time when, up to [referring to time, as till to-morrow]; till then. This conjunction is also spelt until (with one l). (In Geol.) a tough unstratified stony clay of the glacial formation; to cultivate; tilled, tīld; till'-ing; till'-er, one who tills, the lever of a rudder; till'-age, culture.

"Till" (until), O. Eng. til or tille. "Tillage," O. E. tiliga or tiligea.

"Till" (verb), O. Eng. til[ian], past tilode, p. part. tilod, tilung.

Tiller, tīll'-er, the lever of a rudder, one who tills land.

"Tiller" (one who tills), O. E. tilia. "Tiller" (a lever), telga, a bough.

Tilt, a covering of a wagon, a military game on horseback, a thrust, to raise one end of a cask, to ride at each other with blunt lances in a tilting match, &c.; tilt'-ed (R. xxxvi.), tilt'-ing, tilt'-er. To tilt a [beer barrell], to raise the far-end so that the liquor may flow through the tap. Tilted up, (in Geol.) said of strata pushed up from its bed at a high angle of inclination. Tilt-hammer, a huge hammer tilted by machinery and used in ironworks.

"Tilt" (verb), Old Eng. tealt[ian], past tealtode, past part. tealtod.

"Tilt" (an awning), O. E. ge-teald, a tent; Span. tolda or toldo.

Timber, tim'ber, wood for building purposes, to furnish with timber; timbered, tim'berd; timber-ing.

Tim'bers, the ribs on which a ship is framed. Timber-head, -hed, the ends of the timbers which come above the decks (used for belaying hawsers and large ropes).

Timber-tree. Timber-work. Timber-yard, -mer'chant, &c.

O. E. timber or tymber, v. timbr[ian], past timbrode, p. p. timbrod.

Timbre (French), tahn'br, the ring or quality of sound special to each musical instrument. (We know what instrument is sounded without seeing it by its timbre.)

Timbrel, tim'breġ, a sort of drum with bells round the rim, a tambourine. (Span. tamboril, tambor with diminutive.)

Our word is ill-spelt. It should be tamborel or tambrel.

Time (1 syl.) Thyme, a herb. (Greek thumon.)

Time, duration measured by the sun and moon (it has three phases, past, present, and future, and is now measured by clocks and watches), season, state of affairs (as good times, bad times), the time-value of a bar of music (indicated at the beginning of the piece), the speed at which a piece of music is to be played or sung.

Time, in regard to notes, is either common or triple.

COMMON TIME (marked C) has an even number of beats (as 2, 4, 6 crotchets, quavers, &c.) in each bar.

TRIPLE TIME (marked like a fraction with 3 as numerator) has an odd number of beats (as 3, 9, &c. crotchets, quavers, &c.) in a bar. Time, in regard to speed, is indicated by some Italian word: as Adagio, slow; Largo, quicker than "adagio"; Larghetto, quicker than "largo"; Presto, quick; Prestissimo, fast as possible, &c.

To time, to watch what time is taken for the performance of a function or achievement, &c.; timed (1 syl.); tim-ing, ti'ming (R. xix.); tim-ist, ti'mist (as a good timist, one who keeps time in music well; a bad timist, &c.)

Time'-ly, seasonable, early; time'li-ness.

Time'-less, done at an improper time; time'less-ly, ...ness.

Time-ous, time'us, done at the right time; time'ous-ly.

Absolute time, time irrespective of place or epoch.

Apparent time, time reckoned by the position of the sun.

Astronomical time, mean solar time.

- Civil time, time according to its ordinary divisions into seconds, minutes, hours, days, weeks, months, years, &c.
- Common time, (Military) about 90 steps per minute; (in Music) four crotchets in a bar or their equivalents.
- Mean time, average time as shown by a clock.
- Quick time, (Military) about 110 steps per minute.
- Rel'ative time, time measured by means of motion.
- Sidē'real time, time measured by the apparent diurnal revolutions of the stars.
- Solar time, time measured by a sun-dial.
- True time, mean time as shown by a good clock.
- Time'-ball, ...bawl, a ball lowered every day by electrical agency at 1 p.m. Greenwich time.
- Time'-bargain, a contract for the sale or purchase of stock at a stated future time (say a fortnight hence).
As the stock rises or falls the difference is paid or received.
- Time'-bill, a list of the times of starting and arrival of railway trains, steamboats, omnibuses, &c.
- Time'-book, a book in which the time that workmen begin and leave off work is duly recorded.
- Time' enough. Time'-honoured, -on'rd.
- Time out of mind, beyond the memory of man.
- Time'-keeper, a clock or watch, a clerk appointed to mark down the time that workmen begin and end work.
- Time' piece, -peece, an ornamental clock or pendule.
- Time'-pleaser, -plee'zer, one who goes with the time.
- Time'-sanctioned, -sank'shūnd, of long usage.
- Time'-server, one who veers as interest directs.
- Time'-table, a list giving the time at which railway trains, steamboats, omnibuses, &c., start and arrive.
- From time immemorial, beyond the reach of memory.
- To kill time, to do anything to prevent ennui.
- To lose time, -looze..., to delay, to go too slowly.
- Against time, at the greatest possible speed.
- At times, occasionally, sometimes.
- In time, not too late. In good time, rather early.
Old English tīma, tīmlice timely; Latin tempus.
- Timid, tīm' id, fearful, wanting courage; tīm'id-ly, tīm'id-ness.
- Timidity, tīm'id' i.ty. Timorous, tīm' ō.rūs; tīm'orous-ly, tīm'orous-ness. (Lat. tīm'idus, tīm'iditas, tīmor, tīmorōsus.)

Tin, a white metal, to coat with tin; tinned, tind; tinn'-ing; tinn'-y, abounding with tin. Tiny, tī'ny, very small.

Tinn'-er. Tin'-foll. Tin'-man, plu. tin'-men, one who makes or sells tin-ware. Tin'-mine. Tin'-plate, sheets of iron coated with tin. Tin'-pyrites, ...pī'rites, a sulphuret of tin, copper, and iron. Tin'-ore, ...ōr, the oxide of tin, the ore from which tin is obtained. Tin'-ware.

Block'-tin, pure tin in blocks or bars.

Stream-tin, stream..., ore found in gullies and streams.

Old English tin, tinnen made of tin; Latin stannum ['tan'].

Tincture, tink'.tchūr. Decoction, -kōk'.shūn. Infu'sion, -shūn.

Tincture, a solution of the active principle of some [vegetable] in a solvent: as tincture of opium.

Decoction, a boiled infusion: as gruel, barley-water, &c.

Infusion, a maceration without boiling: as tea.

Alcoholic tinctures, when alcohol (spirits of wine) is the solvent.

Ammoniated tinctures, when ammonia is the solvent.

Ethereal tinctures, when sulphuric ether is the solvent.

Simple tinctures, those which hold only one thing in solution.

Compound tinctures hold more than one thing in solution.

To tincture, to impregnate with some foreign matter; tinctured, tink'.tchurd; tinc'tur-ing (Rule xix.)

Lat. tinctūra, tingo to tinge. All tinctures have more or less colour.

Tin'der, a material for propagating a spark of fire. Ten'der.

Tin'der-y, like tinder. Tinder-like.

"Tinder," Old Eng. tynder, v. tyndan or tendan, to set on fire.

"Tender," Old Eng. teder or tedre; French tendre; Latin tener.

Tine (1 syl.), the tooth of a fork, harrow, prong, &c., the point of a deer's horn; tined (1 syl.), furnished with tines.

Old English tine, tindas tines; Latin dens, plu. dentis teeth.

Ting, the sharper tone of a bell. Ding-dong, the double tone of a bell. (Welsh tine, v. tincio, to tink.)

Tinge (1 syl.), a colour which shows a hue different to its own (as blue with a tinge of red), to dye, to colour slightly.

Tinged (1 syl.); ting-ing, tin'.ging. (Latin tingo.)

Tingle, tin'.g'l. Tinkle, tin'.k'l. Tinsel, tin'.səl.

Tingle, a prickly sensation under the skin.

Tinkle, the sound made by a bell, to sound as a bell.

Tinsel, something lustrous but of no value. (See Tinsel.)

Tingle, tingled (2 syl.); tingling, tin'.gling.

"Tingle," "Tinkle," Welsh tine, tinciad, v. tincian or tincio.

Tin'ker, a blacksmith, a mender of metal pots and pans, a botcher, to botch, to do tinkering work; tinkered, tin'.krd; tin'ker-ing. (Gaelic teine-ceard, a fire-smith.)

Tinkle, tɪn'kl, the sound made by a bell, to sound a bell, to make a sound like a bell; tinkled, tɪn'kld; tink'ling.

Welsh tinc with diminutive, v. tincio. (See above, Tingle.)

Tinsel, tɪn'sɛl, metallic ornaments of no intrinsic value; tin'sell-ing; tinselled, tɪn'sɛld, adorned with tinsel.

Cloth of tinsel, cloth inwrought with gold or silver thread.

French étincelle, that which glitters; Latin scintilla, a spark.

Tint. Tinge (1 syl.)

Tint, a slight colour laid on part of a surface of another hue, as rouge on the cheeks.

Tinge, a colour which shows a hue different to its own, as red with a tinge of blue.

To tint, tint'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), tint'-ing, tint'-er.

Italian tinta, a tint; Latin tinctus, v. tingo to dye.

Tintinnabular, tɪn'.tɪn.nəb''.u.lər, tinkling, relating to a bell; tintinnabulary, tɪn'.tɪn.nəb''.u.lə.rɪ.

Tintinnabulation, tɪn'.tɪn.nəb''.u.ləɪ''.shən.

Latin tintinnābulum, a bell; tintinnāre, to ring a bell.

Tiny, (comp.) ti'ni-er, (super.) ti'ni-est (Rule xi.), very small.

Tiny teeny totty, very small indeed (a ricochet comp. adj.)

A diminutive of the Old English thin [thin-y].

-tion, -sion, at the end of nouns denotes act of, state of, power of.

Tip, the extreme end, a slight tap, a small present [to a school-boy], to add a point to [a pole, &c.], to throw, to jerk, to make [a boy] a present of money; tipped, tɪpt; tipp'-ing.

To tip over, to upset. Tip it here, throw it gently hither.

To tip up, to tilt. To tip off [the liquor], to drink it all up at once. To tip down.

Tipstaff, plu. tipstafis (not tipstaves), a constable who was at one time armed with a staff tipped with a bull's horn.

Tiptoe, tɪp'.tō, the extreme end of the toes. To stand on tiptoe. On the tiptoe of expectation, wide awake and watching for something expected.

Tip-tōp, the highest point, the highest degree.

To tip the wink, to telegraph to another with the eye.

Dan. tip; Welsh tip, a bit; Germ. tippen, to touch with the finger-tips.

A schoolboy's tip is a bit given to a schoolboy, now a bit of money, hence a gift, and the v. to give, hence to "tip the wink," to give intimation by a wink. The constable's tipstaff is often alluded to in Rymer's Fœdera.

Tip'pet, a covering for the neck. (Old English tæppet.)

Tipple, tɪp'.p'l, intoxicating drink, to drink to excess; tipped, tɪp'.p'ld; tippling, tɪp'ling; tippler, tippling-house.

Tip'sy, fuddled; tip'si-ly, tip'si-ness.

Welsh sipio, to sip; sipian, to keep sipping, sipyn, sipiad.

Tirade, tī.raid', a declamatory protest, a string of censure (Fr.)

Tire (1 syl.), the hoop which binds together the felloes of a wheel, a head-gear, to weary; tired, tī'rd; tir-ing, tīre'-ing; tired-ness, tī'rd-ness, fatigue.

Tire-some, tīre'.sum, troublesome; tire'some-ness, tire'-some-ly. To tire out, to weary thoroughly.

Old English teor[ian], past teorode, past part. teorod, to tire.

"Tire" (of a wheel), from the v. tīgan or tīgian, to tie or bind.

Tisic for Phthisic, affected with phthisis or consumption.

Greek phthisis, a wasting away; v. phthio, to waste away.

Tisri, tīz'.ri, the first month of the Hebrew civil year and the seventh of the ecclesiastical (September and October).

It began with the first new moon in Sept., and continued 30 days.

Tissue, tīs'su, a fabric, the elementary structure of any animal and vegetable organ, a concatenation.

Tissue-paper, silk-paper. A tissue of lies, a series of lies.

French tissu; Latin textus, v. texere, to weave.

Tit, a very small thing. Tittle, tī'tl. Tit-bit (corruption of tid-bit), a choice bit; titt'y, very small, mother's milk.

Tit for tat, the return of like for like, quid pro quo.

Tit-ling. Tit-lark. Tit-mouse, plu. titmice (q.v.)

Tittle-tattle, gossip, to gossip; tittle-tattled, ...tīt'.tld; tittle-tattling (a ricochet word, Rule lxix). See Title.

A ti'ny totty tit, a very small thing indeed.

"Tit," Old English tīte, little. Welsh tīten, a midge.

"Tit for tat," Dutch dīt vor dat, this for that (J. Bellenden Ker).

"Titty," Old Eng. tītte or tīte, a pap, the breast. "Tid-bit," O. Eng. tīdder, tender, choice.

Titan, tī.tān, a giant; titanic, tī.tān'.īk, gigantic.

The Titans of classic mythology were a race of giants who made war on Zeus, the Latin Jupiter.

Titanium, tī.tān'.īām, an elementary mineral.

Titanite, tī'.tān'.īte, prismatic titanium ore.

Titanic acid, tī.tān'.īk... Titaniferous, tī'.tān'.īf'''.ērūs.

Greek tītānōs, lime, chalk, any white earth.

"Titaniferous" is half Greek and half Latin. It should be titan-īphērous, Greek tītānos phero, not the Latin fero.

Titano-therium, plu. ...theria, tī'.tān.o-rhē''ri.ūm, plu. ...ah, an extinct ta'pir about twice the size of a horse.

Greek Tītān genitive Tītānos thērion, a gigantic wild-beast.

Tithe (1 syl.), a tenth of the produce of land and stock allotted to the clergy of the established church, to tithe; tithed (1 syl.); tith'-ing (R. xix.), taxing for the clergy, a district (Originally the free pledges of ten neighbouring householders to the king for the good conduct of each other); tithing-man, plu. tithing-men, the chief man of a borough, a constable.

Tith'-able. Tith'-er, one who collects or exacts tithes.

Old Eng. teotha, v. teoth[ian], past teothode, past part. teothod.

Titillate, tīt'īl.lāte, to tickle; tīt'illāt-ed, titillāt-ing.

Titillation, tīt'īl.lay''shūn. (Latin titillatio, titillāre.)

Title, tī'tl, a label, the name by which a book, &c. is called, a term denoting dignity, a right, a written document in proof of a right, to name; titled, tī'tld, dignified, having a title of rank; title-deeds.

Title-page [of a book]. (Old Eng. titul; Lat. titŭla.)

In 2 Kings xxiii. 17, Josiah "spied" a certain sepulchre and asked the men of the city "What title is that that I see?" that is "What is the name [title] of that which I see [yonder]."

Titmouse, plu. titmice, a species of sparrow.

This plural is absurd, the sing. is bad enough. The word is the Old Eng. tite mse, little hedge-sparrow, and has no connexion at all with mouse, mice. Of course, it should be titmase plu. titmases.

Tit'ter, a giggle, to giggle; tīt'tered (2 syl.), tīt'ter-ing.

Latin titillāre, to tickle, hence the laughter provoked by tickling.

Titular, tīt'u.lar, having the title without the emolument, as a titular bishop; titular-ly, titular'ity.

Titulary, plu. titularies, tīt'u.lā.riz. (Latin titŭlus.)

-to, too (affix), asunder, apieces. All-to, altogether, entirely.

"A certain woman cast a piece of a millstone upon Abim'elech's head, and all-to brake his skull" (Judges ix. 53), i.e. entirely broke it.

"Mercurio's icy hand had all-to frozen mine" (Rom. and Jul., 1562).

"She plumes her feathers... that... were all-to ruffled" (Mitn., Comus).

"All-to topple" (Pericles iii. 2). "All-to nought" (Venus and Adonis).

"Shut-to the door," i.e. Shut it quite. Dickens says "Shut-too," which is wrong. "The window is not shut-to" (shut entirely).

To-, (prefix) adverbial, as to-day, to-night, to-morrow on the...

We still hear in rural districts to-year for "this year."

To, too, before infinitives belongs to the third English period (1250-1350). Before the Conquest -an or -ian was added to the root, as tell-an, to tell.

To, too, preposition, up to (after a verb of motion), according to (as that is just to my taste); for as "Who had Canacō to wife" (Milton, Il Penseroso).

Too, also. Two, too, a couple. Toe, tō, of the foot. Tōw.

To and fro, too and frō, backwards and forwards, hither and thither.

To his face, personally. To wit, namely.

O. Eng. to, "to"; tō, "too"; twō, "two"; tē, "a toe"; tow, "tow."

Toad, tōde, a reptile. Toad-eater, tōde ē'ter, a cringing parasite.

Toad'-y, plu. toadies, tō'dīz, a sycophant. To toady, to act the sycophant; toadies, tō'dīz; toadied, -dēd; toad'y-ing.

Toady-ism, tō'dī.izm. Toad-stool, a fungus.

Toad-flax, i.e. toad-flax, so called from its tods or clusters.

Old Eng. tāde, tādie, or tādige. "Toad-eater," Span. [mi] todita, my factotum. When the Moors were overthrown, the Castilians employed them as servants, and their active habits greatly pleased the lazy Spaniards, who spoke of them as their toditas.

Sarah Fielding, in David Simple, calls "toad-eater" quite a new word, 1744. Walpole, however, used it in 1742.

Toast, tōste, scorched bread, an object or person named among toppers as an "excuse for the glass," to toast; toast'-ed (R. xxxvi.), toast'-ing, toast'-er. Toast'-master, a person employed at public dinners to announce the toasts, &c.

"Toast" (scorched bread), Lat. tostus, v. torreo sup. tostum to parch.

"Toast" (to drink to), German stossen, to clink glasses.

Tobacco, tō.bāk'.kō, a plant used for smoking. Tobacco-pipe.

Tobac'conist, a manufacturer or dealer in tobacco.

"De tabacos nom que les Indiens, selon Las Casas, donnaient à cette plante, ou de l'île de Tabago [Tobago], où il fut d'abord trouvé par les Espagnols" (Dict. des sciences et des arts).

Tocsin, tōk'.sīn (not tōs'.kīn), an alarm-bell (French).

"Du vieux français toquer (frapper) et seing ou sing (petite cloche) mot qui lui-même dérive du latin signum (signal)" (Bouillet).

Tōd, 28lbs. of wool, a bunch of anything fibrous as hemp, &c.

Gaelic tod, a mass of anything; Danish tot, a bunch.

Toddle, tōd'.dl, to walk unsteadily as a young child; toddled, tōd'.dlđ; todd'ling, todd'ler. (Germ. zotteln, to stagger.)

Toddy, plu. toddies, tōd'.dīz, spirits and hot water sweetened.

Toddy-ladle, -lā'.dl (corruption of taudi, Indian).

Taudi is the saccharine juice of palm spathes; Sanskrit toldi or taldi, from tal, palm-juice (Rhind, "Vegetable Kingdom").

Toe, tō. Tōw. To, too. Too. Two, too.

Toe, one of the five "digits" of the foot, one of the divisions of a beast's paw; toed, tōde, furnished with toes. Toad, q.v.

The light fantastic toe (Milton), dancing.

Old Eng. tā, a "toe"; tow, "tow"; to, "to"; tō, "too"; twā, "two."

Toffy, plu. toffies, tōf'.fy, plu. tōf'.fīz (not tūf'.fy), a sweetmeat.

Usually called Everton toffy, from Everton, a suburb of Liverpool.

Welsh tofi, to draw out in a long line. A sweetmeat drawn-out.

Toga, tō'.gah, (plu.) togàs, a loose gown worn by the Romans.

Togs, clothes; toged, tō'.ged, as the toged consuls; togged, tōgd, dressed. Toggery, plu. toggeries, tōg'.gē.rīz.

Togged out, dressed for a party. (Latin toga.)

Together, to.gèth'er, in union, in company, in one place.

O. E. togetheðd[an] or togethied[an]; to join to; ge-theðd[an], to join.

Toil (1 syl.), labour, to labour; toiled (1 syl.), toil'-ing, toil'-er.

Toil'-ful (Rule viii.), toil'-ful-ly. Toil'-less.

Toil'-some, -sūm (-some, full of); toil'some-ly, -ness.

Old English tiola, v. tioll[an], past tiolode, past part. tiolod, tiolung.

It will be observed that we have reversed the vowels.

Toils, a snare or net for catching animals. (French toiles.)

Toilet, toy'.let, all things used in washing and dressing the person.

Grand toilet, full dress; dem'i toilet, afternoon dress.

To make [one's] toilet, to wash and dress oneself.

Toilet-cloth, cover for a toilet-table. Toilet-glass.

Toilet-horse. Toilet-pincushion, -pin'.kūsh.ŷn.

Toilet-soap. Toilet-table, &c., &c. (French toilette.)

Toise; toyz, an old Fr. measure of length = 6 ft. Toys (for children).

Fr. toise; Low Lat. tesa; Lat. tendere snpine tensum, to stretch.

Tokay, tō.kay', an Hungarian wine produced at Tokay.

Token, tō'.kn, a present (as a token of friendship), a sign (as the rainbow), a symptom (as livid spots a token of the plague), a coin in token of some event or for temporary use, a ticket, 10½ quires of paper; token-less.

Beto'ken, to indicate; beto'kened (3 syl.), beto'ken-ing.

Old English tæcon or tæcun, tæcning a betokening, v. tacn[an].

Told, of verb tell (q.v.) Tolded, told, of verb toll (q.v.)

Toledo, pli.toledos, tō.lē'.dōze, a sword-blade of the finest temper.

Toledan, tō.lē'.dan, adj. of toledo. Tables of Toledo, astronomical tables for the meridian of Toledo (A.D. 1080).

Toledo, in New Castile, Spain, noted for its sword-blades, which might be rolled up like the mainspring of a watch.

Tolerable, tōl'.ē.ra.bl (note one l in the first syl.), pretty good, passable, not very excellent; tol'erable-ness, tol'erably.

Tol'erant, liberal in principles, indulgent; tol'erant-ly.

Tolerance, tōl'.ē.ranse; toleration, tōl'.ē.ray".shŷn.

Tolerate, tōl'.ē.rāte, to endure; tol'erāt-ed (Rule xxxvi.); tolerat-ing, tōl'.ē.ra.ting, permitting, enduring.

Latin tōlērābilis, tōlērans gen. tōlērantis, tōlērantia, tōlērātio, v. tōlērāre (from the Greek talao, to endure, to suffer).

Toll, tōle (not tōl), tribute, impost, the regular stroke of a funeral bell, to impose a toll on [goods], to ring a funeral bell.

Tolled, tōld, past tense of toll. Told, past tense of tell.

Toll-able, tōle'.abl; tollage, tōle'.age, payment of toll, impost of toll, amount of toll paid.

Toll'-bar. Toll'-booth, a prison, a booth for the collection of toll. Toll'-gate. Toll'-gatherer. Toll-house.

"Toll" (tribute), Old English tól or tóll; Welsh toll, v. tolli.

"Toll" (of a bell), Welsh doloch or tolach, a mean, to mean, or from Old Eng. teoll[an], to tell, to announce; the "tolling bell," the announcing bell, i.e. announcing the death or funeral of someone.

Tolmen, plu. tolmens, a cromlech. (Also spelt dolmen.)

Keltic tol or dol table, men stone, a stone-table; French dolmen.

Tolu, tō loo' (not too.loo'), as Tolu-balsam or balsam of Tolu, a fragrant oleo-resin; Tolu loz'enges.

First brought from Tolu, in Carthagera (South America).

Tōm'ahawk, an Indian hatchet, an Indian war-club, to kill with a tomahawk; tom'ahawked (3 syl.), tom'ahawk-ing.

Ind. tomehagen or tomoihecan.

Tomato, plu tomatoes (Rule xlii.), tō.mak'.tōze, the love-apple.

Tomato-sauce. (Better tomater. Spanish tomatera.)

Tomb, toom, a sepulchre; tombed, buried in a tomb; tomb'-less.

Tomb'-stone (2 syl.) Tōmo, a volume.

Entomb, en.toom', to put in a tomb; entombed (2 syl.), entomb'-ing; entomb-ment, en.toom'.ment.

French tombe; Greek tombos; Latin tūmulus. The French tombe is a tombstone, and tombeau the tomb itself.

Tōm'-boy, a romping hoydenish girl.

Tōm' cāt, fem. malkin, mol'.kin. A "Tom cat" is a full-grown male cat. Malkin or Gray-malkin, Macbeth i., 1, line 9.

"Malkin," little Moll or Mary. In Fr. the pretty word minette.

Tōme (1 syl.), one volume of a series. Tomb, toom, a sepulchre.

"Tome" is rarely used except for Gk. and Lat. books; Gk. tōmōs, a volume, from temno, to cut, a part of a work cut off from the rest.

"Volume" is from Lat. volvo, to roll, a single roll or scroll.

Tōm-fool', a great fool; tom-foolery, plu. tom-foolerics, -fool'.lē.riz, absurd folly, especially of a practical kind.

Tom-morrow, on the morrow. (See To-, prefix.)

Tompion, tom'.pī.ōn, or tam'pion, a bung or stopper for closing the mouth of a cannon or mortar.

French tampon a plug or stopper, v. tamponner to plug; Spanish tapar to plug. "Tompion" ought to be abolished.

Tōm-tit, the titmouse, a small bird of the sparrow kind.

Tom'-tom, an Indian drum made of copper and tin. (Hind.)

-ton (postfix in the names of places), ground inclosed with a fence, a dwelling, a village. (Old Eng. tūn, whence town.)

Ton, tōhn. Ton, tūn. Tūn. (See Tone.)

Ton [tōhn] French, the mode, the tip of fashion.

Ton [tūn], 20 cwt. (In ship measure), 40 cubic feet.

Tönn'age, the number of cubic feet that a ship contains.

This regulates the weight of goods it is licensed to carry.

Tũn, a cask holding two pipes or four hogshheads.

"Ton" (20 cwt.), Germ. tonne. "Tun" (a cask), Old Eng. tunne;
Lat. tina, a large tub.

Tōne (1 syl.), the timbre or character of sound, the modification of sound, inflexion of voice modified by feeling, &c., the character of the voice, vigour; (in Paint.), harmony of colours with just distribution of light and shade, to tone; tōned (1 syl.); ton-ing, tō'ning (R. xix.); tone'-less.

Tone'-syllable, the accented syllable. (See Ton.)

Tonic, tōn'ik, a medicine to give tone or more vigour; (in Music), the key-note. Tonic sol-fa [method], -sōle-fah..., a system of teaching music devised by John Curwen; tonic-sol-fa-ist, -sole-fah'ist. Tonicity, tō'nīs'ī ty.

Tō'ning down, subduing in colour or shade, softening.

Lat. tōnus; Gk. tōnōs (v. teino, to stretch or strain); Fr. ton.

Tong, tung, the catch of a buckle. (Old Eng thwong, a latchet.)

Tongs, tōngz, a jointed instr. for holding, forceps (see below)

Old Eng. tang, tange, or tong. "Tongs." When a pair is united and the two parts act together, the word has no singular, otherwise each part of a pair may be denoted by a noun singular. Thus, tongs, shears, scissors, pincers, nippers, nut-crackers, tweezers, pliers, trousers, bellows, &c., have no singular but stockings, socks, shoes, boots, gloves, &c., have the singular stocking, shoe, &c., because each part of the pair is separate and independent.

Tongue, tūng. Tong, tūng. Tongs, tōngz. Thong, thōng.

Tongue, tūng (not tōng), an organ of the animal body, language, to use the tongue in fluting; tongued, tūngd; tongu-ing, tūng'-ing (all double vowels, except -ue are retained when -ing is added); tongue-less, tūng'-less.

(Die, lie, tie, vie (not hie) change ie to -y before -ing.)

Tongue shaped, tūng'-shūp'd. Tongue-tied, tūng'-tide.

Hold your tongue! be quiet, be silent.

(The absurd Frenchified spelling of this word is much to be deplored, especially as it is not Fr. The old spelling "tung" is far preferable.)

Old English tunge or tunga, tung-leas tongue-less; Danish tunge.

"Tong" (of a buckle). O. E. thwong, a latchet. "Tongs" (forceps), O. E. tong. "Thong" (a strap), O. E. thwang or thwong.

To-night, to-nīte' this night. (See To-, prefix).

Tonquin-bean, tōn'.kwīn been, the strongly perfumed kernel of a shrubby plant growing in Guīa'na.

"Tonquin" is a gross geographical blunder for Tonka or Tongo, in Guiana. "Tonquin" is in Asia, Tonka in South America.

Tonsil, plu. tonsils, two glands at the base of the tongue.

Ton'sil-itis, inflammation of the tonsils.

Tonsile, tōn'sil, that may be cut, clipt, or shorn.

Latin tonsillæ, plu., the tonsils; tonsillis, tonsile. "Tonsillitis," a hybrid; Latin tonsillæ with Greek affix -itis, inflammation.

Tonsure, tŏn'.sūre, the coro'na or ring at the top of the head from which the hair has been removed as a mark of priesthood in the Catholic church; ton'sured (2 syl.); tonsonial, tŏn.sŏr'ř.ăl, pertaining to barbers.

Lat. tonsor a barber, tonsorius, tonsūra, v. tondeo to clip or shear.

Tontine, tŏn'.teen, a life-annuity or loan with benefit of survivorship. (As the original annuitants die off their shares are paid over to the survivors.)

The scheme was devised by Lorenzo Tonti, an Italian, when Louis XIV. found great difficulty in raising money for his wars.

Too, likewise. To, too, preposition. Two, too (2). Toe, tō (of the foot). Tōw, the coarser parts of flax and hemp.

Old Eng. tó, "too"; to, "to"; twá, "two"; tá, a "toe"; tow, "tow."

Took (to rhyme with cook, not too'k). See Take. (O. E. tóc.)

Tool, an implement, an instrument, a person employed as a "cat's paw;" tool'-ing, decorating the binding of books; tooled (1 syl.), decorated with gilding, &c.

To tool a coach, to establish and drive a stage-coach.

Old English tól, tohl, or tool, an instrument, an implement.

Tooth, plu teeth, the bony processes set in the jaws.

Tooth'ing (in Brickwork), bricks left at the end of a wall to afford union with an additional building.

Toothed (1 syl.), furnished with teeth. Tooth'-less.

Tooth'-ache, -āke Tooth'-some, -sŭm, palatable; tooth'-some-ness. Tooth'-pick. Tooth and nail, in earnest.

To set [one's] teeth on edge, to produce a disagreeable sensation in the teeth.

In the teeth, in direct opposition. To his teeth, to his face.

Armed to the teeth, completely armed.

To cast in [one's] teeth, to retort, to gibe.

To show [his] teeth, to snarl, to threaten.

In spite of his teeth, in defiance, regardless of threats.

To escape with the skin of his teeth, to escape with a very close shave having lost everything (Job xix. 20).

O. Eng. tóth, plu. táth or téth, tóth-ecce toothache, tóth-leas toothless.

Tōp, the summit, a plaything, to put above; topped, tōpt; topp'-ing (Rule i.) Tip'-top, the highest summit.

Tip-top full, full to the brim. Top'-boots.

Top'-coat, -kōte. Top'-draining, surface draining.

Top'-dressing, manure left on the surface and not turned in.

Top'-gallant [mast], the third above the deck.

Top'-mast, the second above the deck.

Top'-heavy, -hěv'y, too heavy on the top, tipsy. Tōp'-knōt.

Top'-most, uppermost. Top'-rope, rope for moving topmasts.

Top-sail, tõp'.sl, the second sail above the deck.

Top-gallant-sail, the third sail above the deck.

Top'-timbers, the timbers above the futtocks.

"Top" (a summit), Old Eng. top. "Top" (a plaything), Fr. toupte.

Topaz, plu. topazes, tõ'.páz, plu. tõ'.pázēs; a precious stone.

Gk. topazos (from topázo, to guess, because no one knew for certain where these stones came from). Pliny vi. 34 gives a different version; he says the name is from Topázos, an island in the Red Sea, also called Opázos and Pázos.

Tõpe (1 syl.), to bouse; tõped (1 syl.); top-ing, tõ'.ping (R. xix.)

Toper, tõ'.per, a bouser, a tippler.

To "tope" is to drink on the conclusion of a bargain, and comes from the Fr. tope, to consent to a bargain, whence tops! done!

Tophet, tõ'.fět or Topheth, tõ'.fēth, hell.

So called from a place in the valley of Hiunom where bodies were thrown to which the Jews refused burial. A fire was kept constantly burning to consume the carcasses, &c., and purify the air.

Topic, tõp'.ík, subject of conversation; topical, tõp'.íkāl.

Aristotle's Organon contains six subjects; the last but one is called tõpika (in eight books), being the general stand-points (topoi) from which subjects may be regarded and conclusions drawn.

Topo-, to'.po- (Greek prefix), place, country (tõpõs, a place).

Topo-graphy, to.põg'.rǎ.fy, a description of places with notices of everything connected with them; topographic, tõp'.õ.grǎf''ík; topographical, tõp'.õ.grǎf''íkāl.

Topographer, to.põg'.rǎ.fer. (Gk. tõpõs, grapho I describe.)

Topple, tõp'.pl, a tumble, to fall forwards; toppled, tõp'.pld; toppling, toppler. (Welsh topyn, a topple.)

Topsy-turvy, tõp'.sy tur'.vy, upside down, bottom upwards.

Old English top side turn-weg-down, top-side turned down-ways. Shakespeare says "tupsy-turvy-down" (1 Hen. IV. iv. 1).

-tor, -sor (Lat. -or following t- or s-), agent, as doct-or, spons-or.

Torch, a brand; torch'-bearer, -bair'.er. Torch'-light, -lite.

Ital. torchio (from Lat. torquere, to twist), flax twisted round a stick.

Tõre (1 syl.), torn, the past and p. p. of tear, tare. (See Tear.)

Torment, (noun) tõr'.ment, (verb) tor.ment', torture, to torture; torment'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), torment'-ing, torment'ing-ly, torment'-or or torment-er.

Latin tormentum. "Tormentor" is not a Latin word, and therefore the termination is doubtful.

Tornado, plu. tornadoes, tor.nā'.dõze (Rule xlii.), a hurricane, a whirl-storm, a whirl-wind. (Spanish tornado.)

Torpedo, plu. torpedoes, tor.pee'.dõze (R. xlii.), the cramp-fish, a fish which gives an electrical shock when touched, a machine which runs low in water, or even under water, and when touched by a ship explodes.

Latin torpēdo, the cramp-fish which numbs those who touch it.

Torpid, tor'pīd, somnolent, inert, insensible; tor'pid-ly.

Torpidity, tor'pīd'ī.ty; tor'pid-ness. Torpescent, becoming torpid (-sc is inceptive).

Torrescence, tor'pēs'sense. Torpify, tor'pīfy, to make torpid; torpifies, tor'pīfize; torpified, -fide; torpify-ing.

Torpor, tor'por. Torpidude, tor'pītūde. Torporific, -īk.

Lat. torpidus, torpescens gen. -entis, torpor, torpeo to make torpid.

Torrefy, tōr'rēfy, to dry by the fire, to parch or scorch; torrefies, tōr'rēfize; torrefied, tōr'rēfide; torrefy-ing.

Torrefaction, tōr'rēfāk''shūn. (Lat. torrefacio, torrefactus.)

Tōr'rent, a rushing stream. (Latin torrens, gen. torrentis.)

Torricellian, tōr'rē.sēl''lī.ăn, adj. of Torrecelli, the Italian.

Torrid, tōr'rīd, parched, burning hot; tor'rid-ness.

The torrid zone, the zone each side of the equator as far as the two tropics. (Latin torridus, torrid, dry.)

Torso, plu. torsos, tōr'.sōze, the trunk of a statue (Italian).

Tortoise, tor'tīz, a reptile covered with a hard shell; tortoise-shell, the shell of a tortoise manufactured.

"Mot dérivé par Roquefort du latin tortus (tortuous), sans doute à cause de la marche tortueuse de cet animal" (Bouillet).

Tortuous, tōr'.tū.ăs, winding, crooked; tor'tuous-ly, -tuous-ness.

Tortuosity, tor'tu.ōs''ī.ty. (Latin tortuositas, tortuōsus.)

Torture, tōr'.tchūr, anguish, torment, pain inflicted to extort something from the sufferer, to torture; tortured, tōr'.tchūrd; tortur-ing (Rule xix.), tōr.tchūr-ing.

French torture, Latin torqueo to twist.

-tory (Latin -orīus preceded by t-, French [t]oir), of the nature of, relating to, pertaining to, as orat-ory, dormit-ory.

Words with this ending have for the most part the accent on the first syllable (prefixes of course being cut off): as au'ditory, rot'atory, rep'ertory, pur'gatory, [re]pos'itory, [contra]dic'tory, &c.

Tory, plu. tories, tōr'e'rīz, opposed in politics to the Whigs.

"Tories" are now generally called Conservatives, their watch-words are "Church and State." The watch-words of the Whigs being "Progress and the rights of man." The Tory says, "Keep what you have got and improve it." The Whig says, "Remove everything inconsistent with the age and future progress."

Tory-ism, the political tenets of the Tories. Whiggism.

Lord Macaulay says: "The name [Tory] was first given to those who refused to concur in excluding James II. from the throne." He furthermore says: "The bogs of Ireland afforded a refuge to popish outlaws, called tories."

F. Crossley gives as the derivation taobh-righ (Keltic), "King's party."

H. T. Hore gives tuath-righ, "partisans of the king" (Notes & Queries).

G. Borrow gives tar-a-rí, "come, O king."

Defoe says, the Irish toruigh (common in the reign of Queen Elizabeth) signified "a band of Irish robbers," and is formed from the verb toruighim, "to make a sudden raid."

Goliuss says: "TORY, silvestris, montana, avis, homo, et utrumque ullus haud ibi est." (See also Clarendon, Rebellion iv.)

Töss, the act of throwing upwards, to throw upwards; tossed, töst; toss'-ing, toss'-er. To toss off, to drink at a draught.

To toss the oars, to make a salute by raising the oars perpendicularly with the blades upwards. To toss up, to throw a coin in the air and bet on the side which will fall uppermost. To toss hay, to make it by turning it over. A toss-pot, a sot.

Welsh tos, tosiad a tossing, v. tosio to toss, to jerk.

Töt (a term of endearment), a wee-thing; tott'-y. (Gk. iota.)

Total, tō'täl, the amount, entire, the whole; to'tal-ly.

Totality, tō.täl'ä.ty. In to'to, wholly. (Lat. totälis, tötus.)

Töt'ter, to shake as if about to fall, to be unsteady; tot'tered (2 syl.), totter-ing, tot'tering-ly, totter-er.

German zotteln, to stagger; Latin titübäre, to reel.

Toucan, too'.kän, a bird remarkable for its large bill. (Fr. toucan.)

Touch, tütch, contact, the sense of feeling, the act of putting one's finger on something, the state of being touched, a stroke with a pencil or painting-brush, a small quantity intermixed, the Hall-mark of gold, to touch; touched (1 syl.); touch-ing, tutch'-ing; touch'-ing-ly.

Touch'-able. Touch'-y, peevish, irascible; touch'-i-ly, -ness.

Touch and go, a very narrow escape, a very brief encounter.

Touch'-needles, used by assayers of gold and silver.

Touch'-paper, paper impregnated with saltpetre.

Touch'-stone. Touch'-wood. To touch on, to treat on slightly.

To touch at, to pass a place without stopping at it.

To touch up, to improve by touches. Touch-me-not.

To keep touch, to be faithful, to do what one promises.

Of noble touch (Shakespeare), of genuine worth.

Fr. touche, v. toucher; Span. tocar; Ital. tatto; Lat. tango.

Tough, tüf, not easily broken or separated, hard to bite, hardy, difficult; tough-ly, tüf'-ly; tough-ness, tüf'-ness; tough-ish, tüf'-ish (-ish added to adj. is diminutive).

Tough'-en, tüf'-n, to make tough (-en converts adj. to verbs); toughened, tüf'-nd; toughen-ing, tüf'-n.ing.

(See Thorough for a full account of -ough.)

Old English toh, tohle, tohlce toughly, tohnes toughness.

Toupee, too'pā, a wig for a part of the head. (French toupet.)

Tour, too'r (not tōw'er), an excursion. Tōw'er, a high building.

Tour'-ist, one who makes an excursion for pleasure.

"Tour," Fr. tour. "Tower," O. Eng. tor, torr, or tur; Lat. turris.

Tourmaline, toor'mă.līn, schorl, a mineral. (Fr. tourmaline.)

A corruption of tournamal, the name given to it in Ceylon. It is sometimes called the Ceylonese loadstone.

Tournament, toor'na.ment, a mock fight on horseback for exhibiting martial prowess and skill in arms.

Tourney, toor'ney, to perform at a tournament, a tourna-ment; tourneyed, toor'ned; tourney-ing.

Low Lat. tourneamentum; Fr. tournoi; Ital. torneamento.

Tournure, toor.nūre', the contour, the general style (French).

Tourniquet, toor'nă.kēt, a surgical bandage (French).

Touse, tōwz ("tōw" to rhyme with now), to tease wool; to pull one about, to rumple one's dress or toilet; toused (1 syl.), tous-ing (Rule xix.), tous'er.

Danish tosse, to behave like a fool; tosser, foolish; tosseri, foolery.

Tousle, touz'l. Tussle, tūz'l.

Tousle, to pull one about so as to disorder the toilet; tousled, touz'ld; tousling, touz'ling; tous'ler.

Tussle, to struggle; tussled, tūz'ld; tuss'ling, tuss'ler.

Germ. zausen, to touse or tousle. (See above, Touse.)

Tout (to rhyme with out), to ply for customers; tout'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), tout'-ing, tout'-er (scout, Italian scollāre).

Tōw (to rhyme with grōw). Tce, tō. Two, too. To, too.

Tōw, the coarser part of flax and hemp; to drag a boat or ship by a rope; towed, tōwd; tōw'-ing. Tōw'-line.

Tow-rope. Tow'-path. Tow'ing-boat, -bōte.

Tow'-age, charge for towing, act of towing.

Old Eng. tow or tāw, "tow"; teon, past teah, past part. togen, to tug; tā, a toe; twd, "two"; to, "to."

Toward, tōw'rd, adj. Towards, tōw'rdz (not towards).

Toward, apt, quick, pliant, as a very toward youth; tow'ard-ly; tow'ardli-ness, docility, aptness.

Towards, in the direction of, regarding, near, at hand.

In the Bible toward is often used for the prep., but towards is better. Old English toweward, towearde; towewardnes, towardness.

Towel, tōw'el (tōw to rhyme with nōw), a cloth to wipe on.

Tōw'ell-ing, cloth for towels. (French touaille.)

The Dutch dwæle, a towel, gives the Norfolk word "dwiling," dwī'ling, thick house-flannel. A square cut for use is a dwile.

Tower, tōw'r (tōw to rhyme with nōw, not with grōw), a fortress, a high building attached to a house or church; if it is surmounted with a pinnacle it is called a spire (1 syl.), to rise above, to soar; towered, tōw'rd; tow'er-ing, tow'er-y. Tower mustard. Tour, too'r, an excursion.

"Tower," Old English tor, torr, tur, or tirre. "Tour," French tour.

To wit, too wīt', namely. Do you to wit, make you to know.

Old English ic do eow to witanne, I do you to wit.

2 Cor. viii. 1, "We do you to wit of the grace of God," facimus vos scire, hence videre licet or videlicet, namely.

Tōwn. Cit'y. Borough, būr'rah. Vill'age. Ham'let.

City, a large collection of houses, with a body corporate, a cathedral or see of a bishop, and one or more representatives in parliament.

Town, a large collection of houses, without a cathedral or see of a bishop. Some are corporate, and some (called market towns) have a market. The word "town" is also used for a city, especially in compound-words and such phrases as I am going to town.

Borough, properly a walled town. It may or may not be corporate, but it must be represented in parliament by one or more members. Towns may be boroughs.

Vil'lage, a manor house with other dwellings in its immediate vicinity.

Hamlet, a small village or suburb, without a manor.

Town-clerk, -clark, an officer who keeps the records of a town and enters official proceedings.

Town-council, -koun'sil, a board elected by fellow citizens to manage the municipal affairs of a town.

Town-cri'er, a bell-man to make announcements of sales, &c., through a town.

Town'-hall, a building where the municipal business of a town is carried on.

Town'-house, a house in a town as opposed to a country-house. Town'-ship. Towns-folk.

Towns-man, plu. towns-men, fem. towns-woman, plu. towns-women, wim'en. Town-talk, the subject of general conversation.

Old Eng. tūn, an inclosed plot of ground, a dwelling, many dwellings inclosed with a wall; tūn-mann, tūn-scipe township.

Toxico-, tōx'ā.ko- (Greek prefix), poison (toxikon, poison).

Toxico-logy, tōx'ā.kōl''.ō.djy, that branch of medicine which relates to poisons, their effects, detection, and antidotes; toxicological, tōx'ā.ko.lodj''.ā.kāl; toxicological-ly; toxicologist, tōx'ā.kōl''.ō.djist, one skilled in toxicology.

Greek toxiko-[toxikon]logos, a treatise on poisons.

Tox'o- or tox- before vowels (Gk. prefix), a bow (toxon, a bow).'

Toxo-ceras, tõx.õs'.ẽ.rås, a genus of bow-shaped shells.

Gk. toxo-[toxon]keras, [an ammonite with] a bow-shaped horn.

Tox-odon, plu. toxodons, tõx'.o.dõnz, a large fossil quadruped with the two outer incisors curved in a bow-shape.

Gk. toxo-[toxon]odous gen. odontos, the bow-toothed animal.

Toxo-philite, tõx.off'.ĩ.lite, an amateur archer.

Gk. toxo-[toxon]philõs, a lover of the bow.

Toy, plu. toys (R. xiii.), a plaything, a bauble, to trifle, to dally amorously; toyed (1 syl.), toy'-ing, toy-shop.

"Toy," O. E. tawa (Dutch tui), implements of any kind, hence taw, a marble. "Toy" (to dally), Dan. tøve, to loiter about, to dally.

Trace (1 syl.), a strap by which horses, &c., draw vehicles, a vestige, to delineate by the aid of transparency; traced (1 syl.); trac-ing, trā.sing (Rule xix.); trac-er, trā.ser; trace'-able (-ce and -ge retain the -e before -able); trace'able-ness, trace'ably.

Tracery, plu. traceries, trā.sẽ.rĩz. Trac'ing paper."

"Trace" (to delineate), Fr. trace, v. tracer. "Traces" (harness), Welsh tres; Fr. trait; Lat. traho, to draw.

Trachea, plu. tracheæ, trā.kee'.ah, plu. trā.kee'.ẽ, the windpipe.

Trache'æ, the air-tubes in the body of insects. Tracheal, trā.kee'.ål (not trā'.kẽ.al).

The upper extremity is the larynx, consisting of five cartilages, the uppermost of which is called the epiglottis (a sort of valve).

Low Lat. trachæa; Gk. trachus f. tracheia, rough, the rough artery.

Trachelopod, trā.kee'.lõ.põd, one of the trachelipoda.

Trachelipoda (a blunder for trachelopoda), trā.kẽ.lĩp''.õ.dah, an order of molluses; trachelipodous, trā'.kẽ.lĩp''.õ.dĩs.

Lamarck's name for those molluses which have the foot attached to the neck. Greek trachelõs pous gen. põdos, neck-foot.

Lamarck ought to have observed the Greek compound τραχηλο- (not τραχηλι-) δεσµότης, before he made his compound.

Tracheotomy, trā'.kẽ.õt'.õ.my, the operation of cutting an opening into the windpipe.

Trachitis, tra.kĩ.tis, inflammation of the windpipe.

Greek tracheia temno, I cut the windpipe. "Trachitis," Greek trach-[tracheia] and -itis, which denotes inflammation: as carditis inflammation of the heart, peritonitis, &c., &c.

Track, a vestige. Tract, a small book.

To track, to follow a vestige; tracked, tract; track'-ing.

Track'-less, track'less-ly, track'less-ness.

Track'-road (a blunder for tract-road), a towing path.

"Track," Italian traccia, a vestige. "Track-road" is a "traction-road," from Latin traho supine tractum, to draw or drag.

Tract. Tracked, tract. Track, a vestige (see p. 1345).

Tract, a region, a short pamphlet. (Treatise, an extended disquisition.) Tracts for the times, a series of pamphlets on what has since been called puseyism, from Dr. Pusey, one of its expositors.

Tractarian, trăk'tair'ri.ăn, a puseyite, a writer of one of the "Tracts for the Times" or "Oxford Tracts."

Care should be taken to distinguish between track and tract.

"Tract," Old Eng. traht, Lat. tractare to treat of, to handle, tractus a draught, a region. "Track" is from the same Latin words, but is through the Italian traccia a trace, v. tracciare, and the association of the word with trace will help to fix in the mind that there is no final t.

Tractable, trăk'tă.b'l, docile; trac'table-ness, trac'tably.

Tractability, trăk'ta.b'il'x.ty. (Lat. tractabilis, tractabilitas.)

Tractile, trăk'til. Ductile, dŭk'til. Flexile, flex'xl.

Ductile is applied almost exclusively to metals. thus platinum is very ductile and a wire of this metal may be drawn out so fine that thirty thousand wires laid side by side would not measure an inch.

Tractile is applied to non-metallic substances as India-rubber, gutta-percha, and other substances which may be drawn out into fine threads.

Flexile means pliant, easily bent.

Tractil'ity. Tractabil'ity. Ductil'ity. Flexibil'ity.

Tractility, the quality of being tractile (see above).

Tractability, the quality of being easily managed.

Ductility, the quality of being ductile (see above).

Flexibility, the quality of being flexible (see above).

Traction, trăk'shŭn, the act of drawing, tugging or pulling.

Traction-engine, a locomotive for drawing heavy loads on a common road. Angle of traction, ...of draught.

Tractive, trăk'tiv. Attractive, at.trăk'tiv.

Tractive, capable of pulling. Attractive, alluring.

Lat. trahere supine tractum to draw, and tractare, tractabilis.

Trăde (1 syl.) Profession, pro.fesh'un. Vocation. Avocation.

Trade, commerce, mechanical or mercantile business.

Profession, a business neither mechanical nor mercantile, as that of ministers, lawyers, "doctors," and teachers.

Vocation, a man's regular trade or profession.

Avocation, a man's subsidiary employment followed for his amusement or diversion.

To trade, trād'-ed (R. xxxvi.), trād'-ing (R. xix.) trād'-er.

Trades'-man, plu. -men, (fem) trades'-woman, plu. trades'-women, -wim'n, persons engaged in trade.

Trade'-mark, a sort of crest adopted by a manufacturer to distinguish his goods from those of a rival house.

Trade'-price, the price (after deducting discount) allowed by wholesale dealers to retailers.

Trades'-people, -pee'.pl, shopkeepers. Merchants, q.v.

Trade' sale, a sale of books by publishers to the trade on certain days at reduced prices.

Trades-union, trādz u'.nĭ.ŭn, a combination among workmen to adjust the ratio between profits and wages.

Trade'-winds, winds which blow in a nearly uniform track or tread. In the Northern hemisphere from the north-east, in the Southern from the south-east.

(This word has nothing to do with the word trade (commerce).

It is the Ang.-Sax. tredde-wind, wind of a fixed beat.)

Spanish trato, v. tratar to traffic, tratillo a peddling trade; Italian trattare, to handle: Latin tractāre, to handle, to manage.

Tradition, trā.dish'.ŭn. Legend, ledg'nd.

Tradition, the transmission of opinions, dogmas, practices, rites, and customs by word of mouth from father to son, from generation to generation.

Legend, the transmission of historical exploits by word of mouth from father to son, from generation to generation.

The collection of traditions and legends like the collection of common laws, does not alter the case, it merely perpetuates what the collector learnt from hearsay.

Tradition-al, tra.dish'.ŭn.āl; traditional-ly.

Traditionary, tra.dish'.ŭn.ā.ry; traditionari-ly (Rule xi.)

Latin traditio, v. trado (i.e., trans do, to give or hand over).

"Legend," Latin legenda, things to be read, originally applied to the records of the lives of saints and martyrs, portions of which were read at meal times in monasteries.

Traduce, tra.dūse', to misrepresent a person, to defame; traduced' (2 syl.); traduc-ing, tra.dū'-sing (Rule xix.); tradu'cing-ly; traduc-er, tra.dū'.ser; tradu'cent, -sent.

Traduction, tra.dūk'.shŭn, slander; traductive, tra.dūk'.tīv.

Latin trādūctio, trādūco supine trādūctum to defame (trans duco to convey across, by metaphor to transfer (or change) one's actions and words from their original complexion to another meaning).

Traffic, trāf'.fĭk, trade, passage to and fro, to barter, to higgler; trafficked, trāf'.fĭkd; traffick-ing, traffick-er.

It would have been far better if we had dropped the c instead of the -k in "traffic," then all would have gone right: traffik, traffiked, traffiking, traffiker. The Latin and French c is the greatest pest we have in the language.

Tragacanth, träḡ'ga.kánth (not tradḡ'a.kanth), goat's thorn.

Greek traga kantha (tragos akantha, goat's thorn).

Tragedy, plu. tragedies, träḡḡ'.ě.diz, a drama with a fatal issue.

Comedy, kõm'.ě.dy, a drama with a happy issue.

Tragedian, tra.djě'.di.ăn, an actor or writer of tragedies.

Tragedienne (Fr.), tra.djě'.di.enn', an actress of tragedy.

Tragic, träḡḡ'.ik; tragical, träḡḡ'.ikäl; tragical-ly, tragical-ness. Tragi-com'edy, tradḡ'.i..., a mixture of tragic and comic scenes with a happy issue.

Tragi-comic, tradḡ'.i-kõm''.ik; tragi-comical, -comically.

All these words are ill-spelt; "Tragedy" should be tragody, "tragedian" should be tragōdian, &c. The blunder is from the French tragédie, tragédien, where é represents œ of the Latin tragœdia, and the Latin œ represents the Greek ω in trāgōdia (tragos ōdē, the goat-ode, a goat being the prize given to the winner).

Trail, the track followed by huntsmen, the scent left by an animal pursued, anything drawn at length, to trail along; trailed (1 syl.), trail'-ing, trail'-er. (Welsh rhel, rhelyw.)

Train, a retinue, a part of the dress which trails behind, a series, a number of carriages or trucks attached to a locomotive, a line of powder communicating with a mine for explosive purposes, to educate, to habituate a tree to a certain manner of growth; trained (1 syl.) train'ing train'-er, train'-able. To train up, to educate.

Train of artillery, a number of large guns mortars, &c.

Train'-band, a band or company of militia.

The train-band of "John Gilpin" notoriety was a company of volunteer artillery who practised in Moorfields.

Train'-bearer -bair'er, one who holds up the train of a distinguished person. Train-oil, blubber oil.

Fr. train, v. trainer; Ital. tranāre (Lat. trans nāre, to float over).

"Train-oil," German thranen, v. thranen to run with drops.

Trait, tray. Tray. Trey tray. Treat, treet.

Trait, a feature, a peculiarity, a distinguishing characteristic. (French trait; Latin traho, to draw.)

Tray, a waiter, a board for domestic uses. (Old Eng. trog.)

Trey, the three of cards or dice. (O. E. thryæ or thrý, three.)

Treat, an entertainment, to manage. (Latin tractāre.)

Traitor, fem. traitress (not traitoress), trā'.tor, trā'.tress, one guilty of treason, one who betrays his trust; traitorous. trā'.tō.rūs; traitorous-ly, traitorous-ness.

Treason, tree'.zn; treason-ous, -zn.ūs; treason-able, -ably.

Lat. trāḡḡ'tor (trādo, to betray); Fr. traître, traîtresse, trahison.

The change of vowels in this set of words answers no good end, but misleads and adds to our spelling obstacles.

Traject, tra.djekt', to cast through; traject'-ed, traject'-ing.

Trajection, tra.djekt'.shun. Trajectory, plu. trajectories, tra.djekt'.tő.riz. (Lat. trajectio, v. trajicio, sup. trajectum.)

Trans jtciol[jäcio], to cast across, to strike through.

Trām, a coal-wagon, one of the rails of a tram-way; trām'-way, a road with wooden or iron rails.

A contraction of Outram, so called from Benjamin Outram who (in 1800) used stone sleepers at Little Eton, in Derbyshire, instead of timber, to support the ends of rails at their junctions.

Trammel (a blunder for tramail), trām'.mēl, an impediment, to hamper, to shackle; tram'melled (2 syl.), tram'mell-ing.

(Of the 55 or 56 words in -el, with the accent not on the last syl., 49 double the l when an affix beginning with a vowel is added. Of the exceptions, only 2 preserve the single l throughout, viz. angel and parallel.)

Fr. tramail, a drag-net; Lat. traho mēcūlis, to allure [fish] by spots or pieces of bright cloth attached to the nets.

Tramontane, trām'.ōn.tāne, the north-wind is so called in Italy; the Italians also apply the word to German, French, and other artists born north of the Alps. Ultramontane, ul'.tra.mon''.tane, overstrained Roman Catholic notions.

Ital. tramontana (Lat. trans montes, across the mountains, i.e. the Alps), ultra-montane (Lat. ultra montes, the other-side-of....).

Trance (ought to be transe, 1 syl.), a sort of swoon in which the mind sees visions; tranced (1 syl.), being in a trance.

Entrance' (2 syl.), to ravish with delight; entranced' (2 syl.); entranc-ing, en.trān'.sing (Rule xix.); entrance'-ment.

We have only 5 words in -nse, but nearly 500 in -nce most of which would be far better with s than c. Those in -nse are condense, immense, the compounds of -pense, sense, and tense.

Tranquil, trān'.kwīl, quiet, peaceful; tran'quil-ly.

Tranquill-ity, trān.kwīl'.lī.ty, freedom from disturbance.

Tranquillise (Rule xxxi.), trān'.kwīl.ize; tranquillised, trān'.kwīl.ized; tranquillis-ing (R. xix.), trān'.kwīl.izing; tranquillis-er, trān'.kwīl.izer.

("Tranquil" would be far better with single l throughout, unless words in l are made an exception to Rule iii., in which case the double l should be preserved throughout.)

Latin tranquill[us], tranquillitas; French tranquille.

Trans-, trānz- (Latin prefix), across, over, through, beyond.

(Before -s, the "s" of trans is absorbed and lost.)

Trans-act', to carry through, to complete, to perform; transact'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), transact'-ing, transact'-or.

Transaction, trānz.āk'.shān, a proceeding, a matter.

Lat. transactio, transactor, transactum (trans ago, to transact).

Trans-alpine, trānz.āl'.pīn, lying beyond the Alps.

Cis-alpine, south of the Alps in regard to Rome.

Latin transalpīnus, cisalpīnus (cis-, on this side of).

Trans-atlantic, tranz.ăt.lăn'.tîk, lying beyond the Atlantic, across the Atlantic, the other side of the Atlantic.

Tran-scend, trăn.sënd', to surpass, to surmount; transcend'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), transcend'-ing, transcend'-ent, transcend'ent-ly, transcen'dence, transcen'dency.

Transcendental, trăn'.sën.dën''.tăl, metaphysical, that which exceeds human experience but not the power of human thought; transcenden'tal-ly.

Transcenden'tal-ism, transcenden'tal-ist.

Lat. transcendentia, transcendo (trans scando, to climb beyond).
(The -s of "trans" is absorbed in the verb -scend.)

Trans-scribe, trăn.skrib'e', to write a copy, to copy; transcribed' (2 syl.), transcrib'-ing (Rule xix.), transcrib'-er.

Transcription, trăn.skrip'.shûn. Trans'cript.

Transcriptive, trăn.skrip'.tîv; transcrip'tive-ly.

Latin transcriptio, transcriptus (trans scribo, to transcribe).
(The -s of "trans" is absorbed in the verb -scribe.)

Tran'-sept, one of the arms of a cruciform church.

Latin trans septum, across the inclosure or fold.
(The -s of "trans" is absorbed in the word -sept.)

Trans-fer, (noun) trans'.fer, (verb) trans'fer' (Rule l.)

The six verbs in -fer (as confer, defer, infer, prefer, refer, and transfer) double the final -r when -er, -est, -ed, -ing are added, but not with -ance, -ant, -able, -ably, -ability, -ableness, -ent, -ence, -ently, -ency, -ee, -ible, -ibly, -ibleness, -ibility, &c.: as Transferred, trănz.fêr'd'; transferr'-er, transferr'-est, transferr'-ing, but transfer'-able, transfer'abil'ity.

(Ought to be transferible, transferibility.)

Transfer-ee, tranz'.fêr'ree''; transfer-ence.

Transfer-book, transfer-paper.

Latin transferens gen. transfrentis; trans fero, to transfer.

As usual, we get the wrong conj., transferable, from the French. The whole of the spelling of this group of words needs entire reform. The double r should be carried throughout, and the affixes -able and -ability should be -ible and -ibility.

Trans-figure, tranz.fîg'.er, to change the outward form; transfig'ured (3 syl.), transfig'ur-ing (Rule xix.)

Transfiguration, tranz.fîg'gûr ră''.shûn.

Latin transfigûro, transfigurâlio (trans figûro, to transfigure).

Trans-fix', to pierce through; transfixed (participial adj.), transfixt, transfix'-ing; transfixion, trans.fîk'.shûn.

Lat. transfixus, v. transfigo sup. transfixum, to pierce through.

Trans-form', to change the shape or substance; transformed' (2 syl.), transform'-ing, transform'-er.

Transformation, tranz'.for.may''.shûn; transfor'mative.

Trans-fuse, tranz.fûze', to pour from one vessel into another, to transfer; transfused' (2 syl.); transfus-ing (R. xix.), tranz.fū'.zing; transfus-ible, tranz.fū'.zī.b'l.

Transfusion, tranz.fū'.zhūn; transfus-er, tranz.fū'.zer.

Latin transfūsio, transfusor, transfusum (trans fundo).

Trans-gress', to violate, to intrude, to pass the due limits; transgressed' (2 syl.), transgress'-ing, transgress'-or.

Transgression, tranz.grēsh'ūn; transgres'sion-āl; trans-gressive, trans.grēs'.siv; transgress'ive-ly.

Lat. transgressio, transgressus, transgressor, transgrédior (trans grādior, to step over; grādus, a step).

Trans-ient, tranz'.ī.ent, evanescent, of short duration; trans'ient-ly, trans'ient-ness.

Latin transiens gen. transientis, trans-eo to go over or by.

Trans-it, trān'.zīt, the passing of one heavenly body over the disc of another, conveyance.

Transition, trans.sīzh'un, change; (in Music) passing from one key to another; (in Geol.) the intervening state between two others; transition-āl; transitional, trān.sīzh'ūn.ā.ry, intervening.

Transitive, tranz'.ī.tīv; transitive-ly, transitive-ness.

Transition rocks or strata, strā'.tah, the metamorphic rocks or strata.

Transitory, trān'.zī.tō.ry; trans'itori-ly (Rule xi.); transitori-ness, trān'.zī.tō.rī.ness.

Lat. transitio, transitōrius, transitus, transit (trans-eo to go across).

Trans-late' (2 syl.), to construe, to transfer, to remove; translāt'-ed (R. xxxvi.), tranz.lā'.ted; translāt-ing (R. xix.), translāt'-or (R. xxxvii.); translāt-able, tranz.lay'.tā.b'l.

Translation, tranz.lay'.shūn; translat-ive, tranz.lay'.tīv; translatory, tranz.lay'.tō.ry.

Latin translātio, translatīvus, translātor, trans-fero.

Trans-lucent, tranz.lū'.sent, semi-transparent; translū-cent-ly; translucence, tranz.lū'.sense; translū'cency; translucid, tranz.lū'.sīd, partly transparent.

Latin translūcidus, translūcent gen. translucentis, translūcco.

Trans-marine, tranz'.ma.reen'', beyond the seas.

Latin transmarinus (trans mare, beyond the sea).

Trans-migrate, tranz'.mī.grāte, to emigrate, to pass from one body into another; trans'migrāt-ed (Rule xxxvi.); transmigrat-ing (Rule xix.), tranz'.mī.grā.ting.

Transmigration, tranz'.mī.gray''shūn. Transmigration of souls, the passing of the soul of man after death into another animal body; transmi'gratory.

Words ending in -ory or -ary have the accent on the first syl. (prefixes being omitted), as [trans]mī'gratory.

Latin transmigrātio, transmigrāre (trans meo, to pass over).

Trans-mit', to send from one person or place to another; transmitt'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), transmitt'-ing (Rule iii.), transmitt'-er. Transmitt'-ible. Transmitt'-äl'.

Transmiss'-ible; transmissibility, -mĭs'si.bĭl' .i.ty.

Transmission, tranz.mish'.än; transmissive, trans.mĭs'.sĭv.

Latin transmissio, transmitto supine -missum (trans mitto).

Trans-müte' (2 syl.), to change from one substance into another, to transform; transmüt'-ed (Rule xxxvi.); transmut-ing (Rule xix.), tranz.mü'.ting; transmüt'-able, transmutable-ness; transmutability, -mü'.ta.bĭl' .i.ty.

Transmutation, tranz'.mü.tay''.shŭn; transmüt'-er.

Latin transmutatio, transmutāre (trans muto, to transmute).

Tran-som, trăn'.sŭm, a piece of timber going across a ship's sternpost to strengthen the afterpart and give it form, a cross-bar in a window, the vane of a cross-staff.

Transom-knees, -neez, knees bolted to the transoms and after-timbers of a ship.

Latin trans sumo, to take across. The Latin transenna is the transom of a door or window (from trans eo, to go across).

(The -s of "trans" is absorbed in the word -som.)

Trans-parency, plu. transparencies (Rule xlv.), tranz.pair'rĕn.sĭz, a picture painted on a material which admits light to pass through and bring out the colours distinctly.

Transparent, tranz.pair'rent; transparent-ly, transparent-ness; transparence, tranz.pair'rense.

Lat. transpārens gen. transpārentis, transpareo to appear through.

Trans-pierce, tranz.pĕr'se', to pierce through, to wound; transpierced' (2 syl.), transpiere'-ing (Rule xix.).

Latin trans per cis eo, to go through from one side to the other.

Trans-spĭre' (2 syl.), to emit through the pores of the skin, to breathe, to die, to get known; transpired' (2 syl.); transpiring (Rule xix.), tranz.pĭr'e'ring; transpirable.

Transpiration, tranz'.pĭ.ray''.shŭn. Perspiration.

Transpiration, the diffusion of liquids or vapours through a capillary tube, cutaneous exhalation.

Perspiration, water exuded through the pores of the skin from great bodily exertion or the effects of heat.

Lat. transpiratio, trans spirāre to breathe through [the pores]. (The -s of "trans" is absorbed in the verb -spire.)

Trans-plant', to remove and plant in another place; transplant'-ed (R. xxxvi.), transplant'-ing, transplant'-er.

Transplantation, tranz'.plăn.tay''.shŭn.

A hybrid. Transplant and transship are the only words out of the 33 beginning with trans- which are not Latin. "Trans-plant" is Lat. trans-, and O. Eng. plant[ian], p. -ode, p. p. -od.

Tran-splendent, trăn.splĕn'.dĕnt, brilliant as possible; transplendence, trănsplĕn'.dense; transplen'dency.

Lat. trans splendens gen splendentis (trans, splendo to shine).

Trans-port, (noun) trăns'.port, (verb) trăns.port' (Rule 1.)

Trans'port, a ship employed in conveying stores, rapture, ecstasy, a violent manifestation of rage.

Transport', to banish, to send or carry into exile, to remove from one place to another, to ravish with delight, transport'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), transport'-ing, transport'ing-ly, transport'-er, transport'-able.

Transportation, trănz'.por.tay''shŭn.

Latin transportatio, transportāre supine -portātum (trans porto, to carry across). "Transportation" is not French.

Trans-pose, trănz.pōze', to change the order of [things]; (in Alg) to change a term from one side of an equation to the other by changing its sign; (in Music) to change the key; (in Gram.) to change the order of words or letters (contracted into trs.); transposed (2 syl.); transpos-ing, trănz.pō'zing (Rule xix.); transpos-er, -pō'.zer.

Transposition, trănz'.po.zish'ăn; transposition-āl; transpositive, trănz.pōz'ă.ălv; transposit'ive-ly.

Latin transpōsitiō, transpōno sup. transpōsttūm (trans pōno).

Trans'-ship, to convey from one ship to another; trans-ship'-ment, transfer of goods from one ship to another.

A hybrid. Lat. trans, Ang.-Sax. scip. This word, and the hybrid transplant (q.v.), are the only two words beginning with trans-which are not Latin.

Tran-substantiate, trăn'.sŭb.stăn''shĕ.ate, to change the nature of a substance; transubstan'tiāt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), transubstan'tiāt-ing (Rule xix.); transubstantial, -shŭl.

Transubstantiation, trăn'.sŭb.stăn'.shĕ.ă''shŭn, the dogma that the bread and wine after consecration are transmuted into the true and very body of Jesus Christ (the second person of the Trinity).

Consubstantiation is the dogma that the elements remain bread and wine, but the body and blood of Christ are mystically superadded to them.

Fr. transsubstantier, transsubstantiation; Ital. transustanziare, transustanziazione; Lat. trans substantia, a transfer of one substance into another substance.

(The -s of "trans" is absorbed in the "sub" of substantia.)

Tran-sŭde' (2 syl.), to ooze through the pores of the skin; transŭd'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), transŭd'-ing.

Transudation, trăn'.su.day''shŭn; transŭdătōry.

Lat. trans sudo, to sweat through; Fr. transsuder, transsudation. (The -s of "trans" is absorbed in the verb sudo.)

Trans-verse' (2 syl.), across, running in a cross direction; transverse'ly, transver'sāl. (Latin transversus.)

Trap, an engine for catching vermin, &c., a device for taking someone unawares, a contrivance in drains to prevent the return of effluvia, a game and the instruments used in it, any sort of private carriage (such as a phaëton, dog-cart, sulky, and so on, but not a gentleman's close carriage), any igneous rock of the first and second geological periods, to catch in a trap; trapped, trapt (Rule i.), trapp'-ing. Trap'-door. Trap'-stair. Traps, luggage, clothes, any packages carried about with one.

Trappean, trăp'.pě.ăn, pertaining to trap rocks.

Trapp-ous, trăp'.pûs, containing trap, trap-like.

Trapp'-y, resembling trap, composed of trap.

Entrap', to catch in a trap; -trapped, -trapt'; -trapp-ing.

Old Eng. trappe or treppe, v. trepp[an], past treppte, past part. treppt.

"Traps" ("trappings," luggage), Spanish trapazo, traperia.

"Trap" (rock), Dan. trappe, a stair. These rocks are so called because they often occur in huge masses rising like stairs.

Trapan, tra.păn', to catch by artifice. Trepan, to perforate the skull and take out what oppresses the brain.

"Trapan," O. Eng. trepp[an] to entrap, past treppte, p. part. treppt.

"Trepan," Fr. trepan; Gk. trûpănon a gimlet, trûpa a hole

Trapezium, plu. trapeziums or trapezia, tra.pee' zî.ăm, plu. tra.pee' zî.ămz or tra.pee'.zî.ăh, a plane figure containing four straight lines no two of which are parallel, one of the small bones of the wrist, trape'zius, a muscle in the neck.

Trapeze, tra.pee'z', a swing (the two ropes, the bar, and the ceiling make the four straight lines).

Trapezoid trăp' ě.zoid, plu. trapezoides, trăp' ě.zo' deez, a plain figure contained by four straight lines only two of which are parallel, trapezoidal, trăp'.ě.zoi''.dăl.

(In French, the trapèze [trapezium] is our "trapezoid," and the trapezoïde is our "trapezium." "Trapèze" une quadrilatère dont deux côtés seulement sont parallèles. "Trapèzoïde" une quadrilatère dont tous les côtés sont obliques entre eux.)

Trapezohedron, trăp' ě.zo hěd'' rôn, a solid figure bounded by twenty-four equal and similar trapeziums

("Trapezohedron." Johnson, Chalmers, Sheridan, and Walker omit the h, the introduction of it is a retrograde movement.)

Lat. trăpĕzion; Gk. trăpĕzion. "Trapezoid," Gk. trăpĕzion eidos, trapezium-like. "Trapezohedron," trăpĕzion hedra (see R. lxx.)

Trap'pings, ornamental articles of dress, furniture, housings.

Spanish trapazo a large rag, traperia a mart for all sorts of finery, trapero dealing in frippery, trapo bunting, &c.

Trash, rubbish, worthless matter; trash'-y, worthless, rubbishy.

German druse, ore decayed by the weather; Old English droos.

Travail, trav'el. Trav'el (see below).

Travail, labour with pain, throes, to suffer throes; travailed, trāv'ld; travail-ing, trāv'ling.

Fr. travail, v. travailler. "Mot que l'on dérive, par métaphore, de travail dans le sens de machine de force qui sert à contenir les chevaux vicieux." (In Medicine) "la succession de phénomènes violents et douloureux dont l'ensemble caractérise la fonction de l'accouchement." The machine referred to is called a trave, a wooden frame for confining an unruly horse while it is being shod.

Travel, trāv'l. Travail, trāv'l (see above).

Travel, to journey. Travels, journeyings; travelled, trāv'ld; trav'ell-ing (R. iii.), trav'ell-er. Travel-stained, -stain'd.

Fr. travail, v. travailler; Dan. trave to trot, travle to be in a hurry.

Traverse, trāv'erse, to wander over, to journey over; (in Law) to deny what has been advanced by an opposite party; (in Fence) to turn as on a pivot; traversed (2 syl.); travers-ing, trāv'er.sing (Rule xix.); trav'ers-er, one who opposes a plea in law; trav'ers-able.

Trav'erse table, a platform which moves laterally on wheels for the convenience of shifting carriages.

Fr. travers, traverse, v. traverser; Lat. transversus across, v. transverso.

Travesty, plu. travesties, -tiz. Parody, plu. parodies, -diz.

Travesty [trāv'ēs.ty], a burlesque rendering of a subject treated by another in a serious style.

Parody [pā'rō.dj], an imitation (serious or ludicrous) of some popular literary production (generally in verse).

"Rejected addresses" are parodies of popular authors living at the time of their publication.

Shakespeare's tragedies represented as broad farces are travesties.

The most noted travesty is G. Battista Lalli's Virgil, in Ital.

To travesty; travesties, trāv'ēs.tiz; travestied, -ēs.tēd; trav'esty-ing. (French travesti, v. travestir.)

Trawl, fishing with a drag net; trawl'-ing, -er. (Lat. trāgŭla.)

Tray Trey. Trait (all tray).

Tray, a metal or papier-maché board for handing glasses, holding tea and coffee paraphernalia, and for other domestic uses. If very small and not silver or plated it is a Voider, if plated or silver it is a Sal'ver. If for holding bread or used as a plate it is a Trench'er. If made of wood and jointed it is a Butler's tray.

Trey, the three of cards or dice. (Old Eng. thrȳæ or thrȳj.)

Trait, a feature or characteristic. (Fr. trait; Lat. traho.)

"Tray," Old Eng. trog, a trough; Dan. trug; Swed. trag.

Treachery, plu. treacheries, trēch'.ēriz. Treason, trēc'.zn.

Treachery, betrayal of trust, perfidy, deception.

Treason, leze-majesty, violation of allegiance, disloyalty.

Treacherous, trēch'.ērūs; treacherous-ly, treacherous-ness.

"Treachery," Fr. tricherie, trickery. "Treason," Fr. trahison.

Treacle, tree'kl, Molasses, mo.lās'sēz, Syrup, sr'rūp,

Treacle, drainings from the sugar-refiner's moulds.

Molasses, the drainings of crude sugar.

Syrup, a medicated solution of sugar.

"Treacle" means strictly an antidote against the bite of a wild beast,
Gk. [pharmāka] thēriaka (from thēr, a wild beast); O. E. tyriaca.

"Molasses," Port. melasses, Gk. mēli. It is darker than treacle and has a burnt flavour. It should be spelt me- not mo-lasses.

"Syrup," Low Lat. syrrūpus; Gk. surias opos, the Syrian juice.

Tread, trēd, a step; pressure with the foot, to step, to walk.

To tread, (past) trōd, (p. p.) trodden, trōd'n; tread-ing, trēd'ing; tread-er, trēd'er. Tread'-mill. Treadle, trēd'l.

Old Eng. trēd or trēdde; v. trēd[an], past trōd, past part. treden.

Both our spelling and conjugation of this verb are corrupt. There is no justification for the interpolated a, which does not even represent an accent, and "trodden" is a blunder for trēd or treden.

Treason, tree'zn, leze-majesty, an offence against the duty of allegiance; treason-able, treasonable-ness, treasonably.

Misprision of treason, mīs.prīzh'ān..., concealment of treason.

Traitor, trā'tr, one guilty of treason; traitor-ous, -tō.rūs;
traitorous-ly, traitorous-ness. Traitress, trā'.trēs.

Treacherous, trēch'ērūs. Treachery (q.v.)

It is to be regretted that the same vowels have not been preserved in treason and traitor; Fr. trahison, traître; Lat. trāditor, a traitor.

The term High treason is now abolished, because petty treason is regarded as murder. "Petty treason" used to be the treason of an apprentice or workman against his master by conspiring his death, and "high treason" was conspiring against the crown.

Treasure, trēzh'r, anything highly valued, hoarded wealth, to hoard up; to value highly, to keep as a valued article; treasured (2 syl.); treasure-ing (Rule xix.), trēzh'r.ing;
treas'ur-er, treasurer-ship (-ship, office of).

Treasury, plu. treasuries, trēzh'r.iz. Treasure-house.

Treasure-trove, coin or bullion found buried in the earth without an owner. (This "treasure" belongs to the crown and not to the finder.)

Treasury benches, the seats on the right hand of the speaker occupied in the house of commons by the ministerial party.

So called because the prime minister is the first lord of the treasury. If a peer, the chancellor of the exchequer who has the management of the revenue leads the house of commons

Treasury bond, a species of exchequer-bill.

Treasury-warrant, a legal official notice issued by the lords of the treasury for the information of the public.

Lords of the Treasury, ministers of state who have the control of the public revenue. The prime minister is first lord. (At present the board consists of five "lords.")

Old Eng. tresor (Sax. Chron. 1137); Lat. thesaurus, thesaurārium; Gk. thēsaurós; Heb. thazer; Fr. trésor, trésorerie, trésorière.

Treat, treet, an entertainment, something to give pleasure, to give a treat, to write or speak on a certain subject, to prescribe remedies, to subject [something] to the action of certain chemicals, to negotiate, to adjust; treat'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), treat'-ing, treat'-er, treat'-ment.

Treatise, tree'tis, a formal exposition of some subject.

Treaty, plu. treaties (Rule xlv.), tree'tiz, a negotiation, as a treaty of peace, treaty of alliance, commercial treaty.

To treat with, to negotiate with. To treat of, to have for subject. To treat well, to behave well to. To treat ill.

(?) HE TREATS THE SUBJECT MORALLY OR HE TREATS OF THE SUBJECT MORALLY (?) If the name of the subject is given, of must be supplied: Dr. Smith treats of medicine...., i.e. he writes or speaks about medicine; otherwise, either form is correct, although the more usual one is to omit of.

O. Eng. traht, v. traht[ian], past trahtode, past part. trahtod, trahtung a treatise, trahtere; Fr. traité; Lat. tractāre to handle, tractus.

Treble, trēb'l (not tribl). Triple, trīp'l.

Treble, the highest part in music. Triple, three-fold.

(In short whist), gaining a game before your adversaries have scored a single point is called a treble; if your adversaries have scored one or two points, your game is a double; if your adversaries have gained three or four points, it is a single. By adding two for the rubber a "treble" is $3 + 2 = 5$ points; a "double" is $2 + 2 = 4$ points; a "single" is $1 + 2 = 3$ points. With shilling points a treble is paid 5s., a double 4s., and a single 3s.

"Treble" for triple ought not to be tolerated. The Lat. is triplex, triplex; Gk. triplus; Fr. triple; Ital. triplo, and we always say triplet, triplicate, triplicity, tripod, trios, &c., never "treblet," "treblicate," "trebllicity," and so on.

"Treble" is the part sung by little boys who bear the thuribles.

Tree, a plant with a woody trunk furnished with branches; tree'-less. Family tree, the picture of a tree showing the pedigree of a family from its founder.

Tree-nail, trēn'.ēl (not trūn'.el), a long wooden bolt used for nailing a ship's plank to the timbers.

Old English treo, treow, treu, triow, triu, triw or tryw, a tree.

Trefoil, trēf'foil, a three-leaved plant like clover, an architectural ornament consisting of three cusps symbolical of the Trinity. (Fr. trèfle; Lat. trifolium, tres folium.)

Trellis, trēl'lis, a light structure of cross-bars or lattice-work, to put up a trellis, to be furnished with trellises; trellised, trēl'list; trēl'lis-ing. (Fr. treillis, treillissé.)

From the Latin trichila, a covered walk made of vines, a bower.

Tremble, trēm'.bl, to shake; trembled, trēm'.blđ; trembling, trēm'.bling; trem'bling-ly. Trembling poplar or aspen.

Fr. tremble, v. trembler; Lat. trēmŭlus, trēmŭla the aspen-tree.

Tremendous, tre.měň'.dŭs (not tre.měň'.djŭs), enormous, very violent, terrible; tremen'dous-ly, tremen'dous-ness.

Latin tremendus to be feared (trēmo; Greek trēmo, to tremble).

Tremolite, trēm'.ō.lite, a variety of hornblende.

First noticed in the Tremola, a valley of Switzerland.

Tremor, trēm'.or, a shivering; tremulous, trēm'.ŭ.lŭs, quivering; trem'ulous-ly, tremulous-ness.

Latin tremor, trēmŭlus, v. trēmo; Greek trēmo, to tremble;

Trench, a ditch, the breastwork formed by the earth thrown out of a ditch, to dig deep, to defend with a trench; trenched, trencht; trench'-ing. Trench-er, one who digs a trench, a wooden platter, a table. Trencher-cap, a cap with a "mortar-board." Trencher-man, a feeder. Trench'-plough, -plōw. Trench'ant, cutting, sarcastic.

"Trencher cap." Mortar-board has nothing whatever to do with a board for carrying mortar. It is the French mortier, a cap worn by the ancient kings of France, and still used officially by the president of the court of justice.

"Trench" Fr. trancher, to cut; Ital. trincea, a trench, v. trinciare.

Trend, to have a bias or bend (said of a coast-line); trend'-ed (R. xxxvi.), trend'-ing. (O. E. trendl, a circle, a curve.)

Trepan, trě.păn', a circular saw for removing part of the skull, to perforate the skull and take out what presses on the brain; trepanned, trě.pănd; trěpann'-ing, trěpann'-er. Trepana'tion, -shun. (See Trapan.)

(The word should be trupan or trypan. The error is from the Fr.) French trepan; Greek trupănon a gimlet, v. trupăo to perforate.

Trephine, trě.feen', an improved instrument for trepanning, to use the trephine; trephined, trě.feend'; trephin-ing.

Fr. tréphine; Low Lat. trĭpănum; Gk. trupănon a gimlet, v. trupăo to perforate. Tre- ought to be tru- or try-. The error is French.

Trepidation, trěp'.ĭ.day''shŭn, a quivering with fear.

Latin trēpidatio, v. trēpidāre, to tremble with terror; Greek trēpo.

Trespass, trěs'.păs, a transgression; unlawful entry on the lands of another, to trespass; trespassed, trěs'past; tres'pass-ing, tres'pass-er. Trespass-offering, sin offering.

Norman trespasser; Latin trans passus, a step over [the limits].

Tress, a braid of hair, a ringlet; tresses, the hair of the head.

French trousse; Italian treccia a lock of hair, trecciera a snood.

Tressel (not trussel), trěs'.sěl, a movable support for a table-board or scaffolding-board, a support used by carpenters to rest timber on while it is sawn, &c.

French treteau now tréteau; Dutch driestal, a three-legged stool.

Trevet, a corruption of Trivet, q.v. (Old English trýfōt.)

Trey, Tray, Trait (all tray).

Trey, the three of cards or dice. (Old Eng. thryæ or thryf.)

Tray, a light board for domestic uses. (O. E. trog, Swed. trag.)

Trait, a feature, a characteristic. (Fr. trait, Lat. traho.)

ri- (Gk. or Lat. prefix), thrice, in threes. (Gk. treis, Lat. tris.)

Tri'-ad, three united, three subjects more or less connected worked up into a connected whole.

Shakespeare's Henry VI. is a triad. The Welsh triads are collections of historic facts, mythological traditions, moral maxims, or rules of poetry, disposed in groups of three.

A musical "triad," the common or fundamental chord consisting of the 3rd, 5th, and 8th of the fundamental base.

Harmonic triad, a compound of three radical sounds, viz., a fundamental note its 3rd and its 5th.

Greek trias gen. triados, a triad or group of three.

Tri-adelphous, -a.dēl'fūs, having three stamens united in three bundles by their filaments.

Gk. tri-[treis, tria]adelphōs, three brothers, bunches, or bundles.

Linnaeus called the stamens of flowers andria (male organs), the pistils gynia (female organs), and stamens in bundles adelphia.

Trial, tri'āl, legal examination, experiment. (See Try.)

Tri-angle, tri'ān.gl, a plane figure inclosed by three lines.

If all the 3 lines are of the same length the fig. is an equilateral triangle. If only 2 of the lines are equal the fig. is an isosceles triangle. If all the 3 lines are unequal the fig. is a scalene [ska.leen'] triangle. The lines may be straight or curved.

Triangular, tri'ān'.gu.lar; trian'gular-ly.

Triangularity, tri'ān'.gu.lār'rī.ty. Triangulate, tri'ān'.gu.lāte, to divide into triangles; trian'gulāt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), trian'gulāt-ing (Rule xix.) Triangulation, tri'ān'.gu.lay'shūn. Triangular com'passes.

Latin tri-[tres, tria]angūlus, [having] three angles.

Tri-archy, tri'ar.ky, government vested in three persons.

Greek tri-[treis, tria]archē, government of three.

Tri'-as (in Geol.), the Upper New Red Sandstone.

Triassic system, tri'ās'.sīk..., the rocks of the trias.

Greek trias gen. triados, a triad. The triassic system consists of (1) Keuper, (2) Muschelkalk, and (3) Bunter.

Tribe (1 syl.), a family, a race, a clan; tri'bāl.

Latin tribus (a tribus partibus in quas ager Romanus primo divisus erat, Pedrianus. Varro says: quod tribus principio tres fuerunt (1) Tatienium, (2) Rhamnensium, (3) Lucerum).

Tri-brach, tri'b'.rāk, a word of three short syllables,

Greek tri-[treis, tria]brachus, three short feet.

Tribulation, trib'bu.lay''shŭn; distress, severe affliction.

Latin tribŭlare, from tribŭlum a threshing instrument (not tribŭlus, Greek tribŭlŏs a caltrop or thistle, treis bŏlas three cusps).

Our pronunciation of this word misleads. It should be tri'bu.lay'.shŭn not trib'.u.lay'.shŭn, from Latin tribŭlum not tribŭlus.

Tribune, trib'bŭne, a magistrate of ancient Rome chosen by the people to protect them from oppression; tribunate, trib'bu.nāte; trib'une-ship (-ship, office of).

Tribunal, tri.bŭ'nāl, the seat of a judge, hence a court of justice; tribunitial, trib'bŭ.nish''āl, adj. of tribune.

Latin tribŭnus, tribŭnal, tribunātus (from tribus, a tribe).

Tribute, trib'bŭte, a tax paid by a subordinate state to an overlord either as a fine or in acknowledgment of suzerainty; tributary, plu. tributaries, trib'bu.tŭ.riz, a state which pays tribute; tributary, adj., subject to tribute.

Latin tribŭlum, tribŭtarius (the tax collected from the tribes).

Trice (1 syl.), a moment, an instant. In a trice.

"Trice," strictly speaking, is the 60th part of a second. The hour is divided into 60 minutes, the minute into 60 seconds, and the second into 60 trices or thirds. (Spanish tris.)

Tricentenary, tri.sĕn'.tŭ.nŕy, the three-hundredth anniversary, a space of 300 years.

Latin tri-[tris, tria]centĕnarius, pertaining to a period of 300 years.

Trichord, tri'.kord, a three-stringed lute. (Greek treis chordē.)

Trick, an artifice, a practice, a round of cards falling to the winner, to deceive, to dress fantastically; tricked (1 syl.), trick'-ing, trick'-er, trick'-ster.

(-ster is not an affix denoting one of the female sex, as we are usually taught; it is added to nouns of all genders, and means that skill which comes from habit. Even in the word "spinster" it means one skilled in spinning, hence a maiden.)

Trickery, plu. trickeries, tri'k'.ĕ.riz, artifice, deceit.

Trick-ish, given to trickery; trick'ish-ly, trick'ish-ness.

Trick'-y, artful, cross-grained, (comp.) trick'i-er, (super.) trick'i-est. (French tricher, tricherie, &c.)

Trickle, tri'kl, to run down in drops, to flow in a small stream; trickled, tri'kl'd; trick'ling, trick'ling-ly.

Greek trecho, to run. (See Treacle, a saccharine fluid.)

Trick-track, backgammon. (French tric-trac.)

"Onomatopée tirée du bruit que font les dés dans le cornet et sur le tablier" (Dict. universel des Arts et des Sciences).

Triclinium, tri.kli'.nŭ.ŭm, a Roman dining-room; tricliniary, tri.kli'.ni.ary, adj. of triclinium.

Latin triclinium (Greek treis kleiné, three couches), tricliniarius. The Roman dining-room usually contained three couches each of which accommodated three guests: placed thus ■■■■■

Tricolour, tri.küller, a national banner of three colours; tricoloured, tri.küllrd, having three colours.

The tricolor of BELOIUM is black, yellow, and red, divided vertically. The tricolor of FRANCE is blue, white, and red, divided vertically. The tricolor of HOLLAND is red, white, and blue, divided horizontally. The tricolor of ITALY is green, white, and red, divided vertically.

Lat. tricolor; Fr. [drapeau] tricolor. The Fr. tricolor shews the weakness of our plea for the termination -our instead of -or.

Tri'dent, a kind of sceptre with three prongs held by the sea-god; tri'dent-ed, furnished with three prongs; tridentate, tri.dën'.täte, (in Botany) having three teeth.

Latin tridens gen. tridentis (tris, tria dens, [having] three teeth).

Triennial, tri.ën'.nī.äl. Tricennial, tri.sën'.nī.äl.

Triennial, occurring every third year, lasting three years.

Tricennial, occurring once in thirty years, lasting thirty years.

Trien'ial-ly. Triennial Act, an Act of William and Mary providing that no parliament shall last longer than three years. (Prolonged to seven years by 1 Geo. I., st. 2, c. 38.)

Latin triennium (tri-[tris] annus, three years).

"Tricennial," Latin tricen'ni-annus [tricen'nus], thirty years.

Annus in composition changes a into e: as bi-ennial, tri-ennial, sept-ennial, oct-ennial, per-ennial, &c.

Trifle, tri'fl, a thing of little value, a cake flavoured with spirituous liquor and soaked in cream, to indulge in trifles; trifled, tri'fld; trifling, tri'fling-ly; trifler, tri'fler.

Trivial, triv'äl, of trifling importance; triv'ial-ly, triv'ial-ness; triviality, plu. trivialities, triv'äl'äl'tiz.

"Trivial," belonging to the public road, Latin trivium (Greek tribo, to beat), the beaten road; hence common, worthless.

Tri-foliate, tri.fõ'.lī.ate, having three leaves or leaflets from the same point. Trifolium, tri.fõ'.lī.äm, a clover or trefoil.

Latin tri-[tris, tria] folium, [having] three leaves [together].

Trig, trim, neat, to trick out; trigged, trigd; trigg'-ing (R. i.), trig'-ness. (Welsh trec harness, treciad trappings.)

Tri-gamous, trig'.ämüs, having three sorts of flowers in the same flower-head; trigamy, trig'.ämy, having three husbands or wives living at the same time. Bigamy, having two husbands or wives living at the same time.

Greek tri-[treis, tria] gámos, three marriages.

Trig'ger, the catch of a gun-lock. (Welsh trig a stop, trigad.)

Triglyph, trig'lif, an ornament in a Doric frieze; triglyphic, trig.lif'äk; triglyphical, trig.lif'äkäl.

Greek tri-[treis, tria] gluphé, three sculptures or three cut.

The triglyph consists of three parallel grooves with drops underneath arranged at regular intervals throughout the frieze. The interval between two triglyphs is called the metope, mē.tõ'.pe, as thus: [!!! metope !!! metope !!!].

Trigon, trí.gŏn, containing three zodiacal signs. The entire zodiac is divided into four trigons, each with three signs.

1. The Watery trigon includes Cancer, Scorpio, and Pisces.
2. The Fiery trigon includes Aries, Leo, and Sagittarius.
3. The Earthly trigon includes Taurus, Virgo, and Capricornus.
4. The Airy trigon includes Gemini, Libra, and Aquarius.

Trigonous, tríg'.ŏ.nŭs, having three angles; trig'onal-ly.

Trigonella, tríg'.ŏ.nĕl''.lah, a genus of plants with trifoliate leaves. Trigonellites, tríg'.ŏ.nĕl''.lites, a shell-like organism of triangular form (-ite, Greek lithos, a fossil).

Greek tri-[treis, tria]gonia, three angles.

Trigono-, tríg'.ŏ.no- (Greek prefix), having three angles.

Trig'ono-carpon, -kar'.pon, a genus of thick-shelled fruits occurring in the coal-measures.

Greek trigono-[trigŏnon, a triangle]karpos, triangle-fruit.

So called from three projecting corners in the surface of the shell.

Trig'ono-cerous, -se'.rŭs, having horns with three angles.

Greek trigono-[trigŏnon]kĕras, three-angled horns.

Trigono-metry, tríg'.ŏ.nŏm''.ĕ.try, measuring of or by triangles. Plane trigonometry treats of triangles described on a plane. Spherical trigonometry treats of triangles described on the surface of a sphere.

The modern use of this word is much extended, including all theorems and formulæ relative to angles and circular arcs, together with the lines connecting them.

Gk. trigono-[trigŏnon, a triangle]metron, measure of triangles.

Tri-lateral, tri.lăt'.ĕ.răl. Tri-literal, tri.lit'.ĕ.răl.

Trilateral, having three sides; trilat'eral-ly.

Triliteral, consisting of three letters; triliteral-ism, a language system, like Hebrew, where every word has three fundamental letters.

"Trilateral," Latin tri-[tris, tria]lătas, [having] three sides.

"Triliteral," Latin tri-[tris, tria]litĕra, [having] three letters.

Tri-lingual, tri.ling'gwăl, consisting of three languages.

Latin tri-[tris, tria]lingua, [having] three tongues or languages.

Tri-literal, -lit'.ĕ.răl, consisting of three letters; trilit'eral-ism, a language system like Hebrew, where the words have three fundamental letters to their roots. (See Trilateral.)

Trill, an ornamental turn or vibration of the voice in singing, &c., to trill; trilled, trıld; trill'-ing.

Welsh treillio, to trill or troul; Italian trillo, a trill, v. trillare.

Trillion, trił'.yŭn, the third power of a million, a unit and 18 ciphers. (Six figures = a million and $6 \times 3 = 18$.)

Fr. trillion; Lat. tri-[tris]millio, a million thrice [multiplied].

Trilobite, trił'.ŏ.bite (should be tri.lŏ'.bite), an extensive family of palæozoic crustaceans; trilobitidæ, trił'.lŏ.bit''ă.dĕ.

Gk. tri-[treis, tria]lŏbos, three lobes. So called because their body is divided into three lobes running parallel to its axis. (-ite, a fossil.)

Tri-ocular, tri.lōk'ŭ.lar (in Bot.), having three cells.

Latin tri-[tris, tria]lōcŭlŭs, [having] three little places or cells.

Trilogy, trīl'ō.djy, a series of three connected dramas, like the three parts of Henry VI. (Gk. tri-[treis]logos, three discourses.)

Trim, neat, spry, to put in order, to decorate, to adjust a vessel for sailing, to pare down opinions and conduct in the hope of pleasing two opposing parties; trimmed, trīmd; trimm'-ing (Rule i.), trimm'-ing-ly.

Trimm'-er, one who runs with the hare and holds with the hounds. Trim'-ness. In trim. In ballast trim.

To trim up, to make tidy. To trim in, to fit in.

Old Eng. trym[ian], to set in order, past trymede, past part. trymed.

Trine (1 syl.), the aspect of planets 120° or the third of a circle distant from each other. Trinal, trī'nāl, adj.

Latin trinus, the third. One-fourth is square, one-fifth is quintile, one-sixth is sextile, one-half is opposite.

Trinity, plu. trinities, trīn'ī.tīz, the triune godhead (the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost). Trinitarian, trīn'ī.tair''rī.ăn, adj. of trinity, one who believes in the doctrine of the trinity. Unitarian, one who believes that there is but one person (not three persons) in the Godhead.

Trinitarian-ism, trīn'ī.tair''rī.ăn.izm, the doctrine of the trinity. Unitarian-ism, the doctrine that there is but one person (not three persons) in the Godhead.

Trinity Sunday, the Sunday next before Whitsunday, when the doctrine of the trinity is set before church-goers.

Trinity house, north side of Tower Hill, a guild for licensing pilots, erecting lighthouses, &c.

Trinity Term (law courts), an issuable term beginning May 22 and ending June 12 (abolished in 1876).

Trinity Sitting begins June 13 and ends August 8.

Trinity Term (Oxf. University), the second half of Easter term. It begins the Saturday before Whitsunday and ends the second Saturday of July.

There is no Trinity Term at Cambridge University, but the Easter Term runs on to the fourth Friday of June.

The word "Trinity" (applied to the Godhead) was first used by Tertullian (A.D. 160-240), Adv. Praz. c. 3. (Latin trīnitas.)

(The doctrine of the Trinity is by no means peculiar to Christianity, almost every mythological system of the world teaches the same dogma. Pythagoras and Plato had their trinities, the Romans, the American Indians, the Brahmins, the Persians, the Egyptians, the Scandinavians, &c., &c.)

Trinket, trīn'.kēt, a small ornament, a bijou. (Welsh treciad.)

Trinō'da Necessitas, the three contributions to which all lands were subject in Anglo-Saxon times. They were

1. Bryge-bōt, for keeping bridges and high roads in repair.
2. Bury-bōt, for maintaining the military and keeping up fortresses.
3. Fyrd, for maintaining the naval force of the kingdom,

Tri-nomial, trī.nō'.mī.āl, an algebraic expression of three terms: as $a^2 + 2ab + b^2$. Bino'mial, an algebraic expression of two terms: as $a + b$ or $a - b$. (Lat. tri-[tres]nomen.)

Trio, plu. trios, tree'.o, plu. tree'.ōze, a piece of music for three singers or players, three together. (French trio.)

Trip, a stumble, a catch of the foot in wrestling, a blunder, an excursion of pleasure, to skip, to strike the foot against someone to cause a fall, to fail, to err; tripped, tript; tripp'ing (Rule i.); tripp'ing-ly, glibly; tripp'-er.

To trip up, to cause a fall by striking the foot against some obstacle. To trip up [one's] heels, to cause a stumble,

To catch [one] tripping, to detect [one] in a mistake.

Welsh trip, v. tripio, tripiad a tripping; Danish trip, v. trippe.

Tri-partite, tri.par'.tite, (in Botany) deeply divided into three.

(Tri'-fid, cleft into three segments but not deeply.)

Tripartition, tri'.par.tish'.ūn, a division by three.

In Botany, -fid means cleft short of the middle; -partite means deeply cleft up to or beyond the middle.

"Tripartite," Latin tri-[tris, tria]partitus, parted in three.

"Trifid," Latin tri-[tris, tria]fido, fidi to cleave into three.

Tripe (1 syl.), the stomach of ruminants prepared for food.

Tripe-man, plu. -men, one who sells tripe. (Welsh tripa.)

Tri-pedal, tri.pee'.dāl, having three feet.

Latin tri-[tris, tria]pedālis (pes gen. pēdis, a foot).

Tri-pennate, tri.pēn'.nate, a compound leaf thrice divided in a pennate manner. (Latin tri-[tris]pennātus, penna.)

Tri-petalous, tri.pēl'.ū.lūs, having three petals or flower-leaves.

Greek tri-[treis, tria]pētālon, having three leaves or petals.

Triphthong (not triphthong), tri'f'.thong, a combination of three vowels into one sound: as "beau" = bo, "lieu" = lu.

Diphthong, the combination of two vowels into one sound: as found, saucer. If only one of two vowels is sounded and the other is ignored, it is an improper diphthong: as break (where e is lost), speak (where a is lost).

"Diphthong," Greek diphthoggos [dis phthoggos, a double [vowel] sound]. "Triphthong" is formed on the same model: tris-[treis]phthoggos, a triple [vowel] sound.

Tri-phyllous, tri.fil'.lūs, applied to plants which have their leaves in triple whorls. (Gk. tri-[treis]phullon, a leaf.)

Triple, trip'l. Treble, trēb'l, the highest part in music.

Triple, three-fold, three united, to increase three-fold; tripled, trip'ld; trip'ling, trip'ly.

Triple-crowned, -krōwnd, having three crowns.

Triple-time, (in Music) three beats in a bar.

(Either 3 minims, 3 crotchets, or 3 quavers— $\frac{3}{2}$, 3, $\frac{3}{4}$.)

Triplicate, trĭp'.ĭ.kāte, a third transcript of a document.

Duplicate, a second transcript of a document.

Done in triplicate. Done in duplicate.

Triplication, trĭp'.ĭ.kay''.shŭn.

Triplicity, trĭ.plis'.ĭ.ty; triple-ness. Trip'lite (2 syl.)

"Treble" is occasionally used for triple: thus in "Whist," a game won before your adversary has scored a single point is called a treble. We also say It is trebled, He has treble as much as you, &c., but this use of "treble" should be abolished, and triple should be always employed when three-fold is meant.

"Triple," Fr. triple; Ital. triplice; Span. triplo; Lat. triplex.

"Treble" (thurible), Latin thuribulum, a censer (thus gen. thuris, frankincense), so called because the thurible-boys sang treble.

Tripod, trĭ'.pŏd, a three-legged stool, the stool on which the priest or priestess was placed when oracles were sought.

Greek tri-[treis, tria]pous gen. pŏdŏs, having three feet or legs.

Tripoli, trĭp'.ŏ.ĭ, a polishing powder from Tripoli (Africa).

Tripes, trĭ'.pŏs, plu. triposes, trĭ'.pŏs.ĕz, in Cambridge University means a division into three classes or groups, and is applied to any faculty, mathematics, classics, law, &c.

The mathematical tripes consists of Wranglers (class 1), Senior optimes (class 2), and Junior optimes (class 3). The voluntary honour examination in classics for those who have already passed their degree examination consists of three groups, called Class 1 (the highest), Class 2, Class 3. The same arrangement prevails in all the other tripes.

Gk. tri-[treis, tria]pous, three feet, a metaphor for three classes.

Triptote, trĭp'.tŏte, a noun used only in three cases.

Diptote, dĭp'.tote, a noun used only in two cases.

Monoptote, mo.nŏp'.tŏte, a noun used only in one case.

In English, pronouns are triptotes, nouns denoting animals are diptotes, and other nouns are for the most part monoptotes.

Lat. triptŏlon; Gk. tri-[treis, tria]plŏsis, three cases [in grammar].

Trireme, trĭ'.reem (not trĭ'.ā.reem), a vessel with three banks of rowers. (Lat. triremis, tri-remus, three [banks of] oars.)

Trisagion, trĭs.ăg'.i.ŏn, the words "Holy, holy, holy" (Isa. vi. 3).

Greek tris-[treis]agŏs, thrice holy. The word is borrowed from the Greek church, and corresponds to our Sanctus.

Tri-sect', to divide into three equal parts. Bi-sect', to divide into two equal parts; trisect'-ed (R. xxxvi.), trisect'-ing.

Trisection, trĭ.sĕk'.shŭn. Bisection, bĭ.sĕk'.shŭn.

Latin tri-[tris, tria]seco supine sectum, to cut into three parts.

Tri-sepalous, trĭ.sĕp'.ă.lŭs. Tri-cephalous, trĭ.sĕf'.ă.lŭs.

Trisepalous, having 3 sepals. Tricephalous, having 3 heads.

"Trisepalous," Gk. tri-[treis, tria] and the word Sepal (which see).

"Tricephalous," Gk. tri-[treis, tria]kephălĕ, [having] three heads.

Trismegistus, trĭs'.mĕ.gĭs''.tŭs, thrice greatest, applied to Hermēs the Egyptian philosopher. (Greek tris-[treis]mĕgistŏs.)

Tri-syllable, trīs sĭl.la.bl, a word of three syllables.

Dis-syllable, a word of two syllables.

Mōn'o-syllable, a word of one syllable.

Pōl'y-syllable, a word of more than three syllables.

If "disyllable" is spelt with double s, "trisyllable" should have double s also; but if "trisyllable" is to be the model, one s should be taken away from "disyllable."

Fr. tris-syllable and dis-syllable (both double s), Span. trislabo and dislabo (both single s); Lat. and Gk. tris- and dis-syllāba [sullābē], or tri- and di-syllāba [sullābē], but not one and one.

Trite (1 syl.), stale, hackneyed; trite'-ly, trite'-ness.

Latin tritū (v. tĕro, supine tritum, to wear or rub away).

Tri-theism, trī'·thē·izm, the dogma that Father, Son, and Holy Ghost are three Gods and not three persons in one God-head; tritheist, trī'·thē·ist, one who holds tritheism; tritheistic, trī'·thē·is''·tik; tritheistical, trī'·thē·is''·tĭ.kāl.

Gk. tri-[treis, tria]thēōs, three gods. "Theism" is not a Gk. word.

Triton, trī'·tŏn, a sea-god who produces the roaring of the sea by blowing through his horn, Neptune's trumpeter.

Lat. tritōn; Gk. tritōn. (See Virgil, Æn. vi. 171; x. 209....)

Triturate, trīt'tu.rāte, to rub or grind to a fine powder; trit'urāt-ed (R. xxxvi.), trit'urāt-ing (R. xix.), trit'urāt-or.

Trituration, trīt'tu.ray''·shŭn. Triturable, trīt'tu.ra.bl.

Lat. tritūrātor, v. tritūrāre (tritūra, a threshing); Fr. trituration.

Triumph, trī'·ŭmf. Ovation, o.vay''·shŭn.

Triumph, a public reception of the first order.

Ovation, a public reception of the second order.

The triumph was granted by the Roman senate for a grand victory over an enemy never before conquered. The victorious general rode in a gilt car drawn by four horses, wore a golden crown and gorgeous robe, was preceded by the senate, the captives and the spoils of war, and ascended the Capitol in grand procession to sacrifice a bull to Jupiter Capitolinus (See Cicero In Pison. 25).

An ovation was a lesser triumph. The conqueror did not ride in a chariot, but marched on foot. He was not arrayed in a gorgeous robe but in a magisterial gown (toga prætexta). He wore no golden crown, but a myrtle wreath. The senate did not head the procession. A bull was not sacrificed, but a sheep. Hence the word "Ovation" (from ovis, a sheep).

An ovation was granted when a conquest was not complete, when the contest had been against an inferior foe, when conquest had been achieved with little bloodshed, and when the people had been before subdued but had risen in rebellion.

To triumph; trī'·ŭmft; trī'·ŭmph-ing.

Tri'umph-er. Triumphant, trī'·ŭm'·fānt; trīum'phant-ly; triumphal, ·ŭm'·fāl. Triumphal arch. To triumph over.

Lat. trīumphālis, trīumphus, trīumphāre; Gk. thriambōs, so called from thriōn, a fig-leaf, the victor being anciently crowned with fig-leaves, or from trīazo, to conquer an adversary three times.

Triumvir, plu. triumvirs or triumviri, tri.ũm'.vir, -virz, -vĩ.rĩ, one of three men united in the same office. Triumvirate, tri.ũm'.vi.rāte, the union of three men in joint government.
 Latin triumvir plu. triumviri (trium vir, a man of three).

Tri-ũne (2 syl.), three in one, the unity of the trinity.

Latin tri-[tris, tria]unus, three-one.

Trivet, triv'.ēt (not trēvet), a three legged shelf to fit on the bars of a grate for the purpose of holding a kettle, &c.

Old English thryȝōt, a trivet (thryȝ three, fōt a foot).

Trivial, triv'.ĩ.āl, trifling, of little worth or importance; trivially, plu. trivialities, triv'.ĩ.āl''ĩ.tiz.

Lat. trivialis (trivium the high-road, from tēro, trivi to rub off; Gk. tribo to beat, to wear with friction, the beaten path), belonging to the public road, hence common, worthless.

Abp. Trench connects it with tres vie, the meeting of three roads, a rendezvous of gossip, but this is needlessly fanciful.

Trivium, triv'.ĩ.ũm, the three roads which meet in eloquence (viz., grammar, rhetoric, logic or dialectics).

Quadrivium, kwōd.riv'.ĩ.ũm, the four roads which meet in philosophy. (Theology was added in the 12th century.)

(The "quadrivium": music, arithmetic, geometry, and astronomy.)

Latin trivium, the place where three roads met. "Quadrivium," the place where four roads met.

-trix (Lat. term. to denote a female agent) as administratrix, executrix, inheritrix, mediatrix, negotiatrix, testatrix.

Troche, plu. troches, trōtch, plu. trōtch'.ez. Trochee, trō'.ky.

Troche, a small round or oval tablet containing medicine made palatable with gum and sugar. (See Trochee.)

French trochisque, from the Greek trōché a wheel.

Trochee, plu. trochees, trō'.ke, plu. trō'.kez, a dissyllabic poetical foot consisting of a long syllable followed by a short one.

(In English metre, an accented syllable followed by an unaccented one: as ten'der. Trochaic, trō.kay'ĩk, adj.

Trochaic metre, verses with trochaic rhythm: as

Where'-the bee'-sucks there'-suck I,
 In'-a cow'-slip's bell'-I lie;
 There'-I couch'-when owls'-do cry.

Greek trōchaĩos (trōchos, v. trōcho to run), the running metre.

The reverse rhythm is called iambic, i.am'.bik, that is, a short or unaccented syllable followed by a long or accented one. This measure is adopted in blank verse, and much lyric poetry, as:

How-sweet' the-moon'-light-sleeps' upon' the-bank'.
 On-Lin' -den-when' the-sun' was-low',
 All-blood' -less-lay' the-un-trod' -en-snow',
 And-dark' as-win' -ter-was' the-flow'
 Of-I' -ser-roll' -ing-rap' -ldly.

Trochilus, trōk'.ĩ.lũs, a genus of humming-bird.

Greek trōchĩlōs (trōcho, to run): Latin trochilus.

It is said that the trochilus feeds on insects which get between the teeth of crocodiles and greatly annoy them.

Troglodyte, trŏg'.lŏ.dite, a cave-dweller, one who lives so secluded as not to know the current events of the day.

(The Saturday Review introduced this use of the word.)

Gk. trŏglodutēs (trŏglē duō, to go into a hole or cave), a dweller in caves.

Trogotherium, trŏ'.gŏn.rhe''.rŭ.ŭm, an extinct rodent.

Greek trŏgŏn gen. trŏgŏntōs thērŏn, a gnawing wild animal.

Tro'jan, a native of Troy, pertaining to Troy, a capital fellow.

Troll, trŏle. Troul, trŏwl. Trull (to rhyme with dull).

Troll, to fish with a line furnished with a reel; trolled (1 syl.), troll'-ing, troll'-er.

Troul, to sing: as troul a round; to push round: as troul the bowl. (This word is also spelt troll.) Trull, a slut.

"Troll," Germ. trollen, Welsh trol, v. trolŭan. "Trail," the same v.

"Trull," Greek matrullē (lena), quæ se matrem fingit: a μήτηρ, hinc ματρυλλείον, lupanar, et Angl. trull, Schrevelius.

Trollop, trŏl'.lŏp, a slattern. (Welsh trupa, a trollop.)

Trombone, trŏm'.bŏne, a wind instrument. (Italian trombone.)

Troop, a division of a regiment of cavalry. Trŏpe (1 syl., q.v.)

To troop, to collect in numbers, to march in a body; trooped (1 syl.), troop'-ing; troop'-er, a horse-soldier.

Troops, soldiers in general, an army.

Old English trepas; French troupe, troupes, v. s'attrouper.

Trŏpe (1 syl.), a figure of speech, chiefly of four kinds.

1. METAPHOR, mēt'.a.for, a similitude expressed in a word: as when Herod is called "that fox," "bridle your anger."
2. METONYMY, met'.ŏ.nŭm.y, one word put for another: as "He keeps a good table," "They have Moses" (i.e., the pentateuch).
3. SYNECDOCHE, sin.ek'.dŏ.ky, the whole put for a part or v. v.: as "Twenty head of cattle," "The country was flooded" (i.e., some particular part or parts).
4. IRONY, ī.rŏn.y, saying one thing and meaning the contrary: as "You are a pretty fellow" (i.e., a troublesome one), "These are nice goings on" (meaning very censurable behaviour).

Tropical, trŏ'.pŭ.kāl, figurative. Trop'ical, adj. of tropics.

Tropically, trŏ'.pŭ.kal.ly. Tropically, trŏp'.ŭ.kāl.ly.

Tropist, trŏ'.pist, one who uses tropes.

Latin trŏpus; Greek trŏpŏs (v. trŏphŏ, to turn), a turn of speech.

Tropæolum, trŏ.pee'.dŏ.lŭm (not trŏ'.pe.ŏ''.lŭm), Indian cress or nasturtium. (Latin tropæum, a war-trophy.)

The allusion is to the shield-like leaves and blood-stained petals.

Trophy, pŭ. trophŏez (Rule xlv.), trŏf'fŭz, anything taken from an enemy which can be shown as an evidence of victory, [museum] articles artistically arranged; trophied (2 syl.)

Latin tropæum; Greek trŏpaŏn, a trophy raised at a trŏpē (or turning of an enemy), from trŏpŏ, to turn.

Tropic, tröp'ik, one of the two smaller circles of a terrestrial globe marking the sun's greatest limit north or south of the equator. Each tropic is 23° 28' from the equator

The tropic north of the equator is the Tropic of Cancer.

The tropic south of the equator is the Tropic of Capricorn.

Latin trōpīcus; Greek trōpikōs (from trephō, to turn back, because when the sun has climbed to the highest point north he turns back to the south, and vice versa).

Tröt, a pace between a walk and a run, to trot; trött'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), trott'-ing, trott'-er. Pig's trotters, pig's feet for food. Sheep's trotters.

German trott, v. trotten; Welsh irotiaw, to go in a trot, troterth

Tröth (to rhyme with froth, Goth), fidelity, truth; troth'-less.

I plight thee my troth, I pledge my fidelity to you.

Troth-plighted, -pli' ted. (Old English treōwth.)

We have some dozen words in -oth, and four different ways of pronouncing it: thus

1. oth = ōth: both, sloth, quoth (and loth or leath).
2. oth = ōth: cloth, froth, Goth, moth, troth.
3. oth = ūth: doth.
4. oth = awth: wroth.

Troubadour, trōo'.ba.door'. Trouvere, trōo'.vair.

Troubadours, minstrels of the south of France, in the 11th, 12th, and 13th centuries. Their lays were songs of love and gallantry, or ballads of war and chivalry.

Trouveres, minstrels of the north of France, in the 12th, 13th, and 14th centuries. Their lays were satires and romances, tales of knavery and adventure. Sir W. Scott's Marmion, Lady of the Lake, Rokeby, &c., are excellent imitations of the Trouvère minstrelsy.

The meaning of the two words is identical. "Troubadour" is from the Provençal verb troubar; and this word, pronounced trouver in the Walloon dialect, gives trouvère. The meaning is to invent. Our word poet, from the Greek pōteo (to make or create), is about tantamount to the same thing.

Trouble, trub'l, anxiety, distress, disturbance, inconvenience, shifting of the strata of a coal-field, to disturb, to distress, to inconvenience; troubled (2 syl.), troub'ling, troub'ler.

Troublesome, trüb'l.süm, tiresome, giving inconvenience; troublesome-ness, troublesome-ly. Troublous, trüb'lüs.

French trouble, v. troubler; Latin turbare, by metathesis trubäre, to disturb; Greek turbē, thōrūds uproar (thouros loud).

- (?) I SHOULD NOT HAVE NEEDED TO HAVE TROUBLED MYSELF about the matter if my letter had been duly forwarded. Is this grammatically or idiomatically correct? No. "Need-to-trouble" or "Need-not-to-trouble" is really a compound or phrase verb, conjugated like any other verb, I-need-not-to-trouble, I-have-no-need-to-trouble, I-had-no-need-to-trouble, I-shall-not-need-to-trouble, I-shall-have-no-need-to-trouble, I-should-not-need-to-trouble, I-should-have-no-need-to-trouble, and so on through all the moods and tenses. What is said of this phrase applies to all others of a similar construction.

Trough, trōf (not trōw), a long hollow vessel open atop and used for holding food or water for cattle, chemical mixtures, &c., the channel which conveys water to a mill; (in Geol.) any sudden depression of strata by which they are made to assume a basin-like form. The trough of the sea, the long hollow between two waves.

Old Eng. trog, troh, or troch. (See Thorough for all similar words).

Troul, trōle, to sing [a round or catch]. Troll, trōlc. Trüll.

Troul, trouled (1 syl.), troul'-ing; troul'-er, to sing all round, to circulate the bowl. (Same as Troll.)

Troll, trolled (1 syl.), troll'-ing; troll'-er, to fish with a line which runs on a reel. (Welsh trol, v. trolian.)

Trull, a slattern, a trollop. (Greek [ma]trullé.)

Trounce (1 syl.), to beat with a stick; trounced (1 syl.), trounce'-ing, trounce'-er. (Fr. tronçon, a stump or stick broken off.)

Trousers, trou'zerz, a garment worn by men and boys; trouser, adj. as trouser-pocket, trouser-piece; trousered, trou'zerd, put into trousers. Trou'ser-ing, cloth for trousers.

Pairs which are united and not merely assorted (as gloves, shoes, stockings, bracelets, hinges, &c.) have no singular: as trousers, drawers, nippers, tongs, shears, nutcrackers, spectacles, &c.

Both trousers and gown are Welsh: trws, trwsiad, gwn.

Trouseau, plu. trouseaux, troo'sō, -sōze, the outfit of a bride.

French trouveau plu. trouseaux, from the German tross, baggage.

Trout (1 syl.), a fish of the salmon kind. Salmon-trout, sām'ōn..., a sea-trout next in value to salmon. Trout-coloured, -kū'l'erd, white with sorrel spots. Trout-stream, -streem. Trout-let, a small trout (-let, dim.) Trout'-ling (-ling, dim.)

O. E. truht; Lat. trocta, Gk. trōktēs, the greedy fish (trōgo, to devour). The trout is very voracious, and will devour any kind of animal food.

Trōve (1 syl.) See Treasure-trove.

Trouvere, troo'vair. (See Troubadour.)

Trōw (to rhyme with grōw, not with nōw), to think, to suppose; trowed (1 syl.), trow'-ing. Throw, to cast, to hurl.

"Trow," Old Eng. treōw[ian], past treōwode, past part. treōwod.

"Throw," O. E. thrāw[an], past throw, p.p. thrāwen or ge-thrawen.

Trowel, trōw'el, not trōw.el (trōw to rhyme with nōw, not with grōw), a tool used by bricklayers for spreading mortar, a tool used by gardeners for planting; trow'elled.

Fr. truille; Lat. trulla, i.e. trua with dim. (tru[v]ula, a little ladle).

Troy-weight, -wāte, a weight used by gold and silversmiths.

The usual derivation is from Troyes, in France, and it is said that the weight was brought to Europe from Grand Cairo by crusaders, but this suggestion is untenable, as the term was in common use in the reign of Edward the Confessor. For the same reason Dr. Trusler's suggestion (that it is a contraction of le-roy weight [pondus regis], standard weight in the reign of Edward I.) may be discarded. "Troy-weight" means London weight, in contradistinction to Avordupoise or Norman weight. London was called "Troy-novant" (British tri-nouhant, new-town), Trinobantum.

Truant, trū'ánt, an intruder, an idler, one absent from school without leave, idle; tru'ant-ed, absented from school without leave. To play truant, to shirk school.

French truand, "de tru, nom donné jadis en Bourgogne à un impôt onéreux qui réduisait souvent les contribuables à la mendicité" (i.e. to shirk the impost), Dict. universel.

Truce (1 syl.), a temporary suspension of arms. Truce-breaker, -brū' ker (not bree'ker), one who violates a truce.

Truce of God, a provision made by the church in 1010 forbidding combatants to fight between sunset on Wednesday and sunrise on the Monday following.

French trêve, from the German treue, a promise of fidelity.

Truck, a platform mounted on wheels, a railway wagon for the conveyance of goods, exchange, to barter by exchange; trucked (1 syl.), truck'ing, truck'age, the system of barter by exchange; truck'er. Truck-system, -sīs'tēm.

Truckle, trūk'l, to fawn, to give up to; truckled, trūk'ld; truck'ling, truck'ler. Truckle bed, a bed which can be pushed under another when not in use.

Old English truc[an] to truck, past trucode, past part. trucod.

This verb ought to be truc[ian], otherwise it is quite abnormal.

Truculent, trūk'kü.lěnt (not trū'kü.lěnt), murderously inclined, bloodthirsty; truc'ulent-ly. Truculence, trūk'kü.lěns; truculency. (Latin truculentia, trux; Greek truchō.)

Trudge (1 syl.), to jog on ploddingly, to walk; trudged (1 syl.), trudg'ing (R. xix.), trudg'ing-ly. Trudge off! begone.

Welsh trwyddo, to pass through; trwydd, thoroughfare.

True, trū, in accordance with truth, faithful, real, exact; (comp.) tru'er, (super.) tru'est. (These are in reality degrees of untrue, not of "true," the degrees of true would be nearly true, very nearly true, perfectly true. True'-ness.

Tru'-ly; tru-ism, trū'izm, something self-evident.

Truth, what is true; truth'ful, truth'ful-ly, truth'ful-ness.

True bill, the formula by which a grand jury approves [or finds] a bill of indictment. No true bill.

True-blue, inflexibly honest and faithful to his party.

A contraction of "true as Coventry blue," in reference to the blue thread of Coventry, once noted for its permanent dye.

True'-born, not mongrel. True'-bred, of true breed.

True'-hearted, -har'ted; true-hearted-ness.

True'-love (a corruption of Danish trolove, to betroth).

True-love-knot, -nōt, and True-lover's-knot (a corruption of Danish trolovelses knort, a betrothment bond).

Old English treōwa, treōwe, or trīwe, true; treōwa, treūth, or treōwth, truth; treōwlic adj., treōwlice adv., treōwnes trueneess.

Truffle, trūf'fl (not trū'fl), a fleshy fungus found underground; truffled, trūf'fld, stuffed with truffles (corrup. of Fr. truffe).

T-rule, a rule shaped like a T for cutting angles.

Right to a T, perfectly correct, squaring with a T-rule.

Trull, a slattern, a sloven. (Greek mātrullē.)

Matrullē (lena), quæ se matrem fingit: a μήτηρ, hinc ματρὺλλῆος (lupinar), et Angl. trull.—Schrevelius.

Trump, the turn-up card in a deal. Trumps, the same suit as the turn-up card, to play a trump-card on another suit, to boast, to deceive, to publish abroad, to herald with a trumpet, to fabricate; trumped, trūmpt; trump'-ing.

To trump up a story, to invent a story.

To trump [one's] partner's best card, to put a trump on your partner's winning card.

"Trump" (in cards), German trumpfen, v. trumpfen; Spanish triunfo, v. triunfar; Italian trionfo, trionfare; our triumph. The "trumps" are the cards which triumph over all the other suits. (See Latimer's Sermon on Cards.)

Trumpery, plu. trumperies, trūm'pēr'iz, a worthless thing, rubbish, trifling, rubbishy. (French tromperie, v. tromper.)

Trumpet, trūm'pēt, a wind-instrument, to proclaim, to announce with the blast of a trumpet; trump'-et-ed (Rule xxxvi.), trump'-et-ing, trump'-et-er, trump'-et-call.

Trumpet-flower, a flower trumpet-shaped, like honey-suckle.

Trumpet-shell. Trumpet-tongued, loud.

Speaking-trumpet, speek'ing..., a trumpet for increasing the sound of the voice and sending it in some particular direction. Ear-trumpet, used by deaf persons.

French trompette, diminutive of trompe, a horn.

Truncate, trūn'kate, to lop, to lop off the limbs, to maim; trun'-cat-ed (R. xxxvi.); truncat-ing, trūn'kāt'ing (R. xix.)

Truncation, trūn'kaj'shūn, state of being truncated.

Latin truncatio, truncātus, v. truncāre (truncus, the trunk).

Truncheon, trūn'shūn, a short staff, a baton, a staff of office.

French tronçon, a piece broken or cut off.

Trundle, trūn'dl, to roll a hoop; trundled, trūn'dld; trun'-dling. Trundle-head, the wheel that turns a millstone. (O. Eng. trendel, a circle; atrendlod, trundled.)

Trunk, the bole of a tree, a box, a proboscis; trunked (1 syl.), having a proboscis. Trunk-hose, short wide breeches gathered in above the knees or immediately under them.

(Trunk-hose belong to the reigns of Hen. VIII., Elizabeth, and James I.) Lat. truncus, a trunk (from the Gk. trēchnos, a trunk. Hesychius).

"Trunk" (of an elephant) is a corruption of the French trompe, the "trumpet" of the elephant.

Trunnion, trūn'yūn, one of the two axles of a cannon, mortar, howitzer, &c., to support it on the cheeks of its carriage.

French trognon (la tige d'un chou dont on a ôté les feuilles).

Truss, a bundle of hay = 56 lbs., a hand-packed bundle of dry goods, an apparatus used in cases of hernia, a prop to support a roof, to prepare a fowl for roasting, to bind.

Trussed, trust, skewered and prepared for roasting. Trust.

Truss'-ing. To truss up, to make close and tight as to truss up the hair, to truss [one] on a tree.

Fr. trousse, v. trousser; Germ. tross, baggage. "Trust," see below.

Trust, credit, reliance, confidence, a deposit confided to one's charge, to trust; trust'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), trust'-ing, trust'-ing-ly, trust'-er. Trustee, trust'ee', one who has property in trust for another; trustee'-ship (-ship, office of). Trust'-ful (Rule viii.), trust'-ful-ly, trust'-ful-ness.

Trustless, trust'-less-ly, trust'-less-ness.

Trust'-y, (comp.) trust'-i-er, (super.) trust'-i-est, trust'-i-ly, trust'-i-ness (Rule xi.) Trust-worthy, trust'-worthi-ness, trust'-worthi-ly.

Old English trēows[ian], past trēowsode, past part. trēowsod; Danish trøst, v. trøste, trøstiy, trøster, &c.

Truth, plu. truths. "Truth" (to rhyme with Ruth, youth), but "truths" (to rhyme with soothes, 1 syl.), veracity. In the Bible it sometimes means very true, truly, it is true.

Truth'-ful (Rule viii.), truth'-ful-ly, truth'-ful-ness.

Truth'-less, truth'-less-ly, truth'-less-ness. In truth.

Of a truth, in reality, certainly.

True, adj., (comp.) tru'-er, (super.) tru'-est, tru-ly, tru'-ism.

Old Eng. trēowth, trēow true (-th added to adj. converts them into abstract nouns), trēownes, trēowlic truly. (See Troth.)

Try, to attempt, to make an experiment on, to prove, to examine, to bring into a court-of-law; tries, trize; tried, tride; try'-ing, tri'-er. To try on, to fit on an article of dress.

Try'sail. Spencer. Spanker.

Trysail, a sail carried at the mainmast of a full-rigged brig. (Set with a boom and gaff.)

Spencer, a sail carried at the foremast and mainmast of a ship or bark. (Set with a boom and gaff.)

Spanker, a sail carried at the mizenmast of a ship or bark. (Set with a boom and gaff.)

Trial, tri'al, examination, test. Trial list, list of causes...

Fr. trier, to sort, to pick out; Lat. triero sup. tritum, to thresh. The idea is to "sift out the truth, and separate it from the false."

Tryst, trist, a rendezvous, to agree to meet; tryst-ing, trīs'ting, arranged before hand as trysting tree, trysting-place, trysting-day; tryst-ed, trīs'-ted. (Scotch.)

T-square, a rule in the shape of a T used by mechanics for making angles and obtaining perpendiculars.

Tüb, a wooden vessel for domestic uses. Tübe (1 syl., see below).

To tub, to put in a tub; tubbed, tübd; tubb'-ing (Rule i.)

Tube makes tubed (1 syl.); tubing, tü'bing

A tale of a tub, a cock-and-bull story, a rigmareole.

From Dean Swift's religious satire so called.

To throw a tub to a whale, to create a diversion in order to avoid a real danger, to bamboozle or mislead an enemy.

In whaling, when a ship is threatened by a whole school of whales, it is usual to throw a tub into the sea to divert their attention, and then to make off as fast as possible.

"Tub," Welsh twba; Dutch tobbe. "Tube," Fr. tube; Lat. tubus.

Tübe (1 syl.), a hollow cylinder for conveying fluids, &c., to furnish with tubes; tübed (1 syl.); tub-ing, tü'bing.

Tub makes tubbed (1 syl.), tubb'-ing. (See above.)

Tubular, tü'bü.lar, adj. of tube; tubulous, tü'bu.lüs, &c.

"Tube," Fr. tube; Lat. tubus. "Tub," Welsh twba; Dutch tobbe.

Turnip, tü'ber, a root of a knob-like shape as a turnip, potato, arrow-root, &c. Parsneps and carrots are spindle-shaped (tap-roots). Onions and tulips are bulbous (bulbs).

Latin tuber, a knob or knot in a tree, fruit like the apple, &c.

Tubercle, tü'ber.kl, a small hard local tumour, a little tuber; tubercular, tü'ber'.kü.lar, full of tubercles, caused by tubercles, prone to generate tubercles; tuberculate, tü'ber'.kü.läte (in Botany), having tubercles.

Tuberculous, tü'ber'.kü.lüs. Tuberiferous, tü'be.rif''.ë.rüs.

Tuberous, tü'be.rüs. Tuberoze, tü'berröze.

Tuberosity, tü'be.rös''.ä.ty. (Latin tübercülum, tüberösus.)

Tubular, tü'bü.lar, tube-shaped. Tubular boiler.

Tubular-bridge, a bridge consisting of a great iron tube through which a railway-train passes. Tü'buläted.

Tubulous, tü'bü.lüs, composed of tubes. Tü'bule (2 syl.)

Tübe (1 syl.), tubed (1 syl.); tub-ing, tü'bing.

Latin tübülarius, tübülätus, tübülus, tübüs.

Tück, a plait or fold in a frock, a small sword. To tuck up, to push the borders of bed-clothes under the bedding. To tuck [one] up, to do for, punish, or stab with a tuck. To tuck in, to gormandise. To tuck together, to pack closely together. Tucked, tükt; tuck'-ing. Tuck'-er, a frill worn on the upper part of a frock, a fuller.

German zucken, to shrink, to draw in.

Tuesday, tüze'.day, the third day of the week dedicated by the Scandinavians to their war-god Tuisco.

Tufa, tū'fah (a blunder for tufo), a light porous rock composed of scorïæ and ashes, any porous mineral compound.

Tufaceous, tū.fū'.shūs, adj. of tufa. (Italian tufo.)

Tuft (ought to be tuff), a cluster, a flower-head, a little bundle of hair, leaves, thread, &c., to adorn with a tuft; tuft'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), tuft-ing, tuft'-y. Tuft-hunter, one who seeks to curry favour with the aristocracy. (So called from the tuft or tassel in the college cap of noblemen in the University of Oxford.)

(At Cambridge, noblemen students wear a hat.)

Welsh tuwf; German zopf; French touffe. (Our -t is a blunder.)

Tug, a pull, a small steam-vessel used to tow ships, to tow, to drag, to haul; tugged (1 syl.), tugg'-ing (R. i.), tugg'-er, tugg'ing-ly. The tug of war, the brunt of battle.

Old English teog[an], teoh[an], or tog[an], past togte, past part. togen, togung, or teohh[ian], past teohhode, past part. teohhod.

Tuileries, twīl'.ĕ.rīz, a palace in Paris.

The word means tile-kilns. The palace is built on the site of some old tile-kilns. Till 1416 the site was called the sablonnière or sand-pits. Nicolas de Neuville built a house there in the 16th cent., which was purchased in 1518 by François I. for his mother.

Tuition, tū.ish'.ūn, education, school business, the vocation of a teacher. (Latin tuitio defence, v. tueor to protect.)

A "tutor" means a guardian. In Danish tugt means discipline, tugt-huus a house of correction, tugte to chastise, and tugte-mester.

Tulip, tū'.līp, a bulbous root which bears a cup-like flower.

French tulipe; Persian tuliban, a turban; Turkish tulban.

Tulle, tūle, a kind of lace. Twill, twīl, cloth with diagonal ribs.

"Tulle," Fr. tulle, so called from Tulle, in Fr., where it was made.

Tumble, tūm'.bl, a fall, to fall; tumbled, tūm'.blđ; tumbling, tūm'.bling. Tum'bler, one who tumbles, one who exhibits posture-making and tumbling, a drinking-glass, a pigeon which turns over on the wing.

Tumblerful, plu. tumblerfuls (not tumblersful), two or more tumblerfuls means the quantity called a "tumblerful" repeated two or more times, but two or more tumblers full means two or more tumblers all filled.

Tum'brel, a cart which may be tilted up.

Old Eng. tumbere a tumbler, v. tumb[ian], p. tumbode, p. p. tumbod. "Tumbrel," French tombereau; v. tomber, to fall, to turn over.

Tumefy, tū'.mĕ.fy, to swell, to rise in a tumour; tumefies, tū'.mĕ.fize; tumefied, tū'.mĕ.fide; tu'mefy-ing.

Tumefaction, tū'.me.fāk''.shūn, a swelling, a tumour.

Latin tumefacio, to cause to swell; French tuméfaction, v. tuméfier.

Tumid, tū'.mīd, swollen, distended, pompous, bombastic; tu'mid-ly, tu'mid-ness. Tumidity, tu.mīd'.ī.ty.

Tumescant, tū.mĕs'.sent (-sc inceptive, i. e., more and more.)

Lat. tumidus, tumescens gen. -entis; tumescō, to swell more and more.

Tumour, tū'mor, a swelling; tumoured, tū'mrd, swollen.

Fr. tumeur; Lat. tumor. This is one of the 19 words in -our vainly supposed to be of historic value, as a reminder that it comes to us from Latin through the French. As, however, scores of words so derived have dropped the u, and several words in -our are not French at all, the "trumpet makes a very uncertain sound," and more often deceives than guides aright. (See p. 769.)

Tumult, tū'mält, a commotion, an uproar, a disturbance.

Tumultuary, tu.mäl'tu.äry, disorderly, turbulent.

Tumultuous, tū'mäl'tu.us; tumultuously, -ness.

Latin tumultuarius, tumultuosus, tumultus (tuméo, to swell).

Tumulus, tū'mul.üs, plu. tumuli, tū'mu.li, a barrow or mound to mark a place of burial. (The head is placed north.)

A barrow formed of stones is a cairn. Tumular, adj. of tumulus. Tumulous, tū'mu.lus, containing tumuli.

"Tumulus," Latin tumulus, tumulosus. "Barrow," Old Eng. byrgen, a tomb. "Cairn," Welsh cairn, a heap, a tumulus.

Tun, Ton (both tän). Tüne (1 syl.) Ton, Tone (both töne).

Tun, four hogsheads or two pipes, to put into a tun;

tunned, tünd; tünn'-ing (R. i.) Tun-bellied, -bèl'.lîd.

Ton, 20 cwt., (in ship measure) 40 cubic feet.

Tune, a melody, to tune an instrument. (Italian tuono.)

Tön [töne], the mode, the fashion. (French ton.)

Tone, the timbre of an instrument. (Lat. tönus, Gk. tönös.)

"Tun," O. E. tunne; Lat. tina, a large tub; "Ton," Germ. tonne.

Tunding, tün'.ding, a beating with ashén sticks given at Winchester school by one of the monitors called præfects to a schoolfellow for breach of discipline. (Lat. tundo, to beat.)

Tune. Tonè. Ton, tone. (See above, Tun.)

Tüne, a musical air, to put musical instruments en rapport with each other or with some musical standard; tuned (1 syl.); tun-ing, tū'.ning (Rule xix.); tun-er, tū'.ner.

Tun-able, tū'.nä.b'l, musical; tun'able-ness, tun'ably.

Tune'-ful (Rule viii.), tune'ful-ly. Tune'-less.

Tu'ning-fork, an instrument for regulating the pitch of instruments. In tune, in good musical condition.

Out of tune, not in good musical condition.

The tuneful Nine, the nine muses. (See Muses.)

Italian tuono; French ton; Latin tönus; Greek tönös.

Tungsten, tüng'.stën, a metal sometimes called wolfram; tungsténic, tüng.stën'.ik, adj. of tungsten. Tungstic, tüng'.stik, obtained from tungsten as tungstic acid.

Tungstate, tüng'.stäte, a salt of tungstic acid and a base. -ate denotes a salt from an acid in -ic, i.e., containing a maximum of oxygen. (Danish tung sten, heavy stone.)

Tunic, tū'nik, a loose frock worn by boys, a natural covering, a seed-cover. Tu'nicated (in Bot.), covered with a membrane.

Tunicle, tū'nī.kl, a little tunic (-le, diminutive).

Tunicata, tū'nī.kā'tah, a class of headless molluscs protected by a leathery "tunic" instead of a shell.

Old English tunece or tunice; Latin tunica. In Rome, men wore an under tunic, an over tunic, and a toga. Women wore an under tunic, an over tunic, and a palla. Common people wore only tunics. White tunics were restricted to the better sort. Knights and senators wore tunics with studs. (See Adrianus Junius De pictura vet. ii. 8.)

Tunisian, tū.nīs'ān, adj. of Tunis.

Tunnage for tonnage, the number of cubic feet which a ship contains (40 cubic feet being a ton). The tonnage of a ship regulates the weight of goods it is licensed to carry.

Tūn'nel, a vaulted underground passage through a hill or under a river, road, or street; to make a tunnel; tunnelled, tūn'neld (Rule iii., -EL); tun'nell-ing.

Tun'ners, men who fill casks on shipboard with water.

This word presents a very curious phenomenon. We borrowed it from the Fr. [en] tonnoir (a funnel), but since the introduction of railways the French have taken from us their own word Anglicised.

Funny, plu. tunnies, tūn'ntz, the Spanish mackerel.

Latin thunnus; Greek thunnōs (from thund, to dart along).

Tūp, a ram; fem. Ewe, you, the dam of sheep. Tūp'-lamb, a male lamb; ewe-lamb, a female lamb. After the removal of the first fleece both are called shearlings. After the removal of the second fleece the tup shearling is called a two-year tup, and the female (if meant for the butcher) is called a wether, but if for lambing a ewe.

"Tup," Gk tuptō, to strike (i.e. to butt). "Ram," Old Eng. ram; the v. ram means to jam against (i.e. to butt). "Ewe," cowu, plu. ewa. "Lamb," O. Eng. lamb. "Shearling," O. Eng. scē[an], to shear, with -ling, diminutive. "Wether," Old Eng. wether.

Tur'bān, an eastern head-dress; tur'baned (2 syl.), wearing a turban. (Fr. turban, corruption du mot arabe tulban.)

Turbid, tur'bid, muddy, not clear; tur'bid-ness, tur'bid-ly.

Per-turb, to make turbid. Disturb, to trouble, to disarrange.

Latin turbidus (v. turbare), perturbare, disturbare.

Turbine, tur'bin (not tur.bine'), a horizontal water-wheel.

Turbinidæ, tur.bīn'ā.dē, a family of molluscs having turbate shells. Turbo, plu. turbines, tur'bi.neze [or turboes], one of the turbinidæ, as the periwinkle.

Turbinate, tur'bi.nate, shaped like a top or inverted cone, wreathed conically, spiral; turbinated, tur'bi.nā.ted.

Turbation, -bi.nay''shūn. (Lat. turbo, plu. turbīnēs, a top.)

Turbot, tūr'.bōt, a large flat-fish. (French turbot.)

Turbulent, tūr'.bū.lent, disorderly, insubordinate; turbulent-ly.

Turbulence, tūr'.bū.lense; turbulency, tūr'.bū.lēn.sy.

Latin turbulentus (turbūla a little crowd, turba a crowd).

Tur'cōman, plu. Turcomans (not Turcomen), a native of Turcomania or that part of Armenia which belongs to Turkey. (Turk-imams, Turks of the true faith.)

Turcos, tūr'.kōze, native Algerian infantry officered by Frenchmen. The cavalry are Spahis.

-ture (suffix to abstract nouns), as adventure, nature.

Some words with this suffix are concrete: as picture, aperture, &c.

Tureen, tu'reen' (a blunder for terreen), a deep vessel for holding soup, sauce, &c. (French terrine, an earthen pan, terre.)

Turf, sward, peat, a race-course, horse-racing, to cover with sods; turfed, turft; turf'-ing, turf'-y, turf'-iness, turf'-en, adj.

Old English turf, v. turf[ian], past turfode, past part. turfod.

Turgid, tūr'.djid, swelling, bombastic; turgid-ly, turgid-ness.

Turgidity, tur.djid'ī.ty, bombast, a swollen state.

Tur'gent, tumid; turgescent, tūr'.djēs'.sent, growing larger and larger (-sc- inceptive); turgescence, tūr'.djēs'.sense; turgescency, tūr'.djēs'.sēn.sy, inflation, turgidity.

Lat. turgidus, turgescens gen. turgescentis, v. turgesco (turgeo, to swell).

Turk, an Ottoman, a cruel tyrannical man. Turk'-ish (-ish added to nouns means "like," added to adj. it is dim.)

Turkey, the country of the Turks. Turkey, plu. turkeys (not turkies, Rule xiii.), a domestic fowl originally from North America, so called from the Turkey-red wattle of the male bird or Turkey-cock.

The female bird is called a Turkey [or Turkey-hen], but without reference to sex both birds are called Turkeys.

Turkey-red, a fine durable red produced from madder.

Turkey-stone, a hone for sharpening cutlery.

Turkey-sugar, a white sweetmeat in sticks like sugar-barley.

Turkish delight, a confection of honey and gum, &c.

Turk-ism, turk'.izm, the habits and manners of a Turk.

Turquoise, tūr'.kwoize', a precious stone from Turkey or rather from Persia.

Turk's'-cap, Turk's'-head, -hēd, names of plants.

Turcomans. Turks. Turcos. Turquoise, tūr'.kwoize.

Turcomans, a native of Turcomania or that part of Armenia which is subject to the Sultan of Turkey. The word is Turk-imams (Turks of the true faith) in contradistinction to the miscellaneous subjects of the Sublime Porte.

Turks, Ottomans, about one-third of the Turkish empire.

Turcos, native Algerian infantry officered by Frenchmen.

Turquoise, a precious stone brought from Turkey or Persia.

Turmeric, tūr'.mĕ.rĭk, a plant which yields a yellow dye.

Turmeric paper, paper stained yellow with turmeric and used as a test for free alkali. Litmus paper, a paper stained blue with litmus and used as a test for acids.

An alkali changes turmeric paper brown.

An acid changes litmus paper red.

Fr. terre mĕrite; Ital. turtumaglio. Thompson says Hind. or Sanskrit zur (yellow), mirich (pepper).

Turn, a bend, a twist, a short walk, a good office, that which comes by rotation, to turn; turned (1 syl.), turn'-ing.

Turn'-er, one who forms articles by a lathe; turn'ĕry.

Turn'key, plu. turn'keys (Rule xiii.), a prison official.

Turn'-coat, -kōte, one who forsakes his [political] party or changes his opinions and principles.

The dominions of the Duke of Saxony were bounded in part by France, and one of the early dukes hit upon the device of a coat blue on one side and white on the other. When he wished to be thought in the French interest he wore the white outside, otherwise the outside colour was blue. Whence he was nicknamed "Emanuel Turncoat" (Scots' Mag., Oct., 1747).

The French tourne cōte (turn-side) is far more likely.

Turn'-pike (2 syl.), a public road on which tolls are exacted; turnpike-road. Turnpike-gate, the gate where road tolls are to be paid.

Turn'-spit, a machine for turning a spit in roasting.

Turn'spit-dog, a dog formerly employed to turn the spit in roasting, one who has all the toil without the profit.

Turn'-stile (2 syl.), a revolving bar or frame for admitting foot passengers to and fro a lane, pier, &c.

Turn'-table, tā'bl, a revolving platform on a railway for altering the direction of carriages or locomotives.

Turn'-ing-point, a crisis. Turn'-out, a strike by workmen, an equipage, a display.

By turns', alternately. To a turn', to a nicety.

To take a turn, to take a short walk.

To take [it] by turns, to take part alternately.

To turn about, to change the direction of the face.

To turn an honest penny, to make a trifling profit.

To turn aside, to avert, to deviate from a course.

To turn away, to dismiss from service, to avert.

To turn down, to fold down, to send back a [boy] or class to learn a lesson better.

- To turn in, to fold in, to go to bed.
- To turn off, to dismiss from service, to stop the supply of gas or water, to hang a criminal. To be turned off.
- To turn on, to set running, to attack, to set [a dog] to attack. To turn upon, to retort angrily.
- To turn out, to go or drive out, to leave, to expel, to strike as workmen, to put to pasture, to get out of bed.
- To turn over, to examine, to transfer.
- To turn over a new leaf, ...leef, to begin a new course.
- To turn tail, to run away, to retreat ignominiously.
- To turn to, ...too, to set to work, to have recourse to.
- To turn [one's] back on, to forsake, to quit with scorn.
- To turn [one's] head, to bewilder, to infatuate.
- To turn the head away, to look in another direction.
- To turn the scale, to change the balance from one side to another, to alter the position of affairs.
- To turn the stomach, ...stüm'äk, to produce nausea.
- To turn the tables, to reverse the order.
- To turn the table on [one], to bring a counter charge against an accuser.
- To turn up, to bend upwards, to come to light, to happen.
- Old English tyrn[an], past tyrnde, past part. tyrned, tyrning; or turn[ian], past turnede, past part. turned, turnigend-lic.
- Turnip, tür' nüp (not tür' nüp). Parsnip, also spelt Parsnep. (Strictly speaking these words should be turneap and parsneap.) Tur'nip-fly, plu. turnip-flies, -flize, an insect which infects young turnips (hal'tica nem'orum).
- O. Eng. næpe, Lat. nāpus, Dan. turnip, a turnip, with tur (round). "Parship or Parsnep," a corruption of pastinac, from Lat. pastināca (pastinūm, a dibble), pars-nip or pars-nep means a dibble-turnip or turnip in the shape of a dibble. There is no reason why the final syl. of turnip and parsnip should not be alike.
- Turnsol, heliotrope supposed to turn in the direction of the sun. Fr. tourne-sol. "Heliotrope" is Gk. hēlios trepō, I turn to the sun.
- Turpentine, tür' pën.tine (should be terbintine), an oleo-resinous fluid which flows from the pine, larch, fir, &c.
- Germ. terpentin; Lat. terebinthus; Gk. terebinthos; the word is a contraction of the adj. terebinthinos (ter'binthin').
- Turpitude, tur' pī.tüde, baseness. (Latin turpitudō, turpis.)
- Turquoise, tür' kwōize. Turcos, tür' kōze. (Both French.)
- Turquoise*, a precious stone brought from Turkey or Persia.
- Turcos*, native Algerian infantry officered by Frenchmen.

Turret, tŭr'rĕt, a small spire or tower; tur'ret-ed, furnished with turrets. Turret-ship, an iron-clad war-ship in which heavy guns are mounted within iron turrets. Mon'itor, an iron-clad ship without turrets. (Lat. turris, a tower.)

Turtle, tŭr'.tl, a species of pigeon (also called turtle-dove, tŭr'.tl dŭv), an edible sea-tortoise. Turtle-shell.

Turtle-soup, soup made with the sea-tortoise.

Mock turtle, imitation turtle soup made with calf's head.

"Turtle" (dove), Old English turtel or turtle; Latin turtur.

"Turtle" (sea-tortoise). Should be tortle or tortul; Latin tortus a tortuous gait, tortŭlus dim., the creature with a tortuous gait.

"Tortoise" is also from tortus, in French tortue. In Spanish the sea-turtle is tortuga, and tortuosity tortura.

Tuscan, tŭs'.kăn, adj. of Tuscany. Tuscan-straw or Leghorn.

Tuscan (order of architecture), one of the five ancient orders wholly without ornaments of any kind.

The other 4 orders were the Dor'ic, Ion'ic, Corin'thian, and Com'posite.

Tŭsh! an interjection of rebuke or contempt, don't talk nonsense!

Tŭsk, a long pointed eye-tooth; tusked, tuskt, having tusks as elephants and boars. (Old English tusc, an eye-tooth.)

Tussle, tŭz'.l. Tousle, tou'.zl (varieties of the same verb).

Tussle, to struggle, to wrestle, to have a hard contest; tussled, tŭz'.ld; tussling, tŭz'.ling; tussler, tŭz'.ler.

Tousle, to pull one about so as to rumple one's toilet; tousled, tou'.zld; tousling, touze'.ling; tousler, touze'.ler.

German zausen, to tousle or tousle; Danish tosse, to act like a fool; Welsh tosio, to toss.

Tut! or tut, tut! an exclamation of rebuke, not true! no, no!

Tutor, tu'.tor (Rule xxxvii.), a teacher, one who has the care of children; (in civil law) a guardian; (in the universities) one who superintends what are termed lectures (lessons), to teach, to correct; tutored, tŭ'.trd; tu'tor-ing, tutor-ship (-ship, office of).

Tutorial, tŭ'.tor'rĭ.ăl, adj. of tutor; tutorial-ly.

Tutelage, tu'.tĕ.lage. Tutorage, tu'.ter.age.

Tutelage, state of being under a tutor or guardian.

Tutorage, education (-age, work of, state of).

Tutelar, tŭ'.tĕ.lar, adj. guardian; tutelary, tŭ'.tĕ.lă.ry.

Tutor-ess, a female tutor. This word exists, but is not in use. The tendency is to abolish the distinctions between male and female employments: thus authoress, poetess, instructress are almost as strange as orator-ess, speaker-ess, and writer-ess would be.

Tutti, tu'.ti, (in Mus.) all performers to play in full concert (Ital.)

Tutty, tŭt'ty, impure oxide of zinc from the chimneys of smelting furnaces. (Fr. tutie "mot d'origine arabe." Bouillet.)

Twaddle, twɔd'.dl, weak silly talk, mere prate, to twaddle; twaddled, twɔd'.dlɔ; twaddling, twɔd'.lɪŋ; twad'dling-ly; twaddler, twɔd'.lɪr. (O. E. twædding, fawning.)

Twain, two. (Old English twēgen, twām, twém, twá, two.)

Twäng', a sharp sound like that from the spring of a bow, a nasal or provincial tone of voice, a disagreeable flavour, to shoot an arrow, to make a twanging noise; twanged (1 syl.), -ing. (Germ. zwäng, Dutch dwang, Dan. tvang.)

'Twas, twɔz, cont. of it was. 'Twere, twɪr, cont. of it were.

Tweak, tweek, a pull or jerk, to pinch or jerk; tweaked (1 syl.), tweak-ing. (O. E. twice[ian], p. twiccede, p.p. twicced.)

Tweed, an undressed woollen cloth woven diagonally.

This word is a pure blunder, being a mistake for twill or tweel, imperfectly written and misread. The mistake was, however, adopted by James Locke, of London, after the error was discovered, the word being especially suitable, as these goods were largely manufactured in the valley of the Tweed. (See "Border Advertiser.")

Tweedledum and tweedledee, twɛ'.dl.dʌm, twɛ'.dl.dɛ, difference without distinction, two things almost exactly alike.

The happy conceit is due to J. Byrom, stenographer, who wrote the following jeu d'esprit on the Handel and Bononcini musico-political squabble. The Handel faction was headed by the Prince of Wales, that of Bononcini by the Duke of Marlborough.

"Some say, compared to Bononcini,
That Mynheer Handel's but a ninny;
Others aver that he to Handel
Is scarcely fit to hold a candle.
Strange all this difference should be Twixt tweedledum and tweedledee."

Tweezers, twɛ'.zɜz, very small nippers for pulling thorns from the flesh. (Old English twicc[ian], to twitch.)

Pairs consisting of two articles joined together have no singular, but pairs consisting of two assorted articles have both numbers: thus tongs, pincers, nippers, shears, tweezers, &c. have no singular; but shoes, gloves, hinges, sheets, curtains, &c. have both numbers.

Twelve (1 syl.), a dozen. Twelfth, ordinal of twelve.

A twelve-month, a year. This day twelve-months, a year hence. Twelve-pence, a shilling, Twelve-pennies, -pen'.nɪz. Twelfth-cake, an iced plum-cake for twelfth-day (January 6). Twelfth-night, -nite, the eve of the epiphany, twelve days after Christmas day.

Old Eng. twelfe, twelf, or twelf, twelf-feald twelve-fold, twelf-hund twelve hundred (1200), twelf-mōnth twelve-month, twelf-hynde-mann one of the upper twelve hundred, so called because his wergild was 1200 shillings. Churls were called twyhynde because their wergild was 200 shillings. "Twelfth," Old English twelfte.

The change of -f or -fe for -ve in "twelve" is not to be commended, seeing that v is not an Anglo-Saxon letter.

Twenty, phu. twenties, twɛn'.tɪz, a score. Twen'tieth, its ordinal. Twentyfold. Twentyfours, (in Printing) a sheet of paper folded into 24 leaves (or 48 pages), a book of this size is technically called a 24mo., plu. 24mos.

Old English twentig, twenti, or teontig. "Twentieth," Old English twentigtha, twentigotha, or twentigothe.

Twice (1 syl.), two times. (Old Eng. tuwá, twýwa, or tweowá.)

(?) TWICE ONE is TWO (or) TWICE ONE are TWO (multiplication).

(?) TWO AND TWO is FOUR (or) TWO AND TWO are FOUR (addition).

Twice one is two is the more correct: the twice or double of one is two, twice or double one and the result is two. The twofold of one is two, or one taken two-times is equal to two. Two, three, &c., which have a plu., cannot in the sing. number govern a verb plu. So two and two is four means a number called two added to two makes it four, to two add a two and the sum is four, two added to a two makes it equal to four.

Twiddle, twid'dl, to twirl, as to twiddle [one's] thumbs; twiddled, twid'dld; twiddling, twid'ling; twiddler.

Dutch dwarlen; German querlen to twirl, with diminutive.

Twig, a shoot, to catch one's meaning; twigg'-y (R. i.), twigged (1 syl.), twigg'-ing. ("Twig" (a shoot), O. E. twig or twh.)

"Twig" (to comprehend), Old Eng. wit-an, to know; Lat. vid-eo.

Twilight, twi'lite. Dusk. Dawn.

Twilight, the semilight before sunrise and after sunset.

Dusk, the shading off of evening twilight into dark.

Dawn, the lifting up of morning twilight into day-break.

"Twilight," O. Eng. twæon-lecht, doubtful light. This exists in our region while the sun is between the horizon and 18° below it.

"Dusk," Old English dwæsc[an], to extinguish. This word is improperly applied to the glooming before daybreak.

"Dawn," Old Eng. dagung, daying; v. dag[ian], to bring day.

Twill (Rule viii.), a cloth with a diagonal-ribbed surface, to weave a twill; twilled (1 syl.), twill'-ing. 'Twill, it will.

O. Eng. twi-lln, two threads (Lat. bilix, bi-[bis]lucium double thread, the weft-thread passing over one and under two of the warp-threads. Twills are now made in which the weft-thread passes under more than two weft-threads.

Twin, one of two born of the same parent at the same time; twin-born, twin-brother, twin-sister, twin-likenesses.

Old English ge-twin, a twin (from twi or twý, two).

Twine, cord with two [or more] threads twisted together, to twist together, to place or turn round; twined (1 syl.); twin-ing, twi'ning (Rule xix.); twi'ning-ly, twin-er.

Old English twín, v. twín[an], past twinde, past part. twined.

Twinge (1 syl.), a pinch, a shock of pain, a rebuke of conscience, to pinch, &c.; twinged (1 syl.), twing'-ing (Rule xix.)

Old Eng. twicc[ian], to twitch, past twiccode, past part. twiccod.

Twinkle, twín'.kl, a shining with a quivering light, a glistening merry sparkle of the eye, to shine with a quivering light; twinkled, twín'.kld; twink'ling, twink'ling-ly.

Old English twinc[ian], past twinclede, past part. twincled,

Twirl, a rapid circular motion, a quick rotation, to twist, &c.; twirled (1 syl.), twirl'-ing. (Germ. queslen, to twirl.)

Twist, a cord made by winding separate parts round each other, a movement round, a contortion, a sprain, an obliquity of mind, to twist; twist'-ed (R. xxxvi.), twist'-ing, twist'-er.

Old English ge-twys[an], past getwyste, past part. getwist.

Twit, to taunt; twitt'-ed (R. i. xxxvi.), twitt'-ing, twitt'-ing-ly, twitt'-er. (O. E. ed-wiht a reproof, v. ed-wit[an] to twit.)

Twitch, a jerk, a slight pull, to twitch; twitched (1 syl.), twitch'-ing, twitch'-er; twitch'-grass, couch-grass.

Old English twice[an], past twiccode, past part. twiccod.

Twit'ter, a little tremulous noise like that of a swallow, to twit'ter; twit'tered, twit'trd; twit'ter-ing, twit'ter-er.

German zitiern; Dutch kwelleren; Archæic English didder.

'twixt, contraction of betwixt, between.

"Betwixt," O. Eng. be-twix, betwys, or betwysst (be-, twi or twy two).

"Between," Old English be-tweonum, betweonan, or betwynan.

Two, Too, To (all too). Toe, tō. Tōw (to rhyme with grōw).

Two, plu. twos (Rule. xlii.), a couple, one less than three.

Two'-edged (2 syl.) Two'-faced (2 syl.) Two'-fold.

Two'-handed. Two'-handled, -hān'.dld. Two'-masted.

Two'pence, tūp'nce. Twopenny, worth two-pence.

Two-pennies, pēn'.iz. Twopenny-halfpenny, tūp'.pēn ny hay'.pēn.ny, of small value, cheap and worthless.

Two'pence is the collective plural, two pennies the numerical plural. An article costs two'pence, but a couple of penny-pieces are two pennies.

O. E. twā, twis, tūw, or tū, twā-feald twofold, twā hund two hundred.

"Too," O. E. tō. "To," O. E. to. "Toe," O. E. tā. "Tow," O. E. tow.

-ty (Latin postfix -tas; Fr. -té), endowed with, possessed of: as beauty, bounty, charity, captivity, cruelty, &c.

Tycoon, tī.koon', the executive ruler of Japan.

Mikado, mī.kay'.dō, the priest-king of Japan, to whom the tycoon pays homage.

Tychonic system, tī.kōn'.ik sis'.tem, the astronomical system of Tycho [Brahe, brah'.he, generally called bray].

Tympanum, tīm'.pā.nūm, plu. tympana, tīm'.pā.nah, the drum of the ear; tympanic, tīm'.pān'.ik, adj.

Tympan and frisket (of a printing press).

The tympan is a parchment frame on which the sheet to be printed is laid. The frisket is a light latticed cover, working on a hinge, which folds over the tympan to preserve the sheet in its place and keep its margin clean. The whole is attached to the carriage of the press.

Lat. tympanum, a drum; Fr. tympan (so called because it is covered with parchment tightly strained like a drum-head),

Type, tipe, the metal forms of letters used in printing.

Beginning with the smallest type in ordinary use, the following are the names of the different sizes used in printing: Diamond, pearl, ruby, nonpareil, emerald, minion, brevier, bourgeois, long primer, small pica, pica, and English. The text of this book is in brevier, the notes in nonpareil. Pica (double the size of nonpareil) is the printers' standard of leads. A complete fount of type contains 107,100 letters, viz.: of e 12,000, i 9000, a 8500, i n o s 8000, h 6400, r 6200, d 4400, l 4000, u 3400, m c 3000, f 2500, v y 2000, g p 1700, b 1600, v 1200, k 800, q 500, j x 400, z 200, , 4500, . 2000, ; 800, : 600, ? 200.

Type, a symbol, the distinctive character of a disease, the original conception of created things in the "mind" of the Creator, the impress of a coin, &c.; typical, tīp'ā.kāl, emblematic, prefigurative; typical-ly.

Typify, tīp'ā.fy; typifies, tīp'ā.fize; typified, tīp'ā.fide; typify-ing, tīp'ifi-er. Typifaction, tīp'ā.fūk''shūn.

Type-founder, a manufacturer of type. Type-metal.

Lat. typus; Gk. tupos, a stamp, mould, impression, &c. (from tupto).

Typhoid, tī'foid. Typhus, tī.fūs.

Typhus, a malignant fever (supposed to be infectious) and characterised by skin-eruption and great debility.

Typhoid, the mild typhus which lasts from 18 to 28 days.

Typhous, tī'fūs, adj. of typhus. Typhomania, tī'fo.mā''nī.ah, the delirium which accompanies typhoid fevers.

Greek tuphos, smoke or mist, hence stupor or coma.

"Typhoid," Greek tuphos eidos, typhus-like.

Typhon, tī'fōn. Typhoon, tī.foōn'.

Typhon, the evil genius in Egyptian mythology. In classic mythology, a fire-breathing monster of the primitive world, the author of hurricanes, whirlwinds, and storms.

Typhoon, a storm-wind that visits the seas of southern China between June and November.

"Typhoon," Gk. tuphós, a furious whirlwind, held by the Greeks to be the work of the giant Typhon; Latin typhon, a hurricane.

Typography, tī.pōg'.rā.fy, the art, &c., of printing; typographic; tīp'.o.grāf''āk; typographical, tīp'.o.grāf''ā.kāl; typographical-ly. Typographer, tī.pōg'.rā.fer.

Greek tupos grapho, I write with type.

Typology, tī.pōl'.ō.djy, the science of types and emblems.

Greek tupos lōgós, a discourse about types.

Tyrant. Despot. Aristocrat. Emperor. King. Sovereign.

Tyrant, tī'rant, properly means one who obtains sovereignty by usurpation. Now it means anyone who is overbearing and oppressive whether a sovereign or not.

Despot, des'.pot, one who is "a law unto himself."

Autocrat, an absolute sovereign, his legislative assemblies make laws for his subjects and assist him in ruling but he himself is independent and irresponsible.

Emperor, properly means a military sovereign. The title is now applied to the sovereign of a great military nation or the sovereign of several nations.

King, a constitutional sovereign, who rules according to a fixed system of government and whose power is modified by legislative assemblies more or less chosen by the people.

Sovereign, the highest in dignity in a royal state. In the United States of America the "supreme governor" is called a President.

Tyrant; tyrannical, tī.răn'.nī.cūl; tyran'nical-ly.

Tyranni-cide, tī.răn'.nī.side, murder of a tyrant.

Tyrannise, tī'răn.nīze; tyrannised, tī'răn.nīzd; tyrannis-ing, tī'răn.nī.zing (Rule xix.); tyr'annis-er.

Tyrannous, tī'răn.nūs; tyr'annous-ly.

Tyranny, plu. tyrannies, tī'răn.nīz, tyrannical conduct.

"Tyrant," Lat. tyrannus a tyrant, tyrannis tyranny, tyrannicidium, tyrannicide; Gk. tyrannos, tyrannia, tyrannikós, tyrannis;

Doric kōirānds from kūrōs, kūrōs lord or master.

(The word "tyrant" was first used by Archilochus about B.C. 700.)

"Despot," Greek despôtēs, despôtikós, despozō to obtain mastery (desmos a bond, deo to bind, Dr. Donnegan).

"Autocrat," Greek autos krātōs, self dominion, krateo, to rule.

"Emperor," Fr. empereur; Lat. imperātor, commander (v. imperāre, to command with authority, i.e. prorsus paro, Perottus).

"King," Old Eng. cýning, cýnig, or cýng (cýne, gentle, kind). In the Sermon on the Mount it was said "Blessed are the meek [gentle], for they shall inherit the earth" (Matt. v. 5).

"Sovereign," Lat. suprēmus [superānus], through French souverain.

Tyrian, tī'rī.ăn, adj. of Tyre. Tyrian dye. Tyrian purple.

Tyro, plu. tyroes or tyros. (As all the other words in -ro make the plural in -roes, the former is to be preferred. We have but four examples: hero-es, negro-es, [tyro-es], and zero-es. The Spanish sombrero makes the plu. sombreros.)

Tyrolese, tī'rō.lēze, adj. of Tyrol, a native of the Tyrol.

-ese in proper names is both sing. and plu.: a Tyrolese, the Tyrolese.

Tzetze, zēt'.zy, an African fly whose bite is fatal to animals.

U and the "indefinite article" An.

When u-, ew-, or eu- at the beginning of a word has the sound of yū-, "a" (not an) is to be set before it: as "a u-nit" = (a yu-nit), "a useful book" = (a yuseful book), "a ewe" = (a yu), "a Eu-ro-pean" = (a yū.ro.pec'an).

The "y" is a species of digamma.

But when u is not sounded as yu-, "an" (not a) is to be employed: as "an um-pire" (not a yum-pire), "an ug-ly sight" (not a yug-ly sight), "an unusual phrase", (not a yun-usual phrase).

Ubiquitous, ū.bīk'.wī.tūs, omnipresent; ubiquitous-ly.

Ubiquity, ū.bīk'.wī.ty. (French ubiquité; Latin ubique.)

Ud'der, bag and milk-vessels of a cow or other large quadruped.

Old English uder; Greek outhar (thaó, to suckle).

Udometer, ū.dōm'.ē.ter, a rain-gauge (should be hydrometer).

Greek hudōr metron, a water measurer.

In Greek hudōr prefixed is always hudro-, in English hydro- (hydr- before vowels): as hydr-aulics, hydr-acid; hydro-cephalus, hydro-gen, hydro-pathy, hydro-phobia, &c., see p. 467. If the word hudōr is preferred, at any rate the initial aspirate should be kept.

Ugh! interjection of horror or of shuddering. (German hu!)

Ug'ly, (comp.) ugli-er, (super.) ugli-est, the reverse of handsome; ugli-ness, ugli-ly. (Welsh hagr, v. hagrâu or hagru.)

In Old Eng. we have the ugge, to stand in abhorrence of: as "Ilk man may ugge bothe yhowng and awlde" (Hampole, MS. Boices).

Uh'lans or U'lans, ū'.lanz, a kind of militia among the modern Tartars, a Polish light cavalry, the famous light cavalry of the Prussian army employed in foraging, &c.

Polish hulan or ulan, bearer of the ula or lance.

Ukase, ū.kāse', a Russian proclamation or imperial order having the force of law. (Russ. ukas, kasatj, to speak or say.)

Ulcer, ūl'.ser, a running sore; ulcerated, ūl'.sē.rā.ted, affected with ulcers. Ulceration, ūl'.sē.ray''.shūn. Ulcered, ūl'.serd, having ulcers; ulcerous, ūl'.sē.rūs, adj. of ulcer; ulcerous-ly, ulcerous-ness.

Latin ulcus gen. ulceris, ulcerōsus, v. ulcerāre supine ulcerātum.

Ulema, ū.leē'.mah, a Turkish college or body corporate composed of the imams (ministers of religion), muftis (doctors of law) and cādes or judges. (Arab. ulema, the wise men.)

Ul'mus, a genus of trees including elms; ulmic acid, ūl'.mīk...., an acid exuded from elms, &c. Ulmīn, ūl'.mīn, a dark-brown substance exuded from the bark of elms, &c.

Latin ulmus, so called (according to Isidore) "quod uliginosis locis et humidis melius proficit."

Ulster, ūl'.ster, a long warm overcoat. So named from Ulster, the most northern province of Ireland.

Uterior, ūl.tee'.rī.or, more remote. Uterior object, an arrière pensée. Ultima, ūl'.tī.mah, most remote, furthest.

Ultima Thule, ūl'.tī.mah t'hū'.lee, the most remote spot of the habitable world, the ultimate object of our hopes or ambition, the very end of the end.

Virgil (Georg. i. 30) says "tibi serviat ultima Thule," probably Shetland was intended. Gothic tiule, most remote land.

Ultimate, ũl'.tĩ.māte, opposite of proximate, prɔx'.ĩ.māte.

Ultimate end [of an action], the final result.

Proximate end [of an action], the immediate result.

"For want of a nail the shoe was lost" (the proximate end), "for want of a shoe the horse died, for want of a horse the man..." and so on to the end of the series or ultimate end.

Ultimate analysis, [ũl'.tĩ.māte a.nāl'.ĩ.sĩs], the resolution of a substance into its absolute elements.

Proximate analysis, the resolution of a substance into its ingredients.

The proximate analysis of bread would be its separation into flour, water, salt, and yeast; but the ultimate analysis would be hydrogen, oxygen, nitrogen, chloride of sodium, and so on.

Ultimate ratio [...rā'.shĩ.o], the approach of two or more numbers towards each other till the difference between them is too small for any assignable numeral.

Thus suppose 2 and 4 the two numbers, by halving them we get 1, 2; $\frac{1}{2}$, 1; $\frac{1}{4}$, $\frac{1}{2}$; $\frac{1}{8}$, $\frac{1}{4}$; $\frac{1}{16}$, $\frac{1}{8}$, until at last the fractions are infinitesimally small, and the difference between them too minute to be expressed.

Prime ratio [primē 1 syl.], the reverse of the preceding.

Ultimatum, plu. ultima, ũl'.tĩ.may''tũm, plu. -may''tah, the final conditions which will be submitted, the proposal from which no further concession will be made.

Ultimo, ũl'.tĩ.mō (written ult.); the last month.

"Ultimo" is the Latin ultimo [mense], the month just past.

"Proximo" is the Latin proximo [mense], the next month.

"Instant" is the Latin instanti [mense], the present month.

Latin ultērior (comp.) and ultimius (super.) of the obsolete adj. ulter, which gives the prep. ultra (beyond); French ultimatum.

Ultra, ũl'.trah, out and outer: as ultra radical, ultra democrat; ultra-ism, ũl'.trah.ĩzm; ultra-ist, ũl'.trah.ĩst. (Lat. ultra.)

Ultrā- (Lat. prefix), out and outer, over, beyond. (Lat. ultra.)

Ultra-marine, ũl'.trā-ma.reen', a blue pigment obtained from the lap'is laz'ũli. So called because it comes from China or over the seas. Ultramarine ashes.

Ultra-montane, ũl'.trā-mōn'.tain, the south side of the Alps which is over or beyond the mountains to all Europeans except the Italians themselves, extreme as applied to the Rom. Catholic dogmas. Ultramontism, ũl'.trā.mōn'.ĩizm; ultramontist, ũl'.trā.mōn''.tist.

Papal infallibility, priestly absolution, apostolic succession, no salvation out of Rome, the immaculate nature of the Virgin Mary, transubstantiation, &c., are ultramontane dogmas.

Ultra-mundane, ũl'.irā.mũn''.dain, beyond the limits of our world and system. (Lat. ultra mundus, beyond the world.)

Umbel, ŭm'.bĕl. Umbles, ŭm'.bl. Humble, hŭm'.bl.

Umbel, a group of flower-stalks from a common centre;
um'bel-ar, adj. of umbel; umbelate, ŭm'.bĕ.lāte, having an umbel; umbelated, ŭm'.bĕ.lā.ted.

Umbellule, ŭm'.bĕl.lŭle, dim. of umbel.

Umbelliferous, ŭm'.bĕl.lif''.ĕ.rŭs, adj. of umbelliferæ.

Umbelliferæ, ŭm'.bĕl.lif''.ĕ.ree, a natural order of plants:
 as hemlock, fool's parsley, carrots, &c., &c.

Umbellifer, ŭm.bĕl''.lĭ.fer, one of the umbelliferæ.

Umble, adj. of umbles. Umbles, um'.blz, entrails of the deer. Umbles-pie, pie made of umbles served to those below the dais. To eat umble-pie, to bow submissively, to be degraded from the dais (where the venison is served) to the body of the hall amongst the retainers.

Humble, lowly minded, of mean rank or position:

"Umbel," Lat. umbella, the round head of a plant containing the seed.

"Umbles," Lat. umbilicus, the middle of anything; Gk. omphālōs.

"Humble," Fr. humble; Lat. humilis (from humus, the ground).

Um'ber, a pigment of a brown shade. (Umbria, in Italy.)

Umbilical, ŭm.bil''.i.kāl, pertaining to the navel.

Umbilical cord. Umbilicate, ŭm.bil''.i.kāte, having a navel; umbilicāt-ed (Rule xxxvi.) Umbilicus, ŭm.bil''.i.kūs.

(Webster gives umbilicous which is correct in quantity (see Hor.
 Epod. XIV. 8), but we have above 500 Latin words in use equally false in quantity as "umbilicus," and it would be mere pedantry to pronounce them with the Latin quantities.)

Latin umbilicus; Greek omphālōs, the navel.

Umbo, plu. umbones, ŭm.bō'.nĕze, the boss of a shield, the knob of a bivalve shell immediately above the hinge.

Umbonate, um'.bo.nate; knobbed in the centre.

Um'bonāt-ed. (Latin umbo, plu. umbōnēs, a boss.)

Umbrage, ŭm'.brage, offence, a feeling of resentment for some slight or offence, shadow; to take umbrage at, to take offence at; umbrageous (Rule lxvi.), ŭm.brā'.dʒŭs.

French ombrage; Latin umbra, shade.

Umbrella, ŭm.brĕl''.lah (not um'.bĕ.rel''.lah), a portable canopy carried in the hand as a shelter from rain.

A portable canopy against the sun is a parasol or sun-shade.

Latin umbra, with diminutive, a little shade or screen.

Swift (1710) mentions the umbrella (A City Shower, see Tatler, No.
 238, Oct. 17th, 1710), and Gay (1711) in his Trivia, Bk. i. 211.

Umpire, ŭm'.pĭre, an arbiter, a person chosen to decide a doubt;
 umpirage, ŭm'.pĭ.rage (-age, right, duty of); umpire-ship, ŭm'.pĭre.ship (-ship, office, rank of).

Low Lat. umpirator, umpiragium; Lat. imperator, a ruler.

For Un- negative, see from page 1404.

Un- (negative or privative affix), see page 1403.

Unanimous, ũ.năn'.ĩ.mūs, all being of one mind, all agreeing; unan'ymous-ly. Unanimity, ũ'.nă.nĩm''ĩ.ty.

Latin unānimus (unus animus), being of one mind.

Uncial letters, ũn'.shũ.ăl lět'.ters, letters an inch long used in certain MSS. between the fifth and ninth centuries, a letter which stands for a word as A.D., anno domini.

Latin uncialis, adj. of uneta, an inch.

Uncle, ũn'.kl, fem. Aunt, the brothers and sisters of either parent are uncles and aunts to the children.

Fr. oncle, Lat. avunculus. "Aunt," Lat. āmita, contracted into am't.

Unction, ũnk'.shũn, an anointing or smearing with oil or ointment, that which inspires devotional feeling, racy.

Extreme unction, ex.treem' ũnk'.shũn, the "sacrament" of consecrated oil for anointing one at the point of death.

Unctious, ũnk'.shũs, resembling oil or ointment, greasy; unctious-ly, unctious-ness. (Latin unctio.)

Undecagon, ũn.děk'.ă.gõn, a plane figure with eleven angles.

A hybrid. Latin undēcim, eleven; Greek gónia, an angle.

This word is a wretched blunder and ought to be hendekagon or hendecagon. Greek ēvdeka γωνία, eleven angles.

"Undecim" cannot be converted into undeca- even if the hybrid were accepted. There is the Lat. model undēci-rēmis for guidance.

Un'der, below, subordinate in office, in subjection to, less than.

To knock under, to submit, to yield. To keep under.

Under arms, ready for military action.

Under fire, exposed to an enemy's shot.

Under sail, applied to a ship when sailing.

Under sentence, having had sentence pronounced.

Under the lee, out of the wind.

Under way, moving, having commenced sailing.

Old Eng. under, under-sægel under sail, under-wæg under way, &c.

Under- (prefixed), subordinate in office, assistant.

N.B. When under is prefixed to a monosyllable, if the word is noun or adj. the accent is always on the un'-, but if a verb it is thrown to the end of the word: as un'dershot, un'dersoil, but understand', undersell'.

Un'der-agent, an assistant agent.

Old Eng. under, Lat. agens gen. agentis (v. agēre, to act or do).

Under-bid', to bid less than another; underbidd'-ing, &c.

Old Eng. under-abeden or under-beden (v. bēdan or beōdan).

Un'der-bred, ill-mannered. (Old Eng. under-brēden.)

For Un- negative see from page 1404.

Under-build'er, -bīl'der, a subordinate in building.

Old Eng. under and a noun from byld[an] to build.

Un'der-clay, beds of clay which underlie coal-seams.

Old Eng. under and clæg clay.

Un'der-cliff, a cliff from which the top has fallen down.

Old Eng. under and clif a cliff.

Un'der-coat, -kōte, a coat worn beneath a great-coat.

Old Eng. under and Fr. cotte; Ital. cotta; Germ. kute.

Un'der-croft, a vault or crypt under the choir.

Old Eng. under and croft (Lat. crypta a cave).

Under-cur'ent, a current below the surface water.

Old Eng. under and Lat. currens gen. currentis, running.

Under-dea'con, -dee'.kōn, an assistant deacon.

Old Eng. under-diacon, a deacon acting under another.

Un'der-done, -dūn, not done enough, little cooked.

Old Eng. under and gedōn (verb dōn to do).

Under-drain', to drain by cutting a channel below the surface; under-drained (3 syl.), under-drain'-ing.

Old Eng. under and drehnig[ean], to drain.

Un'der-foot, beneath the feet, in subjection.

Old Eng. under and fōt, under-foot.

Under-gird', to gird round the bottom (Acts xxvii. 17); past and past part. -girt or -gird'ed, -gird'-ing.

Old Eng. under gyrd[an], past gyrde, past part. gyrded.

Under-go', (past) under-went', (past part.) under-gone, -gōn'; under-gō'-ing, to suffer, to sustain.

Old Eng. under-gangan or -gdn; past -geong, -giong, or -gende; past part. -gangen, -gegongen, or -gdn. The past is from the verb wend[an], to proceed; past wende.

Under-graduate, -grād'.u.ate, a member of a university who has not taken his first degree; undergraduate-ship (-ship, state, position, rank of).

Old Eng. under and Fr. gradué (Lat. grādus, a degree).

Un'der-ground, below the surface of the earth.

Old Eng. under-grund, under the ground.

Un'der-growth, that which grows under trees:

Old Eng. under-grownes, v. grōw[an], p. greow, p. p. grōwen.

Under-hand, un'.der.hand (adj.), clandestine, but un.der.-hand' (adv.), clandestinely. (Old Eng. under and hand.)

Under-keep'er, an assistant keeper.

Old Eng. under cēpere; verb cēp[an], to keep.

Under-lay', to place or lay beneath, to support by something placed under; -lays, -laid, -lay'ing.

Old Eng. under-lecg[an], past -legcde, past part. leged.

For Un- negative, see from page 1404.

Under-lét', to sublet; underlett'-ing, underlett'-er.

Old Eng. under lét[an], past -lét, past part. -létten.

Under-lie', -li, to lie under or beneath; -lies, lize; (past) -lay, (past part.) -lain, -lay'-ing.

Old Eng. under lig[an], past -læg, past part. -legen.

Under-line', to mark with a line below; under-lined (1 syl.); under-lin-ing, -li'-ning (Rule xix.)

Old Eng. under line (Lat. linea, a line).

Un'der-ling, an inferior. (Old Eng. under, ling dim.)

Under-master, an assistant master.

Old Eng. under mæster, Lat. magister (Māgus a magician).

Under-mine', -mine, to excavate underneath, to remove the foundation, to injure another by secret and dishonourable means; undermined (3 syl.); -min-ing, mī'-ning (R. xix.); -min-er, mī'-ner. (O. E. under and Welsh mwyn a mine.)

Under-most, lowest, beneath all. (Old Eng. undermæst.)

Under-neath', -neeth, beneath. (O. E. under-neothan.)

Under-pay', to pay too little or at too low a rate; under-paid', underpay'-ing. (French payer, to pay.)

Under-pin', to repair a wall at the basement; -pinned, -pīnd; under-pinn'-ing (Rule i.), under-pinn'-er.

Old Eng. under, Lat. pono to place. (Underpon.)

Un'der-plōt, a plot collateral with the main story of a drama or novel. (French complot, a plot.)

Under-prop, (noun) ūn'der.prōp, (verb) ūn.der.prōp'.

Underprop, a prop under another, a subordinate prop.

Underprop', to shove, to uphold, to support by props; under-propped', -prōpt; -prōpp'-ing, -prōpp'-er.

O. E. under and "prop" (Dan. prop a cork, Germ. pfropf a graft).

Under-rate, (noun) ūn'der.rāte, (verb) ūn.der.rāte'.

Underrate, below the real value.

Underrate', to rate or value at too low a price; under-rated, -rā'ted (R. xxxvi.); -rat-ing, -rā'ting (R. xix.)

Under-rūn', to pass under in a boat.

To underrun a cable, to pass under it to examine it, &c.

To underrun a tackle, to separate its tangles and put it in trim. Under-ran', under-rūnn'-ing (Rule i.)

Old Eng. under renn[an] or reonn[an], past ran, running.

Under-secretary, plu. -secretaries, -sēk'.rā.tā.rīz, an assistant secretary. (Old Eng. under, Lat. secretārius.)

For Un- negative, see from page 1404.

Under-sell', to sell at a lower price than others.

Undersold, undersell'-ing, undersell'-er.

Old Eng. under-sell[an], past sælde, past part. seald.

Under-ser'vant, an assistant servant.

Old Eng. under, Lat. servus, servans gen. servantis, serving.

Un'der-sheriff, a deputy sheriff.

Old Eng. under, scr-gerefa shire-reeve.

Un'der-shōt wheel, a wheel turned by water passing under not over it. (Old English scēot[an], to shoot.)

Under-sign', -sine, to write one's name at the foot of a document; -signed (1 syl.), -sign'-ing, -sign'-er.

Old Eng. under-sign[ian], past signode, past part. signod.

Under-sized', -sized, less than the usual size.

Old Eng. under, assize the statute measure.

Un'der-soil, the subsoil, the soil below the surface.

Old Eng. under-sol. "Subsoil," Lat. sub solum.

Under-stand', (past) understood'; understand'-ing, comprehending, the faculty of comprehending, mind.

Old Eng. under-stand[an], past stōd, past part. ge-standen.

Under-state', to state less forcibly than the truth would warrant, the opposite of over-state to exaggerate; under-stat-ed, -stā'ted; under-stat-ing, -stā'ting.

Old Eng. under, Lat. stare supine stātum to set in array.

Under-take', (past) undertook', (past part.) undertaken, -tā'kn; undertā'king, taking in hand an enterprise.

Undertaker, ūn'.der.tā''ker, one who manages funerals, one who engages in an enterprise.

Old Eng. under-tac[an], past tóc, past part. tacen.

Un'der-tōne (3 syl.), a subdued tone. (Welsh tón, Lat. tōnus.)

Under-value, ūn'.der.vāl'u, to apprise too low, to estimate below the real worth; under-valued, -vāl'ūde; under-val'u-ing (verbs ending with any double vowel, except -ue, retain both before -ing), under-val'u-er.

(But verbs in -ie (except hie) change -ie to -y before -ing.)

Under-valuation, vāl'u.ā''shūn. (Latin vālor, price.)

Un'der-wood, brush-wood, coppice. (O. Eng. under-wudu.)

Under-work, (noun) ūn'.der.werk, (verb) ūn.der.werk'.

Un'derwork, subordinate work, petty work.

Underwork', to undermine, to work for less than others; -worked (1 syl.), -work'-ing, -work'-er.

Old Eng. under-weorc, verb weorc[an] or wyrc[an].

For Un- negative, see from page 1404.

Under-writer, -rĭ'ter, one who insures ships.

Under-written, -rĭt'it'n, subscribed, written below.

Old Eng. under writ[an], past wrdt, past part. writen.

Undulate, ũn'du.lāte, to move as waves, to vibrate; un'dulāt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), un'dulāt-ing (Rule xix.), un'dulating-ly.

Undulation, ũn.du.lay".shŭn; undulatory, ũn'du.lā.try.

The Undulatory theory, the theory that light is due to undulations in the atmospheric ether.

Lat. undŭla, a little wave (unda, a wave); Fr. ondulation, &c.

Ungual, ũn'.gwāl, pertaining to a nail or claw, having nails or claws; unguiform, ũn'.gwĭ.form; ungulate, ũn'.gu.late, having nails or claws; un'gulāt-ed.

Latin ungŭlātus, unguis (Greek onux, a nail or claw).

Uni-, ũ'.nĭ- (Latin prefix), only one. (Latin unus, one.)

Uni-axial, ũ'.nĭ.ax''ĭ.āl, having but one axis.

Lat. uni-[unus]axis, one axis (Gk. axón, an axle).

Uni-cellular, ũ'.nĭ.sĕl'.lu.lar, having but one cell.

Lat. uni-[unus]cellŭla, diminutive of cella, a cell.

Uni-clinal, ũ'.nĭ.klĭ''.nāl, strata with one break but otherwise in a normal position.

Lat. uni-[unus]clinātus, bent; clināre or inclināre, to incline.

Uni-corn, ũ'.nĭ.korn, a fabulous one-horned animal, the narwhal; unicornous, ũ.nĭ.kor'.nŭs.

Lat. uni-[unus]cornu, one horn (Heb. K[o]RN).

Uni-facial, ũ'.nĭ.fā''.shĭ.āl, having only one front.

Lat. uni-[unus]facĭes, [having only] one face.

Uni-florous, ũ'.nĭ.flō''.rŭs, or uni-floral, -flō'.rāl, having but one flower. (Latin uni-[unus]flos gen. flōris.)

Uni-form, having always the same form, regular, all alike in general appearance, an official dress, the military dress of soldiers, the official dress of policemen, postmen, &c.; un'iform-ly. Uniformity, ũ'.nĭ.fōr''.mĭ.ty.

Lat. unĭformis, uniformĭtas (unus forma, one form).

Uni-fy, ũ'.nĭ.fy, to reduce to uniformity; unifies, ũ'.nĭ.fize; unified, ũ'.nĭ.fide; un'ify-ing. Unification, -kay''.shŭn.

Lat. uni-[unus]fĭcio[fāciō], to make one.

Uni-gen'itus, a celebrated bull issued in 1713 by Pope Clement XI., beginning with the word unigenitus.

This was a bull about "divine grace," in support of the Jesuits against the Jansenists.

Uni-genous, ũ.nĭdg'.ĕ.nŭs, of one and the same genus.

Lat. uni-[unus]gĕnus, [all of] one kind or genus.

For Un- negative, see from page 1404.

Uni-labiate, ū.nĭ.lăb'.ĭ.ăte, having but one lip.

Lat. uni-[unus]lăbium, [having but] one lip.

Uni-lateral, -lăt'.ĕ.răl, having but one side, (in Botany) arranged on one side only.

Lat. uni-[unus]lătĕrălis, lătus gen. lătĕris a side.

Uni-literal, -lăt'.ĕ.răl, consisting of one letter.

Lat. uni-[unus]lătĕrălis, lătĕra a letter.

Uni-ocular, -lők'kŭ.lar, (in Bot.) having but one cell or division. (Latin lōcula, dim. of lōcus.)

Uni-muscular, having but one muscle.

Lat. uni-[unus]musculŭs, diminutive of mus, a mouse. The idea is that the muscle [of the arm] resembles a little mouse moving under the skin.

Union, ū'.nĭ.ăn, concord, confederacy, league; union-ism; union-ist, a member of a trade's union.

The Union, the incorporation of the legislative assemblies of England and Scotland in 1706.

The Union House, the poor-house.

The Union Jack, the national banner.

It consists of the three crosses united: viz. St. George's cross (+) for England; St. Andrew's cross (X) for Scotland; and St. Patrick's cross (X) for Ireland. The word "Jack" is jaque, a surcoat emblazoned with a St. George's cross; James I. added the Scotch cross, St. Patrick's was added in 1801.

Union-joint, a joint for uniting gas pipes, &c.

Latin unio gen. uniōnis, from unus, one.

Unionidæ, ū'.nĭ.ăn''ĭ.dĕ, the river-mussel family.

Latin unio, with Greek patronymic -idæ, a family, the union-family, being found in all parts of the world.

Uni-parous, ū.nĭp'.ă.rŭs, producing but one at a birth.

Latin uni-[unus]pario, to bring forth one [at a birth].

U'ni-pĕd, plu. u'nĭpĕds, having but one foot.

Latin uni-[unus]pes gen. pĕdis, [having but] one foot.

Unique (Fr.), ū.neek', single of its kind, peculiar.

Uni-ra'diated, having only one ray.

Latin uni-[unus]rădiătus, radius a ray.

Uni-sex'ual, applied to plants which have only male or only female flowers. (Lat. uni-[unus]sexus, of one sex.)

Uni-son, ū'.nĭ.zn, applied to music means all singing or playing the same part, in opposition to part [singing] where some take treble, some tenor, some bass, &c.

Latin uni-[unus]sōnus, [all] one sound.

For Un- negative, see from page 1404.

Unit, ū'nit. Digit, didg'it. Integer, in'tēdjer.

Unit, the figure or number one [1].

Digit, any one of the ten symbols: 0 1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9.

Integer, any whole number in opposition to a fraction: thus 1, 50, 1,000, 30,000, &c., are integers. In the decimal 54.7, 54 is the integer and .7 the decimal. In $2\frac{1}{2}$, 2 is the integer and $\frac{1}{2}$ the fraction.

Figure, fig'r, is any one figure representing a number. The digits are figures uncombined, but a figure can be combined into any number of figures.

"Unit," Latin unitas unity, unus one.

"Digit," Latin digitus, a finger, representing a number.

"Integer," Latin integer [numerus], the whole number.

"Figure," Lat. [nūmēri] figurātī, numbers set forth in succession.

(?) A UNIT (OR) AN UNIT. A unit is correct. Whenever u-, eu-, or ew- at the beginning of a word = yu-, "An" drops the n as it does before a consonant. (See p. 1386.)

Unitarian, ū'nī.tair''rī.ăn. Trinitarian, trīn'ă.tair''rī.ăn.

Unitarian, one who denies the doctrine of the Trinity.

Trinitarian, one who believes the doctrine of the Trinity.

Unitarian-ism, tenets of the Unitarians.

Trinitarian-ism, tenets of the Trinitarians.

The Trinitarians believe there are three persons in the Godhead (The Father, The Son, and The Holy Ghost); that these three persons constitute one God, all three being nevertheless independent, co-equal, and co-eternal. The Unitarians deny the godship of the Son and Holy Ghost.

Unite, ū'nīte', to join together, to mix, to combine; unit-ed, ū'nī.ted (Rule xxxvi.); unit-ing, ū'nī.ting (Rule xix.); unit-ed-ly; unit-able, ū'nī.tă.bl.

Unit-er, ū'nī.ter: Unity, plu. unities, ū'nī.tīz.

Aristotē'lian Unities, the three dramatic unities: viz., a tragedy must contain only one catastrophē; its plot must be limited to one day, and circumscribed to the acts of a single day.

United Brethren, the Moravians (a religious sect).

The United States (written U.S.), the states of North America united under the president for the time being.

Latin unire supine unitum, unitas (unus, one).

Universe, ū'nī.verse, the whole created system.

University, plu. universities, ū'nī.ver'sī.tīz, an incorporated group of colleges, one in Cambridge and one at Oxford. An incorporated institution in literature chartered with the power of conferring degrees.

For Un- negative, see from page 1404.

Universal, ū' nīver' sūl, without exception, all; univer'sal-ly, univer'sal-ism. Universal'ity.

Latin universitas, universus, universālis, universālitās (from [ad] unum versum, [all] to one end or object).

Univocal, ū nīv' ō. kūl, the opposite of equiv'ocal; univ'ocal-ly.

Latin univocus, unus vox, one voice.

Unless, ūn' less'. Except, ex' sept'. Sāve (1 syl.).

Unless is used with verbs to express a negative condition: as "I [should have] fainted unless I had believed ..." (Psaln xxvii. 13). Equal to Lat. nī-si, Gk. el-mē.

I should have fainted if I had not believed.

Except is used with nouns in the sense of being excepted: as "except the land of the priests" (Gen. xlvii. 26). "Nor worship any god, except their own God" (Dan. iii. 28). "They were all scattered, except the apostles" (Acts viii. 1). "Except these bonds" (Acts xxxi. 29).

The land of the priests being excepted.

Nor worship any god, their own god being excepted.

They were all scattered, the apostles being excepted.

These bonds being excepted.

In these examples Unless is a conjunction, and Except a participle absolute corresponding to a preposition. "Unless" is never used as a preposition, but "except" is often used as a conjunction, and may be substituted for "unless": as Ye cannot bear fruit except [unless] ye abide in me (Jno. xv. 4).

How shall they preach except [unless] they be sent (Rom. x. 15).

That [which] thou sowest is not quickened except it die (1 Cor.)

He is not crowned except [unless] he strive lawfully (2 Tim. ii. 5).

Save is used only as a preposition, in the sense of being excepted, besides, in addition to.

He knew not ought save [except] the bread he did eat (Gen. xxxix. 6).

None save Caleb [None besides Caleb] (Num. xiv. 30).

Israel burned none save [except] Hazor only (Josh. xi. 13).

"Unless," O.E. un-les(an), to unloose, to set free [from the condition].

"Except," Latin ex-cipio(cāpio), to take out [of the condition].

"Save," Latin salvāre, to preserve, to keep [out of the condition].

Until' or till (Note, until with one "l," but till with double "l"), to the time when, before [in time], up to the time that.

This word should be ontil or ontill, Old Eng. on with tīl or tille; un- is only privative or negative. "Till" is the better word.

Unto, ūn' too, up to, to. (Not used in ordinary speech.)

This word should be onto, and ought to be used only with a verb of motion: as "Come unto me," i.e. Come on [even] to me. O.E. on-to.

Up (adverb and preposition). Upon' (preposition).

Up, (adv.) aloft, on high, above the horizon, to a higher place, in a state of insurrection, in order; (prep.) ascent with a verb of motion: as Get up the hill.

For Un- negative, see from page 1404.

Upon (prep.), on [in a state of rest], relating to, on the bank of, near to, during, by means of.

Up, (comp.) upp'-er, (super.) upper-most.

"Upper-most" is not most upper but a corruption of most uppe or uppe, aloft, high, elevated. So inner-most is not most inner (v. p. 513); nor outer-most most outer (v. p. 770).

Get up! get out of bed and dress yourself, rise from your seat and stand. Up and down, to and fro. Up to, to the same point as, to the same place with.

Up to snuff, wide awake, alive to one's interest.

Danish snøfte, slot, scent ("alive to the scent, on the scent").

Up-stream, against the current, towards the source;

Down-stream, with the current, away from the source.

Up-train, the train to or towards London;

Down-train, the train from London.

Up the country, from the coast more inland;

Down the country, towards the coast.

The ups and downs of life, the good and bad vicissitudes.

He up with [his fist], he raised his fist to strike.

He up with [a stick], he took a stick with intent to strike.

It is all up with him, he is done for, his lot is hopeless.

It is all U. P, it is a failure.

Time is up, it is time to start, the due time is past.

To blow up, to scold, to explode, to inflate, to vivify a fire with a pair of bellows; blew up, blown up; blow'-ing up.

To come up with, to reach or arrive at the same point [as some other person]; came up to, to approach close to.

To grow up, to live to become of full size.

Done up, quite exhausted, packed, put in order.

Old Eng. upp, up, or uppe, (comp.) ufor, (super.) ufema, uppe-mæst most exalted or most high.

(?) I AM GOING UP TO LONDON (or) DOWN TO LONDON. Ans. Up to London, down from London.

Upas, ū'pās, the poison-tree of Macassar.

The tradition of the poisonous influence of this tree is due to Foersch, a Dutch physician, who says (but without a shadow of truth) "not a tree, nor blade of grass is to be found in the valley or surrounding mountains. Not a beast or bird, reptile or living thing lives in the vicinity." Bennett says "the whole neighbourhood is most richly covered with vegetation, men may fearlessly walk under the tree, and birds often roost on its branches." A upas tree grows in Kew Gardens.

Up- (native prefix), with, up, high, erect, over.

Up-bear', -bäre, (past) upböre' (2 syl.), upborne' (2 syl.), to support, to elevate, to raise aloft.

Old Eng. up-bēr[an], past upbēr, past part. upboren.

For Un- negative, see from page 1401.

Up-braid', to reprove; -braid'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), -braid'-ing, upbraid'-ing-ly, upbraid'-er. (Old Eng. upgebred[an].)

Up-cast', (past and past part.) upcast', thrown or cast up.

Old Eng. up and cedst (v. ceds[an], to fight, to hurl darts).

Up-coil', -coiled (1 syl.); -coil'-ing, to make into a coil.

A hybrid: Old Eng. up, Lat. colligere to collect, Fr. cueillir.

Up-heave', -heev, to lift up from beneath; upheaved' (3 syl.), upheav'-ing (Rule xix.), upheav-al, up-hee'.vål.

Old Eng. up-hebb[an], past -hóf, past part. -hafen.

Up'-hill, difficult like climbing a hill. (O. E. up-hyll.)

Up-hold', (past) up-held'; up-hold'-ing, to sustain, to support; uphold'-er, an upholsterer.

Old Eng. up-heald[an], past -heold, past part. -healden.

Upholsterer, up.hõle'.stê.rer, one who furnishes houses with curtains, bed furniture, &c.; upholstery, up.hõle'.stê.ry, the wares of an upholsterer; upholstered, up.hõle'.sterd.

A wretched word, wrong in every way. The word is uphold, then -ster was added, meaning one skilled [in upholding] from practice. Then, from a blundering notion that -ster denotes a female, -er a male agent was added. The whole being a jumble of blunders, resulting in nonsense.

Up'-lands, high-lands. We have not the word down-lands, but we use the word "low-lands." Downs means hills covered with pasture; up'land (adj.) Up'land-er, one who lives on the high-lands, the opposite of low'-lander; up'land-ish, rustic, rude.

Old Eng. up-land; upland-ware, a dweller on the uplands.

Up-lift', to raise up; -lift'-ed (R. xxxvi.), -lift'-ing, -lift'-er.

O. Eng. up-hlif[ian], -hlifode, past part. -hlifod (t interpolated).

Up'-most, topmost. (Corruption of uppemost.)

Old Eng. uppe-mæst, most elevated, most high.

Upon' (prep.), on, resting on the top or surface, raised to the top, assumption, at the arrival of. (Old Eng. up-on.)

Up'per, higher in position or rank; up'per-most.

"Uppermost" is not the absurdity it is generally supposed to be.

It does not mean most upper, but most uppe "most elevated."

So "inner-most" is inne-mæst, "utter-most" is utte-mæst.

Up'per crust, the lions of the day. The upper ten, the aristocracy. Up'per-hand. Up'per-servant. Up'p-ish, techy.

Up-right, up'.rite, perpendicular, erect, honest; up'right-ly, up'right-ness. (Old Eng. up-riht, -rihtnes, -rihtlic.)

Up-rising, up.rî.zing, a rebellion. Up-rose', -rõze, started up, appeared above the horizon.

Old Eng. up-risung, verb -ris[an], past -rás, past part. -risen.

For Un- negative see from p. 1404.

Up'-roar, -rōre, a noisy disturbance, a loud din; uproarious, up'rōr rūs; uproarious-ly, uproarious-ness.

Germ. auf-ruhren, "to stir up," not O. E. up-rāran, to roar up.

Up-root', to pull up by the roots, to eradicate; uproot'-ed (R. xxxvi.), -root'-ing, -root'-er. (Dan. rod, Lat. rādiar.)

Up'sees, partly tipsy, stupid with drink.

Dutch upsee, a heavy heady beer: as Upsee-Dutch, heavy Dutch beer; Upsee-Freeze, Friesland beer; Upsee-English, &c.

Up-set, (noun, adj.) up'set, (verb) up.set' (Rule 1.)

Up'set, a turn over, an overthrow.

Up'set price, the reserve-price of goods at an auction.

Upset', to overthrow, to ruffle one's temper, to derange; (pāst and past part.) upset', upsett'-ing, upsett'-er.

Old Eng. up-sett[an] or sett[an], past -sete or sete, p. part. -seten.

Up'-shōt, the result, the conclusion.

Old Eng. up and the v. scēot[an], past scēat, past part. scōten.

Up'-start, a prig, a parvenu. (Up and start.)

Up'ward, up'ward (adj.), up'wards (adv.), opposed to down'ward and down'wards. (-s is the adverbial affix.)

Old Eng. upweard (adj.), upweardes (adv.)

It will have been observed that nouns and adj. of one syl. preceded by up have the accent on the "up," but in verbs the accent is thrown to the end of the word: as up'roar, uplift'.

Urania, ū.ray'nī.ah, one of the minor planets, the Muse of astronomy. Uranite, ū.rā.nīte, a mineral (-ite, a mineral). Uranium, ū.ray'nī.ūm, a metal. Uranus, ū.rā.nūs, a large planet between Saturn and Neptune. (In Roman mythology Uranus is father of Neptune.)

Ur'bān, pertaining to the city. Subur'ban, just outside the city. Urbane, ur.bain', courteous, polite, considerate. Urbanity, ur.bān'i.ty. (Latin urbānitas, urbānus.)

From urbs, a city. "Urbanity" means city manners, in opposition to "rustic" or country manners.

Ur'chin, a hedgehog, a mischievous child; sea'-urchin.

Greek urchē, an orc. The French herisson is a corrupt form of the Latin erinaceus, by metathesis eracineus, whence eracin, ercin.

"Ercin" would be a better word than urchin.

Urge (1 syl.), to incite, to impel; urged (1 syl.), urg'-ing (R. xix.)

Ur'gency, pressing importance; ur'gent, ur'gent-ly.

Lat. urgēo, urgens gen. urgentis (Gk. ergo; heirgo, to drive off).

Urim and Thummim, part of the breastplate of the Jewish High Priest, whereby the "will of God" was revealed.

Probably three stones kept in a pocket of the breast-plate. One stone represented Yes, another No, and the third No answer is vouchsafed. When a response was sought, the High Priest put his hand in the pouch and brought forth one of the three stones (Lev. viii. 8).

For Un- negative, see from page 1404.

Urine, ū'rin; urinal, ū'ri.nāl; urinarium, ū'ri.nair'ri.ām; urinary, ū'ri.nā.ry. Urinate, ū'ri.nate; ū'rināt-ed, ū'rināt-ing (Rule xix.) Urinous, ū'ri.nūs.

Urinometer, ū'ri.nōm'.ē.ter, an instrument to determine the density of urine. (Greek ouron metron.)

Urea, ū'rē.ah; ureter, ū'rē.ter. Urethra, ū'ree'.rhrāh; urethral, ū'ree'.rhrāl. Uretic, ū'rēt'.ik, a medicine to act on the kidneys. Uric, ū'rik; uric acid.

Urate, ū'rate (-ate, a salt from an acid in -ic).

Uroscopy, ū'rōs'.kō.py, diagnosing from the urine.

Greek ouron; Latin urina, urinālis, urinārius, v. urināri.
"Uroscopy," Greek ouron skopeo, I inspect urine.

Urn. Earn, urn, to win as wages for service done.

Urn, a vase for holding hot water at table, a vase for holding the ashes of the dead, the theca of mosses.

"Urn," Latin urna. "Earn," Old English ærn[tan] or earn[tān].

Ursa Major, ur'.sah mā'.djor, a constellation of seven principal stars, called the plough, Charles's wain, the wagon, &c.

Ursa Minor, ur'.sah mī'.nor (the lesser bear), the constellation which contains the pole-star or cynosure (3 syl.)

Ursa Minor is also called Cynosura (st.no.sū'.rah), "the Dog's tail," from its circular sweep. The pole-star is α in the tail.

Ursiform, ur'.sī.form, bear-shaped. Ursine, ur'.sin.

The "Great and Little Bears" are specimens of a large class of blunders founded on approximate sounds. The Sanskrit arch means "to be bright"; the Greeks added a termination and made the word archlos, this got corrupted into arktos (a bear). The Great Bear is also called Hélíce, hél'.i.sy.

Urticaceous, ur'.tī.kay'.shūs, having the character of a nettle; urtical, -tī.kāl, allied to the nettles, pertaining to nettles.

Urticaria, ur'.tī.kair'ri.ah, nettle-rash. Urticating.

Urtication, ur'.tī.kay'.shūn, stinging with nettles.

Latin urtica; French urtication, urticaire nettle-rash.

Us, objective case plu. of the pron. I. It is the dative case of the Anglo-Saxon pron.: Nom. we, Gen. úser, Dat. ús, Acc. úsic.

The Gothic is unsia [u[nsi]s]; German uns.

Use, (noun) uce, (verb) uze. Use, (noun) habit, benefit; to use; used, úzd; us-ing, ū'zing (Rule xix.); usage, ū'zage; usance, ū'zance. Use'-ful, use'ful-ly, use'ful-ness. Use'-less, use'less-ly, use'less-ness. Usual, ū'zu.āl; usual-ly. In use. Out of use. Used up, exhausted.

Other words in which the s of the noun = z, and of the verb = are:

Abuse, close, diffuse, disabuse, disuse, excuse, grease, house, misuse, mouse (as a mouce, to mouze), &c.

For Un- negative, see from page 1404.

ERRORS OF SPEECH—

I use to play [the flute]. I use to be able to do it. Should be I used to play [the flute], I used to be able to do it.

Lat. usus, usual, v. utor; Fr. user, usage, usance. "Usuary," one who has the use of anything (Lat. usuarius) might be introduced.

Usher, ush'ér, an inferior teacher in a school, an inferior officer in some law-courts, one who announces visitors, to announce visitors; ushered, ush'rd; ush'er-ing.

Ush'er-ship (-ship, office of), situation as an usher.

Ital. uscieri, a door-keeper (uscio, a door); Fr. huissier; Lat. ostiarius. The "usher of a school" opens the door of knowledge.

Usquebaugh, üs'.kwě.baw, whisky.

Irish uisge-beatha, water of life. So in Fr. eau de vie, brandy, and in Lat. aqua vitæ. "Whisky" is isque-ey, water of waters.

Usufruct, ü'.sü.fruct, the right of using but not of wasting or destroying what belongs to another; usufructuary, plu.-ries, ü'.sü.frük''.tu.ür.y, one who enjoys a usufruct.

Latin usufructus, usufructuarius (usus fructus, use of the fruit).

Usurp, ü.zerp', to arrogate to oneself without right; usurped, ü'.zerpt'; usurp'-ing, usurp'-er.

Usurpation, ü'.zur.pay''.shün. Usurpatory, ü.zur'.pǎ.tō.ry; usurping-ly, ü'.zur'.ping.ly.

Latin usurpatio, usurpare; French usurper, usurpation, &c.

Usury, plu. usuries, ü'.zhür.iz, exorbitant rate of interest for a loan of money. Usurer, ü'.zhür.er, a money-lender.

Usurious, ü.zü'.ri.üs; usu'rious-ly, usu'rious-ness.

Usura dicitur quia datur pro usu æris (Cowell).

Ut (Anglo-Saxon preposition and affix), out, abroad: as Utoxe-ter, in Staffordshire, the outer camp town.

Strain at [ut or out] a gnat, and swallow a camel (Matt. xxiii. 24).

Utensil, ü.ten'.sil, a vessel or instrument used for domestic or farm purposes. (Latin utensilis, needful for use.)

Uterine brother or sister, ü'.tēr.rñ, one having the same mother but not the same father. (Latin uterinus.)

Utility, ü.til'.i.ty, use, benefit. Utilise, ü'.tī.lize, to turn to some use; utilised, ü'.tī.lizd; utilis-ing (Rule xix.), ü'.tī.lī.zing. Utilisation, ü'.tī.lī.zay''.shün.

Utilitarian, ü.til'.i.tair''.ri.än, one who values everything according to its use, one who weighs everything with a cui bono. John Stuart Mill introduced the word.

Utilitarianism, the tenets of a utilitarian.

Jeremy Bentham meant by utility "the greatest happiness of the greatest number." (Latin utilis, utilitas; utor, to use.)

Ut'most, the most possible, extreme. (Old English ut-mæst.)

Utopian, ü.tō'.pī.än, chimerical, impracticable, ideal perfection;

For Un- negative, see from page 1404.

uto'pian-ism, a scheme which cannot be reduced to practice. (So called from More's Utōpia.)

Gk. ou tōpós, "no-where," an island where everything is perfection.

Utter, ūt'ter, absolute, thorough, to speak, to circulate; ut'tered (2 syl.), ut'ter-ing, ut'ter-er, ut'ter-able. Ut'ter-ance.

Ut'ter-ly, entirely. Ut'termost, extreme, furthest or highest possible. To the uttermost or ut'most.

Old English ūt, comp. ūtōr or ut'ter, ut'mōst or ut'emōst.

"To utter" is to put or send out.

Uvula, ū'vu.lah, a fleshy film which hangs from the palate over the root of the tongue; u'vular, adj:

Latin uvula ("a similitudine uvæ dicitur," Ellis).

Uxorious, ux.ōr'ñ.ūs, foolishly fond of a wife; uxorious-ly, uxorious-ness. (Latin uxōrius, uxor.)

Words with Un- negative and privative.

Un-. In-. Dis-. Non-. De-. Mal-. (Prefixes.)

Un- (Native prefix, generally of a passive character and joined to the passive participle). It mostly means that union never existed, the absence of; but occasionally it reverses like dis-, as un-wind.

It is joined to native words; to those Latin words which have no negative prefix of their own; to French words in the place of non, peu, pas, sans.

In- (Lat. prefix), void of, failure of effort (written il before l).

The relative force of un- and in- in the same words is strongly illustrated in this, in- precedes words of an active force, and un- is the chief prefix of past participles: as "un-communicated," but in-communicable; "un-comprehended," but in-comprehensible; "un-compressed," but in-compressible; un-concluded, in-conclusive; unconsumed, in-consumable.

Dis- (Gk. and Lat. prefix, generally of an active character and joined to all parts of active verbs). It means severance, the reverse of, the deprivation of.

(Used chiefly with words directly or indirectly from the Latin.)

Non- (Lat. prefix), not, failure in agents but simply privative where no agent is concerned.

De- (Lat. prefix), diminution, sometimes even reversion.

Mal- (Lat. adverb malē), ill, badly, not en rapport.

The list of words beginning with un- is very long indeed. Every past participle capable of a privative or negative meaning may be compounded with un-, even those which admit other negative particles: as in-, de-, dis-, mal-, non-, &c.

Many adjectives, participial adjectives, adjectival nouns, and abstract nouns belong to the same list, the total number being little short of 2,000.

Only those are here given which present some difficulty of spelling or pronunciation, some distinct shade of meaning when compared with other negative compounds of the same word, or some other feature worthy of especial attention.

Words with Un- negative and privative.

Un-abbreviated (double b); -ab.bree'.vī.ā.ted, not shortened.

Un- with Latin abbreviāre (brēvis, short).

Un-able, not able, not possessed of sufficient power, &c.

Disabled, deprived of power once possessed.

In-ability, want of ability. (Latin in-habilitas.)

"Unable," Old Eng. un-abal (Cædmon, Metrical Paraphrase).

"Dis-abled," Latin dis with hābilis skilful, dextrous.

Un-accept'able, not acceptable, not pleasing. Unaccept'ed.

"Unacceptable" would be better inacceptable, Lat. in- acceptāre,

Fr. inacceptable, but "unaccepted" (Fr. non accepté).

Un-acces'sible should be abolished. Inaccessible (Fr.)

Latin in- ac[ad]ccsus, no approach to (ad cedo) unapproachable.

Un-ac'curate (should be abolished). Inac'curate, not correct.

Latin in- accūrātus (ac[ad]curāre, [done] with care).

Un-accountable, -ak.koun'.tā.bl, not accountable; unaccountability, -ak.koun'.tā.bl''ī.ty.

A word coined from the Latin ac[ad]computāre, to count up.

"Un-accountable" means not to be brought to book like an account.

Un-accredited, -ak.krēd'.īt.ed, not authorised.

Discredited, positively rejected or dishonoured.

Latin in-, dis- with ac[ad]crēditus (ad credo, to trust to).

Un-acknowledged, -ak.nōl'.ledgd, not answered, ignored.

Dis-acknowledged, positively disowned or denied.

Old English endw[an] to know, endw-lach, (after the Conquest) endwlech knowledge, with prefix a and the negative prefix un-, acnawlech acknowledge, whence acknowledged.

Un-acquaint'-ed, not known to each other. Non-acquain'tance, want of acquaintance. (Old Fr. accointer, accountance).

Un-acquitt'-ed, not acquitted (double t, Rule iii.)

Fr. non acquitté (from the Lat. cedo: as cedere lite, cedere alicui litem).

Un-addressed, -ad.drest' (double d and double s), not directed.

Un- with Fr. adresser (Lat. ad-dirigo, to direct to; di-rego).

Un-admitt'-ed (Rule iii.), not admitted. In-admis'sible.

Un- with Latin ad-mitto supine missum; French inadmissible.

Un-advisable, ūn'.ad.vī''.za.bl, not expedient; unadvised (3 syl.), without being advised, inconsiderate; unadvised-ly,

-ad.vī''.zed.ly; unadvised-ness, ūn'.ad.vī''.zed.ness.

French mal avisé; Latin ad viso to go to see [someone] for a consultation, alicui consūlere.

Un-affect'ed, simple in manners, not moved in feeling; un-affect'ed-ly, un-affect'ed-ness, un-affect'-ing, unemotional.

Disaffected, ill disposed.

"Unaffected" is simply "indifferent," "no feeling at all displayed," but "dis-affected" is feeling positive hostility or discontent.

French désaffection, non affecté (Latin af[ad]fectus).

Words with Un- negative and privative.

Un-agreeable, not pleasing. Disagreeable, positively unpleasant (désagreeable, pas agréable from gré the will).

(The French forms with one "e" must be carefully avoided.)

"Agreeable" should have double g, ag[ad]gratiam (Fr. gré), according to the will or choice.

Un-alienated, ŭn.ăl'.i.nă.ted, not forfeited, not estranged.

Inalienable, -al'.i.ĕ.nă.b'l; inalienably, -nable-ness.

Here the passive force of un- is strongly marked, in-alienable means protected by law against alienation, but unalienated means simply that no alienation has taken place.

Latin in-alienātus, alienatio, v. alienare (altus, another).

Un-allied, ŭn'.ăl.lidē, not connected by blood or marriage.

French non-allié, Latin al[ad]ligo, to tie to.

Un-alloyed, un'.ăl.loid', not mixed with foreign matters (R. xiii.)

"Alloy," formerly allay, a corruption of the Fr. alliage (Lat. non al[ad]ligāre, not bound or tied to [another substance]).

Un-amenable, -a.mee'.na.bl (not a.men'.a.bl), not accountable.

Fr. amener, to strike sail; "unamenable," not obliged to strike sail.

Un-amiable, -ă'.mĭ.ă.b'l, not calculated to win love; -amiably, unamiable-ness. (Should be inamiable, inamiably, &c.)

Latin inamīabilis (in-amāri, not to be loved).

Un-animated, not lively. Inanimated, lifeless.

Here the passive force of un- is strongly marked: "unanimated" means void of spirit; but inanimate that the spirit is gone.

Latin inanimātus, dead (in-anima, without soul or life).

Un-annexed, -an.nex't, not joined. Disannexed, separated.

Un-, dis-, with Latin annexus (an[ad]necto sup. nexum, to tie to).

Un-announced, -an.nounst' (double n), not announced.

Un- with the Fr. annoncer (Lat. an[ad]nuntio, to tell to others).

Un-annulled, un'.an.nŭld', not abrogated.

Disannulled, abrogated; disannul', disannul'-ing.

Dis-annul is a pleonasm, annul is sufficient.

Un-, dis-, with Fr. annuller (Lat. an[ad]nullum, to bring to nothing).

Un-answerable, -an'.ser.ă.bl, irrefutable; unanswerably, unanswerable-ness; unanswered, -an'.serd, not replied to.

Old English un-andswared, v. andswar[ian], past andswarede or andswarode, noun andswaru. Desdemona "swore in truth [that Othello's tale] was pitiful" i.e. said [swerian]. "And-" (prefix) = the Latin contra, and and-swarian is "to say in reply." Our word should be Answer, for an- never means contra.

Un-appalled, ŭn'.ap.pauld' (Rule iii.), not daunted.

Un- with Latin ap[ad]paleo, to turn very pale at [something].

Un-apparent, un.ap.pair'rent, not manifest. Non-appearance (should be -rence), default of appearing in a law-court.

Dis-appear, to withdraw from sight; disappeared, dis'-ap.peerd'; -appear-ing, -appear-ance (should be -ence).

French non-apparent; Latin apparens gen. apparentis, apparere apparentia (not -antia), from ad pareo, to appear to; Gk. pareimē.

Words with Un- negative and privative.

Un-appeasable, -ap.pee'.za.bl, not to be pacified; unappeased'.

Un- with French apaiser (Latin ap[ad] with pacificare to pacify, pax-ficio[facio] to make peace).

Un-applauded (double p), ũn'.ăp.plaw".ded, not applauded.

Un- with Latin *ap[ad]*plaudo, to clap the hands to.

Un-applied, un'.ap.plide', not used or applied.

In-applicable, -ap'.pli.kă.bl, not bearing on the point.

Un- with Latin *ap[ad]*plicare, to fold to; French pas appliqué.

Un-appoint'ed, not appointed. Disappointed, frustrated in hope. Non-appoint'ment, failure of appointment.

Dis-appointment, frustration of hope or expectation.

French dés-appointé, déappointement (4 syl.), appointer to give one a salary. The appoint is the balance of a bill, and to "dis-appoint" is to fail in paying the balance, or "odd money" of a bill.

Un-appreciated (double p), -ap.prē'.shĭ.ă.ted, not duly estimated.

Fr. non apprécié; Lat. ad prettūm, [not valued] up to the price.

Un-apprehensive, -ap'.pre.hĕn''.sĭv, not suspecting.

Inapprehensive, slow in catching an idea, regardless.

Inapprehensible, -ap'.prĕ.hen''.sĭ.bl, unintelligible.

Un-, in-, with Latin *ap[ad]*prehendere supine prehensum to lay hold of one, to grasp in the mind, to understand.

Un-approachable or Inapproachable, -ap.prōch'.ă.bl, inaccessible; in- or un-approach'ably. Unapproached' (3 syl.)

Un-, in-, with French approcher (proche, near) to draw near.

Un-appropriated, -ap.prō'.prĭ.ă.ted, not applied to any specific object. Inappropri'ate (5 syl.), not suitable.

Here the force of un- and in- is strongly marked.

French peu approprié (Latin *ap[ad]*proprius, [to take] to oneself).

Un-approved, -ap.proōvd', not receiving approval.

Dis'-approved'', receiving positive objection.

Unapprov'-ing, disapprov'-ing, disapproba'tion.

Un-, dis-, with Latin *ap[ad]*probo, to make it appear right to one.

Un-apt' or inapt', unsuitable (with to before verbs, and for before nouns, as unapt to learn, unapt for noble deeds); unapt'-ly or inapt'-ly, mal à propos; unapt'ness or inapt'ness.

Inaptitude, in.ap'.tĭ.tude (never unaptitude), unfitness.

In- is the better prefix, but apt is incorrect according to the Latin compounds, ineptus, ineptitude. The French is inaptitude.

Un-armed, un.armĭd', devoid of armour or arms, without any weapon of defence, without scales, prickles, &c.

Disarmed, deprived of arms; disarm', disarm'-ing.

Un-, dis-, with Latin armāre. The Latin compounds are inermus, unarmed; inermō, to disarm. The Fr. is désarmer, non armé.

Un-arranged, -ar.rāngĭd', not disposed in order.

Dis-arranged', [things] put into the wrong places.

Words with Un- negative and privative.

- Deranged', thrown into confusion, mad.
Dis'arrange' (3 syl.), -arrang'-ing (R. xix.), -arrange'-ment.
Derange' (2 syl.), derang'-ing (Rule xix.), derange'-ment.
Fr. déranger, dérangement, pas arrangé (ar[ad]rang, in rank).
Un-arrayed, in'.ar.raid'' (R. xiii.), not arrayed. Dis'arrayed'' undressed, thrown into confusion; disarray', confusion.
Un-, dis-, with Low Latin arraya an array; French désarroi.
Un-arrest'-ed (double r), not arrested, not stopped.
Low Lat. arresto to arrest (Gk. aresta the judgment of the court).
Un-artic'ulāted, not articulated, not distinctly pronounced.
Inartic'ulate, not distinct, without joints; inartic'ulate-ly.
Inartic'ulate-ness. Inarticulation, in'.ar.tik'.u.lay''.shūn.
Lat. articūlātiō, articūlātus, articūlus dim. of artus a joint.
Un-ascertained, -as'.ser.taind'', not known for certain; unas'certain''-able. (Un-, with Lat. as[ad]certus for certain.)
Un-assailed, -as.saild', not molested; unassail'-able, impregnable. Unassaulted, un'.as.saul''.ted, not molested.
French non assailli. The Latin is as-[ad]silto[sil]to[sil]lo supine assultum, to leap on one. In the word insult we have retained the Lat. form.
Un-assigned, -as.sind', not allotted; unassign'-able.
Un-, with Latin as-[ad]signāre to mark out for another.
Un-assim'ilāted (double s). Un-assim'ulāted.
Unassimilated, not converted into the same substance;
Unassimulated, not counterfeited, not feigned.
Un-, with Latin as-[ad]similāre (similis, like).
Un-, with Latin as-[ad]similāre (simūlo, to feign).
Un-assist'ed (double s), not aided; unassist'-ing.
Un-, with Latin as-[ad]sistere to stand by one, to assist.
Un-asso'ciāted (double s), not in fellowship, not connected.
Dis-asso'ciāted, turned out or cut off from fellowship.
Disso'ciāted, severed, disunited. Dissociate (4 syl.), disso'ciāt-ing. Dissociation, dis.sō'.sī.ā''.shūn.
Un-, with Latin as-[ad]sociāre; dissociāre (socius, a companion).
Un-assuaged (double s), -as.swaged', not relieved, not appeased.
Old English ungeswic[an], geswic[an] to desist, to leave off.
Un-assumed (double s), -as.sūmed', not assumed; unassum-ing,
-ās.sū'ming, not pragmatical, retiring, modest.
Un-, with Latin as-[ad]sūmere to arrogate to oneself.
Un-assured (double s), -as.shūrd', not assured, not certified.
Fr. non assuré; Low Lat. assūro; Lat. as[ad]secūro, to secure to one.
Un-atoned (only one t), un'.ā.tōned'', not expiated; unaton-able,
in'.ā.tō''.nā.bl, not able to be expiated.
Un-at-one, "not at one." Christ has made man "at one with God."

Words with Un- negative and privative.

Un-attached (double t), -at.tatchd', not attached.

French non attaché; Low Latin attachi; Welsh tasg, a bond.

Un-attacked (double t), -at.takt', not attacked.

Fr. non attaqué; Lat. attactum, to arrive at, to reach [the foe].

Un-attained (double t), -at.taind', not reached or procured; unattain'-able, not able to be procured (wrong conj.)

Un-, with Latin at-[ad]tineo[tenēre], to hold on.

Un-attempt'ed (double t), not tried or attempted.

Un-, with Latin at-[ad]tento, to try to [do]; French non tenté. Our spelling is corrupt, "-mp-" should be n-.

Un-attend'ed, not accompanied. Non-atten'dance (should be -ence), failure of attendance. Inattention, in'.at.tēn''-shūn, or Non-attention, failure of paying attention.

Un-attentive, better inattentive, in'.at.tēn''-tiv; -ly.

Latin at-[ad]tendēre to stretch [the thought to what is said or done], -tendens gen. tendentis, attentio; French inattentif.

Un-attest'ed (double t), not duly witnessed. Intestate, -tēs'.tate, without a "will" duly witnessed.

Fr. non attesté, intestat; Lat. at-[ad]testāri, to bear witness to.

Un-attired (double t), -at.tired', not dressed or adorned.

Un-, with French atours attire, v. atourner to trick out.

The spelling of this word is indefensible. It seems to be a compound of at (ad) and tire the head-dress, Old Eng. tyr a tiara (Somner dict. Saxonico-Latino-Anglicum), Heb. TUR, which has got jumbled with tie "to bind," hence the tire of a wheel. If from the French atourner it is hopelessly corrupt.

Un-attractive (double t), -at.trāk'.tīv, not prepossessing; unattract'-ed, unattract'-ing. Non-attraction, -trak'.shūn, absence of attractive power or effect.

Un-, with Latin at-[ad]trahō supine tractum to draw to.

Un-authentic. Not genuine. Spurious. Surreptitious.

Authentic, aw.rhen'.tik [book], one which states facts.

Unauthentic [statements], those which are not proved facts.

Genuine, gēn'.u.ŋn [book], one written by the person whose name it bears. Not genuine, a forgery.

Spurious, spū'.rī.ūs [book], one put clandestinely in the place of another, a bastard copy or imitation.

Surreptitious, sur'rept.tish''ūs [passage], one foisted into a book by fraud, a surreptitious gospel is a forged gospel.

"Unauthentic," un- with Latin authenticus; Greek authentēs (autos entea the very tools, Liddell), the very data.

"Genuine," Latin genuinus (from geno, to beget), the father of the book. Not genuine, not rightly fathered.

"Spurious," Latin spūrius, a bastard. "Qui matre quidem certa, patre autem incerto, nati sunt, spurii appellantur" (Ulpian).

"Surreptitious," Latin surreptitius, obtained by stealth. A mutilated copy of a book pirated and issued without permission.

Words with Un- negative and privative.

Un-authorised, -aw' . rho . rized, issued without authority.

French non autorisé (Latin author, authoritas).

Un-avail'-able, inefficacious; unavail'-ing (wrong conj.)

French non valable (Latin non valere or invalidere, not to prevail).

Un-avoid'-able. Inev'itable.

Unavoidable, not to be prevented or run away from.

An unavoidable misfortune is one you could not prevent.

Unavoidable evils must be endured patiently.

Inevitable, certain because it is doomed to occur or because it is the result of an inexorable law of nature.

Death is the inevitable lot of man.

"Inevitable" is much the stronger word. If a man is too late, he says it was unavoidable, because a friend detained him; if he fails in business, he says it was unavoidable, because he could not get his debts paid; neither of these events were inevitable. But if you build a house without a foundation it will inevitably fall. There is a natural sequence in the latter case, but an accidental one in the former.

Un-avowed, -a . vovd', not acknowledged. Disavowed, disclaimed; disavow', disavow'-ing, disavow'-al.

French non avoué, dés-avouer (Latin voveo, to vow).

Un-awaked, -a . wākd', or unawoke', not roused from sleep.

Unawakened, -a . wā . kend, not aroused from spiritual slumber, not quickened into religious vitality.

Old Eng. awacan, past awode, past part. awacen to awake; awacn[an], past awacnode, past part. awacnod to arouse.

It will be seen that awaken is the normal past part., which should be restored. "Awaked" is very hideous.

Un-aware, un' . a . wair', not cognisant; un'awares (3 syl.) adv., unexpectedly. (Old Eng. unwær adj., unwāres adv.)

Un-baffled, -bāf'fld, not baffled. (French bêfler, to be fool.)

Un-balanced, -bāl' . āncd (one l), not poised, not adjusted.

French non balancé (Latin bilanz gen. bilancis, two platters).

Un-bar', to draw back a bar; unbarred, un . bard' (Rule iii.); unbarr'-ing. Disbar', to degrade a barrister from his right to plead; disbarred', disbarr'-ing.

"Unbar," Fr. débarrer, barre a bar, barrer to bar; Welsh bar a bolt.

"Disbar." In law-courts there is a rail or bar to separate the pleaders from the general public; to "disbar" is to forbid a barrister to pass this rail.

Un-bear'-able, un . bare' . ā . bl, not to be endured or borne.

Old Eng. un-, with the verb bér[an] to bear, and abal ability.

Un-becoming, -be . kŭm' . īng, not comme il faut, not suitable.

Old English un-, with becumung, v. becum[an].

Un-befitt'-ing (R. iii.), not consistent, not becoming. (Un-fit.)

"To fit" is the Latin facio, as "Non faciet capiti dura corona meo" (Propertius iii. 1, 20). "Non facit ad lacrymas barbitos ulla meas" (Ovid, Epist. xv. 8). With Old Eng. prefixes un- and be-.

Words with Un- negative and privative.

Un-begun, -be.gʊn', not begun. (Old English un[be]gan.)

Un-belief, -be.leeʃ', absence of belief, infidelity; unbeliev-er, -be.lee'ver; an infidel, one who does not believe in a divine revelation; unbeliev'-ing (Rule xix.)

Disbelieve, dis'.be.leev'', to discredit a statement; dis'be-lieved'', not trusted, not credited; disbeliev-ing (R. xix.); disbeliev-er, -bē.lee''ver, one who discredits a statement.

"Unbelief" is restricted to religious want of faith.

"Disbelief" is want of faith in secular statements.

Old Eng. ungeledsa unbelief, ungeledful, ungeledfullc, ungeledfullce unbelievably, ungeledfullnes, ungeledfsum.

Un-bend', (past) unbent', (past part.) unbent', unbend'-ing.

Old English un-bend[an], past -bende, past part. -bended.

Un-bias, -bi'.ās, not to bias or prejudice; unbiassed, -bi'.ast; unbi'ass-ing. (The doubling of the s is an outrage.)

Fr. biais a bias, v. biaiser to bias, with un- (Gk. biaō, to force).

Un-bidd'en, not asked, uninvited, spontaneous.

Forbidden, prohibited; forbid', (past) forbade, for.bād'; forbidd'-ing. (O. E. forbeod[an], p. forbeād, p. p. forboden.)

Un-bigot-ed, ʌn.bi'g'.ōt.ed, not prejudiced, free from bigotry.

Old Eng. big[an] or bigg[an] to worship, and -ot term. of nouns.

Un-bind', (past and past part.) unbound', unbind'-ing.

Old Eng. unbind[an], past unband, past part. unbunden.

Un-bishop, to deprive of episcopal orders; un-bishoped, &c.

Old English unbiscopod. ("Bishoped," &c., only one p, Rule iii.)

Un-bitt'en, not bitten. Unbitted, not furnished with a "bit."

Old English un-biten, v. bit[an], past bāt.

Un-blest', not blest. (Old Eng. un-blessod, v. bless[ian], &c.)

Un-born, not born. (Old English un-geboren.)

Un-bought, -bawt, not sold, not purchased (g interpolated).

Old English un-gebot or ungeboht, v. bycg[an] to buy, past bōhte.

Un-bound', not bound, loosed from bonds, [a book] not put into stiff boards with leather cover. Half-bound, [a book] put into stiff boards with a leather back. In boards, [a book] put into stiff boards with paper cover. In cloth or American binding, stiff boards with cloth cover. Un-bound'-ed, very great, unlimited; unbound'-ed-ly.

Old Eng. unbunden or un-gebunden, v. unbnd[an], past un-band.

Un-broken, -brō'.kn, not broken. To break in, to tame or teach a horse to go in harness or bear a rider.

Old English unbrocen or ungebrocen, v. bree[an], past braec.

Un-buried, ʌn.bēr'rid, not interred or put under the ground.

Old Eng. un-byrod, v. byr[ian], bur[ian], or byrg[ian], past byrode.

Words with Un- negative and privative.

Un-burden, ün.bur'dn, or Disburden, to take off a burden, to relieve the mind by revealing its sorrows; unburden-ing or disburden-ing. (d is sometimes changed into th.)

Un-burdened, -bur'.dend, without a load; -burthened.

Disburdened, relieved of a load (or disburthened).

Un- or dis-, with Old Eng. byrden or byrthen, v. byrdian (Benson). Our word should be byrden or berden. Kemble, in his Glossary, gives byrd heavy, but v. bér[an] to bear, would suffice.

Un-burnt, not burnt. (O. Eng. unburnen, v. byrn[an], p. barn.)

Un-business-like (not baisness nor buisiness), not in methodical order, referring to accounts it means kept in an incorrect and disorderly manner.

Old English un-, with bysgung and -lic, v. bysg[ian] to occupy.

Un-called-for, un.cawld'.for, unproved, not required.

Un-, with the Latin v. cālāre to call; Greek kālō.

Un-cancelled, -kan'.seld (Rule iii. -EL), not crossed off.

Un-, with Lat. v. cancello to make lattice work or crosses with the pen.

Un-cared'-for (3 syl.), not heeded, not taken care of.

Un-, with Old Eng. cārod, v. cār[ian] to care, past cārode.

Un-caught, not taken. (O. E. un-, with Low Lat. catzurus.)

"Catzurus" contracted into ca'ut. -gh- should be expunged.

Un-ceasing, un.secc'.ing, everlasting; unceas'ing-ly.

Inces'sant, constant, on and on; incessant'-ly.

Cease'-less, continuous; cease'less-ly, cease'less-ness.

We say incessant pain, incessant rain, incessant gabble, meaning continuous while it lasts; but the unceasing happiness of saints, the unceasing love of God, &c., meaning everlasting and what will never cease. "Ceaseless" is even stronger than "unceasing."

"Incessant" should be incessent, but our error is from the French.

Fr. sans cesse, incessant; Lat. incedens gen. cedentis, incēdo to go on.

Un-certain, ser'.tn (should be incertain), not sure. Incertitude, in.ser'.tū.tūde, a state of doubt. (Lat. in-certus, not sure.)

French incertain, incertitude; Italian incerto; Spanish incierto.

Un-changed' (2 syl.), not altered; unchange-able (-ge and -ce preserve the e before -able), unchange'able-ness, un-change'ably, unchang'-ing (Rule xix), unchang'ing-ly.

French non changé; Latin cambiāre to change, cambium change.

Un-charged' (2 syl.), not loaded. Discharged, fired off; dis-charge' (2 syl.), discharg'-ing (Rule xix.), discharg'-er.

French décharger; Low Latin carco, to load (our cargo).

Un-charitable, -tehūr'rī.tū.bl, not benevolent, severe in judging others; unchar'itable-ness, unchar'itably.

Fr. peu charitable, sans charité; Lat. chāritas; Gk. charitēs.

Words with Un- negative and privative.

Un-chaste, Un-chased (both un.tchaist).

Unchaste, not modest, not continent; unchaste'-ly, unchaste'-ness; but inchastity, in.tchás'.tí.ty.

Unchased, not hunted, [metal] not embossed.

"Unchaste," Fr. non chaste, sans chasteté. "Unchased" (not hunted), Fr. pas chassé, (not embossed) Fr. pas enchâssé.

Un-chosen, ün.tchō'.zn, not selected. (Old Eng. un-gecōren.)

From the verb ceōs[an], past ceðs, past part. cōren.

Un-christian, un.krís'.tí'ün, not Christian-like.

Old Eng. un-cristen (Somner dict. Saxonico-Latino-Anglicum.)

Un-circumcised, -sir'.küm.sized, applied to a Gentile as opposed to a Jew. Uncircumcision, -sir'.küm.sizh''ün.

Latin incircumcīsus, incircumcītio (circum cædo supine cæsum, to cut all round). In- would be better than un-.

Un-civ'il, not courteous; unciv'il-ly. Inciv'il'ity, discourtesy.

Uncivilised, ün.siv'.l.izd, barbarous, unpolished.

French incivil, peu civilisé, incivilité; Latin incivilis, incivilliter.

"Uncivil," "uncivilly," should be incivil, &c.

Un-claimed' (2 syl.), not claimed. Disclaimed, disavowed.

Fr. non réclamé; Lat. clamāre, to cry aloud [for something].

Un-clean, ün.kleen', dirty, unchaste, not purified; un-clean-ly, un.kleen'.ly, not in a clean manner, but un.klën'.ly, dirty in habits or person; unclean'-ness, un.klën'.ness; uncleanli-ness, ün.klën'.l.iness.

Uncleansed, ün.klëndz', not made clean, not purified.

Old English unclæne; unclænnes, uncleanness; ungecleansed.

Un-clerical, -klër'ri.käl, not consistent with the vocation of a clergyman. (French peu clerical.)

Un-clōg', to free from obstructions; unclogged (2 syl.), unclogg'-ing, Rule iv. (Un- with Welsh cloigen.)

Un-close, un.klōz', to lay open, to expose to view; unclosed (2 syl.), laid open, not sealed up; unclos-ing, ün.klō'.zing, laying open, breaking the seal.

Dis-close', to reveal a secret; disclosed' (2 syl.), disclōs'-ing; disclosure, dis.klō'.zhūr, discovery, exposition.

Old Eng. un-, dis-, clusa a prison; Latin claustrum, v. claudio.

Un-clōthed' (2 syl.), naked. Un-clād, not dressed.

Unclōthe (2 syl.), to divest of clothing; unclōth-ing (R. xix.)

Old English uncladed or ungecladed, noun clāth or clēth.

Un-cloud'ed, free from clouds; uncloud'-y, uncloud'i-ness.

Old English un-, clād a heap, a pile, clūdig cumulous.

Un-coffined, ün.kōf'fīnnd, not put into a coffin.

Old Eng. un-, cofa a box; Low Lat. cofera or cofra; Lat. cōphīnus; Gk. kōphínós. "Coffin" should have but one f.

Words with Un- negative and privative.

Un-coloured, -kŭl'lerd, not tinted, not dyed. Discoloured (3 syl.), stained, defiled. (Should be uncolored, dis-.)

Latin incolorāre, decolorāre to stain; French incoloré, décoloré.

Un-come-at'-able, -kŭm..., unobtainable, inaccessible.

A compound of Old English un-, v. cum[an], at-, and -abal.

Un-come-ly, un.kŭm'.ly, not comely; uncome'li-ness.

Old Eng. un-, cum[an] to come. So Lat. con-veniens (vento to come).

Un-comfort-able, ŭn.kŭm'.fort.ă.bl, ill at ease; uncom'fortable-ness, uncom'fortably. Discom'fort, actual uneasiness or disquietude. Uncom'fort-ed, not consoled.

Discom'forted, made uneasy; discom'fited, routed, defeated.

Uncom'fort-ing, not consoling. Discom'fort-ing, annoying; discom'fit-ing, routing, defeating in battle.

Comfort-less, kŭm'.fort.less, without the comforts of life; com'fortless-ly; com'fortless-ness, disagreeableness.

Fr. peu comfortable, sans comfort; Lat. confortāri, to be strong.

"Discomfit," Fr. déconfire; Lat. dis-, configo to fix or fasten; Ital. confitto to pierce or shoot through, s-confitto to rout, sconfiggere.

Un-commend'ed (double m), not praised. Discommend'ed, reprehended; discommend', discommend'-ing, discommend'-er, discommend'-able, discommend'able-ness.

Lat. v. commendāre (con'mando, to commit to one's charge.)

Un-committ'-ed (double m and double t, R. iv.), not committed.

Non-commissioned, -kom.mish'.ŭnd [officer], one below an ensign or cornet; (in the Navy) below a lieutenant.

Non-committ'al, the state of not being committed.

Un-, non-, Latin committo, commissio; French non commis.

Un-com'mon, not common, rare; uncommon-ly, in an unusual degree; uncom'mon-ness. (We use the words com'mon-er and common'-est, but very rarely uncommon-er, uncommon-est, because we object to long words.)

Fr. peu or non commun; Lat. communis (com-munis, daily routine).

Un-commū'nicāted; not imparted; uncommunicative, -tīv.

Incommū'nicable, not to be communicated; -ness; incommū'nicably, incommunicabil'ity; incommū'nicative, in'.kŏm.mŭ''.nă.kă.tīv, reserved, not frank.

Fr. peu communicatif, incommunicable; Lat. incommunicabilis, v. communīcāre (communis, common. See Common.)

Un-compared, ŭn'.kŏm.paird'', not compared.

Incomparable, in.kŏm'.pă.ră.bl, without compeer; incom'parable-ness; incom'parably, infinitely.

Fr. incomparable; Lat. incomparābilis (non comparāri, par, equal).

Un-complain'-ing, not complaining, not murmuring.

Un-, with Fr. complaindre; Lat. com-plangere, to bemoan with one.

Words with Un- negative and privative.

Un-complaisant, ŭn.kom'pla.zant''. (See Uncomply'ing.)

Un-complet-ed, ŭn'.kõm.plee''ted, not finished.

Incomplete, in'.kõm.pleet'', in an unfinished state; incomplete'-ness; incomplete'-ly, not entirely.

Fr. non complété, incomplet; Lat. in-com-plēre not to fill quite.

Un-complicat-ed, ŭn.kõm'.pli.kū.ted, not involved, simple.

Incomplex, in'.kõm.plex'', not complicated, simple.

Fr. incomplexe; Lat. in-com-plexare to fold together, to involve.

Un-complimen'tary, not flattering. (French compliment.)

Un-comply'-ing, unyielding [in temper], disobliging.

Incompli'able, incompli'ant, incompli'ance (4 syl.)

Un-complaisant, ŭn.kõm'pla.zant'', discourteous; uncomplaisant-ly. (Fr. peu complaisant, sans complaisance.)

Non-compli'ance, the not assenting to; non-comply'-ing.

Latin com[cum]plicāre, to fold with you, i.e. to agree (not complēre to fill up, nor yet complacere to be liked).

Un-composed, ŭn'.kõm.põzd'', not composed. Dis'composed'', ruffled. De'composed'', putrid, analysed.

Discompose, dis'.kõm.põze''; discompos-ing, -kõm.põ'zing.

Decompose, de'.kõm.põze''; decompos-ing, -kõm.põ'zing; decomposition, de'.kõm.po.zish''ŭn, decay, analysis; decompos-able, de'.kõm.põ''zū.bl; decom'posite, -zīt, compound of a compound, (in Bot.) applied to leaves.

Incom'posite, -zīt, uncompounded, [prime] numbers.

(Thus 3, 5, 7, 9, &c., are incomposite numbers, because they are not divisible, but $4 = 2 \times 2$, $6 = 2 \times 3$, $8 = 2 \times 4$ or $2 \times 2 \times 2$.)

Fr. non composé, décomposé, incomposé, decomposition, decomposer; Lat. incompōsitus, decompōsitus (com-pono, to put together).

Un-compound'-ed, not compounded, not mixed.

Un-, with Lat. componderāre, to pound together (not componere).

Un-comprehend'-ed, not understood; un-comprehensive, -siv.

Incomprehen'sible, beyond the reach of human conception; incomprehen'sible-ness, incomprehen'sibly, incompre-hensibil'ity; incomprehension, in.kom'.pre.hen''shūn.

Fr. peu compréhensif, incompréhensible, incompréhensibilité; Latin incomprehensibilis, incomprehensus (com-prehendo, to grasp).

Un-compressed, ŭn'.kom.prest'', not squeezed together.

Incompress'ible, not capable of compression; -pressibil'ity.

Fr. incompressible, incompressibilité; Lat. comprimō supine compressum (com[cum]primō [primō], to squeeze together).

Un-compromis-ing, -kom'.pro.miz-ing, not agreeing to modify terms; uncompromised, -kom'.pro.mizd, not pledged; uncompromi'sing-ly, with rigid adherence to terms.

Un-, with Latin compromitto supine compromissum (cum pro mīto, to send forth with [a bond], to abide by arbitration).

Words with Un- negative and privative.

Un-compu'ted, not computed. Incompu'table.

Un-, in-, with Latin compūtābilis, compūtāre to count. "Dextra digitis rationem compūtāt" (Plautus, Mil. ii. 2, 49).

Un-conceived, ŭn'.kõn.seevd', not imagined or thought of.

Inconceivable, in'.kõn.see''.vǎ.bl, beyond the grasp of thought; inconceiv'able-ness, inconceiv'ably.

-able, wrong conj., as usual from the French inconcevable; Latin con-[cum]cipio[capio], to take hold of [by the mind].

Un-conclū'ded, not finished. Inconclusive, in'.kõn.klū''.siv, not satisfactory; inconclusive-ly, inconclusive-ness.

Fr. non conclu; Lat. conclūdo supine -clūsum (claudo, to close).

Un-condemned, ŭn'.kõn.demd'', not condemned.

Un-, with Latin condemno (con damno, to cast in a law-suit).

Un-condensed, ŭn'.kon.denst'', not condensed. Incondensable, in'.kon.den''.sǎ.bl (not -ible); incondensibil'ity.

Non-condens'ing [engine], high-pressure steam engine.

French non-condensible (wrong), non-condensibilitḗ.

If our silly rule about -our were worth a straw, "conductor" should be -our, for there is the Latin conductor and the French conducteur.

Un-conduct'-ed, not conducted. Non-conduct'or (R. xxxvii.), a substance that does not conduct heat or electricity; non-conduct'-ing; non-conduction, -kõn.dũk'.shũn.

Fr. non-conducteur; Lat. con-dũco supine -ductum, conductor, &c.

If our silly rule about -our were worth a straw, "conductor" should be -our, for there is the Latin conductor and the French conducteur.

Un-conformed, -kõn.formd'', not conformed; unconform'-able, unconform'ity. Non-conform'ist, one who dissents from the Episcopal Church of England; non-conform'ing; non-conform'ity, dissent from the established church.

Mal-conforma'tion, -shũn, abnormal shape.

Fr. non-conformḗ, non-conformité, non-conformiste; Lat. conformare.

Un-congealed, ŭn'.kõn.djeeld'', not frozen. Incongeal'able, not capable of being congealed. (The a is indefensible.)

Lat. incongelābilis, con-gēlāre (gēlu frost, Gk. kru[os]); Fr. non-congelé, non-congelable.

Un-connect'ed, not joined together. Disconnect'ed, severed, not bearing on the same point or subject, separate.

Un-, dis-, with Lat. con-necto supine -nexum to tie or bind together.

Un-conquered, ŭn.kon'.kwērd (not un.kon'.krđ), not subdued; unconquer-able, ŭn.kon'.kwer.ǎ.bl; unconquerably.

Fr. non conquis, v. -conquerir; Lat. conquīrere to seek to obtain, conquīrere milites to raise levies, hence to fight, to subdue.

Un-conscionable, ŭn.kon'.shũn.ǎ.bl, unreasonable, exorbitant; uncon'scionably; -con'scionable-ness, unreasonableness.

Unconscientious, un.kon'.shũ.en''.shũs, unprincipled.

Words with Un- negative and privative.

Unconscious, ün.kon'shüs, not knowing, not privy to; uncon'scious-ly, uncon'scious-ness. (Latin inconscious.)

Man is supposed to be a dual being, "con-science" is the joint knowledge of the "inner" and "outer" man.

Un-consecrä'ted, not consecrated. Desecrated, des'ë.krä.ted, profaned; des'ecrate (3 syl.), des'ecrating, des'ecräter; desecration, des'ë.kray".shün. Ex'ecrate, to curse.

Observe -se- not -sa- in the compounds of "sacred." Rule: a of the simple is changed into e or i in the compounds: thus from "capio" we get de-captive, from "facio" ef-ficient, "sacro" con-secrate, &c.

Un-, with Latin consecrare, desecrare (sacräre, to hallow).

Un-considered, ün'.kon.süd".rd, not considered or attended to.

Inconsiderate, in'.kon.süd".ë.rate, thoughtless; inconsiderate-ly, thoughtlessly; inconsiderate-ness.

Inconsiderable, in'.kon.süd".ë.rä.bl, trifling, of small account; inconsiderable-ness, inconsiderably, -sideracy.

Fr. peu considérable, inconsidéré, peu considéré. Lat. con-siderare, to study the stars (sidera), to contemplate (Festus).

Un-consolated, ün'.kon.söld", not comforted. Inconsolable, not to be solaced; inconsolably, beyond being consoled.

Disconsolate, dis.kon'söld.late, lost to hope or comfort; disconsolate-ly, disconsolate-ness.

Fr. inconsolable; Lat. inconsolabilis, v. con-söläri (söl the sun) to be in the sun. Not to be in the sun, to be in darkness. "Such as sit in darkness" (Ps. cvii. 10), i.e. disconsolate.

Un-consumed, ün'.kon.sümd", not consumed. Inconsumable, in'.kon.sü".mä.bl. (Fr. peu consumé; Lat. inconsumätus.)

Un-contagious, ün'.kon.tay".djüs, not communicated by touch.

Non-conta'gious, non-conta'gious-ness.

There is no difference at all between these two words, uncontagious is more English. Fr. non contagieux; Lat. contagiösus. "Contagion" is the Lat. contagio, from tago old form of tango to touch.

Un-content'ed, not fully contented. Dis-content'ed, not contented at all. Mal'-content, one dissatisfied with the political state. Non-content, one who votes "No" in the "House of Lords." (Fr. mécontent; Lat. incontentus.)

Un-contest'ed, not contested. Incontes'table, unquestionable; incontestably. (French incontesté, incontestable.)

Un-continued, -kön.tin'.üde, not gone on with; uncontinuous, ün'.kon.tin'.üüs, intermittent. Discontinue, -kon.tin'.u, to cease; discontinued, -kon.tin".üde; discontin'u-ing; discontinuation, dis'.kon.tin'.u.ä".shün, cessation.

Fr. discontinuer, discontinuation; Lat. continüäre (con ténö).

Un-controlled", not controlled; uncontröll'able, -troll'äbly.

Fr. sans contrôle (contra rôle); Lat. contra rötülus, a counter register. "Uncontrolled," not inscribed in the public register of contracts.

Words with Un- negative and privative.

Un-con'troverted, not disputed. Incontrover'tible, incontestable; incontrover'tibly; incontrovertibil'ity, indisputability.

This group of words is disgraceful, the Latin verb is controversari, controversus (not -tus) from versare to consider, not vertère to turn. Why not write controvert for "controversy," as unity from "unite," &c.? (French incontroversable, non controversé).

Un-convert'ed, not converted. Inconver'tible, unalterable.

Fr. non convertible; Lat. convertère (con verto, to convert).

Un-convinced, ün'.kon.vĩnsd', not convinced; unconvin'cing.

Unvincible, not to be convinced; inconvincibly.

Un-, in-, with Latin con-vincere (vinco, to conquer).

Un-correct'ed, not corrected. Incõrrect', not right; incorrect'-ly, incorrect'-ness. Incorrigible, in.kõr'ri.djĩ.bl, not able to be reformed; incor'rigible-ness, incor'rigibly; incorrigibility, in.kõr'ri.djĩ.bil''.ĩ.ty, remedilessness.

French incorrect, non corrigé, incorrigible, incorrigibilité; Latin incorrectus, v. corrígere supine correctum (con regere).

Un-corrõ'ded, not corroded; uncorrõ'ding. Incorrõ'dible.

Un-, in-, with Latin corrõdere (con rodo, to gnaw thoroughly).

Un'-corrũpt', not depraved; uncorrũpt'-ed, uncorrũpt'-ing, uncorrũpt'-ible, uncorrũptibil'ity; uncorrũp'tion, -shũn.

Incorrũpt, not subject to decay; incorrũpt'ed; incorrũpt'-ible, not liable to decay; incorrũpt'ible-ness; incorrũptibility; incorrũption, in'.kõr.rũp''.shũn (1 Cor. xv. 50).

Latin incorrũptus, incorrũptibilis, incorrũptio (rũmpo).

Un-courteous, ün.kõr'.tẽ.ũs (not un.ker'.tchũs), impolite; uncour'teous-ly, uncour'teous-ness.

Uncourt'-ly, not suave as those belonging to the court.

Discourteous, dis-cũr'.tẽ.ũs, rude; discour'teous-ly, discour'teous-ness; discour'tesy, uncivility.

French discourtois, discourtoisie (cour, a court; Latin curia).

Un-couth, ün.koorth', awkward, ungraceful; uncouth'-ly, uncouth'-ness. (Old English uncũth, cũth, familiar.)

Un-cover, ün.kũv'.r, to remove the cover; uncovered, -kũv'.rd, without covering, laid bare; uncov'er-ing.

Discov'er, to reveal, to find out; discov'ered (3 syl.), discov'er-ing, discov'er-er, discov'er-able.

Fr. découvrir; Un-, dis-, with Lat. convertio, to clothe wholly.

Un-created, -kre.ã'.ted, not created. Increate, in'.kre.ãte, [u being] never created, that is, self-existing.

Fr. incrée; Lat. increátus (creäre, Gk. keráo to mix a compound).

Un-craved, ün.krãvd', undesired. (Old English uncrafod.)

Un-cred'it-ed, not credited. Discred'it-ed, disbelieved; discred'it, discred'it-ing, discred'it-able, discred'itably.

Words with Un- negative and privative.

Incred'ible, not believable; incred'ible-ness, incred'ibly; incredibil'ity, unlikeliness.

Incredū'lity, indisposition to believe, scepticism.

Incredulous, in.krēd' ũ.lūs, sceptical; incredulous-ness.

Lat. incredibilis, incredibilitas, incrēditus, incrēdūlitas, incrēdūlus;
Fr. discredit, incrédulité, incredible, incrédibilité.

Un-cured, un.kūr'd, not cured. Incū'able, incurably, incū'able-ness; incurability, in.kū'.ra.bīl' ũ.ty.

Fr. incurable, incurabilité; Lat. incurātus (curāre, cūra).

Un-dām', to remove a dam; undammed' (2 syl.), undamm'-ing.

German losdammen, noun dam; Danish dam, a pond, a dike.

Un-dated, ŭn.dā'.ted, not dated. (French sans date.)

Un-decayed (R. xiii.), ŭn'.dē.kāde', not decayed; undecay' ing.

Latin de cado, to fall down.

"Decay" is a blunder for decade, decaded, decading.

Un-deceive, ŭn'.dē.seev'', to free from deception; undecieved, ŭn'.dē.seev'd''; undeceiv-ing (Rule xix.), ŭn'.dē.seev'' ing; undeceiv-er, -dē.see'' ver; undeceiv-able, -de.see'' vā.bl (should be -ible); undeceit-ful, ŭn'.dē.seei'' ful; undeceptive, ŭn'.dē.sēp''.tīv; undecep'tible.

Un-, with Latin deceptivus, deceptus deceit, v. decipere [capio].

Un-deci'ded, not decided. Indecision, in'.dē.siz'h'' ŭn; indecisive, in'.dē.sī'' sīv; indecisive-ly, indecisive-ness.

Un-, in-, with Latin decisio, decisus, decidēre (de cado) to cut off [doubt]; French décider, décisif, décision.

Un'-declined'' (3 syl.), not declined. Indecli'nable.

Un-, in-, with Latin declināre (de clīno, to lean downwards).

Un-decomposed, ŭn.de'.kōm.pōzed'', not decomposed.

Indecompō'sāble. (French non décomposé, indécomposable.)

-able should be -ible, but we have blindly followed the Fr. error.

Latin de componēre, to reverse the putting together.

Un-defend'ed, not defended. Indefen'sible, indefensibly.

French non défendis, pas défendable (!), sans défense.

Latin de-fendo supine -fensum, to ward off.

Un'-defined'' (3 syl.), not defined. Indefinite, in.dēf' ũ.nīt; indefinite-ly, indefinite-ness, indefin'ity; indefinitive, in'.de.fīn'' ũ.tīv; indefin'itive-ly; indefinable, in'.dē.fī'' nā.bl; indefi'nably.

Lat. indefīnītus, indefīnītē, -defīnītīvus, v. de-fīnīre. "Indefinable" should be -ible. The Fr. indefinissable is preposterous.

Un-delivered, ŭn'.de.liv''.rd, not delivered. Non-delivery, plu. non-deliveries, -de.liv''.e.rīz, neglect of delivery.

French non livré (Latin de libēro to liberate, liber free).

Un-demon'strāted, not demonstrated. Indemonstrable, in'.de.mōn'' strā.bl. (Latin indemonstrābilis.)

Words with Un- negative and privative.

Un-denied, ŭn'.de.nide'', not denied; undeni'able, undeni'ably.

French pas niable, déni, dénier. Latin dēnegāre, nēgo (non ago).

UNDER, see p. 1390.

Un-described, un'.de.skribd' (not un'.des.kribd), not described.

Indescribable, in'.de.skri''bā.bl; indescr'i'bably. Non-descript, non'.de.skript', an oddity. (Lat. indescriptus.)

-able, -ably should be -ible, -ibly. "Indescriptible, -descriptibly," would be better. Lat. "scriptilis," scriptile, might be introduced.

Un-deserved, un'.de.zervd'', not deserved; undeserv'er; undeserved-ly, un'.dē.zer''ved.ly; undeserv'-ed-ness, undeserv'-ing (Rule xix.), undeserv'-ing-ly.

Lat. de-servio, to serve humbly; deservire studiis, to apply closely to one's studies. An "undeserver" is one who neglects his duty.

Un-designed, un'.de.zined', not designed, unintentional; undesign-ing, un'.de.zi''ning, not artful, frank; undesigned-ly, un'.de.zi''ned.ly, unintentionally.

Un-, with Latin designāre, designātus (signum, a sign).

Un-desired, ŭn'.de.zi'rd'', not desired; undesir-ing, -de'.zi'.ring (Rule xix.); undesir-able, ŭn'.de.zi''rā.bl.

French peu désirable, non désiré; Latin desiderāre, desiderium.

Un-destroyed, ŭn'.de.stroid'' (not ŭn'.des.troid'), not destroyed.

Indestructible, in'.de.strük''ā.bl (not in'.des.trük''ā.bl); indestruc'tible-ness, indestruc'tibly, indestructibil'ity.

Fr. indestructible, indestructibilité; Lat. de-struere, to throw down.

Un-determined, ŭn'.de.ter''münd, not determined. Indeter'min-able, indeter'minably. Indeterminate, -de.ter''mī.nāte, indefinite; indeterminate-ly. Indetermination, -shŭn.

French indétermine, indéterminable, indétermination; Latin indē-terminātē, determinatio, determinatus, determināre (terminus, a boundary; Greek terma, a boundary).

Un-deterred, ŭn'.de.terd'', not deterred or hindered.

Un-, with Lat. deterrere (de terreo, to frighten from [doing a thing]).

Un-developed (one l and one p), ŭn'.de.vēl''ōpd, not developed.

Non-development, nōn'.de.vēl''ōp.ment, non-expansion.

Un-, with French développer, développement (-ppe). Italian viluppo, a bundle; deviluppo, to undo a bundle or intricacy.

Un-deviating, ŭn'.dē'vi.ā.ting, unswerving; undeviating-ly.

Fr. dévier, déviation; Lat. dēvius (de via, from the straight path).

Un-digest'ed, not digested. Indigest'ible (not -able).

Indigestion, in'.dī.djēs''tchŭn, dyspepsia.

Fr. indigeste, indigestion, indigestible; Lat. indigestio, indigestibilis, in-digērere supine digestum not to digest.

Un-diminished, ŭn'.dī.mīn''ishd (-di-, not -de-), not diminished; undimin'ish-ing, undim'inish-able.

Un-, with Latin dīmīnuere, dīmīnūtio ("able" should be -ible).

Words with Un- negative and privative.

Un-dimmed, ün.dĩmđ', not dimmed, not obscured.

Old English un-dim or dym, dimlic dimly, dimnes dimness.

Un-dipped, ün.dĩpt', not dipped, not plunged under water.

Old English un-dipp[an], past dippede, past part. dipped.

Un-direct'ed, not having an address. Misdirect'ed, having a wrong address. Indirect', not straightforward; indirection, in'.di.rẽk''.shũn, crooked conduct.

Un-, with Lat. directus, indirectus out of order; Fr. indirecte.

Un-discerned, ün'.dis.zernd'' (not ün'.de.zernd''), not perceived or noticed; undiscern-ing, ün'.dis.zer''.ning, without discrimination; undiscern'-ible (not -able.)

Un-, with Lat. discernere (dis cerno, to see [each thing] separately).

Un-disciplined, ün'.dis'.sĩ.plĩnd, not disciplined.

Un-, with Lat. disciplināri (discipulus, a scholar; disco, to learn).

Un-discouraged, ün'.dis.kũr''raged, not disheartened.

Un-, with French décourager (Latin dis cor ago, to dishearten).

Un-discovered, ün'.dis.kũv''rd, not discovered, not found out; undiscover'-able. Non-discovery, non'.dis.kũv''.ẽry.

Fr. peu découvert, v. découvrir (Latin cõphĩnus, a coffer or box).

Un-discrim'ināted, not discriminated; undiscrim'ināt-ing, not observing differences. Indiscrim'ināte (5 syl.), without regard to different sexes, age, condition, temper, &c.; indiscrim'ināte-ly, indiscrim'ināte-ness; indiscriminative, in'.dis.krĩm''.ĩ.nā.tĩv; indiscrimination, in'.dis.krĩm''.ĩ.nay''.shũn, want of judgment.

Un-, in-, with Latin discrimĩnāre, discrimĩnātio, discrimĩnātus, discrimen a difference (from dis-cerno to distinguish).

Un-disguised, ün'.dis.gĩzed'' (g hard), not masked, candid.

Fr. non déguisé (Old Fr. desguiser), guise costume; Welsh gwis, gwisg; Germ. weise; Old Eng. wisa, guise.

Un-dismayed, ün'.dis.maid'' (should be des-), not discouraged.

Un-, with Spanish desmayado, v. desmayar (desmayo, a swoon).

Un-dispensed, ün'.dis.penst'', not dispensed; undispens'-ing.

Indispensable, in'.dis.pẽn''.sũ.bl, quite necessary; indispensable-ness, indispensably, indispensabil'ity.

French indispensable, indispensabilité.

Latin dispensātus, dispensātio, dispensāre (penso, to weigh).

To "dispense" is to lay out money. "Indispensable," not able to lay out money, hence in need, in necessity, necessary.

Un-displayed, ün'.dis.plāde'' (R. xiii.), not displayed or unfolded.

Un-, with Latin dis-plicāre, to unfold.

Un-disposed, ün'.dis.pōzed'' [of], not sold, not parted with.

Indisposed', not well; indisposed towards, averse to.

Indisposition, in'.dis.pō.zĩsh''.ũn, illness, reluctance.

Latin indispõstus put out of order, dispono to put in order; French indisposer, indisposition, pas disposé.

Words with Un- negative and privative.

Un-disputed, ŭn'.dis.pŭ''ted, not disputed; undispu'ted-ly.

Indisputable, in'.dis'.pu.tă.bl (not in'.dis.pŭ''.tă.bl); indis-putable-ness; indis'putably, beyond all doubt.

Fr. indisputable; Lat. in-disputābilis, dis-putāre to think differently.

Un-dissembled, ŭn'.dis.zēm''bld, undisguised; undissem'bling.

A vile compound of the French sembler, with un- and dis-. The French word dissimulé or non simulé; Latin dissimulāre (similis, like) ought to have suggested a better word.

Un-dissolved, ŭn'.diz.zōlvd'', not dissolved; undissolv'-ing (R. xix.), undissolv'-able. Indissoluble, in'.dis'.sol.lŭ.bl; indis'soluble-ness, indissolubly, indissolubil'ity.

Insoluble, in.sōl'.ă.bl; insol'ubly, insolubil'ity.

Insol'vent, one not able to pay his debts; insol'vency.

Latin insolūbilis, insolūbilis, insolvens genitive insolventis.

French indissoluble, indissolubilité, insoluble, insolvabilité, &c.

Un-distilled, ŭn'.dis.tīld'', not distilled. (Un-, Lat. distillāre.)

Un-distinguished, ŭn' dis.tīn''.gwisht, not distinguished; undistin'guish-ing, undistin'guish-able, -disting'uishably.

Indistinguishable, in'.dis.tīn''.gwish.ă.bl. Indistinct, indistinct'-ness, indistinct'-ly. Indistinc'tion, -shun.

(-able, -ably ought to be -ible, -ibly. (It is not the first Latin conj.)

Latin indistinctus, indistinguibilis, v. -distinguere; French non distingué, indistinct, indistinction (Greek stigma, a mark).

Un-distributed, ŭn'.dis.trīb''.u.ted, not distributed or dealt out; indistributive, in'.dis.trīb''.u.tiv; indistributive-ly.

Un-, in-, with Latin distribūtus, distribūere (tribuo, to give).

Un-disturbed, ŭn'.dis.turbd'', not disturbed; undisturb'-ing.

Un-, with Latin disturbātus, disturbāre (turbo, to trouble).

Un-diversified, ŭn'.di.ver''.sĭ.fide, not varied.

French non diversifié; Latin diversi ficere (diversus fācio).

Un-divided, ŭn'.dĭ.vĭ''.ded, not divided; undivided-ly.

Indivisible, in'.dĭ.viz''.ă.bl; indivisibly, indivisibil'ity.

Latin indivĭsus, indivĭbilis; French indivisible, indivisibilité.

Un-divorced, ŭn'.dĭ.vorst'', not divorced. (French non divorcé.)

Un-divulged, ŭn'.dĭ.vulgd'', not divulged. (Fr. non divulgué.)

Un-do, ŭn.doo'. Un-due, ŭn.dŭ', not yet due.

Undo, (past) undid', (past part.) undone, ŭn.dŭn'; undoes, un.dŭz'; undo'-ing, to take to pieces, to loose, to unravel, to annul, to reverse. Undo'-er.

"Undo," O. Eng. undōn, past undyde, past part. ungedōn, dēh does.

"Undue," un- with Fr. dū (of the v. devoir); Lat. debeo, perf. debui.

Un-doubted, ŭn.dout'.ed, not doubted; undoubt'ed-ly, without doubt; undoubt'-ing. Indubitable, in.du'.bĭ.tă.bl; indn'bitably, indn'bitable-ness; indubious, in.dŭ'.bĭ.ŭs.

Latin indubĭtābilis, indubĭtātus, indubĭtus, in-dubĭtāre.

Words with Un- negative and privative.

Un-drawn, not drawn. (Old English undragen of v. -dragan.)

Un-dreamt (not undreampt), un.drēm't, not dreamt.

German nicht geträumt, verb träumen, noun traum a dream.

Un-dress, (noun) un'.dress, (verb) un.dress' (Rule 1.)

Un'dress, a loose negligent dress for domestic ease.

Undress', to take off one's clothes; undressed, un.drest',

(p. p.) undrest, undress'-ing, undress'-er. (Fr. dresser.)

Un-dried, un.drīdē', not dried. (Old English undrugod.)

Un-drinkable, un.drink'.ā.bl, not fit to drink.

Un-drunk, not drunk (past part. undrank; is used by those who are too squeamish to say "drunk").

Old Eng. undruncon from v. -drincan, past drunc, p. p. druncon.

Un-driven, un.drīv'.n, not driven. (Old English undrifen.)

Un-drowned, un.dround' (un.droun'.ded is a mere vulgarism), not drowned. (German nicht ertrunken.)

Un-due, un.dū', not due. Undo, un.doo', to take to pieces.

Undu'.ly (all double vowels, except -ue, retain both before -ing, -ish, -ly), not slightly. (French non dû.)

Un-dutiful, un.dū'.tī.ful, not dutiful; undu'tiful-ly, undu'tiful-ness. (Fr. dû of the v. devoir; Lat. debeo, to owe.)

Un-dyed, un.dīdē', not stained with dye. (Old Eng. undeāgod.)

Un-dying, un.dy'.ing, not subject to death. (O. E. undeādlic.)

Un-earned, un.urnd', not earned. (Old English unærned.)

Un-earthed, un.ǣrrhē', driven from its burrow, taken out of the ground; unearth'-ing. Unearth-ly (adj.), supernatural.

Old English eorthe or eorth, the earth; eorthlic, earthly.

Un-easy, un.ē'.zy, not easy; (comp.) uneasi'-er, (super.) uneasi'-est; uneasi-ly, un.ē'.zī.ly; uneasi-ness. Disease, diz.eez', illness; diseased' (2 syl.); diseased-ly, -ē'.zed.ly.

Old Eng. unedælic or unæthelic, unæthelce (adv.), unæthnes, &c.

Un-eat-able, un.eet'.ā.bl, not fit for food, too hard to masticate.

Unedible, un.ē'.dī.bl, not suitable for food.

Old English etan, to eat; Latin edulis, verb edo to eat.

Un-edify-ing, un.ēd'.ī.fy.ing, not instructive; uned'ified, -fide.

French peu édifiant, non édifié; Latin instructio (adēs fūcio).

Un-edit-ed, un.ēd'.īt.ed (better ined'ited), not edited.

Latin inedītus; French inédit. "Unedited" should be abolished.

Un-educated, un.ēd'.u.kā.ted, not educated, illiterate.

Un-, with Latin educātus, v. educāre to pilot out (not ducēre).

Un-effaced, un'.ef.fūsed', not effaced, not obliterated.

Ineffaceable, in.ēf.face'.ā.bl; ineffaceably, -ēf.fācē'.ā.bly.

French non effacé; Latin ex fūcies, [to rub off] from the face.

Words with Un- negative and privative.

Un-effect-ed, ŭn'.ef.fĕk''.ted, not accomplished. Ineffective, in'.ef.fĕk''.tĭv; ineffective-ly, ineffective-ness. Ineffectual, in'.ef.fekt''.u.ăl; ineffectual-ly. Inefficacious, in'.ef.fĭ.kay''.shŭs; ineffica'cious-ly, ineffica'cious-ness.

In-efficient, in'.ef.fĭsh''.nt; inefficient-ly, in'.ef.fĭsh''.nt.ly.

Inefficiency, -fĭsh''.en.sy, want of power to produce results.

Latin inefficax gen. -efficācis (in ef-[ex]ficio[fācio], without [power to] make a thing throughout).

Un-elastic (ŭn'.e.lăs''.tĭk), inelas'tic, or non-elas'tic, not elastic.

French non élastique from Greek elauno to draw out.

Un-elected, un'.-e.lĕk''.ted, not elected. Non-elect, (in Theol.) one not ordained to salvation. Non-elec'tion, -shŭn.)

Un-, non-, with Latin electus, electio (e-lego; to pick out).

Un-embalmed, ŭn'.em.bălmĭd'', not embalmed.

Un-, with French embaumé; Latin in-balsamum, balsams [put] in.

Un-embarrassed (double -r- and double -s-), ŭn'.em.băr''rst, not perplexed, free from pecuniary difficulties.

Disembarrassed, dis'.em.băr''rst, freed from embarrassment; disembarrass-ment, disembar'rass, disembar'rass-ing.

Fr. non embarrassé, débarrassé (Low Latin barra a barrier, em-[en]-barra to make a barrier, dis-embarra to throw down barriers).

Un-embellished, ŭn'.em.bĕl''.lishd, not embellished.

Dis-embellish, to deprive of embellishments; -em-bel'lished († syl.), dis-em-bel'lish-ing, dis-em-bel'lish-ment.

Un-, dis-, with Fr. embellir, embellissement; (Latin bellus, pretty).

Un-embittered, ŭn'.em.bĭt''.trd, not embittered.

Old Eng. biter bitter, em-[en]biter to make bitter, un-, &c.

Un-embodied, ŭn'.em.bŏd''.ĭd, not embodied; disembod'y; disembodies, dis'.em.bŏd''.ĭz; disembodied, -em.bŏd''.ĭd; disembod'y-ing, disembod'i-ment.

Old Eng. bodig a body, em-[en]bodig to make a body, un-, dis-, &c.

Un-emphatic, ŭn'.em.făt''.ĭk, or non-emphatic, not emphatic.

Un-, non-, with Latin emphāticus, Greek emphatĭkos.

Un-employed (Rule xiii.), ŭn'.em.ploid'', not occupied.

Fr. non employé, from the Lat. non im-[in]plicāre not to fold in.

Un-empowered, ŭn'.em.pŏw''.erd, not empowered.

Un-, with the French pouvoir, em-[en]pouvoir to give power.

Un-encumbered, ŭn'.en.kŭm''.brd, not encumbered; disencum'ber, to remove an incumbrance; disencumbered, dis'.en.kŭm''.brd; disencum'ber-ing, disencum'ber-er.

Fr. non encombré; Lat. non incumbēre, not to lie on [another thing].

Un-end'ing, not ending. Never-ending. End'less. Unend'ed.

Old Eng. ungeended, unended, unendigenlic, unendlice, unendung.

Words with Un- negative and privative.

Un-endowed, un'en.dōwd', not endowed. Disendow, dis'en.dōw', to deprive of endowment; disendowed (3 syl.), disendow'ing, disendow'-ment. (Norman non endoué.)

From Latin dos a dowry, en-dos to give a dowry; un-, dis-, &c.

Un-endurable, un'en.dure''ā.bl, not to be borne.

Un-enduring, un'en.dure''.ing, not lasting, not abiding.

Fr. peu durable, v. endurer; Lat. indurēre, to grow hardened (durus).

Un-engaged, un'en.gaged'', not being engaged by an employer; disengaged, not being busy. Unengaging, en.gā''.ging, not attractive, not captivating.

Fr. non engagé, non engageant. Old Eng. wæd, a pledge; en-wæd, to make a pledge; un-, dis-, &c. (Lat. vādimōnium).

Un-English, un.in'.glīsh, not consistent with the English character or language. (Old English un-englisc.)

Un-enjoyed (R. xiii.), un'en.joid'', not enjoyed; unenjoy'-able, unenjoy'-ing. (Un-, with Fr. jouir, Lat. gaudeo, to rejoice.)

Un-enlarged, un'en.largd'', not enlarged. (Lat. largus, large.)

Un-enlightened, un'en.līte''n.ing, not enlightened; unenlighten'-ing, -en.līte''n.ing. (O. E. lihtung with en-, to make, &c.)

The interpolation of g before h in "light," &c., is to be regretted.

Un-enlivened, un'en.lī''.vend, not enlivened; unenlī'ven-ing.

Old Eng. līf with en- to make (to give life or animation), un-, &c.

Un-ennobled, un'en.nō''.bld, not made a noble; disennobled, deprived of the patent of nobility. (Fr. ennobler, Lat. nōbīlis.)

Un-enrolled, un'en.rōld'', not enrolled; disenrolled, taken off the roll. (Fr. enrôler, Lat. rōtūla, with en-, to "make" up.)

Un-enslaved, un'en.slāvd'', not made a slave; unenslāv'-ing.

Un-, with Germ. slave, en-slave to make a slave; Low Lat. sclavus.

Un-ensnared, un'en.snāred'', not ensnared; unensnar-ing, un'en.snair''ring. (O. E. sneāre, with en-, to make, &c.)

Un-entailed, un'en.taild'', not entailed; disentailed, the entail abolished. (Fr. tailler. Low Lat. tallium, a fee-tail.)

Un-entangled, un'en.tang''gld, not entangled. Disentangle, dis'en.tang''gl, to free from entanglement; disentangled, dis'en.tang''gld; disentangling, dis'en.tang''gling; dis-entangle'-ment. (Welsh tengl a girth, tenglu to tie with...)

To "entangle" is to get tied with a girth; or Germ. tang, sea wrack.

Un-entered, un'en.trd, not set down in the book of accounts.

Non-entry, plu. non-entries, non.en'.trīz.

Un-, with French entrer; Latin intrare to go in, intro within.

Un-enterprising, un.en'.ter.prī.zing, not enterprising.

Fr. peu entreprenant; Lat. inter prehensum, to take in hand.

Words with Un- negative and privative.

Un-entertaining, ün'.en.ter.tain''ing, not amusing; un-entertained, ün'.en.ter.taind''. (See Entertain.)

Un-enthralled, ün'.en.thrawld'', not made captive; unenthral-ling. Disenthral (should be disenthral), thrawl, to free from enthrallment; disenthralled, dis'.en.thrawld''; dis-enthral'-ing; disenthral-ment, dis.en.thrawl'ment.

(The double l should be restored to enthral, enthralment, &c.)

Old Eng. thrall a servant, en- to make [a thrall], un-, dis-, &c.

Un-enthroned, ün'.en.thrönd'', not enthroned. Disenthrone, dis'.en.thröne, to depose from the throne; dis'enthroned (3 syl.), disenthron'-ing; disenthrone'-ment, deposition.

Lat. thrönus, Gk. thrönös (from thraō to sit down), v. enthronizo.

Un-entombed, ün'.en.toomd'', not put in a tomb; disentomb, dis'.en.toom'', to remove from its tomb; disentomb'-ing; disentombed, dis'.en.toomd; disentomb'-ment.

Latin tumba, a tomb; en- converts nouns to verbs; un-, dis-, &c.

Un-enviable, un.en'.vī.ä.bl, not enviable; un-en'viably; unenvied, ün.en'.vid; unenvious, ün.en'.vī.üs; unenviously.

French sans or peu envié, non envieux; Latin invidia, invidiosus.

Un-equable, ün.ek'kwä.bl (should be in-equable), not equable; unequable-ness; unequably, ün.ek'kwä.bly; -ability.

Un-equal, ün.ē'.kwl, not equal; une'qual-ly, une'qual-ness; unequalled, un.ē'.kwld. Inequality, in'.ē.kwöl''ä.ty.

Unequalised, un.ē'.kwä.lized, made into unequal parts.

"Un-equal" should be inequal, Lat. inæqualis, inæquāblis (æquus).

Un-equitable, -ek'kwī.tä.bl; uneq'uitable-ness; uneq'uitably, or Ineq'uitable, ineq'uitable-ness, ineq'uitably.

Iniquity, plu. iniquities, -ik'kwī.tiz, wickedness; iniquitous, in.ik'kwī.tus; iniq'uitous-ness, iniq'uitous-ly.

"Inequitable," &c., should be abolished, as the Lat. word inequitabilis means "not to be ridden on" (equus, a horse). If anything, it should be iniquitable, after the models iniquity, iniquitous.

Latin iniquitas, iniquus (in æquus, not equal or just); Fr. iniquité, peu équitable (objectionable because Latin equitabilis means "fit to be ridden on").

Un-equivocal, ün'.e.kwiv''.o.käl, not equivocal; unequiv'ocal-ly, unequiv'ocal-ness; unequivocat-ing, -e.kwiv''.o.kä.ting.

French peu or sans équivoque; Latin æquivocus (æque vöco, to call [two things] equally, i.e. by one name).

Un-eradicated, ün'.e.räd''ä.kä.ted, not rooted up; inerad'icable.

Un-, with Lat. eradicäre (e radix, [to pull up] from the roots).

Un-erring, ün.ēr'ring, not erring; unerring-ly, surely.

Un-, with Latin erräre, to wander. The Latin inerräre is not in negative but in intensive; French errer.

Un-essayed, ün'.ēs.säde'' (R. xiii.), unattempted. (Fr. non essayé.)

(This word has no connexion with our native verbs say, said, said.)

Words with Un- negative and privative.

Un-essential, -es.sën''shül, not indispensable. Non-essen'tials.

Fr. non essentiel (wrong); Lat. essentiālis. (See Essence, p. 324).

Un-established, ün'.es.tüb''lishd, not permanently fixed.

Disestab'lish, to revoke or overthrow what is established;
disestab'lished (4 syl.), disestab'lish'-ing, disestab'lish-
ment. (Un-, dis-, with French établir, now établir.)

Un-esteemed, ün'.es.teemd'', not esteemed. Inestimable, *in.es'.-
tī.mā.bl*, priceless; ines'timably, ines'timable-ness.

Disesteem, to think ill of; disesteemed' (3 syl.), -teem'-ing.

Un-, dis-, with French estimer, inestimable; Latin inestimābilis, inestimāre (Greek eis timō, to hold in honour).

Un-evangelical, ün'.ē.van.djël''ā.kāl, not Calvinistic.

Fr. peu évangélique. "Evangelical" has become a theolog. tech. word.

Un-even, ün.ē'vn, not level, odd; une'ven-ness, une'ven-ly.

Old English un-æfen, -efen, or -efn.

Un-exaggerated, ün'.ex.adg''gē.rā.ted, not exaggerated.

Un-, with Latin exaggerātum (agger, a pile or heap). The French exagérer (one r) is nonsense, being a compound of ager a field.

Un-exalted, ün'.ex.ōl''ted, not exalted. (Latin exaltāre.)

Un-examined, ün'.ex.ām''īnd, not examined.

Fr. non examiné; Lat. exāmīnāre (exāmen, the tongue of a balance).
("To examine" means to watch the indicator of a pair of scales.)

Un-exampld, ün'.ex.ām''pld (should be unexempld), unpre- cedented. Un-exemplified, ün'.ex.ēm''plī.fide (q.v.)

French sans exemple; Latin exemplum, exemplifico.

Un-excelled, ün'.ex.seld'', not surpassed. (Latin excello.)

Latin ex cello, to go beyond; Greek kello, to drive, to run, to move.

Un-expected, ün'.ex.sēp''ted, not excepted; unexceptionable, ün'.ex.sēp''shūn.ā.bl, unobjectionable, without exception;
unexcept'ionable-ness, unexcept'ionably.

Un-, with Latin exceptus (ex cāpio, to take out).

Un-excited, ün'.ex.sī''ted, not excited; unexcit-ing (Rule xix.), ün'.ex.sī''ting; unexcī'ting-ly. Inexcitable, -sī''tā.bl;
inexcī'table-ness; inexcitability, in'.ex.sī'.ta.bīl''ā.ty.

Un-, with Latin excitāre (ex cieo, to stir up).

Un-executed, ün'.ex'.ē.kū.ted, not performed, not put to death.

Non-execution, nōn'.ex'.ē.kū''shūn, non-performance.

Fr. inexécution; Lat. executio (ex séquo, to follow out).

Un-excused, ün'.ex.kūzed'', not excused. Inexcusable, *in'.ex.-
kū''zā.bl*; inexcusable-ness, inexcusably.

Latin inexcūsābilis, inexcūsātus (in ex causa, not without a motive).

Un-exemplified, ün'.ex.em''plī.fide, not exemplified.

Unexemplary, ün'.ex.em''plā.ry; unexem'plari-ly.

French sans exemple, peu exemplaire; Latin exemplifico (exemplum facio[facio], to make or give an example).

Words with Un- negative and privative.

Un-exercised, ŭn.ex'.er.sized, not exercised, not practised.

Fr. incercé; Lat. inexercitus or inexercitatus (ex arceo, to drive out).

Un-exhausted, ŭn'.ex.haust''.ed, not exhausted; unexhaust'-ing.

Inexhaustible, in'.ex.haust''.i.bl; inexhaust'ibly, inexhaust'ible-ness, inexhaustibil'ity.

Latin inexhaustus, v. ex-haurio to draw out from, to draw liquors.

Un-existing, ŭn'.ex.is't''.ing, not existing. Non-exist'ing.

Non-existence (not -ance), non'.ex.is't''.nce. Non-exist'ent.

French non existence, non existant (!); Latin existens gen. existentis, existère (ex sistère not ex stare; Greek ex histēmi).

Un-expand'ed, not expanded; unexpand'-ing. Inexpan'sive.

Un-, in-, with Latin ex-pandere supine -pansum, to open out.

Un-expect'ed, not anticipated; unexpected'-ly, not being expected; unexpected'-ness. (Latin expectare, ex specto.)

Un-expiated, un.ex'.pi.ā.ted, not expiated. Inexpiable, in.ex'.pi.ā.bl; inex'piably. (Latin inexpiābilis.)

Ex piāre, to purge out, to do an act of piety; pius, godly.

Un-explain'-able, not capable of being explained; unexplained'

(3 syl.) Inexplicable, in.ex'.pli.kā.bl; inex'plicably, inex'plicable-ness; inexplicability, in.ex'.plik.a.bl''i.ty.

Latin inexplicabilis, inexplānābilis (in ex-plicāri, not to be unfolded (plīca, a fold); in ex-planāri, not to be smoothed out).

Un-explored, ŭn'.ex.plōrd'', not explored. Inexplōr'able.

Fr. inexploré; Lat. inexplorātus. Festus says: "ab ex et ploro, quo antiq. pro explorare usi sunt, sed postea pro perspicere et sagaciter inquirere." In the De Rustica we have the original meaning of beawling. "Gemit, explorat, turbam omnem concitat."

Un-explosive, ŭn'.ex.plō''.siv, not explosive; unexplo'sive-ness.

Un-, with Lat. explōdere sup. explōsum (plaudo, to clap the hands).

Un-expressed, ŭn'.ex.prest'', not expressed, not squeezed out; unexpressive, ŭn'.ex.pres''.siv; unexpres'sive-ly.

Inexpressive, in'.ex.pres''.siv; inexpres'sive-ly, -ness.

Inexpress'ible; inexpress'ibly, indescribably.

French peu expressif; Latin exprīmo supine expressum (ex premo supine pressum to draw out, hence to portray).

Un-extend'ed, not extended. Non-extensive, non'.ex.tēn''.siv.

Inextension, in'.ex.ten''shūn. (Lat. ex-tendere, to stretch out.)

Un-extinguished, ŭn'.ex.tīn''.gwishd, not quenched or put out; unextin'guish-āble (should be -ible, not the 1st Lat. conj.)

In'extinct''; inextin'guish-able, unquenchable.

Latin inextinctus, inextinguibilis; French inextinguible.

Un-extricated, ŭn.ex'.trī.kā.ted, not extricated. Inextricable, in.ex'.trī.kā.bl; inex'tricable-ness, inex'tricably.

Latin inextricābilis, v. extricare (ex trice, out of the "hair leggings" wrapped round the feet of fowls to prevent their roaming).

Words with Un- negative and privative.

Un-faded, ŭn.fā'.ded, not faded; unfad-ing (R. xix.), ŭn.fā'.ding.

Un-; with Fr. fade, insipid; Lat. vādo, to go; Gk. badōs, a walk.

Un-fail-ing, not failing; unfail-ing-ly, unfail-ing-ness.

Infallible, in.fāl'.li.bl, without possibility of error; infallible-ness, infall'ibly; infallibility, in.fāl'.li.bl'ī.ty.

Lat. infallibilis (fallō, to fail, to deceive; Gk. sphallo, to trip up); Fr. infaillible, infaillibilité. We have adopted both the Lat. and Fr. forms, but have associated distinct meanings to them.

Un-fair', not just or impartial; unfair'-ly, unfair'-ness.

Old English unfæger, unfair; unfægere, foully, unfairly.

Un-faith'-ful, not faithful; unfaith'-ful-ly, unfaith'-ful-ness.

Infidel, in'.fī.dēl, a disbeliever in revelation.

Infidelity, plu. infidelities, in'.fī.dēl'ī.tīz, disloyalty.

Lat. infidelitas, infidelis, infideliter (fides, faith); Fr. infidélité; Ital. fede faith, infedele; Fr. foi faith.

Un-fāmed' (2 syl.), without fame. Infamous, in'.fā.mūs, scandalous, ill-famed; in'famous-ly, in'famous-ness. Infamy, in'.fā.my, bad notoriety.

Latin infāmia, infāmis (fāma, fame); French mal famé, infamie.

Un-familiar, ŭn'.fā.mīl'.yar, not familiar; unfamiliar-ly; unfamiliarity, ŭn'.fā.mīl'.i.ār'.ri.ty.

French peu familier (wrong), familiarité; Latin fāmiliāris, fāmiliāritas (fāmulus, a household servant).

Un-fashionable, ŭn.fash'.ōn.ā.bl, not fashionable; unfash'ionable-ness, unfash'ionably; unfashioned, un.fash'.und, not brought into shape. (French non façonné.)

Un-, with Fr. fashionable, façon (Lat. fācio, to make or fashion).

Un-fast', not locked or bolted. (Old English unfæst.)

Un-fasten, ŭn.fāh'sn (not un.fāh'sten nor ŭn.fās'sn), to loose, to undo; unfastened, ŭn.fāh'.snd; unfasten-ing, 'sn.ing.

Old Eng. ungefæstnian, to unfasten; past ungefastnode; past part. ungefastnod, -gefæstnung a fastening (fæst firm), also unfastred.

Un-fathomed, un.fath'.āmd, not fathomed; unfath'om-able, unfath'omable-ness, -fath'omably. (O. E. unbefæthmod.)

O. E. fæthm a cubit, v. fæthm[ian], past fæthmode, p. p. fæthmod.

Un-favoured, ŭn.fā'.vrd, not favoured; unfavourable, ŭn.fā'.vōr.ā.bl; unfa'vourable-ness, unfa'vourably.

Disfavour, dis.fā'.vor, disapproval; disfa'voured, &c.

French non favorisé, défavorable, défaveür; Latin infāvōrābilis.

Un-feal, ŭn.feel', not loyal as a vassal. (Old English unfæl.)

Un-feel-ing, not sensitive; unfeel-ing-ly; unfelt'.

Old English ungefēle, v. -fellan, past -felde, past part. -feled.

Un-feigned, ŭn.fūned', real; unfeigned-ly, ŭn.fā'.ned.ly.

Fr. non feint, sans feinte, v. feindre; Lat. figere, to counterfeit.

Words with Un- negative and privative.

- Un-fertile, ŭn.fér'tíl, or infertile, not fertile; infertil'ity.
 French infertile, infertilité; Latin infertilis, fertilitas.
- Un-fet'ter, to free from fetters; unfet'ter-ing, unfet'tered.
 Old Eng. un-fæter or fetor; fetta-irn, fetter iron or iron fetters.
- Un-feverish, ŭn.fē'vēr.ish, not feverish. (O. E. unfeferig.)
- Un-figured, ŭn.fīg'rd, plain, without figures. Disfigure, -fīg'r, to deface; disfigured, dis.fīg'rd; disfig'ur-ing (R. xix.), disfig'uring-ly, disfig'ur-er, disfig'ure-ment.
 Fr. sans figures défigurer; Lat. dis-figūrāre, to mar the form.
- Un-filial, ŭn.fīl' i.āl, undutiful as a son or daughter.
 French non filial, peu filial; Latin filius a son, filia a daughter.
- Un-filled, ŭn.fīld, not filled. (O. E. unfylled or ungefylled.)
- Un-firm', not steady or steadfast. Infirm', feeble; infirm'-ly.
Infirmity, plu. infirmities, in.fir'.mī.tīz, feebleness, defect.
 Lat. infirmus, infirmitas (firmus, firm); Fr. sans fermeté (wrong).
- Un-fit', not suitable; unfit'-ed (R. iv.), unfit'-ing, unfit'-ness, unfit'-ly. (Fr. fait, comely; Lat. factum from fācio.)
- Un-fix', to unfasten; unfixed, un.fix't; unfix'-ing, unfixed-ness, ŭn.fix'.ed.ness. (Lat. non fixus, v. figo, supine fixum.)
- Un-fold', to lay open, to disclose; unfold'-ed (R. xxxvi.), -ing.
 Old Eng. unseald[an], past unseold, past part. ungefealden.
- Un-forbear-ing, ŭn'for.bare''ing, not forbearing; unforbear'-ing-ly.
 (Old English unforebyrdig.)
- Un-forbid'ding, not forbidding; unforbid'ding-ly.
Un-forbidden, un'for.bīd''n. (Old Eng. unforboden.)
- Un-foreboding (not forboding), ŭn'for.bō''ding, not ominous.
 Old Eng. un-, fōre-, with bod[ian], past bodode, past part. bodod.
- Un-foreseen (not forseen), ŭn'for.seen'', not seen beforehand;
-foreseeing, not seeing beforehand. (O. E. unfōresceawod.)
- Un-foretold (not fortold), ŭn'for.told'', not predicted.
 Old Eng. un- fōre- with tell[an], past tealde, past part. geteald.
- Un-forewarned (not forwarned), ŭn'for.wornd'', not pre-admonished.
 (O. E. un-, fōre-, with warnod of v. warnian.)
- Un-forgett'ing, not forgetting; unforgot', unforgott'en (R. iv.)
 Old English unforgitende, unforgeten, (past forgeat).
- Un-forgiven, ŭn'for.gīv''n, not pardoned; unforgīv'-ing (Rule xix.), relentless. (Old English unforgifen.)
- Un-forsaken, ŭn'for.sā'.kn, not deserted; [unforsook''].
 Old English unforsacen (sēc[an]), past sōhte, past part. gesōht).
- Un-fortunate, ŭn.for'.tū.nāte, not lucky; unfor'tunate-ly.
 Latin infortunātus. (Our word should be infortunate, &c.)

Words with Un- negative and privative.

Un-fossilised, ün.fös'.sil.ized, not petrified. (Fr. fossiliser.)

(This word is sometimes spelt with double l, but one l is better, R. iii.)

Un-fought, -faut', not contested in battle. (O. E. unbefeohthen.)

Un-found', not discovered. (Old English unafunden.)

Un-franchised, ün.frän'.tchized, not franchised; disfranchise, dis.frän'.tchize, to take away the franchise; disfran'chised (3 syl.); disfranchis-ing, dis.frän'.shĭ.zing; disfranchise-ment, dis.frän'.shĭ.zment.

Un-, dis-, with Fr. franchise; Low Lat. franchisia, disfranchisatus.

Un-free', not free; unfreed', not liberated. (O. E. ungefréod.)

Un-freighted, ün.fray'.ted, not loaded with its freight.

Un-, with Germ. fracht, frachter; Fr. fréter. (No excuse for -eigh-.)

Un-frequented, -fre.kwĕn''.ted, not resorted to; unfrequent-ly, ün.free'.kwent.ly, not often. Infrequent, in.free'.kwent, occasional; infrequent-ly, occasionally; infrequency, in.free'.kwence; infre'quency.

Fr. infréquenté or peu fréquenté, peu fréquent; Lat. infrēquens gen. frēquentis, infrēquentātus, infrēquentia, v. frēquentāre.

Un-friend-ed, ün.frĕn'.ded, or unbefrien'ded, not having friends to give help. Unfriend-ly, ün.frend'.ly, not in the manner of a friend; unfriend'li-ness. (O. E. unfreondlice.)

Un-fruitleful, ün.früte'.ful, unproductive; unfruit'ful-ly, unfruit'ful-ness. (Fr. fruit; Lat. fructus, v. frūtico.)

Un-fulfilled, ün'.ful.fild'', not accomplished. Non-fulfil'ment.

Old Eng. un-fulfylled, v. fullfyl[lan]. The dropping of l in full and fill is absurd. The second l has recently been restored to many words: as befull, befell, recall, &c., and it ought to be restored to full, fill, stilt, thrall, well, &c.

Un-furl', to spread [sail]; unfurled' (2 syl.), unfurl'-ing.

Un-, with Fr. ferler, to close. (Our word should be unferl.)

Un-gain', untoward; ungain'-ly, ungain'-ful, ungain'-ness.

O. Eng. ungægne, ungain; Low Lat. guadagium; Fr. gain, v. gagner.

Un-gain-said, ün.gain'.sed, not contradicted.

Old English un-geon-sagde, not the opposite said. This "gain" has no connexion with gain (profit), and should be spelt geon or gen.

Un-gallant, ün.gäl'.lant (not brave), ün.gal.lant' (not polite to ladies). Ungal'lant-ly, not courageously.

Ungallant'ly, not chivalrously. (Fr. galant, both senses.)

German galan (noun), galant (adj.) Our double l is a blunder.

Un-garrisoned, ün.gär'ri.sund, without troops of defence.

(A blunder for -garnisoned.) Fr. sans garnison; Germ. ohne garnison.

Un-gathered, ün.gäth'.rd, not gathered, not plucked.

Old Eng. gather[ian] or gader[ian], past gaderode, past part. gaderod, gaderung a gathering, gaderende gathering.

Words with Un- negative and privative.

Un-generous, ũn.djẽn'.ẽrũs, not generous; ungen'erous-ly, ungen'erous-ness. (Fr. peu gẽnẽreux; Lat. -gẽnẽrũsus.)

"Generosity" means the conduct of a man of family (gens, a patrician).

Un-genteel, ũn'.gẽn'.teel', not refined; ungenteel'-ly.

Latin gens gen. gentis, the patrician class; gentilis, adj. of gens.

Un-gentle, ũn'.gẽn'.tl, not gentle; ungen'tle-ness, ungen'tly.

Latin gentilis, proper for a gens or man of family.

Un-gentlemanly, ũn'.gẽn'.tl.man.ly, Unladylike, ũn.lã'.dy.like, unbecoming a gentleman or lady; ungen'tlemanli-ness; ungen'tleman-like, not like the conduct of a gentleman.

"A gentleman" means a man belonging to the patrician class or gens.

"Gentleman," Fr. gentilhomme. "Lady," O.E. hlǣfdige, loaf-server.

Un-gilt' or un-gild'ed, not gilt, not overlaid with gold-leaf.

Old Eng. un-gilded, verb gild[an], past gildede, past part. gilded.

Un-gird', to take off the girth or girdle; ungird'-ed, (past part.) ungirt'. (O. Eng. ungyrð[an], past gyrðe, p. p. gyrðed.)

Un-gladdened, ũn'.glãd'nd, not made glad, not cheered up.

Old Eng. unglæd unglad, unglādod, gegladian to gladden.

Un-glazed' (2 syl.), without glass [to the window-frames].

Old Eng. glæs, glass; Lat. glastrum, woad. Some eight or nine words in order to verbalise their nouns convert c or s into z: as "cicatrise," v. cicatrise; "price," v. prize; "brass," v. braz; "glass," v. glaze; "gloss," v. gloze; "grass," v. graze; "toss," toze. Many more retain the same letter, but give it the "z" sound in the v., as "house," v. house = houze; "use," v. use = uze.

Un-glorified, un'.glõr'ri.fide, not glorified. Inglorious, in'.glõr'ri.ũs, without glory, ill-famed; inglo'rious-ness, -ly.

Lat. inglõrius, inglõriũsus, -glõrifico (glõria); Fr. non glorifiẽ.

Un-gõd'-ly (adj. and adv.), not godly; ungodli-ness (ungodli-ly is rarely used). O. E. ungodlice (adj.), ungodlice (adv.)

"All that live godly . . . suffer" (not godlily).—2 Tim. iii. 12.

"Ye should live godly in this world" (not godlily).—Tit. ii. 12.

"An ensample to those who . . . live ungodly."—2 Pet. ii. 6.

Un-governed, un'.gũv'rnd, not controlled; ungov'ern-able, ungov'ernable-ness, ungov'ernable. (Fr. non governẽ.)

Un-graced' (2 syl.), not graced; ungrace'-ful, not elegant; ungrace'ful-ly, ungrace'ful-ness.

Un-gracious (Rule lxvi.), un'.grã'.shũs; ungra'cious-ly, ungra'cious-ness. Disgrace' (2 syl.), dishonour, to dishonour; disgraced' (2 syl.); disgrac-ing, dis'.grã'.sing; disgrace'-ful, disgrace'ful-ly, disgrace'ful-ness.

Fr. sans grãce, disgracieux, disgrace, v. disgracier (Lat. gratia).

Un-grammatal, un'.grãm.mãt'ã.cũl, not grammatical; un-grammat'ical-ly. (Fr. grammatical, Lat. grammaticus.)

Words with Un- negative and privative.

Un-grate'-ful, not grateful; ungrate'-ful-ly, ungrate'-ful-ness.

Ingratitude, in.grät'.ä.tüde. Ingrate' (2 syl.)

Fr. ingrat, ingratitude; Lat. ingrätus, ingrätitüdo (grätia, thanks).

Un-gratified, ün.grät'.ä.fide, not pleased, not indulged.

Un-, with Latin gratificäri, ingratificus (gratia-ficio[fäcio]).

Un-greet'ed, not saluted. (O. E. ungegrät, v. -gegret[an], to greet.)

Un-grüdged' (2 syl.), not gruded; ungrüdg'ingly, heartily.

Un-, with Welsh grwgnachu to murmur, grwgnachiad a murmuring.

Un-guard'-ed (not un.ge'ard'.ed), exposed; unguard'-ed-ly, unguard'-ed-ness. (French non gardé, Italian guardare.)

Un-guessed, ün.gest' (g hard), not divined, not solved.

Old Eng. ungesecgd, v. -gesceg[an] to explain; Dan. giss, to guess.

Un-guilty, -gilt'.y, not culpable; unguilt'i-ly. (O. E. ungyltig.)

Un-habitable, -hüb'.it.ä.bl, or un-inhab'itable, not fit to live in.

Fr. inhabitable; Lat. inhabitābilis. In Latin the in- of this group of words is used both positively and negatively: thus, inhabitare means "to dwell in or inhabit," but inhabitābilis "not fit to dwell in." The Fr. use it always negatively, thus inhabité uninhabited, inhabitable not habitable. We have avoided both these errors.

Un-hackneyed (Rule xiii.), ün.häck'.ned, not hackneyed.

A word manufactured from the Fr haguenée, a cob-horse (see p. 426).

Un-hallowed, un.häl'.lode, not consecrated, desecrated.

Old E. ungehaldgod or unhaldgod, v. -gehald[ian] or hald[ian], past -ode.

Un-handsome, ün.hän'.süm, not handsome; unhand'some-ly, unhand'some-ness. (Dutch handzaam, soft, pliant.

Un-handy, ün.hän'.dy, not easy of use, awkward; unhand'i-ly, unhand'i-ness. (O. Eng. unhandæd, fit for the hand.)

Un-hang', to remove from its hinges, to take down what is hung; unhung', unhang'ed (1 syl.), not suspended on a gallows. (Old Eng. unhón, p. unheng, p. p. unhangen.)

Un-häp'py, not happy; unhap'pi-ness; unhap'pi-ly, unluckily.

Un-, with Welsh hap, luck, verb hapiaw, to be lucky.

Un-harassed (one r, double s), ün.här'räst, not harassed or jaded. (Un-, with Fr. harasser; Gk. arassó, to dash against.)

Un-harboured, un.har'.brd, not sheltered, not put into harbour.

Old Eng. un-, with here-byrgan, to harbour an army on march.

Un-hardened, un.hard'.nd, not hardened. Unhar'dy, not robust or strong. (Old English unheardod, unheardig.)

Un-harmed', not injured; unharm'-ful. (O. E. unhearmod, &c.)

Un-harmonious, ün'.har.mō''.nä.üs, not harmonious; unhar-monious-ly. Inharmonious, in'.har.mō''.nä.üs; inhar-mo'nious-ly; inharmonic, in'.har.mōn''.äk.

Fr. peu harmonieux, -harmonique; Lat. harmōnicus, harmōnia.

Words with Un- negative and privative.

Un-harness, ŭn.har'ness, to divest of harness or armour;
unharnessed, ŭn.har'nest; unhar'ness-ing.

Un-, with Welsh harnais, v. harneisiaw, harnesiwr.

Un-hazarded (one z), ŭn.haz'ar.ded, not risked.

French non hasardé. Ménage et Roquefort dérivent ce mot [hasard] d'as [ace] nom de l'unité, dans les jeux de hasard.

Un-healthy, un.hèlth'y, not healthy; unhealth'i-ness, unhealth'i-ly, unhealth'ful, unhealth'ful-ly, -ness.

From Old English hæth [hæthig, hæthfull, &c.]

Un-heard, ŭn.herd', not heard; unhearing, un.heer'ing.

Old Eng. ungehêred, v. hȳr[an] to hear, past hȳrde, past part. hȳred.

Un-heated, ŭn.heet'ed, not made hot. (Old Eng. ungehatude.)

Un-heed'ed, not regarded; unheed'ful, unheed'ful-ly, unheed'ing, unheed'ing-ly. (Old Eng. unhȳdig.)

Un-helped, ŭn.helpt', not aided. (O. E. ungeholpen, unholpen.)

Un-heroic, ŭn'.he.rō'ik, not heroic; unhero'icā, -hero'ical-ly.

Un-, with Latin hērōicus; Greek hērōikos.

Un-hesitating, ŭn.hez'.i.tā.ting, prompt; unhes'itating-ly.

French sans hésiter; Latin hæsītāre (from hæreo, to stick).

Un-hewn' or unhewed' (2 syl.), not hewn. (O. Eng. ungehiwod.)

Un-hinge' (2 syl.), to take from its hinges, to unsettle, to disturb; unhinged' (2 syl.); unhing-ing, ŭn.hin'.ging.

Our old word for hinge is heorra, but we have muddled this with heng, hung (verb hōn to hang, past heng, past part. hangen).

Un-ho'ly, (comp.) unho'li-er, (super.) unho'li-est; unho'li-ly, unho'li-ness. (O. Eng. unhālig, unhālignes, unhāliglice.)

Un-honoured, ŭn.ōn'.rd, not honoured. (See p. 425, H mute.)

Dishonour, diz.ōn'.or, disgrace, to disgrace; dishon'oured, dishon'our-ing, dishon'our-er, dishon'our-able, dishonourable-ness, dishon'ourably.

Fr. déshonneur !! but déshonorable (one n), v. déshonorer; Lat. hōnor.

Un-hook', to loose from a hook; unhooked' (2 syl.), -hook'-ing.

Old English unhōc; unhōciht, unhooked.

Un-hōped' (2 syl.), unlooked for; unhōpe'-ful, unhōpe'ful-ly.

Old English unhopod, unhopafull, verb hop[ian], past hopode.

Un-horse', to throw from a horse, to cause to dismount; unhorsed' (2 syl.), unhors-ing, Rule xix. (Old Eng. hors.)

Un-house, ŭn.houze', to drive from one's house; unhouse'd' (2 syl.); unhous-ing, Rule xix. (Old Eng. ungehūsed.)

Un-hurt', not injured; unhurt'-ful, harmless. (O. Eng. hyrt.)

Un-illustrated, ŭn.ĭl'.lūs.trū.ted, not illustrated.

Fr. non illustré; Lat. illustratus (il-[in]lustrāre, to throw light on).

Words with Un- negative and privative.

Un-imagined (one -m-), ŭn'ĩ.mădg'ınd, not imagined; un-imaginable, ŭn'ĩ.mădg'ĩ.nă.bl; unimag'inative, -tīv.

Fr. inimaginable; Lat. -imāginativus, v. imāgināre (imāgo, an image).

Un-imitated, ŭn'ĩm'ĩ.tă.ted, not imitated. Inimitable, ĩn'ĩm'ĩ.tă.bl, beyond the art of imitation; inim'itably, ĩnĩm'ĩt-able-ness; inimitability, ĩn'ĩm'ĩ.tă.bl'ĩt'ĩty.

Fr. non imité, inimitable; Lat. inimitābilis, v. -imitāre, to imitate.

Un-impaired, ŭn'ĩm.paired'', not injured; unimpair'able.

Should be unempaired, &c., from the Fr. empirer; Lat. pejor, worse.

Un-impassioned, ŭn'ĩm.păsh'ĩnd, not impassioned; unimpassionable, ŭn'ĩm.păsh'ĩn.nă.bl.

French non passionné, -impassionner; Latin passio, passion.

Un-impeached, ŭn'ĩm.peeht'', not impeached; unimpeachable, ŭn'ĩm.peeht'ĩ.nă.bl; unimpeach'able-ness, -impeach'ably.

Un-, with Lat. impetĭtio, v. impetĕre; Low Lat. impetĭtare (from petitio the charge of a plaintiff, im-[in]petĕre to seek redress from one).

Un-impeded, ŭn'ĩm.peed''ed, not hindered. (Lat. -impeditus.)

Un-[in]pĕdes, [clogs or shackles] on the feet.

Un-important, ŭn'ĩm.pŏr''tant, not important, insignificant.

Fr. peu important; Lat. im-[in]portĕre, to bear on [the subject].

Un-impregnable, ŭn'ĩm.prĕg''nă.bl, not unassailable.

This word should be unimprenable. Fr. imprenable, not imprĕgner (to impregnate); Latin im-[in]prehendĕre, not impregnāre.

Un-impressed, ŭn'ĩm.prest'', not impressed; unimpressible, ŭn'ĩm.prĕs'ĩ.bl; unimpressive, ŭn'ĩm.prĕs''sĭv; unimpress'ive-ly, without producing an impression.

Un-, with Latin imprĕmo supine impressum, to imprint.

Un-improved, ŭn'ĩm.proovd'', not improved; unimprovable, ŭn'ĩm.proo''vă.bl; unimproving, ŭn'ĩm.proo''ving.

Disimproved, dis'ĩm.proovd'', gone bad; disimprove'-ment.

Misimprove, mis'ĩm.proov''; mis'improved'' (3 syl.); misimprov-ing (Rule xix.), mis'improve'-ment.

Un-, dis-, with Latin pro-vĕho to carry or travel forwards.

("Improvable" is the wrong Latin conjugation, Rule xxiii.)

Un-inclosed, ŭn'ĩn.klŏzd'', not inclosed. (Latin inclŭsum.)

Un-incorporated, ŭn'ĩn.kor''po.ră.ted, not incorporated.

Disincorporated, deprived of corporate rights; disincorporation, dis'ĩn.kor.po.ră''shŭn. (Lat. incorporāre.)

Un-incumbered, ŭn'ĩn.kŭm''brd, not incumbered. Disincum'ber, to remove an incumbrance; disincum'bered, -ber-ing.

Un-, dis-, with Latin incumbĕre; French non encombré.

Un-infected, ŭn'ĩn.fĕk''ted, not infected; uninfectious, ŭn'ĩn.fĕk''shŭs. Dis'infect, to remove infection; disinfect'ed, disinfect'ing; disinfection, dis'ĩn.fĕk''shŭn.

Fr. non infecté, désinfecter, désinfection; Lat. -infectus (in-ficio[facio]).

Words with Un- negative and privative.

Un-inflamed, ŭn'in.flamed'', not inflamed; uninflammable (double -m-), ŭn'in.flām''.mā.bl, not to be set on fire.

Fr. non enflammé (!), non inflammable (!); Lat. inflammāre, flamma.

Un-influenced, ŭn.in'.flu.enst, not influenced by others; uninfluential, ŭn'in.flu.ĕn''.shāl, without influence.

French sans influence; Latin influentia, in-fluēre to flow in.

(The idea is that one liquor affects another by flowing into it.)

Un'-informed'' (3 syl.), not informed. Mis'informed, incorrectly informed. (French non informé, informé mal.)

Un-inhabited, ŭn'in.hāb''.ĭt.ed, not inhabited; uninhab'itable; uninhab'itable-ness, unfitness for a dwelling.

Latin in-habitabilis (not habitable), but inhabitāre, to inhabit or dwell in. This contradictory use of in- is most objectionable.

French in-habitable not habitable, inhabité not dwelt in. The French use the prefix in- only in a negative sense in these words; we, on the other hand, use it only as a preposition.

Un-initiated, ŭn'in.ish''.ĭ.ā.ted, not initiated.

Fr. non initié; Lat. inītiāre (inīttum a beginning, in-eo to go in).

Un-inscribed, ŭn'in.skribd'', not inscribed. (Latin inscribo.)

Un-inspired, ŭn'in.spired'', not inspired. (Fr. non inspiré.)

Latin in-spirāre, to breathe into one [divine afflatus].

Un-instruct'ed, not instructed; uninstruc'tive, -ĭv.

French peu instructif; Latin instruo supine instructum.

Un-intellectual, ŭn'in.tĕl.lĕk''.tu.āl, not intellectual; unintelligent, ŭn'in.tĕl''.ĭ.gent; -intel'ligent-ly; unintelligible, ŭn'in.tĕl''.ĭ.gĭ.bl; unintelligibly; unintelligibility, ŭn'in.tĕl''.ĭ.gĭ.bl''.ĭ.ty.

Fr. peu intelligent, in-intelligible; Lat. intellectuālis, intelligĭbilis, intelligens genitive -gentis, v. intelligĕre (lĕgo).

Un-intend'ed, not intended; unintentional, ŭn'in.tĕn''.shĭn.āl; uninten'tional-ly. (Fr. non intentionnel, non intentionné.)

Latin in-tendĕre supine -tensum, to strain on [something].

(“To intend to do a thing” is to stretch every power to do it.)

Un-interested, ŭn'in.ter.est''.ed, not interested; uninterest'ing, exciting no interest; uninterest'ing-ly.

Disinterested, dis.in'.ter.est''.ed, without a self-interested motive; disinterest'ed-ly, disinterest'ed-ness.

French désintéressé; Latin interest, it concerns me.

Un-interred, ŭn'in.terd'', not buried. Dis'inter', to dig out of a grave; disinterred, dis'in.terd''; disinterr-ing (R. iv.); disinter'-ment, the removal from a grave.

Latin terra the earth, in-terra to put in the earth; Italian interrare to put in the earth, s-terrare to take out of the earth (see 1150).

Un-interrupt'ed, not interrupted; uninterrupt'ed-ly.

French non interrompu (!), sans interruption; Latin interrumpo.

Words with Un- negative and privative.

Un-invited, ŭn' in.vî''ted, not invited; uninvi'ting.

Fr. non invité; Lat. in-vitare, to do the contrary of shunning.

Un-irritated, ŭn.îr'ri.tā.ted, not irritated. (French non irrité.)

Latin irrito. ("Tractum a canibus, qui eum provocantur, irriunt vel hirriunt," Nonius Marcellus.) "Hirrio," to hurr or snarl.

Un-joined' (2 syl.), not joined. Disjoin', to sever; disjoined' (2 syl.), disjoin'-ing.

Un-joint'ed, not jointed. Disjoint', to put out of joint; disjoint'-ing, disjoint'-ed, disjoint'-ed-ly, disjoint'-ed-ness.

Disjunction, dis.jŭnk'.shŭn; disjunctive, dis.jŭnk'.tĭv; -ly.

Fr. sans joint, disjoint, disjonctif, disjonction, disjontive (in Gram.); Latin disjunctus, disjunctivus, v. disjungo supine disjunctum.

Un-judged' (2 syl.), not judged. Injudicious, in'ju.dish''ŭs, without judgment or discretion; injudicious-ly, -ness.

French non jugé; Latin injūdicātus (judex, a judge).

Un-justified, ŭn.jŭs'ti.fide, not justified; unjustifiable, unjustifiable-ness, unjustifiably.

Fr. non justifiable, non justifié; Lat. justificāre (justus fācio).

Un-ken'nel, to loose [dogs] from a kennel; un-kennelled, -kēn'nel'd; -ken'nell-ing, R.iii. -EL. (Un- with Fr. chenil.)

Lat. canilis, for caninus, canis (a dog). Our word should be canil.

Un-kept', not preserved, not observed. (O. E. uncēpt, v. cēpan.)

Un-kind', not kind; unkind'-ness, unkind'-ly, unkind'li-ness.

Old English ungecȳnd or ungecind, ungecindelic.

Un-knit, ŭn.nĭt', not knit together. (Old Eng. ungecnyt.)

Un-knotted, un.nŏt'.ed, not knotted. (Old Eng. ungecnyt.)

Un-known', not known; unknow'-ing, unknow'ing-ly.

Old English un-cnāwen, verb cnāw[an] to know, past cnēow.

Un-laboured, ŭn.lā'.brd, not stiff and formal, easy [in style]; unlaborious, ŭn'.la.bŏr'ri.ŭs, not requiring hard work; unlaborious-ly, unlaborious-ness. (Latin lābŏriŏsus.)

Un-lace' (2 syl.), to loose from a lace; unlaced' (2 syl.); unlacing, un.lā'.sing, Rule xix. (Fr. délacer. See Lace.)

Un-lade' (2 syl.), to remove the cargo of a ship. Un-load', to remove the goods of a wagon, &c. Unlaid', not put down.

Un-lade', past [unloaded], p. part. unla'den, unlād'-ing.

Un-load', past unloaded, p. part. [unla'den], unload'-ing.

(The word lade is obsolete, laded and unladed are rarely used.)

Old Eng. unhlæden, verb hlād[an], past hlōd, past part. hlæden.

Un-la'dy-like, not befitting a lady. Ungen'tlemanly, not befitting a gentleman. (O. E. hlæfdige or hlæfdie, a lady.)

"Gentleman" is the Fr. gentil-homme, a man of family (Lat. gens).

Words with Un- negative and privative.

- Un-laid, not put down, not laid. Un-lade' (2 syl.), to unload.
Delay', to defer; delayed, de.lāde; delay'-ing, delay'-er.
 (These words are from different sources, one is Ang.-Sax. and one Lat.)
 "Unlaid," O. Eng. ungeleced, ungeled, or ungelegd, v. lecgan to lay.
 "Delay," Fr. délai; Lat. dilatatum or v. différo to carry back, to defer.
Un-lawful, ūn.law'ful, not lawful; unlaw'ful-ly, -law'ful-ness.
 Old Eng. unlaga or unlagultic; a law is something "laid down," from licg[an] or ligg[an], past lag or lage to lay, to fix.
Un-learned, ūn.lern'ed, not wise, not learnèd; unlearnèd-ly
 (4 syl.); unlearn't, ūn.lern't, not committed to memory;
unlearn', to forget or abandon what has been learnt.
 O. E. ungelæred, ungelæredlice unlearnedly, lærn[ian] to learn.
Un-léd', not led. (Old English ungelæden or unlæden).
Un-less' (Old Eng. onlesan, unloose). Except' (Lat. excipere [ex cāpio], take out).

These words may either be treated as imperative moods or what in Latin is termed the ablative absolute = this proviso being unloosed or taken out.

"Paul said, except these abide in the ship, ye cannot be saved" (Acts xvii. 31). Paul said ye cannot be saved, this proviso being disregarded, viz. that ye abide in the ship.

"Ye are saved, unless ye have believed in vain" (1 Cor. xv. 2). Ye are saved, this proviso being taken away, viz. that ye have believed in vain.

There is no appreciable difference between these two words thus employed, but "Except" is used also with nouns after the manner of a preposition, which "Unless" cannot be; thus "They were all scattered, except the apostles" (Acts viii. 1), that is; the apostles being excepted (ablative absolute in Latin). I would that all "were such as I am, except these bonds" (Acts xxvi. 29), these bonds being excepted (ablative absolute in Latin).

It would have given us a nice shade of distinction if we had employed "except" exclusively with nouns and their equivalents (as in the last two examples), and "unless" with verbs or verbal clauses (as in the first two examples).

- Un-lessened, ūn.less'nd, not diminished. (Formed from less.)
Un-lettered, ūn.lēt'rd. Illiterate, il.lit'.ērate, not book wise; illit'erate-ly, illit'erate-ness; illit'eracy, ignorance.

We borrow the word letter from the Fr. lettre, a double corruption of the Lat. littera (a letter), but in the words literate and illiterate, literature and literal, &c., we abandon the Fr. illettré, littérature, littéral, &c., for the Lat. models litrātus, illitrātus, litrātūra, litrālis. Nothing can be worse. If -ett- is to be adopted in "letter," it should be preserved throughout; if the Lat. is to be followed in literate, literature, literal, &c., it should be followed in "letter" and "unlettered." If, however, our word litter (a confusion) was a difficulty, it would be very easy to find a remedy.

- Un-level, ūn.lēv'.ēl, not level; unlevelled, -lēv'.ēld (R. iii., -EL).
 Old Eng. un-læfel, -læfeldre; Low Lat. levella; Fr. non nivelé.
Un-liberated, ūn.lib'.ē.rā.ted, not liberated. Deliberate, de-lib'.ērate, to consider; delib'erāt-ed, delib'erāt-ing, &c.

Words with Un- negative and privative.

Illiberal, il.lɪb'ɛ.rəl; illib'eral-ly; illiberal'ity, meanness.

Lat. non liberātus, not made free. Deliberare, to free from [irrelevant matter]; il-[in]liberātis, not free [in mind], bigoted.

Un-licensed, ʊn.lɪ'sɛnst, not licensed. (French licence.)

Six words change the c of the noun into s for the verb: as "advice," advise; "device," devise; "choice," choose; "licence," license; "practice," practise; and "prophecy," prophecy; two others change it into z: viz. "cicatrice," cicatrise; and "price," prize.

Un-lighted, ʊn.lɪ'tɛd, or unlit, not lighted or not lit.

Old English un-liht, verb liht[an], past lihte, past part. liht. It will be seen that lit is the older form. (-g- interpolated.)

Un-like' (2 syl.), dissimilar. Unlike'-ly, improbable; unlike'-li-ness (Rule xi.); unlike'li-hood (-hood, condition).

Dislike' (2 syl.), to feel averse to; disliked' (2 syl.); dislik-ing, dis.lɪ'king (Rule xix.); dislik-er, dis.lɪ'ker.

"Unlike," Old Eng. ungeltic, ungelticnes, ungelticlic; Dis- with geltic.

Un-lim'it-ed, not bounded, indefinite, unrestrained.

Illimitable, il.lɪm'ɪ.tə.bl; illimitable-ness, illim'itābly; illimitability, il.lɪm'ɪ.tə.bɪl''ɪ.ty.

French illimité, illimitable; Latin limes genitive līmītis, līmītātus.

Un-liquefied, ʊn.lɪk'kwɪ.fɪdɛ, not converted into a liquid.

Fr. non liquéfié; Lat. illiqueſto, illiquefacio (il- not negative).

Un-liquidated, ʊn.lɪk'kwɪ.dū.tɛd, not paid.

Lat. liquidāre. Obs. -que- for "liquefy," -qui for "liquidate."

Un-live'-ly (3 syl.), not animated. (Old English unlǣflic.)

Un-load, ʊn.lōdɛ, to disburden; unload'-ed; (past part.) unload'-ed or unladen, un.lō'dn; un-load'-ing.

Un-laden means not freighted: unloaded means the cargo removed. Old English unhlād[an], past -hlōd, past part. -hlāden.

Un-located, ʊn'.lo.kay''tɛd, not fixed in a place. Dislocate, dis'.lō.kāte, to put out of joint; dislocā'ted; dislocat-ing, dis'.lō.kā''tɪŋ; dislocation, dis'.lo.kay''shʊn.

Lat. non locātus, dis-locāre; Fr. dislocation, verb disloquer.

Un-lock', to undo a lock; unlocked' (2 syl.), unlock'-ing.

Old English un-lūc[an], past -lēdc, past part. -lōcen or -gelōcen.

Un-lodged, un.lodgd', not lodged. Dis-lodge' (2 syl.), removed from its lodgment; dislodged (2 syl.), dislodg'-ing, -ment.

Old English un-, dis-, with log[ian], past logode, past part. logod; Latin locāre (locus, a place); French déloger, délogement.

Un-looked for, un.lookɪ' fɔr, not expected, not foreseen.

Old Eng. un-, with lōc[ian], past lōcode, past part. locod, and for.

Un-loose, ʊn.loos', to unfasten; unloosed' (2 syl.), unloos'-ing.

Old English unles[an], past unlōes, past part. unlesen; or unlȳsan, past unlȳste, past part. ungelȳsed or unlȳst.

Words with Un- negative and privative.

Un-loved, ŭn.lŭvd, not loved; unlove'-ly, unlove'li-ness; unlov-ing, ŭn.lŭv'ing; unlov'ing-ly; love'less, -ly.

Old Eng. unleof and ungelufed, v. luf[ian], past lufede, p. p. lufed.

Un-loy'al. Disloy'al; disloyalty, dis.loi'äl.ty.

Disloyal denotes an active demonstration of disloyalty.

Unloyal denotes the simple fact of not being loyal.

Un-leal, un.leel'. (Italian leal, loyal.)

Un-, with Fr. loyal; déloyal (Fr. loi, Lat. lex genitive legis, law).

Un-luck'y, (comp.) unluck'i-er, (super.) unluck'i-est, not fortunate; unluck'i-ly, unluck'i-ness.

German unglücklich, ungluck unluckiness, unglücklicher-weise.

Un-maid'en-ly, not becoming a maiden. Unboy'ish, not like a boy, not in character with a boy.

Old English ungemægthlice, mæg or mægth a maiden.

Un-maimed, ŭn.māmed', not mutilated.

Un-, with Old Fr. mahemer, n. mehaigne; Low Lat. mahemiare.

Un-malleable, ŭn.mäl'.le.ä.bl (not ŭn.mäl'.ä.bl), not malleable; unmalleability, ŭn.mäl'.lě.ä.bŭl'ä.ty.

French non malléable, non-malléabilité (Latin malleus, a hammer).

Un-man' [a ship], to dismiss the crew, to break down the fortitude of a man; unmanned, ŭn.mänd', [a ship] not supplied with its crew, distressed beyond the bearing of a man; unmann'-ing (Rule iii.), unman'-ly, unman'li-ness, unman'-like, unman'-ful, unman'ful-ly, unman'ful-ness.

Old English ungemann[ian], past -mannode, past part. -mannod; gemannian, "to supply with men"; but unmann is "unwarlike."

Un-man'age-able (5 syl.), not to be managed, not easily restrained, not easily manipulated; unman'ageable-ness; unmanageably, ŭn.män'.age.ä.bly; unman'aged (3 syl.)

(Only -ce and -ge retain the -e- before -able.)

Un-, with French ménager, ménagement; Low Latin menagium.

Un-man'nerly, not well behaved; unman'nerli-ness (Rule xi.); unmannered, un.män'.rd, ill behaved.

Our word is a vile compound of man, un-mann[er]-ly, where manner means the behaviour or ways of a man, and unmannerly not in accordance with the conduct of a man. The French sans manière is from main (the hand), and means "not well handled," first applied to arts and then by metaphor to conduct.

Un-mantle, ŭn.män'.tl, not draped with a mantle; unmantled, ŭn.män'.tld; unmant'ling. Dismantle, dis.män'.tl, to divest of mantle; dismant'led (3 syl.), dismant'ling.

A mantle really means a "towel" or "handkerchief."

Latin mantelum, mantile (from mānus, the hand).

Un-manufactured, ŭn'.män'.ä.fäk'.tchŭrd, not manufactured.

French non manufacturé (Latin mānu-factus, made by hand).

Words with Un- negative and privative.

Un-manured, ŭn'.mă.nŭred'', not manured.

Manure means "hand tillage"; French main-cœuvre. (See p. 625.)

Un-marked, ŭn.markt', not marked. (Old Eng. ungemercad.)

Un-marred, ŭn.mard', not injured, (Old Eng. ungemerred.)

Un-married, ŭn.măr' red, not wed; unmăr'ry-ing, not inclined to marry; unmarriage-able, ŭn.măr'rage.ă.bl; unmatrimonial, ŭn.măt'.rĭ.mō''nĭ.ăl; unmatrimo'nial-ly.

The double r in these words is disgraceful. "Unmarriageable," only -ce and -ge retain the -e before -able. (See p. 630.)

Fr. non marié, non mariable; Ital. maritaggio; Lat. maritäre.

Un-marshalled, ŭn.mar'.shăld, not marshalled.

Composed of un and marshal. Low Latin marescallus; Anglo-Saxon mare sceale, master of the horse; German marschall.

Un-mask' or dismask', to strip off a mask or disguise, to lay bare a secret plot, to expose a covert design; unmasked, ŭn.măskt', not disguised, not masked; dismasked, exposed, divested of disguise, &c.; un-mask-ing, dis-...

French sans masque, démasquer; German demaskeren.

Un-mastered, ŭn.măs'.trd, unsurmounted. (Fr. non maîtrisé.)

Un-mătched' (2 syl.), not matched, without a parallel.

Composed of un- and the Old English maca, a mate.

Un-meaning, ŭn.miee'.ning, without meaning; unmeant, -ment', not intended. (Old English ungemænt, v. gemænan.)

Un-measured, un.mezh'rd, not measured, very abundant; unmeasurable, ŭn.mezh'ăr.ă.bl (not un-measureable.)

Immeas'urable, boundless; immeasurable-ness, -ably.

Fr. non mesuré, sans mesure, démesuré; Lat. im[un]mensurabilis.

Un-meddled with, -mĕd'dld...., not touched, not altered.

Unmed'dling, not apt to interfere or touch.

Un-, with Fr. mester now mêler; Lat. miscere; Gk. mignuo.

Un-meet', not fit, not worthy; unmeet'-ly, unmeet'-ness.

Old English unmĕte or ungemæt, unfitted.

Un-mellow, ŭn.mĕl'.lo, not fully ripe; unmellowed (3 syl.)

Un-, with the Welsh melysu to sweeten, noun melys (Latin mĕl).

Un-melodious, ŭn'.mĕ.lō''.dĭ.ăis (not ŭn'.mĕ.lō''.dĭ.ŭs); unmelo'dious-ly, unmelo'dious-ness. (French sans mélodieux.)

Latin mĕlōdia, mĕlōdus; Greek mĕlōdia, mĕlōdos (mĕlos ōdē).

Un-melt'ed, not melted. (Old English unformolten, v. meltan.)

Un-mentioned, ŭn.men'.shŭnd, not mentioned; unmentionable, ŭn.mĕn'.shŭn.ă.bl, not to be spoken of; unmentionables, ŭn.mĕn'.shŭn.ă.blz, under-garments.

Fr. non mentionné; Lat. mentio g. ō-nis (old v. mento, to remember).

Words with Un- negative and privative.

Un-merciful, ŭn.mer'.sĭ.ful; not compassionate; unmer'ciful-ly, unmer'ciful-ness. Mer'ci-less, mer'ciless-ness, -less-ly.

By contraction from the Latin misericordia (m'er'ci), miser cor heart-wretched; French merci.

Un-merit-ed, ŭn.mēr'rit.ed, not deserved. (French peu mérité.)

Un-mild', (super.) un-mild'-est, (comp. not in use), unmild'-ly, unmild'-ness. (Old English unmild, unmildnes.)

Un-mind'ful, regardless; unmind'ful-ly, unmind'ful-ness; un-mind'-ed. (Old Eng. ungemyndig, v. -gemynd[igian]).

Un-mingled, ŭn.mĭn'.gld, not mixed. (O. E. ungemenged.)

Un-missed, ŭn.mist', not missed. Dismiss', to send away; dismissed, dis.mist'; dismiss'-ing, dismiss'-al; dismiss-ion, dis.mish'.un; dismissive, dis.mis'.sĭv; dĭm'issory.

Old English unmissed, v. -miss[ian], past -missede; Latin dimissum, dimissōrius (dĭ-[dis]mitto, to send away).

Un-mistakable, ŭn'.mĭs.tā''.kă.bl (not unmistakeable, only -ce and -ge retain the -e before -able), that cannot be misunderstood; unmistaken, ŭn'.mĭs.tā''.kn, not in error, sure.

Old English unmistacen, verb -tac[an], past -toc, past part. tacen.

Un-mit'igāted, without extenuation; unmitigable, -mĭt'ĭ.gă.bl; unmit'igably. (Fr. non mitigé; Lat. non mitigātus.)

Mitigare (mĭtis ago, to make mild).

Un-mixed or unmixt', not mixed (un-, with Latin mixtus).

Misceo supine mixtum, to mix; Greek misgo (mĭgnumi).

Un-modified, ŭn.mōd'.ĭ.fide, not modified; unmodifi'able.

French non modifié; Latin mōdificāri (modus fācio).

Un-moistened, un.moist'nd, not made damp; unmoist, dry.

Fr. non moiste now moite (Latin madescit contracted into ma'es't).

Un-moor', to loose from anchorage; unmoored' (2 syl.), -ing.

French démarrer; Spanish dismarrar (amarra, a cable).

Our word is probably the Latin mōror, to stop or stay.

Un-mortgaged, ŭn.mōr'.gaged, not mortgaged; dismortgage, dis.mōr'.gage, to redeem from mortgage; dismortgaged (3 syl.); dismortgag-ing, dis.mōr'.gă.gĭng (Rule xix.)

French mort gage, a dead pledge: as mort-main, a dead-hand.

In these words "dead" means "unable to part with the property."

Un-mount'ed, not mounted, not got on horseback. Dismount', to get off a horse, &c.; dismount'-ed, dismount'-ing.

Fr. non monté, démonté (Latin mons gen. montis, a mountain).

Un-mourned, ŭn.mō'rnd, not lamented; unmourn'-ful, -ly.

Old Eng. unmurnlic, unmournful; unmurnlice, unmournfully.

Un-movable, ŭn.moo'.vă.bl (not unmoveable, only -ce and -ge retain the -e before -able); unmovable-ness; unmovably, ûn.moo'.vô.bly (-able should be -ible) ; unmoved, -moov'd' ; unmov-ing, ûn.moo'.ving.

Words with Un- negative and privative.

Immovable (should be -ible), immovable-ness, immovably.

Immobile, im.mô'.bil ; immobyl'-ity.

The abnormal pronunciation of move and prove is due to our borrowing the words from the Fr. mouvoir and prouver, then omitting the u in order to conform the words to the Lat. models môveo and probo. (Lat. immobilis (not immôbâlis) immôbilitas.)

Un-muffled, ûn-mûf'fld, unveiled, uncovered, un-muffling.

German un-muffeln, muff a muff.

Un-mur'mur-ing, uncomplaining ; unmur'mured (3 syl.)

French sans murmurer ; Latin murmûre ; Greek mormûro.

Un-musical, ûn.mû'.zî.kâl, not musical ; unmusical-ly.

French peu musical ; Latin musicus, musica music ; Greek moustcê.

Un-mu'tilâted, not injured, not maimed, entire.

Un-, with Lat. mutilatus (muttilus, maimed) ; Gk. mitîlos, curtailed.

Un-muzzle, un.mûz'zl, to take off a muzzle ; unmuzzled (3 syl.), unmuzzling. (French demuseler.)

Un-nâmed' (2 syl.), not named. Innom'inate (4 syl.), without a name. Misname, to name incorrectly ; misnamed' (2 syl.), misnâm'-ing ; misnoma, plu. -nomas, mis.nô'.mah.

Pseudo-nym, sû'.do.nÿm, a supposititious name.

Nom de plume, a name assumed by an author (French).

Nom de guerre, -gair, a name assumed by a traveller (Fr.)

O. Eng. ungenamod, v. genam[ian], past genamode, or nam[an], &c. "Pseudonym," Greek pseudónumos (pseudo-ônûma, a false name).

Un-national, ûn.nash'.ôn.âl, not in accordance with the national character, not patriotic. Denationalise, dē.nash'.ôn.âl.îze, to deprive of nationality, to attach a nation to another ; denationalised, dē.nash'.ôn.âl.îzd ; denationalis-ing, dē.nash'.ôn.âl.îzing ; denationalisation, -zay''shûn.

French dénationaliser. Latin nâtionâlis (nascor, to be born).

Un-natural, ûn.nât'tchûr.âl, not natural ; unnat'ural-ly.

Non-nat'ural, abnormal, metaphorical ; non-natural-ly.

French peu naturel (!) ; Latin nâtûrâlis (natûra, nature).

Un-navigated, ûn.nâv'.î.gâ.tcd, not explored or traversed by ships. Innavigable, in.nâv'.î.ga.bl. (Fr. innavigable.)

Latin innâvîgâbilis, innâvîgâtus (nâvis, Greek naus, a ship).

Un-necessary, ûn.nēs'sēs.sēr ry, not necessary ; unnecessari-ly, -nēs'sēs.sēr rî.ly. Need-less, need'less-ly, need'less-ness.

Fr. peu nécessaire, sans nécessité ; Lat. necessârius (ne-[non]cêdêre). "Needless," O. Eng. neðtleas, unnetlice, or unnytlíce, unnytlícnyis.

Un-need'y, not in want or distress. (O. E. unnédig or ungnýd.)

Words with Un- negative and privative.

Un-neighbourly, ŭn.nā'.bor.ly, not neighbourly.

Old English un-neðhbūr-lice (neðh būr, a near dwelling).

Un-nerve, ŭn.nerv', to unbinge the nervous power; unnerved (2 syl.), unnerv'-ing, R. xix. (Fr. énervé, Lat. nervus.)

Un-nominated, ŭn.nōm'.ā.nū.ted, not yet proposed or nominated. Innōm'inate (4 syl.), without a name.

De-nom'inate (4 syl., here de- is not neg.), to name, &c.

Latin innomīnātus. "Innominable" might be introduced.

Un-noted, ŭn.nō'.ted, of no note or renown, not observed.

Latin innōtus, unknown (nosco supine nōtum, to know).

Un-noticed, ŭn.nō'.tist, not observed. (Fr. notice, Lat. notitia.)

Un-numbered, ŭn.nūm'.brd, not numbered; num'ber-less, infinite in number. Innumerable, in.nū'.mē.rā.bl, numberless; innu'merably. Innumerable, -nū'.mē.rūs.

Latin innūmērus, innūmērābilis, innūmērābilitas, innūmērātus.

Un-obeyed, ŭn'.o.bāde'', not obeyed. Disobey, to run counter to a command; disobeyed (3 syl.), disobey'-ing (R. xiii.); disobedience, dis'.o.bē''.dī.ence; disobediency, -dī.en.sy; disobedient, dis'.o.bē''.dī.ent (not dis.o.bē'.djent); -ly.

Lat. inōbediens gen. inōbedientis, inōbedientia, v. ōbedire (ob audio).

Un-object'ed to, not objected to; unobjectionable (should be -ible), ŭn'.ōb.jēk''.shūn.ā.bl; unobjectionable-ness, -ably.

Un-, with Lat. objicere sup. objectum (ob facio [facio], to throw against).

Un-obscured, ŭn'.ob.skūred'', not obfuscated; unobscure'-ly (4 syl.), plainly (Latin inobscurāre, to make obscure.)

Un-observed, ŭn'.ob.zervd'', not noticed; unobserv'-ing (R. xix.), unobser'vant, unobser'vant-ly, unobserv'able.

Non-observ'ance, failure of keeping or observing something.

Inobservant, inobservant-ly, inobservance, inobserv'able.

(There is no appreciable difference between unobservant and inobservant. As the latter is Lat. the former might be dispensed with.)

Lat. inobservābilis, inobservantia, inobservatus (ob, servare to keep).

Un-obstruct'-ed, not hindered; unobstructive, ŭn'.ōb.strūk''.tīr.

Fr. non obstrué; Lat. obstruo supine obstructum (ob-struo, to strew or throw in one's path, hence to hinder or obstruct).

Un'-obtained'' (3 syl.), not procured; unobtain'able (should be -ible). (Latin obtinēre, ob teneo, to lay hold of.)

Un-obtrusive, ŭn'.ob.trū''.zīv, not obtrusive, modest; retiring.

Un-, with Lat. obtrūdēre sup. obtrūsum (ob trūdo, to thrust forward).

Un-offended, ŭn'.ōf.fēn''.ded (not ŭn.o.fen''.ded, a common error), not offended; unoffend'ing. Inoffensive, in'.of.fēn''.sīv; inoffen'sive-ly, -ness. (Fr. non offensé, inoffensif.)

Lat. inoffensus, inoffensé, offendēre sup. offensum (of-[ob]fendo).

Words with Un- negative and privative.

- Un-official, ūn'ōf.ish'āl (not ūn'ō.fish'āl, a common blunder), unofficially, ūn'ōf.ish.āl.ly; unofficious, ūn'ōf.ish.ūs; unofficious-ly, ūn'ōf.ish'ūs.ly; unofficious-ness.
Un-, with Latin officiālis, afficiōsus (of-[ob]ficio[facio], to do or act for another); French non officiel (!), inofficieux.
- Un-opened, un.ōpe'nd, not opened; unōpen-ly, not frankly; unopen-ness, un.ope'n.nēss, want of frankness.
 Old Eng. un-openod, v. open[ian], past openode, openlic, openlice.
- Un-operative, better Inoperative, in.ōp'.ē.rā.tiv, not effectual.
 Latin inōperātivus, verb ōpērāri (ōpus genitive ōpēris, work).
- Un-opposed, ūn'ōp.pōzed'' (not ūn'ō.pozed''), not resisted.
Un-, with Latin oppositus (ot pōno, to place in opposition).
- Un-oppressed, ūn'ōp.prest'' (not ūn'ō.prest'', a common blunder), not unduly burdened. Inoppressive, -ōp.prēs''siv; inoppres'sive-ly, inoppres'sive-ness; inoppres'sion, -shun.
 Fr. non oppressif; Lat. opprimēre sup. oppressum (prēmo, to press).
- Un-ordered, ūn.ōr'.drd, not ordered; unor'der-ly. Disorder, dīz.ōr'.der, confusion, to put out of order; disordered, dīz.ōr'.drd; disorder-ing, disorder-ly, disorderli-ness.
 Fr. non ordonné, dés-ordre; Lat. inordinātus, ordo gen. ordinis.
- Un-organised, ūn.or'.ga.nized, not organised. Inorganic, in'.or.gān'ik; inorgan'ical, inorgan'ical-ly; disorganise, -or'gān.ize, to derange what is organised; disor'ganised (4 syl.); disorganis-ing, dis.or'.gān.ī.zing; disorganisa-tion dis.or'.gān.ī.zay''shūn.
 Fr. inorganique, désorganiser, désorganisation; Old Eng. organe.
- Un-ornamen'tal, not ornamental; unor'named.
- French sans ornement (wrong); Latin ornāmentum, verb ornāre.
- Un-orthodox, ūn.orth'ō.dox, not orthodox, not having the same views of religion as the state sanctions. In Turkey Christians are unorthodox; in Spain, Protestants. In England the standard of orthodoxy is the 39 Articles.
 Fr. non or peu orthodoxe; Gk. ortho-[orthos]doxa, the right faith.
- Un-ostentatious (not -ostentaciously), -ōs'.tēn.tā''shūs, not given to display or parade; unostenta'tious-ly, unostenta'tious-ness. (Latin ostentātio, os-[ob]tendo.)
- Un-owned (2 syl.), not owned, without a known owner.
 Disown', to disclaim; disowned', disown'-ing.
 Old English undgæn or undgn; verb agan, to own or owe.
- Un-oxygenated, ūn'.ox.īdg''.ē.nā.ted, not having oxygen in combination. Deoxygenate, de'.ox.īdg''ā.nate, to deprive of oxygen; deoxig'enated, deoxig'enat-ing; deoxygenation, de'.ox.īdg''.ē.nay''shūn.
 (Nothing can be more absurd than this diversity of spelling. Of course "deoxygenated" ought to be spelt with a y.)
 Fr. de-oxygénation, -oxygen^{er}; Gk. oxus geno, I generate acid.

Words with Un- negative and privative.

Un-pacified, ŭn.păs'si.fide, not appeased. (Fr. non pacifié.)

Un-pack', to open what has been packed together; unpacked' (2 syl.), unpack'-ing: (German aus- or ab-packen.)

Un-paid', not paid; non-pay'ment, failure of payment.

Unpaid'-for, taken on credit. (French non payé.)

Paid, laid, and said (with their compounds), for payed, layed, sayed.

Un-pained' (2 syl.), not hurt; unpain'-ful, unpain'ful-ly.

Old English un-ptned, un-ptn-full, verb ptn[an], past ptnede.

Un-palatable, ŭn.păl'.ă.tă.bl, not pleasant to the taste; unpal'atable-ness, unpal'atably. (Lat. palātum, Gk. pao.)

Un-paralleled, ŭn.păr'răl.leld, not paralleled, unequalled.

Of words ending in -el (not accented on the last syl.), these seven do not double the -l when a suffix beginning with a vowel is added: viz., an'gel, chan'nel, chis'el, impar'nel (not panel), han'sel, par'al'el, and tea'sel. Some fifty others double the l.

Un-, with Gk. parallēlos (para allēlon, side-by-side of each other).

Un-pardoned, ŭn.par'.dōnd, not forgiven; unpar'don-ing, unpar'donable, unpar'donable-ness, unpar'donably.

French impardonnable, non pardonné; Low Latin pardonatio.

Un-part'ed, not divided. Depart', to quit; depart'ed, depart'-ing. Department, a specific branch of a business; departmen'tal. (Latin partior, to divide; de-partior.)

Un-parliamentary, ŭn'.par.tĭ.mĕn''.tŭ.ry, contrary to the usages observed in the British parliament.

Med. Lat. parliamentum; Fr. parlement (verb parler, to speak).

(The Fr. parlements were law-courts where causes were decided by pleadings, and not dictatorially by the king. The parlement of St. Louis had no fixed locality, but followed him wherever he went. Philippe-le-Bel was the first to fix the Paris court, and subsequently parlements were established in all the chief cities of France.)

Unpass'able or impassable. Impassible.

Unpassable or impassable, unfit to be traversed or passed over; unpassable-ness or impassable-ness.

Impassible, not capable of feeling, suffering, or passion.

Impassible-ness, impassibil'ity; impassive, -păs'.siv.

It would be better to abolish impassable and impassableness, retaining unpassable and unpassableness for "not fit to be traversed," and impassible, &c., for "insensible, or without passion."

"Unpassable," French passer. "Impassible," Latin impassibilis, impassibilitas; French impassible, impassibilité.

Un-patriotic, ŭn.păt'.rĭ.öt''.ĭk, not patriotic; unpatriot'ical-ly.

Un-, with French patriotique (Latin patria, one's country).

Un-patronised, ŭn.păt'.rōn.ized, not encouraged by patrons, buyers, or supporters. (Lat. patronātus, patrōnus, a patron.)

Words with Un- negative and privative.

Un-peace-able, Un-piece-able (both ün.pecce'.ä.bl.).

Un-piece'-able, not capable of being pieced or mended.

Un-peace'-able, not peaceable; unpeace'-able-ness, un-peace'-ably, unpeace'-ful, unpeace'-ful-ly, unpeace'-fulness. (See Unpacified.)

"Peace," from the Latin pax gen. pācis. "Piece," French pièce.

Un-peg', to detach from its pegs; unpegged, ün.pegd'; un-pegg'-ing. (Gk. pégma, something fixed into [the wall]).

Un-penned, ün.pend', not written. (Old Eng. pina, Lat. pena.)

Un-pencilled, ün.pën'.sild, not pencilled. (Lat. penicillum.)

Un-penetrated, ün.pën'.ē.trā.ted, not pierced; impen'-etrable, impen'-etrable-ness, impen'-etrably, impenetrabil'-ity.

Latin impēnētrābilis, impēnētrābilitas, impēnētrare.

Festus says: "penetrare, id est penitus intrare," to enter thoroughly.

Un-pensioned, ün.pën'.shönd, not pensioned. (Latin pensio.)

Un-people, ün.pee'.pl, to deprive of inhabitants; unpeopled, -pee'.pld, without inhabitants. Dispeople, to depopulate; dispeopled. Depopulate, de.pöp'.pū.late, to devastate; depop'ulat-ed, depop'ulat-ing, depopulā'tion, -shün.

Un-pop'ular, not in favour with the people; unpopular-ly.

Fr. dépeupler, dépöpopulation, impopulaire, impopularité; Latin de-pöp'ulāre, pöp'ulāris, pöp'ulāritas, pöp'ulatio (pöp'ulus, the people).

Un-perceived, ün'.per.seevd', not noticed or observed; unperceivable, better imperceivable, im.per.see'.vū.bl.

Impercep'tible, imperceptible-ness, impercep'tibly.

Imperceptibility, im'.per.sep'.tū.bil'x.ty.

("Unperceivable" is wrong conj., as imperceptible plainly shows.)

French imperceptible, imperceptibilité; Latin imperceptus (capio).

Un-performed, ün'.per.formd', not done, not fulfilled.

Non-perform'ance (4 syl.) (Latin performāre.)

Un-per'ish-able, better Im-per'ish-able (should be -ible), not perishable; imper'ishable-ness, imper'ishably.

Imperishabil'-ity. (French impérissable, impérissabilité.)

Un-permitt'ed (Rule iii.), not permitted. Impermiss'ible.

Latin impermissus (per-mitto supine -missum, to permit).

Un-perused, ün'.pe.rüzed', not read. (Latin impervisus.)

By changing v into u "pervisus" becomes peru'sus.

Un-petrified, ün.pët'.rī.fide, not converted into stone.

French non pétrifié; (Latin petra-ficio[fäcio], to make stone).

Un-philosophical, ün'.fīl.o.söf'.i.käl, not philosophical; un-philosoph'ical-ly. (Lat. philosöphicus, Gk. philosöphikos.)

Un-pierced, ün.pē'rst, not pierced. (French non percé.)

Words with Un- negative and privative.

Un-pillowed, ŭn.pīl'loḁe. Unpillared, ŭn.pīl'lard.

Unpillowed, without a pillow [for the head].

Unpillared, without a pillar or column.

"Pillow," O. Eng. un-, with pile or pyle; Lat. pulvīnus (pīlus, hair).

"Pillar," Span. pīlar; Lat. pīla, a column; Gk. pīleo, to pile up.

Un-pin', to loose from pins, to unfasten; unpinned, ŭn.pīnd'; unpinn'-ing, R. i. (Welsh pīn; Lat. spīna, a thorn.)

"Consertum tegmen spinis" (Æn. iii. 594), His clothes full of pins.

Un-pitied, ŭn.pīt'ed, not pitied; unpit'i-ful, unpit'iful-ly, unpit'iful-ness, unpit'y-ing, unpit'i-able, unpit'iably.

Pit'i-less, not having pity; pit'iless-ness, pit'iless-ly.

French sans pītīe, pītōyable (11); Latin pīētas, piety, like the Greek charītās (charity or love), "pity, charity, and piety" are synonyms.

Un-placed' (2 syl.), not placed. Displace' (2 syl.), to remove from its place, to derange; displaced'; displac-ing, -sing; displace'-ment, displace'-able (only -ce and -ge retain the -e before -able). Misplace, to put in the wrong place, &c.

Fr. sans place, déplacer, déplacement; Germ. platz; Lat. plātēa.

Un-plagued', (2 syl.), not tormented or harassed. (See p. 862.)

Un-plant'-ed, not planted. Displant, to remove a plant; displant'-ed, displant-ing; displantation, -plān.tay''shūn.

Old Eng. ungeplantod; Fr. non planté, déplanter; (Lat. plantāre).

Un-pleasant (should be -ent), ŭn.plez'.ant, not pleasant; unpleas'-ant-ly, unpleas'-ant-ness.

Un-pleas-ing, -pleez'.ing, not giving pleasure; displeas'-ing, giving displeasure, offending; displease (2 syl.); displeased, dis.pleezd'; displeas'-er (R. xix.); displeasure, dis.plezh'ŭr; displeas'-ur-able (Rule xx.)

(We obtain our wrong conj. (unpleasant), as usual, from the French.) French sans plaisir, déplaisant, déplaisir; Latin displicentia (not -santia), dis-plicere [placēre] to dis-please.

Un-pledged' (2 syl.), not pledged, not mortgaged or pawned.

Un-, with Germ. pfledge; Fr. pleige, v. pleiger; Low Lat. plegium.

Un-pliable, ŭn.plī'.abl, not pliable; unpli'-ant, unyielding.

Fr. non or peu pliable, peu pliant (Lat. plīco; Gk. plēko, to fold).

Un-plight-ed, ŭn.plī'.ted, not pledged (-g- interpolated).

Old Eng. unplighted, pliht[an], past plihhte, past part. plihhted.

Un-ploughed, un.plōwd', not ploughed (-g- interpolated).

Un-, with Old Eng. plōh; Germ. ungepflagt; Dan. plōie, to plough.

Un-poetic, ŭn'po.ēt''īk, not poetic; unpoetical, ŭn'po.ēt''ī.kāl; unpoet'ical-ly. (French peu poétique, Latin poētīcus.)

Un-polarised, ŭn.pō'.lar.īzed, not polarised. Depolarise, to deprive of polarity; depolarised (4 syl.); depolaris-ing, de.pō'.lar.īzing; depolarisation, de.pō'.lar.īzay''shūn.

Un-, de-, with French polariser; Latin polaris, polar.

Words with Un- negative and privative.

Un-polished, ün.pöl'ishd, not polished. Impolite, im'.pö.lite'', not polite; impolite'-ly, impolite'-ness.

Latin impolitus, impolitia (im-[in]pölitus, not polished).

Un-polluted, ün'.pöl.lü''ted (not ün'.pö.lü''ted), free from contamination or defilement. (French non pollué.)

Latin impollütus; verb polluo supine pollütum; Greek phölünö.

Un-popular, ün.pöp'.u.lar, not popular; unpop'ular-ly; unpopularity, -pöp'.u.lär''rity. Depopulate, de.pöp'.u.läte, to devastate; depop'ulät-ed (Rule xix.), depop'ulät-ing; depopulation, de.pöp'.u.lay''shün.

Un-people, ün.pee'.pl, to deprive of inhabitants.

French impopulaire, impopularité, dépeupler, dépopulation; Latin depöpillare (pöpüläris, pöpüläritas, &c., pöpülus the people).

Un-portioned, ün.pör'.shünd, not portioned, without dowry.

Un-, with Latin partio (partio to divide, pars gen. partis a part).

Un-possessed, ün'.pöz.zest'' (not ün.pö.zest', a common blunder), not in possession; unpossess'-ing. Dispossess, -pöz.zës'', to deprive of possession; dis'possessed'' (3 syl.), dis'-possess''-ing; dispossession, dis'.pöz.zestl''ün.

Un-, with Latin possessus, possessio, possessor, possessorius, possideo supine possessum (polis sedeo, [having] the right to settle down).

Un-practised, ün.präk'.tist, not habituated, unskilled.

(Advice, device, choice, licence, prophecy, with "practice," are the six words which change c of the noun into s in the verb.)

Un-, with Lat. practicus; Gk. pratto or prasso; to do; Fr. pratique.

Un-praised, ün.präzed', not commended. Dispraise' (2 syl.), dispraised' (2 syl.), disprais'-ing. (Welsh pris, price.)

So Dan. prize, "price" and "to praise"; Lat. præthum; Fr. prix.

Un-precedent-ed, ün.prëz'.ë.dën.ted, not justified by any previous example or by authority; unprecedented-ly.

French sans précédent; Latin præ-cedēre, to go before.

Un-precise, ün'.pre.sise'', not exact. (French peu précis.)

Latin præcisē; precisely; præ-cidēre, to prune or lop off previously.

Un-prejudiced, ün.prëd'.ju.dist, unbiassed, impartial.

Latin præjudicium; præjudicāre, to judge beforehand.

Un-premeditated, ün'.pre.mëd'.i.tä.ted, not previously designed, improvised; unpremed'itated-ly.

Fr. non prémédité; Lat. præ-mëdtäri, to meditate beforehand.

Un-prepared, ün'.prë.paird'', not ready; unprepared-ness, ün'.pre.pair''rëd.ness; unprepared-ly, ün'.pre.pair''rëd.ly.

French non préparé; Latin præ-päräre, to obtain beforehand.

Un-prepossessed, ün.prë.pöz.zest'' (not ün.prë'.pö.zest''), not favourably biassed; unprepossess'-ing, not attractive.

Un-, with Latin præ possidēre sup. possessum, i.e. posse sedēre, to be able to settle. "Prepossessed" means [judgment] settled beforehand.

Words with Un- negative and privative.

Un-pressed, ŭn.prest', not pressed. Depress', to make low-spirited, to squeeze down; depressed' low-spirited, &c.; depress'-ing; depression, de.presh'.ŭn; depress'-ive, -iv.

Fr. non pressé, dépression; Latin de-prĭmo[prĕmo] supine pressum.

Un-presuming, ŭn'.pre.zu''.ming, not presuming, modest; un-presumptuous, ŭn'.pre.zŭm''.tu.ŭs, not arrogant.

French peu présomptueux; Latin præ-sumo supine sumptum, to assume [a position] before [you have any right to it].

Un-prevent'-ed, not hindered; unprevent'-able, -prevent'-ably.

Un-, with Lat. præ-venio supine -ventum, to go before (-able wrong).

Un-priced, ŭn.priced'. Un-prized, ŭn.prized'.

Unpriced, not yet marked with the price.

Unprized, not valued. (Welsh pris, Dan. prize, Lat. prĕtium.)

Un-priest-ly, un.preest'.ly, unbecoming a clergyman.

Old English un-preost-lĭce; (Latin præ-stāre, to stand over others).

Un-principled, ŭn.prĭn'.sĭ.pld, without principle.

Un-, with Latin prĭncĭplum, a principle (princeps, a chief).

Un-privileged (not unpriviledged), ŭn.prĭv'.ĭ.ledgd, not privileged. (Fr. sans privilège; Lat. privĭligium (privus lex)).

Un-prized, ŭn.prĭzd', not valued. Unpriced' (2 syl.), not marked with the price. (Welsh pris, Dan. prize, Lat. prĕtium.)

Un-proclaimed, ŭn'.pro.klāmed'', not proclaimed or declared.

Fr. non proclamé; Latin pro-clamāre, to cry forth, i.e. in public.

Un-productive, -pro.dŭk''.ĭv, not fecund; unprod'uctive-ness, unproduc'tive-ly. Non-production, non'.pro.dŭk''.shŭn.

French improductif; Latin pro-dŭco supine ductum, to bring forth.

Un-professional, ŭn'.pro.fesh''.ŭn.ŭl, not in keeping with a profession, not belonging to a profession; unprofes'sional-ly.

Un-, with Latin professio (pro fateor sup. fessus, to confess openly). (We confine the word "profession" to those pursuits which are not manual: as divinity, law, medicine, teaching, authorship, acting, &c., but in Latin they said agrōrum professor, a farmer, &c.)

Un-profitable, ŭn.prōf'.ĭt.ŭ.bl, not profitable; unprofitably, unprof'itable-ness; unprofited, ŭn.prōf'.ĭt.ed.

Unproficient, ŭn.pro.fish'.ent, or Non-proficient, not well versed; non-proficiency, non'.pro.fish''.ĕn.sy.

Fr. peu profitable, sans profit; Lat. pro fĭcto[fācio], to make [something] out of [a transaction]. A "proficient" is one who does thoroughly or has made himself master of some pursuit.

Un-progressive, -pro.grĕs''.sĭv, not progressive; -progress'ive-ly.

Un-, with Latin pro-grĕdior[grādior] supine gressum, to go forwards.

Un-prohib'it-ed, not forbidden; unprohibitive, -pro.hĭb'.ĭt.ĭv.

Un-, with Latin pro-hĭbeo[hābeo] supine hĭbitum, to forbid.

Un-project'-ed, not planned. (Latin pro-jĭcio[jācio], jĕctum.)

Words with Un- negative and privative.

- Un-prolific, -pro.lif''ik, barren. (Fr. non prolifique, Lat. proles.)
- Un-promised, ün.pro'm'izd, not promised; unpromis-ing, ün.pro'm'iz'ing; unprom'ising-ly. (Lat. promitto -missum.)
- Un-prompt'-ed, not instigated, not told by a prompter.
- Imprompt'u, unpremeditated. Imprompt'itude, want of readiness or punctuality. (Lat. impromptu, promptitudo.)
Promo supine promptum, to bring from a store or dépôt. What is im-promptu is not taken from a store already laid up, but thrown out offhand. To be prompted is to have the word forgotten supplied readily. Promptitude is readiness.
- Un-pronounced, ün.pro.nounced'', not pronounced; unpronounce'-able (only -ce and -ge retain -e before -able).
 French non prononcé; Latin pro-nunciāre, to speak thoroughly.
- Un-prophetic, ün.pro.fēt''ik, not prophetic; unprophetical, ün.pro.fēt''ik.käl. (Fr. non prophétique, Lat. prophēticus.)
- Un-propitiated, ün.pro.pish''i.ä.ted, not reconciled; unpropitious, ün.pro.pish''üs, not of good omen, not favourable; unpropitious-ly, unpropitious-ness.
Un-, with Latin propitiūs, propitiāre (prope, near. Isaiah says (lv. 6) "Call upon the Lord while He is near" [propitious]).
- Un-propped', not supported by props. (Germ. pfropf, a graft.)
- Un-prosperous, -prös'.pē.rüs, not prosperous; unpros'perous-ly.
 Unpros'perous-ness. (Fr. peu prospéré, Lat. prospērus.)
- Un-proved, ün.proovd', not proved; unprov-able, ün.proo'.vā.bl.
 Disprove, dis.proov', to confute; disproved', disprov'-ing.
 ("Prove" and "Move" (with their compounds) are the only examples of o = ou or oo, and these are in imitation of the French éprouver and mouvoir.)
 Fr. non éprouvé, non prouvé; Old Eng. próf[ian], unprófod.
- Un-provoked, ün.pro.vōked'', not provoked; unprovōk'-ing.
 Fr. non provoqué; Lat. pro-vōcāre sup. -vōcātum, to call forth.
- Un-published (3 syl.), not issued from the press. (Fr. non publié.)
 Lat. publicāre (publicus faciēre, to make public; populus, the people).
- Un-punished, ün.pün'.ishd, not punished. Impunity, im.pū'.nī.ty, without punishment. (French impuni.)
 Latin impūnē, impūnitas, im-[in]pūnitus; verb pūnō, to punish.
- Un-pur'chased (3 syl.), not bought; unpur'chas-able (not unpurchase-able as generally given, only -ce and -ge retain -e before -able). See p. 936.
- Un-purified, ün.pū'.ri.fide, not purified. Impurity, plu. im-purities, im.pū'.rītiz; impüre' (2 syl.), comp. impūr'-er, super. impur-est, im.püre'.est.
 Latin im-[in]pūrus, impūritas; French impureté (!), non purifié.
- Un-pursued (3 syl.), not pursued. (French non poursuivi.)
- Un-quaking, ün.kwā'.king, not trembling. (O. E. uncwaciende.)

Words with Un- negative and privative.

Un-qualified, un.kwōl'ā.fide, not adapted, not modified.

Disqualify, to render unfit; disqualifies, dis.kwōl'ā.fize; disqualified, -kwōl'ā.fide; disqualify-ing; disqualifi-er, dis.kwōl'ā.fī.er; disqualifica'tion, -shūn.

Un-, dis-, with French qualifier (Latin qualitas facto[facio]).

Un-quelled, ūn.kweld', not subdued. (Old Eng. ungecuelled.)

Un-quenched, ūn.kwencht', not extinguished; unquench'able, unquench'ably, quench'able-ness. (O. E. unacwencedlic.)

Un-questioned, ūn.kwēs'.tchūnd, not doubted; unques'tionable, unques'tionable-ness, unques'tionably.

Un-, with French question; Latin querere supine quæsitum.

Un-quickened, ūn.kwik'nd, not vivified, not yet possessed of individual life. (O. E. unacwicod, v. acwic[ian], p. -ode.)

Un-quiet, ūn.kwi'.et, not quiet; unqui'et-ly, unqui'et-ness.

Disqui'et, trouble, to trouble; disqui'et-ed, disqui'et-ing, disqui'et-er. Inquietude, in.kwi'.ētude, anxiety.

Fr. inquiet, inquietude; Lat. inquietus gen. inquiētis, inquiētudo.

Un-quoted, -kwō'.ted, not cited, not recognised on "Exchange."

French non cité; Latin citare, to cite or quote.

Un-ranged' (2 syl.), not arrayed. Derange' (2 syl.), to put into disorder; deranged' (2 syl.); derang-ing, de.rain'.ging'; derange'-ment. Un-arranged, not put into order.

French rang (array), ranger, déranger, dérangement, arranger.

Un-ravel, ūn.rāv'.ēl, to disentangle; unrav'elled (3 syl.), unrav'ell-ing, Rule iii., -EL. (French raveler, to ravel.)

Un-reached, ūn.reechd', not attained by the reach.

O. Eng. ungerāhte, v. hræc[an] or ræc[an], past rāhte, p. p. ge-rāht.

Un-read, ūn.rēd', not read; unread-able, ūn.reed'.ā.bl.

Old Eng. unreordod, verb reord, past reordode, past part. reordod.

Un-ready, ūn.rēd'.y, not prepared; unreadi-ly, ūn.rēd'.ā.ly; not willingly; unreadi-ness, ūn.red'.ā.ness.

Old English ungerdd, unready; -rādlīc, rādlīce readily, rādlīcnes.

Un-real, ūn.rē'.āl, chimerical; unreality, ūn'.re.āl''ā.ty; un-realised, ūn.rē'.āl.ized, not clearly perceived.

Fr. non réel (!), sans réalité; Lat. realis, realitas (res, a thing).

Un-reaped, ūn.reept', not mown, not rewarded with the fruits of labour. (Old English unhreopt, v. hreop[an], &c.)

Un-reason-able, ūn.ree'.zōn.ā.bl, not consistent with reason; unrea'sonable-ness; unreasonably, ūn.ree'.zōn.ā.bly.

Un-reason-ing, -ree'.zōn.ing, not using the faculty of reason.

O. E. un-resod unreasoned, ræswa reason, v. ræswian; Welsh rheswm.

Un-recalled, ūn'.re.kawld'', not recalled; unrecall'-able.

Un-, with Latin re-cālo; Greek kālō, to call.

Words with Un- negative and privative.

Un-received, -re.seevd', not received, not come into possession.

Un-, with Latin re-cipio[cāpio], to take again; French non reçu.

Un-reckoned, ŭn.rĕk'kōnd, not reckoned. (O. E. unrĕcned.)

Un-reclaimed, ŭn'.re.klāmed'', not reclaimed. Irreclaimable, ŭ'rĕ.klā''mā.bl; irreclaim'ably. (Fr. non réclamé.)

Un-recognised, -rĕk'kōg.nized, not recognised; unrecognisable, ŭn'.rĕk'kōg.nī''zū.bl. (Latin recognoscere.)

Un-recommended, ŭn.rĕk'kōm.mēn''.ded, not recommended.

French non recommandé (wrong); Latin recommendare. (See p. 971.)

Un-recompensed, ŭn.rĕk'kōm.penst, unremunerated.

French non récompensé; Latin recompensare. One of the nine or ten words in -ense, four of which are dis-pense, ex-pense, pre-pense, and recom-pense. The others are dense and condense, immense, sense, and tense. Nearly 700 end in -nce.

Un-reconciled, ŭn.rĕk'ōn.siled, not reconciled. Irreconcilable, ŭ'rĕ.kōn.sī''lū.bl; irreconcil'able-ness, irreconcil'ably.

Fr. irréconciliable, non réconcilié; Lat. reconciliare.

Un-recovered, ŭn'.re.kŭv''rd, not recovered; unrecoverable, ŭn'.re.kŭv''er.ū.bl; unrecoverably; or Irrecoverable, irrecov'erable-ness, irrecov'erably.

Fr. non recouvrable, non recouvré; Lat. recuperare (re-cāpio).

Un-rectified, ŭn.rĕk'.tī.fide, not put right, not corrected.

French non rectifié; Latin rectifico[fācio], to make right.

Un'-re-deemed'' (3 syl.), not ransomed; unredeem'-able or irredeem'-able, irredeem'-able-ness, irredeem'-ably, -abil'ity.

Un-, with Latin redemptus, verb red-imo[ēmo], to buy back or off.

Un-redressed, un'.re.drest'', not redressed. (Fr. non redressé.)

Un-reduced, ŭn'.re.dūsed'', not lessened. Irredu'cible, -ably, irredu'cible-ness; irreducibility, ŭ'rĭ.dū'.sī.bil''.ī.ty.

Un-, with Lat. re-dūcere, to bring back, hence to remove [superfluity].

Un-reeve' (2 syl.), to remove a rope from a block; -reeved' (2 syl.), unreev'-ing. (Un-, with Norse reve; Welsh rhef, a bundle.)

Un-reflected, ŭn'.re.flĕk''.ted, not reflected; unreflect-ing.

Un-, with Lat. re-flecto, to bend back. Addison says: "Why shrinks the soul back on itself, and startles at destruction?" (Cato). To "shrink back" is to reflect—Why does the soul reflect on itself—meditate on itself, and startle at the thought of its annihilation?

Un-refracted, ŭn'.re.frāk''.ted, not refracted or broken.

Irrefragable, ŭr.rĕf'.rū.gā.bl [or ŭ'rĕ.frāg''.ū.bl], not to be gainsaid, incontestable; irrefragable-ness, -ably.

Irrefran'gible, not to be broken or refracted; irrefran'gible-ness, irrefran'gibly; irrefrangibility, frun'.gī.bil''.ī.ty.

Latin non refractus, irrefragābilis invincible (from fragāre to break, but "frangibilis" is from frangere to break); Greek rhégnuo; French irrefragable irrefutable, irrefrangible not to be refracted.

Words with Un- negative and privative.

Un'-refreshed' (3 syl.), not refreshed; unrefresh'-ing.

French non rafraîchi (!); Latin re-frigérâre; Old English fresc.

Un-refuted, ŭn'.rě.fū''.ted, not disproved. Irrefu'table, -ably.

Latin irrefutābilis, refutāre (fūto, to confute); French irrefutable.

Un-regard'ed, not regarded. Disregard', slight, to slight; disregard'-ed, disregard'-ing, disregard'-er, -regard'-ful, &c.

Un-, dis-, with French regarder, to look at. So "respect" is the Latin re-spicio, to look at, or look back upon.

Un-regenerate, ŭn'.re.gěn''.ě.rate, one not "converted" or "born again of water and the Holy Ghost"; unregen'e-rāt-ed, unregen'erācy, the state of being unregenerated,

French non régénéré; Latin regēnērāre; Greek gěnōs, birth.

Un-regretted', not regretted; unregrett'-able, unregrett'-ably.

Un-, with French regret, regrettable, v. regretter; Scotch greet, to cry

Un-regulated, ŭn.rěg'.u.lā.ted, not regulated.

Irregular, ir.rěg'.u.lar, not in order, not methodical; irreg'ular-ly; irregularity, -lār''rĭ.ty, want of method.

Latin irregulāris, irregulārĭtas, irregulātus (rěgŭla, a rule).

Un-rehearsed, ŭn'.re.herst'', not rehearsed. (Germ. hersagen.)

Un-relaxed, ŭn'.re.laxt'', not relaxed; unrelax'-ing.

Un-, with the Latin relaxus, verb relaxāre (laxus, loose).

Un-relent'-ing, inexorable; unrelent'-ing-ly; unrelent'-ed.

Un-, with Latin relentescō, to run slower (lentus, slow), in allusion to the chase of the avenger of blood. If he "relented" he ran slower.

Un-relieved, un'.re.leevd'', not eased; unreliev'-ing, -able.

French non relevé; Latin relēvāre (lēvāre to lighten, lēvis light).

Un-religious, ŭn'.re.lĭdg''.ŭs, not devout. Irreligious, opposed to religion; irreligious-ly, irreligious-ness; irreligion, ir'rě.lĭdg.ŭn. (French irrĕligion; Latin irrĕligiōsus.)

Un-remedied, ŭn.rěm'.ě.ded, not cured. Irremediable, ir'rě- mě''.dĭ.ă.bl; irreme'diable-ness, irreme'diably; remediless, re.měd''.i.less; remed'iless-ness, remed'iless-ly.

Un-, with Fr. remédie, irrémédiable; Lat. irrémēdiābilis (remēdium).

Un-remembered, -měm''.brd, not recollected. (O.Fr. remembrance.)

Un-remitt'-ed, incessant; unremitt-ing. Irremissible, ir're- mis''.sĭ.bl; irremis'sible-ness, irremis'sibly.

Fr. irrémissible; Lat. irrēmīssibilis (re mīttere supine missum).

Un-renewed, ŭn'.re.newd'', not renewed; irrenewable, -nŭ''.ă.bl.

Fr. non renoué; O. Eng. ungeniwod, verb geniw[ian], past geniwode.

Un-repaid, ŭn'.rě.pāde'', not repaid. (Fr. non payé, Lat. pāgo.)

Pay, lay, say, with their compounds, make paid, laid, said = sēd.

Un-repaired, un.re.pārd, not mended. Irreparable, ir.rěp'.ă- rā.bl; irreparably; irreparability, ir.rěp'.ă.rā.bĭl''.ĭ.ty.

Disrepair, out of repair.

French non réparé, irrĕparable; Latin irrĕpārābilis, verb repārāre.

Words with Un- negative and privative.

- Un-repealed, ün'.rē.peeld', not abrogated. Irrepealable, ir're-pee''.lä.bl; irrepealably. (Lat. re-appello, to call back.)
- Un-repent'ant (should be unrepentent), not penitent; unrepent'-ed, -ing. (Fr. sans repentir, Lat. re-penitēre.)
(We get our wrong conj., as usual, from the Fr., repentant, -ance.)
- Un-repi'ning, not murmuring; unrepi'ning-ly. (O. E. pīnan.)
- Un-replen'ished (4 syl.), not replenished. (Lat. re-, plēnus full.)
- Un-reprehend'-ed, not rebuked. Irreprehensible, ir.rēp'.rē.hēn''.sī.bl; irreprehensibly.
Latin irreprehensibilis; re-prehendo, to pull back.
- Un-repressed, ün'.rē.prest', not repressed. Irrepressible, ir'rē-pres''ä.bl; irrepressibly, ir'repressibility.
Latin reprimere supine repressum (prēmo, to press).
- Un-repriev'd, ün'.rē.preevd', not reprieved; unrepriev'-able.
Un-, with Fr. repria, from repandre, to take back. (See p. 996)
- Un-reproach'd, ün'.rē.prōtchd', not rebuked; unreproach'-ing, unreproach'ing-ly. Irreproach-able, ir'rē.prōtch''.ä.bl; irreproach'able-ness, irreproach'ably.
- Unreproach'-ful, unreproach'ful-ly, unreproach'ful-ness.
- Reproach-less, not deserving blame; reproach'less-ly.
Fr. sans reproche, irréprochable (proche, near; Latin proximus).
(The interpolated a is a very clumsy method of lengthening the o.)
- Un-reproved, ün'.rē.proovd', not rebuked; unreprov-ing, ün'.rē.proo''ving; unprovable, ün'.rē.proo''vü.bl; unprov'ably; or irrep'rov'-able, irrep'rov'ably.
Un-, ir-, with Fr. reprouver; Lat. reprobare. "Prove" and "move" are the only examples of -ove like oov, and the o in these words represents the Fr. ou, as in "mouvoir," "prouver."
- Un-reputed, -re.pü''.ted, not renowned. Dis'repute', ill-fame; disrepu'ted; disreputable, dis.rēp'.pü''.ta.bl, disgraceful; disrep'utable-ness, disrep'utably. (Lat. re-pütäre, p. 998.)
- Un-required, ün'.rē.kwired', not needed. (Latin re-quirere.)
- Un-reserved, ün'.rē.zervd', not kept or reserved, frank; unreserved-ly, ün'.rē.zēr''väd.ly, without reticence; unreserved-ness, ün'.rē.zēr''väd.ness. (French sans reserve.)
- Un-resigned, ün'.re.zīned', not submissive to circumstances; (re-sign, to sign again, is rē-sine', with s sound).
Un-, with Latin resignatus; French résigner. (See p. 1000.)
- Un-resisted, -rē.zist''.ed, not withstood; unresist-ing, -zist''.ing; unresisting-ly. Irresistance (should be -ence), ir'rē-zist''.anse; irresistible, ir.rē.zist''.ä.bl; irresist'ible-ness, irresist'ibly; irresistibility, ir'rē.zist''.ä.bl''ä.ty. Non-resistance, non'.rē.zist''.ance; non-resist'ant, resist'ing.
(Strange that we should have blindly followed the French in their anomaly of "résist-ance" with "résist-ible.")
French sans résistance, irrésistible, irrésistibilité; Latin re-sistere.

Words with Un- negative and privative.

Un-resolved, -rě.zōlvd'', not resolved; unresolv'-ing (R. xix.), unresolv'-able (should be -ible). Irresolute, ir rěz'.ō.lūte; irres'olute-ly, irres'olute-ness; irresolution, -ō.lū.shūn.

Irresolvable (should be -ible), -rě.zōlv''.vā.bl; irresol'vably.

Fr. irrésolu, irrésolution; Lat. irresolūbilis (not -alis), irresolūtus; re-solvēre supine -solūtum, to melt back (into its simple state).

Un-respected, ūn'.rě.spěk''.ted, not respected; unrespect'-able.

Irrespective-of, ir'rě.spěk''.tīv ov, independent of; -tive-ly.

Disrespect, dis'.re.spěkt'', want of honour; -ful, -ful-ly.

French non respecté, Latin re-spicio, to look back upon, to regard.

Un-respired, not respired. Irrespirable, ir rěs'.pī.rā.bl.

Un-, ir-, Latin re-spirāre, to exhale breath, or breathe it back again.

Un'-respond'-ed-to, not responded-to; un'respond'-ing, -ing-ly.

Unresponsive, -rě.spōn''.sī.bl; unrespon'sible-ness, -ibly.

Irresponsive, ir'rě.spōn''.siv; irrespon'sive-ly, -sibil'ity.

Un-, ir-, with Lat. re-spondēre sup. -sponsum, to reply. (See p. 1003.)

Un-restored, ūn'.rě.stōred'', not restored. (Fr. non restauré.)

The o ought to be au; Latin re-staurāre. (See p. 1004.)

Un-restrained, ūn'.rě.straind'', not restrained; unrestrain'-ing, unrestrain'-ing-ly; unrestraint, ūn'.re.straint''.

Un-restricted, -rě.strīk''.ted, not restricted; unrestrict'-ing; unrestrictive, ūn'.rě.strīk''.tīv; unrestrict'ive-ly.

Fr. non restreint, sans restriction, -restrictif; Lat. re-stringēre supine restrictum, to strain hard, to stop; Gk. straggo, to strain.

Un-retrieved, ūn'.rě.treevd'', not recovered. Irretrievable, ir'rě.tree''.vā.bl; irretrievable-ness, irretriev'ably.

Un-, ir-, with Latin re-tribūāre, to give back.

Un'-returned'' (3 syl.), not come back; -able. (Fr. retourner.)

Un-revealed, ūn'.rě.veeld'', not disclosed. (French non révélé.)

Un'-revenged'' (3 syl.), not revenged; -reveng-ing, -rě.věn''.gīng.

Unvenge-ful, not vindictive; -ful-ly. (Fr. non vengé.)

Un-revered, -rě.veerd'', not revered. Irrever'ent, not reverent; irrever'ent-ly; irrever'ence (4 syl.), want of reverence.

Lat. irrēvērens gen. -entis, irrēvērentia, v. ir-rēvērēri; Fr. révércr.

Un-reversed, ūn'.rě.verst'', not reversed. Irreversible, ir'rě.ver''.sī.bl; irrever'sible-ness, irreversibly.

Un-, ir-, with Latin re-vertēre supine -versum, to turn back.

Un-reviewed, ūn'.rě.vewd'', not reviewed, not noticed by critics.

Un-, with Fr. revue; Lat. re-vidēre supine revisum, to see again.

Un'-revoked'' (3 syl.), not revoked. Irrevocable, ir'rě.vō''.kā.bl; irrevōkable-ness, irrevōkably (applied to law), but irrevocable, ir rěv'.ō.kā.bl, inexorable; irrev'ocable-ness; irrev'ocably, unalterably. (Fr. non révoqué, irrévocable.)

Latin irrevocābilis, irrevocātus, ir-[in]re-rōcāri not to be re-called.

Words with Un- negative and privative.

- Un-rich, ün.ritch', not wealthy. (Old English unric.)
- Un-riddle, ün.rid'.dl, to solve a riddle; unridd'ler.
Old English rædels, a riddle; verb rædan, to interpret.
- Un-rifled, ün.rí'.fld, not rifled. (Dan. rifse, a groove, p. 1015.)
- Un-rig', to dismantle [a ship]; unrigged, -rigd'; unrigg'-ing.
Old Eng. unwriglan, to cover; past -wrdh, past part. -wripen.
- Un-righteous, ün.ríte.yüs, not righteous; unright'eous-ly, unright'eous-ness. (Old Eng. unrihtwis, unrihtwisnes)
(The g is interpolated, and would be better omitted.)
- Un-right-ly, ün.ríte'.ly, not rightly. (Old English unrihtlice.)
(The g is interpolated, and would be better omitted.)
- Un-rip', to cut away the stitches of what is sewed, to cut open with a long gash; unripped' (2 syl.), unripp'-ing (R i.)
Old English ungerypp[an], past -rypte, past part. rypt.
- Un-ripe' (2 syl.), not ripe; unripe'-ness; unripened, -ripe'nd.
Old English unripe, verb ripan, to ripen.
- Un-rivalled, ün.rí'.vld, not rivalled. (Fr. sans rival, p. 1019.)
- Un-rivet, -riv'.ët, to remove rivets; unriv'et-ed, unriv'et-ing.
Fr. rivet, v. dérivier; Ital. ribat[titural], rebatere to beat back.
- Un-röbe' (2 syl.), to divest of robes; unröbed' (2 syl.), -röb'-ing.
Dis-röbe', to deprive of the right of wearing an official robe; disröbed', -ing. (Un-, dis-, with Fr. robe, a state dress.)
- Un-roll, ün.rölé', to open a roll; unrölld' (2 syl.), unröll'-ing.
Fr. dérrouler; Welsh rholl, a roll; Low Latin rötulus; Latin rötula.
- Un-romantic, ün'.ro.män''.tik, not romantic; unroman'tical-ly.
Fr. peu romantique; romans, romance; romancier, a romancer.
- Un-roof', to take off a roof; unrocfed, ün.rooft'; unroof'-ing.
Old English un-, with hróf or róf, a roof; räfteas, roofless.
- Un-root'-ed, not rooted. Uproot', to pull up by the roots; -ed, -root'-ing. (Un-, up-, with Dan. rod, a root; Lat. rād[ix].)
- Un-rough, -rüf', smooth; unrough'-ly. (O. E. un-hrüh or -räh.)
(For list of words in -ough, and their derivations, see p. 1319.)
- Un-rout'-ed, not routed. (Fr. déroute as en dérouté, routed.)
"De-route" (route, a road), to put out of one's road, to baffle, to rout.
- Un-ruffle, -rüf'fl, not to ruffle; unruffled, -rüf'ld; unrüf'fling.
Un-, with Belgic ruffelen, to wrinkle.
- Un-rüled' (2 syl.), not ruled; unruly, rü'.ly, disorderly; -ness.
O. E. un-, with regul, a rule; Lat. régula (rêgo, to govern; rex, rêgis).
- Un-rumple, ün.rüm'.pl, not to rumple; unrumped, -rüm'.pld; unrum'pling. (O. E. ungerimpan, p. -ramp, p. p. rumpen.)
- Un-saddle, -säd'dl, to take off the saddle; unsaddled, -säd'dld; -sad'dling. (O. E. unsadel[ian], p. -sadelode, p. p. -sadelod.)

Words with Un- negative and privative.

Un-safe' (2 syl.), not secure; unsafe'-ly, unsafe'-ness, -safe'-ty.

Un-, with French sauv; Latin salvus, verb salvāre, to save.

Un-said, ũn.sēd', not spoken. Gain-said, contradicted.

O. E. unsæd or ungesǣd. "Gain-said," O. E. gean, the opposite.

Un-saint'-ly, unholy: (O. E. un-sanct-līce, Lat. sanctus, Fr. saint.)

Un-salable (often spelt unsale-able), ũn.sālē'.ǣ.bl, not vendible; -ness. Unsold. (O. E. ungesyll[an], p. scalde, p. p. scald.)

As only -ce and -ge retain -e before -able, "sale-able" is abnormal.

Un-salutary, ũn.sāl'lu.tēr.ry, not conducive to health.

Latin salūtāris, from salus, gen. salūtis, health.

Un-salt, ũn.sōlt, fresh, not tasting strongly of salt; un-salt'ed, -sōlt'-ed, not pickled with salt. (O. E. unsalt or unsealt.)

Un-sanctified, ũn.sānk'.tī.fide, not sanctified, not ostentatiously religious. (Un-, with Lat. sanctificāre [fācio], to make holy.)

Un-sanctioned, -sānk'.shūnd, not sanctioned; unsanc'tion-ing.

French non sanctionné, Latin sanctio.

Un-satisfied, ũn.sāt'.īs.fide, not contented; unsat'isfy-ing; unsatisfactory, ũn.sāt'.īs.fāk'.tō.ry; unsatisfac'tori-ly, unsatisfac'tori-ness (Rule xi.), unsatisfi'-able.

Dis-satisfied, dis.sāt'.īs.fide, discontented; dissat'isfy-ing, dissatisfac'tory, dissatisfac'tori-ly; dissatisfaction, dis.sāt'.īs.fāk'.shūn. Insatiable, in.sā'.shī.ǣ.bl, impossible to be satisfied; insā'tiable-ness, insā'tiably.

Fr. non satisfait, insatiable; Lat. satisfactio, sātis-fācio to do enough.

Un-savoury, ũn.sā'.vō.ry, not palatable; unsa'vouri-ly; unsavouri-ness, R. xi. (Fr. sans saveur, savoureux.)

Latin sāpor, sāporus, verb sāpōrāre, sāpio to savour.

Un-say', to recall something said; unsaid, ũn.sēd'; unsay'-ing.

Gain'-say, to contradict; gainsaid, gain'.sēd; gain'say-ing, gain'say-er. (Old Eng. gean sæd, the opposite said.)

"Un-say," Old English ungesæg[an], past -sæde, past part. -sæd.

Un-scanned, ũn.skānd', not scanned. (Lat. scando, to climb.)

Un-scared, ũn.skaird', not frightened. Unscarred (see below).

Un-, with Italian s- (priv.) careggiare, to allure. (See Scamp.)

Un-scarred, ũn.skard', without a wound. Unscared (see above).

Un-, with French escarre; Greek eschara, a scar from a burn.

Un-scāthed (2 syl.), uninjured. (Old English unsceathfull.)

Un-scattered, ũn.skāt'.trd, not dispersed, not littered about.

O. E. un-scater[an], past scaterde, p. p. scaterd (Sax. Chron., 1137).

Un-sceptred, ũn.sēp'.trd, dethroned, having no regal rank.

Un-, with Fr. sceptre; Lat. sceptrum; Gk. skēptrōn. (See p. 1060.)

Words with Un- negative and privative.

Un-scholastic, ŭn'sko.lăs''tĭk, not pertaining to school; un-scholastical, ŭn'sko.lăs''tĭ.kăl.

Un-schooled, ŭn.skoold, not taught, not experienced.

Un-scholarly, ŭn.sköl'.ar.ly, not like a scholar.

Un-, with Lat. scholasticus; O. E. scōlu; Gk. skōlē, leisure (v. 1063).

Un-scientific, un'si.en.tĭf''ĭk, not scientific; unscientific-ly.

Fr. non or peu scientifique (Lat. sciens gen. -entis knowing, scientia).

Un-scoured (2 syl.), not scoured. (German ungescheuert.)

Un-scratched (2 syl.), not scratched. (Germ. zerkratzt.)

Un-screened (2 syl.), not screened. (Un-, with French écran.)

Un-screw, to loosen or remove a screw; unscrewed (2 syl.), unscrew'-ing. (Un-, with French écrou; Norse skruc.)

Un-scriptural, -skrip'.tchūr.rl, not scriptural; unscrip'tural-ly.

From Latin scriptūra, scribo, to write.

Un-scrupulous (obs. the -pu-), ŭn.skrū'.pŭ.lŭs, not scrupulous; unscrū'pulous-ly, unscrū'pulous-ness.

Un-, with Lat. scrupulōsus (scrupus, a little sharp stone). See p. 1070.

Un-sculptured, ŭn.skŭlp'.tchŭrd, not sculptured.

Latin sculpĕre supine sculptum, to engrave; Greek glupho.

Un-seal, ŭn.seel', to break a seal; unsealed, -sceld' (see p. 1074); unseal'-ing. (O. E. unseg[ian], p. -segled, p. p. -segled.)

Un-searched, -sertcht', not searched; unsearch'-ing, -sertch.ing; unsearch'-able, unsearch'able-ness, unsearch'ably.

Fr. non cherché; Germ. undurchsucht, verb durchsuchen to search.

Un-seasoned, -see'.zōnd, not acclimatised, not flavoured with condiments; unseason-able, -zōn.ă.bl; unsea'sonable-ness.

French hors de saison, non assaisonné. (See p. 1075.)

Un-seat, ŭn.seet' or disseat', to deprive of seat or membership; unseat'-ed, not provided with seats. Disseat'ed, deprived of membership; unseat'-ing or disseat'-ing.

Old Eng. unsett[an], past unsete, past part. ungetet or ungetted.

Un-seaworthy, ŭn.see'.wur.thŭ, not sea-proof; unsea'worthi-ness, R. xi. (O. E. un-sæ-weorthe or -wurthe-lĭc, -wurthelĭce. adv.)

Un-seconded, ŭn.sĕk'.ŏn.ded, not seconded. (Fr. non secondé.)

Un-sectarian, ŭn'sĕk'.tair''rĭ.ăn, not sectarian. (Lat. sectārius.)

Un-secular, ŭn.sĕk'.kŭ.lar, not secular. Unsecularise, ŭn.sĕk'.kŭ.lă.rĭze, to devote to sacred uses; unsec'ularised (5 syl.); unsecularis-ing, ŭn.sĕk'.kŭ.lă.rĭ'.zing. (Lat. sĕcŭlāris.)

Un-secured, -sĕ.kŭred'', not rendered safe. Insecure, in'.sc.kŭre''; insecure'-ly; insecurity, in'.sĕ.kŭ''rĭ.ty.

Latin secŭrus, secŭritas (sc curāre, to take care of the thing itself).

Words with Un- negative and privative.

- Un-seem'ly, not seemly; unseem'li-ness. (O. E. uncymlic.)
Our word is a blunder. It is not from seman to seem, but cyman [cuman] to come, cymlic comely, uncymliclic uncomely.
- Un-seldom, not seldom. (Old English unseldan or unseldon.)
- Un-sel'fish, not selfish; unsel'fish-ness, unsel'fish-ly.
Old English un-sylflic, -sylflice (adv.), -sylflicnes.
- Un-separated (obs. -pa-), ũn.sěp'.ā.rā.ted, not separated.
Inseparable, in.sěp'.ā.rā.bl; insepar'able-ness, insepar'ably.
Inseparability, in.sěp''.a.ra.bīl''ā.ty.
Latin non sēparātus, insēparābilis (se-parāre, to make separate)
- Un-sepulchred, ũn.sěp'.āl.krd, not entombed, not buried.
Un-, with Latin sēpulcrum (sēpelio, to bury).
- Un-service-able, ũn.ser'.vīs.ā.bl, not serviceable; unse'viceably, unse'viceable-ness. Unse'ved' (2 syl.)
French non servi; Old English serfis; Latin servire, to serve.
- Un-set', not set, not sunk below the horizon.
Old English unsett[an], past -sete, past part. -geset.
- Un-settle, ũn.sēt'tl, to disturb; unse't'ling; unsettled, -sēt'tld; unse't'tled-ness; unse't'tle-ment, derangement.
Old English un-sahtl[ian], past -sahtlode, past part. -sahtlod.
- Un-severed, ũn.sěv'.rd, not severed. Disse'ver, to separate; dissevered, dis.sěv'.rd; disse'ver-ing, disse'ver-ance.
Un-, dis-, with French sevrer; Italian sevrare; Latin sēparāre.
- Un-sex', to change the character of a sex. (Fr. sexe, Lat. sexus.)
- Un-shackle, ũn.shāk'kl, to unchain; unshackled, -shāk'kld; unshack'ling. (Old Eng. un-, with seacul or scacul.)
- Un-shaded, ũn.shā'.ded, not shaded. Unshadowed, -shād'.ōde.
Old English un-scedden, verb -sedd[an] or scedd[an], past -scedd, un-sceddwod, verb -sceddw[an], past -sceddwode.
- Un-shaken, ũn.shā'.kn, not shaken. (Old English un-scacen.)
Verb scac[an], past scede, past part. scacen, or sceacan, &c.
- Un-shaped, ũn.shāpt', not shaped; unshapen, un.shāpe'n.
Unshap-able, ũn.shā'.pā.bl; unshāpe'-ly.
Mis-shape', to shape amiss; misshaped' (2 syl.); -shap-ing, mis.shā'.ping; misshapen, mis.shāpe'n.
O. E. unscapen or ungesceapen, v. -scap[an], past scōp, p. p. scapen.
- Un-sharp, not sharp; unshaped, un.sharpt; unsharp'en.
O. E. unscarp or unscarp, v. seyrp[an], p. seyrpe, p. p. seyrpd.
- Un-shāved (2 syl.), not shaved; adj. unshorn. (O. E. unscafen.)
Verb scaf[an], to shave, past scōf, past part. scafen.

Words with Un- negative and privative.

Un-sheathe, un.shēethe', to draw from its sheath; unsheathed' (2 syl.), unsheath-ing (th as in the).

" ("Sheath" is one of the eight nouns which lengthen its vowel or vowels in forming the verb by adding -e: as "bath," bāthe; "breath," breathe; "cloth," clōthe; "loath," loathe; "mouth," mouthe; "smooth," smoothe; "wreath," wreathe.)

O. Eng. scæth or scæd, v. unscedd[an], past -scæde, past part. -scæde.

Un-shell', to take off the shell; unshelled' (2 syl.), unshell-ing.

Un-, with Old English scel or scell, a shell.

Un-sheltered, ūn.shēl't.rd, exposed; unshel'ter-ing.

Un-, with Welsh cell, a cover, a shelter. Our word is a gross blunder, sh- should be c = ch.

Un-shield-ed, ūn.sheeld'.ed, not shielded; unshield-ing.

Old English un-scylded, -scyldende, verb scyld[an], past scyldde.

Un-shift-ed, not shifted; unshift-ing. (O. E. ungescyft.)

Un-ship', to remove from a ship, &c.; unshipped, un.shīpt'; unshipp-ing, R. i. (O. E. unscip[ian], p. -ode, p. p. -od.)

Un-shōd', not having shoes on. (O. Eng. unscōd or unscēōd.)

Un-shorn', not shaved. (Old English unscoren.)

Un-shōt', not shot. (O. Eng. unscoten, v. sceōt[an], to shoot.)

Un-shrink-ing, not shrinking; unshrink-ing-ly, unshrunk'.

Old Eng. unscrincede, unscruncen, verb scrin[an], past seranc.

Un-shroud-ed, not shrouded. (Un-, with Old Eng. scrūd.)

Un-shunned, ūn.shūnd, not avoided. (Old Eng. unscunod.)

(Observe that every one of the words beginning with un-sh- is a native word, except shelter, which is a blunder for celler or cheller.)

Un-sight-ly, ūn.site'ly, not sightly; unsight'li-ness.

Old English un-syhtlic. (The -g is interpolated.)

Un-silvered, ūn.sil'.vrd, not coated with silver; unsil'very.

Old English un-, with silfer, silver.

Un-sinewed, ūn.sin'nūde, not sinewed. (Old Eng. sinewe.)

Un-singed, ūn.sīnjd', not scorched. (Old Eng. unbesænged.)

Un-sinning, ūn.sīn'ing, not sinning; unsin'-ful, unsinful-ly, unsin'ful-ness. Sin'less, sin'less-ly, sin'less-ness.

Old English un-, with sin, verb syngian, synfull, synleas.

Un-skil'ful, not skilful; unskil'ful-ly, unskil'ful-ness.

Unskilled' (2 syl.), not skilled.

(When -full is added to a monosyllable ending in double l, one l of each part of the compound is dropped: as "skill-full," skilful; "will-full," wilful and unwilful; "full-fill," fulfil, &c.)

Old English un-sylefull, unscyled, verb scyl[an].

Un-slack', not slack. Unslacken, ūn.slāk'n, to tighten; unslackened, ūn.slāk'nd; unslack'en-ing.

Old English unslæc; unslæctice, unslackly. (See Unslaked.)

Words with Un- negative and privative.

Un-slaked, ûn.slăkt, not quenched. Unslaked lime, lime not mixed with water. (Danish slukke, Swedish släcka.)

Un-sleep'y, not sleepy; unsleep'-ing. (Old Eng. unslēpig.)

Un-sling', to loose from a sling; unslung''. (O. E. unsling[an]).

Un-slippery, ûn.slip'.pě.ry, not slippery. Unslip'py; unslipped, un.slip't'. (Old English unslyped, unslipig.)

Un-slit', not slit. (Old English untosliten or unsliten.)

Un-smoked (2 syl.), not smoked. (Old English unsmocen.)

Un-smooth', not smooth; unsmoothed' (2 syl.), unsmooth'-ly; unsmooth'-ness, want of smoothness, uneven, rough.

Old English unsmôthe, unsmæthe, or unsmêthe, unsmêthnes.

Un-sō'ber, not sober; unsobered, un.sō'.brd. Insobri'ety.

Old Eng. un-, with syfer sober; Lat. sobrius (s- priv.), ebrius drunk).

Un-social, ûn.sō'.shāl, not social. Unsociable, ûn.sō'.sh'ă.bl; unso'ciable-ness, unso'ciably. Dissociate, dis.sō'.sh'ă.te, to separate; dissoc'iated, dissoc'iat-ing; dissociable, dis.sō'.sh'ă.bl; dissociabil'ity; dissocia'tion, -sh'ăn.

Fr. insociable, insociabilité, non or peu social; Latin insōciābilis.

Insocial, insociable, insociability, &c., would be preferable.

Un-soiled', not soiled. (Old Eng. unseled, verb sēlan to soil.)

Un-sodden, ûn.sōd'n, not sodden. (Old English ungesoden.)

Un-sold', not sold. (Old Eng. ungeseald or unseald, v. sellan.)

Un-soldier-ly, -soul'.djēr.ly, not befitting a soldier. (Fr. soldat.)

Un-solicit-ed, ûn'.sol.īs''.ăt.ed, not solicited; unsolicitous, ûn'.sol.īs''.ăt.ūs. (Un-, with Latin sōlicitus, v. sōlicitāre.)

Un-sōlved' (2 syl.), not solved. Insōl'vent, a bankrupt; insōl'-vency. Insoluble, in.sōl'lu.bl, not to be fused or melted; insōl'uble-ness, insōl'ubly, insōlub'ility. Insōl'vable, incapable of being solved or guessed.

Dissolve, diz.zōlv', to melt; dissolved, diz.zōlv'd'; dissolv'-ing (R. xix.); dissolvent, diz.zōl'.vent; dissolvable, diz.zōl'.vă.bl, -ness; dissōl'vably; dissolution, dis'.so.lu''.sh'ăn (not diz.zo...); dissolute, dis'.so.lute, dissipated; dis'solute-ly, dis'solute-ness; dissoluble, dis'.so.lu.bl, capable of being melted; dissolubility, dis'.so.lu.bl''.ăt.y. Indis'solubil'ity, having a nature which resists solution.

French insoluble, insolubilité, insolvable, dissoluble, dissolvant;

Latin insolūbilis, dissolūbilis, dissolūtus, verb dissolvēre.

(The wrong conj., "dissolvable" and "insolvable" are French.)

Un-sophisticated, ûn'.so.fīs''.tī.kā.ted, not adulterated, not falsified; unsophistical, ûn'.so.fīs.tī.kāl; unsophistical-ly.

Fr. non sophistiqué; Lat. sophisticus; Gk. sophistikós (see p. 1165).

Words with Un- negative and privative.

Un-sought, ũn.sũwt', not sought. (Old Eng. ungesôht, v. sécan.)
(It will be observed that the g is interpolated. It is absurdly meant to represent the guttural sound of the word sôht.)

Un-sound', not sound; unsound'-ly, unsound'-ness. Un-sound'-ed, not fathomed, not enunciated, &c.

"Unsound," Old English ungesund, ungesundlic, ungesundfulnes.

"Unsounded" (not made to sound), O. E. son; Lat. sônus, v. sônäre.

"Unsounded" (not fathomed), Span. sondar, as sondar la bomba.

Un-soured' (2 syl.), not soured. (Old Eng. unsúrod, v. súrian.)

Un-sown'. Un-sewed' (generally but incorrectly unsewn).

Unsewn', not planted with seed. Unsewed, not stitched.

"Unsewn," O. Eng. unsdwæn, v. sáw[an], past seow, p. part. sáwæn.

"Unsewed," O. E. ungesiwed, v. síw[an], past síwode, p. p. gesiwed.

Un-sparing, un.spair'.ing, not sparing; unsparing-ly.

Old English un-, with spær, verb spárian; Latin parcere.

Un-speak-able, ũn.speé'.kũ.bl, unutterable; unspeakable-ness, unspeak'ably; unspeak-ing, un.speek'.ing; unspo'ken.

Old English unspræcende unspeaking, ungespræc, verb spræc[an], past spræc, past part. sprocen. ("Speak" should be speak.)

Un-specified, ũn.spēs'.ĩ.fide, not specified. (Fr. non spécifié.)

Un-specious, ũn.speé'.shũs, not specious; unspē'cious-ly.

Un-, with Latin spēciōsus (spēctes, outward appearance).

Un-speculative, ũn.spēk'.ku.lũ.tiv, not speculative; unspeculative-ly. (French peu spéculatif, Latin spēcũlārī.)

Un-spoiled' or unspoilt', not spoilt. Despoil, dē.spoil', to plunder, to lay waste; despoiled, de.spoild'; despoil'-ing, despoil'-er; spoliation, spō'.lĩ.ã'.shũn, devastation.

French non spolié, despouillé now dépouillé; Latin de-spōliāre.

Un-spoken, un.spōke'n, not spoken. (Old Eng. unsprocen.)

Un-spōtt'ed, not spotted; unspott'ed-ness. Spot'less, -less-ly, -ness. (O. E. un-, with splot. Our spot should be splot.)

Un-stable, ũn.stā'.bl, not stable; unstable-ness, unsta'bly.

Instabil'ity. (Fr. non stable, instabilité; Latin in-stāre.)

Un-staid', not fixed, not steady. Un-stayed', not retarded.

"Un-staid" is formed from "stay," on the corrupt pattern of laid, paid, said (sēd), for layed, payed, sayed.

Un-stained' (2 syl.), not stained. (Un-, with Welsh ystaen.)

Un-stamped, ũn.stampt', not stamped. (Italian stampāre.)

Un-stanch'd, un.stāncht, [the flow of blood] not arrested.

Un-, with Welsh ystancio; French non étanché.

Un-states'man-like, unworthy of a statesman.

Un-stayed' (2 syl.), not detained. Unstaid' (q.v.), unsteady.

Un-steadfast, ũn.stēd'.fast, not steadfast; unstead'fast-ly, unstead'fast-ness. (Should be stedfast. O. E. -stedfast.)

Words with Un- negative and privative.

Un-steady, ŭn.stĕd'.ĭ, not steady; unstead'i-ly, unstead'i-ness; unsteadied, ŭn.stĕd'.ed, not made steady.

O. E. unstæthhig, unstæthhignes, unstæthhiglice or unstedig, &c.

Un-stōp', to remove a stopping; unstopped, ŭn.stōpt'; -ing.

Un-, with German stopfen; Danish stoppe, noun stop.

Un-straightened, Unstraitened (both ŭn.strait'.nd).

Unstraightened, not made straight, still crooked.

Unstraitened, not embarrassed, not contracted.

"Unstraightened," O. E. un-, with strac straight; Lat. strictus straight.

"Unstraitened," un-, with Fr. estroit now étroit; Lat. strictus, tight.

Un-strained' (2 syl.), not strained. (Fr. non estreint now étreint.)

Un-straitened, un.strait'.nd, not embarrassed. Unstraightened, not made straight. (See Unstraightened.)

Un-stratified, ŭn.strāt'.ĭ.fide, not stratified. (Fr. non stratifié.)

Un-strengthened, ŭn.strenght'.nd, not made strong.

Old English un-, with streneth, strength, or strecgth strength.

Un-string', to loose the strings; unstrung', unstring'-ing.

Old English un-, with string. (See p. 1227.)

Un-strück', not struck; unstricken, ŭn.strĭk'n, not stricken.

Old Eng. un- with a-stricen, v. a-strīcan, past a-strāc. (See p. 1227.)

Un-studied, Unstudded (both ŭn.stŭd'.ded); unstŭ'dious, -dĭ.ŭs.

Unstudied, unpremeditated, not made a study.

Unstudded, not adorned with studs.

"Unstudied," Fr. non étudié now étudé; Lat. stŭdium, v. stŭdeŭ.

"Unstudded," Old English un-, with studu or stod a stud.

Un-stuffed, ŭn.stŭft', not stuffed (un- with German stopfen).

Un-subdued, ŭn'.sŭb.dŭde', not overcome (un- with Lat. sub-do.)

Un-subject'ed, not made subject. Insubjection, -sŭb.jĕk''.shŭn, want of subordination. (Lat. -subjectus, jĕcĕo, jĕctum.)

Un-submissive, -sŭb.mĭs''.sĭv, not submissive; -submis'sive-ly, unsubmitt'ed, unsubmitt'-ing (R. iv.) Non-submissive; non-submission, non'.sŭb.mĭsh''.ŭn, refusal of submission.

Un-, non-, with Latin sub-mitto supine -missum, to send under.

Un-subscribed, ŭn'.sŭb.skribd'', not subscribed. (Lat. sub-scribo.)

Un-substantial, ŭn'.sŭb.stān''.shāl, not substantial; unsubstan'tial-ly; unsubstantiality, ŭn'.sŭb.stān''.shĭ.āl''.ĭ.ty; un-substantiated, ŭn'.sŭb.stān''.shĭ.a.ted, not proved.

Un-, with Latin substantiālis (substantia, verb sub-stāre).

Un-subvert'ed, not overturned. (Un- with Latin sub-vertō.)

Un-success'-ful, not successful; unsuccessful'-ly, -ness.

Un-, with Lat. successus (suc-[sub]cĕdo supine cessum, to go under).

("Success," i. e., one step follows another without halt to the end.)

Words with Un- negative and privative.

- Un-suffered, -sŭf'frd, not suffered, not permitted; -suffer-ing.
 Unsufferable, not to be allowed or permitted (should be ible).
 Insufferable, beyond endurance, too hard to bear (ditto).
 Unsufferable-ness, unsufferably. Insufferable-ness, &c.
Un-, in-, with Latin sufferens gen. sufferentis, sufferentia (sub fero).
- Un-suitable, ūn.sŭ'.tā.bl, not suitable; unsuit'able-ness, unsuit'ably; unsuited, ūn.sŭ'.ted; unsuit'-ing.
 Non-suit, nŏn'.sŭte, the abandonment of a law-suit (when actually in court) on the discovery of some error or omission; non-suit'ed, non-suit'-ing.
 Fr. suite, v. *sui*vre; Lat. secŭtus, sequor to follow. "Unsuited," i.e., the things do not "follow in a series," but are odds and ends.
- Un-sŭl'ly, not to defile; unsullies, ūn.sŭl'.līz; unsullied, ūn.sŭl'.led; unsullied-ly, unsul'ly-ing.
 Fr. sans souillure, v. souiller (Lat. suillus piggish, hence filthy).
- Un-sung', not sung. (O. E. unge-sungen, v. sing[an], sang, sangen.)
- Un-supplant'ed, not supplanted. (Fr. non supplanté. See p. 1255.)
- Un-supplied, ūn'.sŭp.plīdē'', not supplied. (Lat. sup-[sub]pleo.)
- Un-support'-ed, not supported; unsupport'-ing. Insupport'-able, insupport'able-ness, insupport'ably.
 French sans support, insupportable, &c. (See page 1255.)
- Un-suppressed, -sŭp.prest'', not suppressed. Insuppress'ible, insuppressible-ness, insuppressibly.
Un-, in-, with Lat. suppressio, -pressus, sup-[sub]premo to press under.
- Un-surmount'ed, not overcome; unsurmount'-ing. Insurmount-able, insurmountable-ness, insurmountably.
 Fr. insurmontable; Lat. in sur-[sum]montem, not on the mountain-top.
- Un-surpassed, ūn'.sur.past'', not excelled; unsurpass-ing.
 Insurpass'able, insurpass'ably. (Fr. non surpassé, p. 1258.)
- Un-surrendered, ūn'.sŭr.rĕn''.drd, not yielded up, not compromised; unsurren'der-ing. (Fr. sur rendre, to give over, probably an English blunder for se rendre, to submit, &c.)
- Un-surveyed, -sur.vāde, not surveyed. (Fr. surveiller, p. 1259.)
- Un-susceptible, ūn'.sŭs.sĕp''.tī.bl, not susceptible; unsuscep'tible-ness, unsuscept'ibly. Insuscept'ible, insuscept'ibly; insusceptibility, in'.sŭs.cĕp'.tī.bl''ā.ty.
 Fr. non susceptible; Lat. sus-[sub]cĕpĕre[căpĕre] supine -ceptum.
- Un-suspect'ed, not suspected; unsuspect'-ing, unsuspecting-ly.
 Unsuspicious, -sŭs.pīsh''.ŭs, not suspicious; -suspicious-ly, -suspicious-ness. (Fr. non suspecté, Lat. suspicio, p. 1259.)
- Un-sustained'' (3 syl.), not sustained; unsustain'-ing.
 Unsustain'-able (should be -ible, not the 1st. Lat. conj.)
 Latin sus-[sub]tīnĕre[tĕnĕre], to hold-up under. (See p. 1260.)

Words with Un- negative and privative.

Un-swāthe' (2 syl.), to free from bandages; unswāthed' (2 syl.), unswāth'-ing. (O. E. un-, with suæthil, a swathe.)

Un-swayed, ŭn.swāde', not influenced or controlled; unsway'-able. (Old Eng. ungeswegod, v. sweg[ian], p. swegode.)

Un-sweet', not sweet; unsweetened, un.sweet''nd, not made sweet. (Old Eng. unswét, v. swétan, to make sweet.)

Un-swept', not swept. (Old English un-swapan, v. swāpan.)

Un-swerv'-ing, not swerving; unswerv'-ing-ly. (See p. 1266.)

Un-swung', not swung. (O. E. unswungen, v. swingan, swang.)

Un-symmetrical, ŭn'.sĭm.mēt''.rĭ.kāl, not symmetrical; unsymmet'-rical-ly. (From the Gk. summētrĭa, Lat. symmetrĭa.)

Un-sympathising, ŭn.sĭm'.pă.rhĭ''zing, not sympathising; unsympathising-ly; unsympathetic, ŭn.sĭm'.pă.rhĕt''ĭk; unsympathet'ical, -kāl; unsympathet'ical-ly.

Greek sumpatheia (sun-pathos, fellow-feeling); Latin sympathia.

Un-taint'ed, not tainted; untaint'ed-ly, untaint'ed-ness.

Formed from the Fr. teindre, to dye; Latin tingere supine tinctum.

What is not dyed is not tinged, not spotted, not defiled, not corrupted.

Un-taken, ŭn.tāke'n, not taken. (Old Eng. untacen, v. -tacan.)

Un-tāmed (2 syl.), not tamed; untamable, ŭn.tā'mă.bl.

O. Eng. untemed, ungetemed, or unatemed, v. tam[ian], tamode, -od.

Un-tanned, ŭn.tānd', not tanned. (French non tanné.)

Un-tarnished, ŭn.tar'.nishd, not tarnished. (Fr. non terni.)

Un-tasted, ŭn.tāste'.ed, not tasted; untāst'-ing; untaste'-ful; untasteful-ly, not with good taste. Distaste, dis.taste', aversion; distaste'-ful, distaste'-ful-ly, distaste'-ful-ness.

French taster now tāter, to judge by touch. (See p. 1287.)

Un-taught, un.tawt', not taught. Un-taut, not tight.

Un-teach, un.teech', to disabuse the mind of what it has been taught; unteach'-ing. Un-teach'-able, not readily receiving instruction; unteach'-able-ness.

Old Eng. untēc[an], past -tēhte, past part. tēht, tēcing or tēcung.

(The g is interpolated, as it always is, except in abstract nouns from adj. ending in g: as "long," length; "strong," strength; in such words as light, bright, sight, naught, taught, &c., it is abnormal.)

Un-tempered, ŭn.tēm'.prd, not tempered. Distemper, disease, a sort of paint; distempered (3 syl.), distem'per-ing.

"Untempered," Fr. non tempéré; Lat. temperāre; O. Eng. temprian.

"Distemper" (paint), Italian distemperare, to dissolve.

Un-tempt'ed, not tempted; untempt'-ing. (Latin tentāre.)

Un-ten'-able (should be tenible), not capable of being maintained.

Latin tēnere to hold. Our blunder is from the French non tenable.

Un-ten'ant-ed, not inhabited; unten'ant-able, unfit to be...

Un-, with Latin tenens gen. tenentis, tēnere to hold; Fr. tenant (11).

Words with Un- negative and privative.

Un-terrified, ün.tēr'ri.fide, not alarmed. (Fr. non terrifié.)

Un-thanked, ün.ṛhankt', not thanked; unthank'-ful, unthank'-ful-ness, unthank'-ful-ly, unthank'-worthy.

O. Eng. unthancod, unthancfull, unthancfullnes, unthancweorthlic.

Un-thawed, -ṛhawd', not thawed. (O. E. unthawed, v. thawan.)

Un-theological, ün.ṛhë.ð.lödɣ''i.käl, not theological; -cäl-ly.

From the Greek theōlogia (thēōs logos, a treatise about God).

Un-theoretical, ün.ṛhë.ð.rët''i.käl, not theoretical; -cäl-ly.

Un-, with Greek theōrētikós (verb theōrizo, to theorise).

The the- of "theorise" is somewhat curious. The Athenians made an annual procession to Delos to commemorate the deliverance of Theseus from the Minotaur. This procession was called theōria, the persons sent theōroi, and the ship they went in theōris (theos ora, a visit to the god). The same ship being used every year, was so patched and mended that not a board of the original vessel remained, and the philosophers used to "theorise" or speculate on the question of its identity. Thence to "visit the god" (in the theōris) and to "speculate" came to mean the same thing.

Un-think'-ing, not thinking; unthink'-ing-ly; unthought-of, ün.ṛhawt' ov; unthought'-ful, unthought'-ful-ly, -ness, thought'-less, thought'-less-ly, thought'-less-ness.

Old English unbethōht, verb thencan, past thōhte, past part. thōht, thōhtfull. (It will be observed that the g is interpolated.)

Un-thread, ün.ṛhrëd', to draw the thread [out of a needle]; unthread'-ed, unthread'-ing. (O. E. thrëd or thræd, thread.)

Un-threatened, ün.ṛhrët''nd, not menaced. (O. E. threatian.)

Un'-thrif, a money-squanderer; unthrift'-y, unthrifti-ly, -ness.

Dan. trives, to thrive; trivelig, thriving (adj.); trivelse, a thriving.

Un-throned' (2 syl.), not throned. Dethrōne' (2 syl.), to degrade from sovereignty; dethroned', dethrōn'-ing (Rule xix.), dethrone'-ment, rejection of a ruler from sovereignty.

Latin thrōnus; Greek thrōnós, a throne (thrānos, a bench).

Un-tidy, -ti'.dy, not tidy; (comp.) untī'di-er, (super.) -tī'di-est, untī'di-ly, -tī'di-ness. (Dan. tidig, timely; O. E. tīd, time.)

"Tidy" means in "good time." Things done at their stated times.

Un-tie, ün.ti', to unbind; untied, un.tide'; unty-ing.

(All verbs ending in -ie (except "hie," hieing) change the -ie into -y when -ing is added: as "die," dying; "lie," lying; "vie," vying.)
Old Eng. untig[ian], verb getig[ian], past getigede, past part. getiged.

Un-tilled, ün.tild', not cultivated. Until', up to the time when.

Old English untilod, verb tīl[ian], past tīlode, past part. tīlod.

Un-time'-ly (3 syl.), out of season; -time'li-ness. (O. E. untīma.)

Un-tinctured, ün.tīnk'.tchürd, not tinged or impregnated with some foreign matter. (Latin tinctūra, a tincture.)

Un-tinged' (2 syl.), not tinged. (Latin tingo, to tinge or dye.)

Words with Un- negative and privative.

Un-tired, ʌn.tɪˈrd, not tired; untir-ing, un.tɪreˈɪŋ; -tir'ing-ly.

Old English unteorig or unge-teorod; verb teor[ian], to wax faint.

Un-titled, ʌn.tɪˈtld, not titled. (Old Eng. titul, Lat. titŭla.)

Un-tithed' (2 syl.) not tithed. (Old English untio Gothad.)

Un-töld, not related. Untolled, un.töld, [the bell] not rung.

"Untold," Old Eng. untellenlic or ungeteald, v. tell[an], p. tealde.

"Untolled." To toll is probably the Old Eng. verb teoll[an] to tell, meaning "to announce" a death or funeral by the bell.

Un-tolerated, ʌn.tɒl.əˈræ.ted, not tolerated. Intolerable, in.tɒl.əˈræ.bl; intöl'erable-ness, intöl'erably. Intolerant, in.tɒl.əˈrænt; intol'erant-ly. (Obs. "tolerate" only one l.)

Un-, with Latin töleratus, intölërans gen. tölërantis, intölërantis.

Untouched, ʌn.tʌtʃt, not touched; untouch'ing. Intact, uninjured. Intangible, in.tæŋˈgɪ.bl, incapable of being touched; intan'gible-ness, intan'gibly, intangibil'ity.

Fr. non or peu touché, intact, intangible, intangibilité, Lat. tango.

Un-toward, un.tōwˈrd (-tōw to rhyme with grow), awkward, perverse; untōward-ly, -tōward-ness. (O. E. un-to-weard.)

Un-traced' (2 syl.), not traced; untrace'able, untrace'able-ness.

French non tracé; Latin tractāre, to handle (from traho, to draw).

Un-tracked, ʌn.trækˈt, not tracked; untractable, ʌn.trækˈtæ.bl; untract'able-ness, untract'ably, untractabil'ity.

(Obs. "k" is inserted before -ed, otherwise c would be equal to s.)

Italian tracciare, to track; traccia, a footstep.

Un-trained, ʌn.traind, not trained. (Fr. trainer, to draw along.)

Milton says "In hollow cube he trained [dragged along] his...enginry."

Un-trammelled, not shackled. (Fr. travail, a fowler's net.)

Il est ainsi nommé parce qu'il est ordinairement formé de trois rangs de mailles, ou de trois réseaux appliqués l'un sur l'autre.

Un-transcribed, -træn.skribd, not transcribed. (Lat. transcribo.)

Un-transferred, ʌnˈtrans.ferd, not transferred; untransfer'able, -transfer'ably. (Fr. non transféré, non transferable.)

(Nothing can be worse than the caprice showed in the spelling of the compounds of this word. We have the r doubled in transferr'ed, transferr'ing; but not in transfer'able, transfer'ably, transfer'ed, transfer'ence; Latin transfere.)

Un-translā'ted, not translated; -transla'table (should be -ible).

Latin transfere supine translātum, to transfer or translate.

Un-transport'ed, not transported. (Un- with Lat. transportāre.)

Un-transposed, ʌnˈtrans.pōzed, not transposed.

Un-, with Latin trans-pōnere supine -pōsitum, to transpose.

Un-travelled, ʌn.trævˈld, not having visited foreign lands, not travelled over. (Welsh trafael, to toil; Fr. travailler.)

(To "travel" was to "toil" when there were neither coaches nor roads.)

Words with Un- negative and privative.

- Un-traversed, ŭn.trāv'.rst, not traversed. (Fr. non traversé.)
- Un-tried, -trīde', not tried. (O.E. un- with treg[ian], to trouble.)
 "The horse tries hard to draw the cart," i.e. uses great trouble to do so.
 "I will try to do better in future," i.e. I will use trouble to do so.
- Un-trimmed, -trīmd', not trimmed. (O.E. trum[ian], to amend.)
- Un-trodden, un.trōd'n (R. i.); untrōd', not past over (v. tread).
 O. E. un-treden, v. tred[an], past træd, past part. treden, tred a step.
- Un-troubled, ŭn.trūb'bld, not troubled. (French non troublé.)
- Un-true, ŭn.trū', not true; untrū'ly. Untrūth', untruth'ful, untruth'ful-ly, untruth'ful-ness. Truth'-less, -ly, -ness.
 Old English untrutw, untredw, or untryd, untredw untrue, ungetredwe or ungetrwe untrue.
- Un-trust'ed, not trusted; untrust'y, untrust'i-ness, untrust'ful, untrust'ful-ly, -ful-ness; untrust'worthy, -wū'.thē;
untrust'worthi-ly, untrust'worthi-ness.
Distrust', suspicion, want of confidence, to suspect, to doubt; distrust'-ed, distrust'-ing, distrust'ing-ly, dis- trust'-ful, distrust'ful-ly, distrust'ful-ness.
Mistrust', mistrust'-ed, mistrust'-er, mistrust'-ing.
 O. E. untredw, v. untredw[ian] to deceive, untréw[an] to distrust,
 Danish mistro mistrust, v. mistroe, mistroist mistrustful; tro trust.
- Un-truth', untruth'ful, &c. (See Untrue.)
- Un-tuned' (2 syl.), not tuned; untunable, -tū'nā.bl, unmusical;
-tu'nably, -tu'nable-ness. (Lat. tōnus, tune; Gk. tōnōs.)
- Un-tū'tored (3 syl.), not instructed. (From Lat. tutor, a tutor.)
- Un-twīne' (2 syl.), to untwist; untwined' (2 syl.), untwin'-ing.
 Old English un-twin[an], past -twīnde, past part. twīned.
- Un-twist', to unwind; untwist'-ed, -ing. (O.E. ungetwys[an].) ("Twist" should be twis. The t is abnormal, the verb being twys[an], and its root twý two, to twine two together.)
- Un-uni'ted, not united. Disunit' (3 syl.), to separate; dis-
uni'ted; disunit-ing, dis'.u.nī'.ting.
 Latin unītus, verb unīre (unus, one); French désunir.
- Un-used, ŭn.ūzed', not used. Unusual, ŭn.ū'.zū.āl, not customary; unn'sual-ly. Unuse-ful, ŭn.ūce'ful, not useful; unuse'ful-ly. Use-less, ūce'.less, of no use; use'- less-ly, useless-ness. In-util'ity, want of usefulness.
Disuse, (noun) dis.ūce', (verb) dis.ūze', to discontinue the use of; disused' (2 syl.); disus'-ing, dis.ū'.zing.
 Latin ūtor, ūsus to use, usūlis, inūtilis, inūtilitas.
- Un-uttered, ŭn.ūt'.trd, not uttered; unūt'ter-able, -ūt'terably.
 The verb is formed from the Ang.-Sax. prep. utan or uton, without, and means "to send out," hence to circulate, and to utter words.

Words with Un- negative and privative.

Un-valued, ŭn.vāl'.āde, not appreciated. Inval'nable, ·bly.

French non évalué; Latin vālĕre, to be worth.

Un-vanquished, ŭn.vān'.kwīshd, not conquered. Invin'cible, invin'cible-ness, invin'cibly, invincibil'ity.

Fr. invaincu, invincible, invincibilité; Lat. invincibilis, v. vincere.

Un-varied, ŭn.vair'rēd, not varied; unvary-ing, ŭn.vair'rī.ing.

Invariable, in.vair'rī.ā.bl; inva'riable-ness, inva'riably.

Fr. invariable; Latin vāriābilis, verb vāriāre, vārtus; Gk. aiōlōs.

Un-varnished, ŭn.var'.nīshd, not varnished. (Fr. non vernisse.)

Un-veil, ŭn.vail', to remove the veil; unveiled, ŭn.vaid'; unveil'-ing. (Fr. sans voile; Lat. vēlāre, vēlum.)

Un-ventilated, ŭn.vēn'.tī.lā.ted, not ventilated.

Un-, with Latin ventilāre (ventus, wind).

Un-vi'olated, not violated. Inviolable, in.vī'.ō.la.ble; invi'olate-ly, invi'olate-ness. Inviolable, in.vī'.ō.la.bl; -vi'olable-ness, -vi'olably, -violabil'ity. (Lat. inviolābilis, inviolātus, &c.)

Un-visited, ŭn.vīz'.īt.ed, not visited. (Lat. invisītātus, v. viso.)

Un-vitiated, ŭn.vīsh'.ā.ā.ted, not vitiated. (Lat. invitiātus.)

Un-void'-ed, not voided. Devoid'-of, without, deprived of.

Un-, with Fr. vuide, void; Lat. viduus; Gk. idios, separate, private.

Un-wakened, ŭn.wāke'.nd or un-awakened, ŭn'.a.wāke''.nd, not roused from sleep. (O. E. unawæcned or unawacod.)

Old Eng. wac[an], p. -ode, p. p. -od; wæcn[ian], p. -ede, p. p. -ed.

Un-walled, ·wawld', not walled. (O. E. unwealled or unwalled.)

Un-war-like, ŭn.wor'-like, not warlike. (Old Eng. un-wær-lic.)

Un-warned, ŭn.wornd', not warned. (Old Eng. un-warnod.)

Un-warp, ŭn.worp', to remove a bias; unwarped, unworpt', not warped, not biassed; unwarp-ing, ŭn.worp'.ing.

Formed from O. E. wearpa a cast, whence v. weorp[an] to cast, to warp.

Un-warrant-ed, ŭn.wōr'rān-ted, not warranted; unwarrantable, ŭn.wōr'rān.tā.bl; unwar'rantable-ness, unwar'rantably.

Un-, with Welsh gwarant a warrant, v. gwarantu. (Double a blunder.)

Un-wary, ŭn.wair'ry, not on the watch. Unweary, ŭn.wee'.ry, not fatigued. Unwari-ly, ŭn-wair'rī.ly, heedlessly; unwari-ness, ŭn.wair'rī.ness, heedlessness.

"Unwary," Old English unwærlic, unwary; unwærlice, unwarily.

"Unweary," O. Eng. unwærig, unwærignes or unwærines, v. wærig[an].

Un-washed, ŭn.wōsh't, not washed. (O. E. un-wæscen or un-a-.)

Un-watched, ŭn.wotcht', not watched; unwatch'-ful, -fully.

Old English unwæcced, verb wæccan; unwæcceā, unwatchful.

Un-watered, ŭn.wō[r]'.terd, not watered. (Old Eng. wæter.)

(No combination of letters will show the pronunciation of water, it is worter without the r, usually reproduced as waw'-ter.)

Words with Un- negative and privative.

- Un-wavering, ŭn.wā'.ver.ing, not wavering. (O. E. waftan.)
Un-weakened, ŭn.week'nd, not weakened. (O. E. unwācod.)
Un-weaned, ŭn.weend', not weaned. (Old English unwēned.)
Un-wear-able, ŭn.wāre'.ā.bl, not fit to wear. (O. E. werian.)
Un-weary, ŭn.wee'.ry, not fatigued; unweari-ly, ŭn.wee'.rī.ly; unwearied, ŭn.wee'.rēd; unwearied-ness, -wee'.rēd.ness;
 unweari-able, ŭn.wee'.rī.ā.bl; unweariably, -wee'.rī.ā.bly.
 Old Eng. unwērig, unge-wērigod, unwērignes, v. wērian or wērigan.
Un-weave, ŭn.weev', to undo what is woven. Un-woven, ŭnwō'vn, not woven. (O. E. un-wēf[an], p. p. unwefen.)
Un-wed', not married; unwedd'-ed. (O. E. unbeweddod.)
Un-weed'-ed, not weeded; unweed'y. (O. E. unweēdod.)
Un-weighed, ŭn.wāde', not weighed. (Old Eng. ungewegen.)
Un-welcome, ŭn.wēl'.kūm, not welcome; unwelcomed, *ŭn.wēl'.
 kūmd*; unwelcom-ing (Rule xix.), ŭn.wēl'.kūm.ing.
 Old Eng. un-wilcum[ian], past wilcumode, past part. wilcumod.
Un-well, not in good health. (Old Eng. un-wel or unwell.)
Un-wept', not wept. (O. E. unwepēn, v. wēp[an], past wēop.)
Un-whipt', not whipt. (Old Eng. un-hwēoped, v. hwēopan.)
Un-whole-some, -hōle'.sūm, not wholesome; unwhole'some-ly, unwhole'some-ness. (German unheilsam.)
Un-wieldy, ŭn.wēel'.dy, not wieldy; unwield'i-ly (Rule xi.), unwield'i-ness. (From the O. E. v. weald[an], to wield.)
Un-will'-ing, not willing; unwill'ing-ly, unwill'ing-ness.
 Old English ungewille, unwilles, unwillende, unwillum, &c.
Un-wind', to loosen or untwist what has been wound; unwind'-ing, unwound' (not ŭn-woond', a vulgarism).
 Old English unwīnd[an], past unwōdnd, past part. unwūnden.
 (The Anglo-Saxon ū had the sound of ou in "house," not oo.)
Un-winsome, ŭn.wīn'.sūm, not engaging. (O. E. unwīnsum.)
Un-wise, un.wīze', not wise; unwise'-ly; unwisdom, -wīz'.dūm.
 Old Eng. unwīs, unwīstlice, unwīsmes, unwīsdōm, or ungewīs, &c.
Un-withered, ŭn.withl'.rd, not withered; unwith'er-ing.
 Old English ungewitherod, ungewitherende, verb wither[ian].
Un-witnessed, ŭn.wīt'.nest, not witnessed. (O. E. wītnes.)
Un-wit'ting-ly, not intentionally. (Old English unwītende.)
Un-wit'ty, not witty; unwit'ti-ly. (O. E. ungewitfull or gewitt.)
Un-wom'an-ly, not in character with a woman; -wom'anly-ness, unwoman-like. (O. E. wīman, wīnman, or wūman.)
 (We have no vowel or combination of letters to express the ordinary pronunciation of the word "woman." It is neither woom-an, wō-man, wou-man, nor wum-an, and we have no other word of a corresponding sound. It lies between woo-man and wo-man.)

Words with Un- negative and privative.

Un-wont'-ed, not accustomed, unusual; unwont'-ed-ly, unwont'-ed-ness. (O. E. un-, with wuna or gewuna, custom.)

(The pronunciation of this word is very unsettled. Milton makes wont to rhyme with hunt, some pronounce the word wont like font, and others wōnt like don't, to distinguish it from want, "need.")

Un-wood'-ed, not wooded; unwood'y. (Old Eng. unwudulic.)

Un-wooded, -woo'd', not courted; unwoo'-ing. (O. E. unawōgod.)

("Wood" rhymes with good, stood, hood: "wooded" with foo'd, moo'd, roo'd. All double vowels, except -ue, are retained before -ing, but die, lie, tie, vie (not hie) change -ie into -y: as dy-ing, &c.)

Un-world-ly, ūn.wurld'.ly, not worldly; unworld'li-ness, unworld'y. (Old English woruld, weorold, or world.)

Un-worshipped, ūn.wur'.shipt, not adored. (O. E. wyrthe-scipe.)

(The double p in this word is a needless violation of Rule fii. The accent is on the wor'-, and not on the final syl. We spell gossiped, scalloped, developed, galloped, &c., with one -p, and "worship" is not a compound of ship, as out-step is a compound of "step.")

Un-worthy, ūn.wur'.thȳ, not worthy; unwor'thi-ness, -wor'thi-ly.

Old English unweorthlic, unwurthlice, unweorthnes or unwurthnes.

Un-wound, ūn.wōwnd (to rhyme with ground, found), untwisted.

Old Eng. unwūnded, verb wind[an], past wānd, past part. wūnden.

Un-wound-ed, un.woon'.ded (not un.wōwn'.ded), not injured.

Invul'nerable, not capable of being wounded; invul'nerable-ness, invul'nerably. (Old English unwūnloed.)

(Custom has ruled that wound (twisted) and wound (an injury) shall not be pronounced alike, the former is wōund and the latter woond. Without doubt both were originally pronounced alike (wōwund).

Un-wrap, un.rāp', to unfold; unwrapped, ūn.rapt'; -wrapp'-ing, Rule iii. (Friesland wrappe, to wrap.)

Un-wreath, ūn.reethe', to untwist a wreath; unwreathed, ūn.reethed'; unwreath'-ing. (O. E. wræth, a wreath.)

Un-wrench, ūn.rensh', to wrench apart; unwrenched, -rensh't', loosed by a strong twist. (Germ. verrenken, to wrench.)

Un-wrinkled, ūn.rīn'.kld, not wrinkled. (O. E. unwrinclede.)

Un-written, ūn.rīt'n, not written. (O. E. unwriten or -gewriten.)

Un-wrought, ūn.rawt', not wrought. (Old English unworht.)

The verb is wyre[an], p. worhte, p. p. ge-worht, corrupted into wroht. The interpolated g is a great error, as "g" before "th" ought to be restricted to abstract nouns from adj. ending in g, as "long," length.

Un-wrung, ūn.rung, not wrung. (Old English unwrunge.)

Un-yield-ed, ūn.yeel'.ded, not surrendered; unyield-ing, ūn.yeel'.ding. (Old Eng. gield[an], p. geald, p. p. golden.)

Un-yōke' (2 syl.), to remove a yoke; unyōked' (2 syl.), -ing.

O. Eng. uniuē[an], p. uniuēde, p. p. uniuēd, iuc a yoke; Lat. jūgum.

Vacant, vā'.kant. Emp'ty. Void (1 syl.)

Vacant, unoccupied, as a vacant seat in a theatre.

Empty, having nothing in it, as an empty box.

Void, destitute, as void of offence, void of amusements.

Va'cant-ly; vacancy, vā'.kăn.sy. Vacate, vā.kâte, to leave unoccupied; vācāt'-ed, vācāt'-ing; vacation, vā.kay'.shŭn, non-term time, school holiday-time.

Latin vācans genitive vācanlis, vācātio; vācāre, to be at leisure.

Vaccinate, vāk'.sī.nāte, to insert vaccine matter in the arm; vaccinat-ed, vāk'.sī.nā.ted; vac'cināt-ing, vac'cināt-or; vaccination, -sī.nay'.shŭn; vaccine [matter], vāk'.seen'.

Latin vaccīnus, vacca a cow; Hebrew B[a]K[a]R.

Vacillate, vās'.ā.lāte, to waver; vacillat-ed, vās'.ā.lā'ted; vacillat-ing, vās'.ā.lā.ting; vacillating-ly, vac'illāt-or; vacillation, vās'.ā.lay'.shun; vacillant, vās'.ā.lant.

Latin vācillans, genitive -antis, vācillātio, vācillātor, vācillāre.

Vacuum, plu. vacua, vāk'ku.ŭm, plu. vāk'ku.ah, a space from which even air has been driven out; in vacuo, vāk'ku.o.

Vacunist, vāk'ku.ist, one who thinks a perfect vacuum to be possible. Vacuity, vā.kŭ'.ī.ty. (Latin vacuus.)

Vade-mecum, vā'.dē mē'.kŭm, a manual for notes and references.

Latin vāde mecum, go with me; verb vado, to go.

Vagabond, vāg'.ā.bond, a vagrant; vag'abond-age, the unsettled state of a vagabond; vagabondism, vāg'.ā.bond.dīzm.

Latin vāgābundus, vāgāri to wander about; French vagabond.

Vagary, plu. vagaries, va.gair'riz, a whim. (Latin vāgāri.)

Va'grant, a vagabond; va'grant-ly; vagrancy, vā'.grăn.sy.

A blunder for vāgant, vāgāri incorrectly formed into vāg'r-ant.

Vague, vaig', indefinite; vague-ly, vaig'.ly; vague-ness.

French vague; Latin vāgus, sententia vaga a vague opinion.

Vail, Vale, Veil (all vāle). Veal, veel, the flesh of slain calves.

Vail, a fee given to a servant, a servant's perquisite.

Vale, a valley. Veil, a thin loose covering for the face.

"Vail," same as avail, profit. Fr. valoir, to be worth; Lat. valēre.

"Vale," Fr. val, Lat. vallis. "Veil," Lat. vēlum; Fr. voile.

Vain, Vane, Vein (all vain).

Vain, conceited, ineffectual; vain'-ly; in vain, to no purpose; vain-glo'ry, self-conceit; vain-glo'rious.

Vanity, plu. vanities, vān'.ī.tīz, silly conceit.

Vane, a weathercock. Vein, a blood-vessel.

"Vain," Fr. vain, en vain, vaine gloire, vanité; Lat. vānitas, vānus.

"Vane," Old Eng. fana, a flag. "Vein," Fr. veine, Lat. vēna.

Vair, a fur grey and white as that of the squirrel in northern countries (it was once used for the robes of civic magistrates), in Heraldry a series of small shields placed close together alternately blue and white; vair'y, charged with vair; vairy proper, argent and azure; vairy composed, when other colours are employed. (Fr. vair, Lat. varius.)

Valance, väl'ance, a piece of drapery for a bed or curtain, to furnish with a valance; valanced, väl'anced; val'anc-ing.

A corruption of velance, Latin vēlans, v. vēlare to veil or curtain. ("Valance," if derived from Valencia, is a gross blunder.)

Väle (1 syl.) Val'ley. Dale. Dell. (Vale, Veil. See Vail.)

Vale, a peaceful secluded valley, as the vale of life.

Valley, a pass between steepes of a wilder and more majestic character, as the valley of the shadow of death.

Dale, a short deep valley.

Dell, a modified dale, as vale is a modified valley.

"Vale," Fr. val. "Valley," Fr. vallée; Lat. vallis, v. vallāre to entrench. "Dale," Old Eng. dāl; Danish dal, verb dale to sink.

Valediction, väl'ē.dīk''shūn, a bidding farewell; val'edictory.

Latin valedico supine valedictum, to say farewell.

Valenciennes, väl'än'n.sē.ën (not väl'ën.seen''), as Valenciennes lace, lace made at Valenciennes, in France.

Valentine, väl'en.tine, a token sent to a young friend on St. Valentine's eve or day, Feb. 14th. (Fr. valentine.)

(Probably St. Valentine is an hypothetical saint formed from the Fr. word galantin (a dangler, a lover). If, however, the name is a real name, without doubt his speciality is due to the word referred to.)

Valentinite, va.lën'.tī.nite, a white oxide of antimony.

So named from Basil Valentine. (-ite denotes a mineral.)

Valerian, väl'lee'.rī.än, a garden plant; Valeria'na.

Said to be named after Valer'ius, a physician; but others think the word is from the Latin valere, "to be well," and that it is so named from its great medicinal virtues. Dr. Turner says: [Valerian] "hath beene had in such veneration, that no brothes, pottage, or physical meates are worth anything if this be not at one end."

Valet, val'la (Shakespeare has varlet, var'let, not now in use), a gentleman's personal servant. (French valet.)

Valetudinarian, väl'ē.tū'.dī.nair''rī.än, one of confirmed ill-health, sickly. (Lat. vāletudinārius, vāletūdo ill-health.)

Valhalla, väl'häl'.lah, the palace of immortality.

Icelandic valholl, hall of the slain (Scandinavian mythology).

Valiant, väl'yant, brave. (Fr. vaillant; Lat. vālēs, to be strong.)

(When the word vaillant was introduced in the epitaph of Turenne it was objected to as out of date. Certainly it is so badly formed from the Latin vālens gen. vālentis that it deserves to be so.)

Valid, väl'id, sound, not obsolete; val'id-ly; valid'ity, -i-ty.

Latin vālidus, vāliditas; French valide, vālidité.

Valise, vă.leece, a small leather travelling-case easily carried in the hand or as a knapsack. (French valise.)

Valley, plu. valleys (Rule xiii.), a low tract of land between hills or mountains. (Fr. vallée, Lat. vallis. See Vale.)

Valo'rem, as ad valo'rem, a sliding scale of duty on excisable goods regulated according to their selling-price.

Thus tea at 8s. a lb. would pay more than tea at 4s. a lb., &c.

Valour, văl'r, bravery; valorous, văl'ō.rūs; val'orously; valiant, văl'yant; val'iant-ly. (Fr. valeur, vaillant.)

Value, văl'ū, worth, to estimate; valued, văl'ude; val'u-ing (verbs in -ue drop the -e before affixes beginning with a vowel); val'u-able, val'uable-ness, val'uably; value-less, văl'ū.less; valuation, -a''shŭn; val'u-er or val'uator.

French évaluer, évaluation; Latin vālor price, v. vāleo to be worth.

Vālvē (1 syl.), a lid in machinery. Valvate, văl.vāte (in Bot.); vālvēd (1 syl.), furnished with a valve; vălv'vilar.

Safe'ty valve, a valve in a steam-engine to let off steam when its pressure is too great. (Lat. valvæ, folding doors)

Vămp, the upper leather of a shoe. To vamp up, to concoct.

A corruption of the Fr. avant or devant [de botte], devant de soulier.

Vampire, văm'pire, a South American bat, a blood-sucker, an extortioner, a demon supposed to suck human blood; vampirism, văm'pir.izm, extortion, plagiarism.

Fr. vampire; Germ. vampyr; Dan. vampire or flaggermus.

Văn, the front of an army. Rear, the back of an army.

Van-guard, troops which march in advance of an army.

Rear-guard, troops which march behind the main army.

Van-courier, van-coo'rĭ.er, one of the light-armed soldiers sent in advance of an army to see that the road is clear.

Van'foss, the outer ditch of a rampart.

Van, a light covered cart for the conveyance of goods, a light covered cart used as a movable dwelling.

"Van" (of an army), French avant, avant-garde, avant-coureur.

"Van" (a covered cart), Dan. vaaning a dwelling, vaaning-huus.

"Rear" (of an army), French arrière, arrière-garde.

Vandal, văn.dăl, one of the Vandăli of Northern Germany, one of barbarous taste, one who destroys or mutilates works of art; vandal'ic; van'dal-ism, an outrage against the usages of society or of good taste.

Vandyke, văn.dike', a collar scolloped according to those introduced in the portraits of Charles I. by Vandyke; to scollop after the manner of these collars; vandyked' (2 syl.); vandyk-ing, văn.dĭ.king.

Vane, Vain, Vein (all vain). Vūn, a light covered cart. (See Van.)

Vane, a thin plate of metal made to move freely on a staff to shew the direction of the wind, a weather-cock.

Vain, useless, ineffectual, conceited. (French vain.)

Vein, a blood-vessel. (French veine, Lat. vēna.)

"Vane," Old Eng. fana, a flag; Germ. fahne; Lat. pannus, a rag.

Vanilla, va.nīl'.lah, the pods or fruit of a South American plant.

Vanish, vān'.ish, to disappear imperceptibly; van'ished (2 syl.).

van'ish-ing. Vanishing-point, the point at which all the lines of a drawing in the same plane converge.

Latin vanesco, to vanish (-sc- inceptive, meaning "more and more").

Vanity, plu. vanities, vān'.ī.tiz. (See Vain.)

Vanquish, vān'.kwish, to conquer; van'quished (2 syl.), van'-quish-ing, van'quish-er, vanquish-able.

French vaincre, vainqueur; Latin vincere, to conquer.

Van'tage (2 syl.) Van'tage-ground, a position which gives the holder an advantage over others. (French avantage.)

Vapid, vāp'.id, flat, insipid, spiritless; vap'id-ly, vap'id-ness; vapidity, vā.pīd'.ī.ty. (Latin vāpīditas, vāpīdus.)

Vapour, vā'.por, the gas into which liquids and many solids may be converted by heat. The vapours, meagrimis; va'pour-er, one who prates tediously about his own merits; va'pour-ing; va'pour-ish, inclined to "the vapours."

Vapour-ous, vā'.po.rus; va'pour-bath; va'poury, -rj.

(The following omit the "n" of "vapour.")

Vaporise, vā'.pō.rize, to convert to vapour; va'porised (3 syl.), va'poris-ing. Vaporisation, vā'.po.rī.zay''shūn.

French vapeur, vaporisation, vaporiser, vapoureux; Latin vāpor, vāporōsus. (One of the 19 words in "our." See p. 769.)

Variable, vair'rī.ā.bl; variable-ness, variably. (See Vary.)

Varicose, vār'.rī.kōse. Verrucose, ver'ru.kōse, warty.

Varicose veins, ...vains, veins in a chronic state of dilatation, veins swollen with dark-coloured blood.

"Varicose," Lat. varix gen. varicis, a vein swollen with black blood;

Fr. variqueux. "Verrucose," Lat. verrucōsus, full of warts.

Variegate, vair'rī.e.gāte, to diversify with different colours; variegat-ed, vair'rī.e.gā''ted; variegat-ing (Rule xix.)

Variegation, vair'rī.e.gay''shūn; variegat-or (R. xxxvii.)

Lat. variēgātus, v. variēgāre, vārlus; Gk. arōlōs, changeful of hue.

Variety, plu. varieties, vā.rī'.ē.tiz. Diversity, dī.ver'.sī.ty.

Variety, change in the same thing or sort of things.

Diversity, change from one thing to something different.

We speak of the variety of the seasons, the variety of flowers or colours in a garden, the variety of articles in a collection. But we say a diversity of opinions, a diversity of amusements.

Latin variētās, diversitās. (See Vary.)

Variola, va.rí.ô.lah (not va.ri.ô'.lah), small-pox; vari'olar, pertaining to small-pox. Variolite, va.rí.ô.líte, the small-pox stone (-ite, a fossil or mineral, Gk. lithos, the "1" being absorbed); vari'olit'ic, adj. of variolite. Varioloid, và.rí.ô.loíd, a disease resembling small-pox (-oid, Gk. eidos, like); variolus, va.rí.ô.lūs (not va.rí.ô'.lūs) adj.

Latin variola, small-pox; French variole, variolite, varioloïde.

Var'let, a scoundrel; var'letry, the mob, the rabble. (Fr. valet.)

Var'nish, a liquid to give a glossy surface, to cover with varnish; var'nished (2 syl.), var'nish-ing, var'nish-er.

French vernis, vernissier, vernisserieur; Low Latin vernix.

Vary, vair'ry, to diversify; varies, vair'riz; varied, vair'red; var'ied-ly; vary-ing, vair'ry-ing; varying-ly; variable, vair'ri.ă.bl; var'iable-ness, var'riably.

Variables (plu.), vair'ri.ă.blz, the zone of calms formed by the trade-winds each side of the equator. Variabil'ity.

Variance, vair'ri.ă.nse, difference. At variance, at enmity.

Variation, vair'ri.ă.shūn. Variation of the compass.

Variety, plu. varieties, va.rí.ě.líz, an intermixture of different things of the same general character (see above, Variety), in Science a subordinate division of a species.

Various, vair'ri.ūs, diverse; various-ly.

Fr. varier, variable, variabilité, variation, variété; Lat. vāriābilis, vārians gen. -antis, vāriāntia, vāriātio, vāriētas, vāriāre, vārius; Gk. aiōlōs, of different hues.

Vascular, vās'.ku.lar, consisting of vessels, containing vessels.

Vascularity, vās'.ku.lār'.rī.ty. Vas'cular sys'tem, ...tissue.

Lat. vascūlarius; Fr. vasculaire (Lat. vas gen. vāsis, a vessel).

Vase, vawz (not vāze nor vāhz), an ornamental vessel made of china, &c.; vase-shaped, vawz'-shāpt; vasiform, vā'.zi.form. (Latin vas genitive vāsis; French vase.)

Vassal, vās'.sl, one holding land under a feudal lord, a bondsman; vas'sal-age, the condition of a vassal; vas'sal-ry, the whole body of vassals, vassals collectively considered.

Germ. vasall; Fr. vassal, vasselage; Low Latin vassalus, vasseleria.

Vast (to rhyme with fast, blast, not with hast, bombast), of great extent; vast'ly, -ness, vast'y. (Fr. vasté, Lat. vastus.)

-ast has four distinct sounds: "a" as in fāther, "a" as in fīn, "a" as in stomach, and "a" as in warm.

1. āst (father): agħast, blast, cast, fast, last, mast, past, vast.

2. āst (fan): bombast, contrast, enthusiast, hast, scholiast.

3. ast (stomach): ballast, mainmast (almost = ust).

4. ast (warm): wast (= wost).

Vāt, a large vessel for holding liquids: as a brewer's vat, a tanner's vat. (Old Eng. fæt; Lat. vas; Dutch vat.)

Vatican, văt'î.kăn, the Pope's palace in Rome, hence "from the Pope": as thunders from the Vatican (papal anathemas).

The "Vatican" stands at the foot of the Vatican hill.

Vaudeville, vōde'.vil (not vō'.de.veel), a dramatic piece intermingled with satirical and comic songs; vaudevillist, vōde'.vil.ist. (French vaudeville, vaudevilliste.)

A corruption of Val de Vire, in Old Fr. Vau de Vire, the native valley of Oliver Basselin, who invented the vaudeville.

Vault, a cellar, a repository of the dead, an arch, to leap; vault'-ed, vault'-ing, vault'-er. Volt, a movement in fence. (French volte.)

"Vault" (a cellar, &c.), Fr. voulte now voûte; Ital. volla; Lat. volūtus.

"Vault" (to leap), Fr. voltiger; Ital. voltare; Lat. volvo sup. volūtum.

Vaunt, to boast; vaunt'-ed, vaunt'-ing, vaunt'ing-ly, vaunt'-er.

The pronunciation of this word and five others spelt in a similar way is not fixed. Some make all the words rhyme with aunt, avaunt, jaunt, but others prefer the o sound, as in cause, pause. The doubtful words are daunt, flaunt, gaunt, haunt, taunt, vault.

Vavisor, vāv'.a.sor, a mesne-lord or mediate vassal: that is, one who holds lands of an immediate or crown vassal.

Suppose Duke A holds land "immediately" for military service to the crown, and lets off a part to B for similar service to himself, then B is a vavisor or country squire, but not a peer.

The Germans call a vavisor an Afterlehensherr, i.e. a sub-holder or under-tenant. Low Latin vavisor, vavasoria the holding of a vavisor; French vasasseur, avassie an arrière-fief.

Veal, veel, the flesh of a slain calf.

French veau, now veau; Spanish vitela; Latin vitulus.

Veda, vee'.dah, one of the four books said to have been revealed by Brahma. The vedas consist chiefly of prayers, precepts, and parables. (Sansk. veda knowledge, vid to know.)

The four vedas are (1) The Rig veda; (2) The Yajur veda; (3) The Sama veda; and (4) The Atharva veda.

Vedette, vē.del', an outpost, a sentry stationed at an outpost.

French vedette; Italian vedetta, vedere to see; Latin vidēre.

Veer, to shift as the wind; veered (1 syl.), veer'-ing, -ing-ly.

French virer; Italian virare; Latin variāre, to vary.

Vegetable, vedg'.ē.tā.bl, an esculent plant, a plant of any kind.

The Vegetable kingdom, the second of natural objects.

The 1st is the Animal Kingdom, which includes all organised bodies which live, grow, feel, and have the power of voluntary motion.

The 2nd, the Vegetable Kingdom, includes all organised bodies which live and grow, but have no power of voluntary motion.

The 3rd is the Mineral Kingdom, which includes all inorganic bodies.

Vegetate, vedg'.ē.tate, to live like a vegetable; veg'etat-ed; vegetat-ing, vedg'.ē.tā.ting. Vegetative, vedg'.ē.tā.tiv.

Vegetation, vedg'.ē.tay'.shūn. Vegetarian, -ē.tair'ri.ăn; vegetarian-ism, -izm. Vegetal, vedg'.ē.tāl, adj.

Vegeto-, vedg'.e.to-, the prefix, as veg'eto-al'kālī, -animal, &c.

French végétale, végéter, végétation, végétatif, végétal; Latin végētābilis, végētatio, végētāre (végère, vēges fresh).

Vehement, vě'.hě.ment (not ve.hee'.ment), impulsive, eager, driving; ve'herent-ly; vehemence, -mense; ve'hemency.

Lat. věhēmens gen. -mentis, věhēmentia (věhor, to be carried forward).

Vehicle, vě'.ĭ.kl, a carriage of any sort, a medium, a substance in which medicine is mixed; vehicular, ve.hĭk'kū.lar, adj.

Latin věhicŭlum, věhicŭlāris (věho, to carry).

Veil, Vale (both vāle). Veal, veel, the flesh of a slain calf.

Veil, a thin transparent mantle worn by women over the face, to conceal with a veil; veiled, vāled; veil-ing, vā'.ling.

Vale, a valley. (French val, Latin vallis.)

"Veil," French voile; Latin vēlum, verb vēlāre (a velleribus, quod ex lana fiat, Varro). "Veal," French vēel, now veau.

Vein, Vane, Vain (all vain). Vān, a light covered cart.

Vein, one of the vessels of the animal body which convey the blood back to the heart; (in Geol.) a fissure traversed by mineral or metallic matter: as copper, coal, &c.; to give the appearance of veins by paint, &c.; veined, vaind; vein-ing, vā'.ning; vein-less, vain'-less; vein-y, vā'-ny.

Venous, vě'.nūs, pertaining to the veins, as venous system.

"Vein," Latin vēna; Fr. veine. "Vain," Fr. vain, Latin vānus.

Vellum, vě'l'.lŭm, a kind of parchment prepared from the skins of lambs, calves, kids, &c.; vellumy, vě'l'.lŭm.y.

Fr. velin, from the Latin vītŭllinus, vītŭlus a calf; Span. vitela.

Velocipede, ve.lŏs'.ĭ.peed, a dandy-horse now quite superseded by the bicycle. (Lat. vēlox gen. vēlocis, pes gen. pēdis.)

Velocity, plu. velocities, ve.lŏs'.ĭ.tĭz, rate of motion, rapidity; but Villosity, vĭl.lŏs'.ĭ.ty, hairiness of plants, &c.

"Velocity," Latin vēlŏcĭtas, vēlox gen. vēlocis swift; Fr. vēlocité.

"Villosity," French villosité; Latin villus, nap, shag.

Vel'vet, a fabric with a soft pile on one side; vel'vet-y, vel'vet-ing. Velveteen, vě'l'.vē.teen', an imitation velvet.

Italian velluto; French velours; Latin vellus, a fleece of wool.

Venal, vě'nāl. Mercenary, mer'.se.nā.ry. (See Venial.)

Venal, open to a bribe, willing to sell one's independence for money; ve'nal-ly; venality, ve.nāl'.ĭ.ty.

Mercenary, fond of money, doing no service without payment; mercenari-ly, mer'.sě.něrry.ly.

A mercenary man expects to be paid for what he does, but is not necessarily venal. He may be the very opposite.

"Venal," Lat. vēnālis, vēnālitas. "Mercenary," Lat. mercenārius.

Venary, vee'.nā.ry, sports of the chase. (Venery is quite wrong.)

Latin vēnāri, to hunt, whence vēnātor, vēnātorĭus. The Fr. vénérie should mean "licentiousness," from Latin venerēus (Venus).

Vend, to sell; vend'-ed, vend'-ing; vend'-er, one who sells.

Vend'-or (in Law), the person who sells;

Vendee' (in Law), the person to whom it is sold.

Vend'-ible, vend'ible-ness, vend'ibly, vendibil'ity.

Latin vendere to sell, vendibilis; French vendre, vendable (!!).

Veneer, ve.neer', a thin outside coat of handsome wood laid over an inferior kind, to veneer; veneered' (2 syl.), veneer'-ing. (German furnier, furnieren, to inlay.)

Venerate, věn'.ě.rate, to reverence; ven'erāt-ed (Rule xxxvi.), ven'erāt-ing (Rule xix.) Veneration, věn'.ě.ray''shŭn; venerable, věn'.ě.ră.bl; ven'crable-ness, ven'erably.

Latin veneratio, veneratus, venerari; French vénération.

Venereal, ve.nee'.rě.ăl, aphroditical; venery, vee'.ne.ry.

Latin venerēus (Venus or Aphroditē, goddess of love).

Venesection, vě'.ne.sěk''shŭn, phlebotomy. (Lat. venæ-sectio.)

Venetian, vě.nee'.shě'an, a native of Venice, adj. of Venice; venetian-blind, a window-blind made of thin splints of wood moved by a cord. Venetian window, a main-window with a smaller one on each side; venetian-talc, ste'atite (3 syl.) used for pastels.

Vengeance, věn'.djăn'ce, revenge; venge'-ful (2 syl.), venge'-ful-ly. To do a thing with a vengeance, to do it with vehemence. (French vengeance, Latin vindicāre.)

Venial, vee'.nĭ.ăl. Venal, vee'.nal.

Venial, pardonable, hence trifling. Venal, mercenary; ve'nial-ly, ve'nial-ness. Venial-sin, a sin which does not "quench the spirit"; mortal sin, sin which does "quench the spirit"; ve'nal-ly, mercenarily; venal'ity.

"Venial," Latin venialis (venta, pardon); French véniel (wrong).

"Venal," Latin venalis (vendo, to sell); French vénel.

Venison, věn'.ă.zn, the flesh of deer. (Fr. venaison, Lat. venatio.)

Venite exultemus, vě.nĭ'.tě ex'.ăl.tee''.mŭs (not vě'.nĭ'.tě ex'.ăl'.tě.mŭs), "O come, let us sing unto the Lord."

Venom, věn'.ôm, poison; venomous, věn'.ôm.ŭs, adj.; ven'om-ous-ly, ven'omous-ness. (Welsh gwenwyn.)

Venous, vě'.nŭs, pertaining to the veins. Ve'nus, goddess of love.

Venous system, the vein system of an animal body.

Vein, vain, a blood-vessel; vein'-y, vein'-less.

Latin venōsus, vēna; French veineux, veine.

Vent, a small aperture through which air can pass. To give vent to, to suffer to escape, to indulge. Ventail, vent'.ale, the visor of a helmet. Vent'-hole, a small aperture to let out air, the touch-hole of a gun. Vent'-peg, the peg or spile for stopping the vent-hole of a cask. Ventage, ven'.tage, a finger-hole of a wind-instrument.

French vente, ventail; Latin ventus, wind; Old English wind.

Ventilate, věn'.tī.lāte, to supply with fresh air, to moot a subject; ven'tilāt-ed (R. xxxvi.), ven'tilāt-ing (R. xix.), ven'tilāt-or (R. xxxvii.) Ventilation, věn'.tī.lay'.shūn.

Latin ventilatio, ventilatus, ventilator, ventilare (ventus, wind).

(This is one of those words which have been recently resuscitated, especially in the sense of "ventilating a question," i.e. eliciting from the public the pros and cons on the subject.)

Ven'trāl, pertaining to the belly, abdominal; (in Botany) that part of the carpel nearest the axis; ven'tricose, -kōse.

Ventricle, věn'.trī.kl, a small cavity in the heart. The right and left ventricles propel the blood into the arteries; ventricular, věn'.trīk'kū.lar. Ventriculite, -trīk'kū.lite, a fossil zoophyte. Ven'tricous, ven'.trī.kus.

Ven'ter (in Anatomy), the belly, the abdomen.

Latin venter, ventriculus; French ventricule, ventral.

Ventriloquism, věn.trīl'.o.kwīzm, the art of speaking as if the words did not proceed from the speaker. Ventriloquist, věn.trīl'.o.kwīst. Ventriloquise, věn.trīl'.ō.kwīze, to practise ventriloquism; ventril'oquised (4 syl.); ventriloquising, věn.trīl'.o.kwī.zing.

Latin ventriloquus, speaking from the abdomen. This, of course, is an error, as the voice proceeds from the mouth and throat.

Venture, věn'.tchūr, a speculation, a hazard, the thing to be put to hazard, to venture; ventured, věn'.tchūrd; ventur-ing, věn'.tchūr-ing (Rule xix.), ventur-er, věn'.tchūr.er. Venture-some, věn'.tchūr.sum; ven'turesome-ness. Ventur-ous, věn'.tchūr.ūs; ven'turous-ly, ven'turous-ness. (French aventure, aventurer, aventureux.)

Venue, ven'nū (in Law), the neighbourhood in which a wrong is committed and in which it should be tried. To change the venue, to change the place of trial from the locality elsewhere, to change the stand-point of an argument.

Norm.-Fr. visne; Lat. vicinium, neighbourhood; Low Lat. visnetum.

Venus, Venous (both vee'nūs).

Venus, goddess of love. Venous, pertaining to the veins.

"Venus," Latin Venus. "Venous," Latin venōsus, vena a vein.

Veracious, ve.ray'.shūs, true, observant of truth; -ly, -ness.

Veracity, ve.rās'.ī.ty. (Lat. vērācitas, vērax gen. vērācis.)

All adj. from those of -x (in Latin) make -ious not -eous: as "rapax," rapacious; "præcox," precocious; "ferox," ferocious; "salix," salicious; "judex," judicious, &c.

Veranda, ve.rān'.dah, a balcony. (Fr. vérande, Port. veranda.)

Verb, (in Gram.) one of the parts of speech. Its object is to vitalise a sentence by stating the purpose for which the "subject" is introduced.

The sun [shines]. The birds [sing]. Charles I. [was beheaded]. [Go work] to-day in my vineyard, i.e. Thou, my son, [go-work].

Active Verb, i.e. of the "Active Voice," or in which the "subject" actuates the verb: as David slew Goliath.

Cau'sative Verb. An intransitive verb denoting that the subject caused the action of the verb: as

I ran a thorn into my finger, i.e. I was the cause that a thorn ran into my finger.

Desid'erative Verb. An intransitive verb denoting desire or want.

Dimin'utive Verb. An intransitive verb denoting a tendency in the "subject" to become less and less.

Frequen'tative Verb. An intransitive verb denoting that the action of the verb is frequently repeated.

Imper'sonal Verb. A verb (transitive or intransitive) used only in the third person singular: as

It rains, it snows, it irks me, methinks (i.e. it seems to me).

Incept'ive Verb. An intransitive verb denoting a constant tendency in the "subject" to become more and more.

Intran'sitive Verb. A verb which has a "subject" but no "object": as Water freezes. The sun shines. I run.

Neu'ter Verb. Same as "Intransitive Verb" (q.v.)

Passive Verb, i.e. of the "Passive Voice," the "subject" being passive or acted on: as "Goliath was slain by..."

Recip'rocal Verb. A transitive verb in which the gist of the verb applies equally to both "subject" and "object": as

They love each other, i.e. A loves B and B loves A.

Reflex'ive Verb. A transitive verb in which the "subject" and "object" refer to the same person or thing: as Thou hast undone thyself. He threw himself on the grass.

He keeps * aloof from danger, i.e. He keeps himself aloof....

Tran'sitive Verb. A verb which requires an "object" as well as a "subject." (See Intransitive.)

God created [what?] all things. I buy [what?] books.

Verbal, ver'bāl, uttered by word of mouth, not written down; ver'bal-ly; ver'bal-ism, -izm; ver'bal-ist.

Verbalise, ver'bāl.ize, to convert into a verb, to supply the verb required; ver'balised (3 syl.); verbalis-ing, -izing.

Verbatim, -bā'tīm, word for word. Verba'tim et litera'tim.

Verbiage, ver'bī.age, superabundance of words.

Verbose, -bōse', too full of words, too wordy; ver'bose-ly, verbose'-ness. Verbosity, ver.bōs'ī.ty.

Verbum sap, a hint is enough. (Latin verbum sapienti.)

Verbum sat (Latin), a hint is enough if you are wise.

Latin verbum, verbōsus, verbālis ("quod aurem verberet," Papius).

"Verbum" means a word, and a verb is only a noun with a pronoun affixed. Thus the verb am is the noun as existence combined with m = of me, as-m contracted into a'm.

Verbena, ver.bee'.nah, a genus of garden plants, vervain.

A corruption of the Latin herba-bona the good herb, in Greek hierobolané, the sacred herb, used in sacred rites by the Druids also.

Ver'dant, green, flourishing, inexperienced, gullible; ver'dant-ly, ver'dancy. Verdure, -djür, greenness; verdured, -djürd.

French verdoyant, verdure; Latin viridans gen. viridantis, viréo.

Ver'dict, the judgment given to the judge by the jury, a decision.

French verdict; Latin vere dictum, truly pronounced, justly said.

Verdigris, ver'.di.gris (not ver'.di.grease); di-acetate of copper, carbonate of copper. (French verd-de-gris, green-grey.)

Ver'diter, a bluish-green pigment. (Fr. verde-terre, green earth.)

Verge (1 syl.), a wand, the brink or rim, to tend towards, to approach; verged (1 syl.), verg'-ing (R. xix.) Verg'-er, a wand-bearer, a petty officer in courts and churches.

Ample room and verge, sufficient room and margin also.

"Verge" (a rod), French verge; Latin virga, a twig or wand.

"Verge" (to approach), Latin vergere, to incline towards.

(Verge (the wand) ought to be virge. The error is French.)

Verify, věr'ri.fy, to authenticate, to prove; verifies, věr'ri.fize; verified, věr'ri.fide; ver'ify-ing, ver'ifi-er, ver'ifi-able.

Verification, věr'ri.fī.kay''shūn, proof, authentication.

Fr. vérifier, vérification; Latin verum-ficio [facio], to make true.

Verisimilar, věr'ri.sīm''ī.lar, likely, probable; verisimilitude, věr'ri.sī.mīl''ī.tūde. (Latin verisimilitudo, verisimilis.)

Verity, plu. verities (R. xlv.), věr'ri.tīz, a moral truth; veritable, věr'ri.tū.bl; ver'itably. (Latin vēritas, vērūs true.)

Verjuice, ver'jūse, an acid liquor expressed from unripe fruit.

Fr. verjus, corruption of vert jus, green juice. Our word is a hybrid.

Vermicelli, ver'.mī.sěl''ly (not vair'.mē.chěl''ly), a stiff paste made of fine wheat into worm-like threads.

Ital. vermicelli. Lat. vermicūlus, a little worm; vermis, a worm.

Vermicular, ver.mīk'kū.lar, like a worm, pertaining to worms; vermiculate, ver.mīk'kū.late, to inlay so as to resemble the tracks of a worm; vermic'ulāt-ed (R. xxxvi.), vermic'ulāt-ing (R. xix.); vermiculation, -mīk'ku.lay''shūn.

Vermicule, ver'.mī.kūle, a little worm. Vermic'ulous, -lūs.

Vermiculite, ver.mīk'kū.lite, a short worm-track on certain sandstones (-ite, a fossil, Greek lithos, the l is absorbed).

Ver'miform. (Latin vermicūlāris, vermicūlōsus, vermis.)

Vermifuge, -mī.fūge, a medicine to expel worms; vermifugal, ver.mīf'.ū.gāl. (Fr. vermifuge; Latin vermis fugo.)

Vermilion (only one l), ver.mīl'.yūn, a brilliant scarlet, to colour with vermilion; vermilioned, -mīl'.yūnd; vermil'ion-ing.

French vermillon (double l); Italian vermiglione; Latin vermillum.

Ver'min (sing. and plu.), all sorts of small noxious animals.

Vermination, -mĭ.nay'.shŭn, breeding of vermin or worms.

Vermiparous, ver.mĭp'.ă.rŭs, producing worms. (Obs. -pa-.)

Vermivorous, ver.mĭv'.ă.rŭs, feeding on worms. (Obs. -vo-.)

French vermine; Latin vermĭnatio, vermĭnōsus, vermis a worm.

Vernacular, ver.năk'kŭ.lar, native, pertaining to the country of one's birth. Vernac'ular tongue, -tung, one's native language. Vernac'ular-ly.

Vernacular id'iom. Vernacular disease, an endemic disease.

Latin lingua vernăcula; vernăcŭlus, a domestic.

Ver'nal, pertaining to spring; ver'nal-ly. Vernation, -shŭn, (in Bot.) the arrangement of the leaves in the leaf-buds.

Ver'nal equinox, -e'.kwĭ.nox, about March 21st, when the sun crosses the equator for his northern course.

Latin vernālis, vernālio, ver spring; Greek ear, spring.

Vernier, ver'.nĭ.er, a sliding index for measuring very minute spaces in a scale (device of Pierre Vernier, Brussels, 1631).

Veronica, ve.ron'.i.ka, the plant called speedwell. The maiden who handed her handkerchief to our Lord on his way to Calvary. The handkerchief used by our Lord and preserved at St. Peter's in Rome.

Of course, the saint so called, and the handkerchief, are Roman Catholic traditions, but the handkerchief is said to retain a photograph of the Saviour's face miraculously impressed on it.

"Veronica" (the flower), Latin veronica for Pheronica; Greek phĕro nĭké (I bring victory), alluding to its efficacy in subduing diseases.

"Veronica" (the handkerchief), Latin vera-icōnica, a true likeness. The name itself is quite sufficient to throw discredit on the story.

Verrucose, ver'rŭ.kōse. Varicose, var'rĭ.kōse.

Verrucose, warty; (in Botany) covered with excrescences; verruculos, ver'rŭ.ku.lōse, having minute warts.

Varicose veins, veins swollen with black blood.

"Verrucose," Lat. verrucōsus, verrŭca a wart, verrŭcula a little wart.

"Varicose," Latin varicōsus, noun varicus, verb varico to straddle.

Versatile, ver'.să.tile, variable, unsteady.

Versatile genius, a mind of numerous talents.

Versatile disposition, dis.pō.zĭsh'un, a changeable ...

Vers'atile-ly. Versatility, ver'.sa.tĭl''ĭ.ty.

Latin versātilis, v. versāre to shift about; Fr. versatile, versatilité.

Verse (1 syl.), poetry, a paragraph division of a chapter in the Bible. Versify, ver'.sĭ.fy, to make verses; versifies, ver'.sĭ.fize; versified, ver'.sĭ.fide; ver'sify-ing; versifi'er, ver'.sĭ.fĭ.er. Versification, ver'.sĭ.fĭ.kay'.shŭn.

Versicle, ver'.sĩ.kĩ, a short prayer said in alternate sentences by the minister and people: as

Min. O Lord, shew thy mercy upon us. Peo. And grant us thy salvation. Min. O God, make clean our hearts within us. Peo. And take not thy Holy Spirit from us.

Blank Verse, English poetry without rhyme.

Latin versus, versificatio, versi-ficio [făcio], to versify.

(Ezra vii. 21 contains every letter of the English alphabet. Zephaniah iii. 8 every letter of the Hebrew alphabet, including finals.)

Versed, verst, skilled, thoroughly acquainted with. Versed in.

Versed sine, (in Trig.) that part of the diameter which is intercepted between the sine and the extremity of the arc.

Lat. versor, to be skilled; Fr. versé. "Versed sine," Lat. verto sup. versum. The versed sine is at right angles to the sine  thus if A B is the sine, B C (part of the diameter) is the versed sine.

Versi-coloured, ver'.si.kũ'lerd, parti-coloured. (Lat. versicōlor.)

Version, ver'.shũn, a translation or rendering of a book or passage from one language to another, a statement. (Lat. versio.)

Verst, a Russian mile. (Russian versta.)

The Russian mile or verst is 1167 yards. An Eng. mile is 1760 yards. The Roman miliäre was 1618 yards, the Italian miglio is 2894 yards. The Greek milion was 1349 yards, the German meile is 8239 yards. The Norwegian mile is 12,121 yards, the Swedish mile 11,067 yards.

Ver'sus (generally written and printed v.) in legal documents, as A. B. (plaintiff) v. C. D. (defendant), that is, [this suit is an action of A. B.] against [C. D.] (Lat. versus, against.)

Vertebra, plu. vertebræ, ver'.tẽ.brah, plu. ver'.tẽ.bree, the spine or back-bone. Vertebre, ver'.tẽ.ber, a spinal bone.

Cau'dal vertebræ, the bones in the tail of an animal.

Cer'vical vertebræ, the spinal column along the neck.

Dor'sal vertebræ, the spinal column along the back.

Lum'bar vertebræ, the spinal column along the loins.

Vertebral, ver'.tẽ.brũl, adj. of vertebra. Vertebrate, ver'.tẽ.brũte, having a back-bone; ver'tebrat'-ed.

Vertebrata, ver'.te.bray''.tah, the scientific name for all animals which have a spinal-column. Those which have none (as oysters, worms, &c.) are in'-vertebrata.

Lat. vertebra, vertebrātus, (verto to turn) the pivot-bones of the body.

Ver'tex, plu. vertices, ver'.tĩ.seez, the tip-top point or extreme summit of any towering object, the crown of the head, the point of a triangle opposite the base.

Vertical, ver'.tĩ.kũl, adj. of vertex, perpendicular, over-head.

Vertical and horizontal are at right angles to each other. A horizontal line thus —; a vertical line thus |.

The sun is vertical, i.e. overhead. Vertical angles, the angles made by two lines crossing each other, as X.

Vertical-ly, ver'tical-ness. Vertical circle, ...ser'.kĩ, a great circle passing through zenith and nadir (the meridian of any place is a vertical circle), an azimuth.

Latin vertex, plu. vertices; French vertical, ill-formed from vertex.

Verticil, ver'.tī.sil, (in Botany) a whorl; verticillate, ver.tīs'.-il.lāte, arranged in whorls or like the spokes of a wheel.

Verticillaster, ver'.tī.sil.lās''.ter, a false whorl.

Latin verticillus, diminutive of vertex gen. verticis; Fr. verticille.

Vertigo, plu. vertigoes (Rule xlii.), ver.tee'.gōze, giddiness, swimming of the head. Vertiginous, ver.tidg'.ī.nūs; vertiginously. (Latin vertigo, vertiginōsus.)

Ver'vain (2 syl.), a plant, a species of verbe'na. (Fr. verveine.)

A corruption of herba bona, the good herb, in Gk. hiēro-bōtanē, the sacred herb, because used in sacrifice. Even the Druids used it.

Very, vēr'ry (adj. and adv.), exceedingly, actual: as very God and very man. Veri-ly, -rī.ly, in truth, certainly. (Lat. vērē.)

VERY PLEASED or VERY MUCH PLEASED (?).

"Much" applies to quantity or amount, but not to number, and can be applied only to those verbs or participles capable of degrees in quantity, intensity, or amount. As pleased, tired, vexed, wretched, &c., are of this nature, we can say "very tired" or "very much tired," "very pleased" or "very much pleased." "Finished," on the other hand, is not capable of these degrees, and therefore we say "he is a very finished gentleman," not "a very much...."

Ves'per, the name given to the planet Venus when she appears after sunset. Ves'pers, the evening service of the Church of Rome. Sicilian Vespers, sī.sil'.ī.ān...., Easter eve, 1282, when the French in Sicily were massacred at the toll of the Vesper bell. Vespertine, ves'.per.tīn, adj.

Lat. vesper, vespertinus; Gk. Hespērōs (hespōmai, to follow [the sun]).

Ves'sel, a utensil for holding something, a tube of the animal body to convey or secrete humours, a tube for the circulation of sap of plants, a ship. Blood-vessel. Sap-vessel.

(The spelling of vessel is very erroneous, it should be vascel or vasclē.)

Latin vascūlum, a small vessel (vas, a vessel); Italian vascello.

Vest, a waistcoat, material for a waistcoat. Vest'ed, put into some "security," entrusted to, resident in.

Vest'ment, an outer garment. Vesture, ves'.tehūr, clothing.

To vest in, to put [money] into some "security," to confide to.

To vest with, to put on another a robe of office, to commit the insignia of office to. (Lat. vestis, vestio to clothe.)

Vesta, ves'.tah, the goddess of home, a match ignited by friction, one of the minor planets. Vestal virgin, one of the six priestesses of Vesta. Vestal, chaste. (Lat. vesta, vestālis.)

Vestibule, ves'.tī.būle, a porch or entrance opening into the hall; vestib'ular, adj. (Lat. vestibūlum, vesta the hearth.)

Vestige, vēs'.tidge, a remnant, a mark or trace left behind.

Latin vestigium, v. vestigo to seek by foot-marks; French vestige.

Vestry, plu. vestries (R. xlii.), věs'.tríz, a room attached to a church or chapel for the minister's private convenience and for parish meetings, a committee of parish officers.

A select vestry, a part of a vestry selected from the rest to form a committee and report to the general body.

Vestry-man, plu. ...men; vestry-board, vestry-clerk.

(-y- is not changed to -i- in agglutinated compounds, as when words like the following are added: -ball, -bird, -clerk, -day, -face, -fold, -free, -guard, -hood, -horse, -like, -love, -man, -maid, -ship, &c.)
Lat. vestiārium (vestis, a robe); Gk. esthos (ennumi, to put on).

Ves'ture, -tchūr, a robe, a dress. (Fr. vesture now vêtur.) v. Vest.

Vesuvian, ve.sü'.vř.ăn, adj. of Vesu'vius a volcano near Naples; a mineral of the garnet family, a fire-lighter.

Vetch, a leguminous plant; vetch'-y; vetch'-ling, a little vetch.

This is the Ital. veccia, phonetically spelt; Fr. vesce; Lat. vtcia.

Veteran, věť'.ě.răn, one long engaged in military [or other] service.

Latin veterānus (vetus gen. veteris, an old man; Gk. elos, a year).

Veterinary, vet'.ě.rř.něř ry, pertaining to the diseases of horses and other domesticated quadrupeds. Vet'erinary surgeon.

Latin veterinārius, a farrier (veterinum, a beast of burden).

Veto, plu. vetoes, vě'.tōze, the right of rejecting a measure which has passed the legislature, prohibition, to prohibit; vetoed, vě'.tōde; ve'to-ing. (Lat. veto.)

Vetturino, plu. vetturinoes (R. xlii.), věť'.tu.ree''.nōze, an Italian hackney-coachman or keeper of a livery-stable, a traveller's guide. (Ital. vetturino, a carrier, &c.; vettura, a carriage.)

Vex, to torment, to annoy; vexed (1 syl.), vex'-ing, vex'ing-ly, vex'-er. Vexation, vex.ă'.shŭn. Vexatious, vex.ă'.shŭs; vexa'tious-ly, vexa'tious-ness. (Lat. vexātio, vexo to vex.)

Via, vī'.ah, by the way of, as via Marseilles.

Via dolorō'sa, the way our Lord went to the Hall of Judgment, from the Mount of Olives to Gol'gotha (about a mile).

Via lactea, vī'.ah lăk'.tě.ah, the milky way.

Via me'dia, the golden mean. (Latin via, a way or road.)

Via-duct, vī'.ă.dŭkt (not vī'.ă.dŭk), a railroad over a valley.

Fr. viaduc (without -t); Lat. via ductus, a road constructed.

Vial, vī'.al. Phial, fī'.ăl. Viol, vī'.ōl.

Vial, a jar used by experimentalists: as a Leyden vial.

Vials of wrath, ...wrawth, vengeance (Rev. xvi).

Phial, a medicine bottle. (The distinction not observed.)

Viol, a violin, or rather the ancient violin with six strings.

French fiol (!!) (a bottle), viole (a fiddle); Greek phiale, a vial.

Viands (no sing.), vī'.andz, dressed food, victuals, provisions.

French viande; Italian vivanda; Latin vivenda, things to live on.

Viaticum, vi.ăt'ĭ.kŭm, the eucharist administered to the dying.

Latin viaticum, provisions for a journey. The notion is that the eucharist is a passport for the spirit into Paradise.

Vibrate, vĭ.brāte, to oscillate, to utter sounds at being struck; vibrat-ed, vĭ.bra.ted; vibrat-ing, vĭ.bra.ting (Rule xix.)

Vibration, vi.bray'.shŭn. Vibratory, vĭ.bra.tŏ.ry.

Vibratile organs, vĭ.bra.tĭl..., those hair-like organs called cil'ia; vibrio, plu. vibrios, vĭ.bri.oze, animalcules found in the tartar of the teeth, &c.

Latin vibratio, vibrāre supine vibrātum; French vibrer, vibration.

Vicar, vĭk'kr, a clergyman who receives only "the small tithes," the incumbent of a district church. Rector, a clergyman who receives both great and small tithes.

(The Great tithes are tithes of grain, hay, and wood.)

Vicar Apostol'ic, a bishop delegated to represent the Pope in some distant province.

Vicar Gen'eral (in the Rom. Cath. Ch.), a clergyman who represents a bishop in ecclesiastical functions; (in Eng. hist.) a title conferred on the Earl of Essex by Henry VIII. with power to regulate all church matters; but now the chancellor of the diocese is "Vicar General."

Vicar of Jesus Christ, the Pope, who represents Christ.

Vic'ar-age, the dwelling-house of a vicar. Vic'ar-ship (-ship, office, rank of). Vicariate, vĭ.cair'ri.āte.

Vicarious, vĭ.cair'ri.ŭs, substitutional; vicar'ious-ly.

Vicarial, vĭ.cair'ri.āl, adj. of vicar: as vicarial tithes.

The Fr. vicaire is our "curate," and the Fr. curé is our "vicar."

Latin vicarius instead of another, vicāria; Italian vicario.

Vice (1 syl.), depravity, a bad trick in horses. (The opposite of Virtue.) Vicious, vĭsh'.ŭs; vicious-ly, vicious-ness.

Vice, a tool for holding a piece of wood or metal while it is operated on, a small press.

Vice, vĭ'sy, in the place of: as A vice B resigned, that is, B has resigned [or is dead], and A is to take his place.

Vice versa, vĭ'sy ver'sa, the reverse, the subject and object are interchangeable, the contrary also holds good.

"Vice" (depravity),¹ Fr. vice, vicieux; Lat. vĭtĭum, vĭtĭōsus; Gk. aitĭon, crime. "Vice" (in the place of), Lat. vice, vice versa.

Vice (1 syl.), Lat. prefix implying the second in authority, one who takes the place of a superior during his absence.

Vice-ad'miral, an officer in the royal navy next below an admiral; vice-admiralty, -ad'mĭ.rāl.ty.

Arabic Amir-al-ma, commander of the water; Amir-al-omra, commander of the forces; Amir-al-mumenim, &c.

Vice-chair'man, the person who sits opposite the chairman.

Vice-cham'berlain, an officer in the royal household who acts under the lord chamberlain. (French chambellan.)

Vice-chan'cellor, a lower judge of chancery, the acting president of a university. (Latin chancellarius.)

Vice-con'sul, an assistant or deputy consul; vice-con'sulship (-ship, office, rank of). (Latin consul.)

Vice-gerent, -djě'rent, one deputed by a superior to act on his behalf: kings are sometimes called God's vice-gerents, an expression based on the absurd notion of the "divine right of kings"; vice-gerency, -dje'rěn.sy.

Latin vice gērens gen. gērentis, one acting instead of [another].

Vice-pres'ident, the person who acts for the president in his absence; vice-presidency, -prez'ĩ.děn.sy.

Lat. vice præses g. præsĭdis, præ-sideo[sedeo], to sit before others.

Vice-re'gent, the person appointed to carry on the duties of regent during his absence; vice-re'gency.

Latin vice regens gen. regentis; verb rego, to rule or govern.

Vice-roy', the governor of a province or nation representing the sovereign; vice-roy'alty, vice-roy'-ship (-ship, office, rank of). (French vice-roy, now vice-roi.)

Vice-re'gal, pertaining to a vice-roy. (Latin regalis.)

Vicinage, vĭs'ĩ.nage, neighbourhood. Vicinity, vi.sĭn'ĩ.ty.

Fr. voisinage, voisin a neighbour; Lat. vicinitas, vicinus a neighbour.

Vicissitude, vi.sĭs'ĩ.tude, mutation. (Latin vicissitudo, vicis.)

Vic'tim, an animal offered in sacrifice, one oppressed. Victimize, vik'tĭm.ĭze, to deceive, to bilk; victimised, vik'tĭm.ĭzed; victimis-ing, vik'tĭm.ĭ.zing (R. xix.); vic'timis-er, -ĭ.zer.

Lat. victima. "Victima, quæ dextra cecidit victrice, vocatur" (Ovid).

Vic'tor, fem. vic'tress (not victor-ess), a conqueror. Victorious, vik.tŏr'ri.ŭs; victo'rious-ly, victo'rious-ness.

Victory, plu. victories, vik'tŏ.rĭz, conquest.

Victoria, vik.tŏr'ri.ah, one of the asteroids.

Victorine, vik'tŏ.reen, a small fur-tippet for ladies.

Latin victor, fem. victrix, victoria, victoriosus.

Victual, vĭt'l, to provide articles of food [to a ship, army, &c.]; victualled, vĭt'ld; victuall-ing, vĭt'ling; victuall-er, vĭt'l.er. Victuals, vĭt'lz, food in general. Licensed victualler, lĭ'sensť vĭt'l.er, one licensed to sell intoxicating drinks by retail, a provision ship in the R.N.

Victualling house, vĭt'ling house, an eating-house.

Victualling yard, vĭt'ling..., a public establishment for preparing and packing provisions for ships of the R.N.

Fr. victuaille, avitailier; Latin victualis, victus food, vivo to live.

Vide, vi'de (written and printed v.), see, refer to. v. viz. (Lat.)

Videlicet, vi.dēl'ī.sēt, to wit, namely. (Latin vidēre licet.)

Viz., the contracted form of videlicet, namely, that is to say.

The "z" is a corruption of z, a mark of contraction in the middle ages: as hābz, i.e. habet; omnibz = omnibus; vi^z = videlicet.

Vie [with], vi, to emulate; vied [with], vide; vy'-ing [with].

(All verbs in "-ie," except lie, change -ie into -y before -ing.)

Old Eng. wig[an], to fight, to contend, past wigde, past part. wiged.

View, vū, a prospect, to behold; viewed, vūde; view'-ing, view'-er, view'-less. Field of view, the whole prospect.

Point of view, the direction from which a thing is beheld.

View-halloo, vū' hālloo', the huntsman's cry of tally-ho! when he sees a fox break cover, or see-ho! for a hare.

Who-hoop! the cry for the death of either fox or hare.

French vue, from voir to see; Latin vidēre; Italian vedere.

Vigil, vidg'.il, a keeping watch, devotional exercise during the time usually given to sleep, the eve of a festival.

Vigilant, vidg'.ilant, watchful, circumspect; vigilant-ly.

Vigilance, vidg'.ilance, watchfulness, circumspection.

Vigilant. Watchful. Circumspect.

Vigilant refers to the spirit, Watchful to the eye, Circumspect to the character or disposition. We say a vigilant spirit, a watchful eye, and a circumspect character.

Latin vigilia, vigilantia, vigilans gen. vigilantis, vigilāre to watch.

Vignette, vin.yēt', a little picture on the title-page of a book or elsewhere, a miniature likeness not further than the bust.

Ce nom vient de ce que, dans l'origine, ce n'était qu'un petit ouvrage en miniature qui représentait des feuilles de vigne et des raisins (Dict. des Arts et des Sciences).

Vigour, vig'r, energy; vigorous, vig'.ō.rūs; vig'orous-ly, vig'orous-ness. (One of the 19 words in -our. See p. 769.)

Latin vigor, vigōrōsus; French vigueur, vigoureux.

Viking, vi'king. Sea-king, see'-king.

Viking, a Scandinavian pirate, so called from vik, a creek, in which he lurked, the last syl. is not -king, but -ing.

Sea-king, one of the blood-royal who had a petty dominion on the coast, some of them were vik-ings or pirates, but the two words are in no way philologically connected.

Vile (1 syl.), comp. vil-er, vi'ler; (super.) vill-est, vi'lest, worthless, depraved; vile-ly, vile'-ness. Vilify, vil'īfy, to asperse, to slander; vilifies, vil'īfize; vilified, vil'īfide; vil'ify-ing; vilifi-er, vil'īfī.er. Vilification, -kay''shūn.

Latin vilis, vilificāre; Greek phaulōs worthless, phlaurōs foul.

Vill, a manor-house with the cottages in the parish connected therewith, hence also a country parish. (Latin villa.)

Villa, vīl'lah, a gentleman's cottage residence consisting of house, offices, and garden. (Lat. villa, a country house.)

Village. Hamlet. Town. Borough, būr'rah. City.

Village, a manor with the cottages in its vicinity.

French village: Latin villa, a country house.

Ham'let, a small village consisting of the house of a yeoman (not a manor) and the cottages. (O. E. hām, a house.)

Town, a collection of houses with a market place.

The word is also used for city in such phrases as "I am going to town," "I saw him in town," "returning from town," "a town house," "town manners," &c. (Old English tūn.)

Borough, a town represented in parliament.

City, a market and borough town, the seat of a bishop.

Old English burh, a fortified town. "City," French ciité.

Villager, vīl.la.djer, a rustic inhabitant of a village.

Villain, vīln. Serf. Slave. Vassal.

Villain, a free farm-labourer or servant of a feudal lord.

Villain Regar'dant, a peasant attached to the land.

Villain in Gross, a peasant attached to a lord's person.

The former were farm labourers, the latter servants who performed what is called "ignoble service." All had plots of land for the maintenance of themselves and their families, but they had no property they could call their own, nor could they acquire it. They were free in as much as they could not be sold, but they were not free to leave the manor to which they were attached and go elsewhere.

The Villains in Gross had small plots of land for the maintenance of themselves and their families, but all they possessed and all they earned belonged to the lord.

Between these two extremes came the following:

The Coliberti or Burēs, privileged villains. (A. S. būr, a cottage.)

The Borda'rii, cottagers who rendered certain manual or farm services to the lord for their rent. (Ang.-Sax. bord, a hut.)

The Coscets or Cotsæta, Cottarii, and Cotman'ni, cottagers who paid partly in service and partly in produce for their tenements. They were all superior to the churl, a free rustic not attached to a feudal lord at all.

(The būr was a cottage, the bord a hut, the cot a hovel.)

Serf, a farm labourer attached to the soil just as much as the huts or trees which stood on it. All he possessed belonged to the lord, but he could not be moved off the estate. (French serf.)

Soc'man or Soccager, a superior serf, inasmuch as the service required of him was distinctly defined, and was not left to the caprice of the lord. (Ang.-Sax. sóc; Low Lat. soka, lordship.)

Slave, a human being bought and sold like a horse or ox, most frequently a captive taken in war.

The slave class died out as the feudal system developed itself.

Vassal, the "man" of a feudal lord, who performed military service for a stated number of days by way of rent for his house and farm.

Vassal Immediate, the highest class of vassal, who held immediately of the king. These were nobles.

Vassal Mediate, the vassal of a vassal, who performed for the vassal-lord similar service that the vassal-lord performed for the king. These were gentlemen, but not nobles.

Villain, vil'n, a rascal; villain-ous, vil'ln.əs, very bad; vil'lainous-ly. Villain-y, vil'.lū.ny, rascality; villainies, vil'.lū.nīz, wicked actions.

"Villain" (a tenant), Fr. vilain (one l). This is a blunder, as the word is not from the Latin vilis vile, but villa a country house. For the same reason the spelling villain adopted by some is not to be justified. (Italian villano, a peasant; Spanish villano.)

"Villain" (a rascal) should be villn, Latin vilis, vile, base.

(Some think these are identical words, and that the peasant (villain) was degraded to the rascal (villain) by aristocratic pride, as knave (a lad) has been degraded to knave (a cheat), but the characteristic of peasants is lumpishness, whereas the characteristic of lads is trickery, and the degradation is only that of degree.)

Vil'li, (in Anat.) small fibres like down or the pile of velvet; (in Bot.) vegetable hair on the surface of leaves, &c.

Villous, vil'.lūs, adj. of villi; villose, vil'.lōce, full of villi.

Villosity, vil'.lōs'.ī.ty. Velocity, ve.lōs'.ī.ty.

Villosity, a covering of vegetable hair. Velocity, speed.

Lat. villus nap, shag, villōsus. "Velocity," Lat. velocitas, velox swift.

Vinaigrette, vin'.ā.grēt (not vin'.ē.gā.rēt), a small box for containing a piece of sponge saturated with aromatic vinegar and used as a restorative or excitant.

French vinaigrette: vinaigre, vinegar (vin aigre, sour wine).

Vincible, vin'sī bl, able to be overcome. Vincibility, -bīl'.ī.ty.

Lat. vincibilis, vincere to conquer. From Gk. nikao (Casaubon).

Vin'cūlum, (in Algebra) a line drawn over two or more terms to connect them together as one quantity: as $\sqrt{a^2 + 2ab + b^2}$, or $a + b \times c$, that is, both a and $+b$ multiplied by c .

Vindicate, vin'.dī.kā.te, to justify; vindicat-ed, vin'.dī.kā.ted; vindicat-ing, vin'.dī.kā.tīng; vindicator, vin'.dī.kā.tor.

Vindication, vin'.dī.kay''.shūn, justification, defence.

Vindictory, vin'.dī.kā.try, tending to vindicate.

Vindicative, vin'.dī.kā.tīv. Vindictive, vin'.dīk'.īv.

Vindicative, tending to vindicate or justify.

Vindictive, malicious. Vindic'tive-ly, vindic'tive-ness.

Latin vindicatio, vindicta, vindicare, vindex; Greek endikōs.

Vine (1 syl.), the grape plant; vined (1 syl.), having leaves like a vine, decorated with vine leaves or vine-plant.

- Vin-y, vi.ny, adj. of vine. Vinery, plu. vineries, vi.ně.riz, a house for the cultivation of vines. Vine'-dresser.
- Vine-yard, vin'.yard. (The pronunciation is abnormal.)
- Vinous, vi'nūs, like wine. Vintage, vin'tage. Vintag-er. vin'.tă.djer. Vint'ner, one who sells wine. Vine'-clad.
- Vinous-fermentation, vi'nus fer'měn.tay''shŭn.
 Latin vinca, vineus, vinearius (vinum wine, Greek oinos).
- Vinegar, vin'.ĕ.gar, an acid liquor obtained from wine, &c., by the acētous fermentation. Aromat'ic vin'egar.
- Vin'egar cru'ēt, a small vinegar bottle for table use.
- Vinaigrette, vin'.a.gret, a small box for aromatic vinegar.
 French vinaigre (vin aigre, sour wine), vinaigrette.
- Vin ordinaire, vah.nor'.dī.nair, common table claret used in France as we use "small beer."
- Viol, vi'.ol. Vial, vi'.āl. Phial, fi'.al. Vile (1 syl.), worthless.
- Viol, a primitive violin with six strings. Violist, ve'.o.list.
Viol da Braccia, the alto viola or counter-tenor violin, so called because it was held in the arm. (Italian braccio, the arm.)
Viol da Gamba or Greater Viol, held between the gamba or legs.
Viol d'amour, strung with six metal wires of "lovely" softness.
Viola (ve'.ō.lah), a tenor violin, one-fifth lower in tone than a violin. Its compass is from C (fourth space in the bass).
Violar, a troubadour or one who accompanied a troubadour with a vieille or viol. (French viole, a fiddle.)
- Vial, a small medicine bottle, a jar. (Fr. fiolle, a bottle.)
- Phial, a small medicine bottle. (Greek phialē, a vial.)
- Violin, vi'.ō.līn, a fiddle, used in Eng. in the time of Chaucer.
Violino Principale (Italian), first violin.
Violino Secondo (Italian), second violin.
- Violinist, vi.o.līn'ist. (Italian violino, a little viol.)
- Violoncello, plu. violoncellos, ve'.o.lōn.chēl'.lōze, a bass violin with four strings, the lowest double C; -cel'list.
- Violono, plu. violonos, vē.o.lō'nōze, the double bass.
 Italian violone a bass-viol, violoncello: French violoncelle.
 N.B. -one is augmentative and -ino diminutive. The Fr. violon for a viol reduced to four strings is absurd, but violon-cello is correct.
- Violate, vi'.ō.lāte, to debauch; to transgress. Violet, vi'.ō.lēt, q.v. violat-ed, vi'.o.lā.ted (R. xxxvi.); violat-ing, vi'.o.lā.ting.
 violat-or, vi'.o.lā.tor (R. xxxvii.) Violation, vi'.o.lay''shŭn.
- Violable, vi'.ō.lā.bl; vi'olably; violability, vi'.ō.la.bīl''ī.ty.
- Violent, vi'.ō.lent, forcible; vi'olent-ly. Violence, -ō.lense.
 Lat. violens-entis, violentia, violātor, violābilis, violāre (vis, force).
- Violet, vi'.ō.lēt (not voy'.let, a common error). Vi'olate (see above).
- Violet, a flower, a colour. Violaceous, vi'.o.lū''shŭs, violet coloured. Violine, vi'.o.līn, a white poisonous principle obtained from sweet violets. Vi'olin, a mus. instrument.
 French violette; Latin viola; Greek ton, the violet.

Violin, vi'ō.līn; Violoncello, vi'.ō.lōn.chēl''.lo. (See Viol. &c.)

Viper, vi'.per, a venomous serpent; vi'perous, -pē.rūs, malignant.

Latin vipēra, vipērēus (quod vi pariat cum matris interitu).

Virago, plu. viragoes, vi.rā'.gōze, a termagant. (Latin virāgo.)

Virgilian, vir.djīl'.ā.ăn, in the style of Virgil the Roman poet.

Vir'gin, a maiden; virgin'ity, maidenhood.

Virgin gold, pure gold. Virgin honey, honey (nearly white in colour) made by young bees. Virgin blush, the blush of a delicate-minded girl. Virgin's bow'er, the plant called traveller's joy. Virgin-born, Jesus Christ.

Vir'ginal, a musical instrument, a hymn to the Virgin.

The "virginal" was a sort of spinette or pianoforte, so called from its use in convents to lead the virginals or hymns to the Virgin.

Vir'go, one of the twelve signs of the zodiac.

(The sun enters this sign on the 23rd August.)

Virginia, vir.djīn'.ā.ah, one of the as'teroids (3 syl.)

Latin virgo genitive virginis, virginitas, virginalis. In 1 Cor. vii. 25, "virgins" means bachelors or unmarried men. Tennyson, in Harold, makes King Edward say: "I am a virgin."

Virile, vir'ile, pertaining to man in his mature state; virility, vi.rīl'.ī.ty. (Latin virilis, virilitas; vir, a man.)

Virtu, vair'.tew, nick-nackery, taste for curiosities. Virtue (q. v.)

Virtuoso, plu. virtuosos, vir'.tu.ō''.sōze, critic of the fine arts.

(The Ital. plu. virtuosi is sometimes used, but virtuosos is more Eng.)

Virtue, vir'.tchu, the opposite of vice. Virtu (see above).

The Virtues, vir'.tchūse, faith, hope, and charity.

Virtuous, vir'.tchu.ūs; vir'tuous-ly, not wickedly.

Virtual, vir'.tchu.āl, in effect though not in reality; -ly.

The French spell these words ver, as vertu, vertueux, as if from ver spring, and not from vir man. Virtus (Latin) means manliness, or what befits a man: as courage, strength, fortitude, &c. So the Greek arētē (virtue) is from Arēs, the god of war; so the Fr. brave.

Virulent, vi'ru.lent, malignant, venomous; vi'ru-lent-ly.

Virulence, vi'rū.lense; vi'rulency. (Latin virulentus.)

Virus, vi'.rūs, the active or contagious matter of a pustule, &c., any product of disease capable of diffusing the same.

Lat. vīrus, poison; Gk. ios (ios, a dart), venom darted from a fang.

Vis, mechanical force. Vis inertiaē, -in.er'.shē.ē, the power by which matter resists change. Vis vi'taē, vital energy.

Latin vis, vis inertiaē force of inert matter, vis vite.

Vis à vis, vee'.zah.vee, face to face, the opposite couple in a quadrille. (French.)

Visage, viz'.idge, the face, the countenance; vis'aged (2 syl.)

Fr. visage; Ital. visaggio; Latin visio, video sup. visum to see.

Visard, vîz'ard, a mask. (Fr. visière; Lat. visio, video to see.)

The visard or visor was the movable part of the helmet through which the wearer breathed and looked (vis = viz- before a vowel).

Viscera (plu.), vîs'sěrah, the bowels, the contents of the three great cavities of the body (the abdo'men, the thorax, and the cra'nium); visceral, vîs'sěrăl. Viscus, vîs'.kûs, one of the organs contained in the viscera (as the brain, heart, liver, &c.) See Viscous.

Lat. viscus plu. viscēra, an entrail; Gk. ischis the loins, ischus strength.

Viscous, vîs'.kûs, sticky, glutinous. Viscus, vîs'.kûs (see above).

Viscosity, vîs.kûs'.îty, stickiness. Viscid, vîs'.sîd, sticky.

Visciditv, -sîd'.îty. (Lat. viscus, viscōsus, viscidus; Gk. ixōs.)

Viscount, fem. viscountess, vî'.kount, fem. vi.koun'.tess, the fourth of the five order of peers (1 duke, 2 marquis, 3 earl, 4 viscount, 5 baron). (French vicomte, vicomtesse.)

Originally what we now call a county sheriff, the vice of the "count."

Visé, vee'za, an official endorsement of a passport; to visé a passport; viséed, vee'zade; visé-ing, vee'.zû-ing.

Fr. viser, to examine and endorse; Latin video sup. visum, to see.

Vish'nu, the second person of the Hindû trinity (1 Brah'ma, the creator; 2 Vishnu, the preserver; 3 Si'va, the destroyer).

Visible, vîz'.îbl, perceptible to the eye; vis'ible-ness, vis'ibly.

Visibility, vîz'.îbil''.îty, capacity of being seen.

The Visible Church, the church on earth.

(Vis- before a vowel is always pronounced viz:- as visor, visit, &c.)

Latin visibilis, visibilitas, video supine visum to see.

Visigoth, vîz'.î.gōrh, the western branch of the Gothic family or those which settled in the west (France and Spain).

The eastern branch were the Ostrogoths, who settled in Italy. Visigothic, vîz'.î.gōrh''.îk, adj.

Vision, vîzh'.ûn, the faculty of seeing, perception by sight, an apparition, a revelation by a sort of dream; vision-al, vîzh'.ûn.ăl; vis'ional-ly, vis'ion-less. Visionary, vîzh'.ûn.ûry, a dreamer, a schemer, (adj.) imaginary, delusive.

French vision, visionnaire; Latin visio, video supine visum to see.

Visit, vîz'.ît, a stay in another's house, the professional call of a medical man, &c., a call to inspect, to visit; visit-ed, vîz'.ît.ed (R. xxxvi.); vis'it-ing, vis'it-or (R. xxxvii.); visitant, vîz'.î.tant (poetry: thus the cuckoo is called the "visitant of spring"). Visitation, -î.tay''.shûn, a long and wearisome visit, an infliction, an official visit; visitorial, vîz'.î.tō''.rî.ăl. Visiting-card, a name-card. Vis'it-able.

On visiting terms. Not visited, tabooed or ignored by society.

Latin visere, to go to see; French visite, visiteur, visitation.

Visor, vīz'or (incorrectly spelt vīzor), the movable part of a helmet; visored, vīz'rd, masked. (Fr. visière; Lat. video.)

The visor is that part which enables the wearer to see and breathe.

Vista, vīs'tah, a view through an avenue. (Ital. vista, sight.)

Visual, vīz'zū.āl, pertaining to sight; vis'ual-ly. Vis'ual angle, the angle at which an object is viewed. Vis'ual ray, the beam of light which comes from an object to the eye.

Fr. visuel; Latin video supine vīsum to see, vīsus the sense of sight.

Vital, vī'tal, pertaining to life, essential; vi'tal-ly. Vital'ity.

Vitalise, vī.tāl.īze, to quicken; vitalised, vī.tāl.īzed; vitalis-ing, vī.tāl.ī.zing. Vitalisation, -tāl.ī.zay''shūn.

Vitals, vī'talz, parts of the animal body essential to life.

Vi'tal force, the life-giving principle, life-giving power.

Latin vitālis, vitālia, vitālitas, vita life; Gk. biōtē life, verb biōō.

Vitiate, vīsh'ā.ate, to injure, to spoil; vitiat-ed, vīsh'ā.ā.tel (R. xxxvi.); vitiat-ing, vīsh'ā.ā.ting (R. xix.); vitiat-or.

Vitiation, vīsh'ā.ā.shūn. (Lat. vitiāre, vitiatio, vitiātor.)

Vitreous, vīt'rē.ūs (R. lxvi.), glassy, like glass; vit'reous-ness; vitrescent, vīt.trēs'sent; vitrescence, -sense; vitres'cible.

Vitrification, vīt'ri.fūk''shūn. Vitrify, -rī.fy, to convert to glass; vitrifies, vīt'ri.fize; vitrified, vīt'ri.fide; -ing.

Vitrifi-able, vīt'ri.fī''ā.bl. Vitreo-electric, -rē.o-e.lēk''.trik, exhibiting positive electricity. (Resino-electric, exhibiting negative electricity). Vit'reous humour, one of the "humours" of the eye. Vitrified forts, vīt'ri.fide..., ruins vitrified by fusion.

Fr. vitrification, vitrifiable, vitrifier; Latin vitrum glass, vitreus.

Vitriol, vīt'ri.ōl, a sulphate. Oil of Vitriol, sulphuric acid.

Ammoniacal Vitriol, sulphate of ammonia.

Blue Vitriol (or Vitriol of Cyprus), sulphate of copper.

Calcareous Vitriol, sulphate of chalk.

Cobalt Vitriol, sulphate of cobalt.

Green Vitriol (or Copperas), green sulphate of iron.

Red Vitriol (or Vitriol of Mars), red sulphate of iron.

White Vitriol (or Vitriol of Goslar), sulphate of zinc.

Vitriolic, vīt'ri.ōl''īk. Vitriolate, vīt'ri.ō.late, to convert into a vitriol; vit'riolāt-ed, vit'riolāt-ing (Rule xix.)

Vitriolation, vīt'ri.ō.lay''shūn. Vitriolise, vīt'ri.ō.līze, to convert into a vitriol; vitriolised, vīt'ri.ō.lized; vitriolis-ing, vīt'ri.ō.lī''zing. Vitriolous, vīt'ri.ō.lūs.

French vitriol, vitrioliser. "Vitriol, nom donné par les anciens chimistes aux sels appelés aujourd'hui sulfates, sans doute à cause de leur aspect vitreux" (Dict. des Sciences, &c.)

Vituperate, vi.tū'pě.rūte, to blame, to chide; vitu'perāt-ed; vituperat-ing, vi.tu'pě.rū.ting; vitu'perāt-or (R. xxxvii.)

Vituperation, vi.tū'pě.ray''shūn. Vituperative, -pě.rā.tīv; vitu'perative-ly; vituperable, vi.tu'pě.rā.bl.

Latin vītūpērābilis, vītūpērātio, vītūpērātor, vītūpērāre.

Vivace, vě.vah'.chy, (in Music) in an animated manner. (Ital.)

Vivacious, vī.vā'.shūs, sprightly, lively; viva'cious-ly, viva'-cious-ness; vivacity, vī.vās'.īty. (Lat. vivācitas, vivax.)

Viva voce, vī.va-vō'se (not vē.vah vō'che), orally. (Latin.)

Vivarium, plu. vivaria, vī.vair'ri.ūm, plu. vī.vair'ri.ah, a place for preserving live specimens of animals. If the specimens are water animals the word is Aquarium.

Latin vivārium, an aviary, pond, park, &c., for living animals.

Vive, veev (Fr.), long live! success to! hurra for! as Vive le roi!

Qui vive, kē veev, who goes there? (by sentinels).

Vivid, vīv'.īd, lifelike, animated; viv'id-ly, -ness. (Lat. vīvīdus.)

Vivify, vīv'.īfy, to animate, to infuse with life; vivifies, -fize; vivified, vīv'.īfide; viv'ify-ing, -er. Vivific, vī.vīf'.īk.

Vivification, vīv'.ī.fī.kay''shūn. (Lat. vīvīfico, vīvīficus.)

Viviparous, vī.vīp'.ū.rūs, producing progeny fully developed.

Latin vīvīpārus (vīvus pārio), to bring forth alive.

Vivisection, vīv'.ī.sēk''shūn, dissection of a living animal, experiments on living animals for "medical" purposes.

Latin vīvus sectio, the cutting-up of living animals.

Vixen, vīx'n, a female fox, a scolding spiteful woman; vixenish [temper], like a vixen; vixen-ly. (Old Eng. fīxen.)

Viz, (generally called namely), Latin videl'icet contracted, that is to say (the "z" is the mark of contraction 3).

Similarly hab3 = habet; omnib3 = omnibus; vi3 = videlicet.

Viz'ard, Viz'or. (See Visard, Visor.)

Vizier, vīz.eer', a title of high rank in Turkey, &c.

(All pachas of three-tails among the Turks, and all cabinet ministers (about eight in number) are viziers = "Right Honourable.")

Grand vizier, the prime minister of the Turkish divan.

Vizierial, vīz.e'ri.āl, pertaining to a vizier, issued by ...

Vocable, vō'.kă.bl, a name, a noun. Vocabulary, plu. vocabularies, vō.kăb'.u.lă.rīz, a word-book alphabetically arranged, a list of words used in some art or science.

Vocabulist, vō.kăb'.ū.list, a writer of a vocabulary.

Latin vocabŭlum (vox gen. vōcis, a word); Fr. vocable, vocabulaire.

Vocal, vō'.kăl, made by the voice; vocal music, singing; vocal sounds, sounds made by the human voice; vo'cal-ly.

Vocalise, vō'.kăl.īze (R. xxxi.), to form into words, to sing without words; vocalised, vō'.kăl.īzed; vocalis-ing, vō'.kăl.īzing; vocalist, -kăl.ist, a singer of powerful voice.

Vocalisation, -kăl.ī.zay''shūn. Vocal'ity, clearness of voice.

Lat. vōcālīs (vox gen. vōcis, the human voice); Fr. vocal, vocalisation.

Vocation, vō.kay'.shŭn. Avocation, āv'vo.kay''.shŭn.

Vocation, one's regular business or calling, bent of mind.

Avocation, one's subsidiary employment, amusement.

Lat. vocatio, a calling; avocatio calling away from one's "calling."

Vocative vōk'kă.tŭv, a case in grammar which requires the verb in regimen with it to be in the second person. We address in the vocative case: as "Son, go work to day in my vineyard." "Woman, behold thy son." "Hail, lord!" ("Son," "woman" "lord" are vocative cases)

Latin vocativus, verb vocare to call, to invite, Greek bōdo, to call.

Vociferate, vo.sif' ě.rāte, to exclaim, to shout; vociferāt-ed; vociferat-ing, vō.sif' ě.rū.ting (R. xix.); vociferāt-or.

Vociferation, vo.sif'.ě.ray''.shŭn, violent exclamation.

Vociferous, vō.sif'.ě.rūs, clamorous; vociferous-ly, -ness.

Latin vociferatio, vociferator, vocifer (vox genitive vōcis, féro).

Vogue (1 syl.), fashion, popular favour. In vogue, in commercial demand, in fashion. (Fr. voguer, vogue in full sail.)

Voice (1 syl.), sounds produced by certain organs of the throat and mouth, timbre, vote, expressed opinion, to regulate the tone of [an organ]; voiced (1 syl.); voic-ing, voy'.sing; voice'-less, without voice; voice'less-ly.

French voix; Latin vox genitive vōcis; Italian voce; Spanish voz.

Void (1 syl.), empty, not binding null, an empty space; a lacking, to make void, to evacuate; void'-ed, void'-ing; void'-er, one who makes void, a tray, a basket or tray into which crumbs and fragments are carried from table.

Void'-able. Void'-ance (2 syl.) Void'-ness. To make void.

French vide, now vide; Latin viduus bereft; Greek idios, private.

Volatile, vōl'.ă.tŭl, fickle, easily passing off in an aeriform state.

Volatility. -a.tŭl''ĭ.ty, levity, fickleness, easily evaporated.

Vol'atile-ness (4 syl.) Volatilise, vōl'.ă.tŭ.lize, to cause to exhale or evaporate; vōl'atilised (4 syl.); volatilis-ing, vōl'.ă.tŭ.lizing (R. xix.); volatilis-able, vōl'.a.tŭ.lŭ.za.bl.

Volatilisation, vōl'.ă.tŭl'.ĭ.zay''.shŭn.

Latin vōlatilis (vōlare, to fly); Fr. volatilité, volatilisation, -iser.

Volcano, phu. volcanoes, vōl.kă'.nōze (not vōl.kah'.nōze), a burning mountain. Volcanic, vōl.kă'n'.ĭk; volcanic bombs, -bōmz, spherical masses of lava ejected from volcanoes; volcanic cones, -kōnz, volcanic hills of recent eruptions; volcanic foci, -fō'si, underground centres of volcanic disturbances; volcanic mud, mud ejected by volcanoes.

Vulcanicity, vŭl'.ka.nŭs''.ĭ.ty, phenomena the result of volcanic disturbance. Vulcanology, vŭl'.ka.nōl''.ō.djy, that part of science which treats of volcanoes, &c.

Latin Vulcānus, the god of fire; French volcan, volcanique.

- Vôle (1 syl.), a game of cards, a deal that draws all the tricks.
To make vole, to win all the tricks. (Fr. vole, faire le vole.)
- Volition, vo.lish'ən, the power or act of making choice.
Latin vōlītio (vōlo, to be willing; Greek boulō[mai], to will, &c.)
- Volley, plu. volleys, vōl'ez, a discharge of several guns at once, to volley; volleyed (2 syl.), -ing. (Fr. volve, Lat vōlāre.)
(The double l in these words is a blunder; as well spell volatile with double l, both being from the same verb, vōlāre.)
- Vōlt. Vault, vawlt.
Volt, a gait of two treads made by a horse going sidewise round a centre, a movement in fence to avoid a thrust.
Vault, a leap, a cellar, to bound, to make in an arch.
"Volt," Fr. volte. Vault," Ital. voltare. "Vault" (a cellar), Ital. volta.
- Voltaic, vōl.tā'ik, adj. of voltaism. Voltaism, vōl.tā'izm, galvanism modified by Volta, an Italian. Voltaic battery, an apparatus consisting of a series of plates [as zinc and copper alternately] immersed in diluted sulphuric acid for the development of electricity. Voltaic electricity.
- Volta'meter, an instrument for measuring the force of a voltaic current. Voltatype, vōl.ta.tipe, electrotype.
- Voltigeur, vōl'te.zhūre, a French light-infantry soldier.
- Voluble, vōl'lu.bl, glib, talkative, easily rolled; volubly.
Volubility, vōl'lu.bil'ity, glibness of speech, talkativeness.
Latin vōlūbilis, vōlūbilitas (volvēre, to roll · Greek eilo or eilleo).
- Volume, vōl'ūme, a single book, bulk, richness of voice, power of sound. Voluminous, vo.lū'mi.nūs, consisting of many volumes, extensive; volu'minous-ly, volu'minous-ness.
Latin vōlūmen, a roll or scroll. Anciently, books were written on sheets fastened together lengthwise and rolled, some on a pin and some without a roller. When stored on shelves, the rolls were labelled with red letters or rubrics, and those of great value were packed in cases or boards. Latin volvo, to roll up.
- Voluntary, vōl'lūn.tēr ry, of free choice; vol'untari-ly, vol'untari-ness; vol'untary-ism, -izm, the system of supporting religious institutions, &c., by voluntary contributions.
- Volunteer, vōl'lūn.teer', one who enters the army or navy by choice, a civilian who voluntarily devotes a part of his time to military exercises, to offer without solicitation; vol'unteered' (3 syl.), vol'unteer'-ing.
Latin vōlūtārius; vōlo, to be willing.
- Voluptuous, vo.lūp'tu.ūs, sensual; volup'tuous-ness, volup'tuous-ly Voluptuary, plu. voluptuaries, vo.lūp'tu.ū riz.
Latin vōluptuārius, vōluptuōsus (vōluptas, pleasure).
- Volnte, vo.lūte', the spiral decoration of an Ionic capital; volut-ed, -lū'ted, having a spiral scroll. Volut'ion, -shūn.
Latin vōlūtus, a scroll (volvo supine vōlūtum, to roll).

Vom'it, matter vomited, an emetic, to eject from the stomach; vom'it-ed, vom'it-ing. Vomitory, vom'ĩ.tõ.ry, an emetic.

Latin võmtus, võmtõrius, vomo supine võmtum; Greek ẽmẽo.

Voracious, vo.rã.shũs (Rule lxvi.), ravenous; vora'cious-ness, vora'cious-ly. Voracity, -rãs'.ĩ.ty, greediness of appetite.

-ious. Adjectives from Latin words in -x take the termination -ious, not -eous: as "edax," edacious; "judex," judicious, &c.

Latin võrax genitive võrãcis, võrãre to devour; Greek bõra, food.

Vortex, plu. vortices, võr'.tex, plu. vor'.tĩ.seez (not vortexes), a whirlpool, an eddy. Vortical, vor'.tĩ.kãl, rotatory. Vorticeal, a wheel animalcule. (Lat. vortex, plu. vortices.)

Votary, plu. votaries, vo'.tã.rĩz, fem. votaress, plu. votaresses, vo'.ta.rẽs.ĩz, a devotee. (Lat. võtum, voveo to vow.)

Võte (1 syl.), suffrage, to exercise a suffrage; vot-ed, võ'.ted; vot-ing, võ'.ting (R. xix.); vot-er, võ'.ter; vot-ive, võ'.tiv.

Voting paper, a balloting-paper, a proxy. (Fr. vote, voter.)

Vouch (1 syl.), to guarantee, to warrant; vouched (1 syl.), -ing.

Vouch'-er. Vouch'or. Vouchee, vouch'-ẽ.

Voucher, a receipt, a document to prove [a payment, &c.]

Vouchor (in Law), one who calls in another to establish the warranty of a title, the tenant in a writ of right.

Vouchee, the person called into court by a voucher, the person vouched in a writ of right.

Norm. voucher; Lat. võcans gen. võcantis a voucher, võcãre to vouch.

Vouch-safe' (2 syl.), condescend to grant, to accord, to deign; vouchsafed' (2 syl.); vouchsaf-ing, vouch.sã'.fing (R. xix.)

Latin võcãre saluum, vouch safe or warrant safe.

Võw (to rhyme with nõw), a solemn promise made to God, to vow; võwed (1 syl.), võw'-ing, -er. (Lat. võveo, to vow.)

Võw'el (võw- to rhyme with nõw, not with grõw), one of the five letters a, e, i, o, u, each of which should be a simple sound.

(U long is not a simple sound, but = yu at the beginning of a word: thus "u-nit," "use-ful," = yu-nit, yuse-ful; u short at the beginning of a word is a true vowel: as un-der, um-pire. All letters except the vowels are consonants, that is double-sounds: thus "b" = be, "k" = kã, "l" = el, "h" = ach, "q" = ku, "z" = zed. To call "z" zed is the height of absurdity: "zeal" ought to be called zed-eal, and "lazy" la-zedy. It should be ze, not zed. Similarly, ach for "h" is objectionable.)

Vowel-point, a mark to define the sound to be given to the Hebrew letters, which are only consonants.

Vowelled, furnished with the needful vowels.

Fr. voyelle; Lat. võcãlis (vox g. võcis, a voice), a voice letter, the letter which has a voice of its own and gives a voice to the consonants.

Voyage, voy'age, a journey by sea; voyag-er, voy'.ã.djẽr.

Fr. voyage a journey or voyage (voie a way); Latin viãticus, via.

Vulcan, vŭl'kăn, the god of fire in Rom. mythology; vulcanian, vŭl.kă.nĭ.ăn, adj. of Vulcan. Vulcanise, vŭl'kă.nĭze, to carbonise [india-rubber, &c.], by causing it to absorb sulphur and white lead by the agency of Vulcan or heat; vul'canised (3 syl.); vulcanis-ing, vŭl'kăn.i.zing.

Vulcanisation, vŭl'kăn.i.zay".shŭn. Vul'can-ism, -izm, those geological phenomena which are ascribed by some naturalists to the internal heat of our earth.

Vulcanicity, vŭl'ka.nĭs".ĭty, vulcanism. Vul'canist, one who ascribes the irregularities of the earth's surface and the disturbance of strata to the action of internal heat. (Those who ascribe it to the action of water are called Neptunists.) Vulcanite, vŭl'kăn.ĭtĕ, volcanic, garnet, india-rubber vulcanised by sulphur and white lead.

Volcano, plu. volcanoes, vŭl.kă.nŏze, a burning mountain; volcanic, vŭl.kăn'ĭk, adj. of volcano.

Latin Vulcānus (for Fulgānus, from fulgor brilliancy or sheen).

Vulgar, vŭl'gar, (comp.) vul'gar-er, (super.) vul'gar-est, common, vernacular, unrefined, not comme il faut; vul'gar-ly.

Vulgarity, vŭl.găr'ĭty. Vulgarise, vŭl'gă.rĭze, to make vulgar; vul'garised (3 syl.); vulgaris-ing, vŭl'gă.rĭ.zing.

Vul'gar-ism, -izm. Vulgar fractions, ordinary fractions.

Latin vulgāris, vulgāritas (vulgus, the common people).

Vulgate, vŭl'gate, an ancient Latin version of the Bible, also adj. So called from its being the ordinary or common version used in the Roman Church. The copy of the Bible in Latin is said to have existed in 218. It was first printed in 1462.

Vulnerable, vŭl'nĕ.ra.bl, capable of being wounded; -ness.

Vulnerability, vŭl'nĕ.ră.blĭ"ĭty, a vulnerable state.

Vul'nerary, good for healing wounds.

Latin vulnerabilis, vulnĕrārius, vulnerātio (vulnus, a wound).

Vulpine, vŭl'pine, pertaining to foxes, resembling a fox, cunning.

Vulpicide, vŭl'pĭ.sĭde, one who kills foxes as vermin.

Latin vulpinus. "Vulpicide," vulpi-[vulpes] caedo, to kill a fox.

Vulture, vŭl'tchŭr, a bird of prey. Vulturine, vŭl'tu.rĭn, adj. of vulture; vulturish, vŭl'tu.rĭsh, like a vulture.

Latin vulturis or vulturius, vulturinus (a vultu, quod vultu valeat quippe perspicacissimo visu est. Pomponius Mela).

S contains more native words than any other letter of the alphabet, and V the fewest. Only three words are native, viz.: "Vane" (a weathercock), Old Eng. fana, a flag; "Vat" (a tub), Old Eng. fet; and "Vixen" (a she-fox), Old Eng. ſicen. Under the letter J there are four native words, but under S above 500.

Wabble, wŏb'.bl, to stagger or roll. War'ble, to sing as a bird.

Wabble; wabbled, wŏb'.blđ; wab'bling, wab'bling-ly.

Welsh gwibiol erratic, v. gwiblo. "Warble," German wirbeln.

Wacke, wăk'y. Whack, wăk, a blow. (See Thwack, p. 1325.)

Wacke (Germ.), a rock composed of quartz, sand, and mica.

Wad, wod, a mass rammed into a gun after being charged, black lead, ore in lumps not veins, an earthy oxide of manganese occurring in beds and veins of the older rocks.

Wadding, wod'.ding, a collective term for gun wads, material out of which wads are made, sheets of cotton wool for stuffing garments. To wad a garment, to line it with wadding. (French ouate, v. ouater.)

"Avant que le coton fût commun en Europe, on fabriquait une espèce d'ouate avec la bourre douce et lustrée que surmonte les semences contenues dans les gousses des Apocynées, et notamment dans celles de l'Asclépiade, qui prend de là le nom d'Herbe à la ouate" (Bouillet, Diction. Universel, &c.)

Waddle, wăd'.dl; to move with a roll like a duck; waddled, wăd'.dl; waddling, wăd'.dling; waddler, wăd'.ler.

Latin vado, to go; German waten, to walk in the water (with dim.)

Wade (1 syl.), to walk through water. Weighed, wăde (see weigh); wad-ed, wă'.ded (R. xxxvi.); wad-ing, wă'.ding (R. xix.); wad-er, wă'.der. Waders, the gallatores (4 syl.)

"Wade." Old Eng. wadd[an], past wăd, past part. wăden, wădung; Latin vado, to go. "Weighed," O. Eng. wag of the v. weg[an].

Wafer, wă'.fer, a leaf of paste (generally round) for securing letters, to secure a letter with a wafer; wafered, wă'.frd; wafer-ing. A consecrated wafer, a piece of bread or baked paste used by Rom. Catholics in the eucharist, the "host." German waffel. The French gaufre is a corruption of our "wafer."

Waft, wăft (not wofst), to float through the air as a balloon; waft-ed (R. xxxvi.), waft-ing. (O. E. hwyrf[an], to whirl.)

Wag, a joker, to shake as by the wing; wăgged (1 syl.), wăgg-ing (Rule i.) Wăgg'-ery, pleasantry; wăgg'-ish, full of jests; wagg'ish-ly, wagg'ish-ness.

Old English wăg[ian], past wăgode, past part. wăgod, wăgung.

Wage (1 syl.), money paid for service (generally in the plu. wages), to carry on [war]; wăged (1 syl.); wag-ing, wă'.ging.

"Wage" (pay), Fr. gage. "Wage" [war], Germ. wagen, to venture.

In the middle ages, a knight challenged an equal by throwing down a gauntlet, which was picked up by the person challenged. This glove was a "gage" or "pledge" on the side of the challenger to carry out his challenge, and was called in Medieval Latin vadiatio (a pledge or security), and the challenge so made was a vadiatio duelli (a wager of battle), hence vadiare, to wage.

Fee. Pay. Salary. Stipend. Wages.

Fee, money paid to a physician or barrister for professional service.

Pay, money paid to the army and navy for professional service.

Salary, money paid to clerks, editors, and government employés, for services not manual but intellectual.

Stipend, a periodical sum of money given for service to one not in the employ of another, as to dissenting ministers, a curate, &c.

Wages, pay for manual services to servants, labourers, &c.

Wager, wā'.djēr, a bet, to make a bet; wagered, wā'.djerd; wa'ger-ing, wa'ger-er. To lay a wager, to make a bet.

French gager; Low Latin radiare, noun radiatio.

Waggle, wāg'.gl, to move from side to side as a bird waggles its tail; waggled, wāg'.gld; waggl-ing, wāg'.ling.

Wiggle waggle, the movement of a bird's tail from one side to the other (a ricochet word, Rule lxix.)

Old Eng. wāg[ian] to wag, past wāgode, p. part. wāgod (with dim.)

Wagon, wāg'.ōn (not waggon), a four-wheeled cart; wag'on-er.

Wagonette, wāg'.ōn.ēt, a family "wagon."

(The double g is a blunder from a confusion of the word with wag.)

Old Eng. wāgen or wāgn; wāgenere, a wagoner (wag, a road).

Wag'tail (2 syl.), a sub-genus of birds, noted for their long tails which they wag incessantly. Water wagtail.

Waif (1 syl.), goods found and claimed by nobody, goods stolen and waived, i.e. thrown away by the thief in flight.

Low Lat. waiviatum; Norm. weif; Germ. wegwerfen, to throw away.

Wail, Wale (both wāle). Whale. Vale, Veil (both vale).

Wail, a mournful subdued cry, to wail; wailed (1 syl.), wail'-ing, wail'-ing-ly, wail'-er.

Wale, a mark made by a rod. (Welsh gwial, a rod.)

Whale, a sea mammal. (Old English hwæl, a whale.)

Vale, a pleasant valley. (Latin vallis; French val.)

Veil, a light covering for the face. (Lat. vēlum; Fr. voile.)

"Wail," Welsh wyl a wail, verb wylo, wyliad a wailing.

Wain, Wane (both wāne). Vain, Vein (both vāne).

Wain, a wagon. (A contraction of wagon.)

Charles's Wain, "Ursa Major." A corruption of Old English Ceorles wæn, the churl's or farmer's wagon.

(Sometimes still further corrupted into King Charles's Wain.)

Wane, to decrease in size as the moon. (Old Eng. wānian.)

Vain, fruitless, conceited. (Latin vānus.)

Vein, a blood-vessel. (Latin vēna.)

"Wain," Old English wāgen, wāgn, or wæn, a wagon or wain.

Wainscot, wāne'.skōt, wall-lining of thin boards in panels, to wainscot; wain'scot-ed, wain'scot-ing (not double t).

The wood originally used for this purpose was a foreign oak called wagenscot. In German is a somewhat similar word, wagenschrot (wood roughly squared); Dutch wagenschot.

Waist, Waste (both waste).

Waist, the middle part of the body or of a ship.

Waist'-band, the band on the top of trousers which lies round the waist of the body, a sash or girdle.

Waist-coat, wēs'.kūt, a sleeveless garment worn by men and boys under the coat or jacket. Waist-coat piece, -peece, a piece of cloth designed for a waistcoat.

Waste, thriftlessness, a region uncultivated, a heath.

"Waist," Welsh gwastgu, to squeeze in (the part squeezed in).

"Waste," Old Eng. wēste, v. wēst[an]. "Waste" (a desert), wœst.

Wait, Weight (both wāte.)

Wait, to tarry; wait'-ed (R. xxxvi.), wait'-ing. Wait'-er, a servant who "waits" or attends on others, a tray used by a waiter to hand things on (if of metal it is called a salver, sāl'.ver). Wait'-ress, a female waiter.

Wait'-ing-maid or Waiting-woman, plu. -women, wīm'.n. (For waiting-man (-men) we generally say Serving-man.)

Waits, mummers, musicians who perform in the streets at night just before Christmas.

To wait on or upon, to attend on one [as a personal servant], to visit for orders, to serve a customer.

Weight, the heaviness of a body. (Old English wiht.)

"Wait," Welsh gwelitaw, to wait. "Waits," according to Dr. Busby, is a corruption of wayghies (hautboys), transferred from the instruments to the performers (Dict. of Music). In Sussex, these carol-singers are called wastlers, from wastle (to wander).

Waive, Wave (both wāve).

Waive, to defer for the present, not to insist upon, to abandon; waived (1 syl.), waiv'-ing (Rule xix.), waiv'-er.

Waif, goods abandoned, goods found. Waifs and strays, odds and ends, the refuse of society.

Wave, an undulation, to undulate, to shake.

"Waive," German wegwerfen, to cast away; Law Latin waitiare.

"Wave," Old Eng. wæg, v. wæg[ian], past wægod, p. part. wægod.

Wake (1 syl.), the streak of smooth water in the track of a ship, a track, a vigil, to rouse from sleep; (past) wōke (1 syl.), (past part.) woke. Also awake, (past) awoke, (past part.) awoke [or awaken in poetry].

There is another verb not much used now: Waken, past wakened, past part. wakened, waken-ing; waken-er: "Go, waken Eve" (Milton). "They waken raptures high."

Wake'-ful, wake'-ful-ly; wake'-ful-ness, sleeplessness.

Wake-rob'in, the arum, cuckoo-pint, hare's-bread.

(Called "Wake-robin" from the spontaneous heat it generates.)

Old English wac[an], past wōc, past part. wæcen.

"Waken," Old Eng. wæcn[ian], past wæcne, past part. wæcned.

"Awaken," Old Eng. awæcn[ian], past awæcnode, p. part. awæcned.

(If waken were restored to general use we should have this excellent distinction: Waken, to rouse another person out of sleep; Wake, to cease from sleeping. As -en has the force of to make, "waken" can only mean to make to awake.)

Waldenses, wōl.dēn'.seez, a sect of reformed Christians in the valleys of Piedmont directed by Peter Waldo.

Waldo, vôl'.do, a small wood of about 400 acres near Goodwood, Sussex. (Old English wald, a wood.)

Wale, Wail (both wāle). Whale. Vale, Veil (both vale).

Wale, a wound produced by a stripe, a ridge in cloth, to mark the flesh with a wale; waled (1 syl.); wal-ing, wā'.ling. Wales, strong planks running along the sides of a ship from fore to aft. Gunwale, gūn'.nēl, the upper rail of a boat or ship.

Wail, a low moaning cry. (Welsh wyl, verb wylo.)

Whale, a huge sea-mammal. (Old English hwæl.)

Vale, a pleasant valley. (Latin vallis; French val.)

Veil, a light covering for the face. (Latin vēlum.)

"Wale," Welsh gwial, a rod (the mark made by a rod).

Wales, wailz, west of England. Welsh, a native of Wales.

Older form Wealthas, plu. of wealth, a foreigner, one not of Saxon origin.

Walhallā, vāl.hāl.lah, the "Westminster Abbey" of Germany, built on the north bank of the Danube, 1842.

Valhallā, the palace and park of the Scandinavian deities.

Walk, wauk, a path in a garden, &c., a pace, a course of life, to go on foot, to go at a foot's pace, to live; walked, waukd; walk-ing, wau'.king; walk-er, wau'.ker. Walk-ing-cane. Walk-ing-stick. Sheep-walk, an extensive tract of land where sheep are pastured. At a walk-ing-pace, slowly.

Old English walc[an], to roll; wealcende, rolling. So that walking means waddling or rolling clownishly from side to side like a green sailor. No combination of letters will express the true sound of "walk," which is wōr-k (without the r).

Wall, waul. Waul, the cry of a cat, to waul (an imitative word).

Wall, a structure of masonry, to enclose with a wall; walled (1 syl.), wall-ing. Wall-flower, a flower so called because it grows often in the mortar of old walls, a young lady in a ball-room who has no dancing partners.

Wall-fruit, fruit of trees trained to walls.

Wall-paper, paper for the decoration of room-walls.

Wall-plate, a piece of timber laid on a wall to receive the floor-joists. Wooden walls, ships made of wood.

To go to the wall, to be pushed aside as the weaker or least honoured party. To take the wall, to take the inner or wall-side of a pathway.

Walls have ears, what is said will be sure to get abroad.

Old Eng. weall, wāl, or wāll. Wal-wyrt, wall-wort or dwarf-elder.

Wall-eye, wau'l'-i, a withered eye; wall-eyed, wau'l'-ide, having a withered eye. (Old English hwel[an], to wither.)

Wallet, wōl'.lēt, a bag or satchel, a traveller's knapsack.

A corruption of the German walsack, a shallow sack, a wallet.

Wallop, wŏl'lop, to beat; wal'loped (2 syl.), wal'lop-ing, -er.

A corruption of the Lat. vāpūlo, to strike; Gk. apalḗō, to bruise.

Wallow, wŏl'lo, to roll in the mire as swine, to live in filth and vice; wal'lowed (2 syl.), wal'low-ing, wal'low-er.

Old Eng. wealh[ian], past wealhwoode, p. part. wealhwood, wealhwoere.

Walnut, wŏl'nūt, a tree and its fruit. Walnut-oil. -wood.

Old English walh-hnut, the foreign nut, so called because the tree was introduced from Persia, and is not native to the island.

Walrus, wŏl'rūs, the mörse or sea-horse. Nar'whal, the sea-unicorn.

German wallross; wall-ross; the whale-horse; walfisch, a whale.

"Narwhal," German narr-walfisch, the nose-whale or the foolish whale. If the former, the first syl. is the Latin nāris, the nose.

Wallsend' coals, the best sea-coals, originally from Wallsend.

The Wallsend Colliery, long since exhausted, was so called because it was near the great Roman wall between Newcastle and the sea.

Waltz, wŏltz, a dance, to dance the waltz; waltzed (1 syl.), waltz'-ing, waltz'-er. (Fr. valse; valser; Germ. walzen.)

Wan, wŏn, sallow, pallid; wan'-ness; wan'-nish, rather wan.

Old Eng. wan, wann, won, or wonn; verb wan[nian], to be wan.

Wand, wŏnd, a rod, a staff of office. (Dutch vaand.)

Wander, wŏn'der, to roam; wan'dered (2 syl.), wan'der-ing, wan'der-ing-ly, wan'der-er.

Old English wandr[ian], past wandrode, past part. wandrode.

Wane, Wain (both wāne). Vain, Vein (both vain).

Wane, gradual diminution: as the moon is on the wane, to decrease gradually in size. The opposite process is to "Wax. Waned (1 syl.); wan-ing, wā'ning, decreasing.

Wain, a wagon. (Old English wāgen, wāgn, or wæn.)

Vain, ineffectual, conceited. (Latin vānus.)

Vein, a blood-vessel. (Latin vēna; French veine.)

"Wane," Old Eng. wān[ian], to decrease, past wānede, p. p. wāned.

Want, wŏnt, need, poverty. Wont, custom, habit.

To want, to require, to stand in need of; want'-ed (Rule xxxvi.); want'-ing, needing, (adj.) deficient, absent.

(Care should be taken not to confuse the two words wanting and wanted. "Wanting" (adj.) means absent, lacking, failing, but "Wanted" means required, needed.)

ERRORS OF SPEECH—

Please, Sir, you are wanting [wanted].

Vocative wanted [wanting, i.e. there is no vocative].

No time shall find me wanting [falling] in my truth (right).

In winter a supply of coals is greatly wanted for the poor (right).

Nothing wanting [wanted] in this way?

HIS HAIR WANTS CUTTING. Is this correct? Should it not be His hair NEEDS cutting? It is said that "want comes from wishing," and the hair cannot wish or want. The reply is this: We use "want" in two ways, (1) to require what is wished for, and (2) to need what is required: thus, "Our manners want reform." "The fire wants poking." "The plants want more sun," &c., in which examples no idea of "wishing" is present. Those who like may use need in such sentences, but "want" is sanctioned by Anglo-Saxon usage: as wane fōta, in want of feet, &c.

"Want," Old Eng. wana, wane, waning. (The t is interpolated.)

Wanton, wōn'ton, heedless, lewd, lascivious, a harlot, to play the wanton, to revel; wan'toned (2 syl.), wan'ton-ing, wan'ton-ly, wan'ton-ness. (Welsh gwantan.)

Wap, wōp. (See Wapping.)

Wapentake, wā'pēn.tāke, a subdivision of Yorkshire, similar to a hundred or union.

Fleta says the word means "touch-weapon," and arose from this custom: When the "sheriff" was newly appointed he rode, pike in hand, into an open field, where he was met by all those in the union licensed to bear arms. The men filed past and touched the sheriff's pike with their own, in proof of allegiance and good faith. This solution, if true, has this difficulty: the Old English word is wēpen-getæc, to teach [the use of] weapons, and not to touch weapons; there is no word meaning "to touch" at all like -take.

Lye, in his Dict. Saxonica et Gothico-Latinum, gives the word wēpen-getæc, and explains it as a kind of militia union, or district out of which all capable of bearing arms assembled at certain fixed periods for military drill and the practice of arms.

Sir T. Smith says the wapentake was a muster show of arms and armour, but this is evidently an error. The muster show of arms was called the wēpen-scharu. (Old Eng. getæc[an], to teach.)

Wapping, wōp'ping, a flogging. Wapping big fellow, a strap-ping large man. A wapper, a falsehood, a very large specimen. To wap, wōp, to flog; wapped, wōpt.

"Wapping" (a flogging). Welsh wab, to bang; wabio, to slap.

(There is precisely the same analogies in the word "bounce." To bounce is to brag, to lie; a bouncer is "a lie" or a very large specimen; and a bouncing great fellow means a great tall man.)

War, wōr. Battle, bāt'tl.

War is a series of battles or continued contest of arms: as the seven-years' war, the thirty-years' war, the hundred-years' war, &c.

Battle is one conflict in a war: as the battle of Waterloo.

To war, warred (1 syl.), warr-ing (Rule i.), warr-ior.

War-cry, a shout made on charging a foe.

War-fare (2 syl.), a state of war. War-horse (2 syl.)

War-like (2 syl.) War-off-ice (3 syl.) War-proof.

War-whoop, the yell made by savages on charging an enemy. Man-of-war, plu. men-of-war, a warship.

Civ'il war, war between persons under the same civil government and in their own nation.

Intestine war, in.tēs'tīn wor, civil war.

Old Eng. war or wig, wiglice adj., wiga a warrior, verb wig[an] to war, past wigde, past part. wiged.

Warble, wōr'.bl, to gurgle musically, to sing as a bird; warbled, wor'.bld; war'bling, war'bling'ly, war'bler.

Wabble, wōb'.bl, to roll as a duck in walking.

Germ. wirbeln. "Wabble," Welsh gwibiol erratic, verb gwiblo.

-ward (a native suffix added to adjectives), leading to.

-wards (a native suffix added to adverbs), in the direction of:

As forward motion, to go forwards; a backward child, to fall backwards; a northward direction, to sail northwards. It is a great blunder to use -ward for the adverbial suffix, as it is the final -s which is the adverbial suffix. True, it is very often done, but it is a barbarism nevertheless.

Ward (a = ō), a watch, a guard made by a sword, &c., a stronghold or prison, a child under the care of a guardian, a cleft in a key, an artifice in a lock, to keep ward; ward'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), ward'-ing.

Ward'-er (a = ō). Ward'-en (a = ō).

Ward'er, a keeper, a guardian, a turnkey.

Warden, an officer put in charge of civil or church property, the head of some colleges, the superior of some conventual churches, a sort of dean.

Warden of the Cinque [sink] Ports, governor of the five ports of Hastings, Romney, Hythe, Dover, and Sandwich.

Warden of the Marches, sheriff or governor of the frontiers between England and Wales and between Eng. and Scotland.

Warden of a University, a president or chancellor.

Church-warden, a parish officer elected annually in Easter-week to see after the church-building, the church-yard, the organ, bells, sitting accommodation, and so on.

Ward of a city, ward of a hospital, prison, &c., so much as is committed to the charge of one alderman.

Ward of a lock, an artifice to prevent its being picked.

Ward-rōbe (2 syl.), a portable closet for clothes.

Old English weārd, wearder, weard a ward, verb weard[ian], past weardode, past part. weardod, weardman a warden.

Ware, Wear (both wāre). Where, whāre. Were, wur.

Ware, used in the singular number chiefly in composition.

Chi'na-ware, delf'-ware, earth'en-ware, pottery made of china, delf, and earth. Wedgewood ware.

Hard-ware, pots and pans made of metal.

Manchester-ware. Worcester-ware, woos'ter wāre.

Birmingham-ware. Staffordshire-ware, &c., &c.

Ware-house, (noun) ware'-houce, (verb) ware'-houze; ware-house, a depot for wares, to put wares into a warehouse; ware-housed, -houzd; ware'-house-man, plu. -men, ware'-houce-man.

- Wear*, to use as a dress, to waste by friction. (O. E. werian.)
Wear [wee'r] or weir, a fish-dam. (Old English wær.)
Where, in what place. (Old English hwær or hwar.)
Were [wēr], verb "to be." (O. E. wāren, v. wes[an], to be.)
Wāres (1 syl.), merchandise generally, commercial articles.
 "Ware, wares," Old English wodru, wares, merchandise.
Warlock, wōr' lōk, a wandering evil spirit.
 Old Eng. wār-loga, a deceiver, one who "keeps the word of promise to our ear and breaks it in our hope." Satan is the "arch warlock."
Warm (a = ō), comp. warm'-er, super. warm'-est, not cold, moderately hot, to warm; warmed (1 syl.), warm'-ing, warm'-ly, warm'-ness. Warmth (-th added to adj. converts them into abstract nouns). Warm-bath.
Warm-heart-ed, -har'ted. Warm'-ing-pan.
 Luke-warm, moderately warm. (Old Eng. [w]lac, slack.)
 Old English wærm or wearm, wearmlīc (adj.), wearmlīce (adv.), verb wearm[ian], past wearmode, past part. wearmod, wearming.
Warn, worn, to caution, to give notice. Worn, of v. wear = ware.)
 Warned (1 syl.), warn'-ing, warn'-ing-ly, warn'-er.
 O. Eng. wern[ian], wyrn[an], or warn[ian], p. warnode, p. p. warnod.
 "Worn," Old Eng. werod of v. wer[ian] to wear, p. werode or werede.
Warp, wor'p. Wharf, whorf, plu. wharfs, whorfs (not wharves).
Warp, the threads which cross the woof, to twist.
 Warped (1 syl.), warp'-ing, warp'-er.
Wharf, a strand for lading and unlading ships. (O. E. hwarf.)
 O. Eng. wearp, v. wearp[an] or weorþ[an], past wearp, p. p. worpen.
Warrant, wōr'rant, a precept under hand and seal to some officer to do what the warrant states, to guarantee, to authorise; war'rant-ed (Rule xxxvi.), war'rant-ing.
 War'rant-er, one who warrants. War'rant-or'', War'-rantee'', (in Law) War'rantor'', the person who warrants; War'-rantee'', the person to whom the warrant is made.
 Warranty, wōr'rān.ty, a guaranty or security.
 Warrantable, wōr'rān.tā.bl; war'rantable-ness, -ably.
 War'rant officer, a non-commissioned officer acting under a warrant (as a gunner, a boatswain, a carpenter, &c.)
 Warrant of attorney, ...āt.tūr.ny, a written authority signed by a client authorising his attorney to appear in some law-court for him.
 Search-warrant, serch' wōr'rant, a document authorising the holder to enter a house, shop, &c., to search for stolen goods or someone supposed to be secreted there.
 Dock'-warrant, custom-house licence or authority.
 Law Lat. warrantus, v. warrantizare; Welsh gwarant, v. gwarantu.

Warren, wŏr'rĕn, a rabbit preserve; war'ren-er.

Fr. garenne, garennier; Old Eng. wĕrian or werian, to defend.

Warrior, wŏr'ri-er, a soldier. (See War.)

Wart, wort, an excrescence. Wort, wert, a herb, beer partly made.

Warted, wŏr'ted, having warts; wart-y, wor'ty, grown over with warts; warti-ness, wor'ti-ness. Wart-worth, wor't.wurth, a plant having a warty surface. Wart-less.

Wart'-hog, a river-hog of Africa. Wart'-stone (2 syl.)

"Wart," O. E. weart, wearh, wear, or wearr; wearihtnes, wartiness.

Wary, wair'ry. Weary, wee'ry. Very, vĕr'ry.

Wa'ry, cautious; wa'ri-ness (Rule xi.), wa'ri-ly.

Weary, tired, fatigued. (Old English wĕrig or wĕri.)

Very, exceedingly. (Latin verĕ, truly.)

Was, wŏz, past tense of the verb To be (am, was, been).

Old Eng. SING. (1) wæs, (2) wĕre, (3) wās. PLU. wæron, all persons of verb wes[an], to be. "Am" is from root as; "Be" from root bĕc.

Wash, wŏsh, a cleansing, to cleanse with water. Woo'sh.

Washed, wŏsh't; wash'-ing, wash'-er. Wash-y, wŏsh'y, watery; wash'i-ness (Rule xi.) Wash'-ball, wŏsh'.bawl.

Wash-board, wŏsh'.bōrd, a board on the side of a boat to keep the sea from washing over. Wash'-house. Wash' hand-stand or wash'-stand. Wash'-woman or wash'er-woman, plu. -women, -wim'n, a woman who washes for wages. Wash'ing machine, ...mŭ.shĕen'.

Woo'sh, (in horse language) go to the right or off from the teamer. Come hah'ther, come to the left or nearer the...

Old Eng. wæsc, wæsc-hūs a wash-house, wæscing, wæscere, v. wasc[an] or wasc[an], past wose, wocs, or woz, past part. wascen.

Wasp, wosp, an insect resembling a bee; wasp'-ish, irritable, snappish, like a wasp (-ish added to nouns means "like"); wasp'ish-ness, wasp'ish-ly. Wasp-fly, plu. wasp-flies.

Old Eng. wæps, wesp, wasp, or wæps; Latin vespa; Greek sphĕr.

Wassail, wās'sĕl, the liquor made of apples, ale, and sugar, a drunken bout, a carousal, to carouse; was'sailed (2 syl.), was'sail-ing, was'sail-er. Wassail-cup, a wassail bowl.

Old Eng. was hæl, "water of health," so strong drinks were called: thus whisky is Gaelic ooshk'-a-pai, "water of health"; usquebaugh is Irish uisge'-a-bagh, "water of life"; eau-de-vie (Fr.), "water of life." It is an error to derive the word from was hæl (health be to you), (1) because wæc is not the imperative of the verb wesan, to be, and (2) because the word only means a "potent liquor."

Wast, wŏst, 2 sing. of was, is not a contraction of was-est, but a Norse form of the Anglo-Saxon wæc-e. In the Norse -t was the suffix of the 2nd per. sing., as in ar-t, i.e. as-t.

Wert as the 2 sing. subj. is wholly wrong. It should be were. Shakespeare, however, says "thou wert grim" (King John II. 3).

Waste, Waist (both wāste).

Waste, a desert, a desolate tract, ref'use, useless expense, to squander, to use extravagantly, to consume wantonly; wasted, waist'-ed; wast-ing, waist'-ing; wāst'-ing-ly, waste'-ful, waste'ful-ness, waste'ful-ly. Waste'-ness; wast-er, waist'.er. Waste'-basket, a basket for pieces of rag or paper of no further use. Waste'-book, a memorandum book. Waste'-paper. Waste'-pipe (2 syl.), a pipe for carrying off superfluous water. Waste-steam'-pipe, a pipe leading from the safety-valve to the outer air.

Waist, the part of the body about the loins.

"Waste" (refuse), Old Eng. wēste, v. wēst[an], p. westte, p. p. wested.

"Waste" (a desert), Old English woestern, woestnes, woestig.

"Waist," Welsh gwasgu, to squeeze or press (the part squeezed in).

Watch, wōtch, a pocket time-piece, attendance without sleep, close observation, a guard or sentinel, a space of time allotted to a sentinel, to watch; watched (1 syl.), -ing.

Watch'-ful, watch'ful-ness, watch'ful-ly.

Watch'-barrel. Watch'-case. Watch'-dog. Watch'-glass.

Watch-guard. Watch'-maker. Watch'-man, plu. -men, a man who guards a house or street by night.

Watch tower, wōtch' tōw.er (-tōw to rhyme with now), a tower on which a sentinel keeps a look out.

Watch-word, wōtch' werd, a pass-word.

Old Eng. waec[ian], past wacode, past part. wacod, wacol watchful; or wæc[ian], past wæcede, past part. wæced.

Water (to rhyme with daugh'ter, por'ter), noun and verb; watered (2 syl.), water-ing, water-er.

Watery (accent on first syl.), wateri-ness, water-ish, water-ish-ness. Water-bailiff, -bā'.lif. Water-bearer, -bair'rer, the sign aqua'rius. Water-brash. Water-butt.

Water-caltrop, -kāl'.trōp, an aquatic plant. Water-can. Water-cār'rier. Water-carriage, -kār'ridge, transport by water. Water-cart, a cart for carrying water. Water-cask. Water-closet. Water-cock, a tap for drawing-off water. Water-colour, -kūl'.ler, a pigment mixed with water instead of oil. Water-course, -ko'rse. Water-crane, -kra'in, a machine for supplying water to locomotive engines. Water-cress, plu. -cresses. Water-cure, -kūre, the treatment of disease with water.

Water-dōg, a dog which readily takes to the water.

Water-fall, -faul. Water-flag, a species of iris. Water-fowl, a web-footed bird.

Water-glass, a water-clock. Water-gauge, -gāge. -god.

Water-hen. Water-lev'el, the natural level formed by still water. Water-lily, plu. -lilies, li'l'iz. Water-line, the line to which the surface of the water reaches.

The water-line of a ship unloaded is the light water-line.

The water-line of a ship freighted is the load water-line.

Water-logged, -lōgd, lying like a log in water, as a ship when the hold is filled with water.

Water-man, plu. -men. Water-mark, a letter or device wrought into paper in its manufacture; the mark showing the limit of the rise and fall of water.

High water mark, the mark indicating the highest point to which the water rises. Low water mark, the mark indicating the lowest point to which the water sinks.

Water-mēl'on. Water-mē'ter. Water-mill.

Water-nymph, -nīm̃f, a naïd presiding over a river, &c.

Water-plant. Water-power (pōw- to rhyme with nōw).

Water-proof, plu. -proofs, water-resisting fabrics, &c.

Water-sail, a save-all set under the swinging-boom.

Water-shed, the range of high lands which forms the source of water to a district, "shedding" it off (as a roof) to its respective basins. Water-snake. Water-spout.

Water-sprite, a "witch" or spirit living in water.

Water-tight, -tite, capable of resisting the intrusion of water.

Water-ways, long pieces of timber running fore and aft on both sides of a ship connecting the deck with the sides.

Water-weed. Water-wheel.

Breast wheel, when the water acts on a part of the rim near the axis.

Overshot, when the water acts on the upper paddles of the wheel.

Undershot, when the water acts on the lower paddles of the wheel.

Water-works, -werks, machines for raising and distributing water. Water-worn.

Water of crystallisation, -krīs'.tāl.li.zay''shūn, water which has chemically combined with a substance while passing from a state of solution to a crystalline form.

Watering-place, a place good for bathing or sea-breezes.

Watered silk, silk with a shaded wavy surface.

Hard water, water impregnated with lime, &c.

Soft water, rain water, water with few foreign matters.

My mouth waters, I greatly long for [something appetising].

A diamond of the first water, of the best lustre.

Wet, saturated with water, to make wet.

Old Eng. water or water, wæt wet, v. water[an], p. waterode, p. p. waterod, waterung a watering, waterig watery, waterisc waterish, waterleas waterless, water-bora water-bearer, water-buc water bucket, water-croc water-crock, water-cruse, water-fat water-vat, water-flaxa water-flask, water-flōd, water-pytt, water-trog, &c.

Wattle, wŏt'.tl, a flexible rod, a hurdle, the fleshy excrescence under the head of certain birds, as the turkey-cock, cock, &c., to twist twigs together; watted, wŏt'.tld; wattleing.

Old English watul or watel, a hurdle, a wattle; wætl, a swathe.

Waul, the cry of a cat, to waul. Wall, waul, a structure.

Wailed (1 syl.), -ing. Catawauling, the wailing of a cat.

"Waul" (an imitative word). "Wall," O. Eng. weall, wål, or wáll.

Wave, Waive (both wāve).

Wave, an undulation, to undulate, to shake to and fro; waved (1 syl.); wav-ing, wā'ving; wav-y, wā'vy; wa'vi-ness. Wave'-like (2 syl.) Wave'-let, a little wave.

Wave'-offering, by Jewish priests (Numb. xviii.)

Wave-son, goods floating on the sea after a shipwreck.

Tidal wave, the general swell of the ocean from east to west produced by the attraction of sun and moon.

Waver, wā'ver, to hesitate; wa'vered (2 syl.), wa'ver-ing, wa'vering-ly, wa'ver-er.

Waive, to set aside, not to insist upon, to hesitate.

"Wave," Old Eng. wæg, v. wāg[ian], past wāgode, past part. wāgod.

"Waver," O. Eng. waf[ian], to hesitate; past wafede, p. p. wafed.

"Waive," German wegwerfen, to throw away: Low Latin waiviare.

Wax, an excretion of bees, made of wax, to smear with wax, to become, to increase in size as the moon from new to full; (Wane, to decrease in size as the moon from full to new); waxed (1 syl.), wax'-ing; wax'-en, made of wax; wax'-y, wax'i-ness (Rule xi.) Bees-wax (not bees'-wax).

Wax-candle. Wax'-cloth. Wax'-end, thread covered with shoemakers' wax and pointed with a bristle. Wax-mōd'el, wax-mōd'ell-ing, wax-mōd'ell-er. Wax'-work, -werk.

Grave'-wax, adipocere (4 syl.), the "wax" into which animal flesh is converted in cemeteries.

"Wax" (of bees), O. Eng. wæx, weax, or wex, weaxen, weax-candel.

"Wax" (to grow), O. E. wæx[an], p. wæox or wox, p. p. weaxen, -ing.

Way, Wey, Weigh (all way). Whey, whay.

Way, a road, the direction one is to go to reach a given place, the manner of doing a thing. Ways, wayz, the timbers on which a ship is launched. Water-ways, long pieces of timber running fore and aft on both sides of a ship to connect the deck with the sides.

Ways and means, resources.

Way'-bill, list of passengers and goods conveyed by coach, &c. Way'-board, -bōrd, a thin layer separating

1 a thick stratum of mineral or ore.

2 Way''-farer, -fair'rer, a traveller; way-far-ing, -fair'ring.

Way-lay', to beset from ambush, to attack insidiously;
way-laid', way-lay'-ing, way-lay'-er.

("Laid," "paid," and "said" = sed, are the past tenses of lay, pay, say, instead of the regular forms, layed, payed, sayed.)

Way'-less. Way'-worn, wearied by travelling.

In no ways (better in no wise), not at all, by no means.

In a fair way, likely, satisfactory, tolerably good.

To give way, to yield. To make way, to make room, to make a vacancy for another. To make [his] way, to get on in life. To go one's way, to depart.

To go the way of all the earth, -erth, to die.

By the way, in passing, apropos. By way of, for the purpose of. In the family way, enceinte.

In the way, an obstruction. Out of the way, odd, absent.

To be under way, to have started on a voyage.

To have head'-way, -hēd-, [the ship] has room to move.

To make head-way, to advance freely.

Cov'ert-way, a way round the outer ditch of a fortification affording communication from point to point.

High'-way, hū..., the main road, the broad path.

Half'-way. Lee'-way, loss of way by drifting.

Milk'y-way, a belt in the sky white with stars.

Right of way, rite..., right of passing through.

Stern'-way, the movement of a ship backwards.

Tide'-way (2 syl.), the channel in which the tide sets.

"Way," Old Eng. wæg, weg, wig, or wiðh; weg-férende, way-faring.

"Wey" (182 lbs. of wool = 6½ tods), Old English wæg.

"Weigh" (to try in a pair of scales), O. E. wēg[an] or weg[an], p. wæg,
p. p. ge-wegen. "Whey" (the watery part of milk), O. Eng. wæg.

Way-ward, way'-wrd, froward, self-willed; way'-ward-ness, -ly.

Old English weg weard, [inclined] towards [one's own] way.

The pronunciation of a after w is very capricious: in wad-, wal-, wan-, war-, it = o, except when followed by an -e: as in wade, wale, wane, ware (the only examples). When followed by -s it = o, except in the word waste.

On the other hand, in wac-, waf-, wag-, wai-, war-, wax, and way, the "a" has its ordinary sound.

"A" = o: wabble, wadding, walk, wall, wallet, wallop, wallow, walnut, walrus, waltz, wan, wand, wander, want, wanton, war, warble, ward, warrant, wart, warm, wasp, was, wash, watch, water, waul (27).

"A" = a: [wade], wake, wafer, wag, wages, wager, waggle, wagon, waif, wail, wain, wainscot, waist, wail, waive, wake, [wale], [wane], [ware or wares], [waste], wave, wax, way (23).

In "waft" and "wary" the sound is special. In "waft" the a is about equal to the "a" in father, and "wary" is wair'ry.

We, the Nom. plu. of I. Wee, tiny. (Germ. wenig, little.)

Old Eng. SING. Nom. ic, Gen. min, Dat. me, Acc. mec.

PLU. Nom. we, Gen. iser, Dat. us, Acc. istic.

"We" is in reality a contracted compound of "I-and-he," seen more clearly in the Greek He-meis [Whe-meis] we, where -meis is the Sanskrit sma = "that" or "he."

Weak, Week (both week). Weakly, Weekly (both week'ly).

Weak, feeble; weak'ly, feebly; weak'-ness, feebleness.

Weaken, week'n, to make weak (-en, to make); weakened, week'nd; weaken-ing, week'n'ing; weaken-er.

Week, seven days; week'ly, once every week.

"Weak," Old Eng. wac, waclic weakly (adj.), waclice weakly (adv.), wacnes weakness, wacmōd weak-minded, wacmōdnes.

"Weaken," Old Eng. wac[an] to become weak, past wac, past part. wicen; wac[ian] to make weak, past wacode, past part. wacod.

"Week," Old Eng. weoc (Somner's Dict. Saxonico-Lat.-Ang.)

Weal, weel. Wheel, Wheal (both wheel). We'll, weel. Well.

Weal, the commonweal, welfare, happiness: as weal or woe.

Wheel, part of a cart or carriage. (Old English hweol.)

Wheal, a tin mine: as Wheal Basset. (Cornish huel.)

We'll, a contraction of we-will.

Well, a pit for water, not ill. (Old English wel or well.)

"Weal," Old Eng. wæla, wela, or wala, prosperity. (See Wealth.)

Weald, Wield (both weald). Wheeled, weald. Weld.

Weald, a wood or forest. Wealds, a district of Kent, Surrey, and Sussex, formerly an immense forest, now pasture land with clayey soil, the weald clay.

Wolds (of Yorkshire), formerly a forest, now pasture land.

Wield, to sway [the sceptre], to use [the sword], to rule.

Wheeled, furnished with wheels, going on wheels.

Weld, to join by beating at red heat.

"Weald or Wold," Old English wald or weald, a forest or wood.

"Wield," O. Eng. weald[an], past wcold, past part. wealden, to sway.

"Wheeled," of verb wheel; O. E. hweol a wheel, hweohl, or hweogl.

"Weld," Germ. wellan, to join at red heat, to build with loam, &c.

Wealth, wēlth, riches, abundance; wealth-y, wēlth'y; wealth-i-ness, wealth'i-ly. The wealthy, the rich. (See Weal.)

Old English wæla, welithi. Our word is -th added to the adj. welig, rich. (-th added to an adj. converts it to an abstract noun.)

Wean, Ween (both ween). Whēn. Wēn.

Wean, to deprive an animal of breast-food; weaned, weend; wean'-ing. Wean'-ling, one recently weaned.

Ween, to suppose. (O. E. wēn[an], p. wēnde, p. p. wēned.)

When, at what time. (Old English hwænne or hwenne.)

Wen, a tumour. (Old English wen.)

"Wean," O. E. wén[ian] or wen[an], past -ede or -de, past part. -ed.

Weapon, wēp'ŏn, an instrument of offence or defence; weaponed, wēp'ŏnd; -less. Deadly weapons, dangerous weapons.

Old Eng. weopen, wēpen, wēpn, or wēpn, wēpnleas weaponless.

Wear, Wars (both ware). Where, whare. Were, wēr. Weir, weer.

Wear, injury arising from use. Wear and tear, ware and tare, injury and loss arising from use without abuse.

To wear, ware, to use as an article of dress; worn.

Wear or Weir (both weer), a dam to arrest fish.

Ware (prefix or postfix), merchandise: as earthen-ware, ware-house. Wares, wairz (1 syl.), articles of merchandise.

Were, part of the verb "To be," also used as an auxiliary.

"Wear" (waste), O. E. wēr. "Wear" or "Weir" (a dam), O. E. wēr.

"Wear" (as a dress), O. E. wer[ian], p. werode or werede, p. p. werod.

"Where," O. E. hwar or hwar. "Were," O. E. verb wes[an], to be.

(The spelling "wear" = ware or weer, of "tear" = tare or teer, of "read" = reed or red, is disgraceful. In fact -ea is the most clumsy device in the language, and is made to do duty for all sorts of things: vowels, diphthongs, accents, and so on.

Weary, wee'ry, fatigued, out-worn by toil, to weary; wearies, wee'riz; wearied, wee're'd; weary-ing, wee'ry-ing.

Weari-ly, wee'ri.ly; weari-ness, wee'ri.ness (Rule xi.); weari-some, wee'ri.sūm; wearisome-ness, -some-ly.

Old Eng. wérig or wéri, wérignes or wérines weariness, wérlíc, verb wérigian or wérian, p. wérigode or wérode, p. p. wérigod or wérod.

Weasand, wee'zand (not weasan), the windpipe.

Old English wæsend or wasend.

Weasel, wee'zel, a stoat. (Old English weosol or wēslē.)

Weather, Wether (both wēth'er). Whether. Whither. Wither.

Weather, the state of the air, to sail against the wind past some point, as to weather the Cape, to resist difficulties, to brave bad weather; weath'ered (2 syl.); weath'er-ing.

To weather the storm, to ride out the storm unwrecked.

Weather- (prefix), in the direction of the wind, towards the wind, to windward. Lee-ward is the opposite of wind-ward. If a ship has the wind on her right or starboard side that side is called the weather-side, and the left or larboard side is called the lee-side.

Weather-board, -bord, the side of the ship to windward.

Weather-bow (bōw to rhyme with nōw). -braces.

Weather-gage, a ship has the weather-gage of another when she is to the windward of it.

Weather-helm, a ship carries a weather-helm when she tends to come up into the wind and requires the helm to be put up. Weather-lifts. Weather-bitt.

Weather-ly ship, one working well to the windward.

Weather-most, furthest to the windward.

- Weather-quarter, -kwor'ter, that part of a ship which is on the windward side. Weather-roll, the roll of a ship (in a heavy sea) upon her beams to the windward.
- Weather-shore, the shore to the windward of a ship.
- Weather-shrouds. Weather-side, facing the wind.
- Weather-tide, the tide which sets against the lee-side of a ship impelling her to move to the windward.
- Weather- (prefix), the wind and the rain, keeping out the weather, having been exposed to the weather.
- Weather-beaten, -beet'n, having been exposed to the weather. Weather-bitten, -bit'n, injured by exposure to rough weather. Weather-board, -bord.
(Weather-boards are bevelled and lap over each other. They are employed in outhouses to keep out the weather.)
- Weather-boarding, collective for weather-boards.
- Weather-bound, delayed by stress of weather.
- Weather-cloth, canvas or tarpauling to throw over things to protect them against the weather.
- Weather-cock, a vane to show how the wind blows.
- Weather-driven, -driv'n, driven by wind and storm.
- Weather-glass, any instrument (like the barometer or anemometer) to show the changes of weather.
- Weather-proof, able to resist the wind and rain.
- Weather-tiling, tiles to cover a wooden structure.
- Weather-wise, skilful to foresee changes of weather.
- Weather-worn, applied to rocks or stones more or less wasted away by the action of the weather.
- Stress of weather, unfavourable winds, rough weather.
- To weather a point, to gain a point against the wind.
- To weather out, to come unharmed out of a storm, &c.
- "Weather," O.E. wæder, weder, or weather, v. wedr[ian] or wither[ian] to resist or weather, p. wedrode or witherode, p.p. wedrod or ...
- "Wether" (a male sheep designed for the butcher), Old Eng. welther.
- "Whether" (of the two), O.E. hwæther. "Whether" (if), hwædre.
- "Whither" (to what place, in what direction), Old Eng. hwýder.
- "Wither" (to dry up), O.E. ge-wither[ian], p. -witherode, p.p. -witherod.
- Weave, wæw, (past) wove, (past part.) woven, wō'un, to intertwine, to manufacture by a loom; weav-ing, wæc'ving; weaver, wæc'wer, one who works at a loom.
- Old Eng. wēf[an], past waf, past part. wefen, or wēf[ian], p. wēfode, p.p. wēfod. "Weaver," Old Eng. wæfre, wifre, or wyfre.
- Web, a tissue or texture woven, a spider's trap for flies, the membrane which unites the toes of water-fowls; webbed, wēbd, having toes united by a web. Web-footed.
- Web'bing, a strong coarse fabric of hemp ribbon.
- Web'ster, a weaver (-ster, one skilled by practice).
- Old Eng. wēb, wēbb, or wæbb; verb wēbban, to weave

Webster-ite, wěb'·ster·īte, alu'minite (so called from Dr. Webster).

Wēd. Mar'y. Wedding. Marriage, mār'ridge.

To wed, to unite by marriage. Wedding, the ceremony of uniting by marriage (the act).

To marry, to take for spouse by prescribed ceremonies.

Marriage, the consummation of a wedding (the state).

There is a treaty of marriage going on, and I expect to be invited to the wedding. The "treaty" had regard to the state, but the "wedding" to the act or ceremony.

Wedd'-ed (R. i.), wedd'-ing; wed-lock, the married state.

Wooden Wedding, the 5th anniversary, when the bride is supposed to merit a trinket made of wood.

Silver Wedding, the 25th anniversary, when, in Germany, the family present the woman with a wreath of silver flowers.

Golden Wedding, the 50th anniversary, when, in Germany, wealthy families present the wife with a wreath of gold.

Diamond Wedding, the 60th anniversary, when the woman is worthy to be presented with a gift of diamonds. (The names remain, but the gifts are seldom observed.)

Wedding-cake. Wedding-cards. Wedding-favour, a rosette worn at a wedding. Wedding-ring, a plain gold ring worn by wives on the third finger of the left hand.

(On the left hand, to betoken subjection. The thumb is dedicated to God the Father, the first finger to God the Son, the second finger to God the Holy Ghost, and the third to the husband.)

Old Eng. wed; wedd, a pledge; wedding, a pledging; verb wedd[ian], past weddode, past part. weddod.

Wēdge, a mass of metal, one of the mechanical powers of a V shape, to fasten with a wedge, to squeeze together; wedged (1 syl.), wedg'-ing (Rule xix.)

Old Eng. wææg, wege (cuneus, i.e. massa metalli). Clarence saw in his dream "wedges of gold" lying in the bed of the ocean.

Wedge'-wood, a ware invented by Josiah Wedgwood, d. 1795.

Wednesday, wēd'nz·day (not wenz'·day, nor wēd'·nēz·day), the fourth day of the week. (O. E. Wōdenesdæg or Wōdnesdæg.)

Wee, very small (German wenig). We, the nom. plu. of I.

Weed, a wild plant, a cigar, to free from weeds.

Weeds, the mourning worn by a widow (especially a conventional cap now almost abolished); weed'-ed, weed'-ing, weed'-er, weed'-less; weed'-y, full of weeds.

Old Eng. wedd, wiōd, wēdu; wēddung, a weeding; verb wēdd[ian], past wēddede, past part. wēdded; wēdd-hōc, a weeding hook.

"Weeds" (widows' raiment), O. E. wēdd; wādleas, without clothing.

Week, Weak (both week). Week-ly, Weak-ly (both week-ly).

Week, seven successive days. Weekly, once a week.

Weak, feeble. Weakly, feebly. (Old Eng. wāc, wāclīce.)

"Week," O. Eng. weoc, wīc, or wecca; wēclīce, weekly; wīc-dæg.

Ween, Wean (both ween). Wĕn. Whĕn.

Ween, to suppose, to think; weened (1 syl.), ween'-ing.

Wean, to cease giving breast-food to a young mammal.

Wen, a tumour. (Old English wen.)

When, at which time, at what time. (O. E. hwænne or hwenne.)

"Ween," Old Eng. wén[an], past wénde, past part. wéned, to think.

"Wean," Old Eng. wæn[ian], past wanede, past part. wānde.

Weep, to mourn, to shed tears; wept, weep'-ing, weep'-er, weep'-ing-ly. Weep'-ing-birch. Weep'-ing-willow.

Weep'-ers, statues at the base of a funereal monument, cuffs worn by widows, streamers carried by mutes, &c.

Old English wép[an], past weóp, past part. wépen.

Wee'vil, a beetle; wee'vil-ly, infested with weevils. (O. E. wefl.)

Wĕft (O. E.), the thread from selvage to selvage across the warp.

Weigh, Wey, Way (all way). Whey, whay.

Weigh, to ascertain the weight or heaviness of anything; weighed, wāde; weigh-ing, way'-ing; weigh-er, way'.er; weigh'-able, capable of being weighed.

Weight, Wait (both wāte).

Weight, the heaviness of a body, an article of standard heaviness by which to test the heaviness of other things, pressure, importance; weight-y, wait'y; weight'i-ness, weight'i-ly (Rule xi.)

To weigh down, to overbalance. To weigh light, insufficient in weight. Light weight, lite wait.

Weigh'ing house, a public office for testing weights.

Weigh'ing-machine, way'ing mǎ.sheen', a machine for weighing large articles, as casks, carts, &c.

"Weigh," O. E. wég[an] or weg[an], past wæg or wah, p. p. gewegen; wége, a balance. "Weight," Old Eng. wæg or wag.

"Way" (a road), O. Eng. wæg or weg. "Wey" (182 lbs. of wool), Old Eng. wæg. "Whey" (the watery part of milk), Old Eng. wæg.

"Wait" (to stop), Welsh gweithaw.

Weir or Weer, weer, a dam across a stream for catching fish or accumulating water. (Old English wĕr.) See Wear.

Weird, wee'rd, witch-like, drear and ghostly. (Old Eng. wyrd.)

Welcome, wĕl'.kūm, salutation to a visitor, acceptable, to greet; welcomed, wel'.kūmd; wel'com-ing (R. xix.), -com-er.

To bid welcome, to greet a guest and offer him hospitality.

"Welcome" and "Welfare" should have the double l restored. If it is said the Old Eng. wilcume has only one l, we reply, the Old Eng. wel-neah, wel-born, wel-dōn, and fifty others had only one l, but we write the words well-nigh, well-born, well-done, &c., and have above fifty other compounds of well all with double l. In regard to "welfare" the case is even worse. "Welfare" is simply a modern compound of well and fare, similar to the Germ. wohl-fahrt. Now, we have farewell, then why not wellfare?

O. Eng. wilcume, v. wilcum[ian], past wilcumode, p. part. wilcumod.

Wel'kin, the sky, only used in poetry. (O. E. welcn or wolcen.)

The v. wealcan is to roll, and wealc a revolving, whence also our wheel.

Well, a spring, a source, a pit for water, the cavity in which a staircase is placed, in good health, an interjection or pre-fatory conjunctive particle: as Well, as I said...

To well up, to bubble or spring up; welled (1 syl.), -ing.

As well, as lief, an elliptical expression as well as not: as "You may as well tell me" [as not do so].

As well as, together with, one as much as the other.

Wellbe'ing. Welldo'er, welldo'ing; welldone, wel.dūn'.

Wellnigh, wel.nī', almost. Welloff', thriving, prosperous.

(With between 50 and 60 others generally written with a hyphen.)

Well-drain. Well-head, -hēd, a source or spring. Well-hole, the well of a staircase. Well'-room, a place in a ship where the water is collected, a club-room at a watering-place. Well'-sinker. Well'-spring, a source of continual supply. The well-spring from on high, the ever-flowing never-ceasing grace of God.

Artesian-well, ar.tec'.sī.ăn..., a well or supply of water obtained by boring. (Lat. Artesium, Artois, in France.)

(?) WELL LOOKING. Is this expression a barbarism or not?

Certainly not. The Old English prefix wil-, pleasant, good, was employed in a host of compounds, some of which might be restored: wil-cuma, a pleasant comer or guest; wil-fēmnē, a pleasant woman; wil-geofu, an agreeable gift; wil-sele, a pleasant chamber; wil-sith, a delightful trip; wil-thege, nice food; and many more. In regard to "looking" meaning featured, the blunder is in our use of -ing to express four distinct parts of speech: the part. -ende, the gerund -enne, the adj. -ung, and the noun -ing, as "seeing is believing."

An absurdity very greatly to be regretted.

"Well" (a pit), Old English wæl, wælla, or wyl.

"Well" (adj., good, pleasant), Old Eng. wel, well, weall, or wyl.

"Well" (v., to bubble up), O. E. wel[ian], past welode, p.p. welod; or weall[an], past weoll, p. p. weallen or welan, to boil up or bubble.

Tō-wel, too well; wel neah, well nigh; wel-boren, well born; wel-dōn, well done; wā lā wā, well-a-day!

Welsh (not welch), the people or language of Wales, adj. of Wales.

Welsh-man, plu. Welsh-men or The Welsh, (fem.) Welsh-woman, plu. Welsh-women, -wīm'n. Welsh rab'bit, toasted cheese on bread (for Welsh rare-bit, tit-bit).

(If the name of a people ends in -ch (soft), -sh, -se, or -x, there are two plurals, one the definite and one the collective. The definite is formed by adding -man plu. men, (fem.) -woman plu. women: as two or three Welshmen. The collective plu. places "The" before the word: as The Dutch, the Scotch; the English, &c.)

Old English Walisc, Welisc, Wilsc, Wilisc, Wælac, &c. "Wales,"

Old Eng. weale, from wealth, a foreigner, that is, not a Saxon.

The Welsh word for "Wales" is Cymru (our Cambria), adj. Cymruain (our Cambrian). A "Welshman" is Cymro, a "Welshwoman" Cymraes, the "Welsh language" is Cymraeg.

Welt, a strip of leather sewed round the edge of the upper-leather of a boot or shoe to which the sole is attached, to welt; welt'-ed; welt'-ing, making a welt, material for a welt.

Welsh gwialdu, to welt; noun gwiald, a welt or hem.

Wel'ter, to wallow; wel'tered (2 syl.), wel'ter-ing. (O. E. wæltter.)

Wēn, Whēn. Wean = ween, Ween. Win, Whin.

Wen, a tumour; wenn'-y (R. i.). (O. E. wæn or wen.)

When, at what time, at which time. (Old Eng. hwenne.)

Wean, to remove from breast-food. (O. E. wēn[ian], -ode, -od.)

Ween, to suppose. (O. E. wēn[an], p. wēnde, p. p. wēned.)

Win, to gain. (Old Eng. winn[an], p. wan, p. p. wunen.)

Whin, gorse, furze, greenstone. (Welsh chwyn, a weed.)

Wench, a vulgar coarse woman. (O. E. wēncle, a handmaid.)

Wend, to go; wend'-ed, wend'-ing. Went, wend'-ed.

"Went" now supplements the verb "Go": as go, went, gone.

"Wend'-ed" is generally followed by the words my way, his way, her way, their way, &c.: as he wended his way home, that is, he trudged home, he made his way home.

Old English wend[an], past wende, past part. wended.

Were, wēr, part of the v. "To be." I was, thou wast, he was; plu. were. Subj. Were, every person, both sing. and plu.

Old Eng. wes[an], to be. Past SING. 1. wæs, 2. wære, 3. wæs, PLU. wæron; past Subj. SING. wēr-e, PLU. wēr-en.

Wesleyan, wēs'.lē.ăn, a disciple of John Wesley; Wes'leyan-ism, -izm, the doctrines and church government of the Wesleyan Methodists.

West, the cardinal point of the heavens opposite the east, the left-hand side of a map. West'ern, adj.

West'erly, lying towards the setting sun. West'ing, the distance which a ship makes westwards, setting.

West'-most. West'ward, adj.; west'wards, adv.; -ward-ly.

(The difference between westward and westwards is not strictly observed: but it should be, as the -s is the adverbial suffix.)

Old English west, western, westan (adv.), westward, westmost; west-north-wind, a north-wester; west-wind.

Wēt, humidity, to make humid. Whet, sharp, to make sharp.

Wett'-ed (R. xxxvi.), wett'-ing (R. i.), wett'-ish (-ish added to adj. is dim., added to nouns it means "like"), wet'-ness.

Wet'-dock, a dock where vessels float at all states of the tide.

Dry-dock, a dock where vessels lie dry at all states...

Wet'-shōd, having the shoes wet. Dry'-shod, without wetting the feet, having the shoes dry.

Wet'-nurse, a nurse that suckles a child. — Dry-nurse, a nurse that does not suckle the child she brings up.

"Wet," Old Eng. wæt, verb wat[an], past wætte, past part. watted; water, water. It is to be regretted that we change the vowel: in "wet" we represent æ with an e, in "water" with an a.

"Whet," O. E. hwet[an], p. hwette, p. p. hwetted, n. hwæt sharp.

Wether, Weather (both wéth'.er). Wheth'er. With'er. Whith'er.

Wether, a male sheep designed for slaughter. (O. E. weder.)

Weather, the state and temperature of the air.

Whether, if (O. E. hwædre), which of the two (O. E. hwæther.)

"Weather," O. Eng. wædor or weder, v. wedr[ian], p. -ode, p. p. -od.

"Wither," O. E. ge-wither[ian]. "Whither" (to what place), hwyder.

Wetherellia, weth'.er rēl'.ĭ.ah, "petrified coffee berries" from the London clay named after Mr. Wetherell.

Wey, way. "A wey of wool" = 182 lbs. or 6½ tods. "A wey of butter or cheese," 256 lbs. (Suffolk), but 336 lbs. (Essex).

"A wey of corn," 40 Winchester bushels. "Wey" is not now a legal measure, but the word is convenient to express a recognised quantity.

O. Eng. weg. For "Way," "Whey" (= whay), "Welgh," see Welgh. (N.B. Every word beginning with we-belongs to our native language, except well, which is Welsh gwald.)

Whack, to thump, to flog; whacked (1 syl.), whack'-ing, -er.

Same as thwack, Old Eng. hwacca, a box, by a pun a "box on the ears," a corruption of the Gk. pus, a blow or cuffing, whence pus agathos, a good whacking.

Whale (1 syl.) Wale, Wail (both wāle). Vale, Veil (both vāle).

Whale, the largest of sea-animals, pertaining to whales; whal-er, whā'.ler, a ship or person employed in the whale-fishery. Whale'-bone (2 syl.), a substance attached to the upper jaw of whales serving to strain the water which the creature takes into its mouth. (It is not bone, nor is it like bone.) Old English hwæl.

"Wale" (a bruise), Welsh gwial, a rod (the mark of a rod).

"Wail" (to bemoan), Welsh wyl, verb wylo; wylad, a wailing.

"Vale" (a valley), Lat. vallis. "Veil" (for the face), Lat. vēlum.

Wharf, plu. wharfs (not wharves), whorf. Warp, worp.

Wharf, a quay. Wharf-age, whorf'.idge, dues for the use of a wharf. Wharf'-ing, wharf in the abstract. Wharfing-er, whorf'in.djer, the proprietor of a wharf, one in charge of a wharf.

Warp, the threads lengthwise crossed from selvaige to selvaige by the woof or weft, to twist [by the action of heat].

(Of the 60 nouns ending in -f, only 12 form the plu. by changing -f into -ves, and all but two of these words ("thief," thieves; "beef," beeves) end in -af or -lf: as "leaf," leaves; "sheaf," sheaves; "loaf," loaves; "staff" (a stick), staves; "calf," calves; "half," halves; "elf," elves; "self," selves; "shelf," shelves; "wolf," wolves. One word in -lf (gulf-s) does not change the -f.)

"Wharf," Old Eng. hwearf or hweorf, plu. hwearfas (not hwarvas).

"Warp," O. Eng. wearp, v. wearp[an] to warp, p. wearp, p. p. worpen.

What, whōt. Wōt, to know (Old Eng. wit[an], pres. ic wāt).

What, that which, that, the thing, an exclamation of surprise.

What not, such-like things. What not, a piece of furniture consisting of shelves for nick-nackeries.

What if, an elliptical form of what will it matter if...

What though, whot tho, even supposing, allowing that.

Whatev'er or Whatsoev'er, the whole that, all which.

Sometimes these words are used with a word or more thrown in between what and ever or soever: as what [man] soever told you that, spoke falsely; what [could] ever induce you to do that.

What day, when is the day that. What time, at the time when, when. Somewhat, in a measure, a little.

"What," O. E. hwæt; hwæt-tha, what then; hwæt-lytles, somewhat.

Wheal, Wheel (both wheel). Weal, weel. We'll, weel. Well.

Wheal, a tin mine, as Wheal Grenville. (Cornish huel.)

Wheel, part of a carriage or cart. (O. E. hweol or hweohl.)

Weal, welfare, the state politic. (O. E. wæla, wela, or wala.)

We'll, for we will. Well, in health (Old English wel, well).

Wheat, wheet, grain so called; wheat-en, wheet'n, made of wheat; wheat-fly, phu. wheat-flies, insects which infest wheat.

Old English hwæte, hwæten; hwæle-gryttan, wheat-grits.

Wheat-ear, wheet'er, a ear of wheat, the ortolan.

Halliwell says "the ortolan is so called from its coming when wheat is in the ear." The bird is called white-tail, and "wheat" may be a corruption of whit, white.

Wheedle, wee'dl, to carny, to coax, to entice by fond words and ways; whee'dled (2 syl.), wheed'ling, -ly, wheed'ler.

German wedeln, to wag the tail; wedel, the tail.

Wheel, Wheal (both wheel). Weal, We'll (both weel).

Wheel, part of a carriage, &c., an instrument of torture, to trundle; wheeled (1 syl.), wheel'-ing; wheel'-er, one of a team of horses harnessed to the shafts.

Near wheeler, the shaft-horse on the left-hand side of the driver.

(The team-man walks on the left-hand side of his team, so that the left-hand horse is nearest him.)

Off wheeler, the shaft-horse on the right-hand side of the driver.

(As the team-man walks beside the horses on the left-hand side, the horses on the right-hand side are furthest off from him.)

The near leader, the fore-horse on the left-hand side.

The off leader, the fore-horse on the right-hand side.

Wheel'-barrow, a barrow furnished with a wheel (a hand-barrow has no wheel, but is carried by hand).

Wheel'-plough, -plow, a plough which goes on wheels (a hand-plough is a plough without wheels).

Wheel'-swarf, -sworf, a cement made in Sheffield from the abrasions of the grindstones.

Wheel'-window, a circular window with spoke mullions, also called a rose-window, a St. Catharine's wheel, &c.

Wheel'-work, -werk. Wheel-wright, -rite, a wheel maker.

Wheel and axle, -ax'l, one of the mechanical powers.

"Wheel," Old English hweol, hweohl, or hweogl.

"Wheal" (a tin-mine: as Wheal Mary Ann), Cornish huel.

"Weal" (welfare), Old Eng. wæla, wela, or wala. "Wale" (a bruise made by a stick) is the Welsh gwial, a rod.

"We'll," for we will. "Well" (in health), Old Eng. wel or well.

Wheeze (1 syl.), to sniffle in the act of breathing, to snort; wheezed (1 syl.), wheez'-ing (Rule xix), wheez'ing-ly, wheez'-er. (Old English hweos[an], to wheeze.)

Whēlk, a wilk. (Old English weolc, weoloc, weoluc, or weluc.)

Whēlm, to cover with water, to immerse, to overburden; whelmed (1 syl.), whelm'-ing. (Generally Overwhelm.)

German weltmeer, the ocean (to be in an ocean of troubles).

Whelp. Cub. Pup. Calf, kakf.

Whelp, the infant offspring of savage quadrupeds of the larger sort, as the lion, bear, &c.

Cub, the infant offspring of large wild and savage mammals, as the lion, bear; fox, wolf; whale, walrus, &c.

Calf, the infant offspring of the cow and elephant.

Pup (dim. pup'py), the infant offspring of the dog.

The distinction between Whelp and Cub is not clearly marked. We say a lion's cub or a lion's whelp, a bear's cub or a bear's whelp, but we never say a whale's whelp, a fox's whelp, &c. Metaphorically

Cub is a lout, an "unlicked bear," an uneducated bumpkin.

Calf, a simpleton, a dolt, a nincompoop.

Whelp, an uncouth or ungainly young fellow not quite a lout.

Pup or puppy, a coxcomb, a pragmatical conceited youth.

"Whelp," O. Eng. hwelp or welp. "Calf," O. Eng. cealf, plu. cealfru.

"Cub," Latin cubile; cubiculum, a bed-room; cubo, to lie in bed.

"Pup," Lat. pūpus, a child; Gk. bou-pais, the young of a cow.

Whēn, at what time, at the time that. Wēn, a tumour.

When-ev'er, when-soever, at whatever time.

"When," O. Eng. hwenne or hwenne. "Wen," O. E. wen, a swelling.

Whēnce (1 syl.), from what place, how. (Old Eng. hwanon.)

Where, whare. Ware, Wear (both ware). Wear, weer.

Where, to what place, from what place. Wher-ever, whair.ev'er, at whatever place, from what place.

Where-soev'er. Where-about (noun), the place where anything or person is. *Where-about*s (adv.), in what direction, in or near what place. (Whereabout as an adv. is wrong, as the -s is the adverbial suffix.)

Where-as', in-as-much-as. Where-at', at which, at what.

- Where are you staying at, at what place are you staying.
(Not an uncommon phrase, but open to the same objection as from whence, from thence. The expletive word is not grammatically needed, but it softens down the sentence.)
- Where-by', by which, by what. Where'-fore (2 syl.), for which reason, why.
(The final -e of "Wherefore" ought not to be tolerated. It is not be-fore or fore, meaning previous or in advance, but the prep. for, "for what reason.")
- Where-in', in what place, in which place, in which.
- Where-in'to (with a verb of motion), into which. Where-of', of which. Where-on', on which. Where-to', to which. Where-unto. Where-upon', upon or on which.
- Where-with', with which. Where''-withal', the means.
- "Where," O. E. hwær or hwear. "Ware" (merchandise), O. E. wāru.
"Wear," wære (to use as dress), O. E. wer[ian], p. werode, p. p. wecrod.
"Wear," weer (the dam of a river for catching fish), Old Eng. wær.
- Wher'ry, a ferry-boat, a light boat sharp at each end. Ver'y, exceedingly. (Latin vere, truly.)
"Wherry," same word as ferry. (Similarly "Whistle" is the Latin fistula, a whistle.) O. E. fērian (to carry), p. fērode, p. p. fērod.
- Whēt, to sharpen. Wēt, humid, to make humid.
- Whett'-ed, whett'-ing, whett'-er. Wet, wett'-ed, -ing.
- Whet-stone, a hone. Whet-slate, for sharpening tools.
"Whet," O. Eng. hwett[an], past hwette, past part. hwetted, n. hwet.
"Wet," Old Eng. wæt[an], past wætte, past part. wetted, noun wæt.
- Wheth'er. Weath'er. Weth'er. Whith'er. With'er.
- Whether*, if (O. E. hwædre), which of the two (O. E. hwæther).
Weather, the state and temperature of the air. (O. E. wæder.)
Wether, a male sheep for slaughter. (O. E. weder or wether.)
Whither, to what place, in what direction. (O. E. hwyder.)
Wither, to dry up. (O. E. ge-wither[ian], p. -ode, p. p. -od.)
- Whey, whay. Way, Wey, Weigh (all three way).
- Whey, the watery part of milk; whey'-ey, like whey; -ish.
"Whey," O. E. wæg. "Way" (a road), O. E. wæg, weg, wig, or wāth.
"Weigh" (to take the weight of), Old Eng. wæglan], wæh, gewegen.
"Wey" (182 lbs. of wool; 256 or 336 lbs. of cheese or butter), O. E. wæg.
- Which. Witch, a woman supposed to be devil-inspired.
- Which, a pronoun relative and interrogative of all genders and both numbers: as which man, which men; which woman, which women; which thing, which things. Which-ever, which-so-ever. (Which is sometimes severed from soever by one or more intervening words.)
"Which," Old English hwilc, hulic, whilc, a compound hwi and líc.
Matt. vii. 9. What man is there of you... Hwylc man is of eow...; and Mark iii. 33. Who is my mother? Hwylc is min moder?
"Witch," O. Eng. wicce, wicce-cræft, v. wicce[ian], p. -ode, p. p. -od.
"OUR FATHER which ART IN HEAVEN." Is this correct, or should it be who...? The reply is (1) Which used to apply to any gender, although as a relative it is now restricted to the neuter. We see above Hwylc moder and Hwylc man. Shakespeare says, "Then Warwick...which did subdue the greatest part of Spain" (3 Hen. VI. iii. 3). Gower has "Adrian, which pope was;" and "She which was thy norice" [nurse] (i. 29 and 195). (2) In the sentence under consideration there is an arrière pensée in the word which. "Who" would express a simple fact that Our Father is in heaven; "Our Father who-is-in-heaven," as "our son who-is-in-France," or "our daughter who-is-on-a-visit;" but which refers to the fatherhood, the paternity of the Father, and the sentence may be paraphrased thus: We have an earthly father, thou art our heavenly Father. The father which-is-of-earth hears us, how much more our Father which-is-of-heaven.

Whiff, a sudden puff of air or smoke. (Welsh chwiff, v. chwiffio.)

Whiffle, whif'fl, to waver. Whiffler, an officer who went before civic processions to clear the way by dexterously "whiffling" his sword. Whiffle-tree, the cross-bar to which traces are attached. (Old English wæflan.)

Whig, one of the "Liberal" or democratic party. Tory, tōr'ry, one of the "Church and State" party. (Extreme Whigs are called Radicals.) "Whigs" are now called Liberals, and "Tories" Conservatives.

The general policy of the Whigs is the removal of everything that obstructs progress. The general policy of the Tories is the reform of everything that needs reform. Setting aside the church of Rome and establishing what we call "dissent" is a specimen of Whig policy, but converting the Roman church into the Anglican church is a specimen of Tory policy.

(The etymology of these words is too long to find place here. Those who wish to enter upon the question may read Burnet's "Own Times" (article "Whig" in the index) and Clarendon's "History of the Rebellion," Bk. iv. Or they may turn to the dictionary called "Phrase and Fable," and read articles Tory and Whig.)

While (1 syl.). Wile (1 syl.). Vile (1 syl.)

While, during the time that, as long as, or Whilst.

Between' whiles, -whilz, at leisure intervals.

Worth while, worth the trouble, worth the pains.

To while away the time, to pass the time in pleasant idleness; whiled (1 syl.); whil-ing, whi'.ling.

("While" for until is provincial: as "I shall not go while [till] twelve," Yorkshire.)

"While" (as long as), Old Eng. whille, hwil, or hwille; Welsh chwyl.

"To while away," Welsh chylaw, to hover about, to while away.

"Wile" (a snare), Old Eng. wile. "Vile" (worthless), Latin vilis.

Whim, a fancy, a caprice; whimsey, plu. whimseys, a freak; whimsi-cal, whim'.sī.kāl, capricious; -cal-ness, -cal-ly.

Whimsicality, plu. whimsicalities, whim'.sī.kāl''ā.tiz.

Welsh chwym, impulse; chwimiol, impulsive, whimsical.

Whim'per, to cry with a whine; whim'pered (2 syl.), whim'per-ing, whim'pering-ly, -per-er. (A blunder for wimmer.)

Germ. wimmern, to whimper; but Germ. wimper means "an eye-lash."

Whin, gorse, darnel, greenstone. Win, to gain by competition.

"Whin," O.E. wynnung. "Win," O.E. winn[an], wan, wunnen.

Whine (1 syl.) Wine (1 syl.) Vine (1 syl.)

Whine, a plaintive cry, a drawl in a plaintive tone, to whine;
whined (1 syl.); whin-ing, whi'.ning; whi'ning-ly;
whin-er, whi'.ner. (The h is interpolated.)

"Whine," O.E. wdn[ian] to bewail, p. -ode, p. p. -od; Germ. weinen.

"Wine" (a beverage made from fruit), Old Eng. win; Latin vinum.

"Vine" (the grape plant), Old English win; Latin vinēa.

Whin'ny (not win'ny), the neigh of a horse, to whinny; whin-nies, whin'.niz; whinnied, whin'.nid; whin'ny-ing.

Latin hinnio to whinny, hinnus a horse or nag; Gk. hunnōs a colt.

Whip, an instrument for striking a horse, a coachman: as an excellent whip, one of the members of the House of Commons employed to bring up the members on important votes, to use a whip; whipped (1 syl.), whipp'-ing (R. i.), whipp'-er. Whipper-in', one whose office it is to keep the hounds together in a hunt and prevent their wandering.

Whip'-cord, cord employed for the lash of whips.

Whip'-hand, the upper hand, the mastery, the hand that holds the whip. Whip'-lash, the part of a whip which is made of whip-cord. Whip'-saw. Whip'-staff, plu. whip-staves (2 syl.), a bar for turning a rudder.

Whipp'-ing-post, to which persons to be scourged are tied.

To whip round the corner, to run off quickly and nimbly.

To whip out his sword, to draw out his sword quickly.

To whip [it] from..., to snatch it adroitly away from...

To whip up, to snatch up nimbly, to call and bring together.

With whip and spur, as fast as possible.

To have the whip-hand of..., to have the mastery over...

Old Eng. hweop, v. hweop[an], past hweopede, past part. hweoped.

Whir; a noise of partridges or pheasants' wings. Were, wēr.

To whir, whirred (1 syl.), whirr'-ing (Rule i.)

"Whir," an imitative word. "Were," Old English wis[an], to be.

Whirl. Whorl, whurl, in Bot. and Conch. (Latin verticūla.)

Whirl, a rapid motion round a centre, to whirl; whirled (1 syl.), whirl'-ing. Whirl'-about, a machine fitted with little cars and wooden horses for the amusement of children at a fair. Whirl'-bat. Whirl'-blast. Whirl'-bone (2 syl.) Whirl'-i-gig. Whirl'-pool. Whirl'-wind, the cause of waterspouts and sand pillars.

O. Eng. hwyrf[an], p. hwyrfde, p. p. hwyrfed, hwyrf-pól a whirlpool.

"World" [werld], to earth, the universe, O. Eng. worold or woruld.

Whisk (ought to be wisk), a small bunch of grass or hay incorrectly called a wisp, a machine for beating up eggs, cream, &c., the game of cards now called whist, an abrupt quick motion, to whisk; whisked (1 syl.), whisk'-ing.

German wisch, a whisk or wisp; verb wischen, to whisk or wipe.

Whisk'er, a bushy tuft of hair on the cheek of a man, the long feelers proceeding on each side of the mouth of many animals: as the cat, lion, tiger, &c.; whisk'ered (2 syl.), having whiskers; whisk'er-less; whisk'eran'do, a fop.

Perhaps from the Welsh gwisk, dress (the dress of the face).

Whisk'ey. Whisk'ky.

Whiskey, a single-horse chaise (which whisks along quickly).

Whisky, an ardent spirit distilled from barley, &c.

Gaelic ooshk'-a-pai (water of health), so called because by its introduction and use in Ireland the leper-houses rapidly disappeared.

Some think the last syl. is not pai (health) but beatha (life), and that the word is identical with "Usquebaugh," Irish uisge'-a-bagh (water of life), similar to the French eau-de-vie.

Whisp, see wisp, a handful of straw. (Should be whisk or wisk.)

Whisp'er, a very low-toned voice, something said in a very low tone, to whisper; whispered, whis'.pr'd; whisp'er-ing, whisp'ering-ly, whisp'er-er. Whisp'ering-gallery, plu.
-galleries, gũl'.lě.riz, a room which echoes even a whisper.

Old Eng. hwispr[ian], past hwisprede, p. part. hwispred, hwisprung.

Whist, a game of cards originally called whisk.

Perhaps from the Welsh gwŷs (invité), a summons or invitation for the other players to follow. Certainly Cotton's notion that the word means "silence," adopted by Dr. Johnson, is erroneous.

Whistle, whis'.sl, a shrill musical sound, an instrument to produce a whistling, the whistling of the wind, to whistle;
whistled, whis'.sl'd; whistling, whis'.ling; whistler, -ler.

Old Eng. hwistle, hwistlere, a whistler; verb hwistl[ian], hwistlung.

Whit, a small part. Wit, cleverness, strange association of ideas.

"Whit," O.E. wiht, anything. "Wit," O.E. wit, understanding, wit.

White (1 syl.) Wight, wite, a man (the g is interpolated).

White, a pigment, the opposite of black; white'-ness;
whiten, whi'.tn, to make white; whitened, whi'.tnd;
whiten-ing, white'n.ing. Whiting, whi'.ting, a fish, chalk prepared for several purposes.

Whited, whi'.ted, made white, as a whited sepulchre.

Whit'-ish, rather white (-ish added to adj. is dim., but added to nouns it means "like"). Whiten-er.

Whites (1 syl.), a disease, fine wheat flour; pastry-
whites, the best wheat flour for pastry.

The whites of the eyes. Whi'ty-brown paper.

- White'-bait, a fish. White-clō'ver. White-cop'per.
 White-fri'ar, the Carmelites who dress in white.
 Black friars, the Dominicans, who dress in black.
 Gray friars, the Franciscans, who dress in a grey habit.
 White'-heat, -heet. White-lead, -lēd. White-light, -lite.
 White-livered, -liv'rd. White-stone (2 syl.) -swell'ing.
 White-vit'riol, sulphate of zinc powdered.
 White'-wash, -wash, slaked lime diluted with water, to cover a surface with white-wash, to clear a bankrupt by passing him "through the courts;" white'-washed, -woshd; white'-washing, -wash'ing; white'-washer, -wash'er. White-water, a disease peculiar to sheep.
 White'-wine, any wine not red or claret.
 (White and red applied to wine are very loosely used. Straw-coloured sherry and rich dark brown sherry are white wines, and port wine is very far from being red.)
 "White," Old Eng. hwit or hwigt, hwit claser white clover, whit[ian] to make white, past whitode, past part. whitod, hwit-metas white meats, hwit-popig white poppy, hwit-stān white stone.
 "Wight," O. Eng. wiht or wiht (the g is abnormal and unnecessary).
 Whith'er. With'er. Whether. Weather = wether. Weth'er.
 Whither, to what place, to which place. Whith'er-so-ever.
 "Whither," O.E. hwider or hwyder. "Wither," O.E. ge-wither[ian].
 "Whether" (if), O.E. hwædre. "Whether" (of the two), O.E. hwæther.
 "Wether" (a male sheep for slaughter), Old English wether or weder.
 "Weather" (the state of the air, &c.), Old English wæder or weder.
 Whit'low, a sore about the nails or finger ends.
 Old Eng. hwit low, a white swelling (low, a tumulus or hillock).
 Whit'sun-day, the 7th Sunday after Easter kept in commemoration of the descent of the "Holy Ghost" on the day of pentecost. Whit'sun-tide, Whitsun-Monday (not Whit-Monday); Whitsun-Tuesday, Whitsun-week.
 Archbishop Trench says it means White-Sunday, and was so called from the white robes worn by catechumens who received the rite of baptism on the eve of this day. This is an error, and has given rise to the errors of Whit-Monday and Whit-Tuesday. The word is not Whit-Sunday, but Whitsun-day, as may be seen in the words whitsun-ale, whitsun-farthing, whitsun-lord, whitsun-tide, whitsun-week, &c. Probably the word is a corruption of whitsun-dæg = "wisdom day" (the day when the apostles were made wise by the gift of the Holy Ghost). Hence the following rhyme.
 This day Whitsunday [whitsun-day] is cald,
 For wisdom and wit serenē fald
 ...to the apostles at this day.
 (Camb. Univ. MSS. Dd. i. p. 234.)
 If it is objected that Whitsun- is spelt with an h, we reply that wit (wisdom) is sometimes spelt with an h also: as I shalle the [thee] whyte [tell] (Camb. Univ. MSS. Ff. v. 48, f. 53).
 Whittle, whit'tl, a small pocket-knife, to cut or pare sticks for pastime; whittled, whit'tld; whitt'ling, whitt'ler.
 Old English hwytel, a knife, hwetel sharp, our whet, to sharpen.

Whiz, the sound of a projectile through the air, to whiz; whizzed (1 syl.), whizz'-ing (R. i.), whizz'-ing-ly. (An imitative word.)

Who, whoo, (poss.) whose, (obj.) whom (who and whom are used only with persons), interrogative and relative.

Old Eng. Nom. hwa or hwō (mas. and fem.), hwæt or hwat (neuter).

Gen. hwæs or whos (of all genders).

Dat. hwam or wham (of all gen., but now limited to persons).

"Whose" is not strictly limited to persons: for example—

Every tree.... whose seed is in itself (Gen. 1. 14).

A tower whose top may reach to heaven (Gen. xi. 4).

On a rock whose haughty brow (Gray, "The Bard").

Be not as the horse and mule whose mouth must be. (Ps. xxxii. 9).

RULE. When to use Who and when to use Whom.

If its verb follows instantly use Who. If a noun or pronoun (with or without an auxiliary) intervenes use Whom. With a governing preposition use Whom.

(Very great care must be taken to separate parenthetical words and to supply words omitted before this test is applied.)

Who told you? Whom [you] told. The man who is honest is trusted.

The man whom [I] trusted is honest. (See Ser. viii. 2.)

So in questions: Who speaks? Who was speaking? Who has spoken?

But Whom [are you] blaming? Whom [has he] sent?

ERRORS OF SPEECH—

Who are you speaking of? (Of whom are you speaking?)

Whom say ye that I am? (Who is it you say that I am?), Matt. xvi. 15.

(The same error occurs in Mark viii. 29; and in Luke ix. 20. The

Fr. translation is: Et vous, qui dites-vous, que je suis? The Gk. is:

ὅμοις δὲ τίνα με λέγετε εἶναι. If τίνα is whom, me should be me, and the words would run thus: Whom say ye [that] me am?

Whom think ye me to be? would be correct. Comp. Ps. lix. 7.)

Those who he thought true to his party [whom he thought] (Clarendon).

Who should I see [there] but the Dr. [whom should] (Spect. No. 57).

I know who you mean. Who did you meet last night? [whom].

Who should I meet... but my old friend [whom] (Sloet).

Fail not thou who thee implores (Milton) is correct, for if complete the sentence would be "Fail not thou him who thee implores."

Whom have I in heaven but thee [correct] (Ps. lxxiii. 25).

I heard a voice saying, Whom shall I send [correct] (Isa. vi. 8).

Who is he like? [whom] (See Ezek. xxxi. 18).

Whole, Hole (both hōle). Hūll.

Whole (not wōle), the tōtal, the entirety, every part, sound, not broken, entire, all; whole-ness, soundness; whole-length [portrait], a picture representing the entire stature. Wholly, hō'-ly, entirely. Holy, sacred, hallowed.

("Whol-ly" is quite abnormal, and ought to be written wholly.)

Every other adverb of words in -le retain the final -e: as fertile-ly, pale-ly, servile-ly, stale-ly, subtile-ly, and vile-ly. The e should be restored to two other adverbs equally abnormal, viz. du-ly and tru-ly. We keep it in blue-ly, vague-ly. The final -e is retained in all the 315 adverbs from adj. ending in -e final, except in du-ly, tru-ly, and whol-ly, and there is no reason why these three words should be exceptions to the general rule.)

"Whole," O. E. walg or wealg. "Wholly," O. E. walg-lice. "Holy,"

O. E. hūlig. "Hull," O. E. hūlc.

Whole-sale, hōle'-sāle, sale in the mass. Re'tail, sale in small quantities. (Merchants sell wholesale, shopkeepers sell retail.) Old Eng. walg or onwalg, with sele or selen.

Whole-some, hōle'-sūm, not pernicious, useful, salutary; whole'-some-ness, -some-ly. (O. E. walg-sum; Germ. heilsam.)

Whom, hoom, objective case of who (q. v.)

ERRORS OF SPEECH—

Our ancestor was heir to we know who [whom], R. Browning.

I would dance.. with you know who [whom], The Widow Married.

If now no doubt be left of who I am (correct), W. Morris (that is, no doubt of this, viz., who I am).

Claim it of who would take it (correct), R. Browning (that is, claim it of him who would take it).

Law most distasteful to who calls in law (correct), R. Browning (that is, distasteful to him who calls it in).

All say good words to who will hear (correct), R. Browning (that is, to him or to those who will hear).

The prisoner claimed protection against some one whom she said had beat her [who], Police Report.

Who serv'st thou under [under whom], Shakespeare.

Let me see, who do I know among them? [whom], Southey.

Who did you see on the parade to-day? [whom], Hon. G. Berkeley.

Persons whom I know are English use the word [who] (that is, persons who are English, I know), Queen of Connaught.

The gag was forced into the mouth of whomsoever lifted up his voice against the state [of all whosoever], Queen of Connaught.

Whoop. Swoop. Hoop. Whōp. Swōp. Hōp.

Whoop, a war-cry, to yell, to shout defiantly; whooped (1 syl.), whoop'-ing. War'-whoop.

Whoop'-ing-cough, -kōff, or Hoop'-ing-cough.

"Whoop," Old Eng. hweōp or wōp, wōp[an], p. wōpte, p. p. wōped.

"Swoop" (to pounce down on), O. E. a-swāp[an], p. sweop, p. p. swopen.

"Hoop" (a circlet of wood or metal), Old English hōp.

"Whōp" (a heavy blow, to thump), O. E. hweop a whip, v. hweop[an].

"Swōp" (an exchange, to exchange), O. E. cedp a bargain, v. cedp[an].

"Hōp" (to jump on one foot), Old Eng. hopp[ian] to hop or dance, hoppere a dancer. "Hop" (a plant), Germ. hopfen.

Whore, hoo'r, a harlot; whore'-dom; whore'-monger, -mūng'.r; whor-ish, hoo'r'-ish; whor'-ish-ness; whor-ing (R. xix.)

In the Bible "to go a-whoring," &c., means to go after false gods, to forsake Jehovah for the worship of idols, but this meaning is restricted to the Bible, and no such phrase is now used.

Old English hōre or hūre, hōredóm. (The w is interpolated.)

Whorl, whurl. Whirl. Wall, wawl.

Whorl (in Bot.), branches, leaves, or flowers arranged like spokes round a common centre, as the flower of the dead-nettle, the branches of the fir, and the leaves of ladies'-bed-straw. (In Conch.) a turn of the spire of a univalve shell; whorled (1 syl.), arranged in whorls; whorl'er, a potter's wheel.

Whirl, a rotatory motion, to rotate quickly, to hurl.

Wall, a structure. (Old English weal, wál, or wáll.)

"Whorl," Lat. verticillus or verticūla, a little whorl or whirl; vertex.

"Whirl," Old Eng. hwyrf[an], past hwyrfdē, past part. hwyrfed.

Whortle-berry, whur''tl.běr'ry, the berry of the whortle shrub, the shrub itself, similar to the bilberry, cranberry.

"Whortle" (a blunder for heorot or hortle), Old Eng. heorot-berie, the hert or hart berry; heorot-brembel, the hertle-berry bush.

Whose, whooz, poss. of who. (Not now used except in reference to persons. In the Bible and in poetry it is used with things and dumb animals. (See Who.)

ERRORS OF SPEECH—

I passed a house whose windows were all open [the windows of which].

Let us build...a tower whose top [shall] reach unto heaven (Gen. xi. 4).

Trees whose fruit withereth [the fruit of which] (Jude 12).

I dislike a book whose leaves are uncut [the leaves of which].

Why, for what reason, wherefore, also an emphatic and prefatory particle: as "why, no, by no means." "What should you do if you were to fall?" "Why, get up again."

If her chill heart I cannot move,

Why, I'll enjoy the very love. (Cowley.)

(Nearly all the words beginning with wh- are native; the following are the exceptions: Germ. whelm, whimper, whisk; Welsh whiff, whim; Latin whinny; Irish whisky; Doubtful whisker, whist.)

-wick or -wich (suffix of the names of places), a dwelling, a creek, a camp, a town: as Ber-wick = běr'rik (the hill-town); Nor-wich = nōr'ridge (the north-town).

Wick, the thread or rush in the middle of a candle, the cotton oil conductor of a lamp. (Old Eng. wecca or weocca.)

Wick'-ed, (comp.) wick'ed-er, (super.) wick'ed-est, sinful; wick'ed-ness, wick'ed-ly. The wick'ed.

Old Eng. wicee, a witch; wiccod, bewitched, leagued with the devil.

Wick'-er, made of osiers. Wick'er-basket. Wicker-work, -wurk, constructed of osiers. (Germ. zweig, a twig.)

Wick'et, a door-window, a narrow door in a large massive one, the three rods and their bails in cricket. (Welsh gwiced.)

Wick'liff-ite, a follower of Wick'liffe, the reformer (1324-1384).

Wide (1 syl.), comp. wid-er, wi'der, super. wid-est, wi'dest, broad, not narrow, distant; wide'-ly, wide'-ness.

Wid-en, wi'dn, to make wide (-en converts adj. to verbs); widened, wi'dnd; widen-ing, wide'ning.

Width (-th converts adj. to abstract nouns).

Wide'-awake, on the alert, alive to one's own interest.

Wide-gauge, -gāge (on railways), a distance of rails exceeding 4 ft. 8½ in. Narrow-gauge, a distance of 4 ft. 8½ in. between the rails. Broad-gauge, 7 ft. between the rails.

Old English wid or wyd, (comp.) widor, (super.) widost.

Widgeon, widg'-ūn, a migratory fowl of the duck kind called the "bald-pate" from its white pate. (French vingeon.)

Widow, wid'ō, a woman who has lost her husband. Wid'ow-er, a man who has lost his wife. Wid'ow-hood (-hood, state of). Widowed, wid'ōde, made a widow.

Old Eng. widuwe, weoduwe, weodewe or wuduwe a widow, wuduwa a widower, wuduwan-hād widowhood.

Wield, Weald (both weeld). Wheeled, weeld. Weld.

Wield, to use [the sword], to hold [the sceptre], to sway; wield'-ed, wield'-ing; wield'-y, handy, manageable.

"Wield," Old English weald[an], past weold, past part. wielden.

"Weald" (a wood or what was once a wood), O. Eng. weald or wald.

"Wheeled" (furnished with wheels), Old English hweol, a wheel.

"Weld" (to join by heat), German wellan.

Wife (1 syl.), plu. wives (1 syl.), masc. hūsbānd. Wife, a wedded woman; wife'-ly, wife'-less, wife'-hood (-hood, state of).

To wive (1 syl.), to marry a wife; wived (1 syl.); wiv-ing.

(We have 6 nouns ending in -fe, 3 of which add -s to form the plu., and 3 change -fe into -ves: g.e. fiſe-s, striſe-s, saſe-s (a closet):

"knife," knives; "life," lives; "wife," wives. The latter 3 are abnormal, and would be far better formed like the former 3.)

Old Eng. wif, plu. wifu; wiflice, wifely; verb wif[ſ]ian, past wifode, past part. wifod. (The f preserved throughout.)

Wig, a false head of hair. Whig, a political democratic party.

Wigged, wigd (1 syl.), wearing a wig. A wigging, a scolding.

A big wig, a magnate. Wig, a small cake or simnel.

Ear-wig, an insect. (Old Eng. wigga or wicga, a worm.)

(The ear worm or insect is so called because its hind wings resemble in shape the human ear.)

"Wig," Latin pilucca, a head of hair; Ital. perucca; Fr. perruque; our periwig contracted into 'wig. In the middle of the 18th century there were thirty different sorts of wig in use: the drop-wig, the small back, the spinage-seed, the artichoke, the pigeon's wing, the staircase, the ladder, the brush, the wild boar's back, the corded wolf's paw, the rhinoceros, the she-dragon, the rose, the crutch, Count Saxe's mode, the chancellor's, the half-natural, the chain buckle, the cut bob, the long bob, the Jansenist bob, the Welsh wig, the scratch wig, the bag wig, the bush wig, the Louis wig, and the Dutch wig.

Wight, wite, a man. White (1 syl.), the opposite of black.

"Wight," O. Eng. wiht (g interpolated). "White," O.E. hwit or hrwīt.

Wigwām, an Indian cabin or hut.

Knisteneaux wigwawm; Algonquin wigwauwam, wig or wik a house. Compare Anglo-Saxon wic a dwelling, Latin vicus a town.

Wild, (comp.) wild'-er, (super.) wild'-est, not tamed, not domesticated, uncivilised, desert, confused; wild'-ly.

Wild'-ness, a wild state. Wil'-der-ness, a desert.

Wild beast, a savage animal: as a lion, tiger, &c.

(The French make an excellent distinction between Wild animal and Savage animal: the former they apply to hares, rabbits, foxes, &c., which run wild or are not domesticated, and the latter to lions, tigers, leopards, &c., which have a savage nature.)

Wild boar'. Wild cat'. Wild duck'. Wild'-fire (2 syl.)

Wild'-flower, not a garden flower. Wild'-fowl. Wild-goose'. Wild-goose-chase, the pursuit of something not at all likely to prove successful. Wild honey, -hūn'ny.

Wild oats, -ōtz'. To sow one's wild oats, to pass through a period of dissipation. A wild'-ing, a crab apple.

"Wild" means following one's own will. O. E. wild, willan to will.

Wile (1 syl.) While (1 syl.) Vile (1 syl.) (Lat. vilis, vile, base.)

Wile, an artifice, a trick, craftiness; wil-y, wi'ly; wi'li-ly, wi'li-ness. (Old Eng. wile. Sax. Chron. 1128.)

"While" (during the time that), O. E. hwil or hwitle; Welsh chwyl.

Wilk or Whēlk, a shell-fish. (Old English weolc or weoloc.)

Will, a wish, a testament, to determine, also an auxiliary.

There are three verbs, the auxiliary and two active verbs. One of the latter means to wish, and the other to bequeath by will.

(1) Will (auxiliary), added to the present tense of a verb.

In the 1st person sing. and plu. it implies a promise or intention.

In the other persons it implies simple futurity: as

I will come and see you (promise). We will call on the rector (intention). He will writs [to-morrow], They or you will..(futurity).

Would, wood (auxiliary employed in the Conditional Mood).

1st person expresses conditional promise or intention.

The other persons express an act under a condition or contingency:

I would write if...., I would have written if....

He would write if...., They would have written if....

(2) Will, to wish, to like, (3 pers. sing.) will, not wills. Would, pres. indic., conditional, and past tense = wish, should wish, and wished

("Would," pres. tense, is the verb wyll[an], pres. ic wolde I wish.)

Let her go whither she will [likes] (Deut xxi. 14).

Whoever will [wishes], let him take...freely (Rev xxii. 17).

What I would [wish]..I do not; but what I hate..I do (Rom. vii. 15).

(Here "would" and "hate" are in the same tense and mood.)

And the king said, What wouldest [wishest] thou? (1 Kings i. 15).

PAST TENSE: Whom he would [wished] he slew, and whom he would he kept alive, and whom he would he set up, &c. (Dan. v. 19).

PRES. SUBJ.: I would [should wish] it might be.... (Gen. xxx. 34).

We would [should like] that thou shouldst do.... (Matt. x. 35).

Whatsoever ye would [would wish] that men should do unto you, do ye even so unto them (Matt. vii. 12).

PAST SUBJ.: If he would [liked] he could make me clean.

Thou gavest them into their hands that they might do with them as they would [might wish] (Neh. ix. 24).

FUT. SUBJ.: When thou wast young...thou walkedst whither thou wouldest (didst like, past tense): but when thou shalt be old...another shall carry thee whither thou wouldest not [wouldest not wish, fut. tense] (John xxi. 18).

I fear when I come (fut. tense) I shall not find you such as I would [should wish, fut. subj.], and that I shall be found such as you would not [would not wish] (2 Cor. xii. 20).

INF. MOOD: To will [to wish] is present with me, but..(Rom. vii. 18).

PAST: Not willing [liking] that any should perish (2 Pet. iii. 9).

- (3) Will, to bequeath by will; (3 sing.) wills, (past) willed, (past part.) willed (1 syl.) This verb is quite regular.

SHALL AND WILL.

- 1st person. WILL expresses the pleasure of the speaker.
SHALL, the auxiliary of the future tense of a verb.
 2nd & 3rd pers. WILL is the auxiliary of the future tense of a verb.
SHALL expresses compulsion (moral, legal, or physical).
 1st person. WOULD is part of the verb To will (to be willing).
SHOULD is the auxiliary of the Conditional Mood.
 2nd & 3rd pers. WOULD is both auxiliary and an independent verb.
SHOULD = ought, expresses duty, obligation, right.
 As shall denotes obligation in the 2nd and 3rd persons, it is used to express commands, promises, and predictions: as Command: Thou shalt not steal (Gen. xx. 15).
 Promise: He that believeth shall be saved (Mark xvi. 16).
 Prediction: This story shall the goodman teach his son;
 And Crispin Cuspian shall ne'er go by....
 But we in it shall be remembered (Henry V. iv. 3).

¶ IN DEPENDENT SENTENCES

- Shall* and Will follow the present and future;
Should and Would follow the past tenses.
 PRES.: I fear..... I shall be too late, or We shall....
 I fear..... He will be too late, or You, They....
 FUT.: If you will send it to him I shall be glad.
 If you will send it, you will much oblige me.
 PRES. CONTIN.: I am thinking I shall be too late, or We....
 He will be too late, or You, They....
 PAST: I knew I should be too late.
 He would be too late.

¶ Contingent willingness in both clauses:

- All persons, WILL followed by WILL or WOULD.
WOULD WILL or WOULD.
 I will if you will or would let me. "They will if you will or would.."

¶ Promise based on a contingent uncertainty:

- 1st person SHOULD followed by WILL or WOULD.
 (modern) AM WILL.
 If I should be [or am] in town I will, or would, look over the house.
 2nd & 3rd pers. SHOULD followed by SHALL or SHOULD.
 (mod.) IS or ARE SHALL or SHOULD.
 If you should be [are] in town you shall, or should, see the house.

"Will" (a wish), Old Eng. will, willa, self-willa, willendlice willingly;
wiln a wish, verb wiln[ian], past wilnode, past part. wilnod;
willa a wish, verb will[ian], past wolde, willende wishing;
will[ian] to wish, past willode, past part. wilod, willice;
wyll[ian] pres. ic wolde I would or I wish, also wolen pres. ic wol.
 "Wo'nt" is a relic of this verb, wol-not (wo'n't).

ERRORS OF SPEECH—

- I will [shall] be drowned, no one shall [will] save me.
 The same occurs on p. *, will [shall] we alter that too?
 If this correction stands good, will [shall] we omit the rest of the line?
 Which air I would [should] be glad to recover (Wm. Chambers).
 I told him I would [should] not feel justified in so doing (Jas. Grant).
 I am too tired to come to you as I would [should] like to have done.
 I would [should] like him better to be angry than indifferent; and yet would, [should] I? (Too Soon ii. 1).
 "Would you like to go to St. John's?" "In what capacity would [should] I have to go?" (The Gilded Age i. 154).
 I would [should] have some compunctions.... (Jas. Grant).
 Inform Mr. — I will [shall] be home the first... (N. & Q. 1876, p. 460).

I am sure I will [shall] be thanked by all the brotherhood (Jas. Grant).
If in you I find such sentiments as these, will [shall] I not be forced to think it poverty of spirit? (Helena's Household).

Must I live without you? Will [shall] I never see you more? (ditto).

Wil'y-nil'y, perforce, willing or not. (A ricochet word, R. lxix.)

Old English wyll[an] to be willing, nyll[an] to be unwilling.

Will'-o'-the-wisp, an ignis fatuus, a Jack o' lanthorn.

Willow, wil'.lo, a tree; willowed, wil'.lode, abounding in willows; wil'low-y, abounding in willows, resembling the willow.

Old English welig, wileg, or wilig; Latin salix.

Wilt is not a contraction of willest, but an old Norse form.

Wimble, wim'.bl, a boring-tool. (Welsh guimbill, chwim.)

Wimple, wim'.pl, a nun's hood. (Germ. wimpel, a banderol.)

Win, (p. and p.p.) won = wūn, to gain; winn'-ing (R. i.), gaining, attractive; winn'-er, winn'-ing-ly. Win'nings, gains.

Old Eng. winn acquisition, v. winn[an], past wan, past part. wunnen.

Wince, to shrink back, to flinch; winc'd (1 syl.); winc-ing, wīn'.sing; winc-er, -ser, (Welsh gwingo, to wriggle.)

Winch, a crank. (Old English wince, a winch, a reel.)

Wind, air in motion. Wind, to twist.

Wind; wīnd'-y, gusty; wīnd'-i-ness; wīnd'-ed, out of breath; wīnd-age, the difference between the diameter of the bore and that of the shot.

Wīnd'-less, without wind. Wīnd'-lass, a machine for raising weights.

Wīnd'-bag. Wīnd'-bound. Wīnd'-brōken, broken winded.

Wīnd'-fall, -fawl, fruit blown down by the wind.

Wīnd'-flower, the anem'ōnē. Wīnd'-gauge, -gāge. Wīnd'-gall, -gawl. Wīnd'-instrument, a musical instrument vocalised by the breath. Wīnd'-mill. Wīnd'-pipe, the trachē'a. Wīnd'-rose (2 syl.), the thirty-two points of the mariner's compass in a round robbin.

Wind-sail, wīnd'.sl, a canvas funnel for conveying air into the lower apartments of a ship. Wind-ward, wīnd'.ard, in the direction of the wind.

In the wīnd's eye, in the direct point from which the wind blows. In the teeth of the wind, against it.

Between wīnd and water, that part of a ship which is tossed above the water by the rolling of the vessel.

Down the wīnd, moving in the direction of the wind.

Three sheets in the wīnd, unsteady from hard drinking.

To raise the wīnd, to procure money, to find finances.

To get wīnd, to be divulged, to become rumoured about.

To take the wīnd out of one's sail, to circumvent,

Wind, to twist, (past and past part.) wound (to rhyme with found, ground); wind'-ing, wind'-ing-ly, wind'-er.

Wind'-ing-sheet, a cloth in which a dead body is wrapped.

To wind off. To wind out. To wind up.

"Wind" (air in motion), Old Eng. wind; windig or windi, windy.

"Wind" (to twist), Old Eng. wind[an], past wind, p. part. wunden.
(The Old English u = ou in house.)

Wind'lass, a machine for raising water from a well, anchors, &c.

Probably a winding-lace or rope, or from Fr. guinder to hoist, guindal.

Windle-straw, wín'.dl..., straw for plaiting. (O.E. windel streow.)

Window, wín'.dō (not wín'.der), a casement; windowed, -dōde.

Win'dow blind, a covering for a window. Win'dow-bolt.

Win'dow-frame. Win'dow-glass. Win'dow-sash.

Window sill (not sell.) Win'dow shutter. Window-tax.

Dan. vindue, vindue-bolt, vindue-post, vindue-skodde window-shutter.

Wine (1 syl.) Whine (1 syl.) Vine (1 syl.)

Wine, the fermented juice of fruit; win-y, wí.ny, like wine; wine'-bibber, a tippler; wine'-bibbing, tippling.

Wine'-coloured, -kúl'.lrd. Wine'-biscuit, -bis'.kít.

Wine'-cellar, -sél'.ler, a place for storing wine. Wine'- seller, one who has a licence to sell wine. -cool'er.

Wine decanter, -de.kún'.ter. Wine'-glass. -merchant.

Wine'-press, a machine for pressing out the juice of grapes.

"Wine," Old Eng. wín, wín-fet a wine-vat; Latin vínium.

"Whine," Old Eng. wín[ian] to bewail, past wínode, p. part. wínod;
Germ. weinen. "Vine" (the plant which bears grapes), Lat. vínea.

Wing, a limb for flying, a side of a main building, the extreme right or left of an army, to fly, to wound in the wing; winged (1 syl.), wing'-ing, wing'-less, wing'-lēt, wing'- case, wing'-shell. On the wing, flying.

Under one's wing, under one's protection.

O. Eng. winge. (Altsächsische und Angel-sächsische Sprachproben, Leo.)

Wink, a blink, to blink; winked (1 syl.), wink'-ing, wink'-er.

Wink'ers or blinkers, part of the harness of draught horses.

Old English winc[ian], past wincode, past part. wincod.

Winkle, wín'.kl, a wilk. (O.E. wincle, wín'ē-wincle a periwinkle.)

Winnow, wín'.nō, a sieve. Winner, wín'.ner, one who wins.

To winnow, to sift; winnowed, wín'.nōde; -now-ing, -er.

Old Eng. windw[ian], past windwode, past part. windwod, winnung.

Winsome, wín'.sūm, light-hearted, innocently gay. (O.E. winsum.)

Win'ter, the coldest season of the year, to pass the winter;
win'tered (2 syl.), win'ter-ing. Win'ter-y or win'try,
adj. of winter; win'ter-ly, like winter, suitable to winter.

Winter solstice, -söl'stīs, the period when the sun is at its furthest distance off. The opposite point is the Summer...

(With us, in the northern hemisphere, it is when the sun has come to the furthest point south of the ecliptic—as the sun approaches and leaves this point the arc is so small there is no appreciable difference in the length of the day and night for about three days—this is the “solstice” or stand-still point.)

Winter quarters, -kwor'terz, the station occupied [by an army] during the winter months.

Old Eng. winter (i.e. the windy period), winterlic winterly, winterlice adv., wintre yearly, because the Anglo-Saxons reckoned by winters instead of years: as twi-winter two years, thri-winter three years. The year began on the first full-moon in October.

Winze (1 syl.), a small shaft in a mine either for ventilation or for testing the ore. Wins, wīnz, of the verb to win, to gain.

Wipe (1 syl.), a rub, to rub; wiped (1 syl.); wip-ing, wī'ping; wip-er, wī'per. Wipers, wī'perz, the cogs of a horizontal wheel. To wipe out. To wipe away.

Old English wipian, past wipede, past part. wiped, wipung.

Wire (1 syl.), metal drawn into thread, to snare, to bind with wire; wired (1 syl.); wir-ing, wīr'ing; wir-y, wīr'ry; wīri-ness, the state of being tough or like wire.

Wire-draw, to draw metal into wire; wire'-drawn, wire'-draw-ing, wire'-draw-er. Wire'-gauze, wire cloth.

Wire-puller (pull- to rhyme with bull, full). Wire-worm, -worm. Wire-rope. Wire-worker, wūr'ker. (O. E. wīr.)

-wise (1 syl.), in the direction of: as length-wise, in the direction of the length; slant-wise, in a slanting direction.

In any wise, certainly. In no wise, by no means. Like'-wise (2 syl.), also. On this wise, in this way. Other-wise, if not, in any other manner or direction.

The use of -ways for wise is to be guarded against. O. E. -wīs, -wise.

Wise, wīze, sage, (comp.) wis-er, wī'zer, (super.) wis-est, wī'zest; wise'-ly, in a wise manner, judiciously.

Wisdom, wīz'dūm, the outcome of what is wise, the practical exhibit of what is wise. Wise-hearted, wīze hart'ed.

Old English wīs, wīslīc adj., wīslīce adv., wīsnas, wīsdōm.

Wise-acre, wīze'a.ker, a simpleton who makes pretensions of wisdom. (A corruption of Germ. weissager, a wise-sayer.)

Wish, a desire, to desire; wished (1 syl.), wish'-ing, wish'-er.

Wish'-ful, showing desire, eager, ardent; wish'-ful-ly, -ness.

O. E. wisc[an], p. wiscete or gewisced, p. p. wiscet, wiscere a wisher, -ing.

Wish-wash, thin vapid stuff. Wish'y-wash'y, thin and vapid.

(Ricochet words, of which we have a large number. See R. lxi.)

Wisp, a handful of straw (for wisk. Whisp is quite wrong).

Germ. wisch a small bundle. Dan. risk, v. viske to rub with a wisp.

Wist, to know, knew. Whist, a game of cards (for wisk).

Wist'-ful, wishful, inquiring; wist'ful-ly, wist'ful-ness.

Old Eng. wiste or wisste knew, v. wit[an], past wiste, p. part. witen.

Wistaria, wis.tair'ri.ah (should be westaria), a North American climbing plant. (Named after G. Westar, of America.)

Wit. Whit, a jot, a small piece. (O. E. wiht, a thing, anything.)

Wit, a strange association of ideas. A wit, one who is witty; witt'-y (R. i.), endowed with wit, containing wit; witt'i-ly, witt'i-ness. Wit'-less, wit'less-ly, -less-ness.

Wit'-ling, a pretender to wit. Witt'i-cism, -sizm.

Wits, senses. At [my] wits' end, perplexed.

To live by one's wits, to live by shifts and expedients.

To wit, namely. I do you to wit, I make you to know
(2 Cor. viii. 1; a Latinism no longer in use).

Old English wit or witt; wittig, witty; wittiglice, wittily.

Witch. Which, pronoun relative and interrogative. (O. E. hwylc.)

Witch, a sorceress, (mas.) wiz'ard, (v.) bewitch', to fascinate.

The witch'ing time of night, i.e., when witches appear.

Witch'-craft. Witch'-ery, enchantment, fascination.

Witch'-elm. Witch-ha'zel. Witch'en or rowan tree (the mountain ash). These trees were supposed to be charms against witches. (O. E. wice, a witch or witchen tree.)

Their spells were vain. The hags returned

To their queen in sorrowful mood,

Crying, that witches have no power

Where there is witchen wood.

(Laidy Worm of Spindleston Heughs.)

Old Eng. wicca a witch, wicca-rad a wizard, wicce-craft, v. wiccian.

Witena-gemot, wit'.ĕn.ah gĕ.mōte', the assembly of wise-men summoned by the king before the Conquest, and consisting of prelates, ealdermen, dukes, earls, thanes, abbots, priests, and deacons. (Old English witena gemōt.)

With, in company of, on the side of. Withe, wīth, a willow wand.

With-al', -awl, likewise. Where'-withal, how.

"With," O. E. wid or with. "Withe," O. E. wid grass, weotho-bend.

With- (native prefix), away from, back, against, in opposition to.

With-draw', to draw back, to retire, to recall; with-drew', with-drawn', with-draw'ing. With-draw'-āl. -ment.

With-draw'ing-room or Drawing-room, a room into which ladies retire from the society of the gentlemen.

O. Eng. with- drag[an], p. dróg or dróh, p. p. drægen; Lat. traho.

With-hold', to hold back, to refuse; with-held', -hold'-ing, with-hold'-er. With-hold'-en (used only in poetry).

Old English with- heald[an], past heold, past part. healden.

With-stand', to stand against, to resist; with-stood', with-stand'-ing; not-withstand'ing, nevertheless, in spite of.

Old Eng. withstand[an], past withstód, past part. withstanden.

Withe, wírh, a willow twig. With, in company of, likewise.

Withed, wírhð, bound with withes (1 syl.); with'-y.

"Withe," Old Eng. wid or weotho. "With," Old Eng. wid or with.

With'er. Whith'er. Wheth'er. Weather = wéth'er. Weth'er.

Wither, to fade; with'ered (2 syl.), with'er-ing, -ing-ly.

"Wither," Old Eng. ge-wither[ian], past -witherode, p. p. -witherod.

"Whither" (to what place, in what direction), Old Eng. hwyder.

"Whether" (if), O.E. hwædre. "Whether" (of the two), O.E. hwæther.

"Wether" (a male sheep for the butcher), O. Eng. wether or weder.

"Weather" (the state of the air), Old Eng. wæder, v. wedrian.

Witherite, wíth'ēr.îte, a carbonate of bary'tes (3 syl.)

Discovered by Dr. Withering, at Anglesark, in Lancashire.

Withers, wíth'.rz, the juncture of the shoulder-bones of a horse at the bottom of the neck and mane. With'er-band, a piece of iron to strengthen a saddle-bōw over the withers. My withers are unwrung. (German widerrist.)

With-hold (see above, With-).

With'in, indoors, not longer ago than, not exceeding, inwardly.

Old English withennan or withinnen.

With'out, not within, outside of, destitute of, out of doors, unless.

Old English with-utan or with-uten.

With-stand (see above, With-).

Wit'ness, testimony, one who testifies, to see the execution of an act or document, to bear testimony; wit'nessed (2 syl.), wit'ness-ing, wit'ness-er. With a witness, effectually, with a vengeance.

Old Eng. witnes, one who has personal knowledge of a transaction.

Witticism, wittiness, witty, wittily. (See Wit.)

Wizard, wíz'.rd, a sorcerer, (fem.) witch. (O. E. wicca-ræd.)

Wizen, wíz'n, shrivelled up, to shrivel up; wizened, wíz'.nd; wizen-ing, wíz'n.ing. Wizen-faced. (O. E. wisn[ian].)

Eleven words beginning with wi- are not native, and one (windlass) is doubtful. Of the eleven, five are Germ.: wicker, wimple, wise-acre, wisp, and withers; three are Welsh: wicket, wimble, and wince; two are Fr.: widgeon and wig; and one is Dan.: window.

Wo or woh, Woe (both wō). Woo. (See Woe.)

Wo, stop! (said to horses). Wo'sh, bear to the right.

"Wo," for ho! a command for combatants in a tilt to stop fighting.

Woad, woode. Wooed (1 syl.) Wood. Would, wood.

Woad, a blue dye similar to indigo. (O. E. waad or wād.)

Wooed (1 syl.), courted. (O. E. wóged of v. wóg[an], to woo.)

Wood, timber, a forest. (Old Eng. wudu or wód, wold.)

Would, to wish, also past tense of will. (Old Eng. wolde.)

Woden, wō'dn, or O'din, the Scandinavian supreme god.

Wood'en, made of wood. (O. E. wude, wood or wooden.)

Woe, wō. Wō or woh (horse-language), stop! Woo.

Woe, misery, grief. Wo'-ful, wo'-ful-ly, wo'-ful-ness, woe'-begone, woe the while. (Better woe'-ful, woefully, &c.)

"Woe," Old English wō, wed, wau, or wæ; wālic, woful.

"Wo" or "Woh," a corruption of ho! or hoa! stop, the heralds' cry.

"Woo" (to court), Old Eng. wō[an], past wōgde, past part. wōged.

Wōld, a district once covered with wood. (O. E. wald, a wood.)

Wolf, plu. wolves, woolf, woolvz, an animal of the dog kind; wolf'-ish (-ish added to nouns means "like," added to adj. it is dim.); wolfish-ly, wolfish-ness. Sea-wolf.

Wolf's bane, aconite, monk's hood. Wolf'-dog.

Wolf'-fish. Wolf's foot, club-moss, lycopodium.

To keep the wolf from the door, to keep away starvation.
He has seen a wolf, he has lost his wits.

To put one's head in the wolf's mouth, to tempt danger.

To cry "wolf," to give a false alarm of danger.

(Nouns in -af and -lf, except "gulf" plu. gulfs, change the -f into -ves in the plu. The change is quite indefensible.)

Old English wulf plu. wulfus, wylf plu. wylfa a she-wolf.

Wollastonite, wool'.ās.tōn.īte, a mineral of a reddish colour.

So named from Dr. Wollaston. (-ite, Greek lithos, a mineral.)

Wolverine, wool'.vē.reen, the animal called the glutton.

Woman, plu. women, (mas.) man, plu. men.

Woman, woom'n (plu.) wim'n; wom'an-hood (-hood, state of, speciality of); wom'an-ish (-ish added to nouns means "like," added to adj. it is dim.); wom'anish-ly, wom'anish-ness, wom'an-like, wom'an-ly, wom'anli-ness.

Old English wīman, wīnman, wemmen, wyman, or wīfmann.

(The -o- of "woman" is a blunder, from the idea that the first syllable is womb, which it is not. The pronunciation of the plural "women" = wim'n is a protest against the false spelling.)

Womb, woom, part of the female animal. (O. E. wamb, womb.)

Won, One (both wūn). On. Wan, wōn.

Won (past and past part. of) win, to gain.

"Won," Old Eng. winn[an], p. wan, p. p. wunnen to toil, to gain.

"One" (1), O. E. ān or on. "On," O. E. on. "Wan" (pale), O. E. won.

Wonder, wūn'.der, astonishment, to astonish; wondered, wūn'.drd; won'der-ing, won'dering-ly, won'der-er.

Won'der-ful, won'derful-ly, won'derful-ness.

Won'der-ment. Wondrous, wūn'.drūs; won'drous-ly.

Won'der-struck. Wonder-worker, a thaumaturgus.

Old English wōndor, wundor, or wunder, wundorfull, wundorlice, verb wundr[ian], past wundode, past part. wundrod.

Won't, wō'nt. Wont. Want, wōnt.

Won't, will not. (Relic of the verb wol[en], ic wol I will wo'n't.)

Wont, custom, to be accustomed. (O. E. wuna, gewuna.)

Want, destitution, deficiency, to want. (O. E. wana or wæne.)

(The pronunciation of "wont" is unsettled. Milton makes it rhyme with hunt, some make want and wont alike, others make won't and wont alike. Milton's is nearest to wuna.)

Woo. Woe, wō. Wo or Woh (horse language), stop!

Woo, to court, to sue as a lover; wooes (1 syl.), wooded (1 syl.), woo'-ing, woo'-ing-ly, woo'-er. (O. E. wōg[an].)

Woe, grief, misery. (Old English wā, wēð, waa, or wæ.)

Wo or woh, stop! (The herald's cry of ho! stop fighting.)

Wood, Would (both wood). Wōld. Wooded, wood'd.

Wood, timber, a forest, adj. of wood; wooden, wood'n, made of wood; wood'-ed, furnished with trees; wood'-y, like wood; wood'i-ness (Rule xi.) Wood'-less. Wood'-bine

(2 syl.), honeysuckle. Wood'-coal, -kōle. Wood'-cock.

Wood'-cut, -kūt, an engraving on wood. Wood'-cutter, one who cuts wood-engravings. Wood'-cutting. Wood-

engrā'ver, wood-engrā'ving. Wood'-fretter, an insect.

Wood'-land, land planted with trees. Wood'-lark.

Wood'-louse, plu. wood'-lice (2 syl.) Wood'-man, plu.

wood'-men, one who fells trees. Wood'-merchant.

Wood'-mite (2 syl.) Wood'-nōte (2 syl.), music of birds.

Wood'-nymph, -nīm̃f. Wood'-opal, -ō.pl. Wood'-pāve- ment (3 syl.) Wood'-pecker. Wood'-pigeon, -pidg'un.

Wood'-roof or wood'-ruff, a plant. Wood'-sāge (2 syl.), a herb. Wood'-sāre (3 syl.), a substance like saliva found on plants being the covering of the larvæ of frog-hoppers.

Wood'-sorrel. Wood'-stōne (2 syl.), silicified wood.

Wood'-tīn. Wood'-ward, -wōrd, a forester or warden of woods. Wood'-work, -wurk. Wood'-fibre, -fī.br.

Wood'y-fibre. Wood'y tissue, -tīs'sū. Wood'en-leg.

Wood'en shoe, -shoo. Wood'en-wāre (3 syl.), domestic articles (like buckets, bowls, &c.), made of wood.

Wood'en-spoon, the last of the honour-men in the final examination at the university of Cambridge.

Wine in the wood, wine not yet bottled.

"Wood," O. E. wudu, wōd, or wode, wudulic woody, wudu-hedwere a wood hewer, wudu-heu, wudu-land, wudu-bind, wudu-coc, wudu-thistel or wōd-thistel, wudu-weard a woodward.

"Would," past tense of will[an] to wish, wolde, also pres. ic wolde.

"Wōld," O. E. wald or weald. "Wooded," O. E. woged of v. wog[an].

Woof, plu. woofs (only nouns in -af and -lf change -f into -ves to form the plu. The exception is "thief," thieves).

- Woof, the cross threads running from selvage to selvage in cloth, weft. The long threads are the warp. Woof'-y, adj.
 Old Eng. wef, v. wēf[ian] to weave, past wēfode; Gk. huphē a web.
 "Warp," Old English wearp, whence the v. weop[an] to cast.
- Wool, the fleece of sheep; woollen (a blunder for woolen, R. ii.), wool'-ly, wool'li-ness. Wool'-comber, -kō'.mer.
- Wool-dyed, -dide. Wool'-gathering, half-stupified, indulging in idle dreams. Wool'-grower, wool'-growing.
- Wool'-pack (a bag of 240 lbs. of wool). Wool'-sack.
- To sit on the wool-sack, to be lord chancellor of England.
- Wool'-staple, -stā'.pl. Wool'-stāpler, a dealer in wool.
- Wool'en-drāper, a dealer in woollen goods. Woollens.
 Old English wūl or wūll, wūllen, wūllic woolly, wūllcamb.
 (If two vowels precede the final consonant, the final consonant is not to be doubled when an affix is added. The two exceptions are "wool," wooll-en; and "bias," biass-ing, biass-ed. Both these words ought to be reduced to the general rule.)
- Woo'sh (horse-language), bear to the right. Come hah'ther (come hither), bear to the left. (The team-man walks on the left-side of his team.) Woosh come hather, straight on.
- Worcester china, woos'.ter tchī'.nah, china made at Worcester.
 Old English Weogowa-ceaster, Wigera-ceaster, or Wigor-ceaster.
- Word, wurd, a single specimen of any one of the parts of speech, promise; word'-y, full of words; word'i-ly, word'i-ness.
- Word'-less. Word'-book. A good word, a commendation. Good words, wise instruction or advice. In word.
- In a word, in brief, to sum up the whole matter.
- The Word, the second person of the Trinity.
- Word for word, literally. To eat one's words, to retract.
 Old Eng. word, wordig wordy, wordfull, verb wordlian to talk.
- Work, wurk, labour, to labour; worked, wurkt; work'-ing.
- Wrought, rawt, manufactured, elaborated, as wrought iron, wrought in ivory. Works, all that constitute any one branch of industry, as iron-works, morality without "faith."
- Work'-able. Work'-er. Work'-man, plu. work'-men.
- Work-woman, plu. work-women, -wīm'n. Work'man-like.
- Work'man-ly. Work'man-ship (-ship, style of).
- Work-fellow. Work'-folk, the operative class. -house.
- Work-shop, a place where workmen carry on their work.
- Work'ing-class, those who live by manual labour. Work'ing-day, plu. days, any day except Sunday. Work'ing-draw-ing (not draw-ring). Work'ing-stock, materials in use.
- Old English wearc, weorc, worc, or werc, weorc-dæg, weorc-hūs, weorc-mann, verb weorc[an], past worhte, past part. geworht.
 "Wrought" is a corruption of worht (with g interpolated).

World, wurld. Whirled, whirld, of v. whirl, to twist, to hurl.

World, the earth, the universe, the ungodly, very much; world'-ly, world'li-ness. World'-ling, one abandoned to the pleasures of the world. World'ly-m'nded, world'ly-minded-ness. For all the world, exactly, for any consideration. Where in the world, wherever.

The New World, America. The Old World, E. hemisphere:

"World," Old Eng. woruld, weorold, or world; woruldwig, worldly, compounded of wer-heald, man-hold, i.e. the "hold" of man; so "house-hold," the "hold" of the house or family. It is a great error to suppose it is connected with whirl, as if the people at that time knew of the revolving motions of our earth.

"Whirled," Old English hwyrfe; verb hwyrff[an], to whirl.

Worm, wurm, a reptile without feet, anything that torments the conscience, a thing debased, the thread of a screw, a small ligament under the tongue, to work secretly and gradually; wormed, wurmd; worm-ing, wurm'-ing; worm'ing-ly; worm'-y, full of worms; worm'-like. Worm'-eaten, -eet'n.

Worm'-powder. Worm'-shaped (2 syl.) Worm'-wheel.

To worm oneself into [favour], to insinuate oneself gradually.

Blind'-worm or Slow'-worm, a small lizard.

Worm'-wood, a plant. Bitter as wormwood, very bitter.

Old Eng. worm, wurm, or wyrm; wormod or wermod, wormwood.

"Wormwood" does not mean wood [good for] worms, but the man-cheerer (wer man, -mod inspiring or cheering). It is a tonic.

Worry, wur'ry, an annoyance, a trouble, to harass, to mangle with the teeth, to bother; worries, wur'riz; worried, wur'rid; wur'ry-ing, wor'rying-ly; worri-er, wur'ri-er.

Old English wériga, v. wérig[an], p. wérigode, p. p. wérigod.

Worse, wurse, comp. of "bad," (super.) worst, less good, more bad.

To worst, to defeat; worst'-ed; worst-ing, wurs'ting.

Worse and worst are from weor, bad, a word not in modern use.

O.E. weor, (comp.) wyrs or wyrsa, (super.) wyrrest or wyrst, v. wyrs[ian].

(?) AT WORST or AT THE WORST. "At" is the Old English adverbial prefix æt-, so that "At worst" means come to the worst, on the worst hypothesis; but "At the worst—" requires a noun, because worst is in this case an adj. "At the worst point," "... worst house."

Worship, wur'ship, adoration, to adore, to reverence; wor-shipped, wur'shipt; wor'shipp-ing, wor'shipp-er.

(The double p in these words is an error, as the accent is not on the syl. -ship. There are ten words of a similar character, seven of which are normal; but worship, kidnap, and gossip double the final p when a suffix beginning with a vowel is added.)

Wor'shipful. Right Wor'shipful.

The Mayor, Sheriffs, Aldermen, and Recorder of London are styled Right Wor'shipful. The Mayor (except the Lord Mayors), the Aldermen, and the Recorder of other corporations, together with all Justices of the Peace are styled The Worshipful.

Old Eng. weorth-scipe or wyrthe-scipe; verb weorth[ian], to worship.

Worsted, woos'ted, a woollen thread, made of worsted.

So named from Worsted, a village in Norfolk, where it was first made.

Wort, wurt, a herb, a plant (only used in composition: as colewort, liver-wort, &c.) Sweet wort, the sweet infusion of malt before hops are added.

"Wort" (unfermented beer), O. E. wert, wyrt. "Wort" (herb), wort.

Worth, wurth, value, merit, equal in value to, deserving of; worth'less, worth'less-ly, worth'less-ness. Worthy, wur'thy, having worth or excellence, deserving. The worthies, those who have distinguished themselves for eminent qualities. Wor'thi-ly; wor'thi-ness (Rule xi.)

O. E. werth, weorth, wearth, or worth; weorthlic, worthy; weorthlice, adv.; weorthlicnes, worthiness; weorthleas, worthless; v. weorth[ian].

Wot, to know. What, whōt, that which, also interrogative, &c.

"Wot," O. E. wit[an] to know, ic wdt, he wdt, p. wiste, p. p. witen.

Would, Wood (both wood). Wooded, woo'd. Wōld. Woad, wōde.

Would, pres. tense of v. wyll[an] ic wolde, I would or I wish, and past tense of v. will[an], p. wolde, to will. (See Will.)

"Wood," Old Eng. wudu or wōd. "Wōld," O. Eng. wold or wald.

"Woad," O. E. waad or wād. "Wooded," O. E. woged, v. wog[an].

Wound, woond, an injury. Wound (to rhyme with ground), twined.

To wound, woond, to injure; wound'-ed (R. xxxvi.), -ing; wound-er, woon'-der. Wound-less, woond'-less. -wort.

"Wound" (an injury), O. E. wūnd, v. wūnd[ian], p. -ede, p. p. -ed.

"Wound" (of v. wind), O. Eng. wīnd[an], past wōnd, p. part. wūnden.

Wōve (1 syl.), p., wo'ven p. p., of weave. Wove-paper, paper with a uniform surface. Laid paper, paper with a ribbed surface. (Old English wēf[an], p. wæf, p. p. wefen.)

Every word beginning with wo- belongs to our own native language.

Wrack, rāk; Rack. Wreck, rek; Reck. Wreak, reek; Reek.

Wrack, sea-weed [cast by waves ashore]. (French varcc.)

Rack, instrument of torture, torture. (Old Eng. hracca.)

Wreck, a shattered ship. (Danish vrag.)

Reck, to heed, to care. (Old English recc[an], to heed.)

Wreak, to execute [vengeance]. (Old English wrēc[an].)

Reek, vapour from a damp surface. (Old Eng. reōc[an].)

Wraith, raith, the spectral appearance of a person about to die.

Wrangle, rān'gl, to dispute, to squabble; wrangled, rān'gld; wran'gling. Wrangler, a squabbler; in Cambridge University one who has obtained a place in the highest mathematical honour-class; wrangler-ship (-ship, rank of).

Wrap, Rap (both rǣp).

Wrap, a cloak, an envelope, to cover with a wrapper; wrapped (1 syl.), wrapp'-ing (Rule i.); wrapp'-er, one who wraps, that which wraps.

"Wrap," Frisian wrappe. "Rap" (to knock), O.E. hrep[ian], -ode, -od.

Wrath, wrawth, anger; wrath'-ful, wrath'-ful-ly, wrath'-less.

Old Eng. wrǣth or wrdth, v. wrdth[ian], past wrdthode, p. p. wrdthod.

Wreak, reek. Reek. (See Wrack.)

Wreak, to inflict [vengeance]; wreaked, reekd; -ing.

"Wreak," Old English wrec[an], past wrǣc, past part. wrecen.

"Reck" (to smoke), Old Eng. recc[an], past recc, past part. ruccen.

Wreath, reerh (noun), wreathe, reethe (to rhyme with breathe).

Wreath, a chaplet. Wreathe, to make a chaplet, to twist together; wreathed (1 syl.); wreath-ing, reethe'-ing.

Old Eng. wrǣd or wrǣth, v. writh[an], past writh, p. part. writhen.

Wreck, rĕk. Reck. (See Wrack.)

Wreck, the ruins of a ship tempest-tossed or dashed on rocks.

To wreck, wrecked (1 syl.), wreck'-ing; wreck'-er, one who plunders the goods cast on shore from a ship-wreck, one who allures ships to destruction by false lights.

"Wreck," Dan. vrag. "Reck," O. E. recc[an], p. reahte, p. p. ge-reahrt.

Wren, rĕn, a bird. (Old English wrenna or wrænna.)

Wrench, rĕnch, a sudden and violent twist, a tool for forcibly turning screws, to wrench; wrenched (1 syl.), wrench'-ing, wrench'-er. (German verrenken.)

Wrest, rĕst. Rest. (See Wrist.)

Wrest, to twist violently, to pervert, to distort; wrest'-ed (Rule xxxvi.), wrest'-ing, wrest'-er.

"Wrest," Old Eng. wrǣst[an], past wrǣste, past part. wrǣsted.

"Rest" (to repose), Old Eng. rest, v. rĕst[ian], p. reste, p. p. rested.

Wrestle, rĕs'sl, a struggle, to struggle; wrestled, rĕs'sld; wrestling, rĕs'ling; wrestler, rĕs'ler.

Old English wrǣstl[ian], past wrǣstlede, past part. wrǣstled, wrǣstlere a wrestler; also wrǣzl[ian], wrǣzlung wrestling.

Wretch, retch. Retch. Reach, reetch.

Wretch, a worthless fellow, a degraded and infamous person.

Wretch'ed, very miserable and unhappy; -ly, -ness.

"Wretch," O. Eng. wrǣc or wrec, a wretch or exile; wrecce, wretched.

"Retch" (to make an effort to vomit), O. E. hrǣc[an], p. -de, p. p. -ed.

"Reach" (to extend), O. Eng. hrǣc[an], past hrǣcede, p. p. hrǣced.

Wriggle, rĭg'gl, a twisting and twirling about, to scriggle; wriggled, rĭg'gld; wrig'gling, wrig'gling-ly, wrig'gler.

Danish wrikke; Dutch wriggelen; Welsh rhugledd.

Wright, Write, Right, Rite (all rite).

Wright, a workman. Mill-wright. Play-wright. Plough-wright. Ship-wright. Wheel-wright.

"Wright," O. Eng. wyrhta or wirhte (g interpolated and -ri- for -ir-).

"Write" (with a pen, &c.), O. Eng. writ[an], past wrdt, p. p. writen.

"Right" (correct), O. E. riht, v. riht[an], p. rihte, &c. (g interpolated).

"Rite" (a symbolical ceremony), French rit or rite; Latin ritus.

Wring, rɪŋ. Ring.

Wring, a squeeze by twisting, to wring; (past and past part.) wrung, wring'-ing, -er. To wring from, to extort.

"Wring," Old Eng. wring[an], past wrang, past part. wrunge.

"Ring," Old Eng. hring or ring, v. hring[ian], past -ode, p. p. -od.

Wrinkle, rɪŋ'kl, a small ridge or furrow, a crease, to wrinkle; wrinkled, rɪŋ'kld; wrinkle'ing, wrinkle'ler, wrinkle'y.

Old Eng. wrincl, v. wrincl[ian], past wrinclode, past part. wrinclod.

Wrist, rɪst, the joint on which the hand turns. Wrist-band; wrist'-let, the elastic band of a glove. (O. E. wrist.)

Writ, a judicial process by which anyone is summoned as an offender, a legal instrument to enforce obedience to the orders and sentences of the courts. Holy Writ, the scriptures. (Old English writ.)

Write, Wright, Right, Rite (all rite.)

Write, (past) wrote, (past part.) written, writ'n, to indite; writing (R. xix.), ri'ting. Writings, legal instruments, deeds. Writ-er, ri'ter; writer-ship (-ship, office, vocation of). Writing-book. Writing-case. Writing-desk. Writing-ink. Writing-master. Writing-paper. Writing-school, -skool. Writer to the signet (or W.S.)

"Write," O. E. writ[an], past wrdt, p. part. writen; writere, a writer.

"Wright" (a workman), corruption of Old Eng. wirhte or wyrhta.

"Right" (correct), Old Eng. riht, v. riht[an] (g interpolated).

"Rite" (a symbolical ceremony), French rit or rite; Latin ritus.

- (?) WRITE YOU WORD. PLEASE, WRITE ME WORD. Are these grammatical? Undoubtedly. "Me" is the old Dative case of the pronoun, and survives in a host of phrases: as "Give me the book," "Tell me the number," "Do me the favour," "Send me the order." Similarly him, her, them, you, &c., are dative cases, and may be used in like manner. In regard to nouns (as Give the horse some hay, &c.) horse is dative, but the inflexions both of the dat. and acc. cases are abolished: even if not, the dat. sing. of the "Strong Order" of nouns would end in -e, and hors (a horse) would be Dat. horse.

Writhe, rithe, to wriggle, to twist with pain; writhed (1 syl.); writh'-ing, ri'thing (-th soft).

Old English writh[an], past wrath, past part. writthen.

Wrong, rɔŋ (no comp. or super.), not correct, to injure, to treat unjustly; wronged (1 syl.), wrong'-ing, wrong'-er, wrong'-ly, wrong'-ful, wrong'-ful-ly, wrong'-ful-ness.

Wrong-doer, -doo'.er; wrong-doing, -doo'.ing. Wrong-headed, -hèd'.ed; wrong-head'ed-ness.

Old Eng. wrang (Sax. Chron. 1124). "Wrong" means that which is wrung or twisted; so the Fr. tort (wrong) is from the Lat. torqueo.

Wroth, rawth, very angry, much exasperated. (O. E. wræth, wrǣth.)

Wrought, worked, elaborated, influenced, decorated.

Wrought-iron, i'.on, cast-iron rendered malleable and tough.

Highly wrought, greatly decorated.

He wrought on his feelings, he influenced his sensibilities.

He was wrought up to..., he was inflamed or roused to...

O. E. worht, by metathesis wroht, v. wyre[an] to work, p. worhte.

Wrung, rung, twisted. (See Wring.)

Wry, Rye (both rī).

Wry, crooked (better awry); wry'-ness. Wry'-neck, a bird; wry'-necked, having the head twisted on one side.

"Wry," O. E. wriþ[an], to twist. "Rye" (a grain), O. E. ryge or ryge.

Wulfenite, wool'fën.ite, a mineral, the molybdate of lead (lèd).

So named from Wulfen, the Austrian metallurgist (1728-1806).

Wych-elm, witch-. Wych-hazel, witch-hā'.zl. (See Witch.)

Wyvern, wi'.vern, an heraldic winged dragon.

French vivre; Latin vīpēra, viperīnus.

Xanthian, zan'.thī.ăn, adj. of Xanthus (a river of Lycia).

Xanthic, zăn'.thīk, yellow; xanthic acid. (Greek xanthōs.)

Xanthine, zăn'.rhīn, the yellow colouring matter of certain plants. (Gk. xanthos, yellow, and -ine, a simple substance.)

Xanthite, zăn'.thīte, a mineral. (Gk. xanthos and -ite, a mineral.)

Xanthophylline, zăn'.thōf'.īl.ăn, the yellow colouring matter of autumnal leaves. Xanthophyllite, zan'.thōf'.īlite, a mineral of a yellow colour and foliated texture.

Greek xanthos phyllon, yellow leaf; -lite (lithos), a mineral.

Xanthous, zăn'.thūs, yellow. Xantho- (prefix).

Xebec, zē'.bēk, a small three-masted vessel used in the Mediterranean sea. (Spanish xabeque, French chebec.)

Xylo-, zī'.lo- (Gk. prefix), wood, pertaining to wood (xulōn, wood).

Xylo-carpus, bearing fruit which is woody and hard.

Greek xulo-[xulōn] karpōs, wood [like] fruit.

Xylo-graphy, zī'.lōg'.răfy, cutting designs in wood; xylographic, zī'.lo.grăf'.īk. (Greek xulo-, grapho, to carve.)

Xyloidine, zī'.loid'.in, an explosive compound.

Greek xulo-[xulōn] eidos. (Often pronounced zī'.lo.ī'.dīn). It is quite disgraceful to pronounce -oid (Greek o-eidos) as a diphthong: as "ganoid," gan.oid for gan'.o.id; "spheroid," sfe.roid or sfe'.ro.id, &c. In French the i has a diæresis (i).

Xylo-phagi, zī.lōf'.ă.dji, wood-eaters (a weevil without a proboscis); xylophagan, zī.lōf'.ă.găn, one of the larvæ of certain insects of the weevil tribe which devour the trees in which they are hatched; xylophagous, zī.lōf'.ă.gūs.

Greek xulo-[xulōn]phago, I devour wood.

Xylophilan, zī.lōf'.ă.lăn, one of the beetle tribe which live in decayed wood. (Greek xulo-philo, I love wood.)

Xylo-pyrography, zī.lo.pī.rōg''.ră.fy, the art of engraving on charred wood; xylopyrographist, zī.lo.pī.rōg''.ră.fist.

Gk. xulo-[xulōn]pūr [v. pūrō]grapho, I engrave on burnt wood.

Xyst or xystos, zīs'.tōs, a covered colonnade where the athletes of ancient Greece exercised in bad weather; xyst-arch, zīs.tark, the president of the games.

Gk. xustos, polished; so called from its smooth polished floor.

Xyster, zīs'.ter, a surgical instrument for scraping bones.

Greek xustis, a tool for scraping.

-y (suffix), the Old Eng. -ig converts nouns to adj.: as "craft," craft-y; "dust," dust-y; "might," might-y; "thirst," thirst-y; "water," water-y; "weight," weight-y.

"y" preceded by a consonant is changed to i when any suffix (except -ish, -ism, -ing, -hood, -like, -ship) is added.

In agglutinated words, as when man, maid, woman, &c. is added, no change is made.

If a vowel precedes the "y," no change is required.

Yacht, yōt, a pleasure boat; yacht'-er, one who sails a yacht; yacht'-ing. (German jacht, v. jagen, to drive quickly.)

Yahoo, yah.hoo', a savage, one ill-mannered (v. Gulliver's Travels).

Yāk, the grunting ox of Tartary.

Yām, an esculent root. (French igname, West Indian ihame.)

Yankee, yăn'.ky, a citizen of New England, applied disrespectfully to a citizen of the United States of North America.

Corruption of English: Yengees, Yenghis, Yanghis, Yankees.

Yāp, a snappish bark, to yap; yapped, yăpt; yapp'-ing.

French japper, to yap or yelp; noun jappement.

Yard, a small enclosed space adjoining a house, a rod or measure 36 inches long, a long piece of timber hung by the centre to a mast (its use is to spread the sails on).

Yard'-arm, the extremities of a yard.

Yard'-arm and yard'-arm, the situation of two vessels lying alongside one another so near that their yard-arms cross or touch. Yard'-wand, -wōnd, a rod three feet long.

Old English geard, a rod, a measure, also a garden or yard.

Yarn, woollen thread, one strand of a rope, a long rigmarole story. To spin a yarn, to tell a tale for the amusement of messmates.

Old English gea'n, spun-wool; gearn-windel, a yarn winder.

- Yarrow, yǎr'ro, milfoil. (Old English gearwe, gearwe-leaf.)
- Yawl, a light rather narrow six-oared boat. (French yole.)
- Yawn, a gape, to gape; yawned (1 syl.), yawn'-ing, -ing-ly.
Old Eng. geon[an], past geonde, past part. geoned; Greek chaino.
- Y-cleped or y-clept, e-klēpt', called, named. (O. E. ge-clypod.)
Old Eng. ge-clyp[ian], past ge-clypode, past part. ge-clypod to name.
- Ye or you, nom. plu. of Thou. (O. E. ge, Goth. ju-t, Gk. hu-meis.)
SING. Nom. thu, Gen. thín, Dat. the, Acc. thes.
PLU. Nom. ge, Gen. eower, Dat. eow, Acc. eowic.
- Yea, yā; Yes. Nay; No. (O. E. gea, gese; n'gea or nā; Fr. non.)
Yea, yes; Nay, no; answers to affirmative questions.
Yes and No, answers to negative questions.
"Are you quite well?" Yea or Nay (as the fact may be).
"Are you not quite well?" Yes or No (as the fact may be).
(This distinction is not now observed, indeed yea and nay are obsolete.)
- Yean, yeen, to bring forth as a sheep; yeaned (1 syl.), yeán'-ing.
Wean, ween, to remove from breast-food.
"Yean," O. E. ean[ian], p. eanode, p. p. eanod, to bring forth a lamb.
"Wean," O. Eng. wán[ian], past wénede, p. p. wéned, or wenian, &c.
- Year, yē'r, 52 weeks, or 12 months, or 365 days.
Year'-ly, every year, once a year. Year'-ling, a two-year old beast. Getting into years, growing old.
Leap-year, leep yē'r, every fourth year from a leap-year.
(To ascertain a leap year, divide the date by 4, and if there is no remainder it is leap year: thus $1876 \div 4 = 469$ —a leap year.)
- Year of grace (written A.D. [anno dom'ini]), the year since the birth of Jesus in Bethlehem). Year-book.
- Sabbatic year, sāb.bāt'āk yē'r, every seventh year, when the ancient Jews were forbidden to till the land.
ANOMALIS'TICAL YEAR, the time from apogee to apogee, 368d. 6h. 14m.
CIV'IL YEAR, a calendar year, 365 days, and 366 in leap years.
COMMON YEAR, same as Civil or Calendar year.
GREGORIAN YEAR, the Julian year corrected (New Style).
JU'LIAN YEAR, a year of 365½ days (Old Style).
LUNAR YEAR, a year of 12 lunar months. Lunar astronomical year contains 354d. 8h. 48m. 36s.
SIDE'REAL YEAR, the time from the sun's leaving any given fixed star to his return to the same, 365d. 6h. 9m. 11'5s.
Old English gear, gearlic (adj.) yearly, gearlice (adv.)
- Yearn, yern, to long after; yearned, yern'd; yearn'-ing, -ing-ly.
O. Eng. georn[ian], p. geornede, p. p. georned, (adj.) georn desirous.
- Yeast, yēst (not eest, a London vulgarism), the ferment of new beer, balm; yeast'-y, yeast'i-ness, R. xi. (O. E. gist.)
Our word ought to be yist. The blunder has arisen from the supposition that it is connected with east, the quarter of the rising sun, whence also the London "vulgarism": but the word has nothing to do with east, it is from yist or gist a storm, yistig stormy, referring to the ferment of the beer.

Yelk or Yolk, yōke, the yellow portion of an egg. (O. E. geolca.)

Yēll, a scream of horror or agony, the scream of savages when they rush on an enemy, to yell; yelled, yēld; yell'-ing, yell'-ing-ly. (Monos. double f, l, s, preceded by one vowel.)

Old English gill[an] or gyl[an], past gyllede, past part. gylled.

Yellow, yēl'.lo (not yāl'.ler, a London vulgarism), a colour.

(The three cardinal colours are red, yellow, and blue.)

The yellows, a species of jaundice in horses. Yellow-ish (-ish added to adj. is dim., added to nouns it means "like"); yellowish-ness. Yellow-ness. Yellow-haired, -haired. Yellow-earth, -urth, yellow ochre. Yellow-fever. Yellow-flag, a flag to denote that the vessel is under quarantine. Yellow-hammer or Yellow-bunting, a bird. Yellow-metal. Yellow throat. Yellow quartz.

O. Eng. geolo; Ital. giallo; Old Germ. gelo; Dan. gul; Iceland. gull.

Yelp, the bark of a beagle after its prey, to yelp; yelped, yelpt; -ing. (O. E. gealp, v. gealp[an], p. gealpte, p. p. gealped.)

Yeoman, phu. yeomen, yō'man, a tenant farmer, an inferior officer in the sovereign's household, a keeper of the stores in a war-ship; yeo'man-ly, like a yeoman; yeo'man-ry, the whole collective body of yeomen. Yeoman of the guards, the body-guard of the sovereign consisting of 100 men dressed in the costume of the 16th century.

Old English gemen, the people below the gentry.

Yes, even so. No, not so. (O. E. gese, gise, or gyse. See Yea.)

Yesterday, yēs'.ter.day, the day before the present one; yesterday-eve, -eev; yesterday-night, -nite. (O. E. gestran-dæg, -niht.)

Yet, still, notwithstanding, after all. (O. E. gét, gýt, or gýta.)

Yew, You, Ewe, U (all yū).

Yew, a tree. (Old English iw, Welsh ywen.)

You, the plu. of thou. (Old English eow.)

Ewe, the dam of sheep. (Old English eowu, plu. eowa.)

Yield, yeeld, produce, to produce', to submit, to give in; yield'-ed (R. xxxvi.), -ing. (O. E. gielđ[an], p. -ede, p. p. -ed.)

Yōke (1 syl.) Yolk = yōke (see below.)

Yoke, the curved wooden collar by which a pair of oxen are kept together, a wooden instrument borne on the shoulders to aid in carrying pails of water, &c., a pair, to harness with a yoke, to join together, to enslave; yōked (1 syl.); yōk-ing. Yoke'-fellow. (O. E. geoc or ioc.)

Yolk, yōke. Yoke (see above).

Yolk, the yellow part of an egg. (Old English geolca.)

Yōn or yōn'der, off at a distance [pointed out]. (O. E. geond.)

Yore, in the phrase Of yore, long ago. (Old English geara.)

You, nom. and obj. plu. of thou. (Old English eow, vid. Ye.)

SING. Nom. thu, Gen. thín, Dat. the, Acc. thec.

PLU. Nom. ge, Gen. eower, Dat. eow, Acc. eowic.

ERRORS OF SPEECH—

The false use of You and I is the "genteel vulgarity"; the false use of You and me is the vulgarity of the uneducated.

But it were vain for you and I [for me]

In single fight our strength to try (Prof. Aytoun).

With you and I clinging to each other [me] (Lady Barker).

She is no bad contrast to you and I [me] (The Widow Married).

Agnes will accompany you and I to England [me] (W. Dalton).

I confess, your Majesty, there exists this difference between you and I [me] (Dr. Wolcott).

Let you and I, sir, go and eat a beefsteak in.. (Dr. Johnson).

God is sending you and I a little one [me] (H. Kingsley).

You did right to come back to Miss Turner and I [me] (ibid.)

All this has been talked over by you and I before [me] (ibid.)

Young, yǔng, (comp.) young-er, yung'ger, (super.) young-est, yung'gest, not old; young-ish, yung-ish (-ish added to adj. is dim., added to nouns it means "like"); young-lings [of the flock], lambs, calves, &c.; young-ster, a young boy (-ster is added to any gender, and is not a suffix denoting the female sex. Even in "spin-ster" it means one who passes her time in spinning, and "youngster" means one of the young-sort). See Youth.

Old Eng. geong, geongling; geongra, younger; geongest, youngest.

Your. adj. pronoun, occasionally also the possessive case of you.

This is your cloak (your property, adj.)

This is your likeness (the likeness of you, possessive case).

I am reading your memoir (possessive case).

I am reading your book (adj.)

This is your picture (your property, adj.)

This is your photograph (representing you, possessive case).

(The likeness, the memoir, and the photograph may not belong to you at all, but to some other person, and therefore do not express property or possession as possessive adjectives would do. In 900 cases out of 1000, your, her, his, my, their, are adj. pronouns.)

Yours, an absolute pronoun, like mine, thine, his, hers, theirs, ours. These indeclinable pronouns are so called because they are used absolutely, i.e. without a noun.

(Mine, thine, and his are also adj. pron., and the possessive cases of "I," "thou," and "he." The first two represent my and thy (in poetry and the Bible) when the following word begins with a consonant: as mine ears=my ears, thine own=thy own.)

Yourself, plu. yourselves (2 syl.), reflexive pronoun, you in propria persona. (Old Eng. eower silf, plu. silfas.)

Youth, yǔrh, the age of man from childhood to manhood; youth'-ful, youth'-ful-ly, youth'-ful-ness. (See Young.)

Old English geogoth or geoguth; geogoth-hdd, youth-hood.

Yttria, ǝ't.trǝ.ah, one of the primitive earths; yttrium, ǝ't.trǝ.ǔm, the metallic base of yttria; yttrious, ǝ't.trǝ.ūs.

So called from Ytterby, a quarry in Sweden.

Yûle (1 syl.), the Christmas festival; yulé'-log, a large log ignited on Christmas eve with much ceremony.

Old English geðl, geohðl, geohhél, or gehhól (from gûl, merry), the mirth-feast, Christmas. December was se ðra geðla (the before yule), and January se æftera geðla (the after yule).

(It will be observed that the initial y is an introduction since the Conquest. What is now initial y was g (except in you, your, and yew). In the body of words y=i, and y=i was very common in "Anglo-Saxon.")

Zambo or Sambo, plu. Zamboes, zám'.bōze, the offspring of an Indian and negro. Mulatto, plu. mulattoes, mul.ăt'.tōze, the offspring of a white man and a negress. Ter'zëron, the offspring of a white man and mulatto woman. Quadroon', the offspring of a Ter'zëron and a white.

Zamia, zā'.mă.ah, a genus of plants; zamite, zā'.mīte, a fossil resembling the zamia (-ite, a fossil).

Latin zāmīa; Greek zēmīa, loss; alluding to the sterile appearance of the male part of the plant.

Zany, plu. zanies (R. xlv.), zăn'.iz, a buffoon; zanism, zăn'.izm.

Latin sanna, a grimace, whence the buffoon in the Roman mimes was called Sannio, changed by the Italians into zani, corrupted by the French into Jeannot, and thence into the English silly-John.

Zeal, zeel, ardour, enthusiasm; zealous, zēl'.ūs; zealous-ly, zealous-ness. (Latin zēlus, zēlōsus; Greek zēlos.)

Zebra, zē'.brah, an African wild animal with stripes; zebra-wood, the wood of a tree from Brazil, &c.

Span. zebra; Italian zebro; Fr. zèbre. (Called the horse-tiger.)

Zebu, zē'.bū, an Indian ox or cow with pendent ears and a hunch.

Zend, the sacred language of Persia. Zend-avesta, -a.ves'.tah, the great work of Zoroaster [Zarathustra] the Mede, and the sacred scriptures of the Persians (B.C. 400).

Avesta=the "living word"; zend, the language in which it is written.

Zenith, zēn'.ith, the point of the heavens directly overhead.

Na'dir, the point of the heavens directly under our feet.

Zenith-distance, the distance of any heavenly body from the zenith. (French zénith; Italian zenit; Arabic.)

Zephyr, zēf'.r, the west wind. (Lat. zephÿrus, Gk. zephÿrōs.)

Zero, plu. zeroes, the 0 or neutral point between an ascending and descending scale of figures. (Arab. zëroh, a circle or 0.)

Zëst, relish, flavour. (French zeste, flavour of a lemon, &c.)

Zenglodon, zū'.glo.dôn, a fossil mammal of the whale kind.

Gk. zeugl[zeuglê]odous gen. odontos, yoke-tooth, so called because the crown of its tooth resembles in shape a dumb-bell.

Zinnia, zîn'.ně.ah, a genus of flowers so named by Linnæus.

In honour of Dr. Zinn, professor of botany at Gottengen (1757).

Zig'zag, crooked; zig'zagged (2 syl.), zigzagg'-ing (Rule iv.), going zigzag  (French zigzag.)

Monos. ending in one consonant only (preceded by only one vowel) double the final consonant.

Zinc, a metal, to coat with zinc; zincked, zĭnkt; zinck'-ing; zinc'-worker, -wur'.ker. Zincode, zĭn'.kōde, the positive pole of a galvanic battery. (Greek ōdōs, a way.)

Zincoid, zĭn'.koid, like zinc. (Greek eidos, like.)

Zincous, zĭnk'-us; zinck'-y; zinck-iferous, zĭn.kĭf'.ĕ.rŭs, containing or yielding zinc. (Latin fero, to produce.)

Zinck'-ite, a native oxide of zinc. Zincography, zĭn.kōg'.răfy, engraving on zinc (Greek grapho, to engrave); zincographer, zĭn.kōg'.răfer. Zinc-white.

(How much better would it be to spell zinc with a k, for then the word might remain unchanged throughout all its compounds. As it now is we have to add k whenever the postfix begins with e, i, or y.) Germ. zink, Swed. zink, Dan. zink, but Fr. zinc (Germ. zinn, tin).

Zion, zĭ'.ōn, a hill in Jerusalem where the royal palace stood (it was the citadel of the Jebusites), the "city of David," the "holy hill," the church of God. Also spelt Sion.

Zircon, zir'.kōn, a gem (if colourless it resembles the diamond, if red it is called "hyacinth"). Zirconium, zir.kō'.nĭ.um, the metallic base of zirconia. Zirconia, zir.kō'.nĭ.ah, an oxide of the metal zirconium. (Fr. zircon, Arab. zarkon.)

Zodiac, zō'.dĭ.ăk, a hypothetical belt in the heavens in which certain constellations called "signs" are formed into fanciful resemblances to living forms. The apparent annual course of the sun is confined to this path; zodiacal, zō'.dĭ.ă.kăl. Zodiacal light, -lĭte.

Greek zōdiakōs, from zōdĭā, little animals. The twelve signs:

Our vernal signs the RAM begins,
Then comes the BULL, and then the TWINS;—
The CRAB in June, next LEO shines,
And VIRGO ends the northern signs.
The BALANCE brings autumnal fruits,
The SCORPION stings, the ARCHER shoots;—
Then comes the GOAT with wintry blast;
AQUARIUS next, the FISHES last.

In Latin hexameters thus:—

Sunt Aries, Taurus, Gemini, Cancer, Leo, Virgo, Libraque, Scorpius, Arcitenens, Capre, Amphora, Pisces.

Zollverein, zōl'.vē.rĭne, a commercial union of German states for the purpose of establishing a uniform tariff of duties. German zoll verein, "customs union." Begun in 1819.

Zōne (1 syl.), a belt, one of the five great divisions of the earth.

(The five zones are (1) The NORTH FRIGID, (2) The NORTH TEMPERATE, (3) The TORRID, (4) The SOUTH TEMPERATE, (5) The SOUTH FRIGID.)

Zoned (1 syl.), having concentric bands, girt with a zone.

Latin zōna; Greek zōnē. Dahler says from the Chaldee zonar.

Zoo-, zō'.o- (Greek prefix), an animal, a living creature (zōōn).

Zoo-graphy, zō.ōg'.rǎ.fy, a description of animals.

Greek zōo-[zōōn]grapho, I write about animals.

Zooid, zō'.oid, organic bodies resembling animals.

Greek zōo-[zōōn]eidōs, like an animal [in organism].

Zoo-latry, zō.ōl'.ǎ.try, animal worship.

Greek zōo-[zōōn]latreia, worship of animals.

Zoo-logy, zō.ōl'.ō.djy, that branch of natural history which treats of the structure, habits, &c., of animals; zoological, zō.o.lođg'.ǎ.kāl; zoological-ly; zoologist, zō.ōl'.ō.djist, one skilled in the natural history of animals.

Greek zōo-[zōōn]lōgōs, a treatise about animals.

Zoo-nomy, zō.ōn'.ō.my, the laws of animal organism.

Greek zōo-[zōōn]nōmōs, the laws of animal [organism].

Zoo-phagous, zō.ōf'.ǎ.gūs, feeding on animals; zoophagan, zō.ōf'.ǎ.gūn, one that feeds on animals.

Greek zōo-[zōōn]phago, I eat animals [for food].

Zoo-phyte, zō'.o.fite, a creature resembling both an animal and a vegetable; zoophytic, zō'.o.fit''.ǎk. Zoophytology, zō'.o.fit.ōl'.ō.djy, that part of science which treats of zoophytes: as sponges, corals, &c.

Greek zōo-[zōōn]phūtōn, an animal-plant.

Zoo-spore, zō'.o.spōr, the spore of certain sea-weeds which seem endowed with voluntary motion.

Greek zōo-[zōōn]spōra, animal-spore.

Zoo-tomy, zō.ōt'.ō.my, the anatomy of the lower animals, comparative anatomy; zootomical, zō'.o.tōm''.ǎ.kāl.

Greek zōo-[zōōn]temno, I cut up animals.

Zoroaster, - zōr'ro.ās''.ter [or Zarathustra, zōr'ra.rhū''.strah], the great legislator of the ancient Bactrians whose system of religion is embodied in the Zend-avesta. Zoroastrian, zōr'ro.ās''.trǎ.ǎn, a disciple of Zoroaster, pertaining to...

Zouave, zōāhv, 1 syl. (not zou'.āhv, Fr. ou = v, whence "Edward" in Fr. is Edouard, and oui = we), a troupe of light infantry organised in Algeria in 1830, and led by French officers.

It is named from one of the Algerian tribes.

Zounds (a contraction of God's wounds), a profane oath.

Zymo- (Greek prefix), fermentation (zūmē leaven, v. zūmōō).

Zymo-logy, zȳ.mōl'.ō.djy, the science of fermentation.

Greek zūmo-[zuma]lōgōs, a treatise on fermentation.

Zymo-meter, zȳ.mōm'.ē.ter, a fermentation gauge.

Greek zūmo-[zuma]metron, a measure for fermentation.

Zymotic, zȳ.mōt'ik, caused by fermentation, pertaining to fermentation; zymot'ic diseases, diseases ascribed to the poisonous effects of virus received into the system.

An English-Greek adj. formed from zūma, leaven.

Zymosis, zȳ.mō'sis, morbid action [of the blood] attributed to some deleterious substance received into the system.

Greek zūmōsis, fermentation (from zūma, leaven).

REFERENCES.

These are fully set forth and explained in Dr. Brewer's "Rules for Spelling"; but those who do not possess that book may consult:—

For	Page	Article	For	Page	Article
i.	Preface	x (a)	xl.	554	knife
ii.	"	x (c)	xli.	Preface	xlii (iv)
iii.	"	x (d)	xlii.	"	xiv (v)
iv.	"	x (b)	xlii.	1548	-y
v.	1550	yell	xlii.	425	H
vi.	"	"	xlii.	1547	xyloidine
vii.	303	fuzz	I.	Dissyllables often accent
viii.	1320	thrall		the noun on the first
ix.	389	full		syl. and the verb on
xi.	1543	y		the last
xii.	1143	sly	II.	1002	resow
xiii.	1543	y		1037	sacrifice
xiv.	815	pay	lvi.	1547	xylo- (note)
xv.	1543	y	lviii.	425	H
xviii.	33	argue	lix.	129	concourse
xix., e	mute at the end of a word is dropped before a suffix beginning with a vowel			1163	source
xx.	97	charge	lx.	1149	snob
xxvi.	306	-ense	lxi.	594	logic
	1013	rinse	lxii.	1179	spinster
xxvii.	912	proceed	lxv.	1319	thorough
	1242	succeed	lxvi.	538	-ish
xxviii.	963	receive	lxix.	Ricochet words, a list is given in Dr. Brewer's "Rules for Spelling"
xxxi.	533	-ise	lxx.	Preface
xxxii.	540	-ize	lxxi.	600	love
xxxiii.	750	omission	lxxii.	1403	un-
xxxiv.	Preface	xvi	lxxiii.	1294	telescope
xxxv.	321	-es, -s	lxxv.	33	aristocracy
xxxvi., -ed	forms a distinct syllable after d- or t-		lxxvi.	760	-our xxxviii.	1194	staff	lxxvii.	1011	reward
xxxix.	"	"	lxxviii.	1347	traffic

INDEX OF SYNONYMS, DOUBTFUL PHRASES, AND FUGITIVE MATTER.

CAPITALS indicate Synonyms, Clarendon type indicates Errors of Speech.
(For prefixes see "Prefix," for postfixes see "Suffix.")

	PAGE		PAGE
A or an historical.. ..	19	Aristotle's Unities	1396
" " European.. ..	19	Army, its divisions and officers ..	983
" " one	751	ARROGANT. PRESUMPTUOUS,
" " unit	1386	&c.	906
" after many, such, &c. ..	625	Arundelian Marbles	626
ABDOMEN. STOMACH, &c. ..	1218	As (followed by) as	35, 1151
Acrosaurus.. ..	1050	" " so	35, 1151
ADAGE. PROVERB. SAW, &c. ..	926	As me	639
ADDER. VIPER. SNAKE, &c. ..	1148	As soon as	1163
Adjective or Adverb (?)	597	Assure. Insure. Ensure. ..	306
ÆRA. EPOCH. AGE, &c. ..	316	At best or At the best	52
Airy trigon.. ..	1362	At least or At the least	570
Aisle. Isle, &c.	538	At most or At the most	684
-al (when l is doubled)	1019	At worst or At the worst ..	1543
Alatus. Pennate, &c.	857	ATHEIST. DEIST, &c.	1311
All Hallow's summer	1248	ATLANTES. CARYATIDES, &c. ..	1292
All of them (?)	12	Atlas [paper], size of	1106
All to	1334	ATROPHY. CONSUMPTION, &c. ..	867
ALLEGORY. FABLE. PAR-		ATTORNEY. SOLICITOR. LAW-
ABLE, &c.	797	YER	1158
Allude (misuse of)	13	Attorney-General (plu. of) ..	40
Alms (sing. and plu.)	14	AUREOLA. NIMBUS. GLORY ..	718
Alto (compass of)	1164	AUTHENTIC. GENUINE	400
AMUSEMENT. DIVERSION, &c. ..	987	AUTOCRAT. DESPOT. TY-
Alveola (no such word)	16	RANT, &c.	1386
Anomalistic month	1156	AVOCATION. BUSINESS, &c. ..	42
" year	1156	AVOCATION. VOCATION ..	1346
ANONYM. EPONYM. PSEU-		AXIOM. MAXIM. SAW, &c. ..	926
DONYM, &c.	316
ANTHROPOLOGY. ETHNO-		Backwardation	1215
LOGY, &c.	326	BAKE. ROAST. BOIL. STEW ..	1020
Anthroposophy.. ..	654	BALL. GLOBE. SPHERE, &c. ..	406
Ap'. O'. Mac'	813	BANNER. STANDARD. EN-
Arch, when pronounced ark ..	32	SIGN, &c.	1198
ARCHÆOLOGY. ANTHROPO-		Barshot	1114
LOGY, &c.	326	BARBARISM. SOLEICISM ..	1157
Archbishop (address, &c., of) ..	1095	Baron (address of, &c.)	1095
Archdeacon (address, &c., of) ..	1009	Baroness (address of, &c.) ..	1095
Archegosaurus	1050	Baronet (address of, &c.) ..	1095
Arena of Bulls and Bears ..	1216	Battalion	983
ARIA. CANTATA, &c.	1162	Bear and Bull (Stock Exch.)..	1215
ARIAN. UNITARIAN. SO-		Beg: I beg to inform you.. ..	49
CINIAN	1153	BELLY. STOMACH. ABDOMEN ..	1218

	PAGE
"Berwicks" (Stock Exch.) ..	1215
Best, At best or At the best (?) ..	52
Bi, bin-; di-, din-	53, 1042
Bi, deut-	834
Bimonthly (improper use of) ..	55
Birds, the song of	1162
Bishop (address of, &c.)	1095
BLACKS. SOOT. SMOKE ..	1163
Blow, "Let the organ blow!" ..	53
"Blue-stocking"	1217
Boarding school. Otherschools ..	1062
Boatman. Boatsman	59
BOG. SWAMP. FEN, &c. ..	1263
BOILED. STEWED, &c. ..	1020
BONDMAN or BONDSMAN? ..	60
Bononcini and Handel	1382
Book of Genesis or Book Gen.? ..	398
BOROUGH. CITY. TOWN, &c. ..	1344
Botany (objection to this word) ..	62
"Both of them"	62
Bōw. Bōw	62
Boys' school and other schools ..	1062
Brace (not 2, 3 braces.) ..	785
BRACE. COUPLE. PAIR ..	785
Brand-new or Brand-new ..	64
Brigade, what	983
Broker (to whom applied) ..	648
"Brums" (Stock Exch.) ..	1215
Bucketfuls or Bucketsful (?) ..	69
"Bull and Bear" (Stock Exch.) ..	1215
"Bush," "Push" (pron. abnorm.) ..	72
BUSINESS. AVOCATION, &c. ..	42
"Butcher" (pron. abnorm.) ..	72
By or With (an instrument) ..	73
By-and-by or bye (?) ..	73
By applying for it	73
By-the-by	73
BY-ROAD. LANE, &c. ..	812
C changed to s	1037
C followed by s, s by c ..	129, 1163
Cablegram, message by "cable" ..
Calendar month. Other mths. ..	1156
Can, never auxiliary	77
Canary, song of the	1162
Canister-shot	1114
CANON. FUGUE. ROUND, &c. ..	1029
CANTATA. SONATA. SYMPHONY, &c. ..	1162
Capitosaurs	1050
Carnelian or Cornelian (?) ..	83
Cartloads or Cartload (?) ..	84
CARYATIDES. TELEMONES, &c. ..	1292
CASH. MONEY	674
-cede (should be) -ceed	1242
Celt. Kelt	90
Centigrade thermometer ..	347
Cetiosaurus	1050
Ch- (how sounded)	93

	PAGE
Chainshot	1114
CHARADE. ENIGMA. CONUNDRUM ..	303
Charity school. Other schools ..	1062
Charybdis	1072
Chemical nomenclature ..	53
Cherubim or Cherubims (?) ..	99
Chicken (is this plural?) ..	100
Chrysanthemum not-num ..	103
Cist. Cyst	552
City of London.. or City London (?) ..	398
City phrases	1215
CITY. TOWN. BOROUGH, &c. ..	1344
Civil year. Common year ..	1156
Classical school. Other schools ..	1062
Clench or Clinch (?)	109
Clerical titles	1009
Cleavage. Cleverage	108
Clift. Clift. Cleft, &c. ..	109
Clinch or Clench (?)	109
"Cohens" (Stock Exchange) ..	1216
Coliseum or Colosseum (?) ..	116, 117
College. School	1062
Colombier (paper), size of ..	1106
Colosseum or Coliseum (?) ..	116, 117
COME. GO	408
Coming to visit you or going (?) ..	118
Commercial and other schools ..	1062
Common time. Triple time ..	1329
Company of soldiers	983
COMPLEMENT. SUPPLEMENT ..	1255
Complexion (origin of the word) ..	125
CONCERTO. SONATA. SYMPHONY, &c. ..	1272
Conchiosaurus	1051, 1053
Conform with or to (?)	132
Coniasaurus	1051
Consubstantiation. Trans. ..	1353
CONSUMPTION. ATROPHY. DECLINE, &c. ..	867
CONTAGIOUS. EPIDEMIC, &c. ..	1186
Contango (Stock Exchange) ..	1216
Contemporary or Cotemp- (?) ..	139
Contemporary of or with (?) ..	139
CONTEMPTIBLE. CONTEMPTUOUS ..	140
Contralto (compass of)	1164
Contrast to. Contrast with ..	142
CONUNDRUM. ENIGMA. CHARADE ..	303
Coom or Comb of Wheat (?) ..	145
Cornelian or Carnelian (?) ..	83
CORPORAŁ. CORPORAŁ ..	149
Cosmology part of metaph. ..	654
Could , never auxiliary	155
Council. Counsel	155
"Countenance" (origin of the word)	244
Counterscarp. Scarp	1059

	PAGE		PAGE
Countess, add. "Saxon Chron. 1140."		Double elephant [size of]	1106
Countess (address of, &c.)	1095	Double genitive	309
COUNTLESS DOWAGER. DOWAGER COUNTESS	257	Doubt. I doubt not but	256
COUPLE. BRACE. PAIR	785	Dovers (Stock Exchange)	1216
Crocodylia	1053	Down to or Up to London (?)	1398
CROW. ROOK. RAVEN. DAW.	1025	DOWN-TRAIN. UP-TRAIN	253
CUSTOM. HABIT	426	Downward. Downwards	258
CUTICLE. EPIDERMIS, &c.	1059	Dozen. Two dozen or dozens (?)	735
Cuvier's sythetical animal	5	Drachm. Dram	259
Cyclopædia or Encyclopædia	293	Draft. Draught	259
Cyst. Cist	552	Dram. Drachm	259
Dame's school. Other schools	1062	Drink: That drinks pleasantly	904
Dare. He dare or dares (?)	179	Drive: Take a drive or ride (?)	1015
DAW. ROOK. CROW	1025	Dryad. Other nymphs	733
DAWN. TWILIGHT. DUSK	1383	Duchess (address of, &c.)	1095
Day School. Other Schools	1063	Duchess dowager. Dowager	257
DEADLY SIN. VENIAL SIN	1127	DUCTILE. TRACTILE	1346
DEALER. TRADER, &c.	648	Duke (address of, &c.)	1095
Dean (address of, &c.)	1009	Duodecimal money-system	1109
Decant wine or Decanter	183	Duodecimo	269
DECOCTION. INFUSION. TINCTURE	510, 1331	DUSK. TWILIGHT. DAWN	1383
Deer-stalking	1196	DYNAMICS. STATICS	1202
Defective seventh	1098	-e before -able	96
Defending of myself (wrong)	806	-e dropt before -ment	33
DEIST. THEIST. ATHEIST	1311	"Each other" (explained)	272
Demy paper (size of)	1106	Earl (address of, &c.)	1095
DENTALS. LABIALS, &c.	787	Earth or Earth's revolving (?)	273
Dependent on. Independent of	499	Earthly trigon	1362
Depressor. Levator	577	Easter term	1300, 1301
Dernier ressort	199	Eastward. Eastwards	274
DESPOT. TYRANT. AUTOCRAT	1385	Eat: That eats tenderly	964
Diagnose (its misuse)	209	Ecstasy or Extacy (?)	276
DIATONIC scale. CHROMATIC	1056	Education gauged by words	278
Difference of or between (?)	214	Egg on or Edge on (?)	277, 281
Different to or from (?)	214	Egyptian year	1166
DIGIT. UNIT. INTEGER	1396	Either (wrong use of)	711
Diminished seventh	1093	Either you or I am or are (?)	282
Dinosaur	1051	ELDEST. OLDEST. ELDER.
Diocesan school. Other sch.	1063	OLDER	233
Diocese or Diocess (?)	213	Elementary Sch. Other sch.	1063
Diphthong proper & improper	219	Elephant paper (size of)	1106
Diptote. Monoptote, &c.	1365	ELF. SYLPH. FAIRY. FAY	1270
DISSIMULATE. SIMULATE	1127	Elgin marbles	626
DISCOVER. INVENT	531	Empress (Emprice "Saxon Chron. 1140")
Distaff, plu. -stuffs	1194	Enaliosaurus	1051
Distemper (origin of the word)	244	Encyclopædia or Cyclopædia (?)	293
District schools. Other schools	1063	ENDEMIC. CONTAGIOUS. ZYMOTIC	1186
DIVERS. DIVERSE	247	ENDOSMOSE. EXDOSMOSE	1273
DIVERSION. AMUSEMENT, &c.	987	Endowed schools. Other sch.	1063
Dividend. Divisor	953	ENIGMA. CHARADE. CONUNDRUM	303
Division (of soldiers), what	983	Enough. Enow	305
Do, re, mi, fa, &c.	1155	-ense, -ence	306
Do you to wit	1344	ENSIGN. STANDARD. BANNER	1193
Do you do [How]	249	Ensure. Insure. Assure	306
Dolichosaurus	1051	Enharmonic scale	1056
Don't hardly know	434	Enter or Enter into (?)	307

	PAGE
ENTHYME. SYLLOGISM, &c.	1270
Entice (origin of the word) ..	308
ENTREE. ENTREMETS ..	310
-es plu. and 3 sing. ..	321
Envelop. Envelope ..	311
Eocene. Pliocene. Mio-
cene, &c. ..	869
Epergne (French meaning of)	312
EPIDEMIC. ENDEMIC. CON-
TAGIOUS ..	1183
EPIDERMIS. CUTICLE, &c. ..	1059
EPIGASTRIUM. ABDOMEN, &c.	1218
EPITHELIUM. CUTICLE, &c. ..	1059
EPOCH. ERA. AGE ..	316
EPONYM. ANONYM. PSEUDO-
NYM ..	316
ERA. EPOCH. AGE ..	316
ESOTERIC. EXOTERIC ..	340
Especially. Specially ..	1172
Esq. (who entitled to be called)	324
ETHNOLOGY. ANTHROPOLOGY	326
ETIOLOGY. ETHNOLOGY, &c.	326
EUPHEMISM. EUPHUISM ..	323
Eureka (the tradition) ..	328
Evening school. Other schools	1063
Ever so or Never so (?) ..	331
EXCEPT. UNLESS. SAVE ..	1597
EXCLUDE. PRECLUDE, &c. ..	1075
EXCOMMUNICATE. INTERDICT	524
Excuse my writing more, or my not writing more (?)	336
EXDOSMOSE. ENDOSMOSE ..	1273
EXOTERIC. ESOTERIC ..	340
Expense or Expendence (?) ..	341
FABLE. PARABLE. ALLEGORY	797
FACTOR. DEALER. SELLER, &c.	648
FAIRY. FAY. SYLPH. ELF, &c.	1270
Famished with thirst ..	1317
FAUNA. FLORA. SILVA ..	1125
FAY. FAIRY. ELF, &c. ..	1270
FELT. PELT ..	821
FEN. BOG. SWAMP, &c. ..	1263
FENCE. HEDGE. ENCLO-
SURE, &c. ..	789
-fid, -partite (difference) ..	807
Fiery trigon ..	1362
FLAG. STANDARD. BANNER ..	1198
Flee or Fly (?) ..	365
FLEXIBILITY. TRACTIBILITY	1346
"Floated" (Stock Exchange)	1216
FLORA. FAUNA. SILVA ..	1125
FLOTSAM. JETSAM. LAGAN	543
Fly or Flee (?) ..	365
Folio (size of a book) ..	1106
FOLK. PEOPLE. PERSONS ..	827
Foolscap paper ..	1106
Foot. Put (sound abnormal)	372
For you and I ..	471, 639
Foreclose a mortgage ..	638

	PAGE
'Fourteen-hundred" (Stock
Exchange) ..	1216
Free school. Other schools ..	1063
FRENZY. MADNESS, &c. ..	622
FRIAR. MONK ..	384
FRIED. ROASTED. BAKED, &c.	1020
From hence ..	445
From thence ..	1312
From whence ..	1312
FUGUE. CANON. ROUND ..	1029
Full score (what) ..	1067
Ganocephala ..	1053
GEMARA. MISHNA. TALMUD	666
Genitive, the double ..	399
GENUINE. AUTHENTIC ..	42
GERANIUM. PELARGONIUM	400
Gerund (-ing) ..	806
GIGANTES. ATLANTES.
Caryatides. PERSES, &c. ..	1292
Girls' schools. Other schools	1063
GLEE. MADRIGAL, &c. 610,	1029
GLOBE. ORB. SPHERE, &c.	406
GLORY. NIMBUS. HALO ..	718
GO. COME ..	408
Good-looking or Well-looking (?)	410
Goodness sake or Goodness' .. (?)	1016
Got: I have got a cold ..	412
Grand Seigneur ..	1080
Grape-shot ..	1114
GRATE. STOVE. RANGE, &c.	1221
Grayhound or Greyhound (?) ..	415
GRILLED. FRIED. STEWED, &c.	1020
GRILSE. PARR. SPROD, &c.	1189
Groom of the Stole ..	1217
-gue ..	276
Guinea pig (City phrase) ..	1216
H in the midst of Gk. words	793
H mute ..	425
Habit. Custom, &c. ..	426
Had rather; I had as lief be ..	427
HALO. GLORY. NIMBUS, &c.	718
HAMLET. VILLAGE. TOWN	1344
Handel and Bononcini ..	1382
Harmonic triad ..	1359
HASTE. HURRY. SPEED ..	466
Hamadryad. Other nymphs	733
Harmattan. Other winds ..	1131
HEATH. MOOR. FEN, &c. ..	1263
HEDGE. FENCE. ENCLOSURE ..	789
Hence: From hence ..	445
Hilary term ..	1300
Him for He ..	439
Honourable. Right Hon. ..	453
HOTEL. INN. TAVERN, &c.	1288
How do you do? ..	249
HUMANITARIAN. UNITARIAN	1153
Humours of the body ..	214
HURRY. HASTE. SPEED ..	466

	PAGE		PAGE
Hyad. Other nymphs	733	Lain (misuse of)	558, 568
Hylæosaurus	1051	"Lame duck" (Stock Exch.) ..	1216
I for me	471, 639	LANE. BY-ROAD, &c. ..	811, 812
I use to or I used to	1402	Langrel (shot)	1114
Iambic metre	1367	Lanthorn (a blunder)	561
-ic, -ics (sciences)	594	LARVA. PUPA. IMAGO ..	478
Ichthyosaurus	1051	Latter (misuse of)	565
IDIOPATHIC. SYMPTOMATIC. 474		Lawyer. Attorney. Solicitor ..	1158
If for whether	475	Lay for lie	563, 580
If I be	47	Laying for lying	580
IMAGO. PUPA. LARVA ..	478	Learn for teach	570
Imperial paper (size of) ..	1106	Leash: 2 leash or leashes (?) ..	785
Independent of. Dependent on 499		Least: At least or At the least (?) 570
Index expurgatorius	343	Leave not a wreck or wrack (?) 954
Indian summer	1248	"Leeds" (Stock Exchange) ..	1216
Industrial school, &c. ..	1063	LEGEND. TRADITION, &c. ..	1347
Infant school. Other schools 1063		Lent term	1301
INFUSION. DECOCTION. TINC-		Lesser (is correct)	575
TURE	1331	Letters (number of in a fount) 1385
-ing followed by "of"	401	" (how to begin and con-
INN. HOTEL. TAVERN, &c. 1238		clude)	1095
Inns of Court	513	Levator. Depressor	577
INSANITY. MADNESS. FRENZY 622		Lighted or lit (?)	582
INSOLENT. ARROGANT, &c. 906		Like for as	583
Inspiration, Verbal, Plenary. 518		Like you and me	639
Insure. Ensure. Assure ..	306	Limniad. Other nymphs ..	733
INSURRECTION. SEDITION, &c. 1078		LINGUALS. DENTALS. LA-
INTEGER. UNIT. DIGIT ..	1396	BIALS, &c.	787
INTERDICT. EXCOMMUNICATE 524		Lipogram (composition with a
INVENT. DISCOVER	531	given letter omitted)
Inversely as or to (?)	531	Lit or lighted (?)	582
Irony. Other tropes	1363	Loaded. Laden	591
Isle. Aisle	533	Logograph	304
It is me	639	Long score (what)	1067
JACOBIN. JACOBITE	541	Looked majestic or majestically 597
JETSAM. FLOTSAM. LAGAN. 543		Lorgnette. Lunette, &c. ..	604
'Jinny. 'Jenny	302, 543	LUNACY. MADNESS, &c. ..	622
Jove not Jehovah	542	Lunar month	1155
Julian year	1156	" year	1156
Justice sake or Justice' (?) 543		Lunette. Lorgnette	604
K, not a Latin letter	555	MACHINIST. MECHANIST. ME-
Kettle. Kittle. Kiddle ..	550	CHANIC	609
Kettle of fish or Kiddle of.. (?) 550		Macroscelosaurus	1051
Khamsin. Other winds ..	1131	MADNESS. MANIA. INSANITY 622
Kiddle. Kittle. Kettle ..	550	MADRIGAL. GLEE, &c. ..	1029
Kindergarten. Other schools 1063		MAIN. OCEAN. SEA	740
KING. SOVEREIGN, &c ..	1385	Major seventh	1093
"Kite" (Stock Exchange) ..	1216	Maker, &c.	648
Knight (address of, &c.) ..	554	-man plu. -mans	64
LABIALS. DENTALS. &c. ..	787	MANIA. INSANITY. MADNESS 622
Labyrinthodontia	1053	Many a one or an one (?) ..	625
Lacertilia	1053	MARASMUS. ATROPHY. CON-
Laden. Loaded	591	SUMPTION	867
LAGAN. JETSAM. FLOTSAM 543		Marchioness (address of, &c.) 1095
Laid for lay	563, 580	Marquis (address of, &c.) ..	1095
" " lain	580	MARSH. MEADOW. MORASS. 1263
		MARTIN. SWALLOW. SWIFT 1262
		Mastodonsaurus	1051
		MATRESS. PALLIASE, &c. 636, 790

	PAGE
Mayor, Mayoress (address of) ..	1095
Me for I	471, 639
MEADOW. MARSH, &c. ..	1263
"Means" with a verb sing. ..	640
MECHANIC. MACHINIST. ME- CHANIST	609
MEDIANT. SUBMEDIANT ..	1237
Medium paper (size of) ..	1106
Megalosaurus	1051
Meliad. Other nymphs. ..	733
Mercer. Other dealers ..	648
Merchant (how used) ..	648
METAPHOR. SIMILE, &c. ..	797
" .. Other tropes ..	1368
Metatarsus. Tarsus ..	1286
Methinks (is quite correct) ..	655
Metonymy. Other tropes ..	1368
Michaelmas term ..	1300, 1301
Midst (wrong use of) ..	658
Minor seventh	1098
MINUEND. SUBTRAHEND ..	1241
MIOCENE. PLIOCENE. EO- CENE, &c.	869
MISHNA. GEMARA. TALMUD ..	866
Misprision of treason ..	1356
Misses or The Miss (?) ..	688
Mixed School. Other Schools ..	1063
MOLASSES. TREACLE. SYRUP ..	1356
MONEY. CASH	674
Money duodecimal system ..	1109
Monger. Other dealers ..	648
MONK. FRIAR	384
MONOLOGUE. SOLILOQUY ..	1159
Monoptote. Diptote, &c. ..	1365
MOOR. MORASS. HEATH, &c. ..	1262
MORE. MUCH	681
Morganatic marriage ..	573
"Morgans" (Stock Exchange) ..	1216
MORT. SPROD. PARR, &c. ..	1189
Mortal sin. Venial sin ..	1127
Mortar-board cap	1358
Mosasaurus	1051
MUCH. MORE	681
Much people followed ..	689
MULATTO. SAMBO. QUAD- ROON, &c.	944, 1044
MUNGO. SHODDY	694
Muses, the nine	696
Musical triad	1359
MUTINY. SEDITION. REBEL- LION, &c.	1078
"Muttons" (Stock Exchange) ..	1216
Mystriosaurus	1051
Naiad. Other nymphs ..	733
Napeæ. Other nymphs ..	733
National and other schools ..	1063
Natural science	1064
Naught. Nought	705
Nay. No. Yea. Yes ..	706

	PAGE
Need: He need not or needs (?) ..	709
Neither (wrong use of) ..	711
Neither are	1311
Never so much or ever (?) ..	331
News is or are (?)	715
Night school. Other schools ..	1063
Normal and other schools ..	1063
Nightingale's song	1163
NIMBUS. AUREOLA. GLORY ..	718
Nodical month	1156
No. Nay. Yes. Yea	706
Nor or Or	757
Note paper	1106
Nothosaurus	1051, 1053
Nought. Naught	705
Noun short, Verb long ..	1146
Nouns in -ing	806
Nouns made verbs	1038
NYMPH. SYLPH. FAIRY ..	1270
-o (plural of nouns in) ..	1300
-o (vinculum of comp. nouns) ..	1093
OVERSE. REVERSE	1009
OCEAN. MAIN. SEA	740
Oceanid. Other nymphs ..	733
Octavo	1106
Octodecimo	1106
Odontosaurus	1051
Of: All of them	12
" .. for on	744
" .. for with	744
Off-wheeler, leader. Wheel ..	1522
Oldest. Eldest	233
On or Upon (?)	751
One (the pronoun)	751
One another. One to another ..	751
Only (position of)	752
Only me	639
Ontology	654
Or or Nor (?)	757
ORB. SPHERE. GLOBE ..	406
Oread. Other nymphs ..	733
Organ: Let the organ blow ..	58
Organ swell	1266
-ose (pronunciation of) ..	599
Ostrogoth	1494
-oth (pronunciation of) ..	1369
-ough (pronunciation of) ..	1319
-our (list of words in) ..	769
OVATION. TRIUMPH ..	1366
-ove (pronunciation of) ..	601
Overture. Symphony, &c. ..	1161
P (remarks on)	942
P.P.C.	133
Pages (opposite, tally) ..	1106
PAIR. COUPLE. BRACE ..	785
Pairs (when a singular) ..	785
Paleosaurus	1051
PALATALS. DENTALS. LABIALS ..	787

	PAGE		PAGE
PALING. RAILING. PALISADE	789	"Pots" (Stock Exchange) ..	1216
PALISADE. PALING. RAILING	789	PRACTICABLE. PRACTICAL..	894
PALLIASSE. MATTRESS, &c..	790	Practical science	1064
PAMPAS. SAVANNAHS. LLANOS	1054	Preaching of repentance..	806
Paper (sizes of)	1106	PRECIPITATE. SEDIMENT ..	837
PARABLE. FABLE. ALLEGORY	797	PRECLUDE. EXCLUDE	1075
Parabutta	1132	Predicables, what	899
PARLIAMENT. PARLEMENT ..	803	PRESUMPTUOUS. ARROGANT.	906
Parochial and other schools..	1063	Previous or previously (?) ..	907
PARODY. TRAVESTY	803	Primary and other schools ..	1063
PARR. SMOLT. SEROD, &c..	1189	Private and public schools ..	1063
PARRICIDE. PATRICIDE ..	804	Privy Council (address of, &c.)	1095
Parsnip or Parsnep (?) ..	805	PROBLEM. THEOREM	912
Partake of (misuse of) ..	805	PRODUCT. QUOTIENT. SUM..	1248
Participle, Gerund, &c., in -ing	806	PROFESSION. TRADE	1346
PARTICULAR. PECULIAR ..	807	PRONATOR. SUPINATOR..	1255
-partite, -fid (difference of) ..	807	Proper names in -ch	1067
Party: Is the party come? ..	808	PROPOSE. PURPOSE.. ..	921
"Pass the rubicon"	1031	PROPOUND. PROPOSE, &c. ..	921
Passion-flower (explained) ..	809	Proprietary and other schools	1063
PASTRY. PASTY	810	PROSECUTE. PERSECUTE ..	922
PATH. WALK. ROAD, &c..	811	Protosaurus	1052
PATRICIDE. PARRICIDE ..	804	PROTRACTER. PROTRACTOR..	925
Peas. Pease	815	PROVERB. ADAGE. MAXIM ..	926
PECULIAR. PARTICULAR ..	807	PROXIMATE, ULTIMATE [cause]	927
Ped-market	819	" [analysis]	1388
PELARGONIUM. GERANIUM	400	" [end] ..	1388
PELT. FELT	821	PROXIMO. ULTIMO	927
PENCE. PENNIES	822, 824	PRUNELLA. SALT PRUNELLA, &c.	928
PENNANT. STREAMER. FLAG	1193	PSEUDONYM. ANONYM, &c..	316
PEOPLE. FOLK. PERSONS..	827	PUBLIC-HOUSE. TAVERN. INN..	1288
PERSECUTE. PROSECUTE ..	922	Public and private schools ..	1063
PERSES. CARYATIDES. AT-		Pulmonary consumption, &c.	867
LANTES. GIGANTES	1292	Puna	1131
PERSONS. PEOPLE. FOLK..	827	PUPA. LARVA. IMAGO.. ..	478
Petrææ. Other nymphs ..	733	Purblind or Farblind (?) ..	926
PHIAL. VIAL	842	Pure science	1064
Philosopher's stone	1218	PURPOSE. PROPOSE	921
PHTHISIS. CONSUMPTION, &c.	867	Put. Foot (sound abnormal)	372
Pianoforte score	1067	Pterosaurus	1052
PIEBALD. SKEWBALE	1133
Pig (nomenclature)	853	QUADROON. MULATTO, &c. ..	1044
Pinnate. Alatus	857	Quarto	1106
Pistosaurus	1052, 1053	QUOTIENT. PRODUCT, &c. 953, 1248
PLAIN. PLANE	862
PLENARY inspiration. VER-		RACK. WRACK. WRECK ..	954
BAL inspiration	518	Ragged schools. Otherschools	1063
Plesiosaurus	1052, 1053	RAILING. PALING. PALISADE	789
PLEURISY. CONSUMPTION, &c.	867	Raise for Rise	957
PLIOCENE. EOCENE. PLISTO-		RANGE. STOVE. GRATE ..	1221
CENE, &c.	869	Raphiosaurus	1052
Pliosaurus	1052, 1053	RAVEN. DAW. ROOK. CROW	1025
PLISTOCENE. PLIOCENE. EO-		Reads: That reads well..	964
CENE, &c.	869	Reaumur's thermometer ..	347
Pneumatology	654	REBELLION. SEDITION. IN-
PNEUMONIA. PLEURISY, &c.	867	SURRECTION	1078
POEY. POETRY. POSY ..	875	REBUS. CHARADE. RIDDLE ..	304
Post (opposite meanings of) ..	889	Recourse. Resource (?) ..	1002
Post paper	1106	RECREATION. DIVERSION.
Potameid. Other nymphs ..	733	AMUSEMENT	987

	PAGE
Rector. Vicar	974
Red ribbon (decoration) ..	1014
REEK. STEAM. SMOKE ..	1205
REFLEXION. REFRACTION ..	980
Reformatory	1063
REFRACT. REFLECT	980
REFRAGABLE REFRANCOIBLE	981
Regard: In regard of or to (?)	982
RELAXATION. DIVERSION, &c.	987
Relic. Relict	988
REMAINDER. QUOTIENT ..	953
"REMAINS. REMNANT	990
Respect: In respect of or to (?)	1002
RESIN. ROSIN	1001
RESEMBLANCE. SEMBLANCE	1084
RESORT OR RESOURCE	1001
My last resort or resource (?)	1001
RESOURCE. RECOURSE	1002
Retè Malpighii	1059
REVERSE. OVERSE	1009
REVOLT. INSURRECTION, &c.	1078
Rez de chausée	419
"Rhyme" or "rime"	1013
Rhynchosaurus	1052
RIDDLE. PUZZLE, &c. ..	304
Ride: Take a ride or drive (?)	1015
Right Hon. Hon.	458
"who (?)	1016
Right Rev.	1009
Righteousness sake	1016
Ring-finger. Wedding-cake ..	1517
Risen for raised	957
River Thames or of Thames (?)	398
ROAD. HIGH-ROAD. BY-ROAD	811
ROOK. CROW DAW. RAVEN	1025
Rose for raised	957
Rose: Under the Rose	1026
ROSIN. RESIN	1001
Rotary or Rotatory (?) ..	1027
Round in your ear or round (?)	1029
Round-shot	1114
ROUT. ROUTE	1026
ROUND. CATCH. CANON, &c.	1029
ROUTE. ROUT	1026
Royal paper (size of)	1106
Rule the roast or roost (?) ..	1025
RULE. RULER. SCALE, &c.	1033
Run the gauntlet	396
S in native words	1036
S sounded like z	1002
S negative	1149
S followed by c, C by s	129
Said that	1055
SAL PRUNELLA. PRUNELLA	1041
SAMBO. MULATTO. QUADROON	1044
SANITARY. SANATORY	1044
Sand-blind or Sam-blind (?) ..	1045
SAVANNAHS. PAMPAS. LLANOS	1054
SAVE. UNLESS. EXCEPT ..	1397

	PAGE
SAW. PROVERB. MAXIM, &c.	926
SCALE. RULE. RULER, &c.	1033
See = se	1061
Scelidosaurus	1052
Sci = ski	1065
Scotchmen. The Scotch ..	1067
Score: 2 score or scores (?) ..	785
SEA. OCEAN. MAIN, &c. ..	740
Search-warrant	1503
SECLUDE. PRECLUDE. EX- CLUDE	1075
SEDIMENT. PRECIPITATE. DREOS	897
SEDITION. REBELLION. IN- SURRECTION	1078
SEMBLANCE. RESEMBLANCE ..	1084
SERF. VASSAL. VILLAIN ..	1490
SERGEANT. SERJEANT ..	1092, 1093
SERPENT. SNAKE VIPER, &c.	1147
Set for sit	1132
Settling day (Stock Exchange)	1216
Seven sciences	1064
Shall. Will	1101, 1533
Sheep (nomenclature of) ..	1105
SHODDY. MUNGO	694
Should. Would	1114, 1534
Should not have needed to have	1369
Sicilian Vespers	1485
Sidercal month	1156
"year	1156
SILVA. FLORA. FAUNA ..	1125
Silver wedding	1517
SIMILE. METAPHOR, &c. ..	654
Simoom. Other winds	1131
Simosaurus	1152, 1153
SIMULATE. DISSIMULATE ..	1127
"Singapores" (Stock Exch.) ..	1216
SINUATE. INSINUATE	1130
-sion. -tion	750
SIRNAME OR SURNAME	1258
Sit and Set	1132
SKEWBALD. PIEBALD	1133
Skin of his teeth	1339
Skylark's song	1163
SLAVE. SERP. VILLAIN ..	1490
Sleeve of care or sleeve (?) ..	1138
Sleeveless or sleeveless er- rand (?)	1138
SLOW-WORM. VIPER. SNAKE	1147
Small-shot	1114
"Smelts" (Stock Exchange) ..	1216
SMOKE. SOOT. REEK	1163
SMOLT. PARL. SPRED, &c. ..	1189
SNAKE. VIPER. SERPENT, &c.	1147
So..as. As..as	35, 1151
So..but. So..but that	1151
So soon as. As soon as	1163
So..that	1151
SOCINIAN. UNITARIAN. ARIAN	1153
Solano and other winds	1131

	PAGE		PAGE
SOLECISM. BARBARISM ..	1157	Surname or sirname (?) ..	1258
SOLICITOR. ATTORNEY. LAWYER ..	1158	SWALLOW. MARTIN. SWIFT ..	1262
SOLILOQUY. MONOLOGUE ..	1159	SWAMP. BOG. FEN, &c. ..	1263
SOLUBLE. SOLVABLE ..	1160	SWIFT. SWALLOW. MARTIN ..	1262
SOMMIER. PALLIASSE. MATTRESS ..	790	SYCAMORE. SYCAMINE. SY-
SONATA. CANTATA. SYMPHONY ..	1162	COMORE ..	1269
SOOT. SMOKE. BLACKS ..	1161	SYLLOGISM. ENTHYME. &c. ..	1270
Soprano (compass of) ..	1163	SYLPH. NYMPH. FAIRY. FAY ..	1270
SORITES. SYLLOGISM, &c. ..	1274	SYMPHONY. CANTATA, &c. ..	1161
SOVEREIGN. KING. MONARCH ..	1385	SYMPTOMATIC. IDIOPATHIC ..	474
Sovereign (address of, &c.) ..	1095	Synecdoche and other tropes ..	1363
SPANKER. SPENCER, &c. ..	1373	Synonym and other -nys ..	316
Specially. Especially ..	1172	SYRUP. TREACLE. MOLASSES ..	1356
Spencer of a ship ..	1373
Sphenosaurus ..	1052, 1053	TABES. CONSUMPTION. ATRO-
SPHERE. GLOBE. ORB, &c. ..	1176	PHY, &c. ..	867
"Spinster" (meaning cf -ster) ..	1179	TALMUD. GEMARA. MISHNA ..	666
SPIRITUOUS. SPIRITOUS ..	1181	TALLY-HO. VIEW HALLOO ..	1489
"Spoon" (Stock Exchange) ..	1216	TARSUS. METATARSUS ..	1286
SPORADIC. ZYMOTIC. EPIDEMIC ..	1186	TAVERN. HOTEL. INN, &c. ..	1283
SPRAG. SPROD. SMOLT. PARR. ..	1189	TEACH. LEARN ..	1289
SQUALL. SQUEAK. SQUEAL ..	1192	Technical school. Other sch. ..	1063
St. Luke's summer ..	1248	TELAMONES. CARYATIDES, &c. ..	1292
St. Martin's summer ..	1248	Teleosaurus ..	1052
"Stag" (Stock Exchange) ..	1216	TEMPEST. STORM ..	1295
STALACTITE. STALAGMITE ..	1195	Tenor (compass of) ..	1293
STAMMER. STUTTER, &c. ..	1197	TEXTURE. STRUCTURE ..	1228
STANDARD. BANNER. EN-		Than me ..	471
SIGN, &c. ..	1198	Than whom. Than them ..	1308
Starved with thirst ..	1317	Thanks for thank you ..	1309
STATICS. DYNAMICS ..	1202	That for so very ..	1309
STATIONARY. STATIONERY ..	1202	The leaving of ..	806
STATUE. STATUTE ..	1202	The sending of ..	806
STEAM. VAPOUR. REEK, &c. ..	1205	Thecodontosaurus ..	1053
Steneosaurus ..	1052	Their for his or her ..	1311
STEWED. BROILED. BAKED ..	1020	THEIST. DEIST. ATHEIST ..	1311
STIMULANT. STIMULUS ..	1212	Themistocles, the sorites of ..	1165
Stipulate (origin of the word) ..	1214	THEOREM. PROBLEM ..	912
Stock Exchange slang ..	1215	These kind or this kind (?) ..	1315
STOMACH. ABDOMEN. BELLY ..	1218	These sort or this sort (?) ..	1315
Storey of a house (what) ..	470, 1220	This—that. These—those ..	1313
STORM. TEMPEST ..	1295	This—that—yon ..	1309
STOVE. GRATE. RANGE, &c. ..	1221	This much or Thus much ..	1324
STREAMER. PENNANT. FLAG ..	1193	Thorough working order or
STRUCTURE. TEXTURE ..	1223	thoroughly (?) ..	1319
STUTTER. STAMMER, &c. ..	1197	Throw dust in one's eyes ..	270
Sub rosa ..	1027	Time bargains (Stock Exch.) ..	1216
SUBTILE. SUBTLE. SUPPLE,		TINCTURE. DECOCTION ..	1331
&c. ..	1240, 1241	-tion or -sion ..	750
SUBTRAHEND. MINUEND ..	1241	'Tis only me (?) ..	471
Such a one or an one (?) ..	625, 1242	To-day. To-night. To-morrow
Suchosaurus ..	1052	(Shut to the door) ..	1334
SUITE. SUIT ..	1245	TOASTED. BAKED. ROASTED, &c. ..	1020
SULPHUROUS. SULPHUREOUS ..	1247	TOWN. BOROUGH. CITY, &c. ..	1344
Super royal paper (size of) ..	1106	TRACTILE. DUCTILE. FLEXILE ..	1346
Superfluous seventh ..	1098	TRADE. PROFESSION ..	1346
SUPINATOR. PRONATOR ..	1255	TRADITION. LEGEND ..	1347
SUPPLE. SUBTLE. SUBTILE ..	1240, 1241	TRANSUBSTANTIATION. Cons-
SUPPLEMENT. COMPLEMENT ..	1255	TRAVESTY. PARODY ..	1355
		TREACLE. MOLASSES. SYRUP ..	1356

	PAGE
Treble (compass of)	1164
Treble or triple (three-fold) ..	1357
Trematosaurus	1053
TRICENNIAL. TRIENNIAL ..	1361
Tricolour of Belgium, France, Holland, Italy	1361
TRIENNIAL. TRICENNIAL ..	1361
TRINITARIAN. UNITARIAN ..	1396
Trinity term	1300, 1301
Triple time	1329
Trifling	1015
TRIUMPH. OVATION	1366
TROPE. METAPHOR, &c. ..	1368
Tropical month	1155
TROUBADOUR. TROUVERE ..	1369
Troy-weight	1370
TRYSAIL. SPENCER. SPAN- KER	1373
Tumblerfuls or tumblersful (?)	1375
TUMULT. SEDITION. REVOLT	1078
-ture (abstract nouns)	1378
TUTELAGE. TUTORAGE ..	1381
Twenty-four mo (24mo)	1106
Twice one is or are two (?) ..	1383
Twilight. Dawn. Dusk, &c.	1383
Two and two is or are four (?)	1383
"Two" with "both"	11
Types, a complete fount, what	1385
Types (size of)	851
TYPHOID. TYPHUS	1385
TYRANT. DESPOT. AUTO- CRAT, &c.	1385-6
U, when not a vowel	1499
Ultima Thule	1387
ULTIMATE analysis. PROXIM ..	1388
ULTIMATE cause. PROXIM ..	927
ULTIMATE end. PROXIM ..	1388
ULTIMO. PROXIMO	927
Under the rose	1026
Union Jack	1395
UNIT. DIGIT. INTEGER ..	1396
UNITARIAN. TRINITARIAN ..	1396

	PAGE
UNITARIAN. SOCINIAN, &c.	1153
University terms	1300
UNLESS. EXCEPT. SAVE ..	1397
Up to London or down (?) ..	1398
Up-train. Down-train	258
Upon or On (?)	751
I use to play the flute	1402
I use to be able to do it ..	1402
Un-, de-, dis-, in-, non- ..	1403
VACANT. EMPTY. VOID ..	1472
VALE. VALLEY. DALE. DELL	1473
VARIETY. DIVERSITY	1475
VASSAL. VILLAIN. SERF ..	1490
VENAL. MERCENARY	1478
Verò (13 sorts of)	1481
Very or very much pleased ..	1485
VIEW HALLOO. TALLY HO ..	1489
VILLAGE. HAMLET. TOWN, &c.	1490
VILLAIN. SERF. VASSAL ..	1490
VISIGOTH. OSTROGOTH ..	1494
WAGES. PAY. SALARY, &c.	1501
Wanting. Wanted	1505
My hair wants cutting ..	1505
WED. MARRY. WEDDING, &c.	1517
Well looking (?)	1519
WHELP. CUB. PUP, &c. ..	1523
Which art in heaven	1524
Whitsun-day or Whit-Sunday (?)	1528
Who and Whom	1529, 1530
Whose (erroneous use of) ..	1531
Wig from pilucca	1532
Will and shall	1533-4
Wooden wedding	1517
Worse: At worst or at the worst	1543
Would and should	1534
Write me word (?)	1546
You and I, You and me ..	1551
Your (possessive and adj.) ..	1551
Zodiacal signs (mnemonic lines of)	1553

Warwick House, Dorset Buildings,
Salisbury Square, E.C.

WARD, LOCK & CO.'S
LIST OF STANDARD REFERENCE VOLUMES, AND Popular Useful Books.

Of all Works of Reference published of late years, not one has gained such general approbation as BEETON'S ILLUSTRATED ENCYCLOPÆDIA. The importance of this valuable compilation in the cause of mental culture has long been acknowledged, and of its real usefulness to the public the most gratifying proofs have been received. It is undoubtedly one of the Most Comprehensive Works in existence, and is

THE CHEAPEST ENCYCLOPÆDIA EVER PUBLISHED.

Complete in Four Volumes, royal 8vo, half-roan, price 42s.; half-calf, 63s.

BEETON'S
ILLUSTRATED ENCYCLOPÆDIA OF UNIVERSAL INFORMATION.

COMPRISING
GEOGRAPHY, HISTORY, BIOGRAPHY, ART, SCIENCE, AND LITERATURE, AND CONTAINING
4,000 Pages, 50,000 Articles, and 2,000 Engravings and Coloured Maps.

IN BEETON'S ILLUSTRATED ENCYCLOPÆDIA will be found complete and authentic information respecting the Physical and Political Geography, Situation, Population, Commerce and Productions, as well as the principal Public Buildings of every Country and important or interesting Town in the World, and the leading Historical Events with which they have been connected; concise Biographies of Eminent Persons, from the most remote times to the present day; brief Sketches of the leading features of Egyptian, Greek, Roman, Oriental, and Scandinavian Mythology; a Complete Summary of the Moral, Mathematical, Physical and Natural Sciences; a plain description of the Arts; and an interesting Synopsis of Literary Knowledge. The Pronunciation and Etymology of every leading term introduced throughout the Encyclopædia are also given.

"WE KNOW OF NO BOOK which in such small compass gives SO MUCH INFORMATION."—The Scotsman.

London: WARD, LOCK & CO., Salisbury Square, E.C.

MRS. BEETON'S HOUSEHOLD MANAGEMENT.

Messrs. WARD, LOCK & CO. have the pleasure to announce that the New, Enlarged, and Improved Edition of Mrs. BEETON'S BOOK OF HOUSEHOLD MANAGEMENT, of world-wide renown, is now ready, containing 150 pages of New Information on all matters of Cookery and Domestic Management. Entirely New Coloured Cookery Plates, and numerous new full-page Wood Engravings have likewise been added, thus further improving a work already acknowledged to be

THE BEST COOKERY BOOK IN THE WORLD.

Of this Book over 300 000 Copies have been sold; this is the best test of its great utility over every other Cookery Book in the English market.

Now ready, IMPROVED AND ENLARGED EDITION (337th Thousand), strongly bound, price 7s. 6d.; cloth gilt, gilt edges, 8s. 6d.; half-calf, 10s. 6d.

MRS. BEETON'S BOOK OF HOUSEHOLD MANAGEMENT.

Comprising every kind of Information on Domestic Economy and Cookery,

AND CONTAINING

1,350 Pages, 4,000 Recipes and Instructions, 1,000 Engravings, and New Coloured Cookery Plates.

Mrs. BEETON'S BOOK OF HOUSEHOLD MANAGEMENT has long been acknowledged the best of its kind, and is now in daily use in hundreds of thousands of homes, receiving thereby the greatest honour which in this country has ever been paid to a Cookery Book. The APPENDIX which is now added gives several Hundreds of New Recipes, and Hints without number in all departments of Cookery and the Service of the Table.

Mrs. BEETON'S BOOK OF HOUSEHOLD MANAGEMENT is a Complete Cyclopædia for the Home, including, as it does, information for the Mistress, House-keeper, Cook, Kitchen Maid, Butler, Footman, Coachman, Valet, Housemaid, Lady's Maid, Maid-of-all-Work, Laundry Maid, Nursemaid, Nurses, &c., &c.

Rules for the Management of Servants. Rules for the Rearing and Management of Children. The Doctor. Legal Memoranda.

250 Bills of Fare for Dinners for 6 to 18 Persons; also for Ball Suppers, Breakfasts, Luncheons, and Suppers, as well as for Plain Family Dinners, all arranged to suit the Seasons from January to December.

* * As a Wedding Gift, Birthday Book, or Presentation Volume at any Period of the Year, or upon any Anniversary whatever, Mrs. Beeton's "Household Management" is entitled to the very first place. In half-calf binding, price Half-a-Guinea, the book will last a life-time, and save money every day.

"Other household books may be regarded as treatises on special departments of the menage: this is a Cyclopædia of all things connected with home."—Daily News.

"A volume which will be, for many years to come, a TREASURE TO BE MADE MUCH OF IN EVERY ENGLISH HOUSEHOLD. It is an Encyclopædia of family matters, which will not often be referred to in vain, and the easy arrangement of which will at once win the hearts of all its female consulters. Mrs. Beeton has earned for herself, by this volume, a household reputation and a name."—Standard.

London: WARD, LOCK & CO., Salisbury Square, E.C.

AN ENTIRELY NEW ETYMOLOGICAL DICTIONARY.

Just ready, demy 8vo, cloth, 5s. WARD & LOCK'S

STANDARD
ETYMOLOGICAL DICTIONARY
OF THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE.

A POPULAR AND COMPREHENSIVE GUIDE TO THE PRONUNCIATION,
PARTS OF SPEECH, MEANINGS, AND ETYMOLOGY OF ALL WORDS, ORDINARY, SCIENTIFIC, AND TECHNOLOGICAL NOW IN GENERAL USE.

With 40 pages of Engravings and an Appendix,

COMPRISING

1. ABBREVIATIONS USED IN WRITING AND PRINTING.
 2. A BRIEF CLASSICAL DICTIONARY, COMPRISING THE PRINCIPAL DEITIES, HEROES, NOTABLE MEN AND WOMEN, &c., OF GREEK AND ROMAN MYTHOLOGY.
 3. LETTERS: HOW TO BEGIN, END, AND ADDRESS THEM.
 4. WORDS, PHRASES, AND PROVERBS, FROM THE LATIN, FREQUENTLY USED IN WRITING AND SPEAKING.
 5. WORDS, PHRASES, AND PROVERBS, FROM THE FRENCH, WITH ENGLISH TRANSLATIONS.
 6. WORDS, PHRASES, AND PROVERBS, FROM THE ITALIAN AND SPANISH WITH ENGLISH TRANSLATIONS.
-

Messrs. WARD, LOCK AND CO., in announcing this ENTIRELY NEW WORK, which has long been in preparation, desire to call special attention to the several points of excellence to be found in it, and feel sure that this valuable work will command the favour of the public. The following are the principal points to which attention is called:—

1. Comprehensiveness.—New words, that the progress of science, art, and philosophy has rendered necessary as additions to the vocabulary, and thousands of compound words have been introduced.
 2. Brevity.—To ensure this, care has been taken to avoid redundancy of explanation, while every possible meaning of each word has been given.
 3. Pronunciation.—Those who may use it will not be puzzled and confused with any arbitrary system of phonetic signs, similar to those usually found in Pronouncing Dictionaries. Every word of two syllables and more is properly divided and accented; and all silent letters are put in italics.
 4. Etymology.—The words are arranged in groups, each group being placed under the principal word to which its members are closely allied. Words similarly spelt, but having distinct etymologies, are separated according to their derivation.
 5. Illustrations.—40 pages of Illustrations of various objects given, to assist students in arriving at a clear perception of that which is indicated by the name.
-

London: WARD, LOCK & CO., Salisbury Square, E.C.

THE STANDARD DICTIONARIES OF LANGUAGE.

WEBSTER'S UNIVERSAL PRONOUNCING AND DEFINING DICTIONARY OF THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE. Condensed from Noah Webster's Large Work, with numerous Synonyms, carefully discriminated by CHAUNCEY A. GOODRICH, D.D. With Walker's Key to the Pronunciation of Classical and Scriptural Proper Names; a Vocabulary of Modern Geographical Names; Phrases and Quotations from the Ancient and Modern Languages; Abbreviations, &c. Royal 8vo, half bound, 5s.; demy 8vo, cloth, 3s. 6d.

"This Dictionary must commend itself to every intelligent reader. . . . Let us add, it is carefully and well printed, and very cheap; and having said so much, we feel assured that further recommendation is unnecessary. It is good, useful, and cheap."—Liverpool Mail.

WEBSTER'S IMPROVED PRONOUNCING DICTIONARY OF THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE. Condensed and adapted to English Orthography and Usage, with additions by CHARLES ROBSON. To which are added, Accentuated Lists of Scriptural, Classical, and Modern Geographical Proper Names. Cloth, price 2s. 6d.; strongly half-bound, 3s. 6d.

WEBSTER'S POCKET PRONOUNCING DICTIONARY OF THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE. Condensed from the Original Dictionary by NOAH WEBSTER, LL.D.; with Accentuated Vocabularies of Classical, Scriptural, and Modern Geographical Names. Revised Edition, by WILLIAM G. WEBSTER, Son of Noah Webster. Containing 10,000 more words than "Walker's Dictionary." Royal 16mo, cloth, price 1s.

WARD & LOCK'S POCKET SHILLING DICTIONARY OF THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE. Condensed by CHARLES ROBSON, from NOAH WEBSTER'S Original Work. With Accentuated Lists of Scripture and Modern Geographical Proper Names. Super-royal 32mo, cloth, 768 pp., 1s.

WARD AND LOCK'S SHILLING DICTIONARY OF THE GERMAN LANGUAGE. Containing German-English and English-German, Geographical Dictionary, Table of Coins, &c. Super-royal 32mo, cloth, 900 pp., 1s.

WEBSTER'S SIXPENNY POCKET PRONOUNCING DICTIONARY OF THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE. Condensed from the Original Dictionary by NOAH WEBSTER, LL.D.; with Accentuated Vocabularies of Classical, Scriptural, and Modern Geographical Names. Revised Edition, by WILLIAM G. WEBSTER, Son of Noah Webster. Strongly bound in cloth, price 6d.

WEBSTER'S PENNY PRONOUNCING DICTIONARY OF THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE. Exhibiting the Spelling, Pronunciation, Part of Speech, and Meaning of all Words in General Use among English-speaking Nations. Containing over 10,000 words. Price 1d.; or, linen wrapper, 2d.

HIGH CLASS BOOKS OF REFERENCE.

THE HAYDN SERIES OF MANUALS.

"THE MOST UNIVERSAL BOOK OF REFERENCE IN A MODERATE COMPASS THAT WE KNOW OF IN THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE."—The Times.

HAYDN'S DICTIONARY OF DATES. Relating to all Ages and Nations ; for Universal Reference. Containing about 10,000 distinct Articles, and 80,000 Dates and Facts. Sixteenth Edition, Enlarged, Corrected and Revised by BENJAMIN VINCENT, Librarian of the Royal Institution of Great Britain. In One thick Vol., medium 8vo, cloth, price 18s. ; half-calf, 24s. ; full or tree-calf, 31s. 6d.

"It is certainly no longer now a mere Dictionary of Dates, but A COMPREHENSIVE DICTIONARY OR ENCYCLOPÆDIA OF GENERAL INFORMATION."—The Times.

"It is BY FAR THE READIEST AND MOST RELIABLE WORK OF THE KIND."—The Standard.

VINCENT'S DICTIONARY OF BIOGRAPHY, Past and Present. Containing the Chief Events in the Lives of Eminent Persons of all Ages and Nations. By BENJAMIN VINCENT, Librarian of the Royal Institution of Great Britain, and Editor of "Haydn's Dictionary of Dates." In One thick Vol., medium 8vo, cloth, 7s. 6d. ; half-calf, 12s. ; full or tree-calf, 18s.

"It has the merit of condensing into the smallest possible compass the leading events in the career of every man and woman of eminence. . . . It is very carefully edited, and must evidently be the result of constant industry, combined with good judgment and taste."—The Times.

The CHEAPEST BOOK PUBLISHED on DOMESTIC MEDICINE, &c.

HAYDN'S DOMESTIC MEDICINE. By the late EDWIN LANKESTER, M.D., F.R.S., assisted by Distinguished Physicians and Surgeons. New Edition, including an Appendix on Sick Nursing and Mothers' Management. With 32 full pages of Engravings. In One Vol., medium 8vo, cloth gilt, 7s. 6d. ; half-calf, 12s.

"Very exhaustive, and embodies an enormous amount of medical information in an intelligible shape."—The Scotsman.

"THE FULLEST AND MOST RELIABLE WORK OF ITS KIND."—Liverpool Albion.

HAYDN'S BIBLE DICTIONARY. For the use of all Readers and Students of the Old and New Testaments, and of the Apocrypha. Edited by the late Rev. CHARLES BOUTELL, M.A. New Edition, brought down to the latest date. With 100 pages of Engravings, separately printed on tinted paper. In One Vol., medium 8vo, cloth gilt, 7s. 6d. ; half-calf, 12s.

"No better one than this is in the market. . . . Every local preacher should place this dictionary in his study, and every Sunday-school teacher should have it for reference."—The Fountain.

UNIFORM WITH "HAYDN'S BIBLE DICTIONARY."

WHISTON'S JOSEPHUS. An entirely New Library Edition of WILLIAM WHISTON'S translation of the Works of FLAVIUS JOSEPHUS. Comprising "The Antiquities of the Jews," and "The Wars of the Jews." With Memoir of the Author, Marginal Notes giving the Essence of the Narrative, and 100 pages of Engravings, separately printed on tinted paper. In One Vol., medium 8vo, cloth gilt, 7s. 6d. ; half-calf, 12s.

"The present edition is cheap and good, being clearly printed, and, as already remarked, serviceably embellished with views and object drawings, not one of which is irrelevant to the matter."—The Daily Telegraph.

London : WARD, LOCK & CO., Salisbury Square, E.C.

THE PEOPLE'S STANDARD CYCLOPÆDIAS.

EVERYBODY'S LAWYER (Beeton's Law Book). Entirely New Edition, Revised by a BARRISTER. A Practical Compendium of the General Principles of English Jurisprudence: comprising upwards of 14,600 Statements of the Law. With a full Index, 27,000 References, every numbered paragraph in its particular place, and under its general head. Crown 8vo, 1,680 pp., cloth gilt, 7s. 6d.

.* The sound practical information contained in this voluminous work is equal to that in a whole library of ordinary legal books, costing many guineas. Not only for every non-professional man in a difficulty are its contents valuable, but also for the ordinary reader, to whom a knowledge of the law is more important and interesting than is generally supposed.*

BEETON'S DICTIONARY OF GEOGRAPHY: A Universal Gazetteer. Illustrated by Maps—Ancient, Modern, and Biblical, and several Hundred Engravings in separate Plates on toned paper. Containing upwards of 12,000 distinct and complete Articles. Post 8vo, cloth gilt, 7s. 6d.; half-calf, 10s. 6d.

BEETON'S DICTIONARY OF BIOGRAPHY: Being the Lives of Eminent Persons of All Times. Containing upwards of 10,000 distinct and complete Articles, profusely Illustrated by Portraits. With the Pronunciation of Every Name. Post 8vo, cloth gilt, 7s. 6d.; half-calf, 10s. 6d.

BEETON'S DICTIONARY OF NATURAL HISTORY: A Popular and Scientific Account of Animated Creation. Containing upwards of 2,000 distinct and complete Articles; and more than 400 Engravings. With the Pronunciation of Every Name. Crown 8vo, cloth gilt, 7s. 6d.; half-calf, 10s. 6d.

BEETON'S BOOK OF HOME PETS: How to Rear and Manage in Sickness and in Health. With many Coloured Plates, and upwards of 200 Woodcuts from designs principally by HARRISON WEIR. With a Chapter on Ferns. Post 8vo, half-roan, 7s. 6d.; half-calf, 10s. 6d.

THE TREASURY OF SCIENCE, Natural and Physical. Comprising Natural Philosophy, Astronomy, Chemistry, Geology, Mineralogy, Botany, Zoology and Physiology. By F. SCHOEDLER, Ph.D. Translated and Edited by HENRY MEDLOCK, Ph.D., &c. With more than 500 Illustrations. Crown 8vo, cloth gilt, 7s. 6d.; half-calf, 10s. 6d.

A MILLION OF FACTS of Correct Data and Elementary Information concerning the entire Circle of the Sciences, and on all subjects of Speculation and Practice. By Sir RICHARD PHILLIPS. Carefully Revised and Improved. Crown 8vo, cloth gilt, 7s. 6d.; half-calf, 10s. 6d.

THE TEACHER'S PICTORIAL BIBLE AND BIBLE DICTIONARY. With the most approved Marginal References, and Explanatory Oriental and Scriptural Notes, Original Comments, and Selections from the most esteemed Writers. Illustrated with numerous Engravings and Coloured Maps. Crown 8vo, cloth gilt, red edges, 8s. 6d.; French morocco, 10s. 6d.; half-calf, 10s. 6d.; Turkey morocco, 15s.

THE SELF-AID CYCLOPÆDIA, for Self-Taught Students. Comprising General Drawing; Architectural, Mechanical, and Engineering Drawing; Ornamental Drawing and Design; Mechanics and Mechanism; the Steam Engine. By ROBERT SCOTT BURN, F.S.A.E., &c. With upwards of 1,000 Engravings. Demy 8vo, half-bound, price 10s. 6d.

London: WARD, LOCK & CO., Salisbury Square, E.C.

A NEW EDUCATIONAL WORK OF GREAT VALUE.

Just ready, folio, boards, price 5s., with 500 Original Wood Engravings.

WARD AND LOCK'S

PICTORIAL ATLAS OF NATURE.

MEN, ANIMALS, AND PLANTS OF ALL QUARTERS OF THE GLOBE.

FOR HOME AND SCHOOL USE.

IN no department of popular education has the progress that characterises our time been more distinctly marked than in the study of Geography; and nowhere have the enlarged views of the present day produced a more complete change in the method of tuition and in the scope of the subject. Geography must no longer be taught as a mere study of names, intermingled with certain statistical details of population, distances, measurements of altitudes, &c. A good geographical knowledge of any given quarter of the globe, or of a separate country, must now include a certain familiarity with the characteristic productions of the quarter or country in question, the types it presents in nations, animals, and plants. Thus, ETHNOGRAPHY, the study of races; ZOOLOGY, the study of animals; and BOTANY, the study of plants, are all to some extent associated with Geography.

In the improved state of the science of Geography, additional appliances have become necessary for its practical study. The atlas of maps, however complete it may be, only presents one aspect of the subject. The student now requires not only to understand the map that teaches him the topography of a country:—when he has made himself familiar with the surface of a part of the globe, he requires to be taught what that region has to show as regards inhabitants and animal and vegetable productions.

WARD AND LOCK'S PICTORIAL ATLAS OF NATURE has been prepared with a view of meeting this want. In a series of FIFTEEN LARGE PLATES it places before the eyes of the student the typical forms of the nations, animals, and plants of the various parts of the world. Each plate contains a map, around which the types are grouped; and numbers inserted in this map, and corresponding with others in the pictorial illustrations, show the learner where the races of men, and the plants and animals depicted, have their homes.

The greatest care has been taken to render the atlas strictly educational by the utmost accuracy and truth to nature in the pictures. The plants have been drawn by botanical artists, the animals are not imaginative or fancy sketches, but zoologically correct, and the great majority of heads of men and women are from photographs taken from life, or else sketches from the note books of travellers, to whom the originals have sat. In many cases the scale of proportion in which an animal or plant has been drawn is given. The animals are represented, where practicable, surrounded by the scenery of their native homes; besides the plants, the most important parts, such as flowers, fruit, leaves, &c., are separately given to draw the attention of the student especially to their curious or useful points.

Thus the ATLAS OF NATURE becomes a very necessary companion volume to the usual atlas of political geography.

In the schoolroom and the family circle alike it will be found most useful and welcome. A teacher, with one of these plates before him, has only to enlarge upon the notes which have been added in the form of suggestive information, to produce a lecture-lesson that can hardly fail to interest his class. Those engaged in tuition will readily see how much time and labour are saved, in the way of explanation, and how much more vivid an impression is produced than by words alone, when a picture of the object itself is placed before the learner, and his faculty of comparison and analysis is brought into action.

For self-tuition, those learners, now so numerous, who are educating themselves by means of manuals, will find WARD & LOCK'S ATLAS OF NATURE an ever present help, that will lighten their labours by conveying to the eye, in its clearly and correctly drawn pictures, the explanation of much they will find difficult in their books.

The utility of the ATLAS OF NATURE is not confined to the study of geography even in its widest sense. The Student of Natural History, and of Botany, will find in it an equally useful and suggestive companion.

London: WARD, LOCK & CO., Salisbury Square, E.C.

REFERENCE BOOKS FOR THE PEOPLE.

BEETON'S NATIONAL REFERENCE BOOKS,
FOR THE PEOPLE OF GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND.

“ In an age of great competition and little leisure the value of Time is tolerably well understood. Men wanting facts like to get at them with as little expenditure as possible of money or minutes.”* BEETON'S NATIONAL REFERENCE BOOKS have been conceived and carried out in the belief that a set of Cheap and Handy Volumes in Biography, Geography, History (Sacred and Profane), Science, and Business, would be thoroughly welcome, because they would quickly answer many a question. In every case the type will be found clear and plain.

STRONGLY BOUND IN CLOTH, PRICE ONE SHILLING EACH.

(Those marked thus * can be had cloth gilt, price 1s. 6d.)

1. *Beeton's British Gazetteer: A Topographical and Historical Guide to the United Kingdom.
2. Beeton's British Biography: From the Earliest Times to the Accession of George III.
3. Beeton's Modern Men and Women: A British Biography, from the Accession of George III. to the Present Time.
4. *Beeton's Bible Dictionary. A Cyclopædia of the Geography, Biography, Narratives, and Truths of Scripture.
5. *Beeton's Classical Dictionary: A Cyclopædia of Greek and Roman Biography, Geography, Mythology, and Antiquities.
6. *Beeton's Medical Dictionary. A Guide for every Family, defining, with perfect plainness, the Symptoms and Treatment of all Ailments, Illnesses, and Diseases.
7. Beeton's Date Book. A British Chronology from the Earliest Records to the Present Day.
8. Beeton's Dictionary of Commerce. Containing Explanations of the principal Terms used in, and modes of transacting Business at Home and Abroad.
9. Beeton's Modern European Celebrities. A Biography of Continental Men and Women of Note who have lived during the last Hundred Years, or are now living.

Beeton's Guide Book to the Stock Exchange and Money Market. With Hints to Investors and the Chances of Speculators. Entirely New Edition, post 8vo, linen boards, 1s.

Beeton's Investing Money with Safety and Profit. New and Revised Edition. Post 8vo, linen covers, 1s.

Beeton's Ready Reckoner. With New Tables, and much Information never before collected. Post 8vo, strong cloth, 1s.

Webster's Sixpenny Ready Reckoner. 256 pp., cloth, 6d.

Beeton's Complete Letter Writer, for Ladies and Gentlemen. Post 8vo, strong cloth, price 1s.

Beeton's Complete Letter Writer for Ladies. In linen covers, 6d.

Beeton's Complete Letter Writer for Gentlemen. Price 6d.

The New Letter Writer for Lovers. In linen covers, price 6d.

Webster's Shilling Book-keeping. A Comprehensive Guide, comprising a Course of Practice in Single and Double Entry. Post 8vo, cloth, 1s.

London; WARD, LOCK & CO., Salisbury Square, E.C.

ADDENDA TO CATALOGUE.

WARD, LOCK & CO.'S RECENT PUBLICATIONS.

THE FIRST VOLUME OF WARD & LOCK'S

UNIVERSAL INSTRUCTOR; or, Self-Culture for All. A Complete Guide to Learning and Self-Education, meeting the requirements of all classes of Students, and forming a perfect System of Intellectual Culture. With Hundreds of Engravings. Medium 8vo, cloth gilt, price 7s. 6d.; half-calf, 10s. 6d.

"We are quite sure that any person who could really master the contents of this one volume, would be one of the most accomplished men of his generation."—Illustrated London News.

"The work is excellent, and it is to be hoped it may meet with the popularity it deserves."—Athenæum.

"The comprehensive excellence of the work is combined with cheapness. . . . An undoubted boon."—Daily Chronicle.

WORTHIES OF THE WORLD. Containing Lives of Great Men of all Countries and all Times. With Portraits. Medium 8vo, cloth gilt, price 7s. 6d.; half-calf, 10s. 6d.

"The book is an excellent one for Free Libraries and Young Men's Institutions."—The Graphic.

"We know of nothing in the same class of literature equally readable, impartial, and valuable as these sketches."—Derby Mercury.

THE MOST COMPLETE AND USEFUL BOOK
HITHERTO PRODUCED FOR AMATEURS IN CARPENTRY AND THE CONSTRUCTIVE ARTS.

EVERY MAN HIS OWN MECHANIC. Being a Complete Guide to all Operations in Building, Making, and Mending that can be done by Amateurs in the House, Garden, Farm, &c., including HOUSEHOLD CARPENTRY AND JOINERY, ORNAMENTAL AND CONSTRUCTIONAL CARPENTRY AND JOINERY, and HOUSEHOLD BUILDING ART AND PRACTICE. With about 750 Illustrations of Tools, Processes, Buildings, &c. Demy 8vo, cloth gilt, price 7s. 6d.; half-calf, 10s. 6d.

"There is a fund of solid information of every kind in the work before us, which entitles it to the proud distinction of being a complete 'vade-mecum' of the subjects upon which it treats."—The Daily Telegraph.

"It will make the fortune of many a lad."—Christian Age.

"Many a boy would be delighted to get this book for a prize."—Graphic.

London: WARD, LOCK & CO., Salisbury Square, E.C.

NEW BOOKS AND NEW EDITIONS.

ENTIRELY NEW EDITION, BROUGHT DOWN TO THE AUTUMN OF 1881.

HAYDN'S DICTIONARY OF DATES, for Universal Reference. By BENJAMIN VINCENT, Librarian of the Royal Institution of Great Britain. SEVENTEENTH EDITION, Enlarged, Revised, and Corrected to Autumn of 1881. Containing 10,000 distinct Articles, and 90,000 Dates and Facts. Medium 8vo, cloth, 18s.; half-calf, 24s.; full or tree-calf, 31s. 6d.

THE TIMES says: "Haydn's Dictionary of Dates is the most universal book of reference in a moderate compass that we know of in the English language."

ENTIRELY NEW AND REVISED EDITION.

BEETON'S DICTIONARY of UNIVERSAL INFORMATION, relating to GEOGRAPHY, HISTORY and BIOGRAPHY. New and Enlarged Edition, containing Several Thousand Additional Articles. By GEO. R. EMERSON. With Maps. In One Handsome Volume, half-leather, 18s.

"In proposing to themselves, as the chief aim of their enterprise, a combination of accuracy, compactness, comprehensiveness and cheapness, the publishers have achieved a success which cannot fail to be appreciated by the public."—Glasgow Herald.

NEW, IMPROVED AND ILLUSTRATED EDITION OF

DR. ADAM CLARKE'S COMMENTARY on the HOLY BIBLE. New and Revised Edition, with Additional Notes, bringing up the work to the present Standard of Biblical Knowledge, and Life of the Author by Rev. THORNLEY SMITH, and 100 pages of Engravings, Maps, &c. In Six Volumes, super-royal, cloth, price 52s. 6d.

"The present edition of Dr. Adam Clarke's well-known Commentary has been made as complete as it well can be."—Christian World.

WARD AND LOCK'S BOOK of FARM MANAGEMENT and COUNTRY LIFE. A Complete Cyclopædia of Rural Occupations and Amusements. The Management of the Farm—The Crops of the Farm—Cows and the Management of the Dairy—The Horse—The Dog—The Fruit and Flower Garden—Trees and Tree Planting—Field Sports and Rural Recreations. Uniform with "Mrs. Beeton's Book of Household Management." With Coloured Plates and many other Illustrations. Large crown 8vo, half-roan, 7s. 6d.; half-calf, 10s. 6d.

"It is an exhaustive and yet a popular work; it is practical, yet not dull; scientific, yet readable. . . . A book that ought to be in the hands of every agriculturist."—Norwich Argus.

London: WARD, LOCK & CO., Salisbury Square, E.C.

NEW BOOKS AND NEW EDITIONS.

A NEW LIFE OF MR. GLADSTONE.

WILLIAM EWART GLADSTONE: Prime Minister of England. A Political and Literary Biography. By GEORGE R. EMERSON, Author of "Life of Lord Beaconsfield," "Life of Raleigh," "Life of Shakespeare," &c., in "Worthies of the World;" Editor of "Beeton's Illustrated Encyclopædia," &c. Demy 8vo, cloth gilt, 6s.

"Readers will find it an instructive study, and will be satisfied, we think, with the manner in which the materials for judgment are here set before them."—Illustrated London News.

WASHINGTON IRVING'S SKETCH BOOK. A New Edition. Illustrated with One Hundred and Twenty Engravings on Wood from Original Designs. Large demy 8vo, cloth gilt, ros. 6d.

CARLETON'S TRAITS AND STORIES of the IRISH PEASANTRY. With the Author's last Corrections, an Introduction, Explanatory Notes, and numerous full-page Plates and other Illustrations, by HARVEY, GILBERT, PHIZ, &c. Demy 8vo, cloth gilt, price 7s. 6d.

Also to be had in Two Volumes, price 4s. each.

THE FAMILY ALTAR: A Manual of Domestic Devotion.

Containing Morning and Evening Prayers, and Hymns, Portions of Scripture, and Practical Observations for Every Day in the Year. With Engravings. Large 4to, cloth gilt, price 12s. 6d.

THE LADY'S BAZAAR AND FANCY FAIR BOOK.

Containing Suggestions upon the Getting-up of Bazaars, and Instructions for making Articles of Embroidery, Cane Work, Crochet, Knitting, Netting, Tatting, Rustic-work and Cone-work; also Directions for Making Skeleton Leaves, Phantom Bouquets, and for Painting on Ivory, China, White-wood, Tapestry, and Terra-Cotta. With 354 Illustrations. Crown 8vo, elegantly bound, cloth gilt, price 5s.

WARD AND LOCK'S

ROYAL EDITION OF THE POETS.

A New and handsome Edition, excellently printed and bound. Edited, with Critical Memoirs, by W. M. ROSSSETTI. With Red Line borders and Illustrations.

- | | | |
|---|------------|------------|
| 1. Longfellow. | 4. Scott. | 7. Burns. |
| 2. Wordsworth. | 5. Cowper. | 8. Moore. |
| 3. Hood. 1st Series. | 6. Byron. | 9. Milton. |
| 10. Poetic Treasures, Selected and Edited by Rev. Dr. GILES | | |

Medium 8vo, cloth gilt, gilt edges, 7s. 6d. each; full morocco, 16s.

London: WARD, LOCK & CO., Salisbury Square, E.C.

THE PEOPLE'S STANDARD LIBRARY.

Seventy-six Vols., 2s. each, strongly and attractively bound, cloth gilt.

- | | |
|---|---|
| 1. Longfellow. | 49. The Marvels of Nature. |
| 2. Scott. | 400 Illustrations. |
| 3. Wordsworth. | 50. The Scottish Chiefs. |
| 4. Milton. | 51. The Lamplighter. |
| 5. Cowper. | 52. The Wide, Wide World. |
| 6. Keats. | 53. Queechy. |
| 7. Hood. First Series. | 54. Poe's Tales of Mystery. |
| 8. Byron. | 55. Wonders of the World. |
| 9. Burns. | 123 Engravings. |
| 10. Mrs. Hemans. | 56. Prince of the House of David. |
| 11. Pope. | 57. Edgeworth's Moral Tales. |
| 12. Campbell. | 58. Edgeworth's Popular Tales. |
| 13. Coleridge. | 59. The Fairchild Family. |
| 14. Moore. | 60. Two Years Before the Mast. |
| 15. Shelley. | 61. Stepping Heavenward. |
| 16. Hood. Second Series. | 62. Baron Munchausen. |
| 17. Thomson. | 63. Fern Leaves and Shadows and Sunbeams. |
| 18. Tupper's Proverbial Philosophy. | 64. Josephus: Wars of the Jews. |
| 19. Humorous Poems. | 65. Josephus: Antiquities. |
| 20. American Poems. | 66. The Pillar of Fire. |
| 21. Lowell. | 67. The Throne of David. |
| 22. Whittier. | 68. Little Women. |
| 23. Shakespeare. Complete. | 69. Good Wives. Sequel to "Little Women." |
| 24. Poetic Treasures. | 70. Melbourne House. |
| 25. Keble's Christian Year. | 71. De Quincey. With Memoir. |
| 26. Young's Poetical Works. | 72. De Quincey. 2nd Series. |
| 27. Poe's Poetical Works. | 73. Lord Bacon. With Memoir. |
| 28. Ann and Jane Taylor's Poetry for Children. | 74. Lord Bacon. 2nd Series. |
| 40. Uncle Tom's Cabin. | 75. Sydney Smith. With Memoir. |
| 41. Evenings at Home. | 76. Sydney Smith. 2nd Series. |
| 42. Grimm's Fairy Tales. Illustrated. | 77. Macaulay. With Memoir. |
| 43. Robinson Crusoe. 110 Illustrations. | 78. Macaulay. 2nd Series. |
| 44. Sandford and Merton. 100 Engravings. | 79. Macaulay. 3rd Series. |
| 45. Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress. 100 Engravings. | 80. Burke's Choice Pieces. |
| 46. The Swiss Family Robinson. 200 Illustrations. | 81. Paley's Evidences of Christianity. |
| 47. Andersen's Popular Stories. Illustrated. | 82. Paley's Natural Theology |
| 48. Andersen's Popular Tales. Illustrated. | 83. Paley's Horæ Paulinæ. |
| | 84. Webster's Dictionary of Quotations. |

London: WARD, LOCK & CO., Salisbury Square, E.C.

C.7 10.7.31.

ND 5-60

PE Brewer, Ebenezer Cobham,
1580 Etymological and pronoun
B66 cing dictionary of difficult
1582 words.

Robarts

For use in the Library
ONLY

PLEASE DO NOT REMOVE SLIPS FROM THIS POCKET

For use in the Library
ONLY

UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO LIBRARY

